PLEASANT VALLEY, CT.
E. Williams....May 20th
Lovely Street, Ct....May 13th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

At the Lake, a quarterly meeting, commencing on Saturday, at 2 P. M., May 19th, and continuing over the Sabbath. Let all interested attend.
C. P. DOW.

EAST BOWDOINHAM.
H. D. Reed....Sunday, May 20th

New Haven, Ct....May 20th
New York....May 27th
New Haven, Ct....June 3d
Hartford, Ct....June 10th
Warehouse Point....June 17th
J. S. WHITE.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Keeseville, N. Y.—If the brother who sent $1.16 for some tracts, in an envelope which was postmarked "Keeseville, N. Y." will give us his name and address, the tracts will be sent.

Sarah Chapel—If you will tell us your post office, we will credit the $3.00 you have sent.

S. A. Kidder—The terms of the Pilgrim will be the same.

B. V. Andrews—The Bible Dictionary is published by the American Tract Society, and is a compilation from various sources. That and the Concordance are sold at the prices advertised.

H. Mitchell—It was received and credited.

J. T. Dixon—The money for M. Breed was received, and acknowledged in No. 544.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 554. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness, if less than 26 weeks, charge five cents; if more than 26 weeks, six cents. From the product (which will be a fraction over the actual indebtedness) deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each—J. Smith 540, D. A. Shaw 572, J. Porter 577, M Hodgdon 575, S H Neff 567, C. A. Wentworth 573 J Erwin 569.

$1.25 each—S O Parker 577, W Bragdon 572, T Chard 577, J S Milne 560, W Milne 560, M McLeod 560, S Anderson 580, T Sproul 560, P Webb 555, R Northrup 539, S Anderson 577, M A Perkins 577, J Merrill 572, J Pitcher 556, W. Dunn 560, L. K. Fowler 565, E M Miller 577, B T Westgate 577, V A Delloff 577, A McMaster 577, J T Chock 577, C D Estes 577, T Grover 566, L. Briggs 530, A R Ireland 578.

$1.00 each—C L Opdike 580, J Sanderson 594, L Ross 556.

$2.50 each—A Perry 580, B Parkman 596, J H Colton 617, J Dean 585, L A Young 603, O F Foster 608, J E Sanxton 603, J. H. Potter 603, H. G. Tracy 603, W. S. Crowe 603, A. Nelson 603, W. Gormley 603, B J Sanders 603, B Tuttle 597, B D Walcott (2 copies) 577, S S Garmon 604, F Turner 603, C B House 603, S Greely 603, J G Hasen 602, J O Rogers 603, L H Abern 603, H H Roderick 599, W Bennett 558, D L Herrick 581, J P Perry 585, E B Clark 602, J Crook 603, P Chaddock 603, N. Cannon 603, R. Bolin 603, P. Devilliers 603, G. Cousens 603, H Rotherham 594.

Various Sums—M E Kendall 50c. 580; S D Billings 63c, 564; H Packard $3.00, 573; B Hooper $3.00, 534; H W Chamberlin $3.00, 556; P. Rockwell 50c, 527; H. J. Estes $4.00, 550; J. A. Marden $3.00, 532; G. E. Bingham $1.21, 566; E B Rice $2.74, 608; W I Pierre $4.00, 503; O B Snow 63c, 561.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

E. McCulloch $5.00, M. Sanders $1.00, S. A. Kidder $1.75, J W Finn 40c, E R Wood 50c, S W Pettis 50c, A Watson 85c, T W Leavenworth $2.07, J P Marquand 65c, D W Griffen 50c, D Versteeg $1.00, W S Plummer 60c, H Rotherham 50c.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL.—H Rotherham, E G Osgood, F Tripp, D Versteeg, W Miller, W H Nevers, N Staples, S D Yaw, E McCulloch, S A Kidder, J W Finn, E R Wood, A Neff, S. W. Pettis, A. Watson, T. W. Leavenworth, F. Platt, I P Marquand, P Young.

BY EXPRESS.—H. F. Carpenter.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

A F Pawley, O Kendall, W A Reed, C Daggett, D F Newton, W M Ingham, W H Spencer, A. Bain, J. C. Rogers, T Driscoll, I C Wellcome. L C McKinstry, S A Isbell, S L Manley, A P Morse, H E Carver, L Becraft, C C Stevens, S A Isbell, H E Carver.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

Bro. Israel Damman—For two or three weeks, New Bedford, Mass.

Eld. C. Goodrich—69 Marion Street, East Boston, Mass.

J. K. Bellows—392 Broome Street, New York City.

Dr. I. I. Leslie—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.

H. K. Flagg—St. Louis, Mo.

Martha S. Butler—Box 631, Memphis, Tenn.

F. H. Burbank, Missionary.—Residence S. W. Cor. 7th and Spring-Garden Streets, Philadelphia, Penn.

H. F. Carpenter—My address hereafter will be Danielsonville, Ct.

F. A. Baker—North Searsport, Me.

Joseph W. White—Portsmouth, N. H.

N. Hartshorn—Laconia, N. H.

J. G. Smith—New Durham, N. H.

Eld. A. W. Sibley—No. 4 Meridian Place, East Boston, Mass.

J. R. Preston—Prairie du Sac, Sauk Co., Wis.

R. J. Whitehead—Wallingford, Ct.

C. C. Stevens—Exeter, N. H.

Mrs. Anna E. Smith—No. 360 Seventh Avenue, below 33d Street, New York City.

L. C. McKinstry—Great Falls, N. H.

John T. Ongley—Lincolnville, Crawford Co., Pa.

C. E. Piper—41 Grove Street, Boston, Mass.

B. D. Daniels—Springfield, Mass.

G. W. Turner—West Point, Wis.

C. P. Dow—My P. O. address for United States' correspondents will be hereafter Franklin, Vt.

Wm. McCulloch—New Rutland, Ill.

P. W. Hough—Cascade, Iowa.

Mrs. Abigail Mussey—Hillsburgh, Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Walter Pratt—No. 4 Poplar Place, Boston, Mass.

Wm. A. Fenn—Pulaski, Oswego Co., N. Y.

W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.

H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.

J. Couch—Concord, N. H.

L. Boutell—Salem, Mass.

N. A. Hitchcock—Exeter, Green Co., Wis.

N. F. Nason—North Hermon, Me.

C. B. Turner—South Butler, Wayne Co., N. Y.

S. C. Hancock—Forestville, Conn.

Samuel Curry—Station E., New York.

B. P. Babcock—Malaga, N. J.

Josiah Durgin—Wadley's Falls, N. H.

H. Pratt—After March 20th, Springfield, Mass., 57 Cedar St.

C. I. Deye—Richland, Kalamazoo Co., Mich.

Eld. Jacob Wilbur—Box 941, Janesville, Rock Co., Wis.

G. W. Stetson—Coopersville, Clinton Co., N. Y., until further notice.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

Sent, postpaid, as follows:

1. I don't believe in Religion....12 pp., 3c.
2. Did the World make itself?....16 pp., 4c.
3. Is God Everybody, and Everybody God?....16 pp., 4c.
4. Have we any need of the Bible?....24 pp., 4c.
5. Who wrote the New Testament?....16 pp., 4c.
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable?....16 pp., 4c.
7. Can we believe Christ and his Apostles?....16 pp., 4c.
8. Prophecy....22 pp., 5c.
9. Moses and the Prophets....28 pp., 5c.
10. Infidelity among the Stars....28 pp., 5c.
11. Daylight before Sunrise....36 pp., 5c.
12. Telescopic Views of Scripture....22 pp., 5c.
13. Science, or Faith?....22 pp., 5c.

For the Set, (making 304 pp.)....50c. postpaid.
Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home....16 pp.
2. Life Insurance....16 pp.
3. Lost! Lost!....8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet?....8 pp.
5. About God (for children)....4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing....4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ....4 pp.
8. Now....4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent postpaid—
One set (64 pp.)....6 c.
1300 pp....$1.00
1800 pp., (by express, not prepaid)....$1.00
Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

[illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom [illegible]

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and [illegible]

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity; and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, [illegible] SPIRITUALISM [illegible]

IV. The Great Controversy between God and [illegible]

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; [illegible]

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE

ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY

No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Works on the Prophecies—The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, etc.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES; or, A Glance at Christendom as it is. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. By D. T. Taylor. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 60c.

THESSALONICA, the Model Church, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, by H. L. Hastings; and SPIRITUALISM, by Dr. Ramsey. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. With various tracts. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

MATTHEW XXIV. AND XXV. An Exposition, showing Christ's Predictions fulfilled, and his Kingdom near. By I. C. Wellcome. 20c; by mail, 27c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 1, By S. S. Brewer. 7c; by mail, 9c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 2, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 3, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

REASONS FOR MY HOPE; or, Tokens of Speedy Redemption. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD, and Signs of the Times. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THESSALONICA; or, The Model Church. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

REVELATIONS XIII.; a treatise. By S. S. Brewer. 16c; by mail, 20c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

SPIRITUALISM a Satanic Delusion. By Wm. Ramsey, D. D. 20c.

THE SEVEN SEALS. Exposition of Rev. vi. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

LOOKING FORWARD; or, Prospects of the Church. By H. L. Hastings. 10c.

THE DAYS WE LIVE IN; The Lord soon to come. By S. S. Brewer. 10c; by mail, 13c.

THE CELESTIAL RAILROAD; or, Modern Pilgrim's Progress. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 13c; by mail, 15c.

THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE GREAT IMAGE soon to be dashed to pieces. By S. S. Brewer. 4c; by mail, 5c.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the times of Daniel and John. Mounted on Rollers, by express, $3.00; on Cloth, by mail, $4.00.

THE REIGN OF MESSIAH, the King of the Jews, on the Throne of his Father David; its Nature, and the Time of its Commencement. By Wm. Sheldon. 8c; by mail, 10c.

Works on Future Punishment, etc.

DEBT AND GRACE; or, The Doctrine of a Future Life. By C. F. Hudson. A very able and learned work. $1.50.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. Cloth, 75c; paper, 45c.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT as taught in the Scriptures. Comprising Pauline Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, Old Paths, etc. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

STATE OF THE DEAD, and Punishment of the Wicked. A Discussion between Miles Grant and W. W. Clayton. 20c; by mail, 22c.

ETERNAL SUFFERING. A Discussion between Miles Grant and Dr. J. Litch. 25c; by mail, 28c.

RETRIBUTION; or, The Doom of the Ungodly. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, The Destruction of the Wicked established, and Endless Misery disproved. By Jacob Blain. 25c; by mail, 29c.

PAULINE THEOLOGY; or, The Christian Doctrine of Future Punishment, as taught in the Epistles of Paul. H. L. H. 10c.

GLAD TIDINGS; or, The End of Woe and Sin by the Destruction of the Wicked. (Three chapters from "Death not Life.") By J. Blain. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE OLD PATHS; or, The Primitive Doctrine of a Future Life. By H. L. H. 10c.

IMMORTAL SOUL THEOLOGY vs. BIBLE. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

WHAT IS MAN? A Bible View of his Creation. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SOUL; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SPIRIT; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS; Thief on the Cross, etc. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE DOCTRINE OF ENDLESS MISERY an occasion of Scepticism. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ETERNAL DEATH in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. 6c; by mail, 8c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. With remarks on Josephus. By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE RIGHTS OF WRONG; or, Is Evil Eternal? By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ENDLESS MISERY not a Bible Doctrine. 4c; by mail, 6c.

THE WICKED NOT IMMORTAL—(with 200 proof-texts.) 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING OF THE WORD HELL. 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING of Forever and Everlasting. [illegible]; by mail, 4c.

SMOKE OF TORMENT and Unquenchable Fire Explained. 1c; by mail, 3c.

REV. JOHN FOSTER'S LETTER on Future Punishment. 1c; by mail, 3c.

Miscellaneous.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF CHRISTIAN HOLINESS: A Sermon, by S. H. Platt. 15c.

THE DAY AND THE HOUR: a Lecture, by Joseph A. Seiss, D. D. 15c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.36. Cloth, $1.75; by mail, $2.07.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five colored Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. $1.80; by mail, $2.05.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.40; by mail, $1.70.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, the Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE BIBLE FROM HEAVEN; or, a Dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. 25c; by mail, 29c.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM; its Duty and Objects. By I. C. Wellcome. 20c, postpaid; $1.00 per dozen.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK; for Families and Sunday Schools. 15c; by mail, 19c; $1.50 per dozen; postage, 8c. on every three copies.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS FIGHT?—a tract on War By I. C. Wellcome. 10c.

AMERICA IN PROPHECY; an Exposition of Isaiah XVIII. By O. R. Fassett. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EVERY BODY'S BOOK; the Personality of God; The Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By P. A. Smith. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CHRISTIAN LYRE; a Collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. 80c; by mail, 88c.

HOW TO COOK—without Salt, Butter, Lard, or Condiments. By Mrs. Mary E. Cox, M. D. 20c. postpaid.

COOKERY; or How to prepare food from Grain, Fruits and Vegetables. By F. W. Hurd, M. D. 15c; by mail, 17c.

PREMATURE DECAY of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE OLD AND NEW COVENANT—Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EXPERIENCE AND OBSERVATIONS of a Bruised Reed. By F. H. Chamberlain. By mail, 17c.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-word Translation, etc. etc. Leather, $4.00; by mail, $4.16. Extra gilt, $4.50; by mail, $4.66. Morocco, $5.00; by mail, $5.16.

CHLOE LANKTON, or Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75c; by mail, 87c.

NON-RESISTANCE. By W. C. Thurman. 20c; by mail, 24c.

DIPHTHERIA; its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. 10c; by mail, 12c.

GLAD VOICES; Words by D. T. Taylor, Music by L. Reimer. 3c. single; by mail, 5c. 30 cents a dozen, postpaid.

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. 15c; eight copies for $1.00.

BETHLEHEM: a Rhyme for Children. By H. L. Hastings. 10c. postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

SOCIAL HYMNS. Original and Selected. By H. L. H. Cloth, 30c; $3.00 per dozen. Paper 20c, $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. For Sunday Schools, etc. 6c; per dozen, 50c.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of the "cities of the nations." By Wm. Shepherd. 10c, postpaid; 85c. a dozen.

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. By A. P. Jellison. 6c; by mail, 7c.

OUR MISSION WORK; a Report of the Organization of the American Advent Mission Society, its Constitution, Officers, Addresses, etc. [illegible]

EXPERIENCE OF THOMAS H. JONES, who was a Slave for forty-three years. 25c.

BLIND BARTIMEUS; or, How to be Saved. 25c. per dozen; $1.50 per hundred. Single 5c., postpaid.

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS; their Origin, Nature, Rank and Titles, their Ministry and Various Offices in the work of Human Redemption, and in the Administration of the Government of God. By Wm. Shepherd. 20c.

CONSECRATION—"GIVE ME THY HEART."

Here's my heart—to God I give it;
Voice and tongue, to praise his name;
I have life—to him I live it;
Hands—to him devote the same.
I've a field—to sow and reap it—
And must reap whate'er it grows;
I've a paradise—I'll keep it,
For it blossoms as the rose.

I've a conscience—thus protected,
Worth a throne and diadem;
I've a mansion, well selected,
In the New Jerusalem.
Hence I have, in this connection,
Thus prepared, I have a home;
Such a home that my affection
Does not, will not, cannot roam.

I have feet—with God they're walk'ng,
For with gospel peace they're shod;
Most familiarly I'm talking,
As I take my walk with God.
I have thought—the greatest pleasure
Which the universe can sing;
There is no material treasure
Which can such possessions bring.

I have ears—to hear the story
Men and angels love to tell;
Eyes—to see the rising glory,
Which shall Zion's triumph swell.
I have prayer—to God I make it,
While mine eye his throne surveys;
I've a golden harp, I'll wake it
To a song of endless praise.

—Lorenzo D. Grosvenor.

THE TWO ROUTES—WHICH TRACK WILL YOU TAKE?

God, our heavenly Father, the disposer of all human events, has constructed the most substantial, direct, and glorious thoroughfare from this world to that which is to come that can possibly be made. The whole route has been surveyed by competent engineers; the whole distance graded; the mountains tunneled; the hills leveled; the valleys filled; gulfs and streams bridged; the rails laid; depots built; and the magnificent train is in motion, superintended by the great Architect, propelled by the power of God, and conducted by his Son, Jesus Christ. The train is a through train, but stops at all the depots on the route to receive all passengers who freely submit to the rules of the Conductor. No getting off without jumping, and that exposes the venturesome to destruction.

There is one thing quite remarkable indeed, and that is, there is only one such highway. No branches running to and from this track. No switches made, or switch-tenders employed. No hand-cars run on the track looking out for danger, or replacing broken rails. The only train that runs is a mail-train. Communication is constantly kept open by the Holy Spirit. No sleeping cars are attached, night or day; consequently, all are wide awake, on time, and looking forward with great anxiety for the final depot, or the New Jerusalem.

The passengers who travel this route are those who heartily love and admire the Superintendent, Conductor, each other, and the rules that govern the train. They do not smoke, chew tobacco, and squirt the spittle, or take snuff; for these are the lusts of the flesh, and there are no cigar factories on the road, or smoking cars connected with this line. They do not play cards, dance, or go to church-gambling festivals and donations, for gambling saloons are not allowed on this track. They do not love the world, nor the things that are in it; for this they know is very displeasing to the Superintendent; hence, none such are allowed on this train. They do not seek for worldly amusements, the latest styles, the honors of this world, or of a popular, lukewarm, man-made church. They do not wear gold, pearls, dazzling ornaments, or costly array, to attract attention and appear beautiful outwardly. All these sinful superfluities, they "touch not, taste not, handle not"; for those that do, perish with these idol gods at the end of the route. But they are God's jewels, sanctified by the gift of God, seeking to be as spotless as angels, wise as serpents, harmless as doves, innocent as babes, and benevolent as the one who chartered the road. The train thus loaded passes along safely toward its place of destination—the world to come.

At no great distance from this highway, under another government, there exists another thoroughfare, projected through the country, running in nearly an opposite direction from the one just described, by agents directly at antipodes with all connected with the first road as regards principle, character, reputation, and economy. The road seems well laid, to the casual observer, although various repairs are required continually. The engines and trains, although splendid in appearance, frequently run off the track, and meet with many misfortunes. The superintendent that takes the supervision of this road is the character described by John (ch. 12: 9),—the great dragon, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, that deceiveth the whole world. His employees are the demons described by Paul.

This route, with its time-table and fare, are kept constantly advertised by the proprietors, and every inducement held out to secure the public patronage. Cards, hand-bills, maps, etc., are posted in every possible direction to secure attention. There are no general rules that govern the train, save the "lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life." Hence, by way of pleasantries, they have smoking cars, tobacco factories, snuff-bins, drinking and gambling saloons, dancing halls, church-gambling festivals, whist and card tables, where everything is served up in the latest and most magnificent style, regardless of unnecessary expense, in order to satisfy the depraved appetites of the different classes of travelers. On both sides of this track are numerous depots, while there are switches only on one side; and these all run in an oblique direction from the main road, wherein they have been grafted, across to within whistling distance of the road first described. These switches might be named legion; there being so many of them. We will name only a few: a sectarian switch; a popular, or fashionable switch; a switch of worldly honor, etc.

The great architect of this road has numerous runners on these side tracks, zealously at work with their hand-bills, cards, and fair speeches, checking baggage for their employer. Through their manifold deceptions the mass of the world are contented to travel this route, besides many that profess godliness, who have jumped off from the train upon the other road, exchanging their baggage for that that corresponds with the traveler's on board the other train, that leadeth to destruction.

The character of the superintendent, his employees, and the multitude that travel this route, we will leave for Inspiration to describe; also, the destiny to which they are all with almost lightning speed hastening. Reader, fail not to turn and read the following descriptions. First, of those that are on the route to the world of fire; and second, of those on the road to endless joys in the future world.

First class: Rev. 12: 9; 2 Pet. 2: 4; Matthew 23; 2 Tim. 3: 1–5; 4: 3, 4; Gal. 5: 19–21; Rom. 1: 18–32; 8: 1–13; 16: 17, 18; 1 Cor. 6: 9–11; Jude, 19th; Rev. 20: 8.

Second class: 2 Pet. 1: 1–11; 1 Pet. 1: 1–23; Titus 2: 11–15; Phil. 3: 7–9; Eph. 4: 1–32; 1 Cor. 13; Rev. 14: 2, 3.

Dear reader, you are certainly on one or the other of these routes, fast hastening into the kingdom of God, or into the lake of fire prepared for the devil and his angels; and it is of the highest importance that you should at once count the cost and make your choice. "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve. If the Lord be God, serve him; if Baal, serve him." "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon." The present is the only time you have to make this choice. Every moment of your life that passes now unoccupied, or unimproved, will shortly sting and torment you most keenly. Jesus is about to rise up and shut to the door, and swear that time shall be no longer. Then wrath, tribulation and anguish shall seize every soul unreconciled to God, and they will weep, wail, and gnash their teeth, till the second death closes in upon them forever. Cold-hearted, world-loving, fashionable professor, heed this warning; and unregenerated man, or woman, escape for your life from the opening jaws of the second death to the divine ark of safety. "Procrastination is the thief of time." Delay not a moment.—A. N. Seymour.—Voice of the West.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTERS ON REVISION.

Letter VIII.—Scripture Coins.

In Old Testament times, gold and silver were usually weighed; and, among the Jews, the weight was commonly estimated in shekels. In the New Testament, several denominations of money are mentioned. The early translators of the Bible into English, and the revisers who followed them, including King James's, seem to have had no plan matured for representing the Greek coin-words of the New Testament. In some passages they employ a general term of no specific value; and in others a specific term, without a proper regard to either its absolute or its relative value.

Thus, in Matt. 5: 26, kodrantes, a Roman brass coin, is well rendered "farthing";—"till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing." In ch. 10: 29, assarion, a Roman brass coin four times the value of the kodrantes, is also rendered "farthing";—"two sparrows sold for a farthing." In 18: 28; 20: 2, 9, 13, and 22: 19, denarion, a Roman silver coin worth ten times the assarion, is translated "penny." One "farthing" is thus made equal to four "farthings"; and one "penny" equal to ten, or even forty "farthings"! (See Robinson's N. T. Lexicon; Greenfield's ditto.) In 20: 2, "a penny" is also represented as the full wages for a day's work. This applying of inappropriate names to the coins of Scripture, is adapted to produce confused and erroneous ideas.

In Matt. 17: 24, the didrachmon, a Greek silver coin twice the value of the denarion, is translated by the general terms "tribute-money" and "tribute"; and in verse 27, the stater, a Greek silver coin, equal to a Jewish shekel, and twice the value of didrachmon, is translated "a piece of money."

By using the English words farthing and penny, in their true relation to each other, and the Jewish shekel and half-shekel, already adopted and Anglicized in the Old Testament, and then adopting the Latin denarius, Greek denarion, for which we have no just representative, and giving it an English termination, denary, plural denaries, we shall have a full and correct set of terms for the New Testament coins, that will exhibit their relative values with exactness, and very nearly their present commercial values.

This desirable object has been secured in the Revised Testament, and it gives definiteness and beauty to all the passages in which those terms occur. And we can now understand it as a settled truth that, in the language of the New Testament as revised, two mites make a farthing (Mark 12: 42), four farthings one penny, ten pence one denary, four denaries one shekel, and two denaries a half-shekel. As the value of the shekel was about sixty cents, the half-shekel was worth thirty cents, the denary fifteen cents, the penny one cent and a half, the farthing about four mills, and the mite two mills.

Also, in the marginal note on the laborers being "agreed with for a denary a day" (Matt. 20: 2), we are informed that this was "about one-third more than the daily pay of a Roman soldier." From this fact, we learn that a denary was the usual, full price for a day's work. We also learn that the good Samaritan freely bestowed what it would take a laboring man two days to earn, when "he took out two denaries and gave to the" inn-keeper, to be expended by him in taking care of the wounded man. (Luke 10: 35.)

C. W. Waterhouse.

For the World's Crisis.

CITY AND COUNTRY.

A LETTER FROM AN UNCLE IN THE CITY TO HIS NIECE IN THE COUNTRY.

Dear Lady:—Have you ever wisely and duly considered the enjoyments and privileges you have in the country? If you have not, pray meditate upon them, and cultivate a love for a country life. The rural scenes and joys which it affords are far preferable to a life in the city. The city, as it were, cements the mind's affection to the fickle and transitory scenes of earth. The works and ways of the city's sensualities too often take from our eyes the fair face of nature, and lead us to forget the glorious God who made us, and to whom we are indebted for life and health and every breath we draw. Insipid and empty are the joys of a city life, when compared with the sacred delights which a rural residence gives to a mind rightly arranged. Solitary communion with nature is one of the holiest delights which the world can bestow,—delights which are sure to benefit all those who realize them. Purity is enstamped on nature's form; and to commune with her is sure to fill the mind with all that is pure and lovely. In every season of the year, a residence in the country has its benign and beneficial effects on men. It gives to the mind those joys which never can be found in a city life. The city has its sensual appetite of enjoyments, and the country has its rural pleasures in beholding the blooming face of nature. But those worldly pleasures, both in the city and in the country, are trivial, and of short duration. They are not our highest concern. They will soon pass away. Therefore, we should seek for a more permanent existence, beyond the grave, where there are everlasting joys kept in store for all those who believe, and walk in the path of divine truth; joys that will be brought forth at the resurrection of the just,—at the coming of our blessed Lord and Master.

Yet how many there are, both in the city and in the country, who are senselessly asleep, and thoughtless of these things which pertain to their best good. They study neither the laws of nature nor the history of divine revelation, which are so essentially and freely given to lead us to the joys of eternal life. I hope and trust, my dear niece, that you are not one of those! I think it would be well for us all, and more especially in this crisis of time, to study the book of God, and the divine history of Revelation, and the signs of the times, which reveal to us the speedy coming of our Lord to judge the earth. For he saith, "And behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give to every man according as his work shall be."

Now, under these considerations, is it not important for us to be preparing for his coming? For it is said in divine truth, "Blessed are they that do his commandment, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." May we be prepared to meet the Bridegroom when he shall come. May we have on the wedding garment. May we have our lamps trimmed and burning, that we may be enabled to partake of the joys of eternal life.

Dear niece, are not the joys of eternal life worth seeking for? Is it not worth our greatest exertions to attain it? Surely, it as far exceeds our worldly pleasures as the noonday sun exceeds the midnight darkness. Therefore, let us look well to these things, and secure our salvation before it is too late. This we can do, and this we should do; for salvation is freely offered to all those who shall obey the gospel of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

What encouragement and consolation we have here, in passing through this vale of tears, in the following words of our blessed Lord, "And the Spirit and the bride say come; and let him that heareth say come; and let him that is athirst come; and whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." I can but think that the above is one of the most essential and beautiful phrases that there is laid down in the holy Bible. Let not our worldly pleasures, nor our sensual appetites, debar us from those consoling and heavenly invitations. Let us be up and doing while the day lasts, for behold "the night of death cometh, when no man can work." We have much to do in order to baffle the evils that we are so beset with on every side. Would it not be well for us, under these considerations, to give heed to the following passages of Scripture:—"Rejoice in the Lord always; and again I say, rejoice. Let your moderation be known unto all men. The Lord is at hand. Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." Phil. 4: 4–7. Amen and amen.

Fisherville, N. H. J. Elkins.

For the World's Crisis.

SUGGESTED THOUGHTS.

Not long since, one who might and should have had a more correct understanding, in his eagerness to appropriate Matt. 24: 30, and similar passages, to the destruction of Jerusalem, remarked, "he believed the Scriptures gave no signs to indicate the time of Christ's coming at his second advent. That they (the Scriptures) simply affirmed that 'This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.'"—Acts 1: 11. One who heard him, referred him to 1 Thess. 5: 1–7, and 2 Thess. 2: 1–11, hoping that these would so awaken intelligence that, at his leisure, he might be induced to look for other texts equally positive.

This strange and unexpected position suggested a few thoughts to me, which may be worth repeating, in addition to the much that has been ably said and written. This would be unnecessary, did not so many still persistently cling to a vague, conflicting view regarding this rich, definite portion of Christ's words, as if "asserting a thing could create the fact." I am quite ready to admit, that many of the terms are used in that equivocal manner, which is calculated to preserve the harmony of the double prophecy; one of which is the type, the other the anti-type. But, with one of the events in the far-off past, so far that it carries the mind backward along the ages, to the time when Titus, representative of the Roman power, sacked and burned Jerusalem; the other, in the soon coming future, it seems none need be at fault in distinguishing. To the Jewish mind, at the time the sad events were predicted, and which so soon came to be veritable history, it seemed far more improbable than to us, can that event, which all Bible believers are expecting sometime, however distant they may prefer to regard it. Jerusalem, in its splendor and seeming prosperity, looked the very emblem of strength and beauty; but Jesus, looking on its shining domes and lofty turrets, could also take in that complete view which delineated its fearful end. So, too, his infinite mind saw the final consummation of all things as clearly, and spake of it, and its attendant signs, with equal distinctness; and if we confuse and mystify them, the fault is in us, not in the Scriptures.

Thus, in verse 28, "For where the carcass is, there will the eagles be gathered together." If we seek to make it mean the Romans, as many do, passing it by as merely an expletive proverb, how meaningless it appears; but, associating it where it belongs, with the preceding verse, how it embodies a great and beautiful doctrine. Christ is telling his followers, that though there would be those to say, "Behold he is in the desert;" they were to "Go not forth; behold he is in the secret chamber; believe it not; for as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be. For wheresoever the carcass is, there will the eagles be gathered together." I confess this last clause had been read by myself times without number, without comprehension, till suddenly its beauty and force broke upon my mind with intuitive clearness, and my heart basked in the glory of that revealment.

Let Scripture illustrate Scripture. By turning to 1 Thess. 4: 13–17, none need be at a loss to realize the full force of this "for"; for with the light there thrown upon the accompaniments of that glorious event, how evident that where the brightness and glory reveals the coming of the Son of man, there too will be drawn "all them that love his appearing," even with the eagerness of the birds which Jesus used as a figure to illustrate a point that in his quiet dignity he did not choose to reveal more distinctly. "Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight." And with this revelation of God, through Paul to the Thessalonians, for a key, how forcible is the language of verses 40, 41. Laboring side by side in the field, sitting in the nearest intimacy, grinding at the mill, one shall mount up to meet the Lord in the air, the other, alas! remain to meet the fearful doom of the wicked. With what propriety is it therefore enjoined on all to "watch." May we so watch that we listen not to the syren voice that will have lulled to sleep "if it were possible, the very elect." M. W. Howard.

Malone, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BOOK OF BOOKS.

IN HOUSEHOLD DUTY—THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

"This book of books I'd rather own,
Than all the gold or gems
That e'er in monarchs' coffers shone—
Than all their diadems:
Nay, were the seas one chrysolite,
The earth a golden ball,
And diadems all the stars of night,
This book were worth them all.

Yes, yes, this blessed book is worth
All else to mortals given;
For what are all the joys of earth
Compared to joys of heaven!
This is the guide our Father gave
To lead to realms of day—
A star whose lustre gilds the grave—
The light, the life, the way."

Friends, parents, teachers, children, do you take the blessed Bible, and embrace it, clasp it to your bosoms as heaven's best gift? Is it your delight, your council, your hope, your joy, your exceeding great reward? Do you embrace it with your whole heart, saying, "O how love I thy law! it is my meditation all the day?" "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path?"

"What glory gilds the sacred page,"
Majestic like the sun."

IN FAMILY GOVERNMENT.

Fathers, mothers, are you influenced by this Book of books in family government, in "rearing the tender thought?" Do you open this sacred volume, reverentially, morning, noon, at even-tide, in your closets, at the family altar? Do you impart instruction from this heavenly guide to your little ones, rising up, lying down, going out, coming in? Parent, beloved, do you teach the words of the living God diligently to your children? talk of them when you sit in your house, and when you walk by the way? when you lie down and when you rise up? Do you bind them for a sign upon your hand? place them as frontlets between your eyes? "Write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates?" (Deut. 6: 7–9) that your offspring, like little Timothy, may become wise unto salvation from their early childhood? "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple." Whenever your sons or your daughters err in the least from virtue's path, purity of thought, word, or deed, do you invariably point them to the "Thus saith the Lord?" If ever they speak aught but truth in the heart, the inmost soul, in honest simplicity and godly fear, what now? to the Light and the Life? the Book of books, the authority of the Infinite, the Omnipotent? Do you say to them what the law and the testimony saith, touching falsehood, deceit, or prevarication? that the slightest, minutest deviation from strict rectitude, honest integrity of purpose and guileless simplicity, proceedeth directly and uniformly from the devil, the old serpent, the father of all liars, and the awful doom which follows the one follows the other? that "all liars shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone?" Rev. 21: 8.

Do your little ones ever manifest the least possible inkling of disobedience, self-will, or unsubmission to wholesome parental discipline? do you immediately open the big book—the Book of books—and direct their attention forthwith to the fearful, awful, terrible judgments denounced against children who honor not their father and their mother? that he "that curseth his father or his mother, shall surely be put to death?" "The eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagles shall eat it?" Prov. 30: 17. Are your children in any wise indolent, inactive, disposed to sluggishness, to habits of idleness or dissipation? Do you show them the mandate of high heaven, what is recorded from the inspiration of the Holy One, touching idlers, those who cry, "Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding the hands to sleep?" that "slothfulness casteth into a deep sleep?" "the desire of the slothful killeth him?" "Go to the ant, thou sluggard, consider her ways and be wise"—to the word Omnipotent, Omnipresent, in every instance of conformity to the law of love, in great folks and little folks—to the law and the testimony at the slightest deviation from things pure, lovely, angelic—open the Book of books, hear Jehovah speak, the Lord of lords—King of kings.

God's authority is supreme, infinitely above all human authority or enactments; it settles all questions at once. When God speaks, let the earth tremble, "stand in awe, sin not,"—all heaven be silent. "Let all the earth fear the Lord; let all the inhabitants of the earth stand in awe of him." Psa. 33: 8. Once fix the idea of the terrible, merciful, gracious, glorious authority of the Great I Am clearly and indelibly in the minds and hearts of children, and the work of discipline is measurably done, and well done

Would we train up children aright, we must train them in accordance with the divine requirements. The man of our counsel must be the unerring Word of Truth. If we are Christ's, we shall seek to measure our conduct by his word, and equally anxious should we be to measure or to have measured the conduct of our children by his word. Whatever parents may require, or whatever they may forbid, should be in conformity with the instructions given them by their great teacher—God. Let this be done, and let children see it, and feel it; and then how infinitely more easy it will be to induce them to walk in the right way. Yes, as much easier as it is to obey God rather than man. Here the authority is stamped with the broad seal of heaven, and is as much higher than that of parents merely, as heaven is higher than earth, as the authority of Infinite, the Uncreated, the Eternal, is higher than that of finite, created beings of yesterday.

Among the first lessons taught children from the Bible, those relating to parental obedience seem especially to claim attention. When the fact that God requires children to obey their parents is well established in their minds, a very important object is gained. Will they not listen with fearful attention, with filial confidence, when told that God says,—"Hearken unto thy Father that has begot thee, and dispise not thy mother when she is old." "Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right." "Honor thy father and mother, (which is the first commandment with promise), that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayst live long on the earth." "Children obey your parents in all things; for this is well pleasing unto the Lord."

Then, when reminded that obeying their parents is not only right, but well pleasing unto the Lord—that with it is connected the promise of long life, and well being, and that disobedience is connected with fearful denunciations—when told these things, will they not feel, that with all the heart, they will seek to render cheerful and ready obedience?

Parents, in training your little ones, take the Bible, begin with the Bible, keep on with the Bible, end with the Bible. Let the Bible be first, midst, last, always.

"How pure the sacred words of truth!
The blessed book to guide our youth;
Given by our Father and our God,
To guide to heaven through Jesus' blood."

D. F. Newton, Author of Home Thrust.

VIOLENCE OF THE AGE.

From all parts of the country the papers are loaded down with reports of murders, highway robberies, and garrotings. In many of our cities almost a panic prevails on the subject. What does it mean? Why such wide-spread violence? We answer, because the last days are here, concerning which the Spirit of God long ago instructed the apostles to write. What can be expected of the world when given up to the mediumship of demons, to be influenced by those foul spirits which have passed beyond the jurisdiction of earthly tribunals? In proportion as Spiritualism prevails, and the influence of the Bible is discarded, these crimes will multiply. If things progress long as they are now going on, we shall soon know the meaning of our Lord's saying, "As it was in the days of Noah and Lot, so shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed." Human life, in the esteem of the roughs of this age, is no more than that of the brutes. "The earth was filled with violence," and thus it is now becoming. —Advent Herald.

THE IMMORTALITY OF THE SOUL.

Dr. Dwight assumes that the soul is immortal, but was compelled to say, "Whatever has been created can certainly be annihilated. The continuance of the soul must, therefore, depend absolutely on the will of God." (Works, v. 1, p. 163.)

Mr. George Combe, an eminent phrenologist, says: "No idea can be more erroneous than to suppose that man is an immortal being on account of the substance of which he is composed." (System of Phrenology, p. 595–7.)

Cicero, having reckoned up the opinions of philosophers as to the soul's immortality, concluded thus: "Which of these opinions is true? Some God must tell us. Which is most like truth? is a great question." (Institutes, v. 1, p. 56.)

The American Phrenological Journal says on the question of the soul: "Metaphysicians have quite generally acknowledged themselves in the dark, and their speculations have fallen far short of satisfying the requirement, of the general reason of mankind."

OLD FRUIT TREES.

Old fruit trees like old wine, are better than new—more hardy, more prolific, because larger, and bear while the young ones are growing, always provided that they are kept in order, and well fed—for plants, like animals, need food or they will perish. Nearly every farm in New England has an old orchard of "run out" apple and pear trees, which though they appear healthy and sound enough, have long since ceased to bear anything worth gathering, the fruit being small both in size and quantity, and dry and flavorless as a chip. Such an orchard when it comes into the hands of an enterprising farmer, is generally cut down, and a new one set out, which does no better than the old; or if the proprietor is not so fond of improvements, it is kept for cider, or the fruit is fed out to cattle. It is beginning to be understood that a new orchard will not flourish on the site of the old one, because the soil is exhausted of the elements necessary for the maintainance of the trees, but we never heard till recently of anybody attempting to restore the soil and bring back the old trees into bearing in a year or two, instead of waiting a dozen for a new orchard to come on.

But a New York paper recounts a more successful experiment of this kind, which, if imitated by our farmers, would return a thousand per cent. on the investment. One of the much caluminated "book farmers" came into possession of an antediluvian orchard that had been innocent of apples for a generation. His foreman, like his prototype mentioned in Scripture, proposed to cut it down as a "cumberer of the ground," but the owner in Scripture language also, proposed to "dig about it and dung it." He made a trench round each tree three feet from it, about four feet wide and a foot and a half deep, which he filled with good soil from his field, mixed with coal ashes and a little potash. The roots of the trees thus found a new bill of fare, and the result was observable the same season in the increased vigor of the foliage, and the next year a good crop of fine apples rewarded his pains.—Ex.

The Frozen Well at Brandon, Vt.—The Freeman thus speaks of this remarkable well:—"This well has existed seven winters and six summers. Its depth is forty-one feet. The water is from two and a half to three feet in depth. A coat of ice is formed on the wall of the well the whole depth of the water. The ice becomes so thick in winter as to render it difficult to dip up water with a common bucket. The surface of the water also freezes over every night during the winter. Ice has thus formed four inches in thickness in one night. The owner is obliged to descend into the well and cut open the ice every morning, in order to draw water. As spring advances the surface of the water ceases to freeze, but the ice remains on the wall around the water, diminishing in quantity as summer advances, but does not entirely disappear, some remaining until the next winter's freezing commences. The well yields an abundant supply of water.

Improved Implements.—Provide yourself with the best of implements. This is an age of improvement, and oftentimes an improved farming implement—though it may cost much more than an old-fashioned one—will be found infinitely cheaper of the two in the end. The improved plows, cultivators, hoes, scythes, forks of all kinds, together with the reaping, mowing, stone-picking, seed-sowing, and other newly-invented implements, are affecting an entire revolution in agriculture. Not only is the farmer enabled through this assistance to perform much greater amount of labor with the same help, but to perform it much better.

Contentment.—They that deserve nothing should be content with anything. Bless God for what you have, and trust God for what you want. If we cannot bring our condition to our mind, we must bring our mind to our condition. If a man is not content in the state he is in, he will not be content in the state he would be in.

Growing Cucumbers.—Take a large barrel, or hogshead; saw it in two in the middle, and bury each half in the ground even with the top. Then take a small keg and bore a small hole in the bottom; place the keg in the centre of the barrel, the top even with the ground, and fill in the barrel around the keg with rich earth, suitable for the growth of cucumbers. Plant your seed midway between the edges of the barrel and the keg, and make a kind of arbor a foot or two high for the vines to run on. When the ground becomes dry, pour water in the keg in the evening—it will pass out at the bottom of the keg into the barrel and rise up to the roots of the vines, and keep them moist and green. Cucumbers cultivated this way will grow to a great size, as they are made independent both of drouth and wet weather. In wet weather the barrel can be covered, and in dry the ground can be kept moist by pouring water in the keg.—Prairie Farmer.

Garden Work for May.—If apple trees have not been pruned, the bodies scraped, and the borers searched out and destroyed, let it be done without delay. Clear out the dead canes of raspberry bushes before the living branches blossom. Remove all the grass, weeds, and old stalks from currant and gooseberry bushes; spread an inch or two of chip manure around them; and procure a few ounces of powdered white Hellebore at the drug store, to sprinkle over the leaves, for destroying the currant worms as soon as they make their appearance. By this means you will be certain of an abundant crop.

To Plant Flower Seeds.—Press a bowl, edge downward, into the earth, until you have made a circular drill to the required depth, and plant the seeds in this drill. You may then bury any special manure in the center, and there place the label; when grown, the stalks of the flowers will form a circle, and the effect and mutual support of both will be improved.

To Destroy Rats.—The Griffin, Ga., Empire State says that a lady in that city, whose house became infested with these troublesome vermin, says the simple remedy of dissolving copperas in water, (make it strong), and sprinkle in the most prominent places, will make them leave at a two-forty rate, and no mistake. She tried it successfully, and has not been troubled with rats or mice since.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

EDWARD'S TEMPTATION.

It was six o'clock in the afternoon. At this time the great wholesale house of Messrs. Hubbard & Son was wont to close, unless the pressure of business compelled the partners to keep open later. The duty of closing usually devolved upon Edward Jones, a boy of fourteen, who had lately engaged to perform a few light duties, for which he received the sum of fifty dollars annually. He was the boy, but if he behaved himself so as to win the approbation of his employers, his chance of promotion was good. Yet there were some things that rendered this small salary a hard trial to him—circumstances with which his employers were unacquainted. His mother was a widow. The sudden death of Mr. Jones had thrown the entire family upon their own resources, and these were indeed but slender.

There was an eldest sister who assisted her mother to sew, and this, with Edward's salary, constituted the entire income of the family. Yet by means of untiring industry, they had continued thus far to live, using strict economy, of course. Yet they had wanted none of the absolute necessaries of life.

But Mary Jones—Edward's sister—grew sick. This not only cut off the income arising from her labors, but also prevented her mother from accomplishing as much as she would otherwise have been able to do.

On the morning of the day on which our story commences, Mary had expressed a desire for an orange. In her fever it would have been most grateful to her. It is hard, indeed, when we are obliged to deny those we love that which would be a refreshment and benefit to them.

Mrs. Jones felt this, and so did Edward.

"I only wish I could buy you one, Mary," said Edward, just as he set out for the store. "Next year I shall receive a larger salary, and then we shan't have to pinch so much."

Never mind, Edward," said Mary, smiling faintly. "I ought not to have asked for it, knowing how hard you and mother find it to get along with me."

"Don't trouble yourself about that, Mary," said Mrs. Jones, rather soothingly, though her heart sank within her at the thought of her empty larder. "Only get well, and we shall get on well enough afterwards.

"It was with the memory of this scene that Edward went to the store in the morning. All around him were boxes of rich goods representing thousands of dollars in money.

"O," thought he, "if I only had the value of one of these boxes, how much good it would do poor Mary," and Edward sighed.

The long day wore away at last, and Edware was about to close the warehouse. But as he passed the desk of his employer, his attention was drawn to a bit of paper lying on the floor beneath. He picked it up, and to his great joy he found it to be a ten dollar bill.

"The first thought that flashed upon him was, "How much good this will do Mary. I can buy her the oranges she wants, and she shall have some every day. And perhaps she would like a chicken."

But a moment later his countenance fell.

"It isn't mine," he sighed. "It must be Mr. Hubbard's. This is his desk, and he must have dropped it."

"Still," urged the tempter, "he will never know it; and after all, what are ten dollars to him? He is worth a hundred thousand."

Still Edward was not satisfied. Whether Mr. Hubbard could spare it or not, was not the question. It was rightfully his, and must be given back to him.

"I'll go to his house and give it to him this very night," said Edward. "Otherwise I might be tempted to keep it."

He determined to go to Mr. Hubbard's before he went home. The sight of his sick sister might perhaps weaken his resolution, and this must never be. He must preserve his integrity at all hazards.

He knew where Mr. Hubbard lived. It was a large, fine looking house, on a fashionable street. He had passed it several times, and wondered whether a man must not feel happy who was able to live in such style.

Without any unnecessary delay, therefore, he went to the house, ascended the steps, and rang the bell. A man servant came to the door.

"Well?" he said.

"Is Mr. Hubbard at home?"

"Yes, but he has only just come in, and I don't think he will see you," was the rather supercilious reply.

"I am in his employ," said Edward, quietly, "and I have just come from the store. I think he will see me if you mention this to him."

"Very well, you may come in."

Edward was left standing in the hall while Mr. Hubbard was sought by the servant.

"Well?" he asked, inquiringly, "has anything happened?"

"No, sir," said Edward, "but I picked up this bill near your desk, and I supposed you dropped it. I thought I had better bring it here directly."

"You have done well," said Mr. Hubbard, "and I will remember it. Honesty is a very valuable quality in a boy just commencing a business career. Hereafter I shall have perfect confidence in your honesty."

Edward was gratified by his assurance, yet as the door closed behind him, and he walked out into the street, the thought of his sick sister at home again intruded upon him, and he thought regretfully how much good could have been done with ten dollars. Not that he had regretted that he had been honest. There was a satisfaction in doing right.

Mrs. Jones brought some toast to her daughter's bedside, but Mary motioned it away.

"I thank you for taking the trouble to make it, mother," said she, "but I don't think I can possibly eat it."

"Is there anything that you could relish, Mary?"

"No," said she, hesitatingly, "nothing that we can get."

Mrs. Jones sighed a sigh which Edward echoed.

It was with a heavy heart that Edward started for the warehouse the next morning. He had never felt the craving for wealth which now took possession of him.

He set about his duties as usual. About two hours after he had arrived at the warehouse, Mr. Hubbard entered. He did not at first appear to notice Edward, but in about half an hour summoned him to the office, which was partitioned off from the remainder of the spacious rooms in which goods were stored.

He smiled pleasantly as Edward entered his presence.

"Tell me frankly," he said, "did you not feel an impulse to keep the bill which you found last night?"

"I hope you will not be offended with me, Mr. Hubbard, if I say I did."

"Tell me all about it" said Mr. Hubbard, with interest. "What was it that withheld you? I should never have known it."

"I knew that," said Edward.

"Then what withheld you from taking it?"

"First I will tell you what tempted me," said Edward. "My mother and sister are obliged to depend upon sewing for a living, and we live but poorly at the best. But a fortnight since Mary became sick, and since then we have had a hard time. Mary's appetite is poor, and she does not relish food, but we are able to get her nothing better. When I picked up that bill I could not help thinking how much I might buy with it for her."

"And yet you did not take it?"

"No, sir, it would have been wrong, and I could not have looked you in the face after it."

Edward spoke in a tone of modest confidence.

Mr. Hubbard went to his desk and wrote a check.

"How much do I pay you now?" he asked.

"Fifty dollars a year," said Edward.

"Henceforth your duties will be increased, and I will pay you two hundred. Will that please you?"

"Two hundred dollars a year!" exclaimed Edward, his eyes sparkling with delight.

"Yes, and at the end of the year that will be increased, if, as I have no doubt, you continue to merit my confidence."

"O, sir, how can I thank you?" said Edward, full of gratitude.

"By maintaining your integrity. As I presume you are in present need of money, I will pay you one quarter in advance. Here is a check for fifty dollars, which you can get cashed at the bank. And, by the way, you may have the rest of the day to yourself."

Edward flew to the bank, and, with his sudden riches, hastened to the market, where he purchased a supply of provisions such as he knew would be welcome at home, and then made haste home to announce his good fortune.

A weight seemed to fall off the hearts of mother and daughter as they heard his hurried story, and Mrs. Jones thanked God for bestowing upon her son those good principles which had brought them this relief.

And Mr. Hubbard slept none the worse that night, that, at a slight pecuniary sacrifice, he had done a kind action, confirmed a boy in his integrity, and gladdened a struggling family. If there were more employers as considerate as he, there would be fewer dishonest clerks.—H. Alger, Jun.

THE USE OF THE TONGUE.

We should not use our tongues,

1. To rail or brawl against any one.
2. To speak evil of others in their absence.
3. To exaggerate in any of our statements.
4. To speak harshly to the poor or to the inferior.
5. To swear, lie, or indulge in impure language.
6. To make random and improbable assertions.
7. To speak rashly and violently on any subject.
8. To deceive people by circulating false reports.
9. To offer up lip service to the Lord.
10. To take the name of God in vain.

We should use our tongues,

1. To convey useful information to mankind.
2. To speak kindly of every one.
3. To be truthful and simple in our statements.
4. To comfort and console the afflicted.
5. To cheer the timid and fearful.
6. To defend the innocent and the oppressed.
7. To reprove and admonish the wicked.
8. To congratulate the success of the virtuous.
9. To confess our faults one to another.
10. To pray and speak to the praise of God.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..............$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address..........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Postage.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

Rules for Correspondents.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write Private.
Over all business matters, write Business.
Over all articles for the paper, write For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.
Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.
Private Letters.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word Private on the outside of the envelope.
All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to
MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:
Payable always in advance.
[illegible]
CLUBS.—[illegible]
SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, July, and at no other times. [illegible]
POSTAGE.—[illegible]
ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

CONSECRATION.—"GIVE ME THY HEART."

Here's my heart—to God I give it;
  Voice and tongue, to praise his name;
I have life—to him I live it;
  Hands—to him devote the same.
I've a field—to sow and reap it—
  And must reap whate'er it grows;
I've a paradise—I'll keep it,
  For it blossoms as the rose.

I've a conscience—thus protected,
  Worth a throne and diadem;
I've a mansion; well selected,
  In the New Jerusalem.
Hence I have, in this connection,
  Thus prepared, I have a home;
Such a home that my affection
  Does not, will not, cannot roam.

I have feet—with God they're walking,
  For with gospel peace they're shod;
Most familiarly I'm talking,
  As I take my walk with God.
I have thought—the greatest pleasure
  Which the universe can sing;
There is no material treasure
  Which can such possessions bring.

I have ears—to hear the story
  Men and angels love to tell;
Eyes—to see the rising glory,
  Which shall Zion's triumph swell.
I have prayer—to God I make it,
  While mine eye his throne surveys;
I've a golden harp, I'll wake it
  To a song of endless praise.

—Lorenzo D. Grosvenor.

THE TWO ROUTES—WHICH TRACK WILL YOU TAKE?

God, our heavenly Father, the disposer of all human events, has constructed the most substantial, direct, and glorious thoroughfare from this world to that which is to come that can possibly be made. The whole route has been surveyed by competent engineers; the whole distance graded; the mountains tunneled; the hills leveled; the valleys filled; gulfs and streams bridged; the rails laid; depots built; and the magnificent train is in motion, superintended by the great Architect, propelled by the power of God, and conducted by his Son, Jesus Christ. The train is a through train, but stops at all the depots on the route to receive all passengers who freely submit to the rules of the Conductor. No getting off without jumping, and that exposes the venturesome to destruction.

There is one thing quite remarkable indeed, and that is, there is only one such highway. No branches running to and from this track. No switches made, or switch-tenders employed. No hand-cars run on the track looking out for danger, or replacing broken rails. The only train that runs is a mail-train. Communication is constantly kept open by the Holy Spirit. No sleeping cars are attached, night or day; consequently, all are wide awake, on time, and looking forward with great anxiety for the final depot, or the New Jerusalem.

The passengers who travel this route are those who heartily love and admire the Superintendent, Conductor, each other, and the rules that govern the train. They do not smoke, chew tobacco, and squirt the spittle, or take snuff; for these are the lusts of the flesh, and there are no cigar factories on the road, or smoking cars connected with this line. They do not play cards, dance, or go to church-gambling festivals and donations, for gambling saloons are not allowed on this track. They do not love the world, nor the things that are in it; for this they know is very displeasing to the Superintendent; hence, none such are allowed on this train. They do not seek for worldly amusements, the latest styles, the honors of this world, or of a popular, lukewarm, man-made church. They do not wear gold, pearls, dazzling ornaments, or costly array, to attract attention and appear beautiful outwardly. All these sinful superfluities, they "touch not, taste not, handle not"; for those that do, perish with these idol gods at the end of the route. But they are God's jewels, sanctified by the gift of God, seeking to be as spotless as angels, wise as serpents, harmless as doves, innocent as babes, and benevolent as the one who chartered the road. The train thus loaded passes along safely toward its place of destination—the world to come.

At no great distance from this highway, under another government, there exists another thoroughfare, projected through the country, running in nearly an opposite direction from the one just described, by agents directly at antipodes with all connected with the first road as regards principle, character, reputation, and economy. The road seems well laid, to the casual observer, although various repairs are required continually. The engines and trains, although splendid in appearance, frequently run off the track, and meet with many misfortunes. The superintendent that takes the supervision of this road is the character described by John (ch. 12: 9),—the great dragon, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, that deceiveth the whole world. His employees are the demons described by Paul.

This route, with its time-table and fare, are kept constantly advertised by the proprietors, and every inducement held out to secure the public patronage. Cards, hand-bills, maps, etc., are posted in every possible direction to secure attention. There are no general rules that govern the train, save the "lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life." Hence, by way of pleasantries, they have smoking cars, tobacco factories, snuff-bins, drinking and gambling saloons, dancing halls, church-gambling festivals, whist and card tables, where everything is served up in the latest and most magnificent style, regardless of unnecessary expense, in order to satisfy the depraved appetites of the different classes of travelers. On both sides of this track are numerous depots, while there are switches only on one side; and these all run in an oblique direction from the main road, wherein they have been grafted, across to within whistling distance of the road first described. These switches might be named legion; there being so many of them. We will name only a few: a sectarian switch; a popular, or fashionable switch; a switch of worldly honor, etc.

The great architect of this road has numerous runners on these side tracks, zealously at work with their hand-bills, cards, and fair speeches, checking baggage for their employer. Through their manifold deceptions the mass of the world are contented to travel this route, besides many that profess godliness, who have jumped off from the train upon the other road, exchanging their baggage for that that corresponds with the traveler's on board the other train, that leadeth to destruction.

The character of the superintendent, his employees, and the multitude that travel this route, we will leave for Inspiration to describe; also, the destiny to which they are all with almost lightning speed hastening. Reader, fail not to turn and read the following descriptions. First, of those that are on the route to the world of fire; and second, of those on the road to endless joys in the future world.

First class: Rev. 12: 9; 2 Pet. 2: 4; Matthew 23; 2 Tim. 3: 1–5; 4: 3, 4; Gal. 5: 19–21; Rom. 1: 18–32; 8: 1–13; 16: 17, 18; 1 Cor. 6: 9–11; Jude, 19th; Rev. 20: 8.

Second class: 2 Pet. 1: 1–11; 1 Pet. 1: 1–23; Titus 2: 11–15; Phil. 3: 7–9; Eph. 4: 1–32; 1 Cor. 13; Rev. 14: 2, 3.

Dear reader, you are certainly on one or the other of these routes, fast hastening into the kingdom of God, or into the lake of fire prepared for the devil and his angels; and it is of the highest importance that you should at once count the cost and make your choice. "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve. If the Lord be God, serve him; if Baal, serve him." "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon." The present is the only time you have to make this choice. Every moment of your life that passes now unoccupied, or unimproved, will shortly sting and torment you most keenly. Jesus is about to rise up and shut to the door, and swear that time shall be no longer. Then wrath, tribulation and anguish shall seize every soul unreconciled to God, and they will weep, wail, and gnash their teeth, till the second death closes in upon them forever. Cold-hearted, world-loving, fashionable professor, heed this warning; and unregenerated man, or woman, escape for your life from the opening jaws of the second death to the divine ark of safety. "Procrastination is the thief of time." Delay not a moment.—A. N. Seymour.—Voice of the West.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTERS ON REVISION.

Letter VIII.—Scripture Coins.

In Old Testament times, gold and silver were usually weighed; and, among the Jews, the weight was commonly estimated in shekels. In the New Testament, several denominations of money are mentioned. The early translators of the Bible into English, and the revisers who followed them, including King James's, seem to have had no plan matured for representing the Greek coin-words of the New Testament. In some passages they employ a general term of no specific value; and in others a specific term, without a proper regard to either its absolute or its relative value.

Thus, in Matt. 5: 26, kodrantes, a Roman brass coin, is well rendered "farthing";—"till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing." In ch. 10: 29, assarion, a Roman brass coin four times the value of the kodrantes, is also rendered "farthing";—"two sparrows sold for a farthing." In 18: 28; 20: 2, 9, 13, and 22: 19, denarion, a Roman silver coin worth ten times the assarion, is translated "penny." One "farthing" is thus made equal to four "farthings"; and one "penny" equal to ten, or even forty "farthings"! (See Robinson's N. T. Lexicon; Greenfield's ditto.) In 20: 2, "a penny" is also represented as the full wages for a day's work. This applying of inappropriate names to the coins of Scripture, is adapted to produce confused and erroneous ideas.

In Matt. 17: 24, the didrachmon, a Greek silver coin twice the value of the denarion, is translated by the general terms "tribute-money" and "tribute"; and in verse 27, the stater, a Greek silver coin, equal to a Jewish shekel, and twice the value of didrachmon, is translated "a piece of money."

By using the English words farthing and penny, in their true relation to each other, and the Jewish shekel and half-shekel, already adopted and Anglicized in the Old Testament, and then adopting the Latin denarius, Greek denarion, for which we have no just representative, and giving it an English termination, denary, plural denaries, we shall have a full and correct set of terms for the New Testament coins, that will exhibit their relative values with exactness, and very nearly their present commercial values.

This desirable object has been secured in the Revised Testament, and it gives definiteness and beauty to all the passages in which those terms occur. And we can now understand it as a settled truth that, in the language of the New Testament as revised, two mites make a farthing (Mark 12: 42), four farthings one penny, ten pence one denary, four denaries one shekel, and two denaries a half-shekel. As the value of the shekel was about sixty cents, the half-shekel was worth thirty cents, the denary fifteen cents, the penny one cent and a half, the farthing about four mills, and the mite two mills.

Also, in the marginal note on the laborers being "agreed with for a denary a day" (Matt. 20: 2), we are informed that this was "about one-third more than the daily pay of a Roman soldier." From this fact, we learn that a denary was the usual, full price for a day's work. We also learn that the good Samaritan freely bestowed what it would take a laboring man two days to earn, when "he took out two denaries and gave to the" inn-keeper, to be expended by him in taking care of the wounded man. (Luke 10: 35.)

C. W. Waterhouse.

For the World's Crisis.

CITY AND COUNTRY.

A LETTER FROM AN UNCLE IN THE CITY TO HIS NIECE IN THE COUNTRY.

Dear Lady:—Have you ever wisely and duly considered the enjoyments and privileges you have in the country? If you have not, pray meditate upon them, and cultivate a love for a country life. The rural scenes and joys which it affords are far preferable to a life in the city. The city, as it were, cements the mind's affection to the fickle and transitory scenes of earth. The works and ways of the city's sensualities too often take from our eyes the fair face of nature, and lead us to forget the glorious God who made us, and to whom we are indebted for life and health and every breath we draw. Insipid and empty are the joys of a city life, when compared with the sacred delights which a rural residence gives to a mind rightly arranged. Solitary communion with nature is one of the holiest delights which the world can bestow,—delights which are sure to benefit all those who realize them. Purity is enstamped on nature's form; and to commune with her is sure to fill the mind with all that is pure and lovely. In every season of the year, a residence in the country has its benign and beneficial effects on man. It gives to the mind those joys which never can be found in a city life. The city has its sensual appetite of enjoyments, and the country has its rural pleasures in beholding the blooming face of nature. But those worldly pleasures, both in the city and in the country, are trivial, and of short duration. They are not our highest concern. They will soon pass away. Therefore, we should seek for a more permanent existence, beyond the grave, where there are everlasting joys kept in store for all those who believe, and walk in the path of divine truth; joys that will be brought forth at the resurrection of the just,—at the coming of our blessed Lord and Master.

Yet how many there are, both in the city and in the country, who are senselessly asleep, and thoughtless of these things which pertain to their best good. They study neither the laws of nature nor the history of divine revelation, which are so essentially and freely given to lead us to the joys of eternal life. I hope and trust, my dear niece, that you are not one of those! I think it would be well for us all, and more especially in this crisis of time, to study the book of God, and the divine history of Revelation, and the signs of the times, which reveal to us the speedy coming of our Lord to judge the earth. For he saith, "And behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give to every man according as his work shall be."

Now, under these considerations, is it not important for us to be preparing for his coming? For it is said in divine truth, "Blessed are they that do his commandment, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." May we be prepared to meet the Bridegroom when he shall come. May we have on the wedding garment. May we have our lamps trimmed and burning, that we may be enabled to partake of the joys of eternal life.

Dear niece, are not the joys of eternal life worth seeking for? Is it not worth our greatest exertions to attain it? Surely, it as far exceeds our worldly pleasures as the noonday sun exceeds the midnight darkness. Therefore, let us look well to these things, and secure our salvation before it is too late. This we can do, and this we should do; for salvation is freely offered to all those who shall obey the gospel of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

What encouragement and consolation we have here, in passing through this vale of tears, in the following words of our blessed Lord, "And the Spirit and the bride say come; and let him that heareth say come; and let him that is athirst come; and whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." I can but think that the above is one of the most essential and beautiful phrases that there is laid down in the holy Bible. Let not our worldly pleasures, nor our sensual appetites, debar us from those consoling and heavenly invitations. Let us be up and doing while the day lasts, for behold "the night of death cometh, when no man can work." We have much to do in order to baffle the evils that we are so beset with on every side. Would it not be well for us, under these considerations, to give heed to the following passages of Scripture:—"Rejoice in the Lord always; and again I say, rejoice. Let your moderation be known unto all men. The Lord is at hand. Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." Phil. 4: 4–7. Amen and amen.

Fisherville, N. H. J. Elkins.

For the World's Crisis.

SUGGESTED THOUGHTS.

Not long since, one who might and should have had a more correct understanding, in his eagerness to appropriate Matt. 24: 30, and similar passages, to the destruction of Jerusalem, remarked, "he believed the Scriptures gave no signs to indicate the time of Christ's coming at his second advent. That they (the Scriptures) simply affirmed that 'This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.'"—Acts 1: 11. One who heard him, referred him to 1 Thess. 5: 1–7, and 2 Thess. 2: 1–11, hoping that these would so awaken intelligence that, at his leisure, he might be induced to look for other texts equally positive.

This strange and unexpected position suggested a few thoughts to me, which may be worth repeating, in addition to the much that has been ably said and written. This would be unnecessary, did not so many still persistently cling to a vague, conflicting view regarding this rich, definite portion of Christ's words, as if "asserting a thing could create the fact." I am quite ready to admit, that many of the terms are used in that equivocal manner, which is calculated to preserve the harmony of the double prophecy; one of which is the type, the other the anti-type. But, with one of the events, in the far-off past, so far that it carries the mind backward along the ages, to the time when Titus, representative of the Roman power, sacked and burned Jerusalem; the other, in the soon coming future, it seems none need be at fault in distinguishing. To the Jewish mind, at the time the sad events were predicted, and which so soon came to be veritable history, it seemed far more improbable than to us, can that event, which all Bible believers are expecting sometime, however distant they may prefer to regard it. Jerusalem, in its splendor and seeming prosperity, looked the very emblem of strength and beauty; but Jesus, looking on its shining domes and lofty turrets, could also take in that complete view which delineated its fearful end. So, too, his infinite mind saw the final consummation of all things as clearly, and spake of it, and its attendant signs, with equal distinctness; and if we confuse and mystify them, the fault is in us, not in the Scriptures.

Thus, in verse 28, "For where the carcass is, there will the eagles be gathered together." If we seek to make it mean the Romans, as many do, passing it by as merely an expletive proverb, how meaningless it appears; but, associating it where it belongs, with the preceding verse, how it embodies a great and beautiful doctrine. Christ is telling his followers, that though there would be those to say, "Behold he is in the desert;" they were to "Go not forth; behold he is in the secret chamber; believe it not; for as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be. For wheresoever the carcass is, there will the eagles be gathered together." I confess this last clause had been read by myself times without number, without comprehension, till suddenly its beauty and force broke upon my mind with intuitive clearness, and my heart basked in the glory of that revealment.

Let Scripture illustrate Scripture. By turning to 1 Thess. 4: 13–17, none need be at a loss to realize the full force of this "for"; for with the light there thrown upon the accompaniments of that glorious event, how evident that where the brightness and glory reveals the coming of the Son of man, there too will be drawn "all them that love his appearing," even with the eagerness of the birds which Jesus used as a figure to illustrate a point that in his quiet dignity he did not choose to reveal more distinctly. "Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight." And with this revelation of God, through Paul to the Thessalonians, for a key, how forcible is the language of verses 40, 41. Laboring side by side in the field, sitting in the nearest intimacy, grinding at the mill, one shall mount up to meet the Lord in the air, the other, alas! remain to meet the fearful doom of the wicked. With what propriety is it therefore enjoined on all to "watch." May we so watch that we listen not to the syren voice that will have lulled to sleep "if it were possible, the very elect." M. W. Howard.

Malone, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BOOK OF BOOKS.

IN HOUSEHOLD DUTY—THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

"This book of books I'd rather own,
  Than all the gold or gems
That e'er in monarchs' coffers shone—
  Than all their diadems:
Nay, were the seas one chrysolite,
  The earth a golden ball,
And diadems all the stars of night,
  This book were worth them all.

Yes, yes, this blessed book is worth
  All else to mortals given;
For what are all the joys of earth
  Compared to joys of heaven!
This is the guide our Father gave
  To lead to realms of day—
A star whose lustre gilds the grave—
  'The light, the life, the way.'"

Friends, parents, teachers, children, do you take the blessed Bible, and embrace it, clasp it to your bosoms as heaven's best gift? Is it your delight, your council, your hope, your joy, your exceeding great reward? Do you embrace it with your whole heart, saying, "O how love I thy law! it is my meditation all the day?" "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path?"

"What glory gilds the sacred page,
  Majestic like the sun."

IN FAMILY GOVERNMENT.

Fathers, mothers, are you influenced by this Book of books in family government, in "rearing the tender thought?" Do you open this sacred volume, reverentially, morning, noon, at even-tide, in your closets, at the family altar? Do you impart instruction from this heavenly guide to your little ones, rising up, lying down, going out, coming in? Parent, beloved, do you teach the words of the living God diligently to your children? talk of them when you sit in your house, and when you walk by the way? when you lie down and when you rise up? Do you bind them for a sign upon your hand? place them as frontlets between your eyes? "Write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates?" (Deut. 6: 7–9) that your offspring, like little Timothy, may become wise unto salvation from their early childhood? "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple." Whenever your sons or your daughters err in the least from virtue's path, purity of thought, word, or deed, do you invariably point them to the "Thus saith the Lord?" If ever they speak aught but truth in the heart, the inmost soul, in honest simplicity and godly fear, what now? to the Light and the Life? the Book of books, the authority of the Infinite, the Omnipotent? Do you say to them what the law and the testimony saith, touching falsehood, deceit, or prevarication? that the slightest, minutest deviation from strict rectitude, honest integrity of purpose and guileless simplicity, proceedeth directly and uniformly from the devil, the old serpent, the father of all liars, and the awful doom which follows the one follows the other? that "all liars shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone?" Rev. 21: 8.

Do your little ones ever manifest the least possible inkling of disobedience, self-will, or unsubmission to wholesome parental discipline? do you immediately open the big book—the Book of books—and direct their attention forthwith to the fearful, awful, terrible judgments denounced against children who honor not their father and their mother? that he "that curseth his father or his mother, shall surely be put to death?" "The eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagles shall eat it?" Prov. 30: 17. Are your children in any wise indolent, inactive, disposed to sluggishness, to habits of idleness or dissipation? Do you show them the mandate of high heaven, what is recorded from the inspiration of the Holy One, touching idlers, those who cry, "Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding the hands to sleep?" that "slothfulness casteth into a deep sleep?" "the desire of the slothful killeth him?" "Go to the ant, thou sluggard, consider her ways and be wise"—to the word Omnipotent, Omnipresent, in every instance of conformity to the law of love, in great folks and little folks—to the law and the testimony at the slightest deviation from things pure, lovely, angelic—open the Book of books, hear Jehovah speak, the Lord of lords—King of kings.

God's authority is supreme, infinitely above all human authority or enactments; it settles all questions at once. When God speaks, let the earth tremble, "stand in awe, sin not,"—all heaven be silent. "Let all the earth fear the Lord; let all the inhabitants of the earth stand in awe of him." Psa. 33: 8. Once fix the idea of the terrible, merciful, gracious, glorious authority of the Great I Am clearly and indelibly in the minds and hearts of children, and the work of discipline is measurably done, and well done.

Would we train up children aright, we must train them in accordance with the divine requirements. The man of our counsel must be the unerring Word of Truth. If we are Christ's, we shall seek to measure our conduct by his word, and equally anxious should we be to measure or to have measured the conduct of our children by his word. Whatever parents may require, or whatever they may forbid, should be in conformity with the instructions given them by their great teacher—God. Let this be done, and let children see it, and feel it; and then how infinitely more easy it will be to induce them to walk in the right way. Yes, as much easier as it is to obey God rather than man. Here the authority is stamped with the broad seal of heaven, and is as much higher than that of parents merely, as heaven is higher than earth, as the authority of Infinite, the Uncreated, the Eternal, is higher than that of finite, created beings of yesterday.

Among the first lessons taught children from the Bible, those relating to parental obedience seem especially to claim attention. When the fact that God requires children to obey their parents is well established in their minds, a very important object is gained. Will they not listen with fearful attention, with filial confidence, when told that God says,—"Hearken unto thy Father that has begot thee, and dispise not thy mother when she is old." "Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right." "Honor thy father and mother, (which is the first commandment with promise), that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayst live long on the earth." "Children obey your parents in all things; for this is well pleasing unto the Lord."

Then, when reminded that obeying their parents is not only right, but well pleasing unto the Lord—that with it is connected the promise of long life, and well being, and that disobedience is connected with fearful denunciations—when told these things, will they not feel, that with all the heart, they will seek to render cheerful and ready obedience?

Parents, in training your little ones, take the Bible, begin with the Bible, keep on with the Bible, end with the Bible. Let the Bible be first, midst, last, always.

"How pure the sacred words of truth!
The blessed book to guide our youth;
Given by our Father and our God,
To guide to heaven through Jesus' blood."

D. F. Newton, Author of Home Thrust.

VIOLENCE OF THE AGE.

From all parts of the country the papers are loaded down with reports of murders, highway robberies, and garrotings. In many of our cities almost a panic prevails on the subject. What does it mean? Why such wide-spread violence? We answer, because the last days are here, concerning which the Spirit of God long ago instructed the apostles to write. What can be expected of the world when given up to the mediumship of demons, to be influenced by those foul spirits which have passed beyond the jurisdiction of earthly tribunals? In proportion as Spiritualism prevails, and the influence of the Bible is discarded, these crimes will multiply. If things progress long as they are now going on, we shall soon know the meaning of our Lord's saying, "As it was in the days of Noah and Lot, so shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed." Human life, in the esteem of the roughs of this age, is no more than that of the brutes. "The earth was filled with violence," and thus it is now becoming. —Advent Herald.

THE IMMORTALITY OF THE SOUL.

Dr. Dwight assumes that the soul is immortal, but was compelled to say, "Whatever has been created can certainly be annihilated. The continuance of the soul must, therefore, depend absolutely on the will of God." (Works, v. 1, p. 163.)

Mr. George Combe, an eminent phrenologist, says: "No idea can be more erroneous than to suppose that man is an immortal being on account of the substance of which he is composed." (System of Phrenology, p. 595–7.)

Cicero, having reckoned up the opinions of philosophers as to the soul's immortality, concluded thus: "Which of these opinions is true? Some God must tell us. Which is most like truth? is a great question." (Institutes, v. 1, p. 56.)

The American Phrenological Journal says on the question of the soul: "Metaphysicians have quite generally acknowledged themselves in the dark, and their speculations have fallen far short of satisfying the requirement, of the general reason of mankind."

OLD FRUIT TREES.

Old fruit trees like old wine, are better than new—more hardy, more prolific, because larger, and bear while the young ones are growing, always provided that they are kept in order, and well fed—for plants, like animals, need food or they will perish. Nearly every farm in New England has an old orchard of "run out" apple and pear trees, which though they appear healthy and sound enough, have long since ceased to bear anything worth gathering, the fruit being small both in size and quantity, and dry and flavorless as a chip. Such an orchard when it comes into the hands of an enterprising farmer, is generally cut down, and a new one set out, which does no better than the old; or if the proprietor is not so fond of improvements, it is kept for cider, or the fruit is fed out to cattle. It is beginning to be understood that a new orchard will not flourish on the site of the old one, because the soil is exhausted of the elements necessary for the maintainance of the trees, but we never heard till recently of anybody attempting to restore the soil and bring back the old trees into bearing in a year or two, instead of waiting a dozen for a new orchard to come on.

But a New York paper recounts a more successful experiment of this kind, which, if imitated by our farmers, would return a thousand per cent. on the investment. One of the much caluminated "book farmers" came into possession of an antediluvian orchard that had been innocent of apples for a generation. His foreman, like his prototype mentioned in Scripture, proposed to cut it down as a "cumberer of the ground," but the owner in Scripture language also, proposed to "dig about it and dung it." He made a trench round each tree three feet from it, about four feet wide and a foot and a half deep, which he filled with good soil from his field, mixed with coal ashes and a little potash. The roots of the trees thus found a new bill of fare, and the result was observable the same season in the increased vigor of the foliage, and the next year a good crop of fine apples rewarded his pains.—Ex.

The Frozen Well at Brandon, Vt.—The Freeman thus speaks of this remarkable well:—"This well has existed seven winters and six summers. Its depth is forty-one feet. The water is from two and a half to three feet in depth. A coat of ice is formed on the wall of the well the whole depth of the water. The ice becomes so thick in winter as to render it difficult to dip up water with a common bucket. The surface of the water also freezes over every night during the winter. Ice has thus formed four inches in thickness in one night. The owner is obliged to descend into the well and cut open the ice every morning, in order to draw water. As spring advances the surface of the water ceases to freeze, but the ice remains on the wall around the water, diminishing in quantity as summer advances, but does not entirely disappear, some remaining until the next winter's freezing commences. The well yields an abundant supply of water.

Improved Implements.—Provide yourself with the best of implements. This is an age of improvement, and oftentimes an improved farming implement—though it may cost much more than an old-fashioned one—will be found infinitely cheaper of the two in the end. The improved plows, cultivators, hoes, scythes, forks of all kinds, together with the reaping, mowing, stone-picking, seed-sowing, and other newly-invented implements, are affecting an entire revolution in agriculture. Not only is the farmer enabled through this assistance to perform much greater amount of labor with the same help, but to perform it much better.

Contentment.—They that deserve nothing should be content with anything. Bless God for what you have, and trust God for what you want. If we cannot bring our condition to our mind, we must bring our mind to our condition. If a man is not content in the state he is in, he will not be content in the state he would be in.

Growing Cucumbers.—Take a large barrel, or hogshead; saw it in two in the middle, and bury each half in the ground even with the top. Then take a small keg and bore a small hole in the bottom; place the keg in the centre of the barrel, the top even with the ground, and fill in the barrel around the keg with rich earth, suitable for the growth of cucumbers. Plant your seed midway between the edges of the barrel and the keg, and make a kind of arbor a foot or two high for the vines to run on. When the ground becomes dry, pour water in the keg in the evening—it will pass out at the bottom of the keg into the barrel and rise up to the roots of the vines, and keep them moist and green. Cucumbers cultivated this way will grow to a great size, as they are made independent both of drouth and wet weather. In wet weather the barrel can be covered, and in dry the ground can be kept moist by pouring water in the keg.—Prairie Farmer.

Garden Work for May.—If apple trees have not been pruned, the bodies scraped, and the borers searched out and destroyed, let it be done without delay. Clear out the dead canes of raspberry bushes before the living branches blossom. Remove all the grass, weeds, and old stalks from currant and gooseberry bushes; spread an inch or two of chip manure around them; and procure a few ounces of powdered white Hellebore at the drug store, to sprinkle over the leaves, for destroying the currant worms as soon as they make their appearance. By this means you will be certain of an abundant crop.

To Plant Flower Seeds.—Press a bowl, edge downward, into the earth, until you have made a circular drill to the required depth, and plant the seeds in this drill. You may then bury any special manure in the center, and there place the label; when grown, the stalks of the flowers will form a circle, and the effect and mutual support of both will be improved.

To Destroy Rats.—The Griffin, Ga., Empire State says that a lady in that city, whose house became infested with these troublesome vermin, says the simple remedy of dissolving copperas in water, (make it strong), and sprinkle in the most prominent places, will make them leave at a two-forty rate, and no mistake. She tried it successfully, and has not been troubled with rats or mice since.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

EDWARD'S TEMPTATION.

It was six o'clock in the afternoon. At this time the great wholesale house of Messrs. Hubbard & Son was wont to close, unless the pressure of business compelled the partners to keep open later. The duty of closing usually devolved upon Edward Jones, a boy of fourteen, who had lately engaged to perform a few light duties, for which he received the sum of fifty dollars annually. He was the boy, but if he behaved himself so as to win the approbation of his employers, his chance of promotion was good. Yet there were some things that rendered this small salary a hard trial to him—circumstances with which his employers were unacquainted. His mother was a widow. The sudden death of Mr. Jones had thrown the entire family upon their own resources, and these were indeed but slender.

There was an eldest sister who assisted her mother to sew, and this, with Edward's salary, constituted the entire income of the family. Yet by means of untiring industry, they had continued thus far to live, using strict economy, of course. Yet they had wanted none of the absolute necessaries of life.

But Mary Jones—Edward's sister—grew sick. This not only cut off the income arising from her labors, but also prevented her mother from accomplishing as much as she would otherwise have been able to do.

On the morning of the day on which our story commences, Mary had expressed a desire for an orange. In her fever it would have been most grateful to her. It is hard, indeed, when we are obliged to deny those we love that which would be a refreshment and benefit to them.

Mrs. Jones felt this, and so did Edward.

"I only wish I could buy you one, Mary," said Edward, just as he set out for the store. "Next year I shall receive a larger salary, and then we shan't have to pinch so much."

Never mind, Edward," said Mary, smiling faintly. "I ought not to have asked for it, knowing how hard you and mother find it to get along with me."

"Don't trouble yourself about that, Mary," said Mrs. Jones, rather soothingly, though her heart sank within her at the thought of her empty larder. "Only get well, and we shall get on well enough afterwards."

"It was with the memory of this scene that Edward went to the store in the morning. All around him were boxes of rich goods representing thousands of dollars in money.

"O," thought he, "if I only had the value of one of these boxes, how much good it would do poor Mary," and Edward sighed.

The long day wore away at last, and Edward was about to close the warehouse. But as he passed the desk of his employer, his attention was drawn to a bit of paper lying on the floor beneath. He picked it up, and to his great joy he found it to be a ten dollar bill.

"The first thought that flashed upon him was, "How much good this will do Mary. I can buy her the oranges she wants, and she shall have some every day. And perhaps she would like a chicken."

But a moment later his countenance fell.

"It isn't mine," he sighed. "It must be Mr. Hubbard's. This is his desk, and he must have dropped it."

"Still," urged the tempter, "he will never know it; and after all, what are ten dollars to him? He is worth a hundred thousand."

Still Edward was not satisfied. Whether Mr. Hubbard could spare it or not, was not the question. It was rightfully his, and must be given back to him.

"I'll go to his house and give it to him this very night," said Edward. "Otherwise I might be tempted to keep it."

He determined to go to Mr. Hubbard's before he went home. The sight of his sick sister might perhaps weaken his resolution, and this must never be. He must preserve his integrity at all hazards.

He knew where Mr. Hubbard lived. It was a large, fine looking house, on a fashionable street. He had passed it several times, and wondered whether a man must not feel happy who was able to live in such style.

Without any unnecessary delay, therefore, he went to the house, ascended the steps, and rang the bell. A man servant came to the door.

"Well?" he said.

"Is Mr. Hubbard at home?"

"Yes, but he has only just come in, and I don't think he will see you," was the rather supercilious reply.

"I am in his employ," said Edward, quietly, "and I have just come from the store. I think he will see me if you mention this to him."

"Very well, you may come in."

Edward was left standing in the hall while Mr. Hubbard was sought by the servant.

"Well?" he asked, inquiringly, "has anything happened?"

"No, sir," said Edward, "but I picked up this bill near your desk, and I supposed you dropped it. I thought I had better bring it here directly."

"You have done well," said Mr. Hubbard, "and I will remember it. Honesty is a very valuable quality in a boy just commencing a business career. Hereafter I shall have perfect confidence in your honesty."

Edward was gratified by his assurance, yet as the door closed behind him, and he walked out into the street, the thought of his sick sister at home again intruded upon him, and he thought regretfully how much good could have been done with ten dollars. Not that he had regretted that he had been honest. There was a satisfaction in doing right.

Mrs. Jones brought some toast to her daughter's bedside, but Mary motioned it away.

"I thank you for taking the trouble to make it, mother," said she, "but I don't think I can possibly eat it."

"Is there anything that you could relish, Mary?"

"No," said she, hesitatingly, "nothing that we can get."

Mrs. Jones sighed a sigh which Edward echoed.

It was with a heavy heart that Edward started for the warehouse the next morning. He had never felt the craving for wealth which now took possession of him.

He set about his duties as usual. About two hours after he had arrived at the warehouse, Mr. Hubbard entered. He did not at first appear to notice Edward, but in about half an hour summoned him to the office, which was partitioned off from the remainder of the spacious rooms in which goods were stored.

He smiled pleasantly as Edward entered his presence.

"Tell me frankly," he said, "did you not feel an impulse to keep the bill which you found last night?"

"I hope you will not be offended with me, Mr. Hubbard, if I say I did."

"Tell me all about it" said Mr. Hubbard, with interest. "What was it that withheld you? I should never have known it."

"I knew that," said Edward.

"Then what withheld you from taking it?"

"First I will tell you what tempted me," said Edward. "My mother and sister are obliged to depend upon sewing for a living, and we live but poorly at the best. But a fortnight since Mary became sick, and since then we have had a hard time. Mary's appetite is poor, and she does not relish food, but we are able to get her nothing better. When I picked up that bill I could not help thinking how much I might buy with it for her."

"And yet you did not take it?"

"No, sir, it would have been wrong, and I could not have looked you in the face after it."

Edward spoke in a tone of modest confidence.

Mr. Hubbard went to his desk and wrote a check.

"How much do I pay you now?" he asked.

"Fifty dollars a year," said Edward.

"Henceforth your duties will be increased, and I will pay you two hundred. Will that please you?"

"Two hundred dollars a year!" exclaimed Edward, his eyes sparkling with delight.

"Yes, and at the end of the year that will be increased, if, as I have no doubt, you continue to merit my confidence."

"O, sir, how can I thank you?" said Edward, full of gratitude.

"By maintaining your integrity. As I presume you are in present need of money, I will pay you one quarter in advance. Here is a check for fifty dollars, which you can get cashed at the bank. And, by the way, you may have the rest of the day to yourself."

Edward flew to the bank, and, with his sudden riches, hastened to the market, where he purchased a supply of provisions such as he knew would be welcome at home, and then made haste home to announce his good fortune.

A weight seemed to fall off the hearts of mother and daughter as they heard his hurried story, and Mrs. Jones thanked God for bestowing upon her son those good principles which had brought them this relief.

And Mr. Hubbard slept none the worse that night, that, at a slight pecuniary sacrifice, he had done a kind action, confirmed a boy in his integrity, and gladdened a struggling family. If there were more employers as considerate as he, there would be fewer dishonest clerks.—H. Alger, Jun.

THE USE OF THE TONGUE.

We should not use our tongues,

1. To rail or brawl against any one.
2. To speak evil of others in their absence.
3. To exaggerate in any of our statements.
4. To speak harshly to the poor or to the inferior.
5. To swear, lie, or indulge in impure language.
6. To make random and improbable assertions.
7. To speak rashly and violently on any subject.
8. To deceive people by circulating false reports.
9. To offer up lip service to the Lord.
10. To take the name of God in vain.

We should use our tongues,

1. To convey useful information to mankind.
2. To speak kindly of every one.
3. To be truthful and simple in our statements.
4. To comfort and console the afflicted.
5. To cheer the timid and fearful.
6. To defend the innocent and the oppressed.
7. To reprove and admonish the wicked.
8. To congratulate the success of the virtuous.
9. To confess our faults one to another.
10. To pray and speak to the praise of God.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance.................$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address...........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address...........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Postage.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.
Rules for Correspondents.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write Private.
Over all business matters, write Business.
Over all articles for the paper, write For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.
Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.
Private Letters.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word Private on the outside of the envelope.
All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed, and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to
MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,
THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
TERMS:
Payable always in advance.
[illegible]

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 555. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, MAY 23, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 10.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at 167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

"THY KINGDOM COME!"

Thy kingdom come! yes, 'tis the prayer
Of all thy faithful followers here;
With longing hearts we watch and pray,
In wait for that auspicious day.

Thy kingdom come! when all thy slain
Shall be redeemed from death's domain;
The living saints, from sin set free,
Be changed to immortality.

Thy kingdom come! when earth shall rise
To more than pristine Paradise;
When life's fair fruits again shall grow,
And life's celestial waters flow.

Thy kingdom come! when wars shall cease,
And all mankind shall be at peace;
And love extend from shore to shore,
And cruel pride oppress no more.

Thy kingdom come! when David's heir
The "sparkling diadem" shall wear;
His scepter sway from zone to zone,
And "all" his righteousness shall own.

Thy kingdom come! when Israel's sons,
"The remnant," God's own chosen ones,
Beneath Messiah's peaceful reign
The "ancient promise land" obtain.

Thy kingdom come! when Satan's power
And influence shall be felt no more;
When sin, and death, and every stain
Caused by the "fall," no more remain.

Dear Savior, when that day shall come,
And all thy saints are gathered home,
To share the honors of their King,
May I be one thy praise to sing.

Chatham Valley, Pa. J. W. TAYLOR.

THE MISUNDERSTOOD PRAYER.

Great and long-forgotten truths are beginning to re-appear. Thoughtful men have been for many years ill at ease. Results of efforts to evangelize the world have been sadly out of proportion to the efforts themselves. What does God intend to do with this world, —this great, beautiful, and populous world, the scene of so many miseries, so many mighty acts, so many divine miracles, and so many and such long-continued struggles between the powers of good and evil? Shall it be converted? If so, by what instrumentality, and when?—and that "when?" has come back from every idol temple and lofty mountain in a long and sickly echo. And again the dreary "when?" has gone up to heaven from the prayer-meeting, fallen doubtfully from the preacher's lips, rolled heavily in the large missionary meeting, and passed around the globe like a desolate thing, seeking a resting-place and finding none. Or does God intend suddenly to destroy the works of his hands, to set fire to the earth and sweep it to destruction, just at the time when multitudes were beginning to hope that signs of better days were budding forth to gladden the eyes of the nations? Shall the earth—Adam's earth, man's earth, Christ's earth,—speedily be seen by startled angels flying in its orbit through the heavens, one vast globe of intensely heated fire, like a steamship in flames running madly through the hissing sea?

Such awful questions as these have long engaged the thoughts of devout thinkers, but no satisfactory answer was obtained. Some few men, however, hinted that it might be well to open the books of prophecy, and to try to realize the import of the visions of holy seers. But the habits, prejudices, and theories of churches and pastors were all against that. "Meddle not with prophecy." "It cannot be understood." "Preach the gospel." "Let prophecy alone." Such were the precepts of our teachers. Well, but we may ask, What shall we read, if not prophecy? How much Bible will be left to us, if all its predictions be excluded? Does it honor the Holy Spirit to say that prophecy cannot be understood? Is it not far more likely that He intended us to be made acquainted with leading facts, by presenting them in appropriate language, than that He designed to speak so obscurely that in effect it should amount to entire silence? Surely He is the revealer, not the concealer. Hath not God revealed them to us by his Spirit, that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God? Does not Paul speak of the guilt of the people and rulers of Jerusalem, in not knowing the voices of the prophets, which were read every Sabbath day? Does not Peter say that we do well to take heed to the sure word of prophecy, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place? Does not John, in his preface to the Apocalypse say, "Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things that are written therein; for the time is at hand?" Was it not by consulting the prophecy of Jeremiah that the captive Daniel understood that the years of the captivity in Babylon were nearly expired? Does not our blessed Jesus, the Prince of the prophets, give us signs, and command us to watch them, and attend to them, and lift up our heads when they appear? Are not the children of Issachar celebrated as men who had understanding of the times to know what Israel ought to do? Is not the testimony of Jesus the spirit of prophecy? Is not the design of prophecy to bear testimony to him? How should we know that Jesus is the Christ, but by comparing his life, doctrines, deeds, and sufferings, with the prophecies that described them so long before? And as to preaching the gospel, why, you cannot do that faithfully, nay, you cannot do it all, if you resolve to have nothing to do with prophecy; for the gospel is itself the fulfillment of one series of prophecies, and the utterance of another; the gospel is the grandest prophecy in the world—a long, beautiful, and most sublime prediction, embracing heaven and earth in its mighty circumference, and resting not until earth shall be like heaven, and both shall be one in Christ. And, therefore, if we meddle not with prophecy, assuredly it will meddle with us, and the result will not be much to the credit either of our discernment or our piety.

But then it is objected that certain students of prophecy have made calculations of dates and periods which the event has falsified. Nothing more likely; and yet we see not much more harm in making calculations from prophecy than in making them from the results of the missionary efforts of the last fifty years, to ascertain how long it will be before the world shall be converted at the same rate, which a celebrated missionary did not long ago, and gave as the result the astounding answer of a million of years. So far as the hopes of men are at present concerned, he might just as well have said, "Never." But we do not plead for calculations, but for facts. God will take care of "the times and seasons;" let us believe the facts, and go cheerfully to work just as he has bidden us, and all will shortly be well. The kingdom will come.

Still further, it is objected that students of prophecy have taught such wild and extravagant things, that sober-minded men must avoid the danger. Of course, to the travelers on the beaten path, those theories do appear wild and extravagant; but the proper question seems to be, Is the beaten path the right one? Every thing is extravagant which crosses our preconceptions, and disturbs the traditions of our fathers; but it does not follow, because it presents to our vision a field of whose existence we were ignorant, that it is not therefore true. But the objection, if it has any force, has too much. For some men, who carefully shunned prophecy, have formed wild and extravagant notions of the doctrines of christianity; and shall we therefore cease to read the gospel of our salvation, and abandon all hope of ascertaining what its leading doctrines are? Surely not, especially when that divine gem, the Lord's Prayer, stands in the middle of the gospel like a mountain of light in a very fruitful field, assuring us that our Father intends that his will shall be done on earth as it is in heaven. Our Lord would never have told us to pray for a thing which it was not the intention of God to perform. When the will of God shall be done upon the earth as it is done in heaven, then earth will be like heaven. Most earnestly, therefore, do we pray, "Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth"; and the answer will be graciously given, first, in the hidden principles and laws of this kingdom within us, subduing our thoughts to holy loyalty to our sovereign Lord; and in due time in the establishment over all the earth of the visible, powerful, and glorious kingdom of Christ, when all kings shall fall down at his feet, and all nations shall serve him. The reception of Christ to reign in our hearts now, is the way to qualify us to reign with him then.

We have seen that the kingdom prayed for is not the gospel, not the church, and not heaven; and by the remarks just made respecting prophecy, you will infer that we intend to look for it in the prophetic page.

It is a remarkable fact that our Lord does not describe that kingdom in the prayer which he taught his disciples, further than by intimating two things in connection with it; namely, that the Father's name would be hallowed, or held in holy reverence, and that his will would be done, as in heaven, so in earth, when the kingdom should come. But why does he not tell his disciples what he meant? I answer, because it was not necessary. They were Jews; and knew from the writings of their venerated prophets much about the kingdom which was to be set up under the reign of their adored Messiah the Prince. The visions of the seers of Judah respecting that kingdom were treasured in their memories. They needed no information about the splendors of the Messianic reign. The coming of the predicted reign and government was the grand object of their desire. The restoration of the local kingdom to Israel, and by consequence the extension of the blessing of the reign of Messiah to all the nations of the earth, was the topic of their solicitude by day and of their dreams by night. So fully occupied were their thoughts with these blessed themes, that the valley of humiliation which lay before their Lord was entirely overlooked. The quiet haven was in sight, and on it their eye rested with such intense desire, that they saw not the troubled ocean over which he and they must pass before it could be reached. They—"unlettered Jews" as they are frequently called—knew more about both the letter and the spirit of the prophets by whom God had spoken to their fathers, than do we who live in the middle of the nineteenth century. Then "Thy kingdom" was no mysterious novelty, but a long-expected glory, and their hearts must have leaped with joy when the Master said, Pray, "Thy kingdom come." Explanation was not required.—Dr. Wm. Leask.

☞ Among all God's children, there is not one possessed with a dumb devil. Prayerless persons are forsaken of God, blinded by Satan, hardened in sin, and with every breath they draw, liable to all temporal, spiritual, and eternal judgments.

☞ You will never have a friend if you must have one without failings.

For the World's Crisis.

JOSEPHUS' CHRONOLOGY EXAMINED.

BY WM. C. THURMAN.

(Concluded.)

By reference to Josephus (Ant. b. 1, c. 6, s. 5), I find that he supposed that "Terah begat Abram in his seventieth year"; and it is true that we read, "Terah lived seventy years and begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran" (Gen. 11: 26); but it is not said that Abram was the first born. If the order in which their names are given be intended to give the order of their birth, Haran would be the youngest. But it would appear that he was the oldest, for his brother Nahor married his daughter. Gen. 11: 29.* Josephus admits that Sarah, Abram's wife, was the daughter of his brother Haran; and how unreasonable to suppose that the oldest child married the daughter of the youngest. The order in which names are given in the Bible points out the most distinguished person, rather than that of their birth. For example: We always read "Moses and Aaron," not Aaron and Moses. That Terah was 130 years old when Abram was born, we can prove thus: he "was seventy-five years old when he departed from Haran" (Gen. 12: 4), which was after the death of his father (Acts 7: 4). And his father was two hundred and five years old at the time of his death. Gen. 11: 32. If from 205 we take 75, we have 130 for Terah's age when Abram was born. And if from 130 we take 70, we have 60. Thus we account for an error of sixty years in Josephus' chronology here, which being added to 4061 gives B. C. 4121, as Josephus' corrected date for the time of creation.

But there is yet an error of four years here, for in section eighth, we observed that Josephus' corrected date gave B. C. 2469 for the deluge, to which add the 1656 years that he gives for the interval between that and creation, and we have B. C. 4125. So if by that we correct this, we again find his dates just one year short of my chronology.

10. Says Josephus, "Solomon began to build the temple in the fourth year of his reign, . . . five hundred and ninety-two years after the exodus out of Egypt."—Jose. Ant. b. 8, c. 3, s. 1. In section seventh, we observed that the dates used by Josephus give B. C. 1018 for the building of the temple; to which add 592, and we have B. C. 1610, which is again just one year short of my chronology.

11. Josephus continues: "Solomon began to build the temple . . . . one thousand and twenty years from Abraham's coming out of Mesopotamia into Canaan." If to 1018 we add 1020, we we have B. C. 2038. But this is three years short of my chronology. How Josephus made this mistake I am unable to see; for his own dates give two years more, thus: 592 to the exodus, and 440 from that to Abraham; 592 added to 430 make 1022, which being added to B. C. 1018, gives B. C. 2040. This is again one year short of my chronology.

12. Josephus continues: "And after the deluge," to the building of the temple, "one thousand four hundred and forty years." If to 1018 we add 1440, we have B. C. 2458. But here Josephus has again made some mistake, for this falls eleven years short of his dates, as noticed in section eighth. We will correct this by his dates again. From the exodus to the temple, he gives 592. From Abraham to the exodus, he has 430. From the deluge to the birth of Abraham, he gives 292, and from his birth to the time he entered Canaan 75, which being added together amount to 1389; and to this we must add the 60 years which in section ninth we observed was omitted by Josephus, and we have 1449, which being added to B. C. 1018, we have B. C. 2467 for the time of the deluge. But this is yet three years short of my chronology, and three years short of the date Josephus gave us, as mentioned in section eighth.

13. Says Josephus, "From Adam the first man who was created, until Solomon built the temple, there had passed in all three thousand one hundred and two years." If to B. C. 1018 we add 3102 years, we have B. C. 4120. This is six years short of my chronology. But may be corrected thus: We observed in section eighth that Josephus gave B. C. 2469 for the time of the deluge, and from Adam to the deluge he gives 1656, which, being added to 2469, gives B. C. 4125 for the creation of Adam. This again is just one year short of my chronology. And is it not remarkable that out of thirteen dates, eight should fall just one year short of my chronology, one five, another three years short, while the other three give the same year which I have given? This can hardly be accidental, or a mere matter of chance. There must be a reason for it; and the conclusion that I have come to is, that Josephus had before him two tables of chronology, one about the same with mine, or one year shorter; while his other table gave about thirty-six years more for the time of the building of the temple, and more than a thousand years longer for the time of the creation. And Josephus being unable to decide which was the correct chronology, used both; sometimes following one, and at other times following the other, which accounts for his apparent clashing with himself.

From this we learn that the dates used by Josephus were not his own, but those found in some book, written perhaps many years before he was born; hence should be regarded as the more reliable. It is true the apparent clashing at first creates confusion, but since we are furnished with the means of detecting the errors, the dates give us a chronology very near the truth; and the chronology they give is the same with mine, or one year shorter; for I have reconciled them with that, and am unable to see how it is possible to harmonize them with any other. For the convenience of those who wish at one view to see the result of Josephus' chronology, we might here add two tables, one of those dates which need no correction, and another of corrected dates.

TABLE OF CORRECT DATES.

B.C.	Interval. years	days
2040			Abraham went to Canaan.
	430
1610			Moses left Egypt.
	1062	6
1025			The reign of David.
	477	6
547			Temple destroyed.

The year B. C. 547 is the date given by Demetrius for the burning of the temple by the king of Babylon, and is the same time given in the Book of Daniel Opened. Against this, if we place Josephus' 477 years and 6 months, we have B. C. 1025 for the beginning of the reign of David, which is one year short of my chronology. From the same epoch, Josephus gives 1062 years and 6 months to the time Moses left Egypt; that is, B. C. 1610, which is again one year short of my chronology. From Abraham to the exodus, he gives 430 years, which being added to 1610, gives B. C. 2040 for the time Abraham went to Canaan. This is also one year short of my chronology.

We will now add a table of chronology, gathered from Josephus, by the revision, or correcting of the errors of transcribers, made from his dates, which appear to be the most reliable.

B. C.
4125	From Adam.
2469	The Deluge.
2467	" "
2440	Abraham to Canaan.
1610	Moses left Egypt.
1065	Saul began to reign.
1025	David began to reign.
983	The 4th year of Solomon.
982	" " " " "
947	End of the reign of Solomon.

It will be seen from the above table, that the time Josephus gives for creation is one year short of mine. For the deluge, one date is the same with mine, but the other two years shorter. For the time Abraham went to Canaan and Moses left Egypt are both one year shorter. And the reign both of Saul and David are one year shorter. One date for the building of the temple in the fourth year of Solomon is the same with my chronology, but the other one year shorter. The end of the reign of Solomon is in the same year given in my chronology. And the end of the reign of Solomon is without any revision given according to the dates found in Josephus, thus: He gives 361 years from the latter end of the first year of Jeroboam to the year before the eighteenth of Josiah.—Ant. b. 10, c. 4, s. 4. The seventeenth of Josiah was B. C. 584; to which add 361, and we have B. C. 945 for the second year of Jeroboam. Therefore, 946 was his first year, and B. C. 947 was the last year of the reign of Solomon.

For the reign of all the kings of the house of David, Josephus gives the same number of years found in our Bible, except Solomon, whom he gives eighty years, thus raising the time for the building of the temple forty years. In establishing a correct chronology, the most important date to be fixed is the time Moses left Egypt. We will, therefore, in conclusion, exhibit at one view the many ways in which Josephus gives the time of the exodus.

No.	Figures
1	1062—6 m.; 547; 1610
2	470—6 m.; 592; 1063; 547; 1610
3	470—6; 1020; 1491; 547; 2038; 430; 1608
4	470—6; 592; 430; 1493; 547; 2040; 430; 1610
5	470—6; 1440; 1911; 547; 2458; 858; 1600
6	470—6; 3102; 3573; 547; 4120; 2515; 1605
7	947; 130; 1077; 547; 1624
8	460; 592; 1052; 547; 1599
9	37; 361; 80; 592; 1070; 547; 1617; 3; 1614
10	1957—6; 36 corrected.; 1922 cor.; 547; 2469; 858; 1611
11	3513—6; 60 cor.; 3574 cor.; 547; 4121; 2515; 1606
12	2467 cor.; 858; 1609
13	4125 cor.; 2515; 1610

Here are thirteen different ways in which Josephus has given us the time at which Moses left Egypt. Four of them give B. C. 1610, and all of the others playing around that date, proves that the chronology used by Josephus did give that for the year Moses left Egypt. It will be seen that four of the dates, that is, Nos. 10, 11, 12, and 13, are marked corrected, hence not reliable; but the other nine dates are according to the express language of Josephus.

No. 1 is explained in section fifth. No. 2 in section tenth. No. 3 in section eleventh. No. 4 is obtained by adding the dates together as given by Josephus between Abraham and the ruin of the temple. No. 5 is explained in section twelfth. No. 6 in section thirteenth. No. 7 is the interval given by Josephus between the leaving of Egypt and destruction of the city (See Jose. Ant. b. 9, c. 14, s. 1, and b. 10, c. 9, s. 7.) No. 8 is obtained by adding the number of years given by Josephus for the reign of each king of Judah, from the fourth of Solomon, to the end of the kingdom. Josephus thus gives 460 years, to which I add the 592 from that to Moses. No. 9 we get thus: Josephus gives 37 years to the seventeenth of Josiah; 361 from that to the first year of Jeroboam, and 80 for Solomon; but we have explained this just before adding the table. No. 10 is explained in section eighth. No. 11 in section ninth. No. 12 in section twelfth; and No. 13 in section thirteenth.

We have mentioned that out of the thirteen there are but four dates that give the same year for the time Moses left Egypt. There are, therefore, ten different dates; and it now remains to decide which is correct. Which can be done thus: We know that the 15th day of the second month fell on Saturday in the year Moses left Egypt. (Ex. 16: 1–29.) And the following table will show on what day it fell in each year.

B. C.
1624	on Thursday.
1614	on Friday.
1611	on Saturday.
1610	on Wednesday.
1609	on Tuesday.
1608	on Saturday.
1606	on Monday.
1605	on Sunday.
1600	on Thursday.
1599	on Monday.

From this table it will be seen that out of the ten, there are but two years in which the fifteenth of the second month falls on Saturday; one 1611, the other 1608. Now the Sabbatical year will decide between these two thus: According to Josephus, B. C. 163 was a Sabbatical year, which, being taken from 1608, leaves 1445. This being divided by seven, leaves three for the remainder, hence B. C. 1608 could not be the year; therefore B. C. 1611 is the only one out of the ten that can be correct. Thus we discover that Josephus was just one year short of the truth, for he three times, or, if we may use a corrected period, he four times gives B. C. 1610 for the time Moses left Egypt, and around this year all of his other dates play, the greatest extreme being thirteen years.

The Jews say that one jubilee occurred in the life time of Joshua, and another in the eighteenth year of Josiah; and if so, all of the dates used by Josephus give, as with the voice of one man, B. C. 1611 for the year Moses left Egypt; for, according to Josephus, the eighteenth of Josiah was B. C. 583; and if so, B. C. 1563 was a jubilee, and that was the only jubilee that could have fallen in the life time of Joshua, according to either of the dates used by Josephus; therefore, the use of the jubilee enables us to combine all of the authority of the thirteen dates used by him to prove that Moses left Egypt B. C. 1611. If we might be allowed here to bring in the testimony of Paul in proof that the time of the judges continued "about the space of four hundred and fifty years, we can get five more dates from Josephus to prove that the Exodus out of Egypt was B. C. 1611. Thus: by the date he gives for the reign of Saul, the three dates he gives for the reign of David; the time of the building of the temple, and the time of the reign of Jeroboam; therefore with the above combined authority, we can some eighteen or nineteen times prove, by the dates given by Josephus, that Moses left Egypt B. C. 1611.

And now, when I call to mind that in all the simplicity of a little child, my chronology, in its original form, was only a table of the dates I found in my father's Bible, and then contemplate how clearly it has been established or proved correct, first by astronomy, second by ancient history, third by the Parian chronicle, fourth by Jewish authors, fifth by the recent discoveries found among the ruins of Nineveh, sixth by Josephus; I ask, is not this the chronology of our Bible the work of God? and how can any reasonable man say the Bible is not the book of God?

Having now collected and examined all the evidence that I can find on the subject, I must conclude that to doubt the correctness of our Bible chronology betrays the want of a due investigation on the part of those who have doubts. "Finally, brethren, farewell"; farewell until we meet at the judgment seat of Christ.

* In the Book of Jasher it is stated that "Terah was thirty-eight years old and he begat Haran and Nahor."—Jasher, chap. 7: 21. "Terah was seventy years old when he begat him"—[Abraham.] This makes Abraham thirty-two years younger than Haran.—ED.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTERS ON REVISION.

LETTER IX.—Quotations from the Old Testament.

King Herod inquired of the Jewish priests and scribes where the Christ should be born. They gave him the desired information by replying, "In Bethlehem of Judea; for thus it is written by the prophet: And thou Bethlehem, land of Judah," etc. (Matt. 2: 5, 6.)

Matthew, the apostle and evangelist, quotes from the Old Testament to prove to his Jewish readers that, in accordance with God's purpose and prophetic word, took place the miraculous birth of Christ; his coming out of Egypt; his being called a Nazarene; his being heralded by John the Baptist; his residence at Capernaum, and diffusing in that region his heavenly light; his healing every sickness and infirmity among the people; his riding in meek triumph into Jerusalem as Zion's King; and his betrayal for thirty pieces of silver, and that money afterward given for the potter's field.

The apostle and evangelist John quotes those ancient Scriptures as foretelling Christ's zeal for his Father's house; his riding as Zion's King into Jerusalem; the Jews' unbelief and hardness of heart towards him; his garments being divided among the Roman soldiers, who crucified him, and his coat disposed of by lot; his having not a bone broken, when he was offered up on the cross; and his being pierced with the soldier's spear.

The apostle Peter quoted "the law of Moses, the prophets and the psalms" (Luke 24: 44), as predicting the fall of Judas; the wonderful operations of the Spirit on the day of Pentecost; the resurrection, and ascension, of Christ; his being raised up by God as the Prophet, whose words we are required to hear; and raised up to bless the nations, by turning them from their iniquities.

The apostle James quoted "the prophets," as proving God's purpose to take out of the Gentiles a people for his name. And the martyr Stephen, in his historic address to the Jews, made appropriate and pointed quotations from their acknowledged sacred writings.

The apostle Paul, in his recorded addresses, and in his letters to the churches, quotes a great number of Old Testament scriptures, and admirably interweaves them with his own discourse; showing that both Testaments, taken together, constitute one beautiful and harmonious texture of truth. And the Lord Jesus himself often quoted those sacred writings, to explain and enforce them, and teach us how to use them.

In the whole New Testament, these quotations from the more ancient Scriptures number more than two hundred. And being thus numerous, and important in their bearing, it is pleasant to have the New Testament so printed that, on opening it to read, we may know at once when we meet them, and where each one begins and ends.

This desirable object has been satisfactorily accomplished, in the Octavo Revised New Testament, by printing the quotation, when poetical in the Hebrew, in the poetic form; and when not poetical, by spacing the letters.

C. W. WATERHOUSE.

"SWEAR NOT AT ALL."

The laws of God are the highest known to men. He is the Supreme Lawgiver, and any law in contravention of his laws is not obligatory upon men. It is a nudum pactum—a void agreement. To the conscientious, pious, and God-fearing man, this is a question of the highest importance. The subject before us at this time, and to which we shall devote special care, is the propriety or impropriety, the morality or immorality, of christians taking judicial or political oaths.

In the discussion of this subject we shall begin with the words of Christ, the great christian Lawgiver: "Again, you have heard that it hath been said by them of old time, Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths; but (in opposition to this teaching) I (Jesus) say unto you, SWEAR NOT AT ALL; neither by heaven, for it is God's throne; nor by the earth, for it is his footstool; neither by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black. But let your communication be, Yea, yea (Yes, yes); Nay, nay (No, no); for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil."—Matt. 5: 33–37.

The Lord Jesus, in the case before us, nullifies an old law or custom, and enacts a higher law for his people. He COMMANDS them, "Swear not at all"; a law as positive as the laws of the Decalogue—"Thou shalt not kill"; "Thou shalt not steal"; or, "Thou shalt not commit adultery." "Swear not at all" is the law, the higher law, the broader law of christian morality.

And lest this law might be misunderstood or evaded, he proceeds to amplify and specify its provisions. They were not to swear,

1. By heaven, for it is God's throne.
2. Nor by the earth, for it is his footstool.
3. Nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King.
4. Nor by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black.
5. In all their communications they were to use the simple affirmations, Yes, yes, and No, no.
6. For whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil!

But let us quote another passage: "Woe unto you, blind guides, who say, Whosoever shall swear by the temple, it is nothing; but whosoever shall swear by the gold of the temple, he is a debtor. You fools and blind: for whether is greater, the gold, or the temple that sanctifieth the gold? And whosoever shall swear by the altar, it is nothing; but whosoever sweareth by the gift that is upon it, he is guilty. You fools and blind: for whether is greater, the gift, or the altar that sanctifieth the gift? Whoso therefore shall swear by the altar, sweareth by it, and by all things thereon. And whoso shall swear by the temple, sweareth by it, and by him that dwelleth therein. And he that shall swear by heaven, sweareth by the throne of God, and by him that sitteth thereon." (Matt. 23: 16–22.)

We will quote another passage: "But ABOVE ALL THINGS, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither BY ANY OTHER OATH: but let your yea (yes) be yea; and your nay (no), nay; lest you fall into condemnation." (Jas. 5: 12.)

The apostle clearly has reference to the command of Christ, first quoted by us; and he places the question beyond all dispute. We are not to swear by heaven, by the earth, NOR BY ANY OTHER OATH! And this, too, says James, Above all things. This whole declaration is full, sweeping, and conclusive. There is absolutely no evading it. We must either accept it in all its amplitude as authoritative, or reject it altogether to our condemnation. There is positively no other alternative. But to all this it will be objected that Paul allows of judicial oaths: "For men verily swear by the greater; and an oath for confirmation is to them an end of all strife."—(Heb. 6: 16.)

But if the reader will re-examine this text, he will find that the apostle, in illustration of his subject, the oath of God, merely refers to the same practice to which our Lord had reference in the 5th of Matthew, and neither approves nor disapproves it. And certain it is, he does not command, enjoin, or allow it; but only speaks of it as a custom then existing, for the purpose of illustrating the oath of God with reference to his promises. And when we place this incidental remark of Paul side by side with the teaching of Christ and the apostle James, we can be at no loss to determine what is our duty, as christians, in the premises. And if he who swears by the altar, sweareth by it and by all things thereon; and he who swears by the temple, sweareth by it and by him that dwelleth therein; and he who swears by heaven, sweareth by the throne of God and by him that sitteth thereon, then it follows as a logical consequence that he who swears upon or by the "Holy Evangelists of Almighty God," or by or upon the New Testament, swears by the Scriptures, the living oracles of God, and by their eternal Author! We see no escape from this conclusion. No matter whom it may condemn, it is the truth, the fearful truth of Almighty God! But the apostle James tells us: We are not to swear by any other oath. And, if this be so, we are not to swear at all!

There are no less than five specifications of this kind in the 5th chapter of Matthew, in which the morality of the Gospel rises higher, and embraces a wider range than the Mosaic law.

1. "You have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not kill; and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment; BUT I say unto you," etc.

2. "You have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery; BUT I say unto you," etc.

3. "Again, you have heard that it hath been said by them of old time, Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shall perform unto the Lord thine oaths; BUT I say unto you," etc.

4. "You have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth; BUT I say unto you," etc.

5. "You have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy; BUT I say unto you," etc.

Here we have the contrast between the morality of the gospel and the Mosaic economy, in five specifications; and in every instance, including that of swearing, the conclusion is irresistible: The Gospel forbids anger, which often leads to murder; it forbids you to look on a woman with impure desire; it forbids retaliation, or a tooth for a tooth, or an eye for an eye; it commands you to love your enemy as well as your neighbor; and it forbids swearing by heaven, earth, or any other oath. If you reject the teaching of Christ with reference to swearing, then you can reject his teaching with reference to the other four specifications, to which we have alluded, and thus array yourself in opposition to the Word of God, and the authority of Christ our Lawgiver! Are any of our readers prepared for this? We hope not.

Our government allows men, who have conscientious scruples about swearing, to affirm, solemnly affirm, with reference to the truth of any matter in which their testimony is required. For this privilege we should be thankful; for it deprives us of any excuse for uttering oaths, judicial or otherwise. We have witnessed with pain how unceremoniously men will swear upon the Bible, in giving testimony, when almost all who heard them were forced to the conclusion that they were perjured men. Indeed, this appears to be an age of unparalleled recklessness with regard to this matter. The most solemn oaths are disregarded, and the most solemn obligations are broken, with no apparent regret or remorse. If men swear, and even swear "to their own hurt," they should keep their oaths most sacredly.

But a christian man's word, or affirmation, made in the presence of God and men, should, and would be to a conscientious man, as binding as ten thousand oaths.—Messianic Banner.

THE TWO COMINGS OF CHRIST.

"The two comings of Christ have some degree of likeness. First, they are like each other in the fact that they are both of them personal comings. Christ came the first time, not as a spirit, for a spirit hath not flesh and bones as he had. He was one who could be pressed to a woman's bosom; one who could be borne in a father's arms. He was one who could afterwards walk in his own person to the temple; one who could bear our sins in his own body on the tree. We have done once for all with the foolish ideas of certain of the early heretics, that Christ's appearance upon earth was but a phantom. We know that he was really, personally and physically here on earth. But it is not quite so clear to some persons that he is to come really, personally and literally the second time. I know there are some who are laboring to get rid of the fact of a personal Reign; but as I take it, the Coming and the Reign are so connected together, that we must have a spiritual Coming if we are to have a spiritual Reign. Now we believe and hold that Christ shall come a second time suddenly, to raise his saints at the first resurrection; this shall be the commencement of the grand judgment, and they shall reign with him afterwards. The rest of the dead live not till after the thousand years are finished. Then shall they rise from their tombs at the sounding of the trumpet, and their judgment shall come, and they shall receive the deeds which they have done in their bodies. Now, we believe that the Christ who shall sit on the throne of his father David, and whose feet shall stand on Mount Olivet, is as much a personal Christ as the Christ who came to Bethlehem and wept in the manger. We do believe that the very Christ whose body did hang upon the tree shall sit upon the throne; that the very hand that felt the nail shall grasp the sceptre; that the very foot that was fastened to the cross shall tread

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 555. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, MAY 23, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 10.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. O. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

"THY KINGDOM COME!"

Thy kingdom come! yes, 'tis the prayer
Of all thy faithful followers here;
With longing hearts we watch and pray,
In wait for that auspicious day.

Thy kingdom come! when all thy slain
Shall be redeemed from death's domain;
The living saints, from sin set free,
Be changed to immortality.

Thy kingdom come! when earth shall rise
To more than pristine Paradise;
When life's fair fruits again shall grow,
And life's celestial waters flow.

Thy kingdom come! when wars shall cease,
And all mankind shall be at peace;
And love extend from shore to shore,
And cruel pride oppress no more.

Thy kingdom come! when David's heir
The "sparkling diadem" shall wear;
His scepter sway from zone to zone,
And 'all' his righteousness shall own.

Thy kingdom come! when Israel's sons,
"The remnant," God's own chosen ones,
Beneath Messiah's peaceful reign
The "ancient promise land" obtain.

Thy kingdom come! when Satan's power
And influence shall be felt no more;
When sin, and death, and every stain
Caused by the "fall," no more remain.

Dear Savior, when that day shall come,
And all thy saints are gathered home,
To share the honors of their King,
May I be one thy praise to sing.

Chatham Valley, Pa. J. W. TAYLOR.

THE MISUNDERSTOOD PRAYER.

Great and long-forgotten truths are beginning to re-appear. Thoughtful men have been for many years ill at ease. Results of efforts to evangelize the world have been sadly out of proportion to the efforts themselves. What does God intend to do with this world,—this great, beautiful, and populous world, the scene of so many miseries, so many mighty acts, so many divine miracles, and so many and such long-continued struggles between the powers of good and evil? Shall it be converted? If so, by what instrumentality, and when?—and that "when?" has come back from every idol temple and lofty mountain in a long and sickly echo. And again the dreary "when?" has gone up to heaven from the prayer-meeting, fallen doubtfully from the preacher's lips, rolled heavily in the large missionary meeting, and passed around the globe like a desolate thing, seeking a resting-place and finding none. Or does God intend suddenly to destroy the works of his hands, to set fire to the earth and sweep it to destruction, just at the time when multitudes were beginning to hope that signs of better days were budding forth to gladden the eyes of the nations? Shall the earth—Adam's earth, man's earth, Christ's earth,—speedily be seen by startled angels flying in its orbit through the heavens, one vast globe of intensely heated fire, like a steamship in flames running madly through the hissing sea?

Such awful questions as these have long engaged the thoughts of devout thinkers, but no satisfactory answer was obtained. Some few men, however, hinted that it might be well to open the books of prophecy, and to try to realize the import of the visions of holy seers. But the habits, prejudices, and theories of churches and pastors were all against that. "Meddle not with prophecy." "It cannot be understood." "Preach the gospel." "Let prophecy alone." Such were the precepts of our teachers. Well, but we may ask, What shall we read, if not prophecy? How much Bible will be left to us, if all its predictions be excluded? Does it honor the Holy Spirit to say that prophecy cannot be understood? Is it not far more likely that He intended us to be made acquainted with leading facts, by presenting them in appropriate language, than that He designed to speak so obscurely that in effect it should amount to entire silence? Surely He is the revealer, not the concealer. Hath not God revealed them to us by his Spirit, that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God? Does not Paul speak of the guilt of the people and rulers of Jerusalem, in not knowing the voices of the prophets, which were read every Sabbath day? Does not Peter say that we do well to take heed to the sure word of prophecy, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place? Does not John, in his preface to the Apocalypse say, "Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things that are written therein; for the time is at hand?" Was it not by consulting the prophecy of Jeremiah that the captive Daniel understood that the years of the captivity in Babylon were nearly expired? Does not our blessed Jesus, the Prince of the prophets, give us signs, and command us to watch them, and attend to them, and lift up our heads when they appear? Are not the children of Issachar celebrated as men who had understanding of the times to know what Israel ought to do? Is not the testimony of Jesus the spirit of prophecy? Is not the design of prophecy to bear testimony to him? How should we know that Jesus is the Christ, but by comparing his life, doctrines, deeds, and sufferings, with the prophecies that described them so long before? And as to preaching the gospel, why, you cannot do that faithfully, nay, you cannot do it all, if you resolve to have nothing to do with prophecy; for the gospel is itself the fulfillment of one series of prophecies, and the utterance of another; the gospel is the grandest prophecy in the world—a long, beautiful, and most sublime prediction, embracing heaven and earth in its mighty circumference, and resting not until earth shall be like heaven, and both shall be one in Christ. And, therefore, if we meddle not with prophecy, assuredly it will meddle with us, and the result will not be much to the credit either of our discernment or our piety.

But then it is objected that certain students of prophecy have made calculations of dates and periods which the event has falsified. Nothing more likely; and yet we see not much more harm in making calculations from prophecy than in making them from the results of the missionary efforts of the last fifty years, to ascertain how long it will be before the world shall be converted at the same rate, which a celebrated missionary did not long ago, and gave as the result the astounding answer of a million of years. So far as the hopes of men are at present concerned, he might just as well have said, "Never." But we do not plead for calculations, but for facts. God will take care of "the times and seasons;" let us believe the facts, and go cheerfully to work just as he has bidden us, and all will shortly be well. The kingdom will come.

Still further, it is objected that students of prophecy have taught such wild and extravagant things, that sober-minded men must avoid the danger. Of course, to the travelers on the beaten path, those theories do appear wild and extravagant; but the proper question seems to be, Is the beaten path the right one? Every thing is extravagant which crosses our preconceptions, and disturbs the traditions of our fathers; but it does not follow, because it presents to our vision a field of whose existence we were ignorant, that it it is not therefore true. But the objection, if it has any force, has too much. For some men, who carefully shunned prophecy, have formed wild and extravagant notions of the doctrines of christianity; and shall we therefore cease to read the gospel of our salvation, and abandon all hope of ascertaining what its leading doctrines are? Surely not, especially when that divine gem, the Lord's Prayer, stands in the middle of the gospel like a mountain of light in a very fruitful field, assuring us that our Father intends that his will shall be done on earth as it is in heaven. Our Lord would never have told us to pray for a thing which it was not the intention of God to perform. When the will of God shall be done upon the earth as it is done in heaven, then earth will be like heaven. Most earnestly, therefore, do we pray, "Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth"; and the answer will be graciously given, first, in the hidden principles and laws of this kingdom within us, subduing our thoughts to holy loyalty to our sovereign Lord; and in due time in the establishment over all the earth of the visible, powerful, and glorious kingdom of Christ, when all kings shall fall down at his feet, and all nations shall serve him. The reception of Christ to reign in our hearts now, is the way to qualify us to reign with him then.

We have seen that the kingdom prayed for is not the gospel, not the church, and not heaven; and by the remarks just made respecting prophecy, you will infer that we intend to look for it in the prophetic page.

It is a remarkable fact that our Lord does not describe that kingdom in the prayer which he taught his disciples, further than by intimating two things in connection with it; namely, that the Father's name would be hallowed, or held in holy reverence, and that his will would be done, as in heaven, so in earth, when the kingdom should come. But why does he not tell his disciples what he meant? I answer, because it was not necessary. They were Jews; and knew from the writings of their venerated prophets much about the kingdom which was to be set up under the reign of their adored Messiah the Prince. The visions of the seers of Judah respecting that kingdom were treasured in their memories. They needed no information about the splendors of the Messianic reign. The coming of the predicted reign and government was the grand object of their desire. The restoration of the local kingdom to Israel, and by consequence the extension of the blessing of the reign of Messiah to all the nations of the earth, was the topic of their solicitude by day and of their dreams by night. So fully occupied were their thoughts with these blessed themes, that the valley of humiliation which lay before their Lord was entirely overlooked. The quiet haven was in sight, and on it their eye rested with such intense desire, that they saw not the troubled ocean over which he and they must pass before it could be reached. They—"unlettered Jews" as they are frequently called—knew more about both the letter and the spirit of the prophets by whom God had spoken to their fathers, than do we who live in the middle of the nineteenth century. Then "Thy kingdom" was no mysterious novelty, but a long-expected glory, and their hearts must have leaped with joy when the Master said, Pray, "Thy kingdom come." Explanation was not required.—Dr. Wm. Leask.

☞ Among all God's children, there is not one possessed with a dumb devil. Prayerless persons are forsaken of God, blinded by Satan, hardened in sin, and with every breath they draw, liable to all temporal, spiritual, and eternal judgments.

☞ You will never have a friend if you must have one without failings.

For the World's Crisis.

JOSEPHUS' CHRONOLOGY EXAMINED.

BY WM. C. THURMAN.

(Concluded.)

By reference to Josephus (Ant. b. 1, c. 6, s. 5), I find that he supposed that "Terah begat Abram in his seventieth year"; and it is true that we read, "Terah lived seventy years and begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran" (Gen. 11: 26); but it is not said that Abram was the first born. If the order in which their names are given be intended to give the order of their birth, Haran would be the youngest. But it would appear that he was the oldest, for his brother Nahor married his daughter. Gen. 11: 29.* Josephus admits that Sarah, Abram's wife, was the daughter of his brother Haran; and how unreasonable to suppose that the oldest child married the daughter of the youngest. The order in which names are given in the Bible points out the most distinguished person, rather than that of their birth. For example: We always read "Moses and Aaron," not Aaron and Moses. That Terah was 130 years old when Abram was born, we can prove thus: he "was seventy-five years old when he departed from Haran" (Gen. 12: 4), which was after the death of his father (Acts 7: 4). And his father was two hundred and five years old at the time of his death. Gen. 11: 32. If from 205 we take 75, we have 130 for Terah's age when Abram was born. And if from 130 we take 70, we have 60. Thus we account for an error of sixty years in Josephus' chronology here, which being added to 4061 gives B. C. 4121, as Josephus' corrected date for the time of creation.

But there is yet an error of four years here, for in section eighth, we observed that Josephus' corrected date gave B. C. 2469 for the deluge, to which add the 1656 years that he gives for the interval between that and creation, and we have B. C. 4125. So if by that we correct this, we again find his dates just one year short of my chronology.

10. Says Josephus, "Solomon began to build the temple in the fourth year of his reign, . . . five hundred and ninety-two years after the exodus out of Egypt."—Jose. Ant. b. 8, c. 3, s. 1. In section seventh, we observed that the dates used by Josephus give B. C. 1018 for the building of the temple; to which add 592, and we have B. C. 1610, which is again just one year short of my chronology.

11. Josephus continues: "Solomon began to build the temple . . . . one thousand and twenty years from Abraham's coming out of Mesopotamia into Canaan." If to 1018 we add 1020, we we have B. C. 2038. But this is three years short of my chronology. How Josephus made this mistake I am unable to see; for his own dates give two years more, thus: 592 to the exodus, and 440 from that to Abraham; 592 added to 430 make 1022, which being added to B. C. 1018, gives B. C. 2040. This is again one year short of my chronology.

12. Josephus continues: "And after the deluge," to the building of the temple, "one thousand four hundred and forty years." If to 1018 we add 1440, we have B. C. 2458. But here Josephus has again made some mistake, for this falls eleven years short of his dates, as noticed in section eighth. We will correct this by his dates again. From the exodus to the temple, he gives 592. From Abraham to the exodus, he has 430. From the deluge to the birth of Abraham, he gives 292, and from his birth to the time he entered Canaan 75, which being added together amount to 1389; and to this we must add the 60 years which in section ninth we observed was omitted by Josephus, and we have 1449, which being added to B. C. 1018, we have B. C. 2467 for the time of the deluge. But this is yet three years short of my chronology, and three years short of the date Josephus gave us, as mentioned in section eighth.

13. Says Josephus, "From Adam the first man who was created, until Solomon built the temple, there had passed in all three thousand one hundred and two years." If to B. C. 1018 we add 3102 years, we have B. C. 4120. This is six years short of my chronology. But may be corrected thus: We observed in section eighth that Josephus gave B. C. 2469 for the time of the deluge, and from Adam to the deluge he gives 1656, which, being added to 2469, gives B. C. 4125 for the creation of Adam. This again is just one year short of my chronology. And is it not remarkable that out of thirteen dates, eight should fall just one year short of my chronology, one five, another three years short, while the other three give the same year which I have given? This can hardly be accidental, or a mere matter of chance. There must be a reason for it; and the conclusion that I have come to is, that Josephus had before him two tables of chronology, one about the same with mine, or one year shorter; while his other table gave about thirty-six years more for the time of the building of the temple, and more than a thousand years longer for the time of the creation. And Josephus being unable to decide which was the correct chronology, used both; sometimes following one, and at other times following the other, which accounts for his apparent clashing with himself.

From this we learn that the dates used by Josephus were not his own, but those found in some book, written perhaps many years before he was born; hence should be regarded as the more reliable. It is true the apparent clashing at first creates confusion, but since we are furnished with the means of detecting the errors, the dates give us a chronology very near the truth; and the chronology they give is the same with mine, or one year shorter; for I have reconciled them with that, and am unable to see how it is possible to harmonize them with any other. For the convenience of those who wish at one view to see the result of Josephus' chronology, we might here add two tables, one of those dates which need no correction, and another of corrected dates.

* In the Book of Jasher it is stated that "Terah was thirty-eight years old and he begat Haran and Nahor." —Jasher, chap. 7: 22. Again we read in the same book, chap. 7: 51,—"Terah was seventy years old when he begat him"—[Abraham.] This makes Abraham thirty-two years younger than Haran.—ED.]

TABLE OF CORRECT DATES.

B. C.	Interval: years	days
2040			Abraham went to Canaan.
	430
1610			Moses left Egypt.
	1062	6
1025			The reign of David.
	477	6
547			Temple destroyed.

The year B. C. 547 is the date given by Demetrius for the burning of the temple by the king of Babylon, and is the same time given in the Book of Daniel Opened. Against this, if we place Josephus' 477 years and 6 months, we have B. C. 1025 for the beginning of the reign of David, which is one year short of my chronology. From the same epoch, Josephus gives 1062 years and 6 months to the time Moses left Egypt; that is, B. C. 1610, which is again one year short of my chronology. From Abraham to the exodus, he gives 430 years, which being added to 1610, gives B. C. 2040 for the time Abraham went to Canaan. This is also one year short of my chronology.

We will now add a table of chronology, gathered from Josephus, by the revision, or correcting of the errors of transcribers, made from his dates, which appear to be the most reliable.

B. C.
4125	From Adam.
2469	The Deluge.
2467	" "
2440	Abraham to Canaan.
1610	Moses left Egypt.
1065	Saul began to reign.
1025	David began to reign.
983	The 4th year of Solomon.
982	" " " " "
947	End of the reign of Solomon.

It will be seen from the above table, that the time Josephus gives for creation is one year short of mine. For the deluge, one date is the same with mine, but the other two years shorter. For the time Abraham went to Canaan and Moses left Egypt are both one year shorter. And the reign both of Saul and David are one year shorter. One date for the building of the temple in the fourth year of Solomon is the same with my chronology, but the other one year shorter. The end of the reign of Solomon is in the same year given in my chronology. And the end of the reign of Solomon is without any revision given according to the dates found in Josephus, thus: He gives 361 years from the latter end of the first year of Jeroboam to the year before the eighteenth of Josiah.—Ant. b. 10, c. 4, s. 4. The seventeenth of Josiah was B. C. 584; to which add 361, and we have B. C. 945 for the second year of Jeroboam. Therefore, 946 was his first year, and B. C. 947 was the last year of the reign of Solomon.

For the reign of all the kings of the house of David, Josephus gives the same number of years found in our Bible, except Solomon, whom he gives eighty years, thus raising the time for the building of the temple forty years. In establishing a correct chronology, the most important date to be fixed is the time Moses left Egypt. We will, therefore, in conclusion, exhibit at one view the many ways in which Josephus gives the time of the exodus.

1
1063—6 m.
547
———
1610

2
470—6 m.
592
———
1063
547
———
1610

3
470—6
1020
———
1491
547
———
2038
430
———
1608

4
470—6
592
430
———
1493
547
———
2040
430
———
1610

5
470—6
1440
———
1911
547
———
2458
858
———
1600

6
470—6
3102
———
3573
547
———
4120
2515
———
1605

7
947
130
———
1077
547
———
1624

8
460
592
———
1052
547
———
1599

9
37
361
80
592
———
1070
547
———
1617
3
———
1614

10
1957—6
36 corrected.
———
1922 cor.
547
———
2469
858
———
1611

11
3513—6
60 cor.
———
3574 cor.
547
———
4121
2515
———
1606

12
2467 cor.
858
———
1609

13
4125 cor.
2515
———
1610

Here are thirteen different ways in which Josephus has given us the time at which Moses left Egypt. Four of them give B. C. 1610, and all of the others playing around that date, proves that the chronology used by Josephus did give that for the year Moses left Egypt. It will be seen that four of the dates, that is, Nos. 10, 11, 12, and 13, are marked corrected, hence not reliable; but the other nine dates are according to the express language of Josephus.

No. 1 is explained in section fifth. No. 2 in section tenth. No. 3 in section eleventh. No. 4 is obtained by adding the dates together as given by Josephus between Abraham and the ruin of the temple. No 5 is explained in section twelfth. No 6 in section thirteenth. No. 7 is the interval given by Josephus between the leaving of Egypt and destruction of the city (See Jose. Ant. b. 9, c. 14, s. 1, and b. 10, c. 9, s. 7.) No. 8 is obtained by adding the number of years given by Josephus for the reign of each king of Judah, from the fourth of Solomon, to the end of the kingdom. Josephus thus gives 460 years, to which I add the 592 from that to Moses. No. 9 we get thus: Josephus gives 37 years to the seventeenth of Josiah; 361 from that to the first year of Jeroboam, and 80 for Solomon; but we have explained this just before adding the table. No. 10 is explained in section eighth. No. 11 in section ninth. No. 12 in section twelfth; and No. 13 in section thirteenth.

We have mentioned that out of the thirteen there are but four dates that give the same year for the time Moses left Egypt. There are, therefore, ten different dates; and it now remains to decide which is correct. Which can be done thus: We know that the 15th day of the second month fell on Saturday in the year Moses left Egypt. (Ex. 16: 1–29.) And the following table will show on what day it fell in each year.

B. C.
1624	on Thursday.
1614	on Friday.
1611	on Saturday.
1610	on Wednesday.
1609	on Tuesday.
1608	on Saturday.
1606	on Monday.
1605	on Sunday.
1600	on Thursday.
1599	on Monday.

From this table it will be seen that out of the ten, there are but two years in which the fifteenth of the second month falls on Saturday; one 1611, the other 1608. Now the Sabbatical year will decide between these two thus: According to Josephus, B. C. 163 was a Sabbatical year, which, being taken from 1608, leaves 1445. This being divided by seven, leaves three for the remainder, hence B. C. 1608 could not be the year; therefore B. C. 1611 is the only one out of the ten that can be correct. Thus we discover that Josephus was just one year short of the truth, for he three times, or, if we may use a corrected period, he four times gives B. C. 1610 for the time Moses left Egypt, and around this year all of his other dates play, the greatest extreme being thirteen years.

The Jews say that one jubilee occurred in the life time of Joshua, and another in the eighteenth year of Josiah; and if so, all of the dates used by Josephus give, as with the voice of one man, B. C. 1611 for the year Moses left Egypt; for, according to Josephus, the eighteenth of Josiah was B. C. 583; and if so, B. C. 1563 was a jubilee, and that was the only jubilee that could have fallen in the life time of Joshua, according to either of the dates used by Josephus; therefore, the use of the jubilee enables us to combine all of the authority of the thirteen dates used by him to prove that Moses left Egypt B. C. 1611. If we might be allowed here to bring in the testimony of Paul in proof that the time of the judges continued "about the space of four hundred and fifty years, we can get five more dates from Josephus to prove that the Exodus out of Egypt was B. C. 1611. Thus: by the date he gives for the reign of Saul, the three dates he gives for the reign of David; the time of the building of the temple, and the time of the reign of Jeroboam; therefore with the above combined authority, we can some eighteen or nineteen times prove, by the dates given by Josephus, that Moses left Egypt B. C. 1611.

And now, when I call to mind that in all the simplicity of a little child, my chronology, in its original form, was only a table of the dates I found in my father's Bible, and then contemplate how clearly it has been established or proved correct, first by astronomy, second by ancient history, third by the Parian chronicle, fourth by Jewish authors, fifth by the recent discoveries found among the ruins of Nineveh, sixth by Josephus; I ask, is not this the chronology of our Bible the work of God? and how can any reasonable man say the Bible is not the book of God?

Having now collected and examined all the evidence that I can find on the subject, I must conclude that to doubt the correctness of our Bible chronology betrays the want of a due investigation on the part of those who have doubts. "Finally, brethren, farewell"; farewell until we meet at the judgment seat of Christ.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTERS ON REVISION.

LETTER IX.—Quotations from the Old Testament.

King Herod inquired of the Jewish priests and scribes where the Christ should be born. They gave him the desired information by replying, "In Bethlehem of Judea; for thus it is written by the prophet: And thou Bethlehem, land of Judah," etc. (Matt. 2: 5, 6.)

Matthew, the apostle and evangelist, quotes from the Old Testament to prove to his Jewish readers that, in accordance with God's purpose and prophetic word, took place the miraculous birth of Christ; his coming out of Egypt; his being called a Nazarene; his being heralded by John the Baptist; his residence at Capernaum, and diffusing in that region his heavenly light; his healing every sickness and infirmity among the people; his riding in meek triumph into Jerusalem as Zion's King; and his betrayal for thirty pieces of silver, and that money afterward given for the potter's field.

The apostle and evangelist John quotes those ancient Scriptures as foretelling Christ's zeal for his Father's house; his riding as Zion's King into Jerusalem; the Jews' unbelief and hardness of heart towards him; his garments being divided among the Roman soldiers, who crucified him, and his coat disposed of by lot; his having not a bone broken, when he was offered up on the cross; and his being pierced with the soldier's spear.

The apostle Peter quoted "the law of Moses, the prophets and the psalms" (Luke 24: 44), as predicting the fall of Judas; the wonderful operations of the Spirit on the day of Pentecost; the resurrection, and ascension, of Christ; his being raised up by God as the Prophet, whose words we are required to hear; and raised up to bless the nations, by turning them from their iniquities.

The apostle James quoted "the prophets," as proving God's purpose to take out of the Gentiles a people for his name. And the martyr Stephen, in his historic address to the Jews, made appropriate and pointed quotations from their acknowledged sacred writings.

The apostle Paul, in his recorded addresses, and in his letters to the churches, quotes a great number of Old Testament scriptures, and admirably interweaves them with his own discourse; showing that both Testaments, taken together, constitute one beautiful and harmonious texture of truth. And the Lord Jesus himself often quoted those sacred writings, to explain and enforce them, and teach us how to use them.

In the whole New Testament, these quotations from the more ancient Scriptures number more than two hundred. And being thus numerous, and important in their bearing, it is pleasant to have the New Testament so printed that, on opening it to read, we may know at once when we meet them, and where each one begins and ends.

This desirable object has been satisfactorily accomplished, in the Octavo Revised New Testament, by printing the quotation, when poetical in the Hebrew, in the poetic form; and when not poetical, by spacing the letters.

C. W. WATERHOUSE.

"SWEAR NOT AT ALL."

The laws of God are the highest known to men. He is the Supreme Lawgiver, and any law in contravention of his laws is not obligatory upon men. It is a nudum pactum—a void agreement. To the conscientious, pious, and God-fearing man, this is a question of the highest importance. The subject before us at this time, and to which we shall devote special care, is the propriety or impropriety, the morality or immorality, of christians taking judicial or political oaths.

In the discussion of this subject we shall begin with the words of Christ, the great christian Lawgiver: "Again, you have heard that it hath been said by them of old time, Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths; but (in opposition to this teaching) I (Jesus) say unto you, SWEAR NOT AT ALL; neither by heaven, for it is God's throne; nor by the earth, for it is his footstool; neither by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black. But let your communication be, Yea, yea (Yes, yes); Nay, nay (No, no); for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil."—Matt. 5: 33–37.

The Lord Jesus, in the case before us, nullifies an old law or custom, and enacts a higher law for his people. He COMMANDS them, "Swear not at all"; a law as positive as the laws of the Decalogue—"Thou shalt not kill"; "Thou shalt not steal"; or, "Thou shalt not commit adultery." "Swear not at all" is the law, the higher law, the broader law of christian morality.

And lest this law might be misunderstood or evaded, he proceeds to amplify and specify its provisions. They were not to swear,

1. By heaven, for it is God's throne.
2. Nor by the earth, for it is his footstool.
3. Nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King.
4. Nor by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black.
5. In all their communications they were to use the simple affirmations, Yes, yes, and No, no.
6. For whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil!

But let us quote another passage: "Woe unto you, blind guides, who say, Whosoever shall swear by the temple, it is nothing; but whosoever shall swear by the gold of the temple, he is a debtor. You fools and blind: for whether is greater, the gold, or the temple that sanctifieth the gold? And whosoever shall swear by the altar, it is nothing; but whosoever sweareth by the gift that is upon it, he is guilty. You fools and blind: for whether is greater, the gift, or the altar that sanctifieth the gift? Whoso therefore shall swear by the altar, sweareth by it, and by all things thereon. And whoso shall swear by the temple, sweareth by it, and by him that dwelleth therein. And he that shall swear by heaven, sweareth by the throne of God, and by him that sitteth thereon." (Matt. 23: 16–22.)

We will quote another passage: "But ABOVE ALL THINGS, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither BY ANY OTHER OATH: but let your yea (yes) be yea; and your nay (no), nay; lest you fall into condemnation." (Jas. 5: 12.)

The apostle clearly has reference to the command of Christ, first quoted by us; and he places the question beyond all dispute. We are not to swear by heaven, by the earth, NOR BY ANY OTHER OATH! And this, too, says James, Above all things. This whole declaration is full, sweeping, and conclusive. There is absolutely no evading it. We must either accept it in all its amplitude as authoritative, or reject it altogether to our condemnation. There is positively no other alternative. But to all this it will be objected that Paul allows of judicial oaths: "For men verily swear by the greater; and an oath for confirmation is to them an end of all strife."—(Heb. 6: 16.)

But if the reader will re-examine this text, he will find that the apostle, in illustration of his subject, the oath of God, merely refers to the same practice to which our Lord had reference in the 5th of Matthew, and neither approves nor disapproves it. And certain it is, he does not command, enjoin, or allow it; but only speaks of it as a custom then existing, for the purpose of illustrating the oath of God with reference to his promises. And when we place this incidental remark of Paul side by side with the teaching of Christ and the apostle James, we can be at no loss to determine what is our duty, as christians, in the premises. And if he who swears by the altar, sweareth by it and by all things thereon; and he who swears by the temple, sweareth by it and by him that dwelleth therein; and he who swears by heaven, sweareth by the throne of God and by him that sitteth thereon, then it follows as a logical consequence that he who swears upon or by the "Holy Evangelists of Almighty God," or by or upon the New Testament, swears by the Scriptures, the living oracles of God, and by their eternal Author! We see no escape from this conclusion. No matter whom it may condemn, it is the truth, the fearful truth of Almighty God! But the apostle James tells us: We are not to swear by any other oath. And, if this be so, we are not to swear at all!

There are no less than five specifications of this kind in the 5th chapter of Matthew, in which the morality of the Gospel rises higher, and embraces a wider range than the Mosaic law.

1. "You have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not kill; and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment; BUT I say unto you," etc.

2. "You have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery; BUT I say unto you," etc.

3. "Again, you have heard that it hath been said by them of old time, Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shall perform unto the Lord thine oaths; BUT I say unto you," etc.

4. "You have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth; BUT I say unto you," etc.

5. "You have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy; BUT I say unto you," etc.

Here we have the contrast between the morality of the gospel and the Mosaic economy, in five specifications; and in every instance, including that of swearing, the conclusion is irresistible: The Gospel forbids anger, which often leads to murder; it forbids you to look on a woman with impure desire; it forbids retaliation, or a tooth for a tooth, or an eye for an eye; it commands you to love your enemy as well as your neighbor; and it forbids swearing by heaven, earth, or any other oath. If you reject the teaching of Christ with reference to swearing, then you can reject his teaching with reference to the other four specifications, to which we have alluded, and thus array yourself in opposition to the Word of God, and the authority of Christ our Lawgiver! Are any of our readers prepared for this? We hope not.

Our government allows men, who have conscientious scruples about swearing, to affirm, solemnly affirm, with reference to the truth of any matter in which their testimony is required. For this privilege we should be thankful; for it deprives us of any excuse for uttering oaths, judicial or otherwise. We have witnessed with pain how unceremoniously men will swear upon the Bible, in giving testimony, when almost all who heard them were forced to the conclusion that they were perjured men. Indeed, this appears to be an age of unparalleled recklessness with regard to this matter. The most solemn oaths are disregarded, and the most solemn obligations are broken, with no apparent regret or remorse. If men swear, and even swear "to their own hurt," they should keep their oaths most sacredly.

But a christian man's word, or affirmation, made in the presence of God and men, should, and would be to a conscientious man, as binding as ten thousand oaths.—Messianic Banner.

THE TWO COMINGS OF CHRIST.

"The two comings of Christ have some degree of likeness. First, they are like each other in the fact that they are both of them personal comings. Christ came the first time, not as a spirit, for a spirit hath not flesh and bones as he had. He was one who could be pressed to a woman's bosom; one who could be borne in a father's arms. He was one who could afterwards walk in his own person to the temple; one who could bear our sins in his own body on the tree. We have done once for all with the foolish ideas of certain of the early heretics, that Christ's appearance upon earth was but a phantom. We know that he was really, personally and physically here on earth. But it is not quite so clear to some persons that he is to come really, personally and literally the second time. I know there are some who are laboring to get rid of the fact of a personal Reign; but as I take it, the Coming and the Reign are so connected together, that we must have a spiritual Coming if we are to have a spiritual Reign. Now we believe and hold that Christ shall come a second time suddenly, to raise his saints at the first resurrection; this shall be the commencement of the grand judgment, and they shall reign with him afterwards. The rest of the dead live not till after the thousand years are finished. Then shall they rise from their tombs at the sounding of the trumpet, and their judgment shall come, and they shall receive the deeds which they have done in their bodies. Now, we believe that the Christ who shall sit on the throne of his father David, and whose feet shall stand on Mount Olivet, is as much a personal Christ as the Christ who came to Bethlehem and wept in the manger. We do believe that the very Christ whose body did hang upon the tree shall sit upon the throne; that the very hand that felt the nail shall grasp the sceptre; that the very foot that was fastened to the cross shall tread upon the necks of his foes. We look for the personal advent, the personal reign, the personal session and assize of Christ. . . . We now, like Abraham of old, do see his day; our eye catches the coming splendor; our soul is overwhelmed with the approaching glory. Did the Jew look for Messiah the Prince? So do we. Did he expect him to reign? So do we. In fact, the very Prince for whom Israel now looks in all her hardness of heart, is he whom we expect. They doubt Messiah's first advent, and they look for him to come as the fairest among ten thousand, the Prince of the kings of the earth. Hail, Israel! in this thy Gentile slater is agreed. She looks for him to come in the self-same form and fashion, and when his coming shall have removed the scales from the blind eyes of Israel's tribes, then the fulness of the Gentiles shall with Abraham's seed praise and magnify the Lamb once slain, who comes the second time as the Lion of the tribe of Judah. . . . .

"And now, though we have the words of Scripture to assure us that he will come quickly, and that his reward is with him, and his work before him, yet how few expect him! The coming of some foreign Prince, the approach of some great event is looked for and anticipated from the hour that the purpose is promulgated among the people. But thy coming, Jesus, thy glorious advent—where are they that strain their eyes to catch the first beams of the sunrising? There are a few of thy followers who wait for thine appearing. We meet with a few men who walk as those who know that the time is short, and that the Master may come at cock-crowing, or at midnight, or at the day-watch. We know a few beloved disciples who with longing hearts beguile the weary hours, while they prepare songs to greet thee, O Immanuel!"—Prophetic Times.

For the World's Crisis.

MEETING AT WOODHULL.

BRO. GRANT:—About the middle of February, I left my home to visit a sister I had not seen for eighteen years, who resides in Steuben Co., N. Y. I had been there but a few days, when I commenced a series of meetings in what is known as the Lyon's district. The word of God proved effectual to the awakening and conversion of souls. I was earnestly solicited by the pastor of the Baptist church at Woodhull, about four miles from the above named district, to assist him in a protracted effort, which had commenced about a week previous. I complied with his kind invitation. I preached twenty-one evenings in succession, during which time from twenty to thirty souls were converted, and backsliders were reclaimed. The ministers of both churches (Methodist and Baptist) attended, and so did the members, and assisted greatly in the interest of the meeting by their singing, prayers and exhortations. Congregations were large,—at times more than could be seated, and the best attention paid to the word spoken. The subjects presented were repentance towards God, and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ; baptism, by which we show our faith in a buried and risen Savior; the fact that Christ will come again; the evidence that he is near, even at the door; the necessity of his coming, and the preparation necessary to hail him joyfully, when he does come. May the Lord help those dear ones, who "received the word with all readiness of mind," and may they search "the Scriptures daily" to see if these things are so. It is the first preaching of the doctrine we cherish, as the word of God, they ever heard.

As the result of my visit, about one hundred embraced the views of Bible truth as we hold them; some sixty were converted, and backsliders were reclaimed. Twenty-two were baptized, and the "World's Crisis" introduced into some twenty different families. I left the dear friends, after being with them some eight weeks, with the promise of visiting them again during the summer, if the Lord will, with the hope that

"We'll meet ere long in our happy, Eden home,
Where summer is smiling and fair."

J. WENDELL.

Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa.

For the World's Crisis.

IDENTIFY YOURSELVES.

Beloved brethren and sisters, scattered throughout the land, who are contemplating visiting the "Water Cure" in Dansville, N. Y., the coming summer: to you I wish to address a few words. There are a few of "like precious faith" here, trying to hold up the light and sustain the truth and cause of our coming King. We are not popular, but christians who love Jesus so well that we are very jealous of his truth, that is treated with silent and secret contempt here; and I would ask you who love the same cause, that are coming here, to come and bear some "reproach for Christ," and meet with us in our meetings.

We meet to worship the "living and true God" in Franklin Hall, every Lord's day, at 10½ A. M., and in the evening, and want you to meet with us as much as possible. I make this statement and appeal, because some have been here who have seemed to be ashamed of the truths they profess to love at home, and others have been here for a long time without finding out that there was a people here that have been "turned to God from idols, to serve the living and true God, and to wait for his Son from heaven." A. P. MOORE.

Dansville, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

THE "TENT CENT CALL."

I have the pleasure to report, as the result of the "ten cent call" for Bro. C. H. Williams, to procure him a buggy, that I have received enough to pay for the buggy, and twenty-five dollars, the balance due on his horse; and have sent him and wife seven dollars, and perhaps the first of next month I may report a larger sum, as I still receive now and then a letter with additional help. I hereby tender my hearty and devout thanks to God and the donors for their timely aid to Bro. Williams, and also to myself; for the money that I thus receive for the buggy nearly helps me out of the draft debt. Thus the ten-cent donation has helped one out of trouble by depriving him of a buggy, and another by helping him to a buggy.

If any wish to join the ten-cent army, who have not yet enlisted, now is a good time to join; and I hope that when I make a more complete and full report next month, I shall not be obliged to credit less to the "Empire State" than to Maine or Mass. If some of the men that are worth from $10,000 to $100,000 (whom I might mention), should manifest the liberality of a few poor widows, the "Empire State" would take the lead; but now, as their ten cents are withheld, it is doubtful. C. F. SWEET.

Albion, May 14th, 1866.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, May 23, 1866.

☞ Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.00 a year; but if delayed six months beyond the time of payment, the price is $2.50 a year. Thus 50 cents a year is saved by paying in advance.

☞ Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank-checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

RAYS OF COMFORT.

We receive many most heart-cheering letters, which are to our feelings as oil to machinery. We should wear out much faster if it were not for such things. Our readers may be assured that such letters are appreciated; but for an obvious reason we seldom allow any of them in the paper, though they may be designed for publication. We trust this statement is all that need be made on the subject. Among those which are very cheering is a class containing statements like the following, from one of our preaching brethren, who always sends us good and well-written articles:—"I could not do without the Crisis. I pray God to bless and give you wisdom. Whenever I send you any communications for the paper, cut them to pieces as much as you wish to make them fit to appear before the public."

LEXINGTON.

In compliance with a request from Dr. Lewis, we recently preached to the students in his Seminary, at Lexington, Mass., and found some young hearts thirsting for truth, and anxious to learn the way of life. We learned from the Dr. that every loyal State was represented in this institution. We trust that when they return home, some of them may carry the good news of "the coming kingdom."

This institution is justly very popular, although the second year is not yet completed. The Dr. is a noble specimen of an intelligent gentleman. So far as we are able to judge, all things considered, we think he has the best seminary in the country.

He provides the most healthful food we have ever seen in any literary institution. The young ladies all wear the short dress, and practise the light gymnastics, of which Dr. Lewis is the founder. These exercises are very important in developing the physical system. Those who enter his school with delicate constitutions, usually show marked improvement in a few weeks. His school is full. The course of instruction is very thorough. We have seldom seen a school under better moral influence than this. Those who wish to attend school, may be considered fortunate if they can secure a place in Dr. Lewis' Seminary, at Lexington.

A VISION.—We publish this week a remarkable vision and prophecy, given to Isaac Child, in 1757. The manuscript plainly indicates that it was written many years ago. Those who are skilled in reading prophetic language will have but little difficulty in making an application.

CHOLERA.—Our readers will do well to preserve Dr. Thayer's article in this week's Crisis, on the treatment of Cholera; also his other three articles published April 11th and 25th, and May 2nd. If one is disposed to use any medicine, his prescriptions are the best.

DANGERS OF SPIRITUALISM.

Whoever embraces Spiritualism occupies a position morally as perilous, as the physical condition of the man who lies asleep while rattlesnakes are crawling into his bosom. Spiritualism is the most subtle and dangerous enemy with which christianity has ever had to contend. It is moral arsenic, and fits its votaries for eternal death. We do not see how any thing can be more fully anti-christian; and yet not a few professors of religion are looking upon it with much complacence.

A few days since a very intelligent gentleman called on us, who felt some thirteen years since that it was his duty to preach among the Baptists. After some severe struggles against the call, he finally yielded, was blest, and began to prepare for the work. About that time Spiritualism came into the neighborhood and attracted his attention. As the spirit claimed to be good, he inquired about his duty to preach, and was promptly informed that it was a great mistake. As this suited his natural feelings, he followed the advice of the spirit, and afterwards became a medium. For the past thirteen years he has had a hard pilgrimage, and, like the prodigal, has at last come to his senses, to see that he has been under the influence of demons, who were trying to lead him to perdition. He had come to inquire what he should do to be saved. He now sees that Spiritualism is anti-Christ, and that the whole thing is of the devil. We found him ready to desert from the enemy and to work for the Lord, and help sound the alarm,—"Behold, the Bridegroom cometh." We withhold his name now, but hope to see good fruits from his labors in a short time.

In our travels, we recently met another, with whom we took sweet counsel in holy things some thirteen years since; who was then an earnest laborer in the vineyard of the Lord, and faithful in all religious duties. We had not seen him for some nine or ten years, and felt rejoiced to see his face again, supposing him to be still an humble follower of Jesus; but our joy was soon turned to sorrow, when we learned that instead of preaching "the gospel of the kingdom," he had become a Spiritualist, given up the Bible, the God of the Bible, and is now dashing down to destruction, as fast as demons can hurry him along. We have just learned that he has been west, living with another woman as his wife, leaving his true and excellent wife in Ct., to make the best of her sad condition. Such things are becoming common.

The other gentleman, who called on us to inquire what he should do to be saved, inquired if we had ever known anything concerning "THE SACRED ORDER OF UNIONISTS," among Spiritualists? We replied we had not. He then informed us that it was a secret society, started by an editor of a Spiritualist paper, for licentious purposes—a secret brothel. Modesty would forbid our giving the facts connected with this "Sacred Order of Unionists."

DESTRUCTION OF THE SOUL.

"If you believe the soul is to be destroyed, I wish you to give me an explanation of Mark 9: 43–44. Also, if you believe the soul is unconscious after the person dies, whose souls were those that cried under the altar,—Rev. 6: 9–10?" I am seeking after truth.

Bush, Pa. NELSON TURNER.

Mark 9: 43–4 read as follows:—"And if thy hand offend thee, [Marg. or cause thee to offend,] cut it off; it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than, having two hands, to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched; where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched."

In Matt. 3: 12 we read, "He will . . . gather his wheat into the garner; but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire." The fact that the fire is unquenchable is positive proof that whatever is cast into it must be burnt up. We do not see how the utter destruction of the wicked could be more positively stated than in the passage under consideration. If the fire could be quenched, then there would be some reason to believe that the wicked would not be utterly consumed; but as it is, we can see no ground for such a conclusion.

Touching the souls mentioned in Rev. 6: 9–10, it should be observed, 1, that they were "under the altar." 2. The altar where they were sacrificed, was not in heaven, because that was not the place of their martyrdom. They "were slain" upon the earth; then John saw them where they "were slain." 3. The word rendered "souls" in ver. 9, is also correctly rendered persons by Prof. Whiting. The corresponding Hebrew word [nephesh] is rendered person thirty times in the Old Testament.

It should be remembered that what John saw in vision represented what would take place under "the fifth seal;" hence those persons, or souls, were not born when John had the vision. When the days of persecution came, during the dark ages, then this prophecy was fulfilled, just as shown to John. The field of martyrdom was the altar where these "souls . . . were slain" by their enemies, and lay scattered around, weltering in their blood. After Abel was murdered, the Lord said to Cain, "The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground."—Gen. 4: 10. In the same way the blood of the martyrs "cried." And besides, this must have been their actual cry as they were being slaughtered—"how long" must this state of things continue? They were informed that they must "rest yet for a little season," that is, in the grave, "until their brethren, that should be killed as they were, should be fulfilled."

We see nothing in these scriptures to show that man has an immortal soul.

PUNISHMENT OF THE WICKED.

A QUESTION.

BRO. GRANT:—As considerable has been published in the Crisis of late upon the punishment of the wicked, especially in the sermons of B. Perham, Vernon, Vt., I thought that, by your permission, I would like to ask through the same medium, if you understand the Scriptures to teach that the punishment of the wicked will consist in the conscious suffering which they are to experience while in another life? Yours, seeking solely for the truth upon the subject. A. S. WHITNEY.

Clinton, Mass.

As the punishment for "sin is DEATH," of course it does not begin till the sinner is dead, and will continue as long as he remains dead. As the punishment is eternal, it follows that the wicked will never live again, after they die "the second death." When a person is dead, he can not suffer any pain, for that is felt only when he is alive. As the sinner can not suffer pain when dead, and as death is the penalty, it follows that torment is not the punishment, but only a necessary accompaniment, as is the suffering of a criminal in prison, before he is brought forth to execution.

If suffering were the punishment, it would end at death; but as death is the punishment, it does not begin till the sinner is dead, and then continues as long as he remains dead, which will be eternally.

LIGHT WANTED.

A brother in South Paris, Me., writes:—"Can you give me any information on your doctrines? You will think strange to hear this call. I have been a church member fifteen years. Until last Wednesday, May 2nd, I thought, like Paul, that I was doing the Lord's will. I have been a local preacher. Gen. 2: 17, brought me to my senses. I shall have all the churches here to meet, and am alone. I am a sincere inquirer after truth."

We will send our brother some works to aid him in his search for the right way.

JUBILEE AT ROME.

Late intelligence informs us that the Pope has decided to put off the great gathering at Rome, to commemorate the death of St. Peter, till the 29th of June 1867. It appears that the Pope has decided that St. Peter's death was one year later than the date usually given. This will bring the world's great fair at Paris and the Roman jubilee at the same time.

The following is from the New York Independent, of May 17th 1866:—

"ST. PETER'S CENTENNIAL.—It has been commonly understood among legendaries that St. Peter suffered martyrdom at Rome in the year 66, although historians are not agreed that he ever went to Rome. Pope Pius IX has corrected the tradition by his infallibility, and decided that Peter suffered in the year 67—the fact being that the present state of affairs makes it inconvenient for him to attend the proposed celebration this year. The following notice is doubtless correct:

'The 29th of June, 1867, will be the 1800th anniversary of St. Peter's death. On that occasion the Pope is to convoke all the bishops of Christendom to Rome, where a grand jubilee will be celebrated.'"

WHAT THEY SAY.

In the Banner of Light we find the following:—

"The Crisis still adheres to its belief that Spiritualism is the work of the devil. Well, let us briefly state what Spiritualism does. It heals the sick when drugs will not. It feeds the hungry when the rich close their doors against the poor applicants. It makes the passage of the spirit from its tenement of clay, calm and even joyful. It teaches of a beautiful country beyond this 'vale of tears.' It teaches, too, of immortality; that those of our friends who have passed on, can and do return to bless us with their presence, and assure that God is love. When ignorance, fostered by creedists, ceases to influence mankind, then our beautiful philosophy will shine with diamond brightness—and that time is rapidly approaching."

It is to be feared that they will be found among those to whom the Lord will say at last, "I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity." One thing is certain,—Christianity and Spiritualism are opposite in their tendency.

NEW WORK.

Bro. H. L. Hastings, 19 Lindall Street, Boston, purposes to issue in about two months a valuable work, entitled,—"A critical Greek and English Concordance of the New Testament." We have just received a sample of the work—nearly completed—with which we are much pleased. All Bible students should have a copy. Price on cloth, $2.50; morocco, $3.50.

The following preface to the work will give some idea of its contents:—

"The 'Critical Greek and English Concordance of the New Testament' differs materially from all other Concordances, and grew out of the personal needs and desires of the publisher, whose plan has been enlarged and improved by the suggestions of persons accomplished in the departments of Sacred Literature and Biblical Criticism. The Concordance contains—

1. References to all places where each Greek word contained in the New Testament may be found, a few constantly occurring particles excepted.

II. All the English words and phrases by which these Greek words are rendered in the common version.

III. All the various readings of the four best editions of the Greek New Testament,—those of Griesbach, Lachmann, Tischendorf, and Tregelles,—and also of the Sinaitic Manuscript, in all places where either of these editions differs from the received text.

IV. An Index of English Words, by means of which persons entirely unacquainted with the Greek language can find the original for any English word in any passage, and can trace and ascertain its usage, and the manner of its translation throughout the entire New Testament, and also any various readings in these four critical editions.

It is prepared to supply the existing demand for a Greek Concordance so critical that it will present the latest results of sound textual investigation; so thorough that the most learned will find it adapted to their necessities; so simple that the mere English student can use it with facility; so cheap that the multitude may obtain it; and so compact and portable that it may be made a constant companion of the traveler, the student, and the evangelist.

The execution of the plan has been confided to the skilled and competent hands of Prof. C. F. Hudson, and its present advanced condition warrants the expectation of its issue early in the summer of 1866. It is expected to contain about 500 pages, printed upon fine paper, and may be easily carried in the pocket."

"THE KING OF GLORY."

We have just received a new tract from the pen of Bro. Wm. Sheldon, entitled,—"The 'King of Glory,' soon to be revealed from heaven, to destroy all earthly kingdoms, and set up the kingdom of God on earth." This is a valuable tract to scatter among the people at the present time, for the purpose of awaking them to the importance of an immediate preparation for the coming of the "King of Glory."

The tract contains 48 pp. For sale at this office.

QUERY.

"Does the pronoun him in Ex. 4: 24,—'the Lord met him,' refer to Moses?"

I. C. PERKINS.

Critics tell us that "him" represents the son of Moses; and that the cause of the trouble was the neglect of Moses to circumcise the child according to the law.

NEW LIQUOR LAW.

New York has issued a new liquor law, which is producing important results in New York city. The following from the New York correspondent of the Boston Journal, will give the reader some idea of the subject. He says:—

"Our new liquor law is in full force. Its workings and its success deserve a letter. The Police Commission, Board of Health and the Excise Commission are composed of the same members. Those who have pay in the one commission don't draw it from another. The headquarters of all three of the commissions are in the marble building belonging to the Metropolitan Police, and the police force do the duty of all three of the commissions. The Excise law is not a prohibitory law, but a license law.

HOW IT WORKS.

A general order was sent out by the General Superintendent to every precinct in New York and Brooklyn to have the name of every man taken down who sold liquors, with the character of his place—whether he sold liquors on Sunday, or kept a disorderly house, or kept open after midnight, or had been complained of, with what he kept in addition to his liquor, whether drugs, groceries, billiards, gambling, or anything else. These being returned to the General Superintendent, all applications for license are referred to him, and no man is licensed unless his record be good.

WHO CAN'T BE LICENSED.

No licenses are granted to druggists or grocers. It has been found that women, children and youth come to this place under the pretense of buying groceries, or medicine, and drink on the premises, and in many instances both drugs and groceries are a mere blind. The concert saloons, the dance cellars, where women and men mingle promiscuously, can pass. The whole system of pretty waiter girls is squelched, and that nuisance is ended. All drinking houses must be closed at twelve o'clock at night, and not be opened until sunrise in the morning. When this new law went into operation there were between nine and ten thousand grog shops in New York and Brooklyn.

HOW LICENSES ARE OBTAINED.

Printed forms are sent to every station house, and the applicant must present in due form his application. This is sent to the general Superintendent. An examination is made into the antecedents of the man, and what sort of a place he keeps, he proposes to keep. The neighbors, if they choose, can enter a protest against the license. If the general Superintendent refuses to license, an appeal can be made to the Board. The only difficulty with the law so far is that if men refuse to take out a license or sell in violation of the law, they must be tried by our Police Justices; but the State has so thoroughly laid its hands on the city that if these Police Justices refuse to do their duty, the State will abolish the whole system and the law be enforced.

IMMENSE REVENUE.

The old Excise Board received last year the astonishing sum of $3000 for licenses. The new board has already a revenue of $250,000, and the Treasurer of the commission informs me that the revenue from the license system this year will amount to the astounding sum of one million and a quarter of dollars! We have in this State an Inebriate Asylum. It is poorly endowed and poorly supported. Its revenue last year, I understand, was $625. The new Excise law gives this asylum ten per cent of all the receipts. Its income this year from the licenses in this city will be over 100,000. So the effort to reform drunken men will be supported by those whose business it is to manufacture them."

BOOK NOTICE.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT: being a reply to a work entitled, "144 self-contradictions of the Bible, published by Andrew Jackson Davis," by Mrs. H. V. Reed. 18mo., pp. 144. Harvard, Ill. Published by H. V. Reed. Price 50 cents.

The pamphlet here replied to is, in its arrangements, a compound of ignorance and misrepresentations, coupled with research enough to find out the more prominent seeming objections to the Bible, and a disposition to make the most of them. Mrs. Reed has taken up each of these so-called contradictions in order, and shown how easily they can be harmonized. Of course, in expounding two or three hundred scriptures, there would be diversities of opinions upon certain points; but as a whole, it may be safely said that "the Bible is triumphant," and that Mr. Davis is no where.

We are reminded of a passage in an ancient history which reads as follows:—"And a certain woman cast a piece of a millstone upon Abimelech's head, and all to break his scull. Then he called hastily unto the young man his armor-bearer, and said unto him, Draw thy sword, and slay me, that men say not of me, A woman slew him. And his young man thrust him through, and he died." And though we do not suppose that Mr. Davis has faith enough in his "spirit land" to get killed for the sake of getting into it, nor candor enough to burn up his refuted book, so long as he can find men ignorant enough to buy it; yet, we do hope that this book may be so widely scattered that it shall in some degree hinder the mischief which the misrepresentations of Davis and company may do among the ignorant and unstable. As Mrs. Reed's book only glances at the grand array of evidences in favor of the truth and the Bible, and confines itself mostly to the task of disposing of the objections of skeptics; it may be well to call the attention of those who wish to pursue the subject more at length, in the direction of prophetic fulfillment, to a little pamphlet of some 40 or 50 pages now in process of publication, in the columns of "The Christian," and to be issued shortly from "The Scriptural Tract Repository, 19 Lindall St., Boston," entitled, "INFIDEL TESTIMONY CONCERNING THE TRUTH OF THE BIBLE, selected from the writings of Dr. Alexander Keith, with prefatory remarks by H. L. HASTINGS"; in which, after an opening argument on the subject, there are placed on the same page, side by side, in narrow columns, the inspired prophecy written thousands of years ago, and its fulfillment as unconsciously recorded by infidel travelers and historians, during the last century.

It is hoped that when this is issued it will be found exactly adapted to the needs of some who are skeptical because they have never known the reasons for believing the Bible, and who are willing to believe in its truthfulness when proper evidence is furnished.

In conclusion, let me say that Mrs. Reed's book is well worthy of a large sale; and I hope those interested will procure it, which they may do by sending 50 cents to H. V. Reed, Harvard, McHenry Co., Ill. H. L. H.

For the World's Crisis.

THE LORD WORKS.

After the travels, labors, and toils of a severe winter, in preaching from town to town and house to house, holding conferences, protracted meetings and evening meetings, seeing some converted, some wanderers reclaimed, and many revived and strengthened, we felt it duty to renew our efforts for the salvation of sinners in Yarmouth. Commenced evening preaching April 19th, in company with Bro. York. The Lord sent the people out. Many came who never came before. It was soon manifest that the Lord was at work among the people. The first invitation I gave, five came out for prayers, and some found Christ. When I invited them again, two came. The next time eight rose, resolving to become christians. We continued the daily effort—evenings—for two weeks. Eighteen resolved to seek Christ. The most of them have found him as their Savior, I trust.

Our meetings were free, and the blessed Spirit of peace and truth was richly shared by the few believers. Some from the several churches attended, and seemed to enjoy the meetings much. Many of the youth came in, until the Lord worked on them, and it seemed as though they would be obliged to yield and become christians,—some did, thank God; others grew fearful and drew off. Had they been converted there, they would have lost their reputation; but the Lord has not given them up. I pray they may have a hard journey in seeking to get away from God and truth.

Bro., pray that the Lord may raise up a new church here. The old hands have nearly all left us. Over sixty have moved away, or died within a few years. Some have joined Demas' party. Yet a few faithful ones are left, and God is adding to their numbers such as shall be saved. I. C. WELLCOME.

Yarmouth, Me., May 22, 1866.

$3000 TRACT FUND.

For the Free Distribution of Tracts.

Previous	$3052.32
John G. P
E. M. Ripley	.75
J. Curtis	.50

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To send the Crisis to the Poor.

Whole number sent free, 600. Ann'l Expense, $1400.00

Previous acknowledgments	$315.65
A friend
E. R. Crockett	.25

SUNDAY SCHOOL FUND.

To Supply Destitute Sunday Schools with Books and "Pilgrims."

William B. Herren	5.00
E., Westfield	.50

THE AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All communications relating to the business of the Society, and all applications for situations as teachers or missionaries, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, WILLIAM B. HERREN, "Crisis" Office, Boston.

All donations of money, or clothing, or other supplies for the Freedmen, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEORGE T. ADAMS, 167 Hanover Street, Boston. In sending supplies, enclose in a letter to the same address a notice and list of the articles sent.

Advent Mission Fund.

For the establishment of Missions among the Freedmen, the building of a Chapel and Mission House in Memphis, etc.

Previous acknowledgments		3034.34
J. V. Himes (pledge paid)		15.00
Solomon Hevey (for the Mission House)		25.00
William B. Herren	"	10.00
A. W. Sibley	"	3.00
T. Apthorp	"	2.00
"Woburn"	"	5.00
N. W. Wait	"	100.00
H.	"	5.00
Erd. Baker		5.00
Anson Bronson		2.50
Y. P. Fund		.80
A friend to the Freedmen	"	50.00
Z. Whitney	"	10.00
M. B. Eaton	"	6.00
Ezra F. Treat	"	3.00
M. S. Smith	"	3.00
A Sr. in Rochester, N. Y.	"	5.00
"Faith"	"	2.00
Y. P. Fund	"	1.00
Books sold etc		7.40
Geo. W. Smith		.75
E. T. Rogers		.50

EUROPEAN MISSION.

Previous acknowledgments	$477.45
H. W. Higgins (Wellfleet)	5.00
"Faith"	2.00
E. F. Treat	1.00
H. B. Eaton	2.00
T. F. Kelly	1.00
H. Osman	1.00

The Mission House and Chapel.

"A friend of the Freedmen" writes:—"Enclosed please find $50 to assist in building that Mission House in Memphis. Although I believe that time is now very short, I believe also in working while the day lasts. I hope the Chapel will be built as soon as possible, and that God will reward the labors of our missionaries among the Freedmen in the salvation of many souls."

For the World's Crisis.

THOMAS JONES' NARRATIVE.

We desire to call attention to Bro. Thomas Jones' narrative of his experience in slavery, and of his escape by "praying and paddling." Those who are interested in the Freedmen's cause would do well to send 25 cents for a copy; and after reading it, loan it to your nearest neighbor. It may awaken a greater interest in the cause of the Freedmen, and lead to an increase of funds to carry forward the work in which Bro. Leslie and others are engaged. W. C. STONE.

REVIVAL AMONG THE FREEDMEN.

A missionary at Fortress Monroe, Va., gives, in a late number of the American Missionary, the following interesting account of a revival among the freedmen at the Mission School there. W. B. H.

"A precious revival is in progress among the colored people. The work goes forward very quietly, and with little excitement. Hardly any extra meetings are held, but the regular ones are fully attended. There have been many hopeful conversions in this neighborhood, and many are anxiously seeking Christ.

I find an uncommon tenderness of mind and readiness to listen to religious conversation, among all the people. As I go from cabin to cabin, I frequently find those who seem deeply convicted of sin. Their faces wear a downcast look, and the tears roll down their cheeks as I speak of Jesus' love and willingness to save.

Many little incidents, occurring every day, show what a deep religious feeling pervades the community. Two little girls were talking in the mission yard the other day, and as they separated, we overheard one say to the other, "Don' forget to pray." As I was standing on the piazza one afternoon, a young woman came up to me and said, "Do you remember calling at our house this week, and telling me I ought to give my heart to God? I hope I've done so since then;" and she clasped my hand warmly. One day, not long after my return from the North, as I was coming out of church, a woman crowded towards me, and holding out her hand, her face lit up with joy, exclaimed, "I've found Jesus since you went away!" Walking with one of the teachers among the cabins, a few days since, we found a small girl who professed conversion. "How are you going to show that you are a christian, Julia?" said the teacher. By the way I live, ma'am, was the prompt reply.

Sometimes I attend the cabin prayer-meetings. In these, of course, the wild, quaint modes of worship which prevailed in the olden time of slavery, are somewhat prominent; still I have often found them precious seasons, and felt that God was there.

I went to Aunt P's cabin the other night. It was early when I arrived, but a few converts were shaking hands with older professors, and relating their experience. A single tallow candle threw a dim, uncertain light over the room, half revealing the wooden benches and scattered occupants. A log fire was blazing on the hearth. It was a strange but impressive scene—that lowly cabin with its group of dark-browed worshipers, the constant hand-shaking, and the measured rise and fall of the convert's song:

"I am free; I am free indeed!
He has taken my feet from the miry clay,
And placed them on the Rock of eternal ages,
Where the winds may blow and the waters roll;
But nothing shall ever disturb my soul."

It is impossible to describe the widely-varying notes and long-drawn syllables of this half-chant, half-song, as it rose and fell in that humble cabin. Sometimes it took the form of an address to the impenitent, and then it was full of solemn warning.

Meantime the cabin became thronged. Singing and prayer alternated. As some of the hymns went up with a mighty chant, it seemed as if that humble roof must be lifted from its place. The prayers were full of quaint expressions, but were earnest and simple. One brother prayed, "O, Lord! please to hyst the diamond winders of hebben, an' shake out dy table-cloth, and let a few crumbs fall among us." Another plead for "de mourners, 'way down in de lonesome valley, where de sun nebber shines." Another asked God to "open de winders, lay back de lovely curtains, an' take a peep into dis world of sin an' sorrer."

Towards the close of the evening I read part of a chapter, and spoke for a few minutes. All gave earnest attention. After the benediction most of those present remained to sing. Verse after verse of those old plantation songs was chanted, every voice joining in the mighty chorus:

"I am bountin' for a city,
Where pleasure never dies:
Come mourner, come mourner,
Where pleasure never dies."

As I walked home in the beautiful moonlight, I could but think that perhaps God was as well pleased with that lowly group in the humble cabin, as with many a gilded throng in splendid cathedrals.

The Jubilee Harp.

This work, which is already in the hands of the compositors, is being pushed forward to completion just as rapidly as possible. It will be some weeks yet before it is done, probably not until into July. Due notice will be given.

Life Sketches, by Mrs. Abigail Mussey.

Subscribers for this book, who have not received it, can obtain it by sending in their names. There is also some money still due for books that have been delivered. Mrs. Mussey needs the money. Shall she have it? Let us hear from you soon. Address E. P. WOODWARD, Crisis Box, Boston, Mass.

P. S.—The book can be obtained by addressing Miles Grant, Crisis Office.

For the World's Crisis.

NOTICE.

BRO. GRANT:—I wish to say to the preaching brethren, that here in Madison, Lake Co., O., is a place in which much good might be done; and any one passing between Cleveland and Erie can stop here without any extra expense, and find a hearty welcome at Bro. and Sr. Rogers. Do please to give us a call.

Madison, Lake Co. O. E. T. ROGERS.

EXPOSITION OF COL. 1: 13.

"Who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son."

This text is sometimes presented to show that the kingdom of God is already set up, notwithstanding the many plain passages to the contrary. The word "translated" in Col. 1: 13, is from methistemi, which is defined by Greenfield as follows: "To move from one place to another, remove, transfer; metonymy, to cause to pass from one mode of thinking to another, cause to change SIDES." The latter, we think, is the application of the term.

Is, the word rendered into, when used, as in this verse, "to denote purpose, or object," is properly translated FOR. We cite a few examples where it is thus rendered: "For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning."—Rom. 15: 4. "And Jesus said unto him, No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God."—Luke 9: 62. "The same came for a witness."—John 1: 7. "I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the ends of the earth."—Acts 13: 47. "Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught."—Luke 5: 4. "I am set for the defence of the gospel."—Phil. 1: 17. "He is profitable to me for the ministry."—2 Tim. 4: 11. "By faith, Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed."—Heb. 11: 8. "And the four angels were loosed, which were prepared for an hour, and a day, and a month, and a year."—Rev. 9: 15. "The leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations."—Rev. 22: 2. All can see what nonsense it would make to translate is by the word into, in the examples just cited.

In Col. 1: 13, Paul tells the Colossian brethren that by the help of our heavenly Father they have been delivered from the power of darkness, and have changed sides for the kingdom of his dear Son; i. e., for this "purpose or object," they have changed sides, to obtain the coming kingdom.—Sel.

Correspondence.

From Bro. Wm. M. Ingham.

BRO. GRANT:—I wish to say through our much esteemed paper, the Crisis, that I am still endeavoring to do my Master's will in sounding the alarm of the speedy coming of the Lord, and a preparation to meet him in peace.

I arrived at home on the 11th of December, after an absence of almost four months. I found my family quite well; no harm nor accident had befallen them. Thank the Lord for his kind care over us all. I enjoyed the campmeetings much. It does me good to meet with the old veterans of the cross, and the new recruits, and to hear them tell of their prospects of soon getting home. The word home sounds sweet to me. I traveled in four States: New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. I formed some new and happy acquaintances, and held some interesting meetings. Some were revived, some reclaimed, and some few, I trust, gave their hearts to the Lord. So I will thank the Lord and take courage, and strive to meet them and all the family at the marriage supper of the Lamb.

Since my return home, we have passed through mingled scenes of sorrow and joy. Three of our dear brethren have been taken from us by the cruel hand of death. Bro. Stephen Parker, of Granville, is missed much. Bro. Israel Rice, of Hillsborough,—many of you remember him at the campmeetings,—who has done much to support the cause of truth for the last twenty years, is missed very much in the church, and by his family, friends, the community, and among the poor. He possessed that kind of religion that James speaks of, that caused him to visit the fatherless and widows in their afflictions, and look after their wants. How sad I felt when I heard he was taken from us. He was making arrangements to have tent meetings all through the Province the coming summer; but his work is done. A good man has fallen asleep in Jesus, to be awakened at the last trump, to die no more. Happy day to all the friends of Jesus.

Since I left home, the 15th of March, I received the sad intelligence that Joseph C. Rice, son of Israel Rice, whose letters you have seen in the Crisis, has likewise fallen, and again our hearts are made very sad. Others of the family are sick. Who would not want the Life-giver to come and put an end to all this sorrow?

I will now turn from the sad part, and tell you a little about the state of things in this Province. In Hillsborough (Bear River), there is more interest, and a better feeling among the brethren and sisters. They have some excellent conference meetings. There is some interest among the unconverted. Eld. J. B. Fitch paid us a visit at Bear River, and helped to cheer us on the way. Had quite a number of meetings in our place (Clement's Port), and there was quite an interest. Some woke up and took a part in the meetings who have been silent for some time. I baptized two just before I left home, Bro. Gilliot and wife. How pleasant for them to go together in the Lord's appointed way. Others were interested, and said pray for us. May the time soon come when they will be fully persuaded to be christians.

I left home in company with Bro. Fitch, March 15th. We had six meetings at Oates' Mountain. We had short notice for the first meeting, and bad going. We arrived at Bro. John H. Potter's about sundown Saturday evening, and sent word that night and Sunday morning, and called out some thirty or forty during the day and evening, at Bro. P.'s house. Monday and Tuesday evenings we had meetings at the school house. From a hundred to a hundred and fifty paid the best attention, and wanted more meetings. I hope to see them again some time.

We went next to Wolfville, near Horton College. The Baptist and Methodist houses were refused; so we hired a hall and had three meetings. The last evening some two hundred were present, including some ministers and college students. Subject, "The recompense of the righteous and the wicked; the place where, the time when, and what it would be." Gave the privilege of asking questions. None were asked.

27th, evening meeting on the way at Roden, and had good attention.

Next to Truro. No house opened. We hired the Temperance Hall, and had five meetings. Some were quite well attended. Not much interest in the Lord's coming.

April 5th, I left Bro. Fitch at his home in Truro, and started alone in a strange land. Stopped one night at Oldham (Gold mines), and had one meeting (hall given by Mr. Chase, an American). A good number were out for the place, and excellent attention. I believe it was the first meeting of the kind ever held there.

April 6th, I made my first visit to Halifax, the city of forts and strong fortifications, well prepared for defense. One fort is situated on a high eminence above the city, and the cannons are so placed that they can fire over the town into the harbor with no harm to the place. Other strong forts, batteries and towers are seen on the islands and shore, as you enter the harbor. This is strong, but the Lord is stronger. He is more safe in the time of trouble. May we all have a shelter in him from the great day of trouble just upon us.

I called on some of the ministers and trustees of meeting houses, but found no opening till I called on Eld. Thomas (not colored), pastor of the colored Baptist church. He invited me to preach to his people. I accepted the invitation, and spoke to them five times in their chapel. A good number were out to hear, and gave good attention. Bro. Thomas took a part. He does not seem to be prejudiced. Hope some good was done. Eld. Porter, Baptist minister of Dartmouth, just across the harbor from Halifax, gave me the privilege of speaking in his house, and I held three meetings. There is not much interest to hear on the prophecies, or the second coming of Christ; but the alarm must be given, that we may be clear when the Master comes.

WM. M. INGHAM.

Halifax, April 16th, 1866.

P. S. I was kindly entertained by my friend John F. Cotton and family, Bro. Jenkins' family, and others. May the Lord reward them, and prepare us all for his heavenly kingdom. During my stay, in company with friend Cotton, I visited the prison, and went round some of the forts. He teaches the prisoners three half days in the week. The governor of the prison gave me the privilege of talking to some of the prisoners. I told them Jesus could save the chief of sinners, and would if they would confess and forsake their sins. One who has been notoriously profane and wicked, gives good evidence of being a christian. I had a very pleasant interview with him. Truly the Lord is merciful. I hope to meet him in the kingdom. My P. O. address is Clement's Port, N. S.

W. M. I.

From Sr. H. J. Hale.

BRO. GRANT:—I rejoice amid all the tumult and distraction of these last days in looking forward to the rest that remains for the people of God. With the poet I can say—

"This groaning earth is too dark and drear
For the saints' eternal home";

and I thank the Lord that a new earth is promised in his word. Yes, if faithful to God we shall soon clasp again the hands of those we have laid away in the grave, and they will die no more; and not theirs only, but we shall meet all the good of every age, and from every clime. What a glorious meeting! Let us be there to join the blood-washed throng.

Brethren and sisters, let us lay aside every weight, and each easily besetting sin, and run with patience the christian race. Let us seek to be wholly consecrated to God, and allow no root of bitterness to spring up among us, but cherish that charity which beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, and which suffereth long and is kind. I want more of the love of Jesus. I want his meek and quiet spirit, and hope to meet all the children of God when time shall be no more. In hope, H. J. HALE.

From Bro. W. A. Fenn.

BRO. GRANT:—I beg leave to trespass on the room of the Crisis a little, for the first time in two years, for the purpose of letting my eastern friends know of my whereabouts.

Dear friends, allow me to tell you in plain English, through the Crisis, what I am doing, and what I have been doing for the last two years. I have neither been silent or idle, relative to the great truths of the gospel; though I am, and have been, working with my hands, buttering my own bread, and eating it with singleness of heart, giving God thanks. I have seen the necessity of praying much in these days of temptation. I have preached some and exhorted some, and have tried to redeem the time. I have labored among Adventists professedly, and Adventists who would not own the title; also among the Baptists and Congregationalists, and I find christians among them all, who are willing to fellowship me, and whom I can fellowship and break bread with, thus showing myself no sectarian, while I condemn sectarianism in others. I acknowledge myself free from all sects and parties, being neither a member nor a supporter of any particular sect or party, but a lover of all who love Jesus; and am willing to spend and be spent in the cause of Christ, wherever and whenever duty calls. Though I follow no well-beaten track in my circuit of preaching, yet I preach, and see souls converted, and backsliders reclaimed, and convince some who are already Jews inwardly of the truth as we understand it.

I preach the coming of Jesus to judge the world; but not at a definite period already understood, as I cannot see the evidence of time, as some of my brethren do; though if they see it, and do not preach it, God will hold them responsible. I bid all God-speed who are doing any thing to prepare a fallen race for the judgment, which I believe to be the next event in the knowledge of man after this life. May we all be prepared for the day of the Lord, which hasteth greatly.

Pulaski. WM. A. FENN.

From Bro. T. W. Piper.

BRO. GRANT:—The battle goes well. Yesterday I had the privilege of burying four more in the likeness of Christ's death; making seven Sabbaths in succession that I have baptized—twenty-seven in all. Others will go soon. Our conference at Moultonborough last Saturday was one that will be long remembered by those present as one of the best meetings of a lifetime. There were about eighty present, and sixty exhortations, warm with the love of God. I have not witnessed more of the divine power of God for years. My prayer is, Lord, carry forward the glorious work. Marshal the hosts.

Melvin Village, N. H. T. W. PIPER.

BRO. J. S. JACKSON, Dodge's Corner, Wis., writes:—"I sometimes hear it said in relation to the Crisis, I would take it if I was able. But I confess that I do not feel able to do without it. It is the best paper that I read. May the Lord bless its conductors, that it may continue as now until it is no more needed."

Married.

In West Poland, Me., Sunday, May 6th, by Eld. Jas. A. Libby, Bro. THOS. D. KNIGHTLY and Miss ELLEN BROWN, both of Norway.

Obituaries.

TYLER. Died, on the morning of April 10th, 1866, after a long sickness, Bro. Joseph Tyler.

His last visit to a neighbor's house was to attend an evening prayer-meeting. This effort quite exhausted him. At this meeting he declared his determination to consecrate the remnant of his days to God. We visited him several times during his illness, when we found him cheerful and happy in the Savior's love, although a great sufferer.—Jesus was with him. Religion occupied his thoughts and conversation. His solicitude for the salvation of his friends and neighbors was great. He solemnly warned from his bed of death—he kindly invited all who came to visit him to come to Christ and live. We did not question his salvation at our first visit; every succeeding one only confirmed our belief. He spoke of death and dying with the greatest composure. He selected his funeral text from Ps. 84: 11. He saw the hand of his kind heavenly Father in all his sickness. What he wanted or felt he could relish of food, God sent it.

We were with him in his last moments. Conscious that the messenger had come, he bade his family farewell. When asked if Jesus was with him, he replied by bowing his head in the affirmative. He fell asleep in Jesus, from which none will ever wake to weep. For and in behalf of the afflicted widow, REV. A. GARDNER.

SHERWIN. Died in Brattleboro, Vt., July 27th, 1865, Mr. Stephen Sherwin, aged nearly seventy years.

Nearly forty years ago, the subject of this notice experienced religion, and in 1827 united with the Baptist church. The salvation of souls, the interests of the church of Christ, the moral enterprises of the time, temperance, emancipation, etc., each in their turn occupied his attention. For more than twenty years he was a firm believer in the immediate personal coming and reign of Christ in a new-made world. To this faith he was most firmly attached to the close of his life. His severe and protracted sufferings were endured with christian patience, resignation and hope. He rests from his labors. A kind and affectionate husband, a tender father, an upright citizen, he exemplified the religion of Jesus in all the walks of life. A bereaved widow, and a large circle of relatives mourn his departure. They sorrow not without hope. N.

DOWNS. Died in Haverhill, Mass., March 11th, 1866, Irene S. Downs, wife of E. K. Downs, aged fifty-eight years.

Our beloved sister and her husband were consistent members of the Congregational church till the development of truth in the Spirit and the love of Jesus, in keeping his commandments, led them on in the way of progression, till they found themselves partially alone. When they heard the Savior, whom they loved so dearly, was coming again, as they heard it preached in 1842, they immediately fell in love with it, and its legitimate doctrines. She was an affectionate, loving wife. When the time of her departure came, she was "ready to be offered."

The husband, family and church have met with a great loss, but there is balm in Gilead, and a Physician. I sympathize with the afflicted ones. Bro. Hastings attended the funeral, giving them such instruction and consolation as was adapted to the occasion. L. BOUTELL.

FULLERTON. Died, in Augusta, Washtenau Co., Michigan, Alexander Fullerton, aged thirty-four years.

He knew that he must die, and requested prayer. He sung and prayed as long as he could speak, and said, "All is well." S. MURRAY.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool May 5th, Queenstown 6th.

The political situation continues critical.

Vienna, May 4. Prussia is said to have declined all negotiations on a definite solution of the question of the Duchies on the basis proposed by Austria.

Warlike preparations in Venetia were being pushed forward with great energy.

A popular demonstration had taken place in Padua, where great excitement prevails.

It is rumored that Venetia will immediately be placed in a state of siege.

EUROPE.—A New and more Warlike Phase of the German Question—A Financial Panic.

The European continental news by the steamship City of Paris wears a warlike complexion. There are no appearances of a definite understanding between Prussia and Austria, but the active and menacing preparations for war between Austria and Italy will justify the inferences that Napoleon in his dexterous game with Bismark to detach Prussia from the common cause of all the German States has failed; that instead of a war between Prussia and Austria, the latter power, if necessary, will be backed by the whole German Confederacy in the maintenance of her foothold in Venetia, and that the imbroglio concerning the Danish duchies will be quietly adjusted.

War between Austria and Italy appeared to be regarded in Paris and in London as inevitable and imminent. The panic which prevailed in those great financial and political centres arose from this apprehension. On the Paris Bourse on the 30th April rentes closed at 65.15, a fall of one and a quarter per cent., and Italian and Austrian bonds were greatly depressed. Two days before "the Bourse was in a perfectly awful state. Not even in the worst days of the Crimea was there so bad a feeling." On the 1st of May the contagion had extended to London, for there, on that day, "a state of panic greater than any experienced at any time during the past nine years prevailed in all the markets." The Paris correspondent of the London Telegraph, April 19, says:—"Perhaps I may console some of your readers if I tell them that the greatest person in this realm (Louis Napoleon) has said, 'Well, if there is a war it only will be a very brief one, and will not interfere with our Exhibition'" (1867.) How is the war to be a short one? By the neutrality of France; for, according to the Paris Constitutionnel, "France will be in no way responsible for it. She has remained neutral, and will reserve to herself complete liberty of action." This signifies that when Austria and Italy come into collision France has only to interpose in order to secure a speedy peace. But Louis Napoleon may be mistaken in this estimate of the case.

Meantime Italy is arming and preparing for Venetia by land and sea, and Austria, anticipating a deadly struggle, would, it was reported, have in Venetia one hundred and sixty thousand effective troops by the first of May. The short war predicted by Napoleon may embrace some such settlement as this: The surrender of Venetia to Italy, the left bank of the Rhine to France, the Danish Duchies to Prussia, a money compensation to Austria, and the island of Sardinia to France as an equivalent for Venetia. This would be a nice arrangement, especially for France; but as it is possible that Prussia, by some other bargain, may secure these duchies without sacrificing the left bank of the Rhine, Napoleon in the sequel may discover that he has been overreached by Bismark. Moreover, though the France of to-day is an empire, as the France of to-morrow may be a republic, Napoleon is compelled to the policy of short wars in order to avoid the internal dangers of long ones. Hence his peace at Villafranca, when the last war with Austria began to assume the threatening aspect of an embroilment of all the German States.

As the European situation is now presented, Italy relying upon the reserved forces of France, is resolved upon a war with Austria for Venetia. France declares her neutrality; but we know the prompter behind the scenes. At the same time, as all apprehensions of a rupture between Austria and Prussia appear to have died away, and as Austria is vigorously preparing for the defense of Venetia, the considerations which resulted in the treaty of Villafranca may operate against the armed intervention of France. In a word, in moving a little too soon, and in thus giving the alarm to Austria, Victor Emanuel, it may be, has spoiled the whole European game of Napoleon.—N. Y. Herald.

DOMESTIC.

MEMPHIS RIOTS.—A correspondent of the Memphis Daily Post, who signs himself an "Ex-Confederate Officer," makes the following statements relative to the riots:

"I, too, can testify that there was no premeditated outbreak among the colored people of this city. The feud, as stated, was entirely between the police, Irish and a few negro soldiers—caused, undoubtedly, by the inhuman and brutal treatment of the police upon negroes whenever they had cause to arrest one. I myself have seen a gang of police arrest a negro for some trivial offense and instead of quietly marching him off to the station house, first fall upon him with their clubs and beat him senseless, and then throw him upon a dray and haul him off. The fact cannot be denied that the police led the mob, and they were backed up by drunken Irish. Most of the negroes killed were quietly disposed. They were fired upon in yards, and even houses of citizens were entered and negroes dragged out and shot down while begging for their lives. I saw an Irishman kick the body of a wounded, dying negro, and then shoot him in the breast again. 'Brave man was he.' Such men, during the late war, made good guerrillas—not brave enough to go to the front, but skulked in the bush to shoot friend or foe, and then rob the corpse. I cannot use language strong enough to denounce such brutality, and I think it is high time for every good citizen to speak out, no matter what his politics or sentiments may be."

The Post, attributing the cause of the riots to the bitterness of the Avalanche, says:

"That the Avalanche has, during its existence, done an immense and almost irreparable injury to our city, by stirring up bitter, vindictive hatred against the freedmen, and against all Union people who reside here, no one will dare deny. That it stimulated, and almost in fact brought into being here, the malignant feeling which culminated in the barbarous massacre of last week, no one will doubt who has read its columns during the past three months."

New York, May 15. An immense body of men and women attended the Fenian demonstration at Jones' Wood to-day. Still, only the O'Mahony faction thus far acknowledge the "Organizer," as Stephens is called.

James Stephens received an enthusiastic ovation from the Fenian Brotherhood at Jones' Woods. About six thousand were present, but none but Roberts men were in attendance. Mr. Stephens made a forcible address, giving a history of the Fenian movement. He said he had received but little money from this country, and the heartburnings and scandals here were such as could only be compensated by Irish liberation. They only wanted money. Ireland had done ten times as much as America in that way. If Great Britain had become engaged in the Danish war it was their purpose to have then taken up arms.

LIVING BY FAITH.—Very many of our readers will remember the volume entitled Muller's Life of Trust, in which an account was given of the wonderful manner in which the author had been enabled to carry on a large charitable enterprise upon contributions which came to him in direct answer to prayer, without personal application to any one for assistance. A writer in the Boston Recorder gives an interesting account of a visit to Mr. Muller's establishment at Ashley Dunn, near the city of Bristol, England. There are three houses, containing about 1100 orphans, and arrangements are making for the erection of more edifices, so as to accommodate 2000. In his last report for 1865 Mr. Muller says: "Without any one having been personally applied to for anything by me, the sum of £212,872 12s 9d (or $1,064,360) have been given to me for the orphans, as the result of prayer to God, since the commencement of the work." Besides the money for the orphan work, Mr. Muller has received $400,000 for the Bible, Tract and Missionary work which he carries on at home and in foreign lands. During the past year he received $25,000 in gift from some one who withheld his name. After recording it he says:

"Do you rejoice with me, dear reader? Does the greatness of the amount surprise you? Do you think it strange and marvelous? While my heart was filled with joy and gratitude, I remained calm, perfectly calm, without the least excitement, nor was I in the least surprised at the greatness of the donation, for I look out for answers to my prayers, and expect much from that bountiful heart, which spared not the Lord Jesus. God has power, as ever, to give largely; and he has still some of his children on earth who are so happy in himself, and who so lay hold on eternal life, as to give up a good portion of the possessions of this life, and, if called upon to do so, even all they possess of this world in order to do good."—Boston Journal.

A FLOATING ISLAND.—The Bangor Whig says that there has existed in Eddington Pond for many years an island of about half an acre in extent, which literally floated upon the water, having no hold upon the ground save what was afforded by the roots of some of the trees upon it which had grown through the island into the bottom of the pond. The surface of the island is sufficiently strong to sustain the weight of a loaded team. One day last week a freshet in the pond raised the water to such a height that these roots were broken, and the island, impelled by the force of the wind, slowly drifted across the pond (a distance of one quarter of a mile,) carrying with it a boom and the logs contained therein. It now remains near the shore, which the intervening logs prevented it from entirely reaching, a marvel to all who behold it and hear its wonderful story.

HOW TO PRODUCE EGGS.—"J. H. F." writes to the Prairie Farmer: "A hen is a perfect machine, which if cared for as it should be, being kept in comfortable quarters and fed with care, will produce eggs in spite of itself. If, as a rule, a hen is kept clean (for nothing enjoys cleanliness more than a hen) and furnished a supply of grain, meat and vegetables, she will produce the eggs which she has got to lay or die. Take away the flesh and vegetables and small grain and give corn and water alone, and your hens will cease to lay and become fat. Corn in itself has less of the properties which make the egg than any of the smaller grains which we raise. Rice, wheat, barley and buckwheat are best for eggs."

☞ The Empress Eugenia has achieved another triumph. When she was first made Empress other Queens refused to call upon her, regarding her as a plebian interloper. Victoria yielded first, the Queen of Spain next, and then the Queen of Portugal; now the Empress of Austria, the proudest of them all, is about to visit her.

☞ Dr. Pusey, the celebrated English divine, whose name has become so familiar, is expected soon to visit this country.

ITEMS.

☞ A German has recently invented a very cheap and easily made barometer. Take a common glass wide-mouthed pickle bottle and fill it to within three inches of the mouth with water. Then take a common sweet oil flask, and cleanse it thoroughly, and plunge the neck into the pickle bottle as far as it will go. This completes the barometer, and in fine weather the water will rise in the neck of the flask, descending again in wet, windy weather. Before a heavy gale of wind the water has been seen to leave the flask altogether, at least eight hours before the gale was at its height.

☞ Nearly two hundred of the clergy of the church of England have united in a letter to Cardinal Patrizi, at Rome, stating their earnest desire for the restoration of communion between the church of England and the church of Rome. But the Cardinal, in his reply, plainly tells them that unconditional surrender is the only terms which the Pope can think of.

☞ A Mormon agent from Salt Lake has arrived in New York to make arrangements for the reception of about three thousand Mormons from Europe the coming summer. A thousand are to come from Norway and Sweden, and seventeen hundred from England.

☞ A writer in the California Farmer states that two pomologists in that State benefited their fruit trees by driving nails into them near the roots. The growth of the trees was in no way injured, and fruit was produced on trees that had heretofore been almost barren, while in other trees the quality and flavor of the fruit was improved.

☞ The Emperor of Russia has sent a special commissioner to this country to investigate the working of our internal revenue laws, and especially the tax on incomes.

☞ The rumor that about one hundred and fifty clerks will be discharged from the Treasury Department on the 31st inst., on account of the great decrease in business and consequent lack of employment for so many as heretofore, creates quite an excitement at Washington.

☞ The Rev. Dr. Stanley, Bishop of Honolulu, (Sandwich Islands,) says that the result of the teaching of the American Board of Missions there has rendered the natives ten times worse than they were under the heathen system.

☞ Stephens, the Fenian Head Centre, says there is a standing force of 200,000 Fenians in Ireland, so maintained that it can suffer nothing either from emigration or imprisonment.

☞ At a great Mohammedan festival at Lahore, India, prayers were publicly offered for the Queen of England—the first time in India that Mohammedans have offered prayers for a Christian Monarch.

Notices.

New Hampshire Quarterly Conference.

The third quarterly session of the New Hampshire State Conference will be held in Woodstock, N. H., commencing June 7th, Thursday, P. M., and hold over the following Lord's day. Brn. Couch, Ross, and others are expected to be present to preach the word of life. Brethren, make this meeting a subject of prayer, that God may give us the victory through Christ, and that great good may be accomplished in his name.

A. W. SIBLEY, Secretary.

Tent Meeting.

There will be a tent meeting held under the big tent, in Providence, R. I., commencing Thursday, June 7th, to hold over two Sundays. The time of our Lord's coming, together with other portions of truth connected with the great system of man's redemption, will be duly considered in the meeting, as the Lord may direct. Brn. G. W. Brown, D. S. Holt, C. Thompson and the writer are engaged to attend the meeting. S. W. BISHOP.

Notice.

I hereby give notice to all concerned, that the fourth annual grove meeting will be held in Springwater, N. Y., commencing June 29th, 1866, and holding over Sunday, July 1st, on the same spot fitted up by Father Lyman Morris (deceased), on his farm. Let due preparations be made by the friends there, a general notice be given, and may many brethren and sisters attend, both ministers and laymen, and may much good be the result, for which let us pray. In behalf of the brethren,

C. F. SWEET.

Notice.

There will be a meeting at Knowlesville, Orleans Co., N. Y., commencing Saturday evening, May 26th, and continuing over the following Sunday. Let there be a general attendance from the surrounding country. The Lord is greatly blessing the efforts of the brethren in that vicinity. There are a number to be baptized on that occasion.

C. B. TURNER.

Notice.

The Maine Central Quarterly Conference will be held in Rome Town House, commencing June 14th, 5 o'clock P. M., and continue over the following Lord's day. The brethren of Rome will see that the friends are cared for. H. B. SEVEY, D. W. GRIFFIN.

Notice.

Hereafter (D. V.) I shall preach at Danielsonville, Ct., on the second and fourth Sundays of every month; and at Abington, Ct., on the first and third Sundays of every month. Friends interested in these meetings will please cut this notice out and preserve it for future reference.

H. F. CARPENTER.

Notice.

On Saturday, June 2d, there will be a business conference at Norwalk at 10 A. M. and 1½ P. M. Let Berlin, Fairfield, Plymouth, Nevada, Union, and Bacque be well represented. By request of Ohio brethren. G. W. STETSON.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the New York State Christian Conference will be held at South Butler, Wayne Co., N. Y., commencing Thursday evening, May 31st, and hold over the following Sunday. As churches can only be represented by delegates, let delegates be appointed by every church. Let there be a good representation at this meeting. Arrangements of trains, etc., will be advertised in due time.

South Butler lies four miles north of Savannah Station, on the direct R. R. from Syracuse to Rochester. Take the way trains, as all trains do not stop at this station. Teams will be in readiness on the arrival of the afternoon trains. Those coming on the morning trains will take the stage to Butler. For the Board, C. B. TURNER.

Notice.

The annual meeting of the Iowa Christian Conference will be held at Cascade, Dubuque Co., Iowa, to commence on Thursday, June 21st, 1866, and hold over the following Lord's day. All brethren and sisters who love to hear of the soon coming of the Lord, are invited to be there.

JOB GILDERSLEVE, Clerk.

The Dubuque and Sioux City railroad will return the brethren free. There will be teams on the first day of the conference, at Farley, to carry them to the meeting. PETER S. W. DEYO.

Notice.

If there is no preventing providence, I will commence a tent meeting in the Iowa Mission tent, at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa, to commence Wednesday night, June 6th, and continue over Lord's day. Will the friends at Parkersburg, Boylen Grove, Marble Rock, Rock Grove, Floyd, and Stacyville, write me and let me know the time that will suit them best to have a meeting. Let there be a general coming up to the help of the Lord in this meetings. PETER S. W. DEYO.

Tent Meeting at Sparta, Wis.

The "Advent Tabernacle" will be pitched in the village of Sparta, Wis., on Thursday, May 31st, and the meetings will continue several days.—Friends from adjoining regions can come with provisions and bedding, and lodge in the tent, as at campmeeting, as this is a new field. Eld. Hough will be present to help proclaim the truth. Let the friends of truth rally. WM. SHELDON.

Publications for sale, subscriptions received for the paper, etc., at this meeting.

Tent Meeting at Elliota, Minn.

The "Advent Tabernacle" will be pitched at Elliota, Fillmore Co., Minnesota, as Bro. Elliott shall arrange, on Friday, June 15th, and continue there some days. Bro. Hough will be present to help us. Hope to see a general gathering of the saints from the surrounding region. Come in the Spirit, and work for God. WM. SHELDON.

Notice.

Preaching brethren desiring to preach to the church in Lee, N. H., will correspond with Josiah Durgin, that there may be no conflicting appointments. We want none to come but those whom the Lord sends, and whom the Lord sends we invite to come. JOSIAH DURGIN.

Quarterly Conference.

A quarterly session of the Advent Conference will be held in Jefferson, Me., Trask meeting-house, Thursday, June 14th, at 5 o'clock P. M., and continuing over the following Sunday. Come to the conference. JEREMIAH PARTRIDGE, Pres. JOSHUA HEMINWAY, Clerk.

Wisconsin Campmeeting.

Shall we have one or two this year? If but one, shall it be near Madison, or near Upper Sauk? Who will come with tents if held near Madison, and who if held near Sauk? And who if held at either place. Please communicate your thoughts to me by letter, to Baraboo, Wis., shortly, that we may act correctly in the matter. WM. SHELDON.

Tent Meeting at Prescott, Wis.

We expect to pitch the "Advent Tabernacle" at Prescott, Wisconsin, July 12th. Let the friends from the other side of the Mississippi River attend if they can. Eld. Hough is to be with me.

WM. SHELDON.

Notice.

Elder Thomas Smith, Bangor, Me., has on hand for sale H. L. Hastings' "Signs of the Times," with an assortment of his various Tracts; also, the Tracts by Miles Grant, on "The Soul," "The Spirit," and "What is Man?" and other Advent tracts.

Maine Second Advent Tract Society.

WM. H. MITCHELL, R. R. YORK, S. K. PARTRIDGE, } Executive Board.

I. C. WELLCOME, Treasurer and Business Agent.

It is desired that all orders for tracts and books for distribution by this Society be addressed to the Agent, I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me., who will supply them as fast as the means are furnished.

All our ministers will receive subscriptions for the Tract Fund, and they purpose to raise $200, or more, for free distribution in Maine for 1866.

I. C. WELLCOME, Agent.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON.
Timothy Cole .... Sunday, May 27th
Israel Damman .... Sunday, June 3d

Hudson Street Chapel, corner of Kneeland Street, Sunday, May 27th. H. L. HASTINGS.

Preaching at Evening Star Hall, Charlestown, Lord's day, May 27th.

Yearly meeting of the Indians at Southampton, Long Island, N. Y., June 3d. MILES GRANT.

Poultney, Vt., Sundays, June 3d and 10th, and can stay in that region two Sabbaths more, if notified when I arrive at Poultney. HIRAM MUNGER.

West Abington, Mass .... Sunday, May 27th
J. K. BELLOWS.

New Britain, Ct .... Sunday, May 27th
W. S. CAMPBELL.

Lovely Street .... Sunday, June 3d
WM. J. RIPLEY.

East Bowdoinham (baptism) .... June 3d
Richmond (Reed meeting-house) .... June 10th
Bath .... Sunday, June 24th
R. R. YORK.

Groton, Mass .... Sunday, May 27th
S. C. HANCOCK.

Abington, Ct .... Sunday, June 3d
Danielsonville, Ct .... Sunday, June 10th
H. F. CARPENTER.

Dover, N. H .... Sunday, June 3d
A. SIMPSON.

New Preston, Ct .... Sunday, May 27th
B. HITCHCOCK.

Manchester, N. H .... Lord's day, June 3d
C. C. STEVENS.

New Hampton, N. H., (at Bro. Pike's, for baptism), Sunday, June 3d. J. G. SMITH.

South Robbinston, Me., Sunday, June 3d, and onward in that region as brethren may arrange.
J. K. BELLOWS.

New Preston, Ct .... Sunday, June 3d
Newfield, Ct .... Sunday, June 10th
Pleasant Valley, Ct .... Sunday, June 17th
CHAS. E. PIPER.
SAMUEL M. TATRO.

Will hold meetings every Sunday, at the house of Bro. Russell, Natick, Mass., till further notice.
J. M. MCKELRO.

Square Pond, Ct .... Sunday, June 10th
Baptism, also Lord's Supper, at the close of service in the afternoon. J. B. PATTEN.
P. S. BUTLER.

Guilford, Ct .... Sunday, May 27th
Madison .... Sunday, June 3d
Wallingford .... Tuesday evening, June 5th
New Britton .... Wednesday evening, June 6th
Hartford .... Thursday evening, June 7th
Salem, Mass .... Sunday, June 10th
L. BOUTELL.

Whitakerville, Vt .... Sunday, May 27th
East Unity .... Sunday, June 3d
East Canaan .... Tuesday, June 5th, at 5 o'clock.
JOSEPH KIMBALL.

Fairfield, (Kimbly school-house), 10 A. M. .... May 27th
Norwalk, Ohio .... Sunday, June 3d
Nevada and Union .... Sunday, June 10th
Bucyrus, (Baptist house, near Martin Bacon's), Tuesday evening, 8 o'clock, June 12th.
G. W. STETSON.

Alton Corner, N. H .... Sunday, May 27th
Pittsfield .... Sunday, June 3d
Concord, N. H., (Angelos Hall) .... Sunday, June 10th
JOSEPH PINKHAM.

West Barre .... Sunday, 10½ A. M., May 27th and at East Shelby at 4 P. M.
Carlton .... Sunday, 10½ A. M., June 10th
Subject for the occasion, IMMORTALITY.
West Barre .... Sunday, 10½ A. M., June 17th and at East Shelby at 4 P. M.
Springwater .... June 29th and over Sunday at the grove meeting, to be held there at that time, on the Morris farm.
C. F. SWEET.

New Britain, Ct .... Sunday, June 3d
R. K. LADD.

Howick, C. W., (as Elder Sims may appoint), Lord's day, May 27th and June 3d. J. BLAIN.

Worcester, Mass .... Sunday, May 27th
Lake Village, N. H .... Sunday, June 3d
J. COUCH.

RICHMOND, R. I., (CLARK'S HALL.)
Augustus Durfee .... Sunday, May 27th

Cheshire Street, Ct .... Sunday, May 27th
S. WOODRUFF.

PLEASANT VALLEY, CT.
New York .... May 27th
New Haven, Ct .... June 3d
Hartford, Ct .... June 10th
Warehouse Point .... June 17th
J. S. WHITE.

West Poland, Me., (Free Chapel) .... Sunday, May 27th
JAS. A. LIBBEY.

Portsmouth, N. H .... Sunday, May 27th
A. SIMPSON.

Schoodac .... Sunday, June 3d
C. W. SARGENT.

Melvin Village .... May 27th
Water Village .... June 3d
Moultonborough .... June 10th
Sandwich, (Vittum school-house) .... June 17th
B. W. PIPER.

LEE, N. H.
J. W. Sutherland .... Sunday, June 3d
J. W. Britton .... Sunday, June 10th

Haverhill, Mass .... Sunday, May 27th
S. S. MOONEY.

Goshen .... Sunday, May 27th
J. HEMENWAY.

Lawrence, Mass .... May 27th
Z. FORD.

Biddeford .... Sunday, May 27th
Dover, N. H .... Tuesday evening, May 29th
L. C. MCKINSTRY.

Plainfield Ponds .... Sunday, May 27th
W. J. BLANCHARD.

East Canaan .... Lord's day, May 27th
North Sutton, (at Bro. L. Andrews), Tuesday evening, May 29th.
B. P. MANNING.

CONCORD, N. H., (ANGELOS HALL.)
H. Pratt .... Sundays, May 27th and June 3d

Seneca Falls .... Sunday, June 3d
Annual Conference .... June 7th
Danville .... June 10th
Bristol and Honeoye .... June 17th
F. BURR.

Sebec, (near Bro. Harriman's) .... May 27th
L. K. LOMBARD.

BARNES' HALL, SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
John G. Hook .... Sunday, May 27th

Scitico .... May 27th
Springfield .... June 3d
A. M. HIGGINS.

WEST FALMOUTH, ME.
R. R. York .... Sunday, May 27th

CONCORD, N. H.
Charles Ramsey .... Sunday, May 27th
Timothy Cole .... June 3d and 10th

Hartford, Ct .... May 27th
If any in the vicinity of Bristol or Hartford desire evening appointments while I am in Western Connecticut, write me at Danielsonville, Ct.
H. F. CARPENTER.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

N. F. Nason—Not received.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 555. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness, if less than 26 weeks, charge five cents; if more than 26 weeks, six cents. From the product (which will be a fraction over the actual indebtedness) deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each—H. Hadlock 580, A. Rittenbush 621, E. Wetherell 567, J Demarest 579, O D Gibson 556, G L Hart 100.

$1.25 each—M Morehouse 598, T P Knowles 580, H Wilson 572, C W Allen 605, S. L. Edwards 580, J. C. Smith 585, S Pike 520, L Hall 572, S Bemis 572, L Beers 580, T Evans 580, S L Manley 581, L Hall 579, R O White 572, N C Locke 576, J Hutchins 572, S Van Wart 580, J S Perry 580, S C Welcome 572, R D Spencer 580, A Bailey 582, E Ethridge 577, H Gaul 580, J House 580, D L Hasen 558, A Smith 576, S T Woodward 579, E C Miles 580, W Eaton 564, J W Merrill 587.

$2.00 each—G. G. Godfrey 591, J. Gildersleve 578, J. Sampson 527, M. B. Gibson 605, G. W. Stevens 504, H. Caverly 587, S Griffin 583, A Winans 543, W McCulloch 603, A Morgan 579, H D Mink 541, M L Blodgett 557, L S Andrews 556, W H Simmons 603, O M Tanner 579.

$2.50 each—J. Ver Steeg 639, D. Ver Steeg 639, F. Keyes 588, W. Fulton 601, A. Brownson 607, J Hadlock 605, W A Beals 606, H O Couch 605, A Triplett 589, N Sprague 587, P. D. Harper 580, P J Mayberry 582, M. McGuire 582, C M Allen 606, E Wright 608, E Nokes 606, E Reynolds 606, O Ladd 605, G Taylor 609, G Demont 599, J Durham 608, C Bullock 608, J Higgins 608.

$3.00 each—A D Peasley 601, G R Tyner 611, T Apthorpe 609, T Perry 612, P E Pearce 587.

Various sums—E. Morrill 75c, 586; E. R. Goodsell $2.75, 592; T. Duncell 63c, 567; M. L. Clark $10.00, 592; E D Warner $1.56, 538; N. A. Jones 50c, 567; E. Hooper 63c, 567; N. Wooley $3.50, 562; M. M. Littlefield $3.75, 552; J M Rannells $1.50, 575.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

D. Ver Steeg $1.00, N. Sagendoph $1.15, J. C. King $2.25, S K Gibson $2.25, F Dunbar $1.00, W Nichols 50c, H Hadlock $2.00, W H Stone $1.00, J Pinkham 50c, P B Hoyt $1.00, W. H. Weldon 50c, F. C. Upson 50c, P B Hoyt, J. P. Babcock $1.00, N Warner $1.00, T F Kelley $1.00, J P Knowlton $1.00, J. A. Simonds 50c, J. A. Townsend $1.85, B K Wetherell $1.00, B S Jackson $1.00, I E Pearce 50c, B L Clark 50c, A S Dunlap 40c.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

M B Brinkerhof, W B Wheeler, M B Stevens, F Dunbar, W Nichols, J C King, P B Hoyt, W M Stone, J P Babcock, T F Kelly, J A Townsend, H B Eaton, W S Plummer, D V Corey, J R Dall, H Wass, H Hadlock, N C Locke, N Warner, B K Wetherell, A S Dunlap, J Sunderland, R Osman, G Diblebaugh, L L Miller.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

F H Chamberlain, J. Elkins, J Wendell, L Boutell, D Verstreg, C. F. Sweet, J. Lyle, M. M. Weaver, A M Stark, H Gray, W H Westaverse, S A Scott, W Sheldon.

ADDRESS OF PREACHING BRETHREN.

C. E. Piper—41 Grove Street, Boston, Mass.
C. Goodrich—60 Marion Street, East Boston, Mass.
A. W. Sibley—No. 4 Meridian Place, East Boston, Mass.
Israel Damman—For two or three weeks, New Bedford, Mass.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.
L. Boutell—Salem, Mass.
H. F. Carpenter—Danielsonville, Ct.
F. A. Baker—North Searsport, Me.
Joseph W. White—Portsmouth, N. H.
N. Hartshorn—Laconia, N. H.
J. G. Smith—New Durham, N. H.
J. Partridge—Richmond, Me.
O. D. Gibson—Amboy, Ill.
J. H. Preston—Prairie du Sac, Sauk Co., Wis.
R. J. Whitehead—Wallingford, Ct.
C. C. Stevens—Exeter, N. H.
L. C. McKinstry—Great Falls, N. H.
John T. Ongley—Lincolnville, Crawford Co., Pa.
S. D. Daniels—Springfield, Mass.
G. W. Turner—West Point, Wis.
C. P. Dow—My P. O. address for United States' correspondents will be hereafter Franklin, Vt.
Wm. McCulloch—New Rutland, Ill.
P. W. Hough—Cascade, Iowa.
Mrs. Abigail Mussey—Hillsburgh, Nova Scotia.
G. W. Stetson—Olena, Huron Co., Ohio, until Sept.
Wm. A. Fenn—Pulaski, Oswego Co., N. Y.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
N. A. Hitchcock—Kaster, Green Co., Wis.
N. F. Nason—North Hermon, Me.
C. B. Turner—South Butler, Wayne Co., N. Y.
S. C. Hancock—Forestville, Conn.
Samuel Curry—Station E., New York.
S. P. Babcock—Malaga, N. J.
Josiah Durgin—Wadley's Falls, N. H.
H. Pratt—Springfield, Mass., 87 Cedar St.
C. L. Deyo—Richland, Kalamazoo Co., Mich.
Jacob Wilbur—Box 941, Janesville, Rock Co., Wis.
F. H. Berbank, Missionary—Residence S. W. Cor. 7th and Spring-Garden Streets, Philadelphia, Penn.
Mrs. Anna B. Smith—No. 360 Seventh Avenue, below 23d Street, New York City.
Dr. I. L. Leslie—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.
H. K. Flagg—St. Louis, Mo.
Martha S. Butler—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the work of Demons: An Examination of its Origin, Morals, Doctrines, and Politics. By Miles Grant. Single copy, 15c.; eight copies for $1.00; $10.00 per hundred.

THE PROPHETIC TIME QUESTION; or, Bible Time Examined. By Wm. Sheldon. 27c.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed. 50c.

VISIONS OF ELLEN G. WHITE, not of God. By B. F. Snook and Wm. H. Brinkerhoff. 10c.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

Sent, postpaid, as follows:

1. I don't believe in Religion .... 12 pp., 3c.
2. Did the World make itself? .... 16 pp., 4c.
3. Is God Everybody, and Everybody God? .... 16 pp., 4c.
4. Have we any need of the Bible? .... 24 pp., 4c.
5. Who wrote the New Testament? .... 16 pp., 4c.
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable? .... 16 pp., 4c.
7. Can we believe Christ and his Apostles? .... 16 pp., 4c.
8. Prophecy .... 32 pp., 5c.
9. Moses and the Prophets .... 28 pp., 5c.
10. Infidelity among the Stars .... 28 pp., 5c.
11. Daylight before Sunrise .... 36 pp., 5c.
12. Telescopic Views of Scripture .... 32 pp., 5c.
13. Science, or Faith? .... 32 pp., 5c.

For the SET, (making 304 pp.) .... 50c. postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home .... 16 pp.
2. Life Insurance .... 16 pp.
3. Lost! Lost! .... 8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet? .... 8 pp.
5. About God (for children) .... 4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing .... 4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ .... 4 pp.
8. Now .... 4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent postpaid—

One set (64 pp.) .... 5c.
1300 pp. $1.00
1800 pp., (by express, not prepaid) $1.00

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

IN FIVE VOLUMES (325 pp. each.)

[illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom [illegible] By H. L. Hastings.

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer; or, a History of the Doctrine of the Reign of Christ on Earth. [illegible] By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch [illegible]

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man [illegible]

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; [illegible] By Wm. Sheppard [illegible]

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY

No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Works on the Prophecies—The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, etc.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES; or, A Glance at Christendom as it is. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. By D. T. Taylor. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THESSALONICA, the Model Church, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, by H. L. Hastings; and SPIRITUALISM, by Dr. Ramsey. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. With various tracts. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

MATTHEW XXIV. AND XXV. An Exposition, showing Christ's Predictions fulfilled, and his Kingdom near. By I. C. Wellcome. 25c; by mail, 27c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 1, By S. S. Brewer. 7c; by mail, 9c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 2, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 3, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

REASONS FOR MY HOPE; or, Tokens of Speedy Redemption. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD, and Signs of the Times. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THESSALONICA; or, The Model Church. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

REVELATIONS XIII.; a treatise. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

SPIRITUALISM a Satanic Delusion. By Wm. Ramsey, D. D. 20c.

THE SEVEN SEALS. Exposition of Rev. vi. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

LOOKING FORWARD; or, Prospects of the Church. By H. L. Hastings. 10c.

THE DAYS WE LIVE IN; The Lord soon to come. By S. S. Brewer. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CELESTIAL RAILROAD; or, Modern Pilgrim's Progress. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 13c; by mail, 15c.

THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 3c; by mail, 5c.

THE GREAT IMAGE soon to be dashed to pieces. By C. B. Turner. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the times of Daniel and John. Mounted on Rollers, by express, $5.00; in Cloth, by mail, $4.00.

THE REIGN OF MESSIAH, the King of the Jews, on the Throne of his Father David; its Nature, and the Time of its Commencement. By Wm. Sheldon. 8c; by mail, 10c.

Works on Future Punishment, etc.

DEBT AND GRACE; or, The Doctrine of a Future Life. By C. F. Hudson. A very able and learned work. $1.50.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. Cloth, 75c; paper, 45c.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT as taught in the Scriptures. Comprising Pauline Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, Old Paths, etc. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

STATE OF THE DEAD, and Punishment of the Wicked. A Discussion between Miles Grant and W. W. Clayton. 20c; by mail, 25c.

ETERNAL SUFFERING. A Discussion between Miles Grant and Dr. J. Lilack. 25c; by mail, 30c.

RETRIBUTION; or, The Doom of the Ungodly. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, The Destruction of the Wicked established, and Endless Misery disproved. By Jacob Blain. 25c; by mail, 29c.

PAULINE THEOLOGY; or, The Christian Doctrine of Future Punishment, as taught in the Epistles of Paul. H. L. H. 10c.

GLAD TIDINGS; or, The End of Woe and Sin by the Destruction of the Wicked. (Three chapters from "Death not Life.") By J. Blain. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE OLD PATHS; or, The Primitive Doctrine of a Future Life. By H. L. H. 10c.

IMMORTAL SOUL THEOLOGY vs. BIBLE. By S. S. Brewer. 5c; by mail, 6c.

WHAT IS MAN? A Bible View of his Creation. By M. Grant. 4c; by mail, 5c.

THE SOUL: What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SPIRIT: What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS; Thief on the Cross, etc. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE DOCTRINE OF ENDLESS MISERY an occasion of Scepticism. 5c; by mail, 6c.

ETERNAL DEATH in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. 5c; by mail, 6c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. With remarks on Josephus. By C. F. Hudson. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE RIGHTS OF WRONG; or, Is Evil Eternal? By C. F. Hudson. 5c; by mail, 6c.

ENDLESS MISERY not a Bible Doctrine. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE WICKED NOT IMMORTAL—(with 200 proof-texts.) 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING OF THE WORD HELL. 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING of Forever and Everlasting. 2c; by mail, 4c.

SMOKE OF TORMENT and Unquenchable Fire Explained. 1c; by mail, 3c.

REV. JOHN FOSTER'S LETTER on Future Punishment. 1c; by mail, 3c.

Miscellaneous.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF CHRISTIAN HOLINESS: A Sermon, by S. H. Platt. 15c.

THE DAY AND THE HOUR: a Lecture, by Joseph A. Seiss, D. D. 15c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.36c. Cloth, $1.75; by mail, $2.07.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five colored Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $1.35; by mail, $1.73. Cloth, $1.25; by mail, $1.57.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. $2.50; by mail, $2.80.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, the Seal of the Book of Daniel Opened. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

THE BIBLE FROM HEAVEN; or, a Dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. 50c; by mail, 60c.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM; its Duty and Objects. By I. C. Wellcome. 30c, postpaid; $3.00 per dozen.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK; for Families and Sunday Schools. 15c; by mail, 18c; $1.50 per dozen; postage, 3c. on every three copies.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS FIGHT?—a tract on War. By I. C. Wellcome. 10c.

AMERICA IN PROPHECY; an Exposition of Isaiah XVIII. By O. R. Fassett. 5c; by mail, 7c.

EVERY BODY'S BOOK; the Personality of God; The Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By P. A. Smith. 15c; by mail, 18c.

THE CHRISTIAN LYRE; a Collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. 20c; by mail, 25c.

HOW TO COOK—without Salt, Butter, Lard, or Condiments. By Mrs. Mary E. Cox, M. D. 20c. postpaid.

COOKERY; or How to prepare food from Grain, Fruits and Vegetables. By F. W. Hurd, M. D. 15c; by mail, 17c.

PREMATURE DECAY of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE OLD AND NEW COVENANT—Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EXPERIENCE AND OBSERVATIONS of a Bruised Reed. By F. H. Chamberlain. By mail, 17c.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament, according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-word Translation, etc. etc. Leather, $4.00; by mail, $4.18. Extra gilt, $4.50; by mail, $4.66. Morocco, $5.00; by mail, $5.18.

CHLOE LANKTON, or Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75c; by mail, 87c.

NON-RESISTANCE. By W. C. Thurman. 20c; by mail, 24c.

DIPHTHERIA; its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. 10c; by mail, 12c.

GLAD VOICES; Words by D. T. Taylor, Music by L. Reimer. 5c, single; by mail, 6c. 50 cents a dozen, postpaid.

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. 15c; eight copies for $1.00.

BETHLEHEM; a Rhyme for Children. By H. L. Hastings. 10c, postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

SOCIAL HYMNS. Original and Selected. By H. L. H. Cloth, 30c; $3.00 per dozen. Paper 20c, $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. For Sunday Schools, etc. 5c; by mail, 6c.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of the nations. By Wm. Shepherd. 10c., postpaid; 85c. a dozen.

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. By A. F. Jolliffe. 5c; by mail, 7c.

OUR MISSION WORK; a Report of the Organization of the American Advent Mission Society, its Constitution, Officers, Address, etc. 5c.

EXPERIENCE OF THOMAS H. JONES, who was a Slave for forty-three years. [illegible]

[illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

SPEED AWAY.

Speed away, speed away,
On thine errand of light,
The news of the kingdom
Being almost in sight;
It quickens our hope,
And we ardently pray—
O, come, blessed Savior,
And make no delay.
O, roll quickly onward,
Ye slow hours of day;
Speed away, speed away, speed away.

Speed away, speed away,
Ye heralds of light,
Go forth in his power
And strength of his might;
O, tell the glad tidings
To all his dear saints,
That Jesus is coming
To end these complaints;
O, pray for his kingdom,
And make no delay,
Speed away, speed away, speed away.

Speed away, speed away,
Old time, on thy course,
While we are rejoicing,
The promise rehearse;
For great is the blessing
Which we shall receive
Of glory and honor,
If we but believe.
Speed ye on, then, thou sun,
Stay not on the plain,
Speed away, speed away, speed away.

Speed away, speed away,
Ye saints, on in your flight,
And think not to rest on
The dark plains of night.
But press for yon glory
That's shining for thee,
Where Christ is inviting
His saints to be free.
Speed away, do not tarry,
There's death if ye stay,
Speed away, speed away, speed away.

Portland, Me. W. C. CLARK.

THE VISION OF ISAAC CHILD,

WHICH HE SAW CONCERNING THE LAND OF HIS NATIVITY.

"And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions."—JOEL 2: 28.

In that appearance which is not of man, nor accountable to man, I looked, and behold a great and high mountain, and thereon stood candlesticks of gold, of silver, of brass, and of iron; and there were candles therein; some of them burning very bright and clear; and some appeared dull and almost gone out; and some were quite gone out, and others were covered with vails to defend them from storms, for they were all standing open to the firmament; and while I looked, the candlesticks became men, and they walked up and down in the mountain. And I looked, and behold the light of the sun disappeared for a short season, and clouds of darkness, and storms, and tempest, came and beat upon the mountain. Then the candlesticks, over which were vails, had the vails rent from over them; and the candlesticks, which were men, were left in thick darkness, for their candles were beaten out; and some of them were overthrown.

While I looked at the wall of the mountain, which was built of pure gold and precious stones, there appeared a numerous company from another country, following an ignis fatuus, and their leader rode upon a scarlet-colored beast, and his name was Opposition and Defence; and when they that sat in darkness upon the mountain saw the multitude which came forth, they went from the mountain and broke over the precious walls that were round about, and went to the leader of the multitude, and honored him with great honors; and some of them joined him in his haste, and followed the ignis fatuus with him, and they rejoiced, saying, "We will do valiantly, for our God is with us, and will tread down our enemies, even every one that riseth up to oppose us." Others gave him much money, and many grand gifts, saying, 'Go forth with thine army, and beat down those storms and tempests whereby we are so tormented." So he went forth with his company, and beat against them, but could not prevail; and they which remained in darkness upon the mountain made war with the golden candlestick, whose light appeared bright, and ceased not from shining. They were not able so much as to dim the light thereof,—neither they, nor the tempest that beat against them; for they fled to a great tower, which was in the midst of the mountain. Then they who were in darkness were grievously perplexed and pricked in their hearts, and they gathered themselves together, and conspired with one another, saying, "Let us build ourselves places of refuge, whereunto we may flee in time of trouble." And they took the name of the great God of heaven in vain; saying, "He will be with us, and go with our armies;" and they made themselves preparation for war.

And as I looked, one came forth in his glorious appearance and cried, saying, "Cease ye to make unto yourselves martial preparations, and instruments for war and defence, for, behold, there is in this mountain a safe hiding-place, and the walls thereof are sure." But many believed not, for they were in darkness, and hardness of heart overcame them, so that they gave no heed unto him, nor his messengers, which he sent unto many that remained, exercising themselves in a martial manner. Then there came forth a voice from on high, saying unto him that appeared, "Remove the golden walls and bulwarks from about this mountain, for they have exalted themselves in their own strength, and have forgotten the mighty power which is a place of refuge in the midst thereof, who built the wall, set up the candlestick, and lighted the candles that are therein. But he said, "Let the tower remain therein, and he that is able to flee unto it, let him flee and be safe; for I have determined what I will do unto this place."

And suddenly the walls, which were of gold and precious stone, were taken away from about the mountain, and the wild boar of the forest entered into the borders thereof, and raged in his fury, for his chains were loosed, and he was released out of his prison; and he began to remove many candlesticks, and essayed to destroy the whole mountain; and the cry of the widows and orphans began to be heard in the land; and they were greatly distressed who trusted in the holy name of Jesus, whose light still appeared, and they mourned and wept for the candlesticks that were removed out of their places, and for the golden walls which were taken from about them.

And there appeared an angel of the highest, having in his right hand snuffers, and he snuffed the candles that were dimmed, and gave them of the golden oil running through the golden pipes from the two golden olives, that stand before the Lord on high; and he spake comfortably unto them, and told them it was because of the cursed sodomy, and great forsaking of the Lord their God, that they were thus judged. But he said unto them, fear ye not, for although the ancient walls are removed from about this place, it is but that the wicked may receive the reward of their works, and the land be cleansed from the pollution thereof, for there is an horrible rebellion in this land, and turning aside from the way of righteousness, and provoking the Holy One by sin and transgression, and breaking the covenant of the most high God.

Thus saith the Lord, I have turned my hand against this place for evil, and I will give the people over to the furnace of affliction; and he that cometh forth shall come forth as pure gold, tried in the fire, more pure than the golden wedge of ophir; and he that cometh not forth is he that despiseth mine holy covenant; and I will forsake him, and give him over to the tormentors, and I will remove his candlestick out of its place; there shall be dreadful weeping and gnashing of teeth; and there shall be a great overturning in the land, saith the Lord; for, behold I have threatened them with famine, and to let the sword in upon them, and have scourged them in their borders, for their wickedness; but they have refused to humble themselves, and have lifted up the heel against me, and despised the meek appearance of the messenger of the holy covenant. They have made this wicked world their idol. They worship it day and night; and when they gather in their most solemn assemblies, behold it is in their minds, cursing and swearing, drunkenness, whoredoms, thefts, chambering, wantonness, and all manner of abominations is in their borders; and yet, saith the Lord, "they will afflict themselves with fasting, and put up their prayers, saying, Lord, save us, while their hearts thirst after the blood of their enemies, whom I have suffered to come upon them." But thus saith the Lord, "I will accept none of your prayers, your fasting, or afflictions of body; but I will suffer to come in upon you the water of a mighty river, whose floods shall go over the banks of the land of Immanuel, the streams whereof shall overspread the whole land; and then shall be great afflictions, which shall not cease until sin and transgression shall be entirely swept away.

In this time, many shall strive to flee to the strong tower, which is in the midst of the mountain; but none shall be able, except those whose candles remain burning, and whose light shines in their borders. They shall strive and shall be able, and have the songs of salvation, and sing upon the banks of deliverance. They shall say, "Not by our might, nor by our power, but by the Spirit of God, are we saved from our enemies, whilst they who were delivered not (having heard), suffer for their sins." Then I looked and behold the wild boar of the forest continued making war in the mountain, and slew many of her suburbs, and took captive men, women and children. The candlesticks which were of silver, of brass, of iron, and many dark candlesticks rose up to resist him; and they went out against him, and smote him in his hinder parts, and wounded him a little; but they could not prevail against him.

Then they cried aloud against the golden candlesticks, and said our wives and our children are taken captives, and our men are slain with the sword of them which are no people, and you will not rise for our help; and power was given them to oppress the golden candlesticks for a time. Then the golden candlesticks were silent and greatly distressed for a season. Then they arose, and some of them went forth and joined with the candlesticks of silver, of brass, and of iron, because of the oppression that was upon them. And they which remained gathered themselves together upon the top of the mountain, and sat silent for a time before the great tower that is in the midst thereof; and many who were pained in their very hearts lifted up their voice unto the great Lord of Sabaoth, because of the distress and carrying away captive that was in the land. Nevertheless, it pleased the Lord of Sabaoth to continue judgment for a time and time. But as they continued crying, and humbled themselves before him, imploring help of his sacred majesty for themselves, and for the people, it pleased him in his infinite goodness to command the boar of the forest to return from their borders, and he chained him with strong chains, and put a hook in his jaws, and drew him back into the wilderness, and the mountain was at rest for a short time; but the walls thereof were not rebuilt, neither shall be for the days of many generations, saith the Lord.

And about this time, the candlesticks of silver, of brass, and of iron, exercised authority over the golden candlesticks, and would have overthrown them, but they could not, by reason of the tower which was in the mountain, whereunto ability was given them to flee. And behold the wind of heaven arose and blew upon the mountain, and the water of the great river came forth, and passed over the mountain, and there was a great earthquake; and after the earthquake there followed a mighty furnace, whose burning was as the burning of lime, and the candlesticks of silver, of brass, and of iron, were cast into the furnace, and the fire thereof burned in them; and all things which came out of the furnace were pure gold; but they which came not forth were no more, but as fuel of fire. And many golden candlesticks were burned therein.

And as I beheld, there appeared candles in all of them, which came out of the furnace, which were all of pure gold, set with precious stones. And one of mighty power rent the heavens above, and came down, having in his right hand a live coal, which he had taken from the holy altar of the most high God; and he touched the candles therewith, and the light appeared; and I beheld, and lo, the waters of the great river assuaged, and there was a calm, and the golden candlesticks, which were perfect men and women, went up to the top of the mountain; and if at any time the candlesticks appeared rusty, they might be refined therein; and he that came down from above held the golden snuffers in his right hand, that if any candles appeared dim, he might clip them, that their light might renew its shining; and he also had power over the two golden olives, and their golden pipes, and he commanded them that they should pour forth the golden oil unto the golden candlesticks.

And I also saw the peaceable streams of Shiloh descending from the mountain, and they were as pure gold, clear as crystal; and he that held the golden snuffers was like unto the Son of God; and they came and drank thereof, and sang praises unto him that lives forever and ever; and they worshiped and honored him in the beauty of holiness; and he that called them made a covenant with them, that they should be his people, and he would be their God. And he said unto them, There hath been in this mountain wars and bloodshed, and many of my people have erred therein, and have strayed from the Good Shepherd, who was meek and lowly in heart, and gave his life for the sheep; who, when he was reviled, reviled not again, but patiently suffered all things, that the will of the Father might be done; and so ought my people to have done, that my will might be done in them; and not to have distrusted the power of the Highest, and made flesh their arm; nor gone forth into the martial spirit that is productive of bloodshed and misery; for it is contrary to my will, and the glorious dispensation of God to mankind, whereby many have shone as lights in the world, which many in this land have rejected, and not in this land only, but also upon the face of the whole earth. But it shall not be so in time to come; for, saith the Lord, I will establish peace upon earth; and it shall come to pass that he that formeth an instrument of war shall be ashamed thereof; and I will judge him at the last day. The roaring of cannon and beating of drums shall not be heard; the glittering sword and all the instruments of war shall cease, and the prophecy of mine anointed shall come to pass,—"Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more" (Isa. 2: 4), for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it, and it shall surely come to pass, notwithstanding many nations and great kings resist it, and oppose its coming. Behold, saith the Lord, they are as grasshoppers, and fade as the flower of the earth, and go to a dark house of silence, and are seen of men no more; therefore give ear my people to my words, and incline your hearts to wisdom, and learn understanding, that ye may know the will of God and do it, and you shall have peace from your enemies round about you, and I will build again about this place, the walls and bulwarks of my salvation, and ye shall know that I the Lord your God have visited you for good, and saved you from your enemies; and also that you were not able to save yourselves in times of trial; and it shall be as long as you remain faithful and keep my commandments, I will keep and preserve you and your generation; and you shall be as Mount Sion, that cannot be moved.

But if at any time you, or your sons, or your daughters, refuse and rebel, and I threaten you with my judgments, to humble you, if you lift up the heel against me in my rebukes, as your fathers have done, I will surely cut you off from the earth, and you shall have a name among men no more; and I will break down the walls which I have set about you, and they never shall be built again, from henceforth forever; for behold I brought your fathers from a land wherein they were oppressed, and could not serve me truly, and I moved the heathen back for their sakes, though not by the power of the sword, nor the strength of battle; but I myself rebuked them, that they should not destroy my anointed, nor do my people any harm. And I fed your fathers in the wilderness many days, and gave them strength to cultivate the land, and blessed their labors with success, and gave them corn in abundance, and many goodly things, and they increased in the land, and their generations were in prosperity and waxed fat, and did not highly esteem the Rock of their salvation, and rebeled against me, and in the time of correction they kicked; nevertheless, I did not impute their sins unto their children, neither will I; but every man shall suffer for his own sins. And he called unto many, and taught them many excellent things, and commanded them to go forth and publish this doctrine unto all people, wheresoever he shall send them, even the glad tidings of peace and salvation, to as many as believe on the name of him that sent me, and received his law and obeyed it; promising to be with them from henceforth, forever and evermore.

And the Lord saith unto me, Behold, I have shewed thee all these things, that thou mightest make them known unto the people of the land; for I have determined to do unto this place according to all that thou hast seen; therefore, now write these things in a book, that if there be any that will hear and understand, and repent and be converted, that I may heal them, and save them from the great hour of temptation, which cometh on all flesh. But I said in my heart, O Lord, wherefore should I write these things in a book; for is not this the new covenant dispensation? and is not the great Father come, who said he would teach the people himself, and there may be no more occasion for any man to teach his neighbor, or his brother, the knowledge of the Lord; for have not all men known thee, from the least to the greatest? Is not the true light come into the world, and hath it not shined in every man's heart, enlightening every man that cometh into the world, that through it they might believe, and believing might receive power to become the sons of God? and if men refuse the teacher that came down from heaven, and his holy light in their hearts, how then will they hear me, who am but a youth and a stripling of low degree? And the Lord said unto me, All these things are true, and many more also; nevertheless, that which I have commanded to write, write; for I will be clear of the blood of all men, and leave them without excuse. And because people are forsaking their measure of the grace of God, and departing from the holy light of Jesus in their own hearts, there still remains a necessity to prophecy and to preach the gospel; and inasmuch as thou hast seen many candlesticks whose candles were almost gone out, even, also there are many people who have almost forsaken the light of their salvation, and are near to be left in darkness. And as thou sawest some left quite, so there are some people who are in a state of nature, which is a state of darkness; and although the true light had shined in every one of their hearts, yet they would not receive it, nor comprehend it; but choose rather to follow the foolish imaginations of their own wicked hearts. And as thou sawest some golden candlesticks with bright candles in them, even so, also, there are some people who are in a large degree of perfection and holiness, and as gold exceedeth silver, silver brass, and brass iron, so are some people more perfect than others, and further proceeded in the work of their soul's salvation; and as thou sawest judgment was to continue until none appeared remaining but of pure gold with lights burning in them; neither shall my judgments depart from this land until all the inhabitants learn righteousness. Yet, nevertheless, I will call in mercy unto this people, whether they will hear or forbear; and if any one hear my voice, and open unto me, I will have mercy on him; and his candlestick shall not be removed in mine anger; for I declare to the world this day, that I desire not the death of him that dieth, nor that the sinner should die in his sins, whereby the kingdom of Satan may be advanced, for I created man for a purpose of my own glory, and have visited all men with the light of the Son of my own bosom, for the completion thereof, and have waited long for the spiritual return of fallen mankind, and in the bowels of tender mercy, have sent forth my servants and handmaids, whom I have known, to invite them who have gone astray, to return unto me and repent, and flee from the wrath that is to come upon them which die in their sins; for I have no pleasure in the destruction of my creatures, which I have made; neither is man's destruction of me, but of himself; and that not through ignorance, but hardness of heart and unbelief; for I have been gracious to all people, whereby they might have known me, and been at peace; and I have handed forth the offers of my salvation without respect of person; nevertheless, if any man whom I have called receive not the offers thereof, and will not return at my reproof, I will be just in judgment without respect of persons.

Therefore, fear not thou to write these things in a book, and publish them in thy native country; and if any man hear thee, and return unto me, then thou hast not labored in vain; but if no man will hear thee, nor that which thou hast written, neither then hast thou labored in vain; but hast done the will of him that sent thee, and thou shalt have the reward of peace; and if thou remain faithful, and holdest out to the end, and faintest not, I will remain with thee, and receive thee up at the last day.

After these things, I sat silent before the Lord for a time, and henceforth durst not question with him any more; for his word was as a fire and as a hammer in mine heart, and I was broken before him, and humbled with his goodness. And my heart was opened and fingers loosed to write, to show forth to the world that which I had seen in the light of the Lamb. And be it known to all people, to whom these few lines may come, that notwithstanding things of this nature, at this time, are something unbecoming among men, yet I dare not distrust the wisdom of heaven, nor disobey the command thereof, nor be so much biassed by any thing carnal as to hide the revelation of the Son of God, as I shall answer the same at the peril of my soul.

Written by Isaac Child, of the Province of Pennsylvania, in the seventh month, 1757.

For the World's Crisis.

BENEVOLENCE AND LIBERALITY OF THE ADVENT PEOPLE.

BRO. GRANT:—I have noticed that some who write for the Advent papers accuse Adventists of covetousness and illiberality. Several times has the charge been brought against them "as a body" or people. If this charge had been applied to certain individuals, and to them only, no one could object, or deny it. Perhaps those who have made such statements have much better means of knowing the facts in the case than I have; yet I feel that the charges are undeserved and unjust. It is my impression that the Advent people are not comparatively a wealthy people. There are some among them who deny themselves of some of the comforts of life, that they may have a little to cast into the treasury, as the widow cast in her two mites. There are many "cheerful givers" among us who give, "hoping for nothing again." It is a well known fact that many literally "laid all on the altar" in '43 and '44, giving all their means and influence to enlighten the people and to lead them to prepare for the coming of the Lord. There are such men in the Advent ranks to-day. They have "done what they could"; and now, when they have no more to give, is it fair to accuse them of covetousness, or want of liberality?

And are not many doing all they can now? If you could count the money left in the possession of some who give freely to the various departments of our common cause, you would be satisfied that they have given much more than "one tenth," or even one half, at their disposal. One thing should be remembered in this connection: many give much more than you know of. Not all who give have their names published to the world. Multitudes of private deeds are witnessed by the All-seeing Eye, that are recorded above, and will be made known when the secrets of all hearts are revealed, and then those who "let not their right hand know what their left hand doeth" shall have their reward.

Sutton, Mass. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

The New York Observer, of Dec. 7th, thus expresses itself:

"Much is said about the auspicious era of the world in which we are living. Many are the schemes of philanthropic and christian benevolence which have been set on foot within the present century, and these efforts have been crowned with great results. Every true heart must rejoice in all that has been done for Christ and a ruined world; but without any disparagement of what has been accomplished, every candid person must admit that with all the extensive plans that have been laid for the renovation of society and the conversion of the world to Christ, what has been done thus far has been chiefly a work of preparation and not of achievement. The scaffolding has been put up, but the building has not been reared. If the foundation itself has been laid, we see little in the present aspect of things to indicate that the great structure itself is about to rise.

LOOK AT OUR OWN CITY.

"It has been stretching itself out in all directions over the island and across the rivers. Its population, including that of the suburbs which belong to it, has been doubling every few years. Its wealth has been accumulating in a still larger proportion, and is lavishly expended in the erection of costly warehouses and dwellings, and in all the adornments and gratifications of luxurious living. But has the cause of righteousness been progressing with equal pace? Any one who is familiar with the moral condition of the city does not need an answer. Iniquity in almost every form has been making rapid strides. Vice and crime, instead of being checked, are still prevalent; and in whatever direction we walk or turn our eyes, we find enough to fill us with alarm.

And what has the church been doing to stem the mighty flood of evil which is spreading itself wider, if not becoming deeper every year? While the population has been increasing with such wonderful rapidity; while iniquity in so many forms, in high and low places, has been having such sway, more than keeping up with the increase of population, there has been no corresponding development of christian activity to stem the tide. There has been no increase in the provision of religious privileges, commensurate with the needs of the growing multitude of our people. In the simple matter of church buildings and church organizations, the number is little greater than it was when our population was only half what it is now. It is true the churches already erected are not all filled. They would accommodate, in the aggregate, half as many more. But this only shows that for some reason the mass of our population is not reached by the gospel, and that they are living without God in the world. It is a painful truth that christians, who are called to be the salt of the earth, are not seasoning this city. The truth of God, the gospel of the grace of Jesus, is not renovating and saving the people. The church is not keeping up with the progress of wickedness, when it ought to be overcoming the powers of darkness. It is not keeping pace even with the material development, the worldly prosperity which is everywhere apparent.

SURVEY OF THE HEATHEN WORLD.

A survey of the heathen world, and of the Papal and Mohammedan countries, awakens equally painful reflections. If we look narrowly at the field, we think it will appear that while the laborers have been faithfully engaged, less actual progress has been made on heathen ground within the last ten years than for many years previous.

In one very important department on which the expectations of the church have been fixed for a long period,—the raising up of a native ministry among the heathen,—these expectations have not been fulfilled. It is now more than half a century since the revival of the missionary cause; two generations of men have come and gone within that period; and yet the native preachers of the gospel are only a few score in all the heathen world. The population of the globe has been increasing all these years, and not one-hundredth part of this increase has been converted to the faith of Christ. How long at this rate must it be before the whole world shall be converted?

We do not know how any christian who actually believes the promise that the heathen shall be given to Christ for his inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for a possession, can be satisfied with the present prospect of its fulfillment. And when we turn back from contemplating the vast field to be reclaimed, and see the apathy that rests upon the church, the prospect seems still darker. The present attitude of the christian church is not that of a host engaged in a mighty conflict and moving on to victory, 'fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners.' The church has far too much of the appearance of compromising with its enemies, instead of making continual aggressive movements to resist and overcome all that is evil. Conformity with the world is, to a great extent, characteristic of too many who bear the christian name. It is sad that we have to make these confessions, but every honest heart must acknowledge that they are true.

WHAT CAN BE DONE?

Something must be done. The church must arise and call upon God. We can do nothing effectual toward the salvation of the world without a mighty outpouring of the Spirit of God. We need such an outpouring, yes, a far greater than in the days of the apostles, or the time of the Reformation. But we have no reason to expect such a display of God's gracious power while the church remains in its present apathetic condition.

Another spirit, and a more absorbing purpose, one that shall come up to the dignity of their high calling, and to the magnitude of the great work to be accomplished, must animate the disciples of Christ, or the reign of iniquity will continue until God shall raise up a generation more faithful to the gospel than the present."

The Christian Intelligencer expresses itself in the same strain:

All the evangelical churches in this country are absolutely and relatively weaker to-day than they were five years ago. We mean to say that the tone of piety, the life of faith, and the loyalty of the christian conscience, have declined and verge toward decay. With respect to material interests this has not been so manifest. But with respect to spiritual matters, it is so evident as to admit of no denial. The churches have been liberal in their use of money. They have built and beautified church edifices; have paid off debts, endowed colleges and schools, and poured their offerings with more than royal munificence into various channels of benevolence. And still the truth remains that the effective power of godliness shows no such resistive or aggressive energy as it has in former times. Vast numbers of church members have fallen away from the high path on which they were wont to walk. Now they plead for such indulgences in worldly pleasures, recreations, and pursuits, as are condemned by the letter and spirit of the gospel. The result is that prayer-meetings are neglected, Sabbath-schools weakened for lack of helpers, and the Sabbath services sustained rather for the sake of respectability, than from a hungering after the word of God. These statements are made from no narrow standpoint. Our religious exchanges furnish abundant means for noting that, in all parts of the evangelical church, there is cause for sorrow over its low spiritual condition."

The Rev. Dr. Barth, in his Brief History of the Church of Christ, after a full survey of modern Christendom, thus sums up the result, which leaves the hope of the world's conversion by the church in a desperate plight:

"From the time of Napoleon's fall, many of all descriptions have avowed themselves the friends of christianity; the cause of the Bible and of missions has stirred up a kind of new life in many places; great numbers of good christian books have been put into wide circulation; and here and there the work of the Spirit of God has not been left without witness. Still, all is far from being a paradise; and whoever wishes to commend the present age, must lose no time, for there is a great conflict between light and darkness, the issue of which cannot be seen. The most desperate struggle of all the powers of darkness we may yet have to encounter; and what we enjoy at present of gospel light and the means of grace, may once more be superseded by a night of terror. It behooves us, therefore, to make a faithful use of the blessings with which we are favored, while we have them."

Verily, God is bringing darkness upon his church, that his erring children may betake themselves to their true and only hope, in the speedy coming of Christ himself, who will bring with him the kingdom and the victory which men would fain have the glory of themselves achieving.

A GRAND JUBILEE.

The 29th of June, 1867, will be the eighteen hundredth anniversary of St. Peter's death. On that occasion the Pope is to convene all the bishops of Christendom to Rome, where a grand jubilee will be celebrated.

We are not a prophet in the sense of predicting future events, but only in the sense of being a teacher. Nevertheless, when the Pope convenes all the Catholic bishops in the world to Rome, on the above occasion, would it be marvelous in the eyes of the reader, if the city, the Pope, and all his cardinals and bishops were to be precipitated into the fiery abyss below? Of course, we do not say it will be so, but such a fate awaits the "eternal city;" and should it occur at that time, its fall would somewhat resemble that of ancient Babylon, which was taken while the king, his lords and nobles were feasting.—Messianic Banner.

☞ It costs more to revenge wrongs than to bear them.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

For the World's Crisis.

EPIDEMIC CHOLERA.—No. 4.

BY IRA A. THAYER, M. D.

From what has been already said, the prognosis will be set down as very unfavorable; and this has always been the case under the old mercurial mode of treatment; and where the patient has sunk to that physical prostration characteristic of the stage of collapse, he seldom recovers; but under judicious treatment, administered during the premonitory, or even active stage, a large majority should recover. The manifestation of courage, the possession of a good constitution, and a disposition of the system to respond to remedies, are favorable symptoms; while those of an opposite character are of course unfavorable.

The treatment of this disease depends upon its severity, and the stage at which it has arrived. In this part of my subject I shall be brief, as the mass of my readers will probably depend upon a practitioner of medicine for the administration of remedies; though let me say to you, that rather than employ an old-school physician, with his mercury, arsenic, and the lancet, treat the disease yourselves, or leave it to the unaided power of nature.

When the epidemic influence is prevalent, and a person experiences the premonitory symptoms, proceed at once to treat him as follows: put him to bed, and keep him there until he is entirely relieved. I cannot make this instruction too emphatic. It is one of the most important measures that can possibly be resorted to, not only in this, but in all bowel diseases. Indeed, I have no doubt that the horizontal position, mental composure, and the avoidance of everything calculated to disturb the stomach and bowels, would be sufficient, without medicine, to prevent a development of the disease in most cases; unless there is an overloaded condition of the stomach. Should the stomach now be overloaded, or the tongue be coated with a heavy fur, and the organ broad, flabby, and pasty, with a bad, bitter taste in the mouth, give a most thorough emetic. The following compound is the best for this purpose: take tincture lobelia two fluid ounces, tinct. capsicum one fluid ounce; mix; give a tea-spoonful every five minutes, until the patient vomits freely. This action must be thorough. The emetic serves many purposes, besides unloading the stomach of crude ingesta, and other irritating material. It arouses the stomach to a healthy action, prepares it for the ready absorption of whatever may be given subsequently; it arouses the whole glandular system to the elimination of the morbific material causing the difficulty; it equalizes the circulation, and tends in many ways to throw off the dread malady which is rapidly prostrating the vital powers.

Now wrap the patient in blankets wrung out of hot water, and cover him with dry clothing. In a few minutes he is in a healthy perspiration, is thoroughly warmed up, and cholera is at an end. But should the case have advanced further, additional treatment will be required. And let me say here, that whatever is done in the line of treatment which I am pointing out, must be done thoroughly, and with untiring energy. A course of treatment must be marked out and continued energetically. It will not do to change, every few minutes, from one thing to another. If one dose does no good, repeat it, and keep on with the plan of treatment; soon you will find the disease yielding, and the patient rapidly coming up. Many cases are lost from this changing every few hours from one course of treatment to another.

Now make use of the following compound: Tinct. of opium, tinct. of camphor, essence of peppermint, equal parts. Dose—a teaspoonful every hour until the diarrhœa is arrested. The above simple treatment will seldom fail to arrest the disease in a short time, where it is taken early.

Where the disease has advanced far into the active stage, instead of the last mentioned compound, give the following: Oils of peppermint, cloves, anise, and cajeput, of each one ounce; alcohol three ounces, mix. Dose from a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every fifteen, twenty, or thirty minutes, as indicated, given in hot whiskey sling. Or the above may be alternated with the following spiced brandy: take pulverized cinnamon, cloves, gum guiacum, of each one ounce; best French brandy one quart. Dose—half a tablespoonful.

If the disease has advanced far in prostration before the emetic has been given, then, instead of giving the lobelia emetic, give the following: take common salt, one ounce; capsicum, one drachm; boiling water one half pint. Dose—a wine-glassful every ten minutes, until it vomits freely. Very often the most satisfactory results will follow this off-hand prescription; the discharges from the bowels, the vomiting, the cramps—all untoward symptoms, will cease with the operation of the emetic. Bear in mind that you must continue the hot pack during the whole course, changing frequently. Should there be much prostration, apply a mustard paste the whole length of the spine. Keep hot bricks, or some other hot applications to the feet and lower extremities, and persevere with the various compounds I have named, using them as I have pointed out.

Should collapse come on in spite of this treatment, or should treatment be delayed until so late a period, little else can be done than to prosecute the above course with increased vigor. My favorite remedy is the compound tincture of cajeput, the third compound named. This remedy was used extensively during the prevalence of cholera in Cincinnati; and with the other treatment I have named, proved highly successful. The late Prof. Morrow, of Cincinnati, speaks of it as follows:—

"In several very severe cases, this compound manifested great controlling powers. In one case, in which the patient was in violent spasms in all the flexor muscles of the body, with the thighs drawn up against the abdomen, and the legs against the thighs, the neck and head forward on the breast, with a violent state of contraction of the abdominal muscles, two teaspoonfuls were given with apparently but little effect; but this was followed in ten minutes by a tablespoonful, which soon effected the desired relaxation and relieved the patient. The patient described the effect as very powerful, penetrating even to the extremities of his toes and fingers. This powerfully concentrated medical compound manifested very superior powers in those cases in which the patient was rapidly approaching the stage of collapse, or even in the earlier periods of that stage, accompanied at the same time with obstinate nausea and vomiting, as well as profuse rice-water discharges from the bowels." (In all cases of cholera morbus, this is almost a specific, given in much smaller doses, say about half a teaspoonful every one or two hours, as indicated.)

With regard to the result of the above treatment, in substance, I introduce the following extract from the "Report of Dr. J. H. Jordan, attending physician of the Cincinnati Cholera Hospital, to the Board of Health:—

"Whole number cholera patients treated, 210; number of deaths, 49; discharged cured, 161. Comparative results: cures, 76¾ per cent; deaths, 23¼ per cent. In comparison with other hospitals of the kind, this would be a very small mortality; and yet the greater portion of these deaths were due to the advanced stage of the disease in which the patient was received. If all had been removed to the hospital upon the first appearance of cholera symptoms, I am convinced the mortality would not have exceeded 10 per cent,—probably much less."

In conclusion, kind reader, let me say that I have now given you in these four short articles all that is really valuable as touching this disease. I have given you, in a short space, what it has taken years to learn. Preserve these articles, for I can assure you that you will need them sooner or later. I have crowded a great deal of matter into a small space. You need to read it carefully. Should we be visited by this terrible epidemic, you will find the matter herein contained of great advantage to you. Should we escape it, we may be thankful. But in contemplating the approach of this epidemic, look at it calmly and philosophically, preserving a quiet disposition of mind, pursue your usual avocations, avoid all excess, and pay good attention to your general health; and if any of your friends fall victims to the disease, go to them calmly and fearlessly, rendering them all the aid in your power; and whether it terminate favorably or fatally, you will be comforted by the reflection that all the service you could perform was given faithfully.

Bristolville, Ohio.

For the World's Crisis.

CURE FOR CANCER.

BRO. GRANT:—Some years ago, I noticed in the Crisis an article on the cure of cancers, by the proper application of the chloride of zinc. I believe it to be the best agent for removing any formation between the true skin and cuticle, such as warts, wens, etc., which ofttimes are painful, and sometimes dangerous; also to remove formations under the true skin, such as scirrhous, etc., tending to cancerous ulcers. I have used it in many cases (two bad ones), always with success. I spread shoemaker's wax on stout black silk, and cut a hole in the plaster of the same shape and a little larger than the formation to be removed. This plaster I press firmly on the flesh; then having a second plaster of wax (the same size as the first, but no hole in it) ready, I apply the chloride in the hole of the first plaster only. The chloride can be used pure, or mixed with a little flour to make a paste. I then place the second plaster on the first, pressing it firmly down, and let it remain twenty-four hours, and then renew, until it is evident that it has eaten enough to remove all that is desired. This is attended with some pain, as may be expected; but not often so as to prevent sleep. There is no loss of blood. It usually takes from four days to seven, in moderate cases. Clean the wound with Castile soap, and apply any healing salve. The wound will heal much sooner than a cut.

But what is chloride of zinc? It cannot always be obtained at country druggists; and where it can be obtained is not always pure. Any one can make it after this rule: procure some hydrochloric acid (muriatic acid), chemically pure, if you can obtain it, if not, the common; put small strips of zinc in it (not many at a time, or it will boil over); when the acid will dissolve no more, strain off the fluid into a china cup, and boil it down until a dry, pinkish salt remains; this is chloride of zinc, or muriate of the oxide of zinc; this salt is deliquescent (becomes moist in air), therefore must be placed in a dry bottle, and well secured from air.

Oceanport, N. Y. A. F. PAWLEY.

RECIPE FOR COUGH LOZENGES AND MINISTER'S SORE THROAT.—Powdered extract of liquorice, four ounces; white sugar, eight ounces; cubebs, one ounce; gum arabic, one ounce. Mix in a mortar, moisten slightly, rub together; then rub in two drachms of extract of conium; roll out and cut up in thin wafers. Take but a little at a time, when needed. I have used it for over a year, and in that time have talked, prayed, preached, and sung more and easier than ever in my life before; as I often was subject to hoarseness, which prevented me from singing a good part of the time. PETER S. W. DETO.

LIGHT.—Many people do not seem to be aware how important light is to their health. When they are sick, down go the curtains of their room, and scarcely a ray of light is admitted. Now this is all wrong. Let the sunlight into a sick room. It will do more towards restoring a patient to health than many of the nostrums they gulp down. Deprive an infant of heaven's free light, and it will only grow into a shapeless idiot, instead of a beautiful, well-formed child. How important, then, is it to let light into rooms during some part of the day. It is just as necessary as ventilation, or the sunshine upon the plant.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance................$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address..........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE.

Semi-monthly.

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Payable always in advance.

[illegible]

CLUBS—[illegible]

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, or July, and at no other times. Back numbers will be sent from either of those dates.

POSTAGE—[illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances, should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 556. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, MAY 30, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 11.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

LINES.

I know my feet have gone astray,
My heart has bid them go;
Long years I walked the downward path
Of sin and death and woe.

My soul has owned itself condemned
Before its Maker's throne,
But, precious truth, I've found the Lamb
That can for me atone.

Jesus, thou Son of God and man,
Thy bleeding side I see;
Thou art united with our God,
And I, O Christ, with thee!

Lord, I am weak! be thou my strength;
I'm blind, lead thou the way;
I'm poor, grant riches of thy grace;
O ever be my stay.

And when the toils of life are past,
The heavenly rest will come,
Then I shall be with all the blest,
Safe in my Father's home.

MARIA MATHEWS WEAVER.

Westfield, Mass.

UNIVERSALISM EXPOSED FROM THE INNER TEMPLE.

BY JOHN T. WALSH.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

It is no better than Atheism.
It is no better than Deism.
It is no better than Infidelity.
It is no better than Paganism in its results.

We have no doubt that many of our readers will regard the announcement of this discourse as a startling one. But, nevertheless, we have confidence to believe that we can make good all the charges preferred against Universalism in that announcement. We have not the presumption, however, to suppose we shall be able to convince all who lean toward that system of the truth of our charges. But whether we do this or not, we do not intend to play around the outer court of this system. We shall enter the inner temple, walk up its broad aisles, survey its lofty domes, and, if possible, lay hold of its main pillars, and bring down the whole superstructure with a crash.

We propose to examine Universalism as a system, and shall offer no direct argument in favor of endless punishment. The doctrine of endless future punishment, if proved by Universalists to be false, does not establish the truth of Universalism. But, judging from the arguments used by its friends and advocates, one would be led to the conclusion that they supposed, if they disproved the doctrine of future punishment, the truth of Universalism would follow as a necessary conclusion. This, however, is a very great mistake. Universalism and endless punishment may both be false. Our business at present is with Universalism. We propose to analyze the system, and bring out at least some of its dark elements, and expose them in the light of reason and Revelation. We shall enter into its inner temple, and bring out of its treasure things new and old.

We shall argue first upon the hypothesis that the system which teaches "the final holiness and happiness of all men" is true; and upon this hypothesis we remark:

1. Universalism is no better than Atheism in its results.

We affirm this point upon the supposition that the system is true. An Atheist is one who does not believe in God, and has no faith in a future state of being.

But Universalism says, this is no bar to "future holiness and happiness." The Atheist will be as holy and as happy in a future state, as any of the prophets or apostles. Universalism being true, makes no war on this system of unbelief. It says to the Atheist: Though you do not believe in God, in angels, nor spirits, nor in any future state at all, this makes no kind of difference with reference to your final "holiness and happiness." True, you are "without hope and without God in the world;" but all will be right in the end. The Atheist inquires: Do you, Mr. Universalist, believe in the Bible? Oh, yes, says Mr. Universalist, I believe in the Bible. My faith is founded upon that. Well, says the Atheist, I do not believe in God nor in the Bible; but as you say you do, what will you do with this passage, "Without faith it is impossible to please God; for he that cometh to God, must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." What disposition do you, Mr. Universalist, make of this? For I do not belive that God is, or exists; and, of course, if your Bible be true, and there is a God, it is impossible for me to please him; nor can I ever go to him, for I do not believe in his existence. And it seems to me that either your faith or your Bible must be wrong. Oh, no, says Mr. Universalist, it is all right. This text only has reference to this life; but in the next world you will please God, go to him, and be finally and eternally holy and happy. Very well, says the Atheist, I do not believe in any of these things; but, if your doctrine be true, all will be as well with me as with you; so you need not trouble yourself any further to convince me of my error, after the assurance you have given me that I, notwithstanding my Atheism, shall be finally happy and holy.

Now, we say upon the hypothesis that Universalism is true, it aids and abets Atheism; and is no better than the system it thus aids and abets. It gives "aid and comfort" to Atheists, and assures them that they will be made holy and happy by a God in whose existence they have no faith, and in a heaven which they regard as a fable!

Systems equal in their results are equal to one another; but Atheism and Universalism are equal in their results, therefore they are equal to one another.

Do you say their results in this world are different? We demand the proof. Atheists enjoy this world as extensively and as fully as Universalists do. Select any example you please and compare them, and you will find it so. Universalists have assumed without proving it, that all rewards and punishments are meted out in this life. Let them prove this preliminary point, and then they may, perhaps, be able to evade the force of the positions here argued. Let them show that Atheists are not so happy in this life as they are; or that Atheists are punished more in this life than they are, or hold their peace forever.

Universalism makes it no better for the most pious than for the Atheist. Robert Owen, the most distinguished Atheist of modern times, was blessed far beyond thousands of pious Christians in this life, and will be equal to them in the future world. The final result is the same; and no Universalist can deny it, without repudiating his faith.

The Atheist may live and die with no faith in God, in Christ, in angels, spirits, nor heaven; in a word, he may live and die like a brute, and with no more faith than a brute, and yet his final holiness and happiness are secured by Universalism! Can Universalists deny this?

We affirm, then, that the system which teaches this is no better than Atheism; for Atheism makes the best of this life, and, if Universalism be true, its chances for the future are as good as any.

Robert Owen said that the idea of a God came into existence by "imagination." He was as benevolent and as kind as any Universalist. No man living more benevolent than he. He expended thousands for the purpose, in his esteem, of ameliorating the condition of humanity, and introducing happiness among men. Has Universalism done more than this? We say, then, if Universalism be true, it is no better than Atheism; for Atheism offers all to the present life that Universalism can; and Universalism, on its part, assures Atheists of a happy future! We say all this upon the hypothesis that Universalism is true; but if it be false, it is worse than Atheism, because it comes as an angel of light, and is more specious; and consequently men are more liable to be deceived by it. It is a counterfeit more difficult to detect and expose.

It matters not by what system of medicine the patient is treated, if all are equal in their final results and the patient recovers. And if our future holiness and happiness are as certain under the influence of Atheism as Universalism, what is the difference?

2. It is no better than Deism in its results.

A Deist is one who rejects the Bible and Jesus Christ, but professes to believe in God. And the Scriptures teach us that "he that denies the Son, denieth the Father also;" but this presents no difficulty in the way of their final holiness and happiness, if Universalism be true. A Deist might come to a Universalist and say: Sir, I do not believe in your Bible at all, nor in him you call Christ—all this is a fable, gotten up by designing men, and I do not believe a word of it. True, says the Universalist, this may be your view of the matter. I know you have no faith in the Bible, nor in Christ; but this will make no kind of difference as to the final result; you will as certainly be holy and happy hereafter as though you had all faith in these things. True, I do not think you will fare so well in this world; but certainly all will be right in the world to come.

Very well, says the Deist, I am pretty happy as I am; I enjoy myself finely; and as you assure me that I shall be happy hereafter, I am content to await the result, in which, however, I tell you I have no faith, and shall not, therefore, concern myself about it. True, Tom Paine like, I believe the mother of Jesus was a prostitute, and that the whole system of which he is the author is a fable and unworthy of credence; but, as you assure me of future bliss, notwithstanding all this, I am not concerned about the matter at all. All will be well in the end.

What can Universalism say to this? Has it any rebuke? Has it any warning? Does it not give Deism license to go on and assure its advocates of final holiness and happiness? Does it not aid and abet Deism, and give comfort to its advocates?

Universalism does not propose to change or alter the destiny of a single human being. That destiny is already determined, and it (Universalism) looks practically to this life only; and so do Atheism and Deism. All these systems leave the future to take care of itself, and utterly ignore any preparation in this life for the next. And as all men will be finally holy and happy, the preaching of Universalism, and believing it, can not make the result more certain. It is a fixed fact, which, if all men were Atheists and Deists, would still be true! Is it not evident, then, that Universalism, in its practical working, is no better than Deism? Has Universalism any warnings against Deism with reference to the future? Are not all its voices hushed in a very significant silence?

3. It is no better than Infidelity in its results.

I use the term Infidelity here with reference to that general unbelief which obtains in society, and which manifests itself in disobedience to the Gospel. All belonging to this class are assured of their final holiness and happiness. They may get drunk, steal, murder, seduce, and commit every other abominable crime in the catalogue of crime, and die in the act of committing them, and the result is the same. Universalism says to every skeptic: You can live in unbelief, and do all to which your heart prompts you, and yet be finally holy and happy. This is certain, believe what you may, and do what you please. Universalism may teach such characters that they will be punished in this life; but they will laugh at the idea, knowing by observation that it is false; continue in sin, and take the consequences. So long as criminals can escape the clutches of the law, what care they? The most hardened criminals feel no remorse, and very often go unwhipped of justice. Universalism, then, aids and abets Infidelity, and, as a practical system, is no better. The result is the same, whether you be an Infidel or a Universalist. For Universalism does not save anybody; it declares that all men ARE SAVED, and only announces a FOREGONE CONCLUSION!

4. It is no better than Paganism in its results.

Universalism says that Paganism is no bar to final holiness and happiness. The knowledge of the true God, first made known to Adam, has always existed in the human mind; but not in every human mind. Paul tells us how this knowledge was lost: "Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful, but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened; professing themselves to be wise, they became fools, and changed the glory of the incorruptible God into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and four-footed beasts, and creeping things. Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness, through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonor their own bodies between themselves; who changed the TRUTH of God into a LIE, and worshiped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed forever. Amen. For this cause God gave them up to vile affections," etc. "And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, GOD GAVE THEM OVER TO A REPROBATE MIND, to do those things which are not convenient; being filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness; full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity, whisperers, backbiters, haters of God," etc., etc. Such, in part, is Paul's account of the origin of idolatry, and some of its consequences. But Universalism says, all this is no bar to future holiness and happiness! But Paul says: "For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness; because that which may be known of God is manifest in (to) them; for God hath SHOWED it to them. For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and godhead; so THAT THEY ARE WITHOUT EXCUSE." And hence he adds: "For as many as have sinned without law, shall also perish without law." This being the condition of the Pagan world, it accounts for the efforts made by Christians to enlighten the darkness of heathendom with the glorious gospel of the grace of God. Hence the many sacrifices made by missionaries for the purpose of converting the heathen to Christianity. They are perishing for lack of knowledge, and it is the duty of Christians to send the gospel to them. But Universalism says no. They are safe. Their final holiness and happiness are certain. The heathen may worship the sun, moon, and stars, stocks, stones, and reptiles, with impunity; for their eternal felicity is certain. What harm can such worship do, if Universalism be true? What more harmless than such worship, if it does not embarrass the final result—holiness and happiness?

If a Pagan chooses to bow down to the sun once a day, in adoration, what harm can it be, seeing he injures no one by it, and provided Universalism be true? And what if he should sacrifice his children to appease the supposed wrath of the gods, does he not send them to heaven so much the quicker, without in the least retarding his own onward and upward march to that happy end? Universalists send no missionaries to Pagan lands; or if they do, we are not aware of it. And well they may not, if they are already safe for heaven, notwithstanding their idolatry. And what if they are ignorant of the bliss that awaits them? It will be none the less certain!

What if the Athenians bowed the knee to thirty thousand gods? They were wise and happy, and safe for heaven after death. What need for Paul to call upon them to repent, seeing that if they did not repent they were as certain of final holiness and happiness as if they did?

No; but Universalists do not visit Pagan lands as missionaries. They do not go into the dark corners of the earth, where "darkness covers the land, and gross darkness the people." They do not encounter the Atheist and Deist, and challenge them to mortal combat! Oh, no! They love to go among the orthodox. They love to prowl along in the footsteps of those who preach the gospel of the grace of God, and seek to turn away the people from the faith. Satan has no use for them in Pagan lands, and among Atheists, Deists, and Infidels of this class, they are all right! Where there is no danger of the people's believing in future punishment, they do not go! Hence you do not find them preaching to Atheists, Deists, and Pagans; you do not find them seeking entrance into heathen temples! They prefer that the orthodox shall take the lead in this business, and they will come along afterward, and "sow tares among the wheat." They are exceedingly anxious to get into houses for Christian worship, because here, perchance, they may do some mischief. But Universalism is not preached to save any one; for there is no saving power in it, and nothing from which to be saved. And if there was, it could not save any one, for there are no conditions or terms of salvation in it. Hence we say that Universalism is not the gospel; for that is the "power of God to salvation to every one that believeth." And Paul says: "It pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." The preaching of the gospel is designed to save men; to save all who believe it; but Universalism has no such object. Men will be saved as well as if it is never preached and believed. If men never hear of it, it will be all the same. But such is not the case with the gospel. Men, to be benefited by it, must hear it, believe it, and obey it; but so far as Universalism is concerned, a man may be an Atheist, a Deist, or a Pagan, and it is all the same, so far as the final result is concerned.

(Concluded next week.)

For the World's Crisis.

ARE WE RIGHT?

1st. Are we right in basing our faith upon God's immutable promises and prophecies, pertaining to the speedy coming of Christ?

2nd. Are we right in publishing all the facts relating to Christ's speedy coming to a perishing world?

3d. Are we right in believing fully that we are within a very few years of the close of Gentile times?

4th. Are we right in locating the kingdom, which God has promised to the little flock, on the earth, after the curse is removed?

5th. Are we right in believing that there is no reward, either to the righteous or the wicked, this side of the judgment?

6th. Are we right in believing that between death and the resurrection there is a total suspension of all consciousness, and that "man" sleeps?

7th. Are we right in rejecting the dogma of the immortality of the soul, and endless hell torture, and going to hell and heaven at death?

8th. Are we right in believing in the resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust?

9th. Are we right in taking the Scriptures as our rule of faith and practice and rejecting all human creeds and disciplines?

10th. Are we right in teaching that all christians should be united; that there should be no divisions among them, but that they should be perfectly joined together in the same mind, and in the same judgment, always observing the new commandment?

11th. Are we right in urging upon all professed christians the very important doctrines—holiness of heart, and godly honesty?

12th. Are we right in urging all men to repentance and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and also to wait for his [God's] Son from heaven?

My brother, my sister, whoever you are; whether black or white, rich or poor, high or low, noble or ignoble; and wherever you are, whether in high or low circles, within the pale of some sectarian church, or out of it; in some one's employ, or otherwise; at home or abroad; on land or water; I wish to ask you an important question,—a question which I urge you to deeply consider, weigh well, ere the judgment day is disclosed. Are you a whole-hearted christian man or women? Do your daily deeds correspond with your profession? While you profess devotion and love for the above principles, do you not in works deny them? While traveling from place to place, uttering the last notes of warning to a fast sinking world, I see things that try my very soul, causing tears of sorrow, and my feet to almost stumble; and nothing but the precious hope of soon seeing Jesus sustains me in such trying moments.

Should I be a consistent man should I put forth an effort to lay plans for a house, get materials together for building, employ some few hands at very low wages, not enough to half support them with the common necessaries of life; and at the same time employ double the amount of hands, and pay them more than double the amount of wages, to undo what the others had done? Would I gain any thing by such an improper and unwise course? Certainly not. I should be a constant loser. I know of a good-hearted brother, who with his wife has identified himself with a certain popular church, and has become a deacon of said church, and paid in for the support of the ministry and church $500; and when I asked permission to preach in that church, I was rejected. Now I ask, in all good conscience, is this right? Must I, with other dear servants of Christ, live on half rations, baring our breasts to the storms; while brethren, cherishing the same faith, will bestow liberally upon those who shut us, our faith and hope out of doors, and do everything to bring them into disrepute? May the Lord open their eyes to such an unjustifiable course.

Dear brethren and sisters, your whole influence, made up of money, words and deeds, should be thrown in that direction which sustains "present truth." Do not, I pray you, thus squander the Lord's money, and neglect the messengers of Jesus Christ, who are toiling early and late, through want and anxiety, to preach the good news of a coming kingdom. I would not seriously object to brethren identifying themselves with popular Protestant churches, or even Roman Catholic churches, provided they would do their whole duty, as men of God; let their light shine out in their songs, prayers, exhortations, sermons, etc. I am ready to identify myself with all such churches, if they will allow me the full liberty of preaching the whole counsel of God. But no, brethren; so soon as they discover that our spirits and faith can not be chained up, or controlled by their influence, they will certainly expel us; so that it is impossible for the ministry or laity to thus connect themselves, and enjoy the freedom of the gospel, and the approbation of God. So, I say, disconnect yourself from all human organisms that shut out your faith and hope, but hold you because of your money. Give not one dollar to support fraternities that love not the precious hope of soon seeing Jesus. You are sinning against God, grieving the Holy Spirit, and wounding the feelings of your ministering brethren, who have borne the heat and burden of the day for more than twenty years.

Thousands of dollars are spent annually by our brethren in attending sectarian donation oyster suppers, and other schemes of religious pride, that all the while seek to pull us down. O my dear brethren and sisters, in the precious hope of immortal blessedness soon, why, oh! in Heaven's name, why will you be so unwise, so inconsistent, so blind, and so careless to the real wants of the bleeding cause of Jesus? Are you afraid of reproach? "If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye." You must bear the reproach of Jesus. Are you doing it? It is utterly impossible for any one to follow in the wake of a proud, popular, worldly-minded church, and please God. There is no use in concealing the fact. If we belong to God, let us show our colors, an unbroken front, and sustain that, and only that, which we know will redound to the glory of God and the salvation of men.

Yours, endeavoring in all things to be consistent, A. N. SEYMOUR.

For the World's Crisis.

STAND FAST.

"Stand fast, therefore, in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage."

Many are the habits and practices to which men and women are slaves in this world. Many that are injurious and sinful. Many that seem but trifles in themselves, yet they lead to vices that may end in wo. Now there is a way of escape from all these. It is through Jesus Christ, who will make us free indeed if we come to him. He can free us from all injurious and bad habits; will free us from all sin, from all unholy passions. He will save and free us from all the snares and allurements of the enemy, from the love of the world, with its pleasures. If we are free in Christ, then we can put on the whole gospel armor, and fight valiantly the good fight of faith, lay aside every besetting sin, and keep out of every thing that is calculated to bring us into bondage.

Satan, with the help of the world, presents to us many a thing in these last days that will bring us into bondage and darkness if we are not very careful. We need to be very watchful, and keep our eye on the leading Star, to keep us in the liberty of the gospel.

I have been a great slave to sin and bad habits, but I thank God that he has taken me out from them, and set me at liberty. "Where there is a will there is a way," is a true saying. We must be decided to be for God, and lay all on the altar, then we shall be heirs with Christ to the promised kingdom. There is where I want to go. Do not you? Let us lay aside every weight, and strive for the kingdom, and if faithful we shall soon have it said unto us, You have overcome the world, sit down with me in My kingdom, to go no more out forever. May this be our happy lot. N. B. McMURPHY.

Gilmanton, N. H.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BIBLE, THE LIGHT, THE LIFE.

HOW TO PREACH—HOW TO WRITE.

"Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life."

To write one earnest word or line,
Which, seeking not the praise of art,
Shall make a clearer faith and manhood shine
In the untutored heart.

Search the Scriptures to know how to preach, how to write. There is no book like the Bible to kindle the soul, and fire it with holy zeal. Why is there so little energy, life, power, holy boldness, heart-searching, thorough-going, off-hand business in the pulpit? in the editorial chair? so little of the prophetical and apostolical? the baptismal fire, and the tongue of fire? Is it not measurably owing to a lack of Bible knowledge, the fire of holy inspiration, the thunderings and lightnings of Sinai, the marrow and fatness of the gospel, the flint, the fire, the hammer, the burning lava of God's word? the electrifying power, issuing directly from heaven's magazine? What kindled seraphically the soul of Isaiah, Jeremiah, Daniel, Paul, Peter, James and John?

What filled the souls of Luther, Wesley, Whitefield, Bunyan, Edwards, and other reformers, and enabled them to stand firmly against the hosts of hell, slay on the right and on the left, cry aloud, spare not, lift their voices like trumpets, fearlessly against every sin, lay the gospel axe at the foot of the Upas tree? What made these holy men of God eminently successful in winning souls to Christ, strong in the Lord and in the power of his might? Was it not owing to their having drunk deeply at this living fountain; their making God's word the Alpha and Omega, the first and the last? meditating, like David, day and night in the Book of books? pouring out their whole souls on the bended knee, before God, for light, life and salvation?

Here lies the secret of pulpit eloquence, editorial eloquence, the eloquence that burns, flashes out, cuts like a razor, or a two-edged sword; slays on the right and on the left; causes Satan to tremble, and fall as lightning from heaven. It is by preaching the Scriptures we receive wisdom from above, which is "first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy;" the only true wisdom that makes the man for the times, the emergencies of the day, the minister, the editor, the watchman on Zion's top. This secret of secrets, this hiding of God's word in the heart, burningly, searchingly, treasuring it up, is like the stone cut out of the mountain; like Moses' rod, that swallowed up all rods.

When Elijah was about to ascend to heaven in a fiery chariot, Elisha besought a parting blessing. What was this?—a double portion of Elijah's spirit. This was a great blessing, mighty; and yet, great as it was, Elijah promised it on conditions of keeping the eye fixed as he ascended in the chariot of fire. This is what every servant of the Most High wants, must have,—a double portion of the Spirit in Elijah.

Minister of Jesus, editor of Jesus, servants of the most high God, desire ye this gospel power, heaven's electricity, the tongue of fire, the pentecostal baptism, eternity's life-giving flash? Take the Bible, read it, search it, pray over it, hide it in your heart, your inmost soul; let the word of God dwell in you richly, in all wisdom, purifyingly, sanctifyingly; meditate in it day and night, rise at midnight for closet duty, walk softly before God as David did, saying, "I have refrained my feet from every evil way, that I might keep thy word."—Psa. 119: 101. "O how love I thy law, it is my meditation all the day." He delighted in God's law after the inner man. O blessed volume divine,

"Let everlasting thanks be thine
For such a bright display,
As makes the world of darkness shine
With beams of heavenly day."

The Bible is compared to a living fountain, inexhaustible. Beloved readers, are you drinking at this fountain, this well of water, of which, if any man drink, he shall never thirst, or die? O, how much we lose by sipping at impure, muddy streams, when we ought to feast ourselves at living fountains. Months and years are lost, worse than lost, by this one omission. "Search the Scriptures," search them, commit them to memory, hide them in your hearts, meditate in them, till your souls are on fire!

"Oh, for the living flame
From his own altar brought,
To touch our lips, our souls inspire,
And wing to heaven our thought."

D. F. NEWTON.

For the World's Crisis.

"I HAVE SINNED."

I wish to write a word to those who are in distress, those who go mourning because of darkness, who feel that they "have fallen into a pit," and are sinking in deep mire. Are you almost ready to despair of ever again seeing the "light of His countenance," and and do you feel that there is "but a step between you and death"? It is my earnest desire to benefit you, and to speak words of consolation, for I know something of your trials by sad experience.

I have seen the time when I felt that "no man cared for my soul;" but if that was all, I could have borne it. If I could have had the assurance that my Maker cared for me, I could have held up my head in the face of a frowning world. But I had not that assurance. I felt that God was angry with me. Is this your case, my tried, tempted, and afflicted brother? Do you think that no remedy can reach deep enough to benefit you? I hear the sad and mournful words—"I have sinned."

O, what boundless sorrow is expressed in that short sentence! "I HAVE SINNED." Deliver me from sin, and I could bear all other sorrow—but this I cannot bear. O, the unutterable pangs of guilt! This is what hides the face of my best Friend in clouds and thick darkness. And earthly friends, like Job's comforters, do not understand the case, and only add sorrow to sorrow, and "talk to the grief of the wounded."

But, my friend, there is even yet a balm in Gilead, and a Physician whose skill can reach your case. If you were the only one that had ever sinned, and if there was no such thing as forgiveness, then indeed your case would be desperate. But even Job, of whom the Lord said, "there is none like him in the earth, a perfect and an upright man," even he confessed in these expressive words, "I have sinned." And other persons who have stood on the very threshold of glory, have afterward had to repeat the sad sentence, "I have sinned." And who is there that has not had such experience? Is it so long ago that you have entirely forgotten it, and have no consciousness of ever having committed sin? If such there be, I have no message for them. I am sent to bind up the broken-hearted, and proclaim deliverance to the captives, and preach forgiveness and remission of sins. It is my privilege to point you to the Advocate, even Jesus, who taketh away the sins of the world.

Do you desire to be lifted out of the "horrible pit" into which you have fallen? Take your Bible, and turn to the one hundred and forty-third Psalm, and you will find words suited to express your feelings and desires. And other portions of Scripture may occur to you that may seem even more appropriate. At all events delay not to seek the Lord with full purpose of heart. For this is your only way of escape out of the pit into which you have fallen. "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to men;" and even if you have been overcome, and fallen into sin, the same has happened to many of those who will yet be heirs of salvation. But make haste to "repent and do the first works."

Sutton, Mass. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

A NOBLE REPLY.—It is related of the celebrated John Howe, chaplain to Oliver Cromwell, that being often applied to for protection by men of all parties in those eventful times, he never refused assistance to any worthy person, whatever his religious views, until one day Cromwell said to him, "Mr. Howe, you have asked favors for every body except yourself; pray, when does your turn come?" "My turn," said Howe, "is always come when I can serve another."

For the World's Crisis.

REMARKS ON THE 144,000.
REV. 7: 14.

Mt. Sinai, and a portion of land surrounding it, was a reserved or special place at the time the people of Israel received the law. None but Moses the mediator, and Aaron the high priest, were allowed to draw nearer than the divinely appointed bounds. Ex. 19: 23; Heb. 12: 20. Moses gives no intimation of there being any others with God on this occasion besides himself and his brother; but other inspired writers intimate that many angels were present. Ps. 68: 17; Acts 7: 53; Gal. 3: 19.

There is now a special place—"the right hand of the Majesty on high"—where Jesus our Mediator and High Priest dwells; a place so exalted, so bright with the glory of God, where neither holy angels nor glorified men approach. Heb. 1: 13; Isa. 6: 2. They stand round about the throne. Rev. 5: 11.

The record of our Lord's ascension, in Acts 1st chapter, gives no account of angels or glorified men attending him, for doubtless the eyes of the disciples "were holden," as in the case of Elisha's servant. 2 Kings 6: 17. Had the disciples been confronted with a host of shining ones, how could they have listened calmly to the parting words of their precious master? But as the prophetic scriptures can not be broken, there must have been a great company present. Two remained a few moments to inform the lovers of Jesus that he would come again in like manner as they had seen him go into heaven.

The angels could have intended no more by this assertion than to assure the disciples that their Master and Lord would return to earth again in a visible manner. If their expression, "in like manner," is used to prove that Christ ascended unattended by a company of holy ones, it is of equal force in proving that he will be seen descending alone, which is contrary to what Jesus himself declares.

In view of the above considerations, derived from the word of truth, we conclude that 144,000 resurrected Old Testament saints were led up to heaven by their Redeemer, and now stand before the throne, as a wave sheaf, an earnest of the whole harvest of righteous ones who will be gathered by angels at the last day. Matt. 27: 52, 53 affirms,—"And the graves were opened, and many dead bodies of the saints which slept arose, and came out of the graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city and appeared unto many." Which is the most reasonable inference to derive from Matthew's testimony—that these saints went back to the grave again, or, that they were taken up by the Conqueror of Death, redeemed from among men, being the first fruits unto God and the Lamb?

According to the marginal reading of Eph. 4: 8, our Savior led a multitude of captives when he ascended up on high. Shall we urge an objection to calling these released ones "captives," when such is the use of language at this day? If Gen. Sherman had released the suffering soldiers at Andersonville, and led them home, would it be improper to say he led a multitude of captives, i. e. men who had suffered captivity?

It is objected that "the 144,000, instead of going to heaven 1800 years ago, were not sealed till the opening of the sixth seal, and that this fact in connection with other considerations, should satisfy every one that the 144,000 are not now in heaven. Such an objection can have no weight in the case unless it can be proved that the chapters of Revelation are chronologically successive, from first to last. The revelator evidently takes up a line of historical and prophetic events of a peculiar kind, and brings it down to the end of probationary time. The seven churches, seven trumpets, seven vials, are examples. The seven seals are presented in the same manner. Now if we argue that the statement of the sealing of the 144,000, occurring after the description of the sixth seal, is proof that the sealing of those saints is yet future, we must by the same rule of reasoning contend that every event named in Revelation, from the seventh chapter to the end, is yet future.

Various explanations are given of the sealed ones of Rev. 7th and 14th. Some apply these scriptures to infants, of whom Jesus says, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." Observers of the Jewish Sabbath claim them as theirs exclusively. Others apply them to Adventists. And a late writer in the Crisis asserts that the 144,000 "are yet to be redeemed from the earth by a resurrection, not from the ranks of the Gentiles, but 'out of all the tribes of the children of Israel,' not being the entire Israelite harvest, but 'the first fruits,' having embraced christianity at an early date."

To my mind all such expositions are unsatisfactory. They leave some beautiful types of the Old Testament, and some portions of the New Testament, to remain in obscurity. But with the view of this special number of Old Testament saints rising and ascending with our great High Priest, we are enabled to harmonize many otherwise mysterious passages of God's word. We can behold by faith our Zion, the city of the living God. The general assembly and church of the first-born are there enrolled. Just men, made perfect by a resurrection from the dead, stand before the eternal throne, as glorious witnesses of Jesus' power to ransom our souls from the power of the grave. There our Savior sits at the right hand of God, the Judge of all, the Mediator of the new covenant, whose precious blood speaks for all who draw nigh to the throne of grace for salvation. But Jesus will soon resign his priestly office and come to earth again, to cleanse it from the curse of sin, and fill it with his glory. Then shall the righteous harvest be gathered to share the glory of the King of Zion.

Wherefore, dear brethren and sisters, "we receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, let us have grace whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear."

Newark, N. J. JOHN LYLE.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 556. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, MAY 30, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 11.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at

107 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. O. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. O. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

LINES.

I know my feet have gone astray,
My heart has bid them go;
Long years I walked the downward path
Of sin and death and woe.

My soul has owned itself condemned
Before its Maker's throne,
But, precious truth, I've found the Lamb
That can for me atone.

Jesus, thou Son of God and man,
Thy bleeding side I see;
Thou art united with our God,
And I, O Christ, with thee!

Lord, I am weak! be thou my strength;
I'm blind, lead thou the way;
I'm poor, grant riches of thy grace;
O ever be my stay.

And when the toils of life are past,
The heavenly rest will come,
Then I shall be with all the blest,
Safe in my Father's home.

MARIA MATHEWS WEAVER.

Westfield, Mass.

UNIVERSALISM EXPOSED FROM THE INNER TEMPLE.

BY JOHN T. WALSH.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

It is no better than Atheism.
It is no better than Deism.
It is no better than Infidelity.
It is no better than Paganism in its results.

We have no doubt that many of our readers will regard the announcement of this discourse as a startling one. But, nevertheless, we have confidence to believe that we can make good all the charges preferred against Universalism in that announcement. We have not the presumption, however, to suppose we shall be able to convince all who lean toward that system of the truth of our charges. But whether we do this or not, we do not intend to play around the outer court of this system. We shall enter the inner temple, walk up its broad aisles, survey its lofty domes, and, if possible, lay hold of its main pillars, and bring down the whole superstructure with a crash.

We propose to examine Universalism as a system, and shall offer no direct argument in favor of endless punishment. The doctrine of endless future punishment, if proved by Universalists to be false, does not establish the truth of Universalism. But, judging from the arguments used by its friends and advocates, one would be led to the conclusion that they supposed, if they disproved the doctrine of future punishment, the truth of Universalism would follow as a necessary conclusion. This, however, is a very great mistake. Universalism and endless punishment may both be false. Our business at present is with Universalism. We propose to analyze the system, and bring out at least some of its dark elements, and expose them in the light of reason and Revelation. We shall enter into its inner temple, and bring out of its treasure things new and old.

We shall argue first upon the hypothesis that the system which teaches "the final holiness and happiness of all men" is true; and upon this hypothesis we remark:

1. Universalism is no better than Atheism in its results.

We affirm this point upon the supposition that the system is true. An Atheist is one who does not believe in God, and has no faith in a future state of being.

But Universalism says, this is no bar to "future holiness and happiness." The Atheist will be as holy and as happy in a future state, as any of the prophets or apostles. Universalism being true, makes no war on this system of unbelief. It says to the Atheist: Though you do not believe in God, in angels, nor spirits, nor in any future state at all, this makes no kind of difference with reference to your final "holiness and happiness." True, you are "without hope and without God in the world;" but all will be right in the end. The Atheist inquires: Do you, Mr. Universalist, believe in the Bible? Oh, yes, says Mr. Universalist, I believe in the Bible. My faith is founded upon that. Well, says the Atheist, I do not believe in God nor in the Bible; but as you say you do, what will you do with this passage, "Without faith it is impossible to please God; for he that cometh to God, must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." What disposition do you, Mr. Universalist, make of this? For I do not belive that God is, or exists; and, of course, if your Bible be true, and there is a God, it is impossible for me to please him; nor can I ever go to him, for I do not believe in his existence. And it seems to me that either your faith or your Bible must be wrong. Oh, no, says Mr. Universalist, it is all right. This text only has reference to this life; but in the next world you will please God, go to him, and be finally and eternally holy and happy. Very well, says the Atheist, I do not believe in any of these things; but, if your doctrine be true, all will be as well with me as with you; so you need not trouble yourself any further to convince me of my error, after the assurance you have given me that I, notwithstanding my Atheism, shall be finally happy and holy.

Now, we say upon the hypothesis that Universalism is true, it aids and abets Atheism; and is no better than the system it thus aids and abets. It gives "aid and comfort" to Atheists, and assures them that they will be made holy and happy by a God in whose existence they have no faith, and in a heaven which they regard as a fable!

Systems equal in their results are equal to one another; but Atheism and Universalism are equal in their results, therefore they are equal to one another.

Do you say their results in this world are different? We demand the proof. Atheists enjoy this world as extensively and as fully as Universalists do. Select any example you please and compare them, and you will find it so. Universalists have assumed without proving it, that all rewards and punishments are meted out in this life. Let them prove this preliminary point, and then they may, perhape, be able to evade the force of the positions here argued. Let them show that Atheists are not so happy in this life as they are; or that Atheists are punished more in this life than they are, or hold their peace forever.

Universalism makes it no better for the most pious than for the Atheist. Robert Owen, the most distinguished Atheist of modern times, was blessed far beyond thousands of pious Christians in this life, and will be equal to them in the future world. The final result is the same; and no Universalist can deny it, without repudiating his faith.

The Atheist may live and die with no faith in God, in Christ, in angels, spirits, nor heaven; in a word, he may live and die like a brute, and with no more faith than a brute, and yet his final holiness and happiness are secured by Universalism! Can Universalists deny this?

We affirm, then, that the system which teaches this is no better than Atheism; for Atheism makes the best of this life, and, if Universalism be true, its chances for the future are as good as any.

Robert Owen said that the idea of a God came into existence by "imagination." He was as benevolent and as kind as any Universalist. No man living more benevolent than he. He expended thousands for the purpose, in his esteem, of ameliorating the condition of humanity, and introducing happiness among men. Has Universalism done more than this? We say, then, if Universalism be true, it is no better than Atheism; for Atheism offers all to the present life that Universalism can; and Universalism, on its part, assures Atheists of a happy future! We say all this upon the hypothesis that Universalism is true; but if it be false, it is worse than Atheism, because it comes as an angel of light, and is more specious; and consequently men are more liable to be deceived by it. It is a counterfeit more difficult to detect and expose.

It matters not by what system of medicine the patient is treated, if all are equal in their final results and the patient recovers. And if our future holiness and happiness are as certain under the influence of Atheism as Universalism, what is the difference?

2. It is no better than Deism in its results.

A Deist is one who rejects the Bible and Jesus Christ, but professes to believe in God. And the Scriptures teach us that "he that denies the Son, denieth the Father also;" but this presents no difficulty in the way of their final holiness and happiness, if Universalism be true. A Deist might come to a Universalist and say: Sir, I do not believe in your Bible at all, nor in him you call Christ—all this is a fable, gotten up by designing men, and I do not believe a word of it. True, says the Universalist, this may be your view of the matter. I know you have no faith in the Bible, nor in Christ; but this will make no kind of difference as to the final result; you will as certainly be holy and happy hereafter as though you had all faith in these things. True, I do not think you will fare so well in this world; but certainly all will be right in the world to come.

Very well, says the Deist, I am pretty happy as I am; I enjoy myself finely; and as you assure me that I shall be happy hereafter, I am content to await the result, in which, however, I tell you I have no faith, and shall not, therefore, concern myself about it. True, Tom Paine like, I believe the mother of Jesus was a prostitute, and that the whole system of which he is the author is a fable and unworthy of credence; but, as you assure me of future bliss, notwithstanding all this, I am not concerned about the matter at all. All will be well in the end.

What can Universalism say to this? Has it any rebuke? Has it any warning? Does it not give Deism license to go on and assure its advocates of final holiness and happiness? Does it not aid and abet Deism, and give comfort to its advocates?

Universalism does not propose to change or alter the destiny of a single human being. That destiny is already determined, and it (Universalism) looks practically to this life only; and so do Atheism and Deism. All these systems leave the future to take care of itself, and utterly ignore any preparation in this life for the next. And as all men will be finally holy and happy, the preaching of Universalism, and believing it, can not make the result more certain. It is a fixed fact, which, if all men were Atheists and Deists, would still be true! Is it not evident, then, that Universalism, in its practical working, is no better than Deism? Has Universalism any warnings against Deism with reference to the future? Are not all its voices hushed in a very significant silence?

3. It is no better than Infidelity in its results.

I use the term Infidelity here with reference to that general unbelief which obtains in society, and which manifests itself in disobedience to the Gospel. All belonging to this class are assured of their final holiness and happiness. They may get drunk, steal, murder, seduce, and commit every other abominable crime in the catalogue of crime, and die in the act of committing them, and the result is the same. Universalism says to every skeptic: You can live in unbelief, and do all to which your heart prompts you, and yet be finally holy and happy. This is certain, believe what you may, and do what you please. Universalism may teach such characters that they will be punished in this life; but they will laugh at the idea, knowing by observation that it is false; continue in sin, and take the consequences. So long as criminals can escape the clutches of the law, what care they? The most hardened criminals feel no remorse, and very often go unwhipped of justice. Universalism, then, aids and abets Infidelity, and, as a practical system, is no better. The result is the same, whether you be an Infidel or a Universalist. For Universalism does not save anybody; it declares that all men ARE SAVED, and only announces a FOREGONE CONCLUSION!

4. It is no better than Paganism in its results.

Universalism says that Paganism is no bar to final holiness and happiness. The knowledge of the true God, first made known to Adam, has always existed in the human mind; but not in every human mind. Paul tells us how this knowledge was lost: "Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful, but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened; professing themselves to be wise, they became fools, and changed the glory of the incorruptible God into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and four-footed beasts, and creeping things. Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness, through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonor their own bodies between themselves; who changed the TRUTH of God into a LIE, and worshiped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed forever. Amen. For this cause God gave them up to vile affections," etc. "And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, GOD GAVE THEM OVER TO A REPROBATE MIND, to do those things which are not convenient; being filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness; full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity, whisperers, backbiters, haters of God," etc., etc. Such, in part, is Paul's account of the origin of idolatry, and some of its consequences. But Universalism says, all this is no bar to future holiness and happiness! But Paul says: "For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness; because that which may be known of God is manifest in (to) them; for God hath SHOWED it to them. For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and godhead; SO THAT THEY ARE WITHOUT EXCUSE." And hence he adds: "For as many as have sinned without law, shall also perish without law." This being the condition of the Pagan world, it accounts for the efforts made by Christians to enlighten the darkness of heathendom with the glorious gospel of the grace of God. Hence the many sacrifices made by missionaries for the purpose of converting the heathen to Christianity. They are perishing for lack of knowledge, and it is the duty of Christians to send the gospel to them. But Universalism says no. They are safe. Their final holiness and happiness are certain. The heathen may worship the sun, moon, and stars, stocks, stones, and reptiles, with impunity; for their eternal felicity is certain. What harm can such worship do, if Universalism be true? What more harmless than such worship, if it does not embarrass the final result—holiness and happiness?

If a Pagan chooses to bow down to the sun once a day, in adoration, what harm can it be, seeing he injures no one by it, and provided Universalism be true? And what if he should sacrifice his children to appease the supposed wrath of the gods, does he not send them to heaven so much the quicker, without in the least retarding his own onward and upward march to that happy end? Universalists send no missionaries to Pagan lands; or if they do, we are not aware of it. And well they may not, if they are already safe for heaven, notwithstanding their idolatry. And what if they are ignorant of the bliss that awaits them? It will be none the less certain!

What if the Athenians bowed the knee to thirty thousand gods? They were wise and happy, and safe for heaven after death. What need for Paul to call upon them to repent, seeing that if they did not repent they were as certain of final holiness and happiness as if they did?

No; but Universalists do not visit Pagan lands as missionaries. They do not go into the dark corners of the earth, where "darkness covers the land, and gross darkness the people." They do not encounter the Atheist and Deist, and challenge them to mortal combat! Oh, no! They love to go among the orthodox. They love to prowl along in the footsteps of those who preach the gospel of the grace of God, and seek to turn away the people from the faith. Satan has no use for them in Pagan lands, and among Atheists, Deists, and Infidels of this class, they are all right! Where there is no danger of the people's believing in future punishment, they do not go! Hence you do not find them preaching to Atheists, Deists, and Pagans; you do not find them seeking entrance into heathen temples! They prefer that the orthodox shall take the lead in this business, and they will come along afterward, and "sow tares among the wheat." They are exceedingly anxious to get into houses for Christian worship, because here, perchance, they may do some mischief. But Universalism is not preached to save any one; for there is no saving power in it, and nothing from which to be saved. And if there was, it could not save any one, for there are no conditions or terms of salvation in it. Hence we say that Universalism is not the gospel; for that is the "power of God to salvation to every one that believeth." And Paul says: "It pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." The preaching of the gospel is designed to save men; to save all who believe it; but Universalism has no such object. Men will be saved as well as if it is never preached and believed. If men never hear of it, it will be all the same. But such is not the case with the gospel. Men, to be benefited by it, must hear it, believe it, and obey it; but so far as Universalism is concerned, a man may be an Atheist, a Deist, or a Pagan, and it is all the same, so far as the final result is concerned.

(Concluded next week.)

For the World's Crisis.

ARE WE RIGHT?

1st. Are we right in basing our faith upon God's immutable promises and prophecies, pertaining to the speedy coming of Christ?

2nd. Are we right in publishing all the facts relating to Christ's speedy coming to a perishing world?

3d. Are we right in believing fully that we are within a very few years of the close of Gentile times?

4th. Are we right in locating the kingdom, which God has promised to the little flock, on the earth, after the curse is removed?

5th. Are we right in believing that there is no reward, either to the righteous or the wicked, this side of the judgment?

6th. Are we right in believing that between death and the resurrection there is a total suspension of all consciousness, and that "man" sleeps?

7th. Are we right in rejecting the dogma of the immortality of the soul, and endless hell torture, and going to hell and heaven at death?

8th. Are we right in believing in the resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust?

9th. Are we right in taking the Scriptures as our rule of faith and practice and rejecting all human creeds and disciplines?

10th. Are we right in teaching that all christians should be united; that there should be no divisions among them, but that they should be perfectly joined together in the same mind, and in the same judgment, always observing the new commandment?

11th. Are we right in urging upon all professed christians the very important doctrines—holiness of heart, and godly honesty?

12th. Are we right in urging all men to repentance and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and also to wait for his [God's] Son from heaven?

My brother, my sister, whoever you are; whether black or white, rich or poor, high or low, noble or ignoble; and wherever you are, whether in high or low circles, within the pale of some sectarian church, or out of it; in some one's employ, or otherwise; at home or abroad; on land or water; I wish to ask you an important question,—a question which I urge you to deeply consider, weigh well, ere the judgment day is disclosed. Are you a whole-hearted christian man or woman? Do your daily deeds correspond with your profession? While you profess devotion and love for the above principles, do you not in works deny them? While traveling from place to place, uttering the last notes of warning to a fast sinking world, I see things that try my very soul, causing tears of sorrow, and my feet to almost stumble; and nothing but the precious hope of soon seeing Jesus sustains me in such trying moments.

Should I be a consistent man should I put forth an effort to lay plans for a house, get materials together for building, employ some few hands at very low wages, not enough to half support them with the common necessaries of life; and at the same time employ double the amount of hands, and pay them more than double the amount of wages, to undo what the others had done? Would I gain any thing by such an improper and unwise course? Certainly not. I should be a constant loser. I know of a good-hearted brother, who with his wife has identified himself with a certain popular church, and has become a deacon of said church, and paid in for the support of the ministry and church $500; and when I asked permission to preach in that church, I was rejected. Now I ask, in all good conscience, is this right? Must I, with other dear servants of Christ, live on half rations, baring our breasts to the storms; while brethren, cherishing the same faith, will bestow liberally upon those who shut us, our faith and hope out of doors, and do everything to bring them into disrepute? May the Lord open their eyes to such an unjustifiable course.

Dear brethren and sisters, your whole influence, made up of money, words and deeds, should be thrown in that direction which sustains "present truth." Do not, I pray you, thus squander the Lord's money, and neglect the messengers of Jesus Christ, who are toiling early and late, through want and anxiety, to preach the good news of a coming kingdom. I would not seriously object to brethren identifying themselves with popular Protestant churches, or even Roman Catholic churches, provided they would do their whole duty, as men of God; let their light shine out in their songs, prayers, exhortations, sermons, etc. I am ready to identify myself with all such churches, if they will allow me the full liberty of preaching the whole counsel of God. But no, brethren; so soon as they discover that our spirits and faith can not be chained up, or controlled by their influence, they will certainly expel us; so that it is impossible for the ministry or laity to thus connect themselves, and enjoy the freedom of the gospel, and the approbation of God. So, I say, disconnect yourself from all human organisms that shut out your faith and hope, but hold you because of your money. Give not one dollar to support fraternities that love not the precious hope of soon seeing Jesus. You are sinning against God, grieving the Holy Spirit, and wounding the feelings of your ministering brethren, who have borne the heat and burden of the day for more than twenty years.

Thousands of dollars are spent annually by our brethren in attending sectarian donation oyster suppers, and other schemes of religious pride, that all the while seek to pull us down. O my dear brethren and sisters, in the precious hope of immortal blessedness soon, why, oh! in Heaven's name, why will you be so unwise, so inconsistent, so blind, and so careless to the real wants of the bleeding cause of Jesus? Are you afraid of reproach? "If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye." You must bear the reproach of Jesus. Are you doing it? It is utterly impossible for any one to follow in the wake of a proud, popular, worldly-minded church, and please God. There is no use in concealing the fact. If we belong to God, let us show our colors, an unbroken front, and sustain that, and only that, which we know will redound to the glory of God and the salvation of men.

Yours, endeavoring in all things to be consistent, A. N. SEYMOUR.

For the World's Crisis.

STAND FAST.

"Stand fast, therefore, in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage."

Many are the habits and practices to which men and women are slaves in this world. Many that are injurious and sinful. Many that seem but trifles in themselves, yet they lead to vices that may end in wo. Now there is a way of escape from all these. It is through Jesus Christ, who will make us free indeed if we come to him. He can free us from all injurious and bad habits; will free us from all sin, from all unholy passions. He will save and free us from all the snares and allurements of the enemy, from the love of the world, with its pleasures. If we are free in Christ, then we can put on the whole gospel armor, and fight valiantly the good fight of faith, lay aside every besetting sin, and keep out of every thing that is calculated to bring us into bondage.

Satan, with the help of the world, presents to us many a thing in these last days that will bring us into bondage and darkness if we are not very careful. We need to be very watchful, and keep our eye on the leading Star, to keep us in the liberty of the gospel.

I have been a great slave to sin and bad habits, but I thank God that he has taken me out from them, and set me at liberty. "Where there is a will there is a way," is a true saying. We must be decided to be for God, and lay all on the altar, then we shall be heirs with Christ to the promised kingdom. There is where I want to go. Do not you? Let us lay aside every weight, and strive for the kingdom, and if faithful we shall soon have it said unto us, You have overcome the world, sit down with me in My kingdom, to go no more out forever. May this be our happy lot. N. B. MCMURPHY.

Gilmanton, N. H.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BIBLE, THE LIGHT, THE LIFE.

HOW TO PREACH—HOW TO WRITE.

"Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life."

To write one earnest word or line,
Which, seeking not the praise of art,
Shall make a clearer faith and manhood shine
In the untutored heart.

Search the Scriptures to know how to preach, how to write. There is no book like the Bible to kindle the soul, and fire it with holy zeal. Why is there so little energy, life, power, holy boldness, heart-searching, thorough-going, off-hand business in the pulpit? in the editorial chair? so little of the prophetical and apostolical? the baptismal fire, and the tongue of fire? Is it not measurably owing to a lack of Bible knowledge, the fire of holy inspiration, the thunderings and lightnings of Sinai, the marrow and fatness of the gospel, the flint, the fire, the hammer, the burning lava of God's word? the electrifying power, issuing directly from heaven's magazine? What kindled seraphically the soul of Isaiah, Jeremiah, Daniel, Paul, Peter, James and John?

What filled the souls of Luther, Wesley, Whitefield, Bunyan, Edwards, and other reformers, and enabled them to stand firmly against the hosts of hell, slay on the right and on the left, cry aloud, spare not, lift their voices like trumpets, fearlessly against every sin, lay the gospel axe at the foot of the Upas tree? What made these holy men of God eminently successful in winning souls to Christ, strong in the Lord and in the power of his might? Was it not owing to their having drunk deeply at this living fountain; their making God's word the Alpha and Omega, the first and the last? meditating, like David, day and night in the Book of books? pouring out their whole souls on the bended knee, before God, for light, life and salvation?

Here lies the secret of pulpit eloquence, editorial eloquence, the eloquence that burns, flashes out, cuts like a razor, or a two-edged sword; slays on the right and on the left; causes Satan to tremble, and fall as lightning from heaven. It is by preaching the Scriptures we receive wisdom from above, which is "first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy;" the only true wisdom that makes the man for the times, the emergencies of the day, the minister, the editor, the watchman on Zion's top. This secret of secrets, this hiding of God's word in the heart, burningly, searchingly, treasuring it up, is like the stone cut out of the mountain; like Moses' rod, that swallowed up all rods.

When Elijah was about to ascend to heaven in a fiery chariot, Elisha besought a parting blessing. What was this?—a double portion of Elijah's spirit. This was a great blessing, mighty; and yet, great as it was, Elijah promised it on conditions of keeping the eye fixed as he ascended in the chariot of fire. This is what every servant of the Most High wants, must have,—a double portion of the Spirit in Elijah.

Minister of Jesus, editor of Jesus, servants of the most high God, desire ye this gospel power, heaven's electricity, the tongue of fire, the pentecostal baptism, eternity's life-giving flash? Take the Bible, read it, search it, pray over it, hide it in your heart, your inmost soul; let the word of God dwell in you richly, in all wisdom, purifyingly, sanctifyingly; meditate in it day and night, rise at midnight for closet duty, walk softly before God as David did, saying, "I have refrained my feet from every evil way, that I might keep thy word."—Psa. 119: 101. "O how love I thy law, it is my meditation all the day." He delighted in God's law after the inner man. O blessed volume divine,

"Let everlasting thanks be thine
For such a bright display,
As makes the world of darkness shine
With beams of heavenly day."

The Bible is compared to a living fountain, inexhaustible. Beloved readers, are you drinking at this fountain, this well of water, of which, if any man drink, he shall never thirst, or die? O, how much we lose by sipping at impure, muddy streams, when we ought to feast ourselves at living fountains. Months and years are lost, worse than lost, by this one omission. "Search the Scriptures," search them, commit them to memory, hide them in your hearts, meditate in them, till your souls are on fire!

"Oh, for the living flame
From his own altar brought,
To touch our lips, our souls inspire,
And wing to heaven our thought."

D. F. NEWTON.

For the World's Crisis.

"I HAVE SINNED."

I wish to write a word to those who are in distress, those who go mourning because of darkness, who feel that they "have fallen into a pit," and are sinking in deep mire. Are you almost ready to despair of ever again seeing the "light of His countenance," and and do you feel that there is "but a step between you and death"? It is my earnest desire to benefit you, and to speak words of consolation, for I know something of your trials by sad experience.

I have seen the time when I felt that "no man cared for my soul;" but if that was all, I could have borne it. If I could have had the assurance that my Maker cared for me, I could have held up my head in the face of a frowning world. But I had not that assurance. I felt that God was angry with me. Is this your case, my tried, tempted, and afflicted brother? Do you think that no remedy can reach deep enough to benefit you? I hear the sad and mournful words—"I have sinned."

O, what boundless sorrow is expressed in that short sentence! "I HAVE SINNED." Deliver me from sin, and I could bear all other sorrow—but this I cannot bear. O, the unutterable pangs of guilt! This is what hides the face of my best Friend in clouds and thick darkness. And earthly friends, like Job's comforters, do not understand the case, and only add sorrow to sorrow, and "talk to the grief of the wounded."

But, my friend, there is even yet a balm in Gilead, and a Physician whose skill can reach your case. If you were the only one that had ever sinned, and if there was no such thing as forgiveness, then indeed your case would be desperate. But even Job, of whom the Lord said, "there is none like him in the earth, a perfect and an upright man," even he confessed in these expressive words, "I have sinned." And other persons who have stood on the very threshold of glory, have afterward had to repeat the sad sentence, "I have sinned." And who is there that has not had such experience? Is it so long ago that you have entirely forgotten it, and have no consciousness of ever having committed sin? If such there be, I have no message for them. I am sent to bind up the broken-hearted, and proclaim deliverance to the captives, and preach forgiveness and remission of sins. It is my privilege to point you to the Advocate, even Jesus, who taketh away the sins of the world.

Do you desire to be lifted out of the "horrible pit" into which you have fallen? Take your Bible, and turn to the one hundred and forty-third Psalm, and you will find words suited to express your feelings and desires. And other portions of Scripture may occur to you that may seem even more appropriate. At all events delay not to seek the Lord with full purpose of heart. For this is your only way of escape out of the pit into which you have fallen. "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to men;" and even if you have been overcome, and fallen into sin, the same has happened to many of those who will yet be heirs of salvation. But make haste to "repent and do the first works."

Sutton, Mass. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

A NOBLE REPLY.—It is related of the celebrated John Howe, chaplain to Oliver Cromwell, that being often applied to for protection by men of all parties in those eventful times, he never refused assistance to any worthy person, whatever his religious views, until one day Cromwell said to him, "Mr. Howe, you have asked favors for every body except yourself; pray, when does your turn come?" "My turn," said Howe, "is always come when I can serve another."

For the World's Crisis.

REMARKS ON THE 144,000.

REV. 7: 14.

Mt. Sinai, and a portion of land surrounding it, was a reserved or special place at the time the people of Israel received the law. None but Moses the mediator, and Aaron the high priest, were allowed to draw nearer than the divinely appointed bounds. Ex. 19: 23; Heb. 12: 20. Moses gives no intimation of there being any others with God on this occasion besides himself and his brother; but other inspired writers intimate that many angels were present. Ps. 68: 17; Acts 7: 53; Gal. 3: 19.

There is now a special place—"the right hand of the Majesty on high"—where Jesus our Mediator and High Priest dwells; a place so exalted, so bright with the glory of God, where neither holy angels nor glorified men approach. Heb. 1: 13; Isa. 6: 2. They stand round about the throne. Rev. 5: 11.

The record of our Lord's ascension, in Acts 1st chapter, gives no account of angels or glorified men attending him, for doubtless the eyes of the disciples "were holden," as in the case of Elisha's servant. 2 Kings 6: 17. Had the disciples been confronted with a host of shining ones, how could they have listened calmly to the parting words of their precious master? But as the prophetic scriptures can not be broken, there must have been a great company present. Two remained a few moments to inform the lovers of Jesus that he would come again in like manner as they had seen him go into heaven.

The angels could have intended no more by this assertion than to assure the disciples that their Master and Lord would return to earth again in a visible manner. If their expression, "in like manner," is used to prove that Christ ascended unattended by a company of holy ones, it is of equal force in proving that he will be seen descending alone, which is contrary to what Jesus himself declares.

In view of the above considerations, derived from the word of truth, we conclude that 144,000 resurrected Old Testament saints were led up to heaven by their Redeemer, and now stand before the throne, as a wave sheaf, an earnest of the whole harvest of righteous ones who will be gathered by angels at the last day. Matt. 27: 52, 53 affirms,—"And the graves were opened, and many dead bodies of the saints which slept arose, and came out of the graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city and appeared unto many." Which is the most reasonable inference to derive from Matthew's testimony—that these saints went back to the grave again, or, that they were taken up by the Conqueror of Death, redeemed from among men, being the first fruits unto God and the Lamb?

According to the marginal reading of Eph. 4: 8, our Savior led a multitude of captives when he ascended up on high. Shall we urge an objection to calling these released ones "captives," when such is the use of language at this day? If Gen. Sherman had released the suffering soldiers at Andersonville, and led them home, would it be improper to say he led a multitude of captives, i. e. men who had suffered captivity?

It is objected that "the 144,000, instead of going to heaven 1800 years ago, were not sealed till the opening of the sixth seal, and that this fact in connection with other considerations, should satisfy every one that the 144,000 are not now in heaven. Such an objection can have no weight in the case unless it can be proved that the chapters of Revelation are chronologically successive, from first to last. The revelator evidently takes up a line of historical and prophetic events of a peculiar kind, and brings it down to the end of probationary time. The seven churches, seven trumpets, seven vials, are examples. The seven seals are presented in the same manner. Now if we argue that the statement of the sealing of the 144,000, occurring after the description of the sixth seal, is proof that the sealing of those saints is yet future, we must by the same rule of reasoning contend that every event named in Revelation, from the seventh chapter to the end, is yet future.

Various explanations are given of the sealed ones of Rev. 7th and 14th. Some apply these scriptures to infants, of whom Jesus says, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." Observers of the Jewish Sabbath claim them as theirs exclusively. Others apply them to Adventists. And a late writer in the Crisis asserts that the 144,000 "are yet to be redeemed from the earth by a resurrection, not from the ranks of the Gentiles, but 'out of all the tribes of the children of Israel,' not being the entire Israelite harvest, but 'the first fruits,' having embraced christianity at an early date."

To my mind all such expositions are unsatisfactory. They leave some beautiful types of the Old Testament, and some portions of the New Testament, to remain in obscurity. But with the view of this special number of Old Testament saints rising and ascending with our great High Priest, we are enabled to harmonize many otherwise mysterious passages of God's word. We can behold by faith our Zion, the city of the living God. The general assembly and church of the first-born are there enrolled. Just men, made perfect by a resurrection from the dead, stand before the eternal throne, as glorious witnesses of Jesus' power to ransom our souls from the power of the grave. There our Savior sits at the right hand of God, the Judge of all, the Mediator of the new covenant, whose precious blood speaks for all who draw nigh to the throne of grace for salvation. But Jesus will soon resign his priestly office and come to earth again, to cleanse it from the curse of sin, and fill it with his glory. Then shall the righteous harvest be gathered to share the glory of the King of Zion.

Wherefore, dear brethren and sisters, "we receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, let us have grace whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear."

Newark, N. J. JOHN LYLE.

For the World's Crisis.

GOSPEL FREEDOM.

Have you obtained the freedom of the gospel? "If, therefore, the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed."—John 8: 36. From what will the Son free us? From the "law of sin and death." "For the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." Then from condemnation. There is no condemnation to those who "walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." Blessed freedom! Also from the love of the world. "If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." Also from seeking to please men. "For if I yet seek to please man, I should not be the servant of Christ." "Whosoever, therefore, will be a friend of the world, is the enemy of God."—James 4: 4. And from covetousness. "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." From impatience. "Let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing." "But if ye have envy and strife in your hearts, glory not; for where envy and strife is, there is confusion and every evil work."

Again, from idle words. Jesus himself hath said, "Every idle word that a man shall speak he shall give account thereof in the day of judgment." "If any among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, that man's religion is vain." He will also free us from fear which hath torment. "He that feareth is not made perfect in love." "He came to save them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage."

Finally, he will free us from all sin. "Being now made free from sin and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life." This glorious freedom is worthy of its divine Author. Blessed be his holy name! Let us prove ourselves, whether we be in the faith.

Said a deeply pious author, "We can never deem the work of our redemption complete until we do good without effort, just as the sinner does evil. The degree of ease with which one does what is right, is the measure of the degree of our redemption. In the highest stages of our personal regeneration, the thoughts, affections, desires, and even the will, all tend of their own accord toward their natural centre. Such a soul does right without a struggle with opposing tendencies, without an effort, and sometimes without knowing it. It is not driven by conscience to duty (for instance, to commune with God in secret prayer), like a slave to a task; its nature flows in that direction. Such a soul has recovered its native freedom."

What are the terms upon which this freedom is based? Repentance, full consecration, simple faith, and obedience; upon these conditions can it be obtained and retained. Reader, if you have not obtained this glorious freedom, will you not come as you are, come this moment, make a full and everlasting dedication of soul, body and spirit to God and his service, and take him at his word, and you will experience the blessedness of those precious words of Christ, that whom the Son makes free is free indeed. "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." Then will he not be ashamed to confess you before his Father and the holy angels. Otherwise, he will never say, "Well done."

L. Robbins.

For the World's Crisis.

"HAVING NOTHING, YET POSSESSING ALL THINGS."

Bro. Grant:—I find the above to be one of the qualifications of God's ministers, as described in 2 Cor., 6th chapter. I would follow Paul's description. For some time I have tried to preach the gospel, but was fettered by a few acres of land. This spring, I sold my home in Savoy, Mass., and moved to Pittstown, N. Y. Went into a little house, twenty by fifteen, with two rooms and a pantry. After paying expenses, I find myself in possession of $300, all I have in this world. But, like Gideon's army, it is too much to conquer the Midianites. I thought of putting a part into the bank. And will, only my bank is on "the other side." Enclosed you will find fifty dollars, which distribute as follows: ten to the Tract Fund; ten to send the Crisis to the poor; ten to the Freedmen, and twenty to the European Mission. And now, feeling free, if any desire my humble labors, without money or price, or if they know of any doors open in the regions beyond, let them write me at Hoosick Falls, N. Y., or through the Crisis. Your brother, loving his appearing,

H. Hadlock.

The Young Pilgrim for June 1st.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

The Young Pilgrim for June 1st contains articles of interest for young and old, among which are the following:—

"Last Day Signs and Wonders—The Northern Lights" (with a splendid engraving), in which a description of some of the more remarkable of modern Auroras is given, and their greater frequency and striking peculiarities as compared with those of ancient times noticed; showing a remarkable fulfillment of the prophet Joel's predicted "signs and wonders,"—"Blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke"—which were to be seen "before the great and the terrible day of the Lord come." "A Heathen Boy's Vision of Jesus." A remarkable vision which a heathen boy had in India, in which Jesus appeared to him, and told him that "this is the last time," and directed him to go and warn his friends to "flee from the wrath to come." Related by a Baptist Missionary in India.—"A Talk in the Garden," between Mary and her mother, about the Kingdom of Heaven.—"What 'I'll Try' will do;"—showing how many hundreds of Sunday-schools were started, and how many thousands of children were gathered in, all as the result of one effort of a little boy.—"Home! Sweet Home!" O, that I were at home!—What to seek first.—Song of the Pilgrim Band.—The Cold Water Boy.—I wont play with Swearers.—Young Pilgrim Letters, Bible Questions and Puzzles, etc.

Get New Subscribers.

Most of the "Young Pilgrim" subscriptions end with June, and begin with July; many, therefore, expire with the number for June 15th. Now is the time to renew. It is a good time, also, to get new subscribers, and form new clubs. Our Sunday-schools and the young everywhere need and ought to have "the children's paper," just as much as the older ones need their papers. Wherever it is taken, it is liked, and does good. It ought to be in every family where there are children, and in every Sunday-school. Who will do what they can to enlarge its circle of influence, and increase its means of doing good? Will you, reader, do what you can?

Send for specimen numbers, and begin the work now. Address Young Pilgrim, Boston, Mass.

Bro. Joseph Pinkham, Dover, N. H., writes:—"Bro. Grant, I have looked over your new work, 'Spiritualism Unveiled,' and like it much. I shall do all I can to spread the work wherever I go. I enclose $10.00 for one hundred copies."

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, May 30, 1866.

☞ Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year; but if delayed six months beyond the time of payment, the price is $3.00 a year. Thus 50 cents a year is saved by paying in advance.

☞ Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank-checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the Business Agent, GEO. T. ADAMS.

BEAR THE CROSS.

But few are aware how much good they can do till they begin in earnest to do what they can. It is often quite crossing to begin; after that the burden is light. The cross is not in doing, but in thinking about it before we act. When we are willing to do what we can, and begin, the remainder is usually accomplished with joy in the Lord. He carries us and the cross too, and makes our burden light. The heavier the cross, the richer the blessing. We can not backslide till we refuse to bear some cross.

The following item is a noble example of cross-bearing, and the results were such as might be expected:

"Illinois papers report that a short time ago quite a number of persons were congregated together in Lacon for the purpose of dancing, when a lady of their number said she thought dancing was a foolish and sinful way of spending time, and that if the gentlemen and ladies would kneel down she would pray for them. They did so and they held a good prayer meeting. Quite a number who were at the ball have since been converted."

The young lady probably felt it no cross to go to the ball; but when the Spirit of God strove with her, it must have been very crossing to have knelt down to pray in that gay company; but the Lord gave her the victory. Under the cross was concealed the blessing.

Let us all stand up more boldly for Jesus, our best friend.

GENERAL UNEASINESS.

There is a peculiar state of uneasiness in the minds of the people in this country, as well as in Europe, and other portions of the world. The storm-clouds of war are gathering again, and the political omens are far from promising a state of prosperity to this nation. Observing men, who seldom, if ever, look into the Bible to read the prophecies that relate to the last days, are looking for just such times and events as are foretold by the prophets.

Says the editor of the Washington Daily Chronicle:—

"It would be unmanly to deny the fact that at no period, either before, during, or since the rebellion, has there been so general an uneasiness, not to say apprehension, as at the present moment. We write with no purpose to alarm, and certainly with none to weaken, the popular heart, when we declare that upon the issue of a few days, and upon the unity, dignity, and prudence of the American Congress, depend all our material interests. Under God, we have, in fact, no other direct human reliance but the American people and their 'representatives in Congress assembled.'"

Statesmen are exceedingly perplexed, and know not what to do. They have proposed all sorts of measures, and tried some of them, to improve the state of society; but all their efforts, thus far, are but so many failures; and this may be expected as the continued result of all their plans to introduce the "good time."

The great truth to be proclaimed to this generation is, Jesus is soon coming, prepare to meet him. Dear reader, are you ready? If not, we would entreat you to make a preparation for the day of the Lord your first business. Delay not. There is not a moment to be lost. Come while mercy lingers. Do not give up eternal life for the fleeting, unsatisfying pleasures, riches and honors of this vain world. Decide now, by the help of the Lord, I will be a christian.

ITALY.

Italy is in a complete state of fermentation. The present aspect of things indicates that peace cannot be long sustained. Garibaldi, the great Italian leader, is again marshaling his forces to liberate the Italians from the power of "the mother of harlots." The end of the Roman power must be at hand; consequently, the coming of Christ is an event to be expected within a short period.

It is said, Garibaldi is "ready to enter upon the war-path at a moment's warning." Are we, as christians, "ready . . . at a moment's warning" to meet the Lord? We need to be minute men now. Great events may be expected to burst upon us at any time. Soon it will be too late to prepare. Let us not neglect any thing that we need to do in order to be prepared for the marriage of the Lamb. O what a blessed hope is ours, of soon being in the company of all the holy ones, to be parted no more for ever.

ADVANCE OF TRUTH.

We are glad to learn that the doctrine of eternal torment is being given up by many in Europe, as well as in America. The following is from the "Scotch American Journal:"

"In addition to the sermon lately preached at the Chapel Royal by Rev. Charles Kingsley, several other clergymen of the Church of England have published their disbelief in the eternal punishment of the wicked. The London Patriot of March 29 says:—'Mr. E. F. Litton, M. A.; the Rev. Thomas Davis, M. A., incumbent of Roundhay, and the Rev. John Barton, M. A., curate of Rivenhall, Essex, all contend that the natural immortality of the soul cannot be established either by reason or Scripture—that eternal life is conferred by God through Christ upon the Redeemed, and that the wicked are destined literally to perish.' We have heard, though we are somewhat doubtful of the authority, that Mr. Barton has been called to account for his book by the Bishop of Rochester, but after the decision in the Wilson case it is not likely that either he or any of those who think and write as he does will be hindered from promulgating their views."

In our own mind, we are just as well satisfied that the wicked will be destroyed, as we are that Jesus is our Savior. We do not see how this truth could be more clearly and positively expressed than it is now in the Bible. But if the soul is the "real man," and is immortal, then of course the wicked must live in eternal torment, instead of receiving "the wages of sin," which "is DEATH." Let us believe the Bible if it spoils all our creeds.

PALACE OF THE CÆSARS.

Napoleon is fast gaining power and influence over the world. He is remarkably successful in all his undertakings. The most important positions are coming under his control. The political world trembles at his steps, and stands in wonder at the development of his well arranged schemes. He keeps his own counsel, and asks no advice; while he keeps the people in a state of fevered excitement as to what will be the next movement.

Dr. Holbrook writes from Rome, April 19th, 1866, to the New York Independent, and says:—

"To-day, having obtained a special permit, I am to visit the ruins of the immense Palace of the Cæsars, which Napoleon III. has purchased, and where he is making extensive excavations."

THE STATE OF EUROPE.

The war aspect in Europe is now very threatening. There appears to be scarcely any chance for continued peace. The approaching war storm has all the appearance of a terrible tempest, such as has not been witnessed in this generation.

The London Times of May 11th, when speaking of the state of things in Europe, says:—

"The whole Prussian army is mobilized, and great bodies of troops are massed along the frontiers. Austria is bringing into the field every man she can raise, and as for Italy the whole nation is panting for war. There were rumors of communications by France and England with Austria, with a view to averting an outbreak, but nothing authentic. The latest Florence papers regard war as inevitable, and say by the modification of the Ministry about to take place Gen. La Marmora will receive the military command."

A Berlin correspondent writes:—

"Rumors were current at Vienna of Russian preparation for war. Orders had also been issued at Constantinople for the Turkish army to be raised to its full strength, and calling out 12,000 reserves.

Late dispatches from Vienna say the aspect of affairs is regarded as threatening, the hope of moderation and peace being regarded as illusory.

Loyal and military measures are reported from various parts of Austria.

A Vienna paper says the reply of Prussia to the last Austrian note has been received, and is calculated to cause a complete rupture between the two Powers."

The latest intelligence says:—

"The prospects of war were apparently thickening.

There was no confirmation of the rumored movement for a European Congress, and no signs of mediation.

Napoleon had made a significant speech, in which he said he detested the treaty of 1815. The Paris Bourse accepted it as a signal for war, and a severe panic set in and rentes fell 2 per cent. almost.

Orders have been issued placing the whole Austrian army on a war footing.

Great military activity was being manifested in Italy. Volunteers were being received into the army for one year's service. A Royal decree had been issued ordering the formation of a volunteer corps of twenty battalions under the command of Gen. Garibaldi.

Warlike preparations are reported from the middle German States."

"The Berlin correspondent of the Times says that within three weeks the Prussian army will have been raised to a total of 415,000 men, 246,000 of whom are ready to take the field. Prussia having entered upon earnest preparations, the decision cannot long remain problematical. Austria and Italy are not rich enough to keep their men in the field unemployed. The Prussian Exchequer, being as yet tolerably well filled, will allow the King to hold out a little longer than his opponents.

The Times says the Austrian army costs three million pounds sterling per month.

Advices from Venetia say it is expected the Austrian army in Venetia will be completely equipped and augmented to its full strength by the 11th of May. This strength is expected to reach 200,000 men, which is considered greatly in excess of what is required. Steamers were being ordered in London for Italy, and large contracts for horses are said to have been received from Prussia."

"Vienna papers publish a telegram from Florence alleging that the Italian attack upon Venice will take place on the 11th of May."

"It is stated that the French Minister of War has ordered the purchase of 10,000 horses."

It is evident that the peace of Europe hangs upon a very brittle thread, which is liable to be broken any day. We see no reason to look for any better state of things than we now have, before the second coming of Christ. Men are becoming more and more fierce every month, and will not be satisfied short of a bloody conflict. The demons are arousing the passions of men to a terrible state, preparatory for the battle of Armageddon. The evidences continually grow brighter to show that Jesus is soon coming.

PANIC IN LONDON.

Late news from England informs us that there is a great money panic in London, surpassing any other for forty years, and perhaps ever known in that great city. It came suddenly and unexpectedly. It broke out in full force May 10th, by the suspension of Overend, Gurney & Co. Their liabilities are said to be ten or twelve millions sterling, or about fifty or sixty million dollars. When this company suspended, of course several others were obliged to follow the example. Among other failures were "The English Joint Stock" bank, for eight hundred thousand pounds sterling, or some four million dollars; Pet and Betts for four million sterling, or twenty million dollars; W. S. Hampton, for two thousand pounds sterling, or one million dollars, etc. etc. In consequence of this panic, the Bank of England suspended the Bank Charter act. The state of things in London is called a "reign of terror."

The London Times says:—

"If anything can justify a suspension of the Bank charter act, the panic swaying the city to and fro on Friday may excuse this step, although we believe the reign of terror was approaching its end, and would have speedily ceased had no infringement of the Bank law been permitted. Even now it is probable the license allowed to the Bank will not be used. It cannot, however, be denied that about mid-day yesterday the tumult became a rout. The doors of the most respectable banking houses were besieged, more, perhaps, by a mob actuated by that strange sympathy which makes and keeps a mob together, than by the creditors of the banks, and the throngs heaving and tumbling about Lombard street made that narrow thoroughfare impassable. The excitement on all sides was such as has not been witnessed since the great crisis of 1825. Each man exaggerated the suspicions of his neighbor, and until a report, at that time unfounded, was circulated in the afternoon that the government had authorized the bank directors to issue five millions additional in notes, it seemed as if fear and distrust of the commercial world has suddenly become boundless. The statement was baseless at the time, but served to allay a panic which had no solid foundation. Even the announcement of Peto's suspension did not revive the panic in its first intensity, and the statement of their stoppages produced little effect.

The action of the government was announced in the House of Commons on Friday at midnight by Mr. Gladstone, who said he had been engaged all the evening in consultation with bankers and others, and who represented to him that the panic in the city was without a parallel in the financial history of the country. Mr. Gladstone said he had addressed a letter to the directors of the Bank of England to the effect that if they should find occasion to afford relief to the wants of legitimate commerce and make such advances as would require an issue of notes beyond the amount allowed by the act, the government recommended them not to hesitate in doing so, and undertook, in the event of that contingency, to make immediate application to Parliament for an act of indemnity."

The panic has reached Liverpool; and unless it stops soon, must become general throughout the financial world.

FENIANISM IN THE ENGLISH ARMY.

The English are just beginning to learn the fact that their army is largely in favor of the Fenian movement. Her chief reliance has been, and still is, upon her army. If that should not be true, her condition would be very critical in case she was attacked by the Fenians, sustained by Napoleon.

Says a Dublin correspondent of the Boston Journal:—

"Again I must repeat that the Horse Guards are thoroughly alarmed at the disaffection which plainly exists throughout the Irish soldiers in the service of Her Majesty. Every day arrests are being made, every week two or three, or more, courts-martial sit to try them. The men are condemned on suspicion, for it is very difficult to obtain the proof which an American court martial would require before conviction. And still Fenianism seems making rapid strides in every regiment where an Irishman exists. The soldiers in the cities and towns in Ireland are constantly in public houses, drinking and conversing with civilians—aye, and with those who are strongly suspected of disloyalty. As long as this continues, England may expect her troops to become converts to Fenianism. But I find that the Irish soldiers have a good opinion of the existing state of affairs, and seem thoroughly prepared to take part with the people when a blow is struck. This is no sensation news, but from my circumstances here I have a good opportunity of judging of this matter, and I have no hesitation in certifying to its truth. I often, in America, heard Fenian lecturers make this statement, and I could scarcely credit it, but I now could name several regiments upon whose fidelity to James Stephens I could stake my life. There are a large number of soldiers still under arrest for Fenianism, awaiting trial. During the sitting of the Special Commission in Cork, a member of the 4th Dragoons was riding up Patrick's Hill to the barracks—he was a little the worse for liquor—and on passing some of the constabulary shouted out that his horse was a Fenian. He was immediately arrested, and is now awaiting trial, and will probably obtain five or ten years imprisonment for his idle words. This is the proof which British justice regards as sufficient to condemn a man to a life-time of penal servitude. Of course, under the Suspension Act suspicion is enough, and the police do not trouble themselves to procure proof."

"RESOLUTIONS ON DRESS.

We recommend all of our readers to give the following resolutions a careful and prayerful examination, and then to adopt them for Jesus' sake.

"In view of the present corrupt and corrupting state of the world, and the shameful extremes to which pride and fashion are leading their votaries, and the danger of some among us, especially the young, being contaminated by the influence and example of the world around them, we feel constrained as a church, to express our views on the subject of dress, in the following resolutions, which we believe are truly scriptural, and such as will commend themselves to the christian taste and judgment of our brethren and sisters everywhere.

RESOLUTIONS.

Point 1. We believe, as a church, that it is the duty of our members in all matters of dress, to be scrupulously plain.

Point 2. We regard plumes, feathers, flowers, and all superfluous bonnet ornaments, as only the outward index of a vain heart, and as such are not to be tolerated in any of our members.

Point 3. Jewelry.—We believe that every species of gold, silver, coral, pearl, rubber, and hair jewelry, are not only entirely superfluous but strictly forbidden by the plain teachings of the Scriptures.

Point 4. Trimming of Dresses.—We hold flounces, loops,* and a profusion of ribbons, cording, braid, embroidery, buttons, etc., in dress trimming, are vanities condemned by the Bible, (see Isa. 3,) and consequently should not be countenanced by 'women professing godliness.'

Point 5. Low-necked Dresses.—These we believe are a disgrace to community, and a sin in the church; and all who patronize this shameful fashion, transgress the apostle's command, to 'adorn themselves in modest apparel.' 1 Tim. 2: 9.

Point 6. Dressing the Hair. We believe that the extravagant dressing and ornamenting of the hair, so common at this time, is condemned by the apostle; (1 Tim. 2: 9); and that the various beaded and spangled networks, such as are used to contain those artificial deformities called "water-falls," "water-wheels," etc., are the "cauls" of Isa. 3: 18, [margin], which God has threatened to take away in the day of his anger.

Point 7. We hold that in the matter of shaving and coloring the beard, some of our brethren display a species of vanity equally censurable with that of certain of the sisters in dressing the hair; and that in all cases should they discard every style which will betoken the air of the fop; but while we have no objections to a growth of beard on all parts of the face, as nature designed it, yet where any portion of the beard is removed, we think the brethren greatly err from the sobriety of the christian in donning the moustache or goatee.

Point 8. We believe that the extreme fashions of the present day in bonnets and hats, for females, are not to be countenanced; but that the main object to be kept in view in obtaining wearing apparel for the head, is covering and protection.

Point 9. Hoops.—We believe that "hoops are a shame," [Spir. Gifts, Vol. 4, p. 68], meaning by hoops any thing of the kind, by which from its size, or the nature of the material, the form of the wearer is liable to be immodestly exposed. See Ex. 20: 26.

Point 10.—Costly Apparel.—We believe that Paul, by the expression, "costly array," [1 Tim. 2: 9], condemns the obtaining of the most costly material for garments, either for males or females, although it may be unexceptionable in other respects.

Point 11. New Fashions.—We believe that the people of God should be slow to adopt new fashions, of whatever sort they may be; for if not useful, we ought never to adopt them; if they are, it will be time enough for us to take them after they have been tested, and the excitement of their introduction has passed away; and having once found that which is neat, modest, and convenient, let us be slow to change. See Titus 2: 14.—Review.

* By "loops" we mean the custom of wearing long dresses, and then hooking up the skirt at intervals.

"BEHOLD THEIR THREATENINGS."

We recently received the following communication, which is too spicy to be thrown away:

"It would be more profitable to the cause of truth, for the men that go about doing nothing but talk religion, and beg more, to go to work; for it is by their works they are known. A[illegible] your preaching will avail you nothing now. You are found to be the class that said, We have preached in thy name, and done many wonderful works in thy name. What was the answer?—Depart, I never knew you. Such men as Z. Ford, H. Munger, and the whole posse of Advent preachers, are the cause of our war with the South, and present troubles; and we can prove it by the word of God. Now bring us before a court of justice, or stop your swindling. The people have a heavy tax to pay now, without supporting the devil's pimps. You may read your doom in Revelation 21: 8. You can't escape. We have your Father secure, and soon his children shall be with him.

By the Spirit of truth,

O. G. Caswell.

THE NEW TRANSLATION.

The American Bible Union have now completed the new translation of the New Testament. It is a very valuable work, and every body should have a copy. For sale at the Crisis office. See Book notice.

Universalism.—Our readers will find in another column the first part of an interesting article on Universalism, taken from the Messianic Banner, an able monthly, edited by Dr. John T. Walsh, Baltimore, Md. We hope all will give the article a careful reading. We purpose putting it into a tract immediately.

For sale at this Office

The Revised New Testament, The Common English Version, as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union.

We have just received a fresh supply of this valuable work, which ought to be in the hands of every friend of correct versions of the Sacred Oracles. Prices by mail, postpaid, as follows: Family and Pulpit Edition (8 vo. Pica) Plain cloth, $2.25; Extra cloth, $2.75. Medium size (18 mo. Brevier) Plain cloth, 85c.: Extra cloth, $1.10; Sheep, $1.35; Roan, colored edges, $1.60.

The Bible Triumphant; being a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed.

A valuable work for ministers and Bible students. Address orders to this office.

Czechowski's Thrilling Narrative.

A small edition of this work has been printed in paper covers, to be disposed of for the benefit of the European Mission. The book will be sent post-paid to every one who contributes $1.00 or more to the aid of the Mission. Bro. Czechowski is in need of help. Let the friends take this means to aid him, and receive an interesting book in return. The book will be sent to those only who order it.

Life Sketches, by Mrs. Abigail Mussey.

Subscribers for this book, who have not received it, can obtain it by sending in their names. There is also some money still due for books that have been delivered. Mrs. Mussey needs the money. Shall she have it? Let us hear from you soon. Address E. P. Woodward, Crisis Box, Boston, Mass.

P. S.—The book can be obtained by addressing Miles Grant, Crisis Office.

☞ The Christian for May, No. 5, has been received. Among its articles are numbered—Tract Distribution, Infidel Testimony, The Enduring Glory, etc., etc.

For the World's Crisis.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

Bro. Grant:—Since I returned from my tour West, I have been laboring near my pilgrim home in Compton. I am preaching from house to house, in the highways and hedges, and lanes of the streets. I am trying to hunt up some of the lost sheep, and remind them of what is coming on the earth; also preaching by example and precept, temperance in all things. I have been giving away your tracts and Bro. [illegible]'s, and seeking to get subscribers for your excellent paper, and other religious periodicals. A few of the Lord's poor have to be seen to, and plenty of the devil's poor. Thus I find enough to do.

Many neighborhoods and families are so poor they cannot take a religious paper, and will hardly read one if you give them a paper or tract, and at the same time intemperance of all kinds is practised,—eating, and drinking, and dressing, and pleasant pictures, and in using the filthy Indian weed, enough to pay for half a dozen weekly papers; and these, lamentable to say, professors of the religion of Christ. But I feel somewhat encouraged of late. Since this Fenian movement, there appears to be an inquiry among the people here,—What do these things mean? Fox's old "Book of Martyrs" is being looked up and read. Some begin to think the two-horned beast is about to speak like a "dragon." Cheer up, brethren, lift your heads and look up, for our redemption draweth nigh.

Harley McClary.

Compton, C. E.

Bro. [illegible] B. Preston writes:—"I have just closed a short series of meetings at Springville, Wis. A good interest was manifested, and the people still want to hear. Sr. Rowell will be here next Lord's day. We look for an interesting time. Lord bless her and them."

$3000 TRACT FUND.

For the Free Distribution of Tracts.

Previous acknowledgments	$2027.22
C. M. C.	1.00
Widow's mite	.15
H. Hadlock	10.00

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To send the Crisis to the Poor.

Wholenumbersentfree,560. Ann'lExpense,$1400,00

Previous acknowledgments	$317.40
C. M. C.	1.00
H. Hadlock	10.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL FUND.

To Supply Destitute Sunday Schools with Books and "Pilgrims."

William B. Herron	5.00
E., Westfield	.50

THE AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All communications relating to the business of the Society, and all applications for situations as teachers or missionaries, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, William B. Herron, "Crisis" Office, Boston.

All donations of money, or clothing, or other supplies for the Freedmen, should be sent to the Treasurer, George T. Adams, 167 Hanover Street, Boston. In sending supplies, enclose in a letter to the same address a notice and list of the articles sent.

Advent Mission Fund.

For the establishment of Missions among the Freedmen, the building of a Chapel and Mission House in Memphis, etc.

Previous acknowledgments	2356.29
Rebecca.....(for the Mission House)	5.00
J. D.	5.00
Charlotte Nelson	10.00
Sr. M. L.	20.00
A Sister	5.00
S. Dombston	1.00
R. J. Harding	1.50
Collection by J. V. H.	.68
H. Hadlock	10.00
Huldah Tuttle	2.00
Amasa Morse	3.75
R. N. Chaffee	1.50
Lee, N. H.	1.25

Clothing Received.

One barrel from friends in Lee, N. H.

EUROPEAN MISSION.

Previous acknowledgments	$490.45
C. M. C.	1.30
N. Chase	1.00
R. Polly	1.00
Huldah Tuttle	1.00
Mrs. O. P. Persons	1.25
T. E. Wood (Pictures sold)	3.00
F. B. Jones	3.40
John Douglass	1.00
H. Hadlock	20.00
Rebecca	5.00
J. M. S.	1.00
Lydia Welch	5.00
E. Challen	1.00
R. S. Robinson	1.00
Ruth	1.00
Anon	11.70

MEMPHIS.

Brd. Leslie writes encouragingly from Memphis, under date of May 12th. He is going on with the Mission work. The Mission school was discontinued only three days, on account of the riots, and the Sabbath school but two Sundays. The meetings and schools are again under way, and making good progress.

"Perfect order is again restored throughout the city. We have a military force here, and feel more safe than before the riot. Gen. Fisk, of the Freedmen's Bureau, is here, and having all the school-houses which were lately burned rebuilt at the expense of the city of Memphis, and every school is to be again in operation in a few weeks, and all are to be fully protected.

"This riot will result in great good, giving greater protection to both the colored and the northern people here. After the city of Memphis has paid out for all the property destroyed by the Irish police and the rest of the Irish and foreigners here, and borne the disgrace of the slaughtering and murdering which this police and their like have done, the citizens will not like to have such a thing occur again. Facts will hereafter show that to the foreign element here is to be mostly attributed the beginning and progress of this dreadful scene of carnage.

"The trial of all the murderers that can be found is now going on, and many are being convicted. Many of the police have fled from the city. They are a most corrupt, wicked, and desperate set of men."

Justice is being meted out; under the protection of the government, the Mission work will go on more prosperously than before, and the Chapel and Mission House be built without delay. Those who wish to help meet the deficiency of funds for this purpose, can do so now.

W. B. H.

Correspondence.

From Bro. C. H. Shepherd.

Bro. Grant:—In the "Laws of Life" for May, I found an article on the brain, by W. Byrd Powell, M. D. He says the author has not in forty years found but one person who manifested any doubt as to the validity of the opinion that the brain is the organ of the mind, and furthermore says, to show this position correct, that many persons in all countries have met with accidents, some thrown from horses, and to have fallen from elevated positions, and thus to have had their skulls fractured, and a portion of them respectively forced upon the brain, making undue pressure; and that during this pressure, although the functions essential to life, as circulation, respiration, secretion, etc., continued to be manifested, yet there was a perfect suspension of mind,—no consciousness of existence, no perception of the presence of anxious friends, no power of sensation, or voluntary motion; but a surgeon arrives and elevates the depressed portion of skull, and the individual is observed to be instantly restored to the possession of all his faculties.

Now after it has been proved that man, while in life, with the circulation, respiration, secretion, etc., continuing to be manifested, there can be a perfect suspension of mind, and no knowledge of existence, or of the presence of anxious friends, many persist in teaching if the circulation, respiration, secretion, etc., be entirely suspended, so as to cause death to the person, that the mind or knowledge is in consciousness of existence, and knows more than while here in life, when his faculties were in full operation. Absurd doctrine! It calls to mind the conversation of two inviduals. One observes that the world is getting wicked fast. The other says, notwithstanding this, many are saying it is growing better. Frst one again states, upon the whole he thought it was. One breath affirms, another denies. I think this about the way of the immortal-soul doctrine. Prove that injuring a certain organ of man destroys the mind. Make the application, and they will say the mind, or sensible part, cannot be destroyed. Why not be rational, intelligent beings, as God designed we should be, having our foundation on the word of God, believe what it teaches, and not be building upon heathen superstition, and taking heed to the teachings and doctrines of demons?

I think it not strange that people are going into infidelity, spiritualism, etc., when such unreasonable doctrines are taught from our pulpits and scattered by the press. The word of God never looked more precious than now. Thank the Lord, his word is not bound. May we never fail to hold up the light from it.

From one who has not education sufficient to understand how eternal death is always dying and never dies, or that man is conscious when he does not know any thing; and in hope of eternal life when Jesus comes, in the clouds of heaven,

Chas. H. Shepherd.

Melvin Hill, N. H.

From Sr. C. Daggett.

Brothers and Sisters:—Knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of sleep, the night far spent, the day at hand, oh, let us put on the armor of light, and not be conformed to this world, but transformed by the renewing of our minds; and present our bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is our reasonable service. For "the end of all things is at hand." There is no time to be lost in sounding the alarm.

No one who reads the sacred oracles can fail to discern the signs of the times. The history of Rome is nearly complete, and with it the history of the world. Surely the day of the Lord cometh. Alas! for the day; for the day of the Lord is at hand, and a destruction from the Almighty. The political horizon grows dark. The "three unclean spirits" are doing their work of gathering the nations to the battle of the "great day of God Almighty." The deep, low mutterings of the gathering storm give fearful indications of coming wrath. Let the watchmen blow the trumpet and sound the alarm; for almost all are asleep with the world. The church is slumbering, while the fearful crisis approaches. The harvest is quite ripe. The Lord will soon descend from heaven, with the voice of the archangel and the trump of God. The reaping time will then come. The good will be gathered home; the wicked left to be cast into the great winepress of Jehovah's wrath.

How important the injunction of Jesus—"Watch ye, therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man." God is good, and will remember his own waiting ones, and those also who sit in darkness, who call for light on the speedy coming of his Son. He will give them the light and truth. He will have faithful men, who will do it; for the "wise man's heart discerns both time and judgment."

The cry of the waiting ones was never more earnest than now—"Come, Lord Jesus." The cry from all parts, "Watchman, what of the night?" is earnest and persistent. Many will not receive the answer; no, they want to hear and must hear the time of the night,—the whole truth on the nature and time of the coming kingdom. They are crying,

"Blow, watchman, blow, a certain sound,
For dark and dangerous is the night."

Let us have the light, that we and ours may be ready. The Jews were rejected because they knew not the day of their visitation. Let us be wise, for such only will understand and will be giving meat to the household in due season. And the true time of the Lord's coming, and the preparation is what is needed now to prepare a people for translation.

"The foe is before us in battle array,
But let us not waver, nor turn from the way,
The sword of the Spirit, both trusty and strong,
We'll hold in our hands while marching along."

The Lord bless you all. Your sister in the Lord,

Catherine Daggett.

South Orrington, Me.

From Bro. C. C. Stevens.

Bro. Grant:—Friday, Feb. 16th, left Exeter, N. H., en route for Canada, Vermont, and New York. Went to Dover, and preached in the evening at the Hall to Bro. Latham's congregation. Bro. Latham lives and labors here. He is highly esteemed for his work's sake. Sunday to Biddeford. Preached all day to a full house. It was a solemn and interesting time. Here is a blessed band of brethren contending for the faith of the gospel. They are poor, but they have a house up, boarded and shingled, yet are owing some over one hundred dollars, and the work is stopped for the want of means to finish. Brethren and sisters, you that have the means, can you not help these good brethren out of this? If so, direct to John C. Libbey, Biddeford, Me.

Monday, called on Eld. John Stevens (Free-will Baptist), a former acquaintance. He is of the old school. Believes in the literal and personal coming of Christ to reign on this earth renewed, as its supreme and eternal ruler. Good time with him in talking over the blessed hope. It revived fresh recollections in my memory of gone by days, when I traveled with that people, and multitudes were converted. Tuesday, left for South Poland. Preached in the evening. Some came seven miles. Good will come out of this meeting. Next to Mechanic's Falls. Here I found a good band of brethren contending for the faith once delivered to the saints.

Thursday, to Bryant's Pond, where are a few isolated brethren struggling for life amid opposing influences. At Berlin's Falls, N. H., preached in the evening. A great interest to hear. If proper laborers could be had in this place, reformation would be the result.

Colebrook Corner, Lord's day. The people came out and filled the house. All seemed anxious to hear on the subject of Christ's coming. Some came fifteen miles. Twelve witnessed for God. The truth here is destined to triumph. Tuesday, left for Canaan, Vt. Preached in the evening. Interesting time. Two promising young brethren (Chadsey and Gorden), were set apart for the work of the ministry, by the laying on of hands.

Compton, C. E. This is the place of my nativity, two hundred miles from Portland. O how sad my heart, as I drew near the house where thirty-five years ago I parted with my honored parents and kindred, to preach salvation to the lost. Quite all that then lived have fallen asleep. Great changes have taken place. Thursday evening, preached in the Harvey school-house. Here are a few pilgrims striving to live. The cause demands Holy Ghost men, men who will feed the flock and care for the lambs of the dear Redeemer. I am tired of men who are filled with nothing but theory.

Saturday, to Danville. Found a good home at Eld. Porter's. Preached Lord's day morning. The traveling was bad, hence many of the brethren were unable to attend. We had a pleasant visit with some of the friends in this place. Thanks to the brethren of this quiet village for the interest manifested, especially by Bro. and Sr. Porter. The Lord reward them for their labors of love.

Thursday, to Melbourne. Preached twice. Here are a few good brethren striving to overcome. Had occasion to pass the house where many years ago I ventured to take the Bible in my hand, and for the first time in my life declare its truths as I then understood them. Most of those who heard me then have fallen in death; a few remain as living witnesses of those days so interesting, when multitudes were blessed. I thank the Lord that I still find it in my heart to love the important work of the ministry more than ever. Had I a thousand tongues, and could employ them in as many places, I would cheerfully use them all in preaching this glorious doctrine of the kingdom,—the angel's last message to mortal men.

Next to Montreal. Here the people are very bigoted, wholly under the control of their priests, Protestants as well as Catholics.—Bro. Grant, some two or three years since, commenced a course of lectures here, and after much toil and persecution, succeeded in gathering a church of some forty members. We were with them three Sundays, and we can most truthfully say, few seasons have we spent so agreeably, and few that will linger in memory so pleasantly as this visit to Montreal. I most cordially thank the brethren for the interest they manifested toward me in my work. I was kindly cared for while there, and not sent empty away. May God bless them and bring us to inherit eternal glory.

C. C. Stevens.

From Bro. W. A. Reed.

Bro. Grant:—Having become a peruser of your much loved paper the past winter, at which time I became interested in the immediate, personal coming of Christ, and seeing the communications of our brothers and sisters, I have had cause to be cheered on my journey, and have had my heart leap for joy in contemplation of the time when Christ shall set up his everlasting kingdom; when the kingdoms of this earth shall become the kingdom of God; when commotion, war and strife shall forever cease; when envy, malice and hatred shall be at an end; when sorrow, sickness, pain and death shall be no more in the land, but all shall have peace, joy, and love one toward another; when all shall know the Lord, from the least to the greatest, and we shall dwell in the City of our God. Oh! I long for that day to come. Here we are called to part with dear friends, and lay them in the tomb. But the grave cannot hold them long, for the trumpet shall sound, the dead shall come forth, and those that have fallen asleep in Christ shall wake up to immortality and eternal life.

A few weeks since, my eyes rested upon a letter from Bro. J. C. Rice. He spoke of his beloved father's death. But he mourned not as one without hope. We have since been called to give him (J. C. Rice) the parting hand, and have had to lay him in the grave, after an illness of one short week. But, thanks be to God, we can say as our brother, we mourn not as those without hope, for the same Spirit that raised Christ from the dead shall quicken our mortal bodies, and bring all those that sleep in Christ forth to receive their reward, and a crown that fadeth not away.

It is with this hope that we laid our brother away to sleep till the resurrection. It is this hope that strengthens and cheers us in the hour of trouble, vexation and disappointment. It is with this hope we can withstand the fiery darts of the enemy, and with the sword of the Spirit and the shield of faith fight manfully for the cause, till our Captain shall come and bring us off conquerors and more than conquerors. May we search daily the word of God, and pray for understanding, that our hope may be strengthened and we go on our way rejoicing, and with patience continue in well doing, waiting and looking for Christ to come and gather his people home.

Yours in hope of the promised land,

William A. Reed.

Bridgeport, N. S., April 30th.

From Bro. Jonathan Wilson.

Bro. Grant:—I wish to say to you, and to the rest of my pilgrim relatives, to the glory of my merciful Redeemer; that in three months and four days [April 12th, 1866] if my life is continued, I shall commence my ninetieth year. I am now in as good health as I ever had in any part of my life. I am the oldest man but one, that I ever saw, that I know is yet alive; he is ninety-three years old, and has been unable to walk from his bed to the fire for years. I can now walk on my two staffs five miles in half a day. I am quite deaf, and my sight is failing; but I thank the Lord I can yet read your paper through in a day. The Bible, Crisis, and Herald of Life, is the substance of my reading. I feel thankful to God, yourself, and the brethren, for the privilege of reading the Crisis gratuitously, as I have outlived all my earnings and savings, and I am running my old vessel with all sails down on the bare poles of charity, before the breeze of the Spirit of the Lord. Sometimes it comes upon me like a mighty, rushing wind, which brings me in sight of the harbor of mortality. There I expect to remain until the trump of God sounds; then to step aboard the gospel resurrection car, and in the twinkling of an eye I expect to be conveyed to the harbor of immortality, to live forever. The Lord is the owner of this car. It cost him his life to obtain the right of way to run his car from mortality to immortality; and he went through the first run himself. He gave me a free ticket through from the city of destruction to the depot of immortality, bearing date the 7th day of July, 1807, to change conveyance at the depot of mortality. I have gone thus far safe, although some places looked quite dark for traveling.

This car never run by gospel system until after Christ, by the sacrifice of himself, had paid for the right of way. He was the first that ever went from mortality to immortality by the gospel conveyance. There were six cases of resurrection by miraculous power; but they were raised only from death to mortal life again. It effected no change from mortality to immortality.

"Him (Christ) being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain; whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death; because it was not possible that he should be holden of it."—Acts 2: 23, 24. Why could he not be holden of death? Because he had no sin. All whose names are written in the book of life, die as free from sins, by pardon, as Christ was by obedience to God's law; therefore, cannot be holden of death; for their death and resurrection is no more in condemnation for sin, than was the translation of Enoch and Elijah; for we see at the trump of God the resurrected and translated. Paul says, 1 Cor. 15: 51–52, "Behold, I shew you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed."

Our school house is our meeting house. The Methodist minister preaches one sermon in two weeks, and I am giving historical lectures of the Bible, to the scholars of our day school, the vacant Sabbath. They and others that come in, give me a little, attentive audience. I hope to confirm the truth of the Bible in the minds of these children; for we are here too much like the Athenians, almost wholly given to idolatry. It is almost fifty-nine years since I began to preach; yet if I see a place where there is the least hope of keeping infidelity out of the minds of the people, I try to supply the place. That is the most potent enemy we have to go against at this day.

Jonathan Wilson.

Vermont Post Office, Chaut., N. Y.

Bro. J. G. Hook writes from Springfield, Mass., May 25th:—"God is blessing his people in this city. The meetings in Barnes' Hall are precious. Bro. and Srs. who worship here are well united and love one another. Though a variety of opinions on some points of doctrine exist, yet the same blessed, loving Spirit pervades their hearts. Thank God for the power of good—Christianity. God's children do love one another. Some are seeking a closer walk with God; others, who had backslidden and gone far from him, have come home to the fold of God. Others have sought and found Christ who never did before. Young men and maidens are among the number. The hearts of God's people are made to rejoice to see their children and neighbors turning to him. To our heavenly Father be all the glory through Jesus Christ. Amen."

For the World's Crisis.

SPRING.

Sweet Spring is come, bright, joyous spring,
Arrayed in robes of green;
A wreath of beauteous flowers she wears,
As in days of yore, I ween.

All nature listens to her voice,
Old Winter's fled away;
The joyous notes of birds are heard
At dawn, and close, of day.

And rippling brooks and laughing rills
Go dancing on their way;
And the trees are putting forth their leaves—
They, too, her voice obey.

And lo! the meek-eyed violets too
Peep from their grassy beds,
And on the lap of "mother earth"
They rest their tiny heads.

I love the Spring, with her birds and flowers,
And her mantle soft of green;
But in Eden fair there'll be flowers more rare
Than ever the Spring has seen.

Spring flowers will fade, and birds will die,
Her green fields fade away;
But in Eden's bowers immortal flowers
Will bloom, and ne'er decay.

Farmington, N. H. D. J. Varney.

Obituaries.

Noyes. Died in Vernon, Vt., May 9th, of consumption, Mary Ann M. Noyes, aged thirty-five years and four months.

The subject of this notice suffered through a lingering and distressing illness, but with christian patience and resignation. She gave her heart to the Savior some years since, and has ever lived a bright and shining light, having a word for the many who visited her in her sickness, and urging all to make the required preparation. She leaves an aged, widowed mother, and two sisters, with a large circle of friends, to mourn the loss. But they feel it is her gain. Her sorrows and sufferings are past, and she sleeps in Jesus. The funeral discourse was preached by Eld. Bennett, from a text chosen by the deceased in Ps. 116: 15. May our mother be consoled in her affliction and loneliness by the hope of soon meeting her daughter where partings are unknown.

"She has lain down to rest till the morning,
Where the storm-blasts of time never sweep;
'Mid life's conflicts and toils she grew weary,
So he gave his beloved one sleep."

S. A. Scott.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Continental news continues warlike, but a Berlin dispatch of to-day says hopes are still entertained in some quarters for the maintenance of peace, probably on the ground that Austria will make some concessions.

It is believed that no formal treaty has yet been concluded between Prussia and Italy.

The Paris correspondent of the London Telegraph believes on good authority that there is still a chance for peace, if England and Russia will join France in a Congress.

Liverpool, May 14. The panic had subsided.

FRANCE.

The La France says many diplomatic communications have been exchanged between the Cabinets during the suspense, and the idea of a Congress, limited to the consideration of pending questions, was again taken up. France will join the Congress with perfect disinterestedness without raising any question to complicate the difficulties of European arbitration.

RUSSIA.

The Russians had defeated the Emir at Bokhara.

GERMANY.

There was great excitement at Leipsic, owing to the report that the Prussians had crossed the Saxon frontier. The rumor was not authenticated. The Hesse Darmstadt Army was being placed on a war footing. The 8th Federal Army Corps was to be called out.

AUSTRIA.

The military preparations and patriotic demonstrations continue. War was considered imminent. The departure of the Vienna garrison for Bohemia had commenced. Substitution money for military exemption had been abolished. Patriotic appeals were being made for contributions for the formation of a volunteer corps. In consequence Baron Werther had an interview with Mensdorf, when he declared he should have to leave Vienna immediately.

A Berlin dispatch of the 14th, says a conditional treaty of alliance was signed Saturday between Italy and Prussia.

A Berlin dispatch of the 15th states that Prussia's note to Hanover, demanding an explanation of her warlike movements, threatens military occupation of that kingdom and demands that it shall observe the strictest neutrality.

The correspondence between the King of Prussia and the Czar is believed to be connected with the creation of a Duchy of Warsaw, and it is declared that the Czar has not interfered in favor of peace.

ITALY.

A Florence telegram says Garibaldi has accepted the command of volunteers, declaring that he hopes soon to be able to co-operate with the glorious army of Italy in accomplishing the destinies of the nation. Also that a royal decree has been issued ordering all soldiers of the second category of 1844 to be forthwith incorporated with the regular army. They have already been called together for two months' drill. The Senate has approved, by a vote of seventy to six, the bill granting the executive extraordinary powers to provide for the public safety.

The Opinione thinks if a formal proposal should be made for a European Congress, Italy should accept it upon conditions, viz., that she may remain armed and the cession of Venetia be included in the programme of the Congress. These conditions are essential.

A Milan telegram states that two thousand Austrian sailors had arrived at Venice for the defense of the Lagunes, and orders have been issued to organize a body of 1200 boatmen for transporting soldiers to the Island of Lido. Twenty-two thousand Austrian troops had passed through the Mestre.

A Trieste telegram says the squadron had left the Bay of Tarento, and taken up a position in the Adriatic between Ancona and the Island of Grossa, thereby closing the Gulf of Trieste, Venice, Pola and Fiume.

A Milan telegram of the 15th states that the regiments of "Croats" continue to arrive. Six thousand are expected altogether, and will be stationed from Faioulo to Padua. Depots for Austrian military service in Venetia have been established at Gratz, and a considerable force is stationed in the Tyrol. The garrison of Venice is to be raised to 24,000. Gunboats have been stationed and many torpedoes sunk in the outer harbor of Venice.

The rinderpest had made its appearance in county Down, Ireland. Several cattle had been killed.

Several French journals have received a warning for representing that the government is provoking a war.

Liverpool 16th, Queenstown 17th.

The financial panic continued sensibly to subside. Many difficulties are yet anticipated, but it is believed the effects will be less disastrous than have resulted from former panics. The leading securities have decidedly improved. The discount demand at the Bank of England continued extremely large. The nominal rate remains the same. There was also an active specie demand for the continent. There had been no additional suspensions at Liverpool.

The Continental situation was unchanged. The Military attitude of the various powers was threatening. It is reported that Bismark receives daily warnings of assassination. It is stated that Austria in a few weeks will have 900,000 men in the field. Large bodies of troops sent from Vienna had already effected strategic concentrations on the Prussian frontier.

A Trieste dispatch of the 17th says the Austrian volunteers about to proceed to Mexico will, it is stated, sail under the French flag.

Fenier Bros. of Liverpool have suspended; liabilities heavy, but the assets are considerably in excess thereof. Other suspensions are reported.

The Approaching War in Europe.

The London Times of May 12th has the following remarks upon the impending European contest:

Every day now brings its new rumors of war. The whole Prussian army is mobilized, and great masses of troops are massed along the frontier. Austria is bringing into the field every man she can raise. One conscription after another sweeps away the youth of different races and languages through her wide domains. Volunteers are offering themselves in the best affected provinces, and the Imperial House is seeking to content the Hungarian Diet, the representative of the most powerful and long the most faithful of its States. The passes of the Tyrol are closed, traffic is stopped on railways, in the Quadrilateral a part of the country has been flooded. As for Italy, it is enough to say that the whole nation is panting for war. The government will have as many soldiers as it can arm and feed, for this people, once so idle and indifferent, and thought to lack all military qualities, can hardly be restrained from rushing into a conflict without counting the chances of success. The King of Italy is about to leave the capital for Piacenza to take command of his army, and Garibaldi will be immediately in the field, ready for any bold act that may be necessary to precipitate a struggle. The middle states of Germany are mustering and contracting their forces, as if they anticipated that war could not last a week in their neighborhood without drawing them into it. Such is the state of Europe, which we, though not without domestic troubles, look out upon with a sense of security from this narrow sanctuary. . . .

The attention of Europe has been engrossed during the last three days by the hostility professed by the Emperor Napoleon to the treaties of 1815. It may be that too great an importance is attributed to this speech by those who believe that it indicates an intention on the part of France to take part directly in the impending contest. The policy of France was probably announced with sufficient exactness when it was said that the Emperor would observe a strict neutrality and reserve to himself liberty of action. We may presume that Napoleon will not feel himself called upon to interfere at the outset of a strife for which he cannot be made responsible. The not unequally matched combatants may be left for some time to do their worst upon each other. There is no reason that the fortune of war should incline early or completely to either. On either side are able generals, and numerous, gallant and perfectly disciplined armies. Austria and the minor states, if these attach themselves to her, can bring into the field at once more than half a million of men, and support them by sufficient reserves. The levies of Prussia and Italy will probably be as large. The Austro-Germans will be attacked in front and rear, but they will have the advantage of a central position, and may deal terrible blows on their adversaries. Though the general opinion abroad may be that Austria would show good policy and good generalship by waging a defensive war, it is not at all certain that the Emperor or his generals would be content merely to defend the Quadrilateral or Bohemia.

In Germany indeed it is almost certain that the Austrian Generals would assume the offensive. This, in fact, would be the only answer they could make to the first Prussian act of war, which would probably be an attack upon the Austrian corps of occupation in Holstein. In such a campaign we have no reason to conclude that victory would readily favor either side. There might be bloody battles on a theatre of war where Germans died half a century ago in a better cause, and yet after a long campaign neither side might have much to boast of. Most unlike this may be the fate of the Italian campaign.

The wave of Italian enthusiasm may break in vain against the works of the Quadrilateral, and months of war may only place Victor Emmanuel in a position to sue for further aid from his ally of 1859. So well will "neutrality" have answered, and then, perhaps, may come the time for "liberty of action." The would-be conquerors who are rushing into the present war might wisely reflect on this. If they could gain all they want by their own unaided strength, there might be in the morality of state-craft some justification of their policy. But if, as seems likely to all but themselves, Austria prove a stubborn adversary, they may have to relinquish their hope of spoil, or buy it by humiliating concessions from an arbiter who will then appear upon the stage.

☞ The Boston Journal of the 22d says of the European excitement:—"Prussia, Austria and Italy have entered upon a course of mutual irritation, from which they seem to have but little ability or disposition to recede. The whole future apparently depends upon the restraining influence of England, France and Russia, that is, when narrowed down to the actual facts of the case, upon the course of Louis Napoleon. This man is the arbiter of Europe. His recently avowed detestation of the treaties of 1815 has not a very soothing sound; but if, in consequence of it, he can bring about his long-cherished project of a European Congress, peace will probably be preserved, if not, the chances are heavily in favor of war."

DOMESTIC.

New Orleans, May 22. Eight parishes are overflowed, and half the people are without food. Relief is going from the city. The ruin to the crops is extensive. The Red River floods have fallen off, and will not overflow the Southern country. The mortality is great among the negroes of the Southwestern parishes. White people are working most of the plantations. The freedmen are uncertain, and the people say there will be none left in twenty years.

New York, May 25. A special Washington dispatch says the trial of Davis will probably be postponed until August or September next, owing to the strong feeling on the subject in Richmond. Much animosity prevails against the Grand Jury that indicted him, and until this subsides the Attorney General thinks it best to delay the trial.

Washington, May 28. Advices from Arizona of the 12th ult. give information that armed citizens of Hardyville, in revenge for the killing of a white man by the Hualapois Indians, had killed nine of the Indians, including their chief. The Superintendent of Indian Affairs there says an alliance is probable between the Hualapois and other Indians against the whites, and unless more troops are available to protect the whites, the condition of the latter will be precarious.

A Great Land-Slide. The Ureka Journal, published in Siskiyou county, in the northern part of California, contains the following:

"An immense slide of ground descended last week from the top of the mountain south of Deadwood Creek, damming up the creek sufficient to create a reservoir sixty feet deep. The slide came in a solid body, slipping along on a solid clay formation, upon which the whole mountain rests. The slide traveled a distance of about a quarter of a mile, and held together so compact that it even moved the sluices and logs out of the creek without damaging them. For two days and nights the creek was held above the slide, where it was fifty yards from bank to bank, with about one thousand inches of water running. On the morning of the third day, the water commenced running over the slide and coursing rapidly through the trees, which remained in the same position they were in on the top of the mountain before the slide. Many persons have visited the place, and consider it one of the grandest natural scenes."

The Fenian "Policy." Mr. Stephens recently made a speech in New Haven, in which he clearly laid down his policy, and the way in which he proposes to rescue Ireland from the British Lion. He states that he has an army more than large enough to meet the English forces; that the attack must be made in Ireland instead of on this side of the ocean, and that he will continue to labor here in America for one year, when he will return to Ireland, either as a conqueror or a martyr. The first great desideratum is money, and he proposes to take the entire charge of this himself, and if this is not forthcoming, the cause will be lost.—Journal.

The Emperor's Speech. According to the last reports the offensive portion of the Emperor Napoleon's speech at Auxerre, about the treaties of 1815, was not spoken by the Emperor at all, but was subsequently written by him, and inserted by his order in the copy authorized to be telegraphed. This fact adds much to the importance of the speech, inasmuch as it shows that his "detestation" of the treaties was not the offspring of temporary excitement, but the result of his deliberate conviction.—Journal.

Italian War Matters. It is rumored that the King of Italy will himself take the command-in-chief of the Italian army, with General de la Marmora as chief of staff.

Garibaldi is said to have left Caprera, and to have arrived at Parma, to which latter place volunteers are flocking from all parts of Italy.

☞ Spain is actively preparing for the coming shock of a great European war. Her Mediterranean passes were being reinforced. It was thought that an offer on the part of the United States of mediation between Spain and her enemies in the Pacific, would be very agreeable to the cabinet of the Queen.

A Lost Art Re-discovered. A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette states that a Mr. Dieman, of Upper Sandusky, Ohio, has discovered a process of hardening copper, an art which has been lost since the days of King Solomon. It is well known that the ancients possessed the art of hardening copper and making it equal to the best of steel; but for nearly three thousand years all knowledge of the method has been in oblivion.

Origin of the word "Fenian." Mr. Stephens, the chief organizer of those Fenians who submit to his operations, in reply to a request that he would define the origin of the title of the fraternity, says that a chieftain existed in Ireland, just anterior to the Christian era, named Fion McCuol. This personage was the commandant of the "Feonin Erin," or Irish militia, at a period when Ireland was a nation, and her people protected themselves against the encroachments of all invaders. As the present organization is instituted for the same purpose, the name of Fenian was adopted for the branch of the Brotherhood in the United States.

☞ At a recent fire in Auch, France, a woman with her child were in a burning house; the Archbishop offered 200 francs, then 6000 francs, then an annuity of 1200 francs, to anybody who would rescue them. Nobody budged. Thereupon he threw off his cassock, ran into the flames rescued them and gave them the 1200 francs annuity he had won for himself.

☞ The ladies of Lansing, Michigan, are adopting a new style of dress. It appears to consist of cloth pants like those worn by men, and an old-fashioned Indian "wampus," or sack, which comes just above the knees. Everything is said to hang from the shoulders, doing away with tight lacing, and alleged to be very conducive to health.

☞ London News says negotiations have lately been carried on at Vienna for the cession of Venice to Italy.

☞ Jeff. Davis entered Fortress Monroe a prisoner one year ago yesterday, May 24.

Notices.

New Hampshire Quarterly Conference.

The third quarterly session of the New Hampshire State Conference will be held in Woodstock, N. H., commencing June 7th, Thursday, P. M., and hold over the following Lord's day. Brn. Couch, Ross, and others are expected to be present to preach the word of life. Brethren, make this meeting a subject of prayer, that God may give us the victory through Christ, and that great good may be accomplished in his name.

A. W. Sibley, Secretary.

Tent Meeting.

There will be a tent meeting held under the big tent, in Providence, R. I., commencing Thursday, June 7th, to hold over two Sundays. The time of our Lord's coming, together with other portions of truth connected with the great system of man's redemption, will be duly considered in the meeting, as the Lord may direct. Brn. G. W. Brown, D. S. Holt, C. Thompson and the writer are engaged to attend the meeting.

S. W. Bishop.

Notice.

I hereby give notice to all concerned, that the fourth annual grove meeting will be held in Springwater, N. Y., commencing June 29th, 1866, and holding over Sunday, July 1st, on the same spot fitted up by Father Lyman Morris (deceased), on his farm. Let due preparations be made by the friends there, a general notice be given, and may many brethren and sisters attend, both ministers and laymen, and may much good be the result, for which let us pray. In behalf of the brethren,

C. F. Sweet.

Tent Meeting at Elliota, Minn.

The "Advent Tabernacle" will be pitched at Elliota, Fillmore Co., Minnesota, as Bro. Elliott shall arrange, on Friday, June 15th, and continue there some days. Bro. Hough will be present to help us. Hope to see a general gathering of the saints from the surrounding region. Come in the Spirit, and work for God.

Wm. Sheldon.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the New York State Christian Conference will be held at South Butler, Wayne Co., N. Y., commencing Thursday evening, May 31st, and hold over the following Sunday. As churches can only be represented by delegates, let delegates be appointed by every church. Let there be a good representation at this meeting. Arrangements of trains, etc., will be advertised in due time.

South Butler lies four miles north of Savannah Station, on the direct R. R. from Syracuse to Rochester. Take the way trains, as all trains do not stop at this station. Teams will be in readiness on the arrival of the afternoon trains. Those coming on the morning trains will take the stage to Butler.

For the Board, C. B. Turner.

Notice.

The annual meeting of the Iowa Christian Conference will be held at Cascade, Dubuque Co., Iowa, to commence on Thursday, June 21st, 1866, and hold over the following Lord's day. All brethren and sisters who love to hear of the soon coming of the Lord, are invited to be there.

Job Gildersleeve, Clerk.

The Dubuque and Sioux City railroad will return the brethren free. There will be teams on the first day of the conference, at Farley, to carry them to the meeting.

Peter S. W. Deyo.

Tent Meeting at Sparta, Wis.

The "Advent Tabernacle" will be pitched in the village of Sparta, Wis., on Thursday, May 31st, and the meetings will continue several days.—Friends from adjoining regions can come with provisions and bedding, and lodge in the tent, as at campmeeting, as this is a new field. Eld. Hough will be present to help proclaim the truth. Let the friends of truth rally.

Wm. Sheldon.

Publications for sale, subscriptions received for the paper, etc., at this meeting.

Notice.

If there is no preventing providence, I will commence a tent meeting in the Iowa Mission tent, at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa, to commence Wednesday night, June 6th, and continue over Lord's day. Will the friends at Parkersburg, Boylen Grove, Marble Rock, Rock Grove, Floyd, and Stacyville, write me and let me know the time that will suit them best to have a meeting. Let there be a general coming up to the help of the Lord in this meetings.

Peter S. W. Deyo.

Notice.

The Maine Central Quarterly Conference will be held in Rome Town House, commencing June 14th, 5 o'clock P. M., and continue over the following Lord's day. The brethren of Rome will see that the friends are cared for.

H. B. Sevey,
D. W. Griffin.

Notice.

On Saturday, June 2nd, there will be a business conference at Norwalk at 10 A. M. and 1½ P. M. Let Berlin, Fairfield, Plymouth, Nevada, Union, and Bacques be well represented. By request of Ohio brethren.

G. W. Stetson.

Notice.

Hereafter (D. V.) I shall preach at Danielsonville, Ct., on the second and fourth Sundays of every month; and at Abington, Ct., on the first and third Sundays of every month. Friends interested in these meetings will please cut this notice out and preserve it for future reference.

H. F. Carpenter.

Quarterly Conference.

A quarterly session of the Advent Conference will be held in Jefferson, Me., Trask meeting-house, Thursday, June 14th, at 5 o'clock P. M., and continuing over the following Sunday. Come to the conference.

Jeremiah Partridge, Pres.
Joshua Hemenway, Clerk.

Wisconsin Campmeeting.

Shall we have one or two this year? If but one, shall it be near Madison, or near Upper Sauk? Who will come with tents if held near Madison, and who if held near Sauk? And who if held at either place. Please communicate your thoughts to me by letter, to Baraboo, Wis., shortly, that we may act correctly in the matter.

Wm. Sheldon.

Tent Meeting at Prescott, Wis.

We expect to pitch the "Advent Tabernacle" at Prescott, Wisconsin, July 12th. Let the friends from the other side of the Mississippi River attend if they can. Eld. Hough is to be with me.

Wm. Sheldon.

Notice.

Elder Thomas Smith, Bangor, Me., has on keep for sale H. L. Hastings' "Signs of the Times," with an assortment of his various Tracts; also, the Tracts by Miles Grant, on "The Soul," "The Spirit, and "What is Man?" and other Advent tracts.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as Tuesday Morning, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston.
Israel Damman .... Sunday, June 3d

East Boston.
C. Goodrich .... Sunday, June 3d

Hudson Street Chapel, corner of Kneeland Street, Sunday, June 3d. H. L. Hastings.

Yearly meeting of the Indians at Southampton, Long Island, N. Y., June 3d.
Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, June 10th
Miles Grant.

South Reading, Mass. .... Sunday, June 3d
Woodstock, N. H. (conference) .... Sunday, June 10th
A. W. Sibley.

North Sutton, N. H., Saturday evening, and Sunday, June 2d and 13th. (Baptism.)
Guilford, N. H., (where Sr. Julia Burwell may appoint) Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, June 8th, 9th, and 10th. (Baptism.) John G. Hook.

Poultney, Vt., Sundays, June 3d and 10th, and can stay in that region two Sabbaths more, if notified when I arrive at Poultney. Hiram Munger.

Bristol, R. I. .... Sunday, June 10th
C. C. Ramsay.

Manchester, N. H. .... Sunday, June 10th
Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, June 17th
A. Decker.

Albany, N. Y. .... Sunday, June 3d
W. N. Pile.

Hinsdale, N. H. .... Sunday, June 3d
Brattleboro .... Sunday, June 10th
Will Bro. G. P. Stebbins be with me at these appointments? B. F. Streeter.

East Farnham .... June 8th
Stukely, near L. G. Brown's .... June 9th
Bolton, Sargent S. H. .... June 10th
Magog, Ware S. H. .... June 11th
Barnston, Wayville, and baptize .... June 12th
Libby's Mills, (as R. N. Thomson may appoint), June 14th.
Stanstead, (as Eld. Merrill may appoint) .... June 15th
Bolton Lake S. House .... Sunday, June 17th
Week day appointments at 4 P. M. C. P. Dow.

Carthage Me .... June 3d
L. L. Howard.

Durham, Ct. .... Sunday, June 3d
O. D. Woodruff.

Danbury .... Sunday, June 3d
Hill, (Poverty Pond school-house) .... June 10th
Danbury .... June 17th
New Hampton, (at Bro. Pike's) .... June 24th
Meredith Centre, (as brethren may arrange), evening, June 24th. P. S. Ransom.
J. Knowlton.

Bristol .... Sunday, June 3d
Harwinton, (school-house, near Bro. Barber's.) Will Bro. B. meet me at Terryville Station, evening of the 9th? S. Woodruff.

Lawrence .... Monday evening, June 18th
Lowell .... Tuesday eve., June 19th
Manchester .... Thursday eve., June 21st
Concord .... Sunday, June 24th
Canaan .... July 1st
I. Damman.

Great Falls, N. H. .... Sunday, June 3d
L. C. McKinstry.

Newfield, Ct. .... Sunday, June 10th
Pleasant Valley, Ct .... Sunday, June 17th
New Britain, Ct. .... Sunday, June 24th
Yalesville, Ct. .... Sunday, July 1st
Cheshire Street, Ct. .... Sunday, July 8th
New Preston appointment recalled.
Chas. E. Piper.
Samuel M. Tatro.

Concord, N. H., (Angelos Hall.)
Charles C. Ramsey .... Sunday, June 3d
Joseph Pinkham .... Sunday, June 10th
A. Simpson .... Sunday, June 17th
Israel Damman .... Sunday, June 24th
P. S. Bro. H. Pratt's appointment is withdrawn on account of an accident to his daughter in Rochester, N. Y.

West Stafford, Ct., (at Bro. Spellman's), Saturday evening, June 2d, and Square Pond, Ct., Sunday, June 3d.
Walbridge .... Sunday, June 17th
P. S. Butler.

Northfield, Mass .... May 31st
West Brattleboro, Vt. .... June 1st
Whitakerville, Vt .... June 3d
Houghtonville, Vt. .... June 5th
Windham, Vt., (as Pro. Bemis may arrange), June 6th
Plymouth, Vt., (at Bro. H. Archer's) .... June 7th
Bridgewater, Vt .... June 10th
and over Sunday.
Densmore Hill, Vt. .... June 19th
and over Sunday. Geo. A. Streeter.

Lovely Street .... Sunday, June 3d
Wm. J. Ripley.

East Bowdoinham (baptism) .... June 3d
Richmond (Reed meeting-house) .... June 10th
Bath .... Sunday, June 24th
R. R. York.

Abington, Ct. .... Sunday, June 3d
Danielsonville, Ct. .... Sunday, June 10th
H. F. Carpenter.

Dover, N. H. .... Sunday, June 3d
A. Simpson.

Manchester, N. H. .... Lord's day, June 3d
C. C. Stevens.

New Hampton, N. H., (at Bro. Pike's, for baptism), Sunday, June 3d. J. G. Smith.

South Robbinston, Me., Sunday, June 3d, and onward in that region as brethren may arrange.
J. K. Bellows.

Will hold meetings every Sunday, at the house of Bro. Russell, Natick, Mass., till further notice.
J. M. McHlig.

Square Pond, Ct. .... Sunday, June 10th
Baptism, also Lord's Supper, at the close of service in the afternoon. I. B. Potter.
P. S. Butler.

Springfield .... June 3d
A. M. Higgins.

Madison .... Sunday, June 3d
Wallingford .... Tuesday evening, June 5th
New Britain .... Wednesday evening, June 6th
Hartford .... Thursday evening, June 7th
Salem, Mass .... Sunday, June 10th
L. Boutell.

East Unity .... Sunday, June 3d
East Canaan .... Tuesday, June 5th, at 5 o'clock.
Joseph Kimball.

Norwalk, Ohio .... Sunday, June 3d
Nevada and Union .... Sunday, June 10th
Bucyrus, (Baptist house, near Martin Bacon's), Tuesday evening, 8 o'clock, June 12th.
G. W. Stetson.

Pittsfield .... Sunday, June 3d
Concord, N. H., (Angelos Hall) .... Sunday, June 10th
Joseph Pinkham.

Carlton .... Sunday, 10½ A. M., June 10th
Subject for the occasion, Immortality.
West Barre .... Sunday, 10½ A. M., June 17th
and at East Shelby at 4 P. M.
Springwater .... June 30th
and over Sunday at the grove meeting, to be held there at that time, on the Morris farm.
C. F. Sweet.

Lake Village, N. H. .... Sunday, June 3d
J. Couch.

New Haven, Ct. .... June 3d
Hartford, Ct. .... June 10th
Warehouse Point .... June 17th
J. S. White.

Schodack .... Sunday, June 3d
C. W. Sargent.

Water Village .... June 3d
Moultonborough .... June 10th
Sandwich, (Vittum school-house) .... June 17th
B. W. Piper.

Lee, N. H.
J. W. Brition .... Sunday, June 10th

Annual Conference .... June 3d
Dansville .... June 10th
Bristol and Honeoye .... June 17th
F. Burr.

New Britain, Ct. .... Sunday, June 3d
R. K. Ladd.

Timothy Cole .... June 3d and 10th

Business.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 556. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness, if less than 26 weeks, charge five cents; if more than 26 weeks, six cents. From the product (which will be a fraction over the actual indebtedness) deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each—G E Smith 578, D Hollins 568, A Warren 575, A Pettibone 579, O Bennett 579.

$1.25 each.—J. Stevens 572, G. Dillabaugh 578, D R Brooks 578, C W Bemis 578, A S Catlin 584, Mr. Hatch 580, R. B. Holt 583, J. E. G. Scott 579, M. Miller 586, A Morse 572, G Cutting 577, W Morton 580, T Wiggin 580, H Westervelt 580.

$2.00 each—M. Forrester 555, L. Sannell (Stanlels?) 557, W C Hall 571, S Hart 522.

$2.50 each—J Richardson 598, G D S Robinson 608, O. Whipple 607, S. C. Raymond 594, A. CLEAVES (what P. O.?) H Curtis 554, H C Card 563, U. R. Sinclair 604, R N Chaffee 598, M Swain 590, G P Persons 602, E. Moore 602, H. Johnson 593, N. Swain 594, J. Prince 540, M Allen 581, C E Stevens 581, W Ford 584, A Holt 597, C L Street 608, D Toney 608, I J Rivers 596, L M Hayes 608, E S Sherman 606, A Anthony 598, P B Brownell 583, G E Hodgdon 608.

$3.00 each.—B F Harvey 595, E Little 592, J Tucker 518, W H Hurd 608, G. E. Umberhind 574, E. Lowrie 571, O T Denton 534.

Various Sums.—S Cox 1.20, 555; J. A. Pooler $1.50, 545; J Curtis 50c, 558; H M Woodward $2.43, 600; M Gray $7.00, 580; E. West $5.00, 572; J. Buckingham $1.10, 556; J. C. Libby $1.74, 543; A. Braley 75c, 577.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

J Richardson $2.00, R Osman $1.00, H S Brooks 70c, G Dillabaugh 50c, J Sunderland $1.20, S L Miller $1.00, C M Chapman $1.70, R. N. Chaffee $1.00, E L Burnap $1.00, N S Bastion 50c, J M Weston $1.10, D F Small 20c, H B Sevey 20c, J W Purdy 81c, F B Jones $1.50, J M M Gernerd 50c, J Cladin 60c, M Smith $1.00.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

By Mail.—G P Persons, H. Tuttle, D F Small, J M Weston, E Lewis, M Swain, Ed Burnap, R N Chaffee, R Polley, J. Pinkham, N. Chase, C M Chapman, F B Jones, J. Douglass, E. M. Kent, J. M. M. Gernerd, J. Cladin, M Smith, H Hadlock, J M Stetler, C H Osgood, J V Himes, G Alkire, G W Foster, J Metcalf, F A Baker, L Welch, E Challen, F B Andrew, A H Walker, R S Robinson, D Howard, J Humphreys, J W Purdy.

By Express.—G W Young, W H Shackford, H McClary, H Munger, J Pinkham, T G Burpee.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

E. W., J. Elkins, D. F. Newton, F. H. Burbank.

ADDRESS OF PREACHING BRETHREN.

C. E. Piper—41 Grove Street, Boston, Mass.
C. Goodrich—69 Marion Street, East Boston, Mass.
A. W. Sibley—No. 4 Meridian Place, East Boston, Mass.
Israel Damman—For two or three weeks, New Bedford, Mass.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.
L. Boutell—Salem, Mass.
H. F. Carpenter—Danielsonville, Ct.
F. A. Baker—North Searsport, Me.
Joseph W. White—Portsmouth, N. H.
N. Hartshorn—Laconia, N. H.
J. G. Smith—New Durham, N. H.
J. Partridge—Richmond, Me.
C. H. Leverton—Surry, Hancock Co., Me.
O. D. Gibson—Amboy, Ill.
J. R. Preston—Prairie du Sac, Sauk Co., Wis.
R. J. Whitehead—Wallingford, Ct.
C. C. Stevens—Exeter, N. H.
L. C. McKinstry—Great Falls, N. H.
John T. Ungley—Lincolnville, Crawford Co., Pa.
S. D. Daniels—Springfield, Mass.
G. W. Turner—West Point, Wis.
C. P. Dow—My P. O. address for United States' correspondents will be hereafter Franklin, Vt.
Wm. McCulloch—New Rutland, Ill.
P. W. Hough—Cascade, Iowa.
Mrs. Abigail Mussey—Hillsburgh, Nova Scotia.
G. W. Stetson—Olena, Huron Co., Ohio, until Sept.
Wm. A. Fenn—Pulaski, Oswego Co., N. Y.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
N. A. Hitchcock—Exeter, Green Co., Wis.
N. F. Nason—North Hermon Me.
C. B. Turner—South Butler, Wayne Co., N. Y.
S. C. Hancock—Forestville, Conn.
Samuel Curry—Station E., New York.
S. P. Babcock—Malaga, N. J.
Josiah Durgin—Wadley's Falls, N. H.
H. Pratt—Springfield, Mass., 57 Cedar St.
C. I. Deyo—Richland, Kalamazoo Co, Mich.
Jacob Wilbur—Box 941, Janesville, Rock Co., Wis.
F. H. Burbank, Missionary.—Residence S. W. Cor. 7th and Spring-Garden Streets, Philadelphia, Penn.
Mrs. Anna E. Smith—No. 300 Seventh Avenue, below 33d Street, New York City.
Dr. I. L. Leslie—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.
H. K. Flagg—St. Louis, Mo.
Martha S. Butler—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT. The Common English Version as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union. Prices, by mail, postpaid—Family and Pulpit Edition (8vo. Pica), Plain Cloth, $2.25; Extra Cloth, $2.75. Medium size (18mo. Brevier), Plain Cloth, 85c.; Extra Cloth, $1.10; Sheep, $1.35; Roan, Colored Edges, $1.60.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the work of Demons: An Examination of its Origin, Morals, Doctrines, and Politics. By Miles Grant. Single copy, 15c.; eight copies for $1.00; $10.00 per hundred.

THE PROPHETIC TIME QUESTION; or, Bible Time Examined. By Wm. Sheldon. 27c.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed. 50c.

VISIONS OF ELLEN G. WHITE, not of God. By B. F. Snook and Wm. H. Brinkerhoff. 10c.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

Sent, postpaid, as follows:

1. I don't believe in Religion .... 12 pp., 3c.
2. Did the World make itself? .... 16 pp., 4c.
3. Is God Everybody, and Everybody God? .. 16 pp., 4c.
4. Have we any need of the Bible? .... 24 pp., 4c.
5. Who wrote the New Testament? .... 16 pp., 4c.
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable? .... 16 pp., 4c.
7. Can we believe Christ and his Apostles? .. 16 pp., 4c.
8. Prophecy .... 22 pp., 5c.
9. Moses and the Prophets .... 28 pp., 5c.
10. Infidelity among the Stars .... 22 pp., 5c.
11. Daylight before Sunrise .... 26 pp., 5c.
12. Telescopic Views of Scripture .... 22 pp., 5c.
13. Science, or Faith? .... 22 pp., 5c.

For the Set, (making 304 pp.) ...... 50c. postpaid.

Address all orders to Miles Grant, Boston Mass.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home .... 16 pp
2. Life Insurance .... 16 pp
3. Lost! Lost! .... 8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet? .... 8 pp.
5. About God (for children) .... 4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing .... 4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ .... 4 pp.
8. Now .... 4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent postpaid—
One set (64 pp.) .... 6 c.
1200 pp. $1.00
1800 pp., (by express, not prepaid) $1.00

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

IN FIVE VOLUMES (60 pp. each.)

For the set— [illegible]

Single Copy — [illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom as it is. [illegible] By H. L. Hastings.

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer; or, a History of the Doctrine of the Reign of Christ on Earth. [illegible] By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity; and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, [illegible] SPIRITUALISM A SATANIC DELUSION, by Wm. Ramsey, D.D.

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man; its Origin, Progress, and End. [illegible] TRACTS:—The Church and its Business; The Three Worlds; The Last Days; Plain Truths; [illegible] Important Questions; One Thing; Outline of the Creed, etc. By H. L. Hastings.

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; comprising Pauline Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, The Old Paths, [illegible] By H. L. Hastings. With The State of the Dead, by Milton; Man in Death, by Bishop Law; Papal Decrees; Extracts from Justin Martyr, Luther, Jeremy Taylor, etc.

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE

ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY

No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Works on the Prophecies—The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, etc.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES; or, A Glance at Christendom as it is. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. By D. T. Taylor. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THESSALONICA, the Model Church, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, by H. L. Hastings; and SPIRITUALISM, by Dr. Ramsey. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. With various tracts. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

MATTHEW XXIV. AND XXV. An Exposition, showing Christ's Predictions fulfilled, and his Kingdom near. By I. C. Wellcome. 25c; by mail, 27c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 1, By S. S. Brewer. 7c; by mail, 8c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 2, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 3, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

REASONS FOR MY HOPE; or, Tokens of Speedy Redemption. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD, and Signs of the Times. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THESSALONICA; or, The Model Church. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

REVELATIONS XIII.; a treatise. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

SPIRITUALISM a Satanic Delusion. By Wm. Ramsey, D. D. 20c.

THE SEVEN SEALS. Exposition of Rev. vi. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

LOOKING FORWARD; or, Prospects of the Church. By H. L. Hastings. 10c.

THE DAYS WE LIVE IN; The Lord soon to come. By S. S. Brewer. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CELESTIAL RAILROAD; or, Modern Pilgrim's Progress. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 12c; by mail, 14c.

THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 3c; by mail, 5c.

THE GREAT IMAGE soon to be dashed to pieces. By S. S. Brewer. 4c; by mail, 6c.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the times of Daniel and John. Mounted on Rollers, by express. $5.00; on Cloth, by mail, $4.00.

THE REIGN OF MESSIAH, the King of the Jews on the Throne of his Father David; its Nature, and the Time of its Commencement. By Wm. Sheldon. 8c; by mail, 10c.

Works on Future Punishment, etc.

DEBT AND GRACE; or, The Doctrine of a Future Life. By C. F. Hudson. A very able and learned work. $1.50.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. Cloth, 75c; paper, 45c.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT as taught in the Scriptures. Comprising Pauline Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, Old Paths, etc. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

STATE OF THE DEAD, and Punishment of the Wicked. A Discussion between Miles Grant and W. W. Clayton. 20c; by mail, 22c.

ETERNAL SUFFERING. A Discussion between Miles Grant and Dr. J. Litch. 25c; by mail, 29c.

RETRIBUTION; or, The Doom of the Ungodly. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, The Destruction of the Wicked established, and Endless Misery disproved. By Jacob Blain. 26c; by mail, 29c.

PAULINE THEOLOGY; or, The Christian Doctrine of Future Punishment, as taught in the Epistles of Paul. H. L. H. 10c.

GLAD TIDINGS; or, The End of Woe and Sin by the Destruction of the Wicked. (Three chapters from "Death not Life.") By J. Blain. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE OLD PATHS; or, The Primitive Doctrine of a Future Life. By H. L. H. 10c.

IMMORTAL SOUL THEOLOGY vs. BIBLE. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

WHAT IS MAN? A Bible View of his Creation. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SOUL; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SPIRIT; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS; Thief on the Cross, etc. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE DOCTRINE OF ENDLESS MISERY an occasion of Scepticism. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ETERNAL DEATH in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. 6c; by mail, 8c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. With remarks on Josephus. By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE RIGHTS OF WRONG; or, Is Evil Eternal? By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ENDLESS MISERY not a Bible Doctrine. 4c; by mail, 6c.

THE WICKED NOT IMMORTAL—(with 200 proof-texts.) 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING OF THE WORD HELL. 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING of Forever and Everlasting. 2c; by mail, 4c.

SMOKE OF TORMENT and Unquenchable Fire Explained. 1c; by mail, 3c.

REV. JOHN FOSTER'S LETTER on Future Punishment. 1c; by mail, 3c.

Miscellaneous.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF CHRISTIAN HOLINESS: A Sermon, by S. H. Platt. 15c.

THE DAY AND THE HOUR: a Lecture, by Joseph A. Seiss, D. D. 15c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.36c. Cloth, $1.75; by mail, $2.07.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five colored Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. $2.50; by mail, $2.86.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, the Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE BIBLE FROM HEAVEN; or, a Dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. 25c; by mail, 29c.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM; its Duty and Objects. By I. C. Wellcome. 20c, postpaid; $2.00 per dozen.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK; for Families and Sunday Schools. 15c; by mail, 19c; $1.60 per dozen; postage, 8c. on every three copies.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS FIGHT?—a tract on War. By I. C. Wellcome. 10c.

AMERICA IN PROPHECY; an Exposition of Isaiah XVIII. By O. R. Fassett. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EVERY BODY'S BOOK; the Personality of God; The Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By P. A. Smith. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CHRISTIAN LYRE; a Collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. 80c; by mail, 88c.

HOW TO COOK—without Salt, Butter, Lard, or Condiments. By Mrs. Mary E. Cox, M. D. 20c. postpaid.

COOKERY; or How to prepare food from Grain, Fruits and Vegetables. By F. W. Hurd, M. D. 15c; by mail, 17c.

PREMATURE DECAY of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE OLD AND NEW COVENANT—Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EXPERIENCE AND OBSERVATIONS of a Bruised Reed. By F. H. Chamberlain. By mail, 17c.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-word Translation, etc. etc. Leather, $4.00; by mail, $4.36. Extra gilt, $4.50; by mail, $4.86. Morocco, $5.00; by mail, $5.36.

CHLOE LANKTON, or Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75c; by mail, 87c.

NON-RESISTANCE. By W. C. Thurman. 20c; by mail, 24c.

DIPHTHERIA; its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. 10c; by mail, 12c.

GLAD VOICES; Words by D. T. Taylor, Music by L. Reimer. 3c, single; by mail, 5c. 30 cents a dozen, postpaid.

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. 15c; eight copies for $1.00.

BETHLEHEM; a Rhyme for Children. By H. L. Hastings. 10c. postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

SOCIAL HYMNS. Original and Selected. By H. L. H. Cloth, 30c; $3.00 per dozen. Paper 20c, $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. For Sunday Schools, etc. 6c; per dozen, 60c.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of the "cities of the nations." By Wm. Shepherd. 10c., postpaid; 85c. a dozen.

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. By A. P. Jolliffe. 6c; by mail, 7c.

OUR MISSION WORK; a Report of the Organization of the American Advent Mission Society, its Constitution, Officers, Addresses, etc. 5c.

EXPERIENCE OF THOMAS H. JONES, who was a Slave for forty-three years. 25c.

BLIND BARTIMEUS; or, How to be Saved. 25c. per dozen; $1.50 per hundred. Single 4c., postpaid.

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS; their Origin, Nature, Rank and Titles, their Ministry and Various Offices in the work of Human Redemption, and in the Administration of the Government of God. By Wm. Shepherd. 20c.

For the World's Crisis.

HYMN.

There is a land where all are blest
With life and health, and joy and rest;
Where saints rejoice, and angels praise
The Holy One in heavenly lays.

There I shall see my Savior's face,
And join the heavenly throng (through grace),
And roam o'er Eden's fields so bright,
Where all is rapture, love and light.

Then I shall hear my Savior's voice
In tones of love proclaim,—"rejoice,
The vict'ry's won, redeemed thou art,
A child of grace—heart of my heart."

Yes, "child of grace," "the vict'ry's won,"
Through God's eternal, loving Son;
Then swell the notes of loudest praise,
In joyful anthems, heavenly lays.

Peru, Ind. H. H. HALL.

THE CONTRAST BETWEEN THE LAW AND THE GOSPEL;

AS SEEN IN THE PRIESTHOOD AND THE SERVICE OF THE SANCTUARY.

The Jewish nation, if obedient and faithful, was to be "a kingdom of priests and an holy nation." Exod. 19: 6. But they never fully attained to that honor. To one selected tribe, that of Levi, was all the priestly work assigned. The great truth that sin separates man from God was plainly shown. Though into the outer courts of the tabernacle Israel, the chosen nation, might enter, the sanctuary, or "holy place," was reserved for the priests; while the "Holy of Holies," hidden by the second veil, was only entered by the high priest.

In the outer court the sacrifices were slain and offered on the brazen altar. The brazen laver stood between this altar and the tabernacle. When the priests had washed at this, they could approach and enter the holy place which contained the golden candlestick, the altar of incense, and the table of the show bread. Beyond the second veil was the Holy of Holies, which contained only the ark of the covenant, the tables and books of the law, the mercy seat upon the ark, the overshadowing cherubim of glory, with Aaron's rod and the golden pot of manna, the memorial of God's power and providential love. Here the high priest went alone to make reconciliation for the sins of the people upon the great day of Atonement every year.

Paul tells the Hebrew brethren that under the first covenant there was a "worldly sanctuary." This worldly—or world-like—holy place seems to have been a representation of the world, or universe. Josephus tells us that by the portion of the tabernacle allowed to the priests, "as a place accessible and common," Moses "denoted the land and the sea," "these being of general access to all;" but he set apart "the last division for God," "because heaven is inaccessible to men." Antiq. iii. 11. The service in this worldly or world-like sanctuary, then, may fitly illustrate the service of the priesthood under the new dispensation.

1. We have the outer court where the sacrifices were offered. This answers to the sinful world, in which Christ, the great sacrifice for sin, was slain. To him we may draw near in full assurance of faith, resting upon his great sacrifice for pardon and salvation. Coming to this sacrifice, we have "our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience," and prove the value of that blood of sprinkling which speaketh better things than that of Abel. Beyond the altar, and on the way to the holy place, stood the laver or washing place, where priests were washed with water to hallow them to minister in the priest's office (Exod. 29: 1–4), intimating that after the purifying by blood should come the washing of water, before we can be fitted for the priestly service. And hence, when men draw near to God, they are not only to have their "hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience," but also their "bodies washed with pure water;" thus being prepared as well by "the washing of regeneration" as by "the renewing of the Holy Ghost," for the priestly service that pertains to the church of God. Heb. 10: 19–22; Titus 3: 5.

2. Each christian thus becomes a priest of the Lord. Formerly the priesthood was confined to the fleshly descendants of Aaron. "Thou shalt consecrate Aaron and his sons, and the priest's office shall be theirs for a perpetual statute." Exod. 29: 9. To the sons of Levi the whole service of the sanctuary was confined, and no others could participate in it under pain of death. Num. 3: 5–8. They entered daily the sacred precincts. The priests went always into the first tabernacle, accomplishing the service of God. Heb. 9: 6. The priestly service done within the holy place was different from the work which was finished in the outer court. In the outer court blood was shed, but never within the veil. Blood was applied to the priests, and they were washed with water and robed in priestly vestments, in the outer court; then they were prepared for service within the veil. In the holy place there was no shedding of blood, no washing with water. We learn here the great truths of pardon and peace. "We have boldness in the entrance of the holy places, by the blood of Jesus." (Heb. 10: 19, Macknight's version.) The work in the outer court is done. The sacrifice is slain, the blood sprinkled, the body washed, and the garments of priesthood are put on.

Within the veil there stood a golden altar, the altar of incense, upon which no sacrifice was ever burned, but upon which sweet incense was offered to the Lord. Exod. 30: 9. There also stood the golden candlestick, or "lamp-stand," having set in its branches seven golden lamps, which were kept constantly burning. And there was also a table on which, in two "rows," or piles, stood twelve unleavened cakes, with a little frankincense upon the top of each pile. The duties of the priests here were to trim and fill the lamps, and keep them constantly burning; to burn incense daily, morning and evening, on the altar; to replace the bread with new, and eat that which was taken from the table once a week upon the Sabbath day. Here both priests and high priest might walk, serve and worship daily.

And this service prefigures the present state of the church. As this apartment is a figure of this world, so these priests are types of the true church. They, as a "holy" and "royal priesthood" (1 Pet. 2: 5, 9), who, by the cleansing of sin through the blood of Christ, become "priests of the Most High," have to offer up "spiritual sacrifices," presenting the "sacrifice of praise to God continually, even the fruit of their lips, giving thanks unto his name." 1 Pet. 2: 5; Heb. 13: 15. "The whole multitude of people were praying without at the time of incense." Luke 1: 10. So David said, "Let my prayer be set forth before thee as incense, and the lifting up of my hands as the evening sacrifice." Psa. 141: 2. So now, the golden-incense bowls, "full of odors" (or incense, margin), "are the prayers of saints." Rev. 5: 8. "And the smoke of the incense with the prayers of all saints" is offered upon "the golden altar before the throne." Rev. 8: 3, 4. In this service both priests and high priest were joined. So Christ and his people both engage in prayer and praise.

The golden candlestick or lamp-stand had seven branches, with sockets, in which a lamp filled with olive oil was placed. From these there was a constant light in the holy place. We read that the people of God are now to let their light so shine that men, seeing their good works, will glorify God. They are to "shine as lights in the world" in the midst of this crooked and perverse nation. And the great High Priest who "walketh in the midst of the seven lamp-stands" says: "The seven lamp-stands which thou sawest are the seven churches."—Rev. 1: 20; 2: 1. Like the ancient priests who trimmed the lamps and kept them burning in the sanctuary, so christians are to stand having their loins girt about and their lights burning, and they themselves like unto men that wait for their lord when he shall return. Luke 12: 36.

The bread, twelve cakes of it, one for each tribe, presented before the Lord upon the table for seven days and then replaced by fresh, while the old was eaten wholly by the priests and only within the sanctuary, may represent that living bread, the bread of God that came down from heaven which we must eat or perish, and which is the support and life of the church of God, "the royal priesthood," and which they shadow forth when, as of old, "on the first day of the week," the disciples come together to break bread. Acts 20: 7.

3. The high priest, after performing his daily duties in association with the other priests, once a year entered upon the special duties of his office, passing within the inner veil and there making reconciliation for the people upon the great day of atonement. Into this place he must go alone, and must go bearing the blood of a slain victim and the censer of burning incense; the blood to sprinkle the mercy seat, and the incense to becloud it with its fragrant smoke. Upon pain of death no other priest could go there, and he could go only as the bearer of blood, while all Israel kept a solemn Sabbath of penitential prayer. Hence, while "the priests went always into the first tabernacle accomplishing the service of God, . . . into the second went the high priest alone every year, not without blood, which he offered for himself and for the sins of the people; the Holy Ghost this signifying, that the way into the holiest of all was not yet made manifest, while as the first tabernacle was yet standing." The way into the holiest of all was yet hidden. But now, not by the bulls and goats, but by his own blood, Christ hath entered once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us. "For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us."—Heb. 9: 6, 8, 12, 24.

The holiest of all represents heaven, where Christ has gone, as the holy place represents the church on earth, where the true priesthood serve before the veil. And the exclusion of all but the high priest from the inner sanctuary shows that Christ our forerunner must go without us into heaven itself. While the first tabernacle was yet standing, the way into the holiest was not as yet made manifest. David had not "ascended into the heavens" (Acts 2: 34), and no man had ascended thither. John 3: 13. But the veil of the temple was rent in twain from top to bottom when Jesus died, and Christ has ascended thither, having led captivity captive. But still the "great High Priest, Jesus the Son of God, who has passed into the heavens," has gone there alone. He himself declared, "I go to him that sent me"; and, "As I said unto the Jews, whither I go ye can not come, so now I say to you." John 7: 33, 34; 8: 21; 13: 33.

In that holy of holies "he ever liveth to make intercession for us." There he offers the prayers symbolized by that incense which was offered both by priests and high priest, both within and without the veil. The prayers of all saints pass before him and prevail through his name. There, through his sprinkled blood, and beneath the smoke of incense covering the mercy seat, we may see how he has "blotted out" our transgressions "as a thick cloud"; and while in the outer court we await his return, we may believe that "to them that look for him he shall appear the second time without sin unto salvation."—Heb. 9: 27, 28.

Thus all is changed. The priesthood, the tabernacle, and the service of the old dispensation have been but the bringing in of a better hope by which we draw nigh to God. We have a merciful High Priest, touched with the feeling of our infirmities, able to succor those that are tempted, and knowing how to have compassion on them that are ignorant and out of the way.

"With joy we meditate the grace
Of our High Priest above."

And through his mercy we are called to minister as priests of the Lord. We may bring the sacrifices of God, which are a broken heart and a contrite spirit, which he will not despise. We may offer praise and glorify him. We may present, not the bleeding sin-offering which has been offered once for all, but rather the thank offerings of grateful homage, and our bodies as living sacrifices, holy and acceptable in his sight. And as the priests' lips were to keep knowledge, and as they made intercession for the people, so "the holy priesthood" make known the knowledge of God, proclaiming the gospel to every creature, and offering up in their appointed place "supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks . . . for all men; for kings and all that are in authority, that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty."—1 Tim. 2: 1, 2.

So much as to the change of the priesthood, from Aaron and his household and their descendants according to the flesh, to Jesus and his household, composed of true believers, the family of God. And now as to service or ministry, which are one and the same thing being both used as the the translation of one Greek word (diakonia), which is rendered both "ministry" and "service" (Rom. 12: 7, 15: 31,) and in 1 Cor. 12: 5 is translated "administration:" "Now there are diversities of gifts, but it is the same Spirit; and there are differences of administrations [margin, ministries], but it is the same Lord." Keeping this in mind, let us see who were those who performed the service of the sanctuary, and who are those who perform it now. As with the priesthood, so with the ministry,—it was after a carnal order. All the descendants of Levi according to the flesh were to take a part in it. "And the Lord said unto Moses, Bring the tribe of Levi near, and present them before Aaron the priest, that they may minister unto him, and they shall keep his charge, and the charge of the whole congregation before the tabernacle of the congregation, to do the service of the tabernacle." Num. 3: 6. We can not read 1 Cor. 12., or Eph. 4., and not at once see that all acts of ministry, in this dispensation, are made to depend upon the fitness of the instrument, chosen and qualified, according to God's own sovereign will. God, working by his Spirit, is the only source of all true ministry, both as to appointment and qualification; and this without the least reference to human authority, agreeably to 1 Cor. 12: 11: "But all these [different ministries and operations, in verses 5 and 6] worketh that one and the self-same Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will." And therefore all ministry founded on mere intellectual attainments, education, and the like, without qualification from the Spirit of God, or any that is set up upon the authority of men, is an assumption of power, and a service which, though he may overrule it for good, as he does even the acts of Satan, yet is not according to the mind of God, and is not such as he has ordered or can accept with delight. The only limitation we find in Scripture as to acts of ministry among the saints, is where there is a lack of gift. Now ministry, in these days, is made to depend, not only upon the gifts which God may have given, and which men therefore ought to feel themselves bound to receive, but upon human credentials, which suffice to give a title to ministry, though the individual possessing them may show plainly by his daily walk that he is destitute altogether of the Spirit of God, and though he may have no qualification for edifying the body. And moreover, where the gift is, and is acknowledged to be, when it is not accompanied with the human sanction it is rejected; but where the form of ordination is, without the power, it will not be questioned. Oh what a picture does the "temple of God" at this day present! The Lord distributes his gifts to his servants severally as he wills, and his household refuse to receive them, and thus "quench the Spirit," despising his word. How long, O Lord! wilt thou allow thy children to be thus frustrating thine own cause?

Thanks be to God, there cometh a day when all this confusion shall cease;—when those who are made "unto our God kings and priests" shall reign on the earth (Rev. 5: 10;) when the kingdom and dominion under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, and they shall reign for ever (Dan. 7: 27;) and when that Jerusalem which shall descend from God out of heaven, shall be one great tabernacle of divine glory so heavenly that there shall be needed no temple therein, no separating veil, no sacred boundaries, no blood-stained mercy seat, no clouds of incense, no burning lamps, no penitential prayers. Then shall "the way into the holiest of all" be made fully manifest; and, that tabernacle of God being with men, its gates shall not be shut by day, and there shall be no night there. And the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and his servants shall serve him. Faithful in a few things in their present priesthood in the outer court and sanctuary, he shall make them rulers over many things in the presence of their Lord, and, like their great High Priest "after the order of Melchisedek," made "kings and priests unto God," "they shall see his face and his name shall be in their foreheads;" and, in all the happy cycles of the ages to come, they shall serve him in the blessed ministries of his eternal reign, when his kingdom shall come, and his will shall be done in earth as it is in heaven, and he shall show unto them the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness to them through Christ Jesus. (Rev. 22: 4, 6; Eph. 2: 7.) What a service is this, for which we are now preparing! And how pure in heart should we be, who thus hope to see our Lord and be like him and serve him endlessly! And every man that hath this hope in Christ, purifieth himself, even as Christ is pure. (1 John 3: 1–4.)

From THE CONTRAST, edited with additions by H. L. Hastings, 19 Lindall Street, Boston. Price 5 cents.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTERS ON REVISION.

LETTER X.—The Obsolete Words.

In the fourteenth century, John Wickliffe, the English apostle of soul liberty, proclaimed in England, amid much opposition, the right of the people to possess God's word faithfully translated into their own tongue. Availing himself of the best means within his reach to carry out this great principle, he translated the entire Bible from the Latin Vulgate into the spoken language of the people; completing the arduous work in the year 1384. About a century and a half later, when portions of Wickliffe's Bible had become obscure or obsolete, William Tyndale, another champion of the people's right to the Bible, translated the New Testament from the original Greek into the spoken English of his day; and completed the printing of it in 1525, at the city of Worms, in Germany. In its main features, this admirable version of the New Testament has been passed down through the several revisions to our day. Assisted by John Frith, a young man who fell a martyr for the truth in England in 1533, Tyndale then engaged in translating the Old Testament from the Hebrew original. He himself suffered martyrdom, for his fidelity to the truth, in 1536; and the following year his completed work, with W. T. in ornamental letters at the end of the Old Testament, was published by John Rogers, under the name of Matthew's Bible. Then followed Taverner's, Cranmer's the Gevevan, the Bishops' Bible; and lastly, King James', which was published in 1611.

From King James' day to the present time, the English language has undergone far less change than it did during the two centuries preceding. Yet some important changes have taken place; so that we now find in the Common Version several words and phrases that have become obsolete, some of them unintelligible to the ordinary reader.

For example, in the New Testament: Paul, the clear and powerful reasoner, is made to say: "I wist not"; "Wot ye not"? "I wot not"; "we do you to wit"; "albeit"; "shall not prevent them which are asleep"; "was let hitherto"; "who now letteth will let"; "were shamefully entreated"; "provoke unto love"; "your zeal hath provoked very many"; "my conversation in time past in the Jews' religion, how * * * I PERSECUTED"; "had our conversation in times past"; "the quick and the dead"; "word of God is quick"; "is waxed gross"; "wax wanton"; "shall wax worse"; "waxed valiant"; "waxeth old"; "waxing confident."

Luke, that transparent, cultivated writer of the Greek, is made to say: "Wist not;" "took up our carriages, and went"; "alive after his passion"; "well stricken in years"; "waxed strong"; "waxed bold"; "out of their coasts," "coasts" of an INLAND city; "the more part knew not."

Peter: "I wot"; "having your conversation honest * * * they speak against you as EVIL-DOERS, they may by your good WORKS, which they shall BEHOLD"; "accuse your good conversation in Christ"; "eschew evil"; "seek peace, and ensue it"; "of quick and dead"; "the quick and the dead."

Matthew: "Prevented him"; "bewrayeth thee"; "Bethlehem, and in all the coasts thereof," B. being an INLAND town; "cast the same in his teeth."

Stephen: "We wot not"; "entreat them evil"; "evil entreated our fathers."

Mark: "He wist not"; "anon." John: "Are waxed rich."

James: "The governor listeth." Pontius Pilate: "Whether of the twain?" Mary, the mother of Jesus: "He hath holpen."

Jesus himself: "Wist ye not"; whatsoever they listed"; "where it listeth"; "anon"; "entreated them spitefully"; "spitefully entreated"; "entreated him shamefully"; "I trow not"; "shall wax cold"; "wax not old"; "is waxed gross"; "waxed a great tree"; whether of them twain?"

The correction of these obsolete expressions, so manifestly desirable, so necessary to make the word of God plain to the common mind, has been ably and satisfactorily made in the Revised New Testament, published by the American Bible Union. Matt. 27: 44 is a specimen: "cast the same in his teeth"; "reproached him with the same thing." 17: 25,—"prevented him"; "anticipated him." Also Acts 21: 15,—"took up our carriages"; "packed up our baggage." C. W. WATERHOUSE.

For the World's Crisis.

FAITH.

"Thy faith hath saved thee."—JESUS.

These words of Jesus fell upon the ear of the blind man with sweetness and in power. He opened his eyes upon the glory of the salvation wrought for him. He glorified God when he saw—the evidence of his cure. "All the people, when they saw it, gave praise unto God" that this good thing had been done for one of their townsmen. Methinks they were not as selfish as those of our day and generation, who thank God only when first person I is blest; even then not always is the real Giver acknowledged. It is oftener attributed to "my good luck," rather than as a favor from the Deity. (I speak from experience)

Is there one person on the surface of our earth who has not received some favor or blessing from the hand of Him who owns us, and all we have? Is there one under the surface who, when living, did not receive gifts from the hand of God? We can surely answer in the negative; and they have left their testimonies. Is it "faith" to believe God is good to us? No; for we see his goodness in gifts of mercy, love, and grace. "Faith is the substance (ground, or confidence) of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Then if we see God's loving-kindness, how necessary that we acknowledge its authenticity, who are the recipients. All mankind are partakers of his bounty. He is the life-giver of us all.

Who are saved by faith? Those who believe on Jesus Christ and in the promises of God, for faith reaches out toward things not seen. They receive present salvation from their sins, and are made heirs to an eternal salvation in the paradise of God. How saved? They are saved by grace; for "the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." When Christ comes, we shall be saved from every thing which tempts us to sin; and this will be salvation full, free, and everlasting. Thank God—

"I'm glad salvation's free."

Have we living, abiding faith in the promises of God? Do we show our faith by our works? Is the eye of faith so clear, and the arm of faith so strong, that when we pray, we believe we receive the things we ask for? Shall we hear it said to us at last, "Thy faith hath saved thee"? O for a deeper work of grace! for a spirit of submission to the requirements of the gospel. Let us be earnest workers for Christ, and not become weary in well doing; "for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." S. JACKMAN.

PASSOVER.

Friday, March the 30th, was, according to the Lunar system, the fourteenth day of Nisan, or, as the month is named in Hebrew, Abib—the month of ripening; and the children of Israel, all over the world, celebrated the evening in due and ancient form, in commemoration of the most wonderful deliverance of their fathers from Egypt, the house of bondage, where they have been oppressed, and compelled to do involuntary labor, for four hundred years. What a task for Colenso or such like, to break down that very groundwork of all revealed religion, the five books of Moses. For thousands of years the children of Israel, these living monuments of God's truth, have celebrated, year by year, on the very eve, the event of the liberation of their ancestors. One may as well deny the Revolution of America, and the Declaration of Independence by its citizens, though the Fourth of July is celebrated, year by year, by the descendants of those same men who drew and proclaimed that act, and which is laid up in the archives of the nation.

The original document may be destroyed by fire or water; wicked hands may steal and bury it; but it continues to live in thousands of copies in the hands of different classes of the people, carefully copied from the first, without changing even an iota of it. But, should even all the copies, in this and foreign countries, by some mysterious working of hostile elements be destroyed, the historical fact of the Revolution, and the Declaration of Independence would continue to live in the nation, as long as they will continue to celebrate the Fourth of July in commemoration of those facts.

Thus, and more than thus, is it with the celebration of the Passover. Moses, the servant of God, faithful in all his house, ordered certain ceremonies, which the children of Israel should perform, year by year, in commemoration of the great event that was to take place after a few days. He commanded the people first to be prepared, to have their lamb chosen four days before, to kill it in the evening, sprinkle its blood, roast it and eat it with shoes on their feet, their loins girded, and staff in hand. At the same time he added: "And it shall come to pass when ye shall come into the land which Jehovah will give unto you—as he has spoken—ye shall keep this same service. And when your children shall say unto you, What kind of service is this unto you? Then ye shall say, It is a passah-offering unto Jehovah, because he passed over the houses of the children of Israel, when he slew the Egyptians; he spared our houses."

This command was given when many of the people, perhaps, did not believe in the promised deliverance. After the event had taken place, and the unbelievers, or doubtful ones, had to put their hands upon their mouths, the command was repeated twice. (See Ex. 13: 8, 14.) The same command, to tell the children, especially at the occasion of the celebration of the Passover, what great things God has done for Israel, and in what wonderful manner he brought them out of Egypt, is repeated in Deut. 6: 20.—Israelite Indeed.

THE NEW ISLAND.

The town of Chio, in the island of Scio, was almost wholly overthrown by an earthquake in December last. In the same region accounts since the first of January inform us of the sea boiling and on fire, and of the casting up of a new island in the Grecian Archipelago, not far from the island of Santorini, which was in a state of fearful eruption up to the last accounts. The new island seems to be a mountain of coal and lava, about five hundred feet higher than the surface of the sea, and still rising at last accounts. Our Consul at Civacus, Greece, under date of February 15th, has transmitted an account of it to the state department. The London Times of March 8th, gives particulars obtained through Commander Try, of Her Majesty's ship Surprise, who surveyed the strange phenomenon on the spot, which are in these words:

"As soon as Santorini was sighted by the Surprise a dense white mass of vapor was observed rising from the sea, which appeared to be boiling from some unknown cause, and when the island was aproached a strange sight was seen; the sea evidently was boiling, and clouds of the whitest steam rushed out, soaring heavenwards like an enormous avalanche, and looking like snow. Something black was then seen rising slowly from the sea, which afterwards turned out to be no less than an island springing from the deep. It appears that there were no earthquakes, but convulsions of nature caused by volcanic islands having been thrown up from the sea."

"The position of the vessel was a very good one to watch the eruptions from the volcano on the burning island that has lately risen from the deep. The sea for several miles looked very strange, the sulphur giving it a yellowish appearance, and round the new volcanic island the sea was boiling at some one hundred yards distance from the shore. The steam rose with great grandeur, the whole island emitting smoke and sulphurous vapors, colored by the flames inside the volcano, in some places being cracked, and through the fissures an immense mass of red hot lava was visible. The volcano was in a constant state of life, and an eruption took place on the morning of the arrival of the Surprise. A black mass of vapor was vomited forth from the volcano, pouring upwards, but the fury of the eruption was soon expended, and it suddenly ceased."

"The second night after the arrival of the Surprise another eruption took place. The roar was very fierce, smoke poured forth from the volcano with terrific fury, and large blocks of rock and stone were hurled into the air, the whole presenting a most imposing sight. During the night it was said that a new island had been thrown up; the one pointed out was about three hundred yards long, and was a black smoking mass. Close to the anchorage of the Surprise there had been a place called 'Mineral Creek,' which was then no more; a large hill had risen out of it. It made its appearance before the arrival of that vessel, but it rose higher and higher during her presence there, while the old island was sinking gradually, as if about to return to the depths of the sea."

A despatch from Syra under date of February 15th, says:

"The new island is several miles in circumference, but being of a volcanic origin it is supposed it will disappear when the internal action subsides. The water in its vicinity creates a great tumult like a boiling cauldron, and at night shows white flames."—Prophetic Times.

BE PLEASANT.

If you really enjoy religion, every body you come in contact with will be the gainer by it. You will carry with you a pure and holy atmosphere that will diffuse happiness among all with whom you mingle. Take pains to have it so. By unvarying kindness, in actions, words and looks, show that pure, celestial love has taken up its abode in your heart. Let it be seen that grace can control the natural disposition and outward circumstances. But if you vary with your surroundings;—if when you feel poorly in body and tempted in soul, you are morose, sullen, or cross, what do you more than others? Do not even infidels have their amiable moods? Getting blessed at times, is no substitute for an even, consistent, godly, loving walk, in every day life. You may get so much grace that however you may be tempted, you will still be patient and amiable, and kind. Unless you are, do not profess holiness. The reality is wanting. Put on therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, long suffering, forbearing one another, forgiving one another; if any man have a complaint against any, even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye.—Ex.

RELIGION AND HEALTH.—Henry Ward Beecher, in his Lecture Room Talks in the Independent, thinks that health is the first step towards a healthy religious experience. He says:

"You will say, perhaps, 'What then, is there no religion for the infirm and sick?' Yes; but that does not alter the fact that in their religious experiences they are more or less gloomy and desponding. It is not always the effect of disease to produce gloom and despondency; sometimes it heightens the sensibilities; but as a general thing religious experiences are sounder and more rational in a healthy mind and a healthy body. So, I say that, as the first step, you must be healthy, if you expect to have broad and deep and sweet experiences. Health is a christian duty. I have heard persons praying, and praying, and praying for the presence of God; and I have thought that, if they would eat less, and work more, and spend twice as much time in the open air, they would not need to pray so much. What they wanted was not answer to prayer, but simple obedience to the laws of God in nature."

☞ President Hill, of Harvard University, in a remark upon Leviticus 19: 31, says: "In order to make the prohibitions intelligible to modern ears, and at the same time keep close to the literal translation, we should render the passage, "Visit not mediums, nor seek after clairvoyants, to be defiled with them; I am Jehovah thy God." Thus rendered, the old text becomes particularly fresh and pertinent.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

LITTLE JIM.

The cottage was a thatched one, the outside old and mean,
Yet every thing within that cot was wondrous neat and clean;
The night was dark and stormy, the wind was howling wild,
A patient mother watched beside the death-bed of her child.
A little worn out creature, his once bright eyes grown dim,—
It was a collier's wife and child, they called him "Little Jim."
And, oh! to see the briny tears fast hurrying down her cheek,
As she offered up a prayer—in thought; she was afraid to speak,
Lest she might waken one she loved far better than her life;
For she had all a mother's heart, had that poor collier's wife.
With hands uplifted, see, she kneels beside the sufferer's bed,
And prays that He will spare her boy, and take herself instead.
She got an answer from her boy, soft fell these words from him—
"Mother, the angels do so smile, and beckon little Jim;
I have no pain, dear mother, now—but, oh! I am so dry,
Just moisten poor Jim's lips again, and, mother, don't you cry."
With gentle, trembling haste, she held a teacup to his lips,
He smiled to thank her, as he took three tiny little sips.
"Tell father, when he comes from work, I bid good night to him,
And, mother, now I'll go to sleep." Alas, poor little Jim!
She saw that he was dying, that the child she loved so dear,
Had uttered the last words she might ever hope to hear.
The cottage door is opened, the cotter's step is heard,
The father and the mother meet, yet neither speak a word.
He felt that all was over, he knew his child was dead;
He took the candle in his hand and walked towards the bed.
His quivering lip gave token of the grief he'd fain conceal;
And see, his wife has joined him—the stricken couple kneel;
With hearts bowed down with sadness, they humbly ask of Him,
In Paradise once more to meet their own dear little Jim.

—Selected by J. N. Berry.

THE LITTLE MENDICANT.

SELECTED BY M. D. W.

In the year 1510 a lovely orphan boy of eight years old, who had no friend nor means of support, went along the high road leading to the city of Paris, weary, hungry, and begging a morsel of black bread, of which, when the charitable added to it a scrap of cheese or a raw onion, he gladly made his repast. He was going to Paris because he knew not where else to go; wandering on, as the poor and desolate often do, to the great and gay metropolis.

The child met a monk traveling the same way, with whom he joined company. The monk probably found him an intelligent little companion, and as they journeyed on he taught the boy the alphabet, and even of forming letters into words. The key of knowledge was thus presented to the poor little mendicant, and he soon made use of it. How little did the good-natured monk think, that while the instructor's name should be unheard of, that of the poor mendicant pupil should be recorded centuries afterward!

On entering Paris, the boy fell among the students of the University, who were rather a riotous party; and, as it was the hour of recreation, they fancied little Pierre would prove a passive subject for their vile sport. But some of them, seeing he was faint with hunger and fatigue, interfered on his behalf, gave him some bread to eat, and made him up a bed of straw on the ground where they were amusing themselves. Pierre desired no more than to be allowed to live thus in fellowship with the students. An ardent desire to learn had been awakened in his mind by the first lessons he had received, and the result of this second accidental meeting was important to him also. He proposed to serve them as errand-boy, or in any capacity he could, on condition that they should give him some food and some of the learning they possessed. The offer was accepted.

Pierre Laramee (for such was his family name) received from the students some daily bread, and some lessons. He had no lodging, but slept on the straw, or under an archway, and served his young masters or learned all day. Not to die of hunger, and to have the means of learning while he lived, was all the ambition o little Pierre, the future doctor of the University of Paris, then aimed at.

This went on for a year; then followed four years of Pierre's life of which there is no account extant; but at the end of that time we find the same poor boy, then nearly thirteen years of age, a servant of the servants at the college Navarre, at Paris—that college where the famous king of Navarre, the hero of Protestantism in France, afterwards Henry the Fourth, also studied. Pierre had to wait on the classes. Thus he listened to the Professors' instructions; he caught their lessons, as it were, flying; but they became fastened on a retentive brain. All day long he worked as a servant, but in the evening he had books; and in a blank one he recorded nightly the substance of the lessons he had heard given by the masters. Thus he continued privately to follow the regular course of instruction; he studied as the students studied, but with far greater zeal, and more abundant success.

The young servant had filled many common copy-books with the matter of the masters' lectures, when these copy-books fell into the hands of one of the Professors. He summoned the young man before him, and Pierre appeared, trembling at the fear of a dismissal. But he had not neglected his duties for his studies, and had therefore no cause for fear. The Professor questioned him, and was astonished at the amount of learning he had so secretly acquired, and at the uncommon intelligence and talent that was unexpectedly brought to light. The hitherto unnoticed, hard-working servant honestly told him all, and then begged to be allowed to undergo an examination, saying he would feel by no means satisfied that his self-acquired learning would enable him to sustain it.

The Professor, who experienced a lively interest in the poor youth, whose modesty appeared as great as his talents, consented to admit him to the examination; and its results were so creditable to Pierre, that he was afterward desired to prepare his Thesis for the public exhibition, his success in which would entitle him to the rank of doctor. Pierre did so, and gained so much applause that the honorable title was conferred upon him while he was yet a young man.

Henceforward the once wandering mendicant boy became noted, as one of the French savans of the age. Pierre Laramee is known to scholars as the learned Dr. Ramus, his family name having become Latinized, after a fashion common to his age. Poor little Pierre has a claim also on the sympathies of our readers; for among the martyrs to Protestant principles, who were slaughtered at the terrible massacre of St. Bartholomew, was the young hero of our narrative. Does not his career show what triumphs perseverance can win when in union with rightly directed ability?

For the World's Crisis.

"SEVEN LITTLE RAINDROPS."

DEAR LITTLE PILGRIMS:—Journeying to the better land, are you not way-worn and weary? Listen, and I will beguile you with a story.

"Once upon a time, seven little raindrops sat talking together up yonder, in their home in a cloud. Said one of them,—

'I think we shall all be sent down below before long. I wonder whereabouts we are;' and she glided to the edge of the cloud and peeped over it. 'I declare,' she cried out, 'we are over the nastiest, smokiest town you ever saw.'

And when the others heard that, they followed her to the edge, and peeped too. Then another said,—

'Doesn't it look dusty and hot down there? I think the people must be wanting us very badly. If we are sent down, I shall go as fast as ever I can to tell the people the good news—it will be so pleasant to see how glad they will be.'

But another said, 'It is a frightful way down; I don't care a bit what becomes of me, if I can only get down without breaking my back.' That raindrop only thought of herself.

And the next said, 'I should like to be of use to something: it seems such a pity to be wasted.'

'Why, as to that,' said the fourth, swelling herself out to look as large as possible, 'I mean the river to be the better for me;' and all the little raindrops laughed.

Number five said, conceitedly, 'That she was sure, if she had to pass through all that horrid smoke, she should be such a fright when she reached the earth that she would not be fit to be seen.'

And number six wished to make a noise in the world, only she said, 'There are so many of us that I should like to know how any one is to tell one from another.'

And then they all turned to number seven, who was a wee bit of a thing, and who had not spoken, and asked her what she would like.

'I don't know,' she said, in a very meek voice; 'I'm so frightened, I am such a tiny thing, that I'm afraid I'll be blown away by the wind, and then, if I should reach the ground, who would be the better for such a little thing as I?'

'Off you go,' said the cloud, shaking her skirts, and down they all tumbled.

Number one made all the haste in the world, and fell upon the sill of a garret window, by which a poor sick boy was sitting panting for fresh air.

'Oh! mother,' he cried, when he saw the raindrop, 'here's the rain—it will be cooler now;' and when she heard him say that, she was quite satisfied, though she was dried up a minute after, for you see she had her wish.

There was a lady passing along the street where the poor boy lived, dressed all in her Sunday's best, and the drop that meant the river to be the better for her fell on her new silk cloak.

'That nasty rain,' said she; 'it will spoil my cloak;' so she took up her pocket-handkerchief and wiped it off.

And the drop that wanted to be useful, found her way into a thirsty flower-cup that was drooping with the heat, and the flower drank her up and was revived, and so she was not wasted, but did some good. The drop that was anxious to make a noise in the world fell with a great splash into a tub of water, where I don't suppose any one would know her from another. And the rain drop tumbled into a heap of soot that lay in a sweep's yard, and spoiled her beauty forever; while the wee thing that was so timid, joined with another wee thing that she met on her way, and the two dropped upon a broad green leaf, where the insects came to sip; but the one who only thought of how she should get down without breaking her back, tumbled headlong down a great black chimney and was burned to death in a moment."

And now, my dear little children, how does the story please you? I hope none of you will be like the raindrop that thought only of herself, for you see she came to a very bad end.

But the one that wanted to be of use to something had her wish, and so will you, if you really wish to be, and try. ANNA.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance................$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months.....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address..........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.
Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to
MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:
Payable always in advance.
[illegible]
To Canada subscribers, at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.
CLUBS.—Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, [illegible]
SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, July, and at no other times. [illegible]
POSTAGE.—[illegible]
ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 557. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 12.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. O. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. O. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

Selected for the Crisis.

LOOKING OFF.

Oh, eyes that are weary,
And hearts that are sore,
Look off unto Jesus,
And sorrow no more!
The light of his countenance
Shineth so bright,
That on earth as in heaven
There need be no night.

Looking off unto Jesus,
My eyes cannot see
The troubles and dangers
That throng around me;
They cannot be blinded
With sorrowful tears,
They cannot be shadowed
With unbelief fears.

Looking off unto Jesus
My spirit is blest;
In the world I have turmoil,
In him I have rest.
The sea of my life
All about me may war;
When I look unto Jesus,
I hear it no more.

Looking off unto Jesus,
I go not astray;
My eyes are on him,
And he shows me the way.
The path may seem dark
As he leads me along,
But, following Jesus,
I cannot go wrong.

Looking off unto Jesus,
My heart cannot fear,—
Its trembling is still
When I see Jesus near:
I know that his power
My safeguard will be,
For, why are ye troubled?
He saith unto me.

Looking off unto Jesus,
Oh may I be found,
When the waters of Jordan
Encompass me round:
Let them bear me away,
In his presence to be,
'Tis but seeing him nearer,
Whom always I see.

Then, then shall I know
The full beauty and grace
Of Jesus, my Lord,
When I stand face to face;
I shall know how his love
Went before me each day,
And wonder that ever
My eyes turned away.

UNIVERSALISM EXPOSED FROM THE INNER TEMPLE.

BY JOHN T. WALSH.

(Concluded.)

We now invite the attention of the reader to the following particulars:—

1. Universalism ignores faith in the existence of God, in this life, as not necessary to future holiness and happiness, and thus practically indorses Atheism. Universalism, then, charges a lie upon the apostle when he says: "Without faith it is IMPOSSIBLE to please him; for he that cometh to God MUST believe that HE IS, and that he is a rewarder of those who diligently SEEK him." Universalism either says it is not impossible to please God without faith, or that God will save men who do not "please him!" Universalism says, it is not necessary to believe that God is, in order to future holiness and happiness; and that he will make them holy and happy whether they "diligently seek him" or not. Universalism, then, is certainly a system of practical Atheism.

2. Universalism ignores faith in Christ in this life as necessary to future holiness and happiness, and thus practically indorses Deism. John says: "Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ." Again: "Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father."—1 John 2: 22, 23. The Deist denies the Son, and lies against the truth; but all this is no bar to future holiness and happiness! Universalism, then, is a system of practical Deism.

3. Universalism ignores faith in the Holy Scriptures in this life as necessary to future holiness and happiness, and thus practically indorses Infidelity. Paul says: "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."—2 Tim. 3: 16, 17. And John says: "And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book; but these are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing, ye might have life through his name." John 20: 30, 31. But Universalism tells the infidel that all this is unnecessary; that he will have life, holiness, and happiness in the world to come, though he may never believe in nor read the Scriptures, and though he may never, in this life, "believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God!"

Universalism, then, is a system of practical Infidelity.

4. Universalism ignores Christian knowledge in this life as necessary to future holiness and happiness, and thus practically indorses Paganism. This conclusion legitimately follows from the points previously examined. No faith in God, none in Christ, and none in Revelation, being necessary to future holiness and happiness, Universalism practically indorses Paganism; for, if the whole world should relapse into idolatry, the final result would be the same! Again:

1. Universalism ignores faith in the existence of God in this life as necessary to future holiness and happiness; and is, therefore, a system of Infidelity.

2. It ignores faith in Christ in this life, as necessary to future holiness and happiness; and is, therefore, a system of Infidelity.

3. It ignores faith in the Scriptures in this life, as necessary to future holiness and happiness; and is, therefore, a system of Infidelity.

4. It ignores regeneration in this life, as necessary to future holiness and happiness; and is, therefore, a system of Infidelity.

5. It ignores a change of heart in this life, as necessary to future holiness and happiness; and is, therefore, a system of Infidelity.

6. It ignores repentance toward God in this life, as neccessary to future holiness and happiness; and is, therefore, a system of Infidelity.

7. It ignores confession and prayer in this life, as necessary to future holiness and happiness; and is, therefore, a system of Infidelity.

8. It ignores obedience to the gospel in this life, as necessary to future holiness and happiness; and is, therefore, a system of Infidelity.

9. It ignores a holy life in this world, as necessary to future holiness and happiness; and is, therefore, a system of Infidelity.

10. It ignores all the conditions of the gospel in this life, as necessary to holiness and happiness; and is, therefore, a system of Infidelity.

Thus, one by one, does it render null and void the obligations of men to believe, repent, and obey the gospel! Thus, one by one, does it extinguish the light of heaven, and leave man to grope his way in darkness so intense that it may be felt!

Universalism, then, requires no faith in God, none in Christ, and none in revelation. No faith in Christ, no change of heart, no regeneration, no conversion, no repentance, and no obedience to the gospel, in order to future holiness and happiness; for if man can be holy and happy without being the subject of these things in this life, then they are useless. And if man can be holy and happy in the world to come without a knowledge of revelation in this, that revelation is unnecessary. And if man can be holy and happy in a future state without faith in Christ, without a change of heart, without regeneration, and without repentance and a holy life in this world, then all these things are non-essential.

So, if Universalism be true, no revelation was or is necessary; for man can and will be holy and happy as well without it as with it. A large portion of mankind have no knowledge of revelation at all, but the final result will be the same as though they understood all the revelations of God.

Again: a knowledge of Universalism itself is not essential to future holiness and happiness! A man may never hear of it nor dream about it, he may never believe it, but, on the contrary, strongly disbelieve it, and the result is the same. What an elastic system! It adapts itself to all creeds, classes, and charters—to Atheists, Deists, Infidels, and Pagans. There is no use in preaching it, nor believing it; for a knowledge of it is not necessary to future holiness and happiness.

But we are not done with this system yet. We call attention to the following points:

1. Universalism, while it professes to save all men, really saves none.

Universalists tell us there is no future hell to be saved from; that no one is exposed to endless punishment. Of course, then, if Universalism be true, we are saved from nothing in the future world; for salvation implies danger or evil of some kind, and if we are exposed to nothing of the sort, if there be no risk or no danger, then there is no salvation. The man who is saved from nothing, is not saved at all! If, then, there be no future punishment to which men are exposed, and of which they are in danger, there is no future salvation! This is the legitimate result, upon the hypothesis that there is no future wrath from which to save men. From what, then, are we saved?

Again: so far as this life is concerned, Universalism teaches that all rewards and punishments are meted out in this world; and these rewards and punishments are in the exact ratio of sins committed. And if this be so, there is no salvation in this world, nor in the world to come!! No man, who suffers the full penalty of his sins, can in any sense be saved from them. Saved from sin and yet suffer the (its) penalty! The absurdity of such an idea must be apparent to all reflecting minds.

Salvation from sin includes a deliverance from the love of sin, the guilt of sin, the power of sin, and the punishment of sin; and consequently we reaffirm that no one who suffers the full penalty of his sins, *is ever saved from them. Now, Universalists affirm, with a triumphant air, that all sin is fully punished here; and if this be so, there is no salvation in this world. And as there is no future punishment to which men are exposed, there is no future salvation; and so, according to the principles of Universalism, there is no salvation at all!

What a ridiculous system is this! There is no MERCY in it. God punishes men in this world for all the sins they commit, and yet we are gravely told they are saved from their sins! How absurd!

We charge, then, upon Universalism, that, while it professes to save all men, it really saves none; for in the future world there is nothing from which to be saved; and in the present life men suffer the full penalty of all their sins, and consequently are not saved from them! But,

2. There is no remission of sins in Universalism.

This system knows nothing of pardon, remission, or justification. Pardon includes the remission of the penalty. Over the person who is pardoned the penalty no longer hangs. He does not suffer the penalty due to his sins.

But Universalists teach us that every sinner, before he dies, suffers all the punishment due to his sins. It is impossible, therefore, he can be forgiven. To pardon the sinner and yet inflict the penalty is a new idea in the administration of justice. What! pardon a man and then hang him? Or hang him and then pardon him? Apprehend the criminal, try him, and inflict the penalty, whatever it may be, upon him, and then pardon him! What a burlesque on the administration of justice! We insist upon it, that if men suffer the full penalty of their sins in this life they are not pardoned at all. We desire to make this point prominent, and to emphasize it. Let the reader, then, never forget that the punishment of a sin and its pardon ARE INCOMPATIBLE. Now, the doctrine of remission is a cardinal item of the gospel. The blood of Christ was shed for the remission of sins; and without the shedding of that blood there could have been no remission. Christ commanded "that repentance and remission of sins should be preached among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem." And Paul says to his brethren, "Be tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God, for Christ's sake, hath forgiven you." And John says, "I write unto you, little children, because your sins are forgiven you." And again, Paul, quoting from David, says, "Blessed is he whose iniquity is forgiven, and whose sin is covered. But if men suffer all the punishment due to their sins, where is the "blessedness" of being forgiven? What is gained by it? If the penalty of the law still hangs over him, his forgiveness is no advantage to him at all. The poor sinner may believe in God and Christ; he may repent of all his sins in dust and ashes; but still he must suffer all the punishment due to his sins in this life. The sinner who repents, fares no better than the one who does not repent! This is the doctrine of Universalism, which teaches that all sin is punished in this life; and if this be true, we again say that Universalism knows no forgiveness; for no amount of contrition can avert the penalty which hangs over the sinner—he must suffer it! After all, the tender mercies of Universalism are cruel!

But in opposition to this, we affirm that men who are pardoned do not suffer the punishment due to their sins. It is contrary to the divine law, and, indeed, to every civil government on earth. What would be thought of that governor who should send a pardon to a criminal condemned to die, and at the same time dispatch an officer to hang him? Would not such conduct be an outrage on humanity? And does God act in this way? Does he pardon the sinner with one hand, and punish or execute him with the other? This is no pardon at all; and hence we say that, if Universalism be true, there is no forgiveness; for every one suffers the punishment due to his sins.

The only way in which Universalists can escape this conclusion, is to abandon the position that all men suffer in this life the punishment due to their sins; for pardon and punishment for the same sins are incompatible. If sin is not pardoned, the sinner will be punished; but if the sin is forgiven, the sinner goes free. This is the law of God and man. And if the sinner is not forgiven at all, the penalty of the law, the divine law, hangs over him forever!

Jesus on one occasion said to the Jews, "I go my way, and ye shall seek me, and shall die in your sins; whither I go, ye can not come." Now, if men die in their sins they are not pardoned in this life, and the penalty of the law continues to hang over them; and consequently, if punished at all, they must be punished after death. But our Lord not only told them that they should die in their sins, but also, "whither I go ye can not come." This fixes the doom of all such characters after death. They are not with Christ.

Let us now sum up this matter. Men are either punished in this life for their sins, as Universalists teach, or they are pardoned. But if they are punished they are not pardoned, for they are incompatible. The pardon of sin includes the remission of the penalty. And so, if Universalism be true, there is no such thing as pardon in this world; for it is evident that God does not pardon the sinner and yet punish him for the sins forgiven.

Again: if men suffer the punishment of all their sins in this life, they are not saved from them; for salvation from sin includes a full deliverance from its punishment. And so, if Universalism be true, there is no salvation from sin in this world, because all who sin suffer the punishment due to their offences.

Again: if Universalism be true, the future holiness and happiness of men is not a matter of "free grace" at all, but of debt! The sinner has paid the penalty, the full penalty, of all his sins in this world: and when he leaves it, having paid the "last farthing" due on account of his sins, he has a right, as a matter of justice, and not of grace, to go free. The criminal, who has been sentenced to the penitentiary for ten years, has the right at the expiration of his term to demand his freedom. It is no matter of grace to let him go. The law, justice, and right, all demand his liberation. And so with the sinner. If he pays the penalty of the law in this world, that law can have no further claim upon him, and he goes free as a matter of justice, and not of grace! This is the legitimate result of the doctrine in question.

Once more: if there be no future hell—no future punishment, then there is no future salvation; for there is nothing, absolutely nothing, from which to be saved; and he who is saved from nothing, is not saved at all! Such are some of the absurdities of Universalism.

So after all the ado Universalism makes about the salvation of all men, NO ONE IS SAVED! They are not saved here, for they suffer the punishment due to their sins; and they are not saved hereafter, for there is nothing from which to be saved!

There is another point in Universalism which we wish to examine in this discourse. Universalists teach that though a man may die in his sins, yet when he rises from the dead, he is saved from them. He may lie down in the grave a sinner; but he will rise up a saint! This view, then, involves the position: THAT IN THE RESURRECTION A MORAL CHANGE IS WROUGHT IN THE HEARTS OF MEN. Where, when, and by whom is this doctrine taught in the Bible? The resurrection is not a moral change, nor does it involve a change of heart, or of the affections. In the resurrection, the body, and not the soul, is the subject of change. "How are the dead raised up, and with what body do they come?" "It (the body) is sown in corruption; it (the body) is raised in incorruption. It (the body) is sown in dishonor; it (the body) is raised in glory; it (the body) is sown in weakness; it (the body) is raised in power; it (the body) is sown a natural (animal) body; it (the body) is raised a spiritual body."

No one can read this without the conviction that all these changes are wrought upon the body, and not on the mind, soul, or spirit. But these changes, which have exclusive reference to the body, are predicated of the bodies of the saints, and of them only.

The heart must be changed before death, or it will never be changed at all. Our sins must be blotted out while we live, or they will never be forgiven. There is no post-mortem change of heart, nor remission of sins. No angel of mercy flies through the regions of the dead to announce pardon and salvation to the lost. "Unto him that loved us and washed us from our sins in his own blood—be glory and dominion forever and ever," is the language of saints on earth and in heaven. The blood of Christ, and not the grave, nor the resurrection, is the great moral means of spiritual purification. John saw "a multitude which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, stand before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands." And when one of the elders asked him, "Who are these who are arrayed in white robes, and whence came they?" John said: "Sir, thou knowest." And the elder replied: "These are they who came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." "THEREFORE," yes, "therefore," for this reason, "are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple; and he that sitteth on the throne shall dwell among them," etc. No one of these had paid the penalty of their sins in this world, neither had they been the subjects of a post-mortem change of heart. No; they came out of great tribulation and washed their robes in the blood of Christ. But Universalism practically ignores purification by the blood of Christ, and teaches a NECESSITATED holiness by a resurrection process! The man is made holy and happy in the resurrection. But this is all an assumption, without the least shadow of proof. There will be a "resurrection of the JUST and UNJUST" as SUCH. They will be just and unjust when raised. This is fatal to a necessitated holiness by a resurrection. Besides, Jesus says, "Marvel not at this, for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto THE resurrection of LIFE; and they that have done evil, unto THE resurrection of DAMNATION," or death, which is the opposite of life.

What a chaotic system of theology this is, which teaches that men suffer the full penalty of their sins in this life, and then die in their sins, and are made holy at the resurrection by the miraculous power of God! First, they tell us that Christ died to save all men, and that, therefore, all men will be saved. Then they tell us that all men are punished in this life for their sins, leaving nothing from which Christ can save them in this world. Then they tell us that there is no future punishment from which to be saved. And to cap the climax, they teach a necessitated holiness by the miraculous power of God in the resurrection! Really, there is nothing homogeneous in the system. Its elements are in the wildest state of confusion! The advocates of this system have mounted the hobby of "endless punishment," and in attempting to ride it to death, have well nigh rode themselves out of breath. This is the ghost that haunts them day and night.

They seem to be so certain that, if there is a hell, they will go into it, their only hope of salvation is to annihilate it! But it is a vain attempt. If their only hope of final holiness and happiness is the annihilation of hell, they will most certainly be damned. And when they have remodeled their own system, and made it consistent with itself, and with truth, it will be time enough to make an assault upon that which is emphatically GOD'S CAPITAL PUNISHMENT, by which his justice, his laws, and his universal government are vindicated, and made honorable in the sight of an intelligent universe.

We have uttered nothing in malice. We entertain the most perfect good-will towards those who hold the system just reviewed; and we pray God that we and they may be saved; and that we may unite our voices in ascribing all praise, glory, honor, might, and dominion to Him who has washed us from our sins in his own most precious "blood." But, if we ever do this, we must obey the gospel, and work out our salvation with fear and trembling.

* One class called Restorationists contend for a limited punishment after death, a sort of purgatorial purification; a view which as effectually nullifies the gospel and the blood of Christ in salvation, as the one we are considering.

For the World's Crisis.

NATURE OF MAN.

BY G. W. STETSON.

BRO. GRANT:—My article in the Crisis of last June 27th, having elicited inquiries for "further light," and also objections to the positions taken therein, I desire to communicate my responses through the Crisis for two reasons: first, to save time, of which I have but little to devote to correspondence; second, one letter will in this way answer all. Allowing me then to address myself to my "friend and brother," A. L. F., of Dundee, Yates Co., N. Y., as a representative of a class, I would say that in matters of revelation I have nothing to do with nature. On receiving the Bible as "the word of God." I find myself bound to be governed by its precepts and instructed by its teachings. However much, therefore, it may seem to vary from "human devices," I must still heed the admonition of the apostle to us Gentiles, found in Col. 2: 8,—"THE resurrection of the DEAD," is the groundwork, the "foundation and the cap-stone" of the christian religion, and constitutes the great contra-distinguishing feature of Christ's teachings from that of all others, not assimilated to or borrowed from him, and its accomplishment depends not upon man's mortal or immortal nature, not upon the nature of the soul's essence, whether it be material or immaterial, not upon its consciousness or unconsciousness in death, but UPON "the mighty power of God, which he wrought in, or on, Christ, when HE raised him from the dead."—Eph. 1: 17-20. "Do ye not therefore err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God?"—Matt. 22: 29. My convictions are, that your entire difficulty and difference of opinion with me on certain points named, depends, first, upon what constitutes man; second, upon confounding those Scriptures which teach what man is to be, after the resurrection, with those which define him as he now is, under the power and dominion of death; and in blending a soulical and spiritual man together as synonymous.

In one thing you are very clear and distinct. You opine that there are, by nature, two men in one; or that it takes two to constitute one; basing your idea, possibly, like some others, upon the Scripture, "they two shall be one flesh" (Gen. 2: 24), but Paul says this was spoken in relation to "Christ and the church" (Eph. 5: 31, 32), but it is "one flesh," not one part FLESH, and the other part SPIRIT. We are flesh, or soulical men; but through the agency of Christ, by the power of the resurrection, vested in him (Jno. 5: 26), we are to be made "SPIRIT men," not by virtue of a nature derived from the first Adam, but from the second. Now all the descendants of the first have derived mind, which you define spirit, from him; and this mind you call the inner, or spiritual man, clearly making two men; while, at the same time, you speak of man (i. e., one man), as being compounded of matter and spirit. Here, I think, is your dilemma; for the apostle says (1 Cor. 2: 11), "Who of men knows the thoughts of the man, except that spirit [or mind] of the man which is in him."—Emphatic Diaglott translation. Now thoughts are the result of an exercise of the spirit, or mind, as deeds are the result of an exercise of the body; but mind, or spirit, here (as in every other place) is not spoken of as the man, but something possessed by him; hence says Paul, in 1 Cor. 15: 44: "There is a natural [i. e., animal] body [or man] and there is a spiritual body [or man], and so it is written, The first [flesh or animal] man Adam was made a living soul." How? v. 47, "The first man [Adam] is of the earth, EARTHY." So in Gen. 2: 7, "The Lord God formed MAN of the dust of the ground." 3: 19, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."

Let us for a moment, now, look at this man thus made of the dust, but as yet inanimate. He has eyes, but "they see not;" ears, but "they hear not;" hands, but "they handle not;" feet, but they walk not; a mouth, but it speaks not; and brains he has, but they think not; a heart, but it beats not; lungs, but they breathe not. But is not "the eye" "the lamp of the body? why, then, does it not see? because it lacks "the light of life;" and the ear, the foot, the hand, the mouth, the heart, the lungs, all are incompetent to fulfill their several offices, because they lack also "the power of life." But if a living eye can see because God made it for that express purpose, and a living ear hear, hands handle, mouth speak, feet walk, hearts palpitate, and living lungs breathe, pray tell me why cannot a living brain think by the same light and power of life that enables the rest of the members to act their several parts? Oh! if that man only had LIFE. "And the Lord God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul" (became alive).

"Seeing he giveth to all life and breath," etc.—Acts 17: 25. The "power of life" is manifested in the action of the heart and lungs, which, for their continued motion, are not dependent upon any volition of the mind, but experiments upon animals have demonstrated the fact that their action is dependent upon the center of the medulla oblongata remaining intact. Kirke and Paget's Physiology says (pp. 315, 316), "It has been proved by repeated experiments, that the entire brain may be gradually cut away in successive portions, and life may continue for a considerable time, and the respiratory movements be uninterrupted. Life, also, may continue when the spinal cord is cut away . . . from below upwards as high as the point of the phrenic nerve . . . and in birds and reptiles as high as the medulla. . . . So long as the medulla was intact, respiration and life were maintained. But if the wounded . . . in its central part . . . respiration ceases, and the animal dies as if asphyxiated." "Injury and disease in men prove the same as these experiments on animals." See in loc.

Now the argument is this: if the simple addition or continuation of life (in cases where undeniably the spirit—mind—has nothing to do with it) can and does make the heart beat and lungs breathe, how will you undertake to say that the same "power and light of life" will not also make that brain think, and consequently thoughts not be the result of impression made upon living brains, by external objects, through one or more of its five telegraphs, the eye, ear, nose, tongue, or nervous system, for seeing, hearing, tasting, smelling and feeling? But take away the first, what can he see? take away the second, what can he hear? the third, what can he smell? the fourth, what can he taste? the fifth, what can he feel? and now, when he can neither see, hear, smell, taste, or feel, what can he do? Why, he can still think; his "inner man," as you call it, can remember, and enjoy, combine and meditate. Well, I grant it; but we have got it (your inner man) pretty well cornered. I guess we might as well push him a little closer "to the wall."

Now begin and pare away the brain, his "old house," or "clay tenement," from above, and, lest he should escape by the "postern gate," begin also cutting away the spinal cord from below, and proceed carefully as far up as the origin of the phrenic nerve, and downward from above to the medulla oblongata, and now what can he do? Just nothing at all. Of course not, you will say, for the "inner man" has gone. Hold! my friend; not too fast; not exactly gone, only going; but going by piecemeal, if you will still have it that the "inner man" is the mind, for that has been gone, or, as they say down South, "been done going," for some time. But the "spirit of life" that God breathed into his nostrils, is still here, yet in him, the man still lives; and not until the body is dead, does the spirit return to God who gave it; yet it sees not, hears not, smells not, tastes not, feels not, thinks not. Yea, their love and their hatred and their envy is now perished. "The living know that they shall die; but the dead know not any thing."

Now, my friend, be sure, the "inner man" is the "new man," "Christ the hope of glory formed within you." Put him on.

(To be continued.)

For the World's Crisis.

A SHORT SERMON.

BY WM. SHEPHERD.

"Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ will give thee light."—EPH. 5: 16.

Never, in any previous period of the world's history, was the apostolic exhortation so applicable as at the present time. Never was it so forcibly impressed, and calculated to be of so awakening and stirring character as now. When we reflect for a moment upon the remarkable times upon which we have fallen; that we are on the eve of great and stupendous events, such as have not been in magnitude and grandeur since the beginning of the creation,—events which will be for the utter astonishment of the world, the admiration of saints and angels,—hastening with the utmost flight unto the closing scenes of this dispensation, which will bring us to the opening of "the judgment of the great day," when all who "are in the graves" "shall hear the voice of the Son of God" "and shall come forth, they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation";—when we carefully consider that soon the wonders of the last days will break in upon us, in all their fearful and sublime aspect; that soon we shall have a general revolution throughout the entire world—an upheaving and overturning of all earthly kingdoms, thrones, empires, republics, not founded in truth and unrighteousness,—a general breaking up of all popular institutions and organizations, social, political, and ecclesiastical; that all things will be shaken that can be shaken;—when we reflect that soon the seventh angel's trump will peal through earth and sky; and the seventh seal be broken with its startling developments associated therewith; the seventh vial be poured out, resulting in a multitude of terrible plagues, famine, pestilence, and death; that soon the judgment will set, the books be opened, the destiny of men and angels be forever fixed; does not the divine exhortation come to the poor sinner with redoubled force? and shall it not prove of a startling nature, awakening thee from that almost confirmed condition of stupor and indifference into which sin has brought thee, unto a consciousness and realizing sense of that unhappy plight in which thou art found?

We remark it is not those who "sleep in Jesus" which are here addressed; but those who are sleeping in the enticing arms of sin. It is to the dead, but not "the dead in Christ," whose lives are hid with God in him. It is to "the dead in trespasses and sins." It is to those who sit in darkness; who have the light of this world, but not "the light of life."

Oh unhappy state! And this is the condition, poor sinner. And how to be extricated, how to be delivered from this wretched state of deep despair, should be the inquiry. Are such the thoughts which now revolve in thy mind? Do you inquire, "What must I do to saved"? We answer, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." Awake, O sleeper, and call upon thy God, and arise from the dead, and Christ will give thee light. This language is to thee. Then come to him. He has the power to awaken thee; he has the ability to communicate life, and to raise thee from that moral death into which sin has plunged thee, and to quicken thee into spiritual life and activity. He has the power to give thee light, illuminating thy mind with the bright beams of celestial radiance. He still has power on earth to forgive sins, and wash thee from sin's polluted stains, and give thee a beautiful garment, that thou mayest stand arrayed in his righteousness in the great day.

Hasten, then, and come. Delay no longer. Fly for thy life. Tarry not in all the plain. Come at once to Christ, thine only hope and refuge. This may be the golden opportunity. This may be the hour fixed to decide thy destiny, either for weal or wo. Who knows? God alone, and he may accept it as such. Sinner, will you regard it as such? Come, decide now to humble yourself before God, repent of your sins, pray for forgiveness, believe the gospel, and be baptized in the name of Jesus, that you may have your sins remitted, and receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.

Or will you trifle with these things, and decide to live on in sin, and travel still the downward road to ruin and destruction? Can you, dare you determine upon such a suicidal course, with all its fearful results before you? Will you thus foolishly barter away eternal life, its joys, honors, and wealth, for a few fleeting hours of sinful pleasure? Surely you cannot prove so devoid of reason as to determine in favor of misery and ruin.

Then come, in compliance with the gracious invitation—"Come, for all things are now ready." Jesus waits to receive thee. God in mercy still entreats thee; angels are solicitous for thee to come, and saints are anxious for thy welfare. "The Spirit and the Bride say, Come; and let him that heareth say, Come; . . . and whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely." While "He which testifieth these things saith, Surely I come quickly. Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus."

For the World's Crisis.

DYING HOPES.

Surrounded with all the comforts of home, with a father's care and a mother's love, the young man often builds high earthly hopes. He lifts the vail which hides from his vision the unseen future, and gazes on the scene with perfect satisfaction. He sees prosperity attending every effort, and perhaps his name enrolled among the mighty men of earth. All looks as bright as the noon-day sun. No dark clouds have crossed his pathway; no sorrow's cup has he been called to drink, but fond caresses and smiles of loved ones have served to strengthen his ambition, and build his hopes still higher. But the chilly winds may blast his future prospects. Death's icy hand may snatch its victim.

He leaves the parental roof and goes forth into a cold, unfeeling world, to gain the long-looked-for desires of his heart, but how oft they fail him. One after another of his cherished hopes he has bid farewell. Others he vainly hugs to himself; but the sorrows of earth come rolling over him, and it is with many struggles he keeps from sinking beneath its merciless waves.

Young man, you are about meeting the stern realities that are before you. If you are still straining your eyes far into the future, while the mists of time are gathering around you, turn them from these vain hopes, and look beyond. Let them die. Their sandy foundation will soon give way. Build them on the sure word of God; and you will have their full fruition beyond old crumbling earth.

Lawrence, Mass. ALSON GREELY.

THE TAXING OR ENROLLMENT UNDER CYRENIUS.

The commentators find difficulty with the passage in Luke 2: 2, which our version renders thus; ("And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria." But satisfactory proof is not given that Cyrenius was governor of Syria until some eight years after Christ's birth. True, A. W. Zumpt has shown a probability that he was twice governor of Syria. But if that be so, it does not relieve the difficulty, since confessedly his first governorship began too late. How, then, shall it be removed? I suggest now that the text furnishes the materials for a clear and easy solution. The facts narrated are, first, That a decree was issued for a general enrollment for taxation or some other purpose, and that in accordance with Jewish customs, the people repaired to their several places for enrollment, but that this, the first enrollment under the imperial decree, was not really made until years afterward, when Cyrenius was at this time issued by Augustus, is by no means impossible, but is indeed what might be expected; since we know from Josephus that about this time Augustus, in anger at Herod, had stated that he had 'heretofore used Herod as a friend, but would now use him as a subject." We know, too, that Herod managed to obtain a reconciliation in a very short time.

Now to issue a decree for the enrollment of Herod's people, would be most emphatically "using him as a subject;" and the enforcing of it would have been so considered, and as such, perhaps, it would have been then, as afterwards, resisted by the Jews. Such a decree was, doubtless, issued, and proceedings under it went on until the reconciliation, when they, for the present, were suspended, and were not not resumed until Cyrenius was governor; as that registration did not now take place. This we may suggest is the view presented by a strictly literal rendering of the passage, (omitting the "and," which our translators have injuriously interpolated,) viz., "It came to pass in those days that a decree went forth from Augustus Cæsar, that all the world should be enrolled." This, viz., the first enrollment, was effected when Cyrenius was governor of Syria. In accordance with the decree, Joseph and Mary went to be enrolled; but it is nowhere said that they were at that time enrolled, or that any any enrollment actually then took place. On the very contrary the clause referred to distinctly notes the fact that the enrollment was deferred, and did not take place until the subsequent time named. I apprehend that this interpretation,—which simply makes the clause "the first enrollment" exegetical of the pronoun "this,"—puts no violence upon the passage, and that thus the difficulty is removed. If not, will some one kindly show why?

For the World's Crisis.

LITTLE WANDERERS' HOME.

To assist in the purchase of the house for the above object, I have decided to sell the greater part of the books in my little library. These books, about one hundred and fifty in number, have been gathered together during the last five years. If it was not for the cause of Christ, I would not part with them; but desiring to do my share in the blessed work of my Redeemer, I give them up cheerfully. To get my books, I have denied myself of many things that some would have thought indispensable; but I needed books, that I might understand more fully the teachings of the Word; hence, I denied self in various ways. I have $750.00 towards the purchase of the house, and offer for sale, to increase the sum, the following works:—

Worsley's Trans. of the New Test., $1.50; Scarlett's do. $1.50; Wakefield's do., with notes, $3.00; Geo. Campbell's Trans. of the four Gospels, with notes and dissertations, 2 vols., $3.00; Septuagint Version of the Old Test., 2 vols., $4.50; Old Testament (Hebrew), $1.50; Interlineary Trans. of John, $1.25; Apocryphal New Testament, 40c.; Milner's Church History, 2 vols., $2.75; Ecclesiastical History of the first three centuries, 2 vols., 2.50; Matther's Magnalia (Eccl. Hist. of N. England), 2 vols., $3.00; Olshausen's Commentaries on the New Testament, from Matt. to Ephesians, 4 vols., $10.00; Hodge's Commentary on Romans, $1.75; Commentaries on the Old and New Testaments, by Patrick, Lowth, Whitby, and Arnold, 4 vols., $12.00; Text Book of Eccl. History (Gieseler), 3 vols.; Lord's Theological Journal, Vol. 1st, $1.00; Lord's Exposition of the Apocalypse, $2.00; Hagenbach's History of Doctrines, 2 vols., $3.00; Lardner's Credibility of Scriptures, 10 vols., $15.00; L. M. Child's Progress of Religious Ideas, 3 vols., $2.50; De Cormenin's History of the Popes, $1.00; Buck's Theological Dictionary, $1.50; Hallam's Middle Ages, $1.25; Music of the Bible (Hutchinson), $1.50; Dick's Complete Works, 2 vols., $2.50; Xenophon, $1.50; Tacitus, $1.50; Belsham's Trans. of the Epistles, with notes, 2 vols., $6.00; Plutarch's Lives, $2.00; Owen's History of the Bible Society, 3 vols., $2.75; Guizot's Gibbon, 2 vols., $3.50; Dr. Allen's Ancient and Modern India, $1.50; Watson's Theological Institutes, 60c.; Universal History, 21 vols., $15.00; Ancient Christianity, 2 volumes, $2.50; Our Lord's Great Prophecy (Buck), $1.25; Eusebius's Eccl. History, $1.50; Whittaker on Arianism, $1.25; Wilson on the Prophecies, 75c.; Ellison on Baptism, $1.25; Al Koran, with notes, $1.37; Goodrich's Apocatastasis, 75c.; Judge Edmonds on Spiritualism, $1.00; Gasparin's Science vs. Spiritualism, 2 vols., $1.50; Morton's Human Anatomy, $2.00.

These are the principal works that I have for sale. All of these books are in excellent order, and some of them very handsomely bound. Those desiring to purchase will send their money in letters. The price marked here does not include the expense by mail or express. The books will be forwarded at the expense of the purchaser. "First come, first served." Should any one send for a book or books too late, the money will be immediately returned to him at my expense. Books can be sent by express at a comparatively small expense. Orders will be punctually attended to. Pray for the blessing of the Lord upon our efforts to save children from the terrible sinks of iniquity in this great city. Yours in hope of salvation, F. H. BURBANK.

Philadelphia, Penn., S. W. Corner 7th and Spring Garden Sts.

For the World's Crisis.

"THE IMMORTAL LIFE."

BRO. GRANT:—My daughter had broken her ankle in a shocking manner in jumping from a carriage. The horse on leaving the cars near Rochester, N. Y., became frightened, and dashing toward a large culvert, there seemed but one chance for life, and she jumped from the carriage, and came upon the ground with such violence as to break the large bone of her ankle, piercing through flesh and stocking into the ground, separating the small bone from the joint, and badly bruising the cartilages and ligaments.

A friend writes: "When it was announced to her that her foot must be amputated, she seemed to have imparted to her for the time more than human strength and calmness. She told them to do as they thought best, and without agitation, gave directions about the arrangement of her clothes preparatory to the operation."

MY DAUGHTER'S LETTER.

"Dear Father:—Bolstered up with pillows, and too weak to support or steady a pencil but a moment at a time, thus I am writing you first of all others. It is one week ago to-day since I met with this terrible accident; a week of intense suffering and agony, wakening to consciousness for a moment, then drifting away upon unknown waters. I thought I must tell you for your comfort of the strange peace and resignation that came to me when I first awoke to the realities of my condition, and was told that my foot must be amputated. All my sweetest hopes in life seemed to drift far away from me; and I called the surgeons to my bedside (there were six), asking each one calmly for his candid opinion, and then turned to the long months of weariness, confinement and suffering that awaited me. So I reached out for God's hand, which I saw about me in the darkness, for the thought was terrible of being carried into another room while I was unconscious, and the decisions of which I should be ignorant. I asked for ether, which is less dangerous than chloroform. Dr. —— said, 'It is not to be denied that one risks as much in taking the last as they would to cross the seas, but it is necessary that you should take it.'

One long hour passed. Up to that point I had been inhaling it without losing consciousness. Then Jesus led me with him gently upward; a circle above us seemed widening, and I saw the 'Holy Land' in all its quiet splendor; music, such as I never before dreamed of, flooded the place. To live there, an immortal life, in such a place! Oh, how greatly I desired it. Then a sense of my own unworthiness bowed me down in sorrow. I looked up to see Christ standing near me weeping. He loved me then! Like a flash came this radiant joy to my heart, and I came back to life and consciousness, not with blighted hopes before me, but unto a new life, filled with divine promises and sweet assurances. I may not trip lightly again, perhaps, but a new and changeless life awaits me. Father, pray for me; pray with the fervency of Daniel of old, that I may have patience to endure what awaits me. EMMA."

Oh, the immortal life! joys are there, joys are there. This token of comfort in the hour of such bereavement is worth worlds on worlds like this. Oh! sinner, seek the "immortal life" ere it is too late. Brethren, I need your prayers, your fervent, effectual prayers. Shall I have them?

Yours, H. PRATT.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, June 6, 1866.

☞ Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year; but if delayed six months beyond the time of payment, the price is $3.00 a year. Thus 50 cents a year is saved by paying in advance.

☞ Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank-checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

CAMPMEETING AT WILBRAHAM.

We presume our readers would like to know the time of the next great gathering at Wilbraham. It is proposed to begin the meeting on Monday, Aug. 20th, and continue it one week. We expect also to have a meeting on the ground the 19th. On Saturday, the 18th, a large number of tents are usually erected; so that the meetings of the Sunday preceding the commencement of the general campmeeting, are usually as good and pleasant as any during the whole meeting.

We shall expect a very large gathering this year. Other denominations are making extra efforts this year; and we think there is no class of people that ought to do this more earnestly than those who are looking for the immediate coming of the Son of man. Let the meeting at Wilbraham this year be a jubilee gathering. We hope to see the largest gathering, and enjoy the best meetings this year that have ever been held at Wilbraham.

DISCUSSION AT KEZAR FALLS.

Our late discussion at Kezar Falls, Me., was rather peculiar. When we arrived in the place on Wednesday morning, May 23d, we learned that Mr. K. Atkinson, the Methodist minister in the place, whom we expected to meet in the debate, had chosen as a substitute Elder E. B. Fletcher, of Cape Elizabeth, Me., a Methodist minister with whom we held a discussion in 1862, at Weeks' Mills, China, Me.

At two o'clock P. M., a large audience assembled at the meeting-house to hear the debate of the following propositions:—

1. "All men are immortal, in the sense of continued, unending being."

2. "The wicked will cease to exist as conscious beings."

We allowed our opponents to select a chairman to suit themselves. After prayer by Eld. Fletcher, he opened the debate, by stating that his opponent believed that the brain, in man, is the organ that does the thinking; and then laid down some six propositions based on the position that man has a "spiritual soul" that does the thinking, independent of his physical organism; and cited several passages of Scripture to prove his points.

In our reply, we had spoken but a few words before we were interrupted and called to order by our opponent, because we did not state his propositions, which we intended to do, as soon as we had spoken a few words by way of introduction. He sat down, and we began again, by referring to his preliminary statement, that his opponent believed that the brain is the organ of thought, when he again interrupted, by saying "The rules of the debate require you to state my propositions." We then inquired if we might be allowed the privilege of so doing? We then began again, by referring to his first statements, and was again interrupted the same as before, and we again asked for the privilege of meeting his arguments. After he was seated, we made a fourth attempt to reply to his positions, by quoting the first passage of Scripture which he had introduced, when we were again interrupted the same as before, by being told the rules of the debate required us to state his propositions. We replied we could not recollect them so as to give them verbatim, but we had written down the points, or substance of them. We then asked him to read from his manuscript his first proposition once more, in order that all might have it clearly before them. To this he consented, and sat down. We then began to quote his first proof text, when he again called us to order by saying the rules of the debate required that his opponent should state his propositions. We remarked that we did not know that it made any difference which stated them, if the audience only understood them fully. We then inquired of the chairman if we could be allowed the privilege of speaking to the question, and of meeting the first point at issue between us, which was whether the brain, or a "spiritual soul" is the organ of thought? We received no satisfactory answer, and soon found the chairman and our opponent were bold of the same end of the rope.

By this time there was considerable feeling among those listening, who felt anxious to see fair play, and no interruptions.

We will here state the rules to which we most heartily consented, and with which we cheerfully complied according to the best of our ability:

RULES OF DEBATE.

1. Each disputant shall state the points upon which his opponent places reliance, in proof of his proposition, and shall make an effort to show them unsound; and this shall be honorably done, at the time when the arguments are stated.

2. When either disputant gives a text as argument, he shall show, if he can, how it supports the argument or point he is proving; and when required to do so, the disputants shall state in which of the different senses of a word he is using it.

3. The duty of the chairman shall be to keep the parties to the above rules; to decide questions of order, and to govern the meeting.

After the second reading of the rules, we remarked that they did not require us to state, word for word, the propositions of our opponents but "the points" at issue between us; which we would be glad to do do, if we could be allowed the privilege instead of being interrupted as soon as we made the attempt. We then began once more, when we were informed that our twenty minutes had expired.

Our opponent then spoke his twenty minutes, stating some new propositions, saying in passing, "Mr. Grant can't meet these,—he knows he can't meet them; and he won't try to do it."

We had spoken but a few words, in reply, before we were again interrupted as before. As soon as we attempted to meet his points, or rather his first point, or proposition, he would keep saying "the rules of the debate require my opponent to state my propositions after me." We remarked that the points at issue between us should be stated; but as soon as we had stated the first one, for some reason, we were not allowed to proceed. By this time the audience became so excited and opposed to the course of our opponent, that he agreed to let us speak the remaining fifteen minutes without interruption.

Our opponent then refused to make any further defense. After several unsuccessful attempts to have the discussion continued, the chairman and our opponent declared the debate ended; and an appointment was made for him to preach in the evening.

Several had come from ten to thirty miles to hear the discussion, and were quite dissatisfied with the way it was concluded. We were then asked if we would preach the next day, to which we consented, and an appointment was made for 2 o'clock. Although it was a busy season, many came to hear. Appointments were also made for every afternoon and evening for the week at the same place; with an invitation for any one to ask questions. This offer was accepted, and most faithfully performed by our opponent and three others, one Baptist and two Methodist ministers. Two other Baptist ministers were at the discussion. These ministers usually spent an hour, or an hour and a half, in asking questions after the close of the sermon. No pains were spared on their part, to entangle us in our talk; but the Lord was our helper, and gave the truth a glorious triumph; and ourself the hearty sympathy of the people. It was gravely stated by some of the ministers that they knew we were not a christian; that we were dishonest, and did not believe what we preached. Indeed we were put down pretty low in the scale of humanity; but this all turned to our favor at last, and helped to give the truth more prominence. Many warm friends were raised up to cheer our heart, and we hope to meet them in the coming kingdom.

We have occasion to feel much pleased with the results of the discussion and the subsequent meetings.

On the Lord's day we preached in the meeting-house at Porter, in the morning and afternoon; and at 5 P. M. in Porter Village. Although the day was quite wet, yet we had a large congregation of attentive hearers; among whom were two Baptist ministers. Both of them spoke in our meetings, and showed a good spirit. We think there is an open door in Kezar Falls and vicinity for the light and truth. The people are anxious to hear more about the way of life.

We had a good home at Bro. Tobias Libby's, who loves the "blessed hope."

POLITICAL ECONOMY OF PROPHECY.

The above is the title of a new and interesting work, by R. C. Shimeal, of the Presbytery of New York, author of "Our Bible Chronology," and other valuable works. He endeavors to show that the 1335 days of Dan. 12: 12, end in 1868. This work will be read with interest by the students of prophecy. We find the following on the title page:

"Political Economy of Prophecy, with special reference to its relation to the history of the church, and the civil, military, and ecclesiastical history of the Roman Empire, and of its last Emperors, the three Napoleons, with an appendix on the Pope's late Encyclical, and the Firman of the Sultan of Turkey, prophetically and historically demonstrated. Illustrated by portraits of the Napoleonic Family; a chart of the course of empires; maps of the holy land, etc."

It is a duodecimo volume of about three hundred pages. It may be obtained by addressing "Box 1199, Philadelphia, Pa. Price $1.75, postage 16 cents.

The following is an extract from the work. When speaking of the aspirations of men at the present time he says:

"And, strange to say, just at this juncture in the political affairs of the world, their eyes are directed toward a guiding GENIUS in every way adapted to the AGE. In illustration of this, we ask the reader to look at the following facts: The age of frantic revolution found its master-spirit in one exactly like itself—in the first Napoleon—fiery, vehement, and headlong. The age was frantic, and so its master-spirit. The new age, half warlike, half mechanical, has found a third Napoleon exactly like itself; fond of military splendor, thirsting for conquest, yet as firm, as exact, as impassive, as one of the machines of his own age. The headlong fury of the first Napoleon has been worked off, and cold, impassive calculation has filled its place, yet resting on the very same substratum of iron will and stony determination. The age of frenzy had its Napoleon of fire—the present warlike and mechanical age has its Napoleon of iron. Great minds indicate the advent of great deeds; and the rise of the third Napoleon, with all the FITNESS for his age, forbodes some vast revolution. The history of England, and other Protestant nations, is a history of PASSIONS. But we have now arrived at a period in which principles and passions are united in one impetuous torrent, ready to sweep away all effete pre-existing systems; yet, for the time, being restrained, shut in, and directed in its course, by the iron will and the indomitable thirst for the glory of universal empire of Napoleon the Third. Nor is this all. This "man of destiny," as a sovereign, a statesman, a diplomatist, and a soldier, it is now conceded on all hands, is without an equal. And, measuring his past with his present position, the conviction is more and more every hour fastening itself upon the minds of men, that, convinced by experience that the world has never had a king worthy of the name; nor any form of government that was not in their view a misgovernment; and that there never can be a permanent form of government except as it is vested in ONE MAN POWER; and finally, as the true position of the world now is that they are waiting for the appearing of JUST SUCH A KING; the time having at length arrived for his debut upon the stage of action, he will be HAILED as such! Aye, reader. Let me entreat you—don't argue, don't quibble, or prevaricate. All will be vain. Mankind, even from the very beginning, having preferred any form of government except the divine, will now be left to their own choice, not only, but "God will put it into the hearts of the ten Latin horns or kings" of western Europe "to fulfill his will and to agree and give their power and strength and kingdom" to this ONE MAN, who will be exalted to the rank of a GOD; while all other powers, as his allies, will recognize his UNIVERSAL SUPREMACY over the Latin earth. . .

The design of this one man power being to subject all to his despotic sway, first, having set up "an image to the Beast which had the wound by a sword, and did live" —i. e., Louis Napoleon III.—he now issues his mandate to the subjects of the Latin race, "causing that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed." Nor this only. For "he causes all, both small and great, rich and poor, bond and free, to receive a mark in their foreheads: and that no man might buy or sell, SAVE he that had the mark, or the name of the Beast, or the number of his name."

Now this last, we observe, will be THE TEST of fidelity or of apostacy to the subjects of NOMINAL PROTESTANT CHRISTENDOM."

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED.

Those who have friends in danger of becoming Spiritualists, may do them a great favor by persuading them to read "Spiritualism Unveiled." This work professes to give the true cause of the strange manifestations that are witnessed in various parts of the world, showing that departed human spirits have nothing to do with them, as assumed by the demons. For prices, see book notices.

"THE SHINING LIGHT."

The above is the title of a new work, and we think valuable one, about to be issued by Bro. D. F. Newton, author of "Home Thrusts," and associate editor of the Earnest Christian.

The work will consist of two parts:—I. "The Bible for the great folks. II. The Bible for the little folks and the great folks; or, the Bible in the family circle." It will be embellished with engravings. From what we know of the author, we think it will be a valuable book for every family. It will not be ready for the public before the latter part of July. We shall expect a supply in due time. Success to our Bro. in his good enterprise.

For sale at this Office

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT, The Common English Version, as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union.

We have just received a fresh supply of this valuable work, which ought to be in the hands of every friend of correct versions of the Sacred Oracles. Prices by mail, postpaid, as follows: Family and Pulpit Edition (8 vo. Pica) Plain cloth, $2.25; Extra cloth, $2.75. Medium size (18 mo. Brevier) Plain cloth, 85c.: Extra cloth, $1.10; Sheep, $1.35; Roan, colored edges, $1.60.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; being a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed.

A valuable work for ministers and Bible students. Price 50 cts. Address orders to this office.

Czechowski's Thrilling Narrative.

A small edition of this work has been printed in paper covers, to be disposed of for the benefit of the European Mission. The book will be sent post-paid to every one who contributes $1.00 or more to the aid of the Mission. Bro. Czechowski is in need of help. Let the friends take this means to aid him, and receive an interesting book in return. The book will be sent to those only who order it.

ITALY AND ROME.

The aspect of affairs in Italy is very warlike. Every thing indicates a terrible upheaving in the Pope's dominions very soon. Garibaldi and his warriors are about ready for action, and the statesmen of Europe can see little or no chance to prevent bloody work. This is not only true of Italy, but of nearly every power in Europe. A general war seems almost inevitable. This is what the students of prophecy have been looking for at this time. All things indicate that the last days of this dispensation have really come, and that we may soon expect to see the King of kings coming in all his glory.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times says:

"Prince Napoleon has just returned from Italy, and in a long interview with his cousin the Emperor on Tuesday night, giving an account of his sayings and doings in Italy, and of the sayings and doings of others, he is reported to have said that in the actual state of affairs Italy cannot avoid going to war, even should she be left alone to confront her enemy."

To the same effect writes M. Texier, one of the editors of the Paris Siecle, now at Turin. It would be a strange illusion, he says, if any one in France thinks that in Italy war can be avoided. The Italian government has called out its contingents disseminated in every part of the world (for Italy is a country of emigration.) It has made them return from America.

The following note is published:

CAPERA, 11th.

M. Le Ministre: I accept with true gratitude the dispositions which you have taken and his Majesty has sanctioned relative to the Volunteer corps. I am thankful to you for the trust you manifest in me in giving me the command; and you will be good enough to express to the King my sentiments. I hope soon to co-operate with our glorious army in accomplishing the destinies of the country. I thank you for your courtesy in making this communication to me. Accept, &c.,

(Signed) G. GARIBALDI."

It is said to be believed in well informed Parisian circles that, on account of the perturbation occasioned by the apprehensions of war in European commerce and manufactures, the Universal Exhibition of 1867 may be postponed.—Journal.

The Paris correspondent of the Times says of Italians:

"It is admitted that they are determined to avail themselves of every one and every thing likely to advance the great object they have in view. They are planning propagandism and risings in the East, Montenegro, Bosnia, Servia, etc. They will leave no stone unturned; and they make no secret that they would see with pleasure a conflagration throughout Europe for the chance of getting possession of Venetia. The aid of all will be sought for the work of breaking up the Austrian empire for the benefit of the 'nationalities' composing it. The Hungarian General Tufr is, as you are aware, at Florence, and seems to be busily engaged there. But what will become of Italy if, by a sort of miracle, war is prevented?

$3000 TRACT FUND.

For the Free Distribution of Tracts.

Previous acknowledgments	$2038.67
A. H. Graffam	.50

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To send the Crisis to the Poor.

Whole number sent free, 500. Ann'l Expense, $1400,00

Previous acknowledgments	$328.40
S. E. Temple	.50
A. H. Graffam	.50
Maine	1.00

THE AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All communications relating to the business of the Society, and all applications for situations as teachers or missionaries, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, WILLIAM B. HERRON, "Crisis" Office, Boston.

All donations of money, or clothing, or other supplies for the Freedmen, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEORGE T. ADAMS, 167 Hanover Street, Boston. In sending supplies, enclose in a letter to the same address a notice and list of the articles sent.

Advent Mission Fund.

For the establishment of Missions among the Freedmen, the building of a Chapel and Mission House in Memphis, etc.

Previous acknowledgments	$422.87
Geo. Morgan (for the Mission House)	20.00
M. M. Maxwell	2.00
Freedmen's friend	2.00
J. H.	3.00
J. L. Wetherell	1.00
Y. P. Fund	.15

SUNDAY SCHOOL FUND.

To Supply Destitute Sunday Schools with Books and "Pilgrims."

William B. Herron	5.00
E., Westfield	.50

EUROPEAN MISSION.

Previous acknowledgments	$549.10
P. Whitcomb	1.00
S. Bidwell	1.00
J. M. M. Gerrard	1.00
J. L. Wetherell	1.00

For the World's Crisis.

BRO. HANSCOMB.

BRO. GRANT:—Thinking that many of the brethren and sisters would be desirous of knowing how Bro. Hanscomb is getting along, and as he cannot answer the numerous letters he has received, I will inform them, through the Crisis, that he is still prostrate upon his bed, and is very feeble. He has been sick now three months from a terrible inflammation of the stomach, spleen and liver. An ulcer has broken internally, since which, the inflammation has subsided somewhat. He seems to be of good cheer, trusting in that God who never leaves nor forsakes. He wishes to say to friends, that he feels grateful for their acts of sympathy and kindness, and words of comfort during hours of distress and sadness. He feels in good hope that God will raise him up to send the last message to a lost world. I hope none of his friends will forget him in this hour of need.

Leeds, May 27th, 1866. L. L. HOWARD.

For the World's Crisis.

TRUTH SPREADING IN HIGH PLACES.

BRO. GRANT:—The following was cut from the New York Post, by Sr. Allen, of Black Rock, and handed to me. The Post, as is seen, takes the news from a paper in London, England:—

"ETERNAL PUNISHMENT DISOWNED BY ENGLISH CHURCHMEN.

In addition to the sermon lately preached at Chapel Royal, by Rev. Charles Kingsley, several other clergy of the Church of England have published their disbelief in the eternal punishment of the wicked. The London Patriot of March 29th says:—

'Mr. E. F. Litton, M. A., the Rev. Thomas Davis, M. A., incumbent of Roundhay, and the Rev. John Barton, M. A., curate of Rivenhall, Essex, all contend that the natural immortality of the soul cannot be established either by reason or Scripture; that eternal life is conferred by God through Christ upon the redeemed; and that the wicked are destined literally to perish. We have heard, though we are somewhat doubtful of the authority, that Mr. Barton has been called to an account for his book, by the Bishop of Rochester; but after the decision in the Wilson case, it is not likely that either he or any of those who think and write as he does, will be hindered from promulgating their views.'"

From the foregoing, we see that Archbishop Whately, of Dublin, is fast leavening the English church with the doctrine of destruction. These five conversions to truth, with the fact that a number of learned Congregational preachers in New England have lately discovered and openly avowed the doctrine, should fill us with gratitude to our Master for cheering our hearts with a hope of yet seeing the horrible doctrine of eternal misery rooted out of all creeds. We should be thankful for seeing that political editors show an interest in our reform, though religious papers keep almost silent about it. We shall not have to work in a corner much longer, unless Jesus comes soon, and sets us at a still more glorious service. In either case, or come what will, all "shall be well with the righteous"; and all who "love our Lord Jesus Christ" have a good reason to obey Paul, and "rejoice always." "The Lord reigneth, let the earth rejoice." Amen.

Buffalo, N. Y. J. BLAIN.

"Voice" and "Herald of the Bridegroom" please copy.

For the World's Crisis.

THE PRESENT AGE.

The following extracts are from various sources, but all showing the present state of society, as fulfilling Scripture. The first extract is from Rev. John Chambers' Sermon, delivered a few months ago, in the First Independent Presbyterian church (of whom he is pastor), Philadelphia, "On the signs of the times."

On the moral aspects of the country he says:—"The past four or five years have been among the most eventful of the world's history." . . . "Let us now proceed to inquire into what is our present condition, and what our future prospects. I shall view them as they stand related to the Bible standard of christian purity and excellence. We read, Titus 3: 1–3, 'Be ready to every good work; . . . speak evil of no man, . . . showing all meekness unto all men; for we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, . . . serving divers lusts and pleasures, . . . hating one another.' I ask you whether this nation, as a whole—nay, even that portion of it who profess and call themselves christians—is living in that state of mind so beautifully described by the apostle in the first two verses? or whether, alas! the condition to which he refers, as being in the past with him, is not in the present with us?"

On general demoralization he says:—"Another fearful sign of the times is the general demoralization, which we find meeting us on every side. It may indeed be said that iniquity abounds, and yet what indifference there is to the increase of crime. The press teems with murders, Sabbath desecrations, and general lawlessness. This general lawlessness, this alarming demoralization, runs through all grades of society—in our legislative halls and ballot box. It is a fact, as potent as the noonday sun, that free Americans can be and are bought upon election days as readily as you can buy sheep in the market. My hearers, if we do not awake to a full sense of our danger, we will be swept by this tide of grasping cupidity, which is widening and deepening every day into the maelstrom of irrecoverable ruin."

On the spirit of insubordination, he says:—"Another alarming sign of the times is the growing spirit of insubordination, commencing in the family, and running through society in all its ramifications. Behold the veriest boys and girls, what profanity, what obscenity, and yet these are the germs of our future as a nation."

The Portland Advertiser, of March 7th, 1866, quoting from the New York World, says, "A clergyman writes to the Independent, complaining that 'there are over seventy churches in Connecticut which have vacant pulpits; the reason being, that there is so great decline of religious interest, that the congregations cannot be induced to contribute enough for the support of pastors.'"

The Springfield Republican, of Jan. 20th, 1866, in an article on crime, calls this age "The carnival of crime."

Says the Boston Journal, of Jan. 25th, 1866, "Hon. Thomas D'Arcy McGee, the Canadian minister of agriculture, who is well known in Boston, has written a letter to a friend in New York, part of which is published, giving his opinions concerning Fenianism. He says that he has known O'Mahony (the head centre) as a zealous Spiritualist, and suggests that he may have got his ideas of the Fenian system through spirit-rappers."

CRIME IN TENN.—The editor of the Nashville Union says, "Crime in the city is rampant, goes almost unchecked. The city is full of thieves and murderers. They go in gangs and single. They are both black and white, and sometimes those two classes operate together. They go armed to the teeth, carry rifles, government muskets and pistols, and are entirely reckless of human life, murdering as if it were a delightful pastime. They appear to take so much pleasure in killing, that they would rather strike down their victim than to rob him unscathed. Who these men are, and whence they came, it is difficult to say; but they conduct their operations with a boldness that must satisfy any one that they are beyond redemption."

Says an English Monthly, for March, 1866, on Spiritualism,—"There has been rising in Christendom an evil spirit of sorcery and necromancy. This evil is growing stronger from day to day, increasing in stature and in (diabolical) wisdom; and in favor with man, though not with God. One of its chief objects is to supercede christianity, and to fill its place with a new and impure religion, which has received the name of 'Spiritualism.' It has already exhibited the most wonderful phenomena, and has proved itself, indeed, to be one of the 'spirits of devils, working miracles.' These sorcerers have long been occupied with the creation of a literal, 'speaking image,' which is to have the power of speech. If any one will study with attention the history of these sorcerers, he will meet with convincing proofs of their wonder-working skill, if not of their supernatural power. Whether it be supernatural, or only human skill, it matters but little, for certain it is that they have achieved wonders which have already imposed upon nearly twenty millions of mankind."

The same paper says, "Murders and adulteries swarm around us in England. Every day we hear of some horrid murder. The murder of infants is carried on by wholesale. The vilest murderer is pitied; and theft we all know is common as the air we breathe."

This state of things shows a poor chance for the Millennium of the popular churches to take place in this their year—1866. But it does show, beyond the possibility of a doubt, that we are living in the time of the end, which shall usher in the Millennium with Christ at its head.

"O hail! happy day,
That speaks our trials ended."

New Sharon, Me. JOHN TAYLOR.

For the World's Crisis.

REPORT OF PROGRESS

FROM CANADA TO MASSACHUSETTS.

Having felt for some time the duty of being free in the work of the Lord, myself and wife closed our housekeeping arrangements in Canada and started, in the name of the Lord, to go wherever he directed, Monday, Feb. 19, 1866. I had found before that, that I must work at my business as a shoemaker if I lived at all, for I got too much reduced in circumstances when I gave my time to preaching to be able to live so, for, though wallowing through mud or snow around the country, to fill appointments, I rarely ever saw any money, yet I loved the work, and felt that I was above the Master, for I did have where to lay my head, and plenty to eat; but I must have clothes, and so felt obliged to go to work, not, however, giving up the work, but frequently, when the winter was cold, after working till nine or ten o'clock Saturday night, I have started Lord's day morning for a five or six miles walk to my appointment, getting so weary that I felt sometimes as though I must get down there in the snow and ask the Lord for help and then go on.

I spent about a year in this way, sometimes being favored with a team to ride, but then being obliged to work in the shop to pay for it. I could not feel free in this way. I felt interested to go among the Freedmen, and mentioned the subject to my wife, and found to my surprise that she had it in contemplation. We addressed a letter to Brn. Herron and Grant, and were accepted as missionaries and teachers. So we left home, willing to go where God willed. We reached Concord, N. H., Feb. 20th, and on the Lord's day following attended Bro. Mooney's appointment, at corner of Center and Green streets. Had a pleasant time. By his request I preached in the afternoon, with a good degree of liberty. The hearty responses of the brethren all around me showed that they loved the truth, and cheered me in the work. How much better it is to preach to a live than a dead church.

On this occasion the past was vividly recalled to mind. Here (in Concord) some four to six years before, I had attended the Methodist Biblical Institute, and occasionally stole as secretly as I could to the Advent meeting. Bro. T. M. Preble was then pastor there, and he remembers how I used to come down there, and though I had not independence enough to feel entirely free from the influence of the reproach I received, I had enough to go if I wanted to, and on one Watch night occasion I even ventured to preach there, by Bro. Preble's request. Bro. Boutell was there, and after he closed and a short time had been spent in other exercises, I came in and preached. Had been engaged, and did not attend earlier. Now, on Feb. 25th, 1866, I was preaching in the same pulpit, with boldness and freedom, what I would not have dared to preach there, and did not believe, only a few years before.

"Thus far the Lord hath led me on."

Monday, Feb. 26th, went on to Massachusetts, to Groveland and West Newbury, my boyhood's home, where the truth as I believe it had never been heard. Talked it a little with friends, and found some who would candidly listen to the "new doctrine whereof" I spoke. Circulated some tracts, and a few copies of the Crisis and Christian.

Tuesday evening, heard an excellent sermon by Bro. H. L. H., in Haverhill. Here I had preached once while a Methodist, and met some brethren with whom I had disputed in the past some of the doctrines I now love. Found it good to meet them in the harmony of faith, as well as in the christian fellowship we had felt before.

Friday evening, had a good time preaching. Lord's day, March 4th, we spent in Lowell, wife going with me to all these appointments, to sing and help me by labor in other respects. Had a blessed time in Lowell. Some three to four hundred in the congregation, and a good company of warm-hearted laborers.—Our temporal wants were well cared for here. Like Gaius, they helped us "after a godly sort" on our journey. I shall always remember that feast of good we had in Lowell. Hope to be there again, if the Lord will. We found a very pleasant pilgrim home with Bro. Daniel Churchill.

Monday, on the wing again. Went to Boston. Visited the Crisis office and met Bro. Herron, of whom I had "heard by the hearing of the ear." There he stood behind the desk, attending to the business of the Society. I found the room quite well filled with preachers (here were Brn. Thurman, Munger, Boutell, White of Portsmouth, and many others; some faces familiar, others not, but all dear in the Lord), who were meeting here on their return from appointments, to talk over matters of interest together. I really love to meet with my preaching brethren. I do not hear much preaching but my own poor sort, but I love to meet with those who love the truth, whether they preach in my hearing or not. Praise the Lord for the society of Father's children.

Wednesday, March 7th. It is publishing day at the Crisis office. What a pile of papers! and there is Bro. Woodward, busy as can be, marking and bundling them for the mail. I had not realized before what a pile of truth emanated from the office. Ten large four bushel sacks full of the Crisis, carried to the post office every week, and circulated both sides of the Atlantic. I felt glad of one thing, that, if for nothing else, the Boston post office is the mailing center from which the pure truth of God's word is circulated over the world. Bro. Grant is away preaching the everlasting gospel, and combating the errors of these last days. God bless him. Hope to see him before we leave, for I remember how he first of all others kindly drew my attention to the truth, which had to find its way through a thick mail of prejudice, caused by early education and ignorance, which it took seven years to penetrate and melt from my mind; but now, thank God, I am free. I see that that old position to me was like Saul's armor to David. I can go and fight the Philistines of error now.

March 11th, we spent in Boston. Found some good souls here. Felt that God gave me liberty in presenting the plain, close truths of his word. We had a good home with Bro. Trefethem and family.

Monday evening, met Bro. Grant, and had a pleasant visit at his home. Friday, off again to Lynn. Here we found a good live company, and were particularly interested in the number of young brethren. There are so few of this class in the work, particularly in the ranks of Adventists, that it was a real joy to find so many of those whom Paul calls strong. Some there ought to preach the gospel, and we felt that they would yet be free in the work. Had a good time preaching. More anon. L. C. McKINSTRY.

THEOHPYLACT ON THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

This ancient writer first applies the parable of the rich man and Lazarus to the concerns of the next life. He then says:—"But this parable can also be explained by the way of allegory; so that we may say, that by the rich man is signified the Jewish people; for they were formerly rich, abounding in all divine knowledge, wisdom and instruction, which are more excellent than gold or precious stones. And they were arrayed in purple and fine linen, as they possessed a kingdom and a priesthood, and were themselves a royal priesthood to God. The purple denoted their kingdom, and the fine linen their priesthood, for the Levites were clothed in sacerdotal vestments of fine linen, and they fed sumptuously, and lived splendidly, every day. Daily did they offer the morning and the evening sacrifice, which they also called the continual sacrifice. But Lazarus was the Gentile people, poor in divine grace and wisdom, and lying before the gates; for it was not permitted to the Gentiles to enter the house itself, because they were considered a pollution.

Thus, in the Acts of the Apostles, we read that it was alleged against Paul, that he had introduced Gentiles into the temple, and made that holy place common or unclean. Moreover, those people were full of fetid sores of sin, on which the impudent dogs, or devils, fed, who delight themselves in our sores. The Gentiles likewise desired even the crumbs which fell from the tables of the rich; for they were wholly destitute of that bread which strengthens the heart of man, and wanted even the smallest morsel of food; so that the Canaanite woman (Matt. 15: 27), when she was a heathen, desired to be fed with crumbs. In short, the Hebrew people were dead unto God, and their bones, which could not be moved to do good, were perished.

Lazarus, also (I mean the Gentile people), were dead in sin, and the envious Jews, who were dead in sins, did actually burn in a flame of jealousy, as saith the apostle, on account of the Gentiles being received into the faith, and because that those who had before been a poor and despised Gentile race, were now in the bosom of Abraham, the father of nations, and justly, indeed, were they thus received. For it was while Abraham was yet a Gentile, that he believed God, and turned from the worship of idols to the knowledge of God. Therefore, it was proper that they who were partakers of this conversion and faith, should rest in his bosom, sharing the same final lot, the same habitation, and the same blessedness. And the Jewish people longed for one drop of the former legal sprinklings and purifications, to refresh their tongue, that they might confidently say to us, that the law was still efficacious and availing. But it was not; for the law was only until John. And the Psalmist says, sacrifice and oblations thou wouldst not, etc.—Annot, in loc.

Correspondence.

From Sr. A. Mussey.

To my brethren and sisters scattered abroad, Greeting:—I feel it a privilege to send a word of cheer to you from the hills and rivulets of Nova Scotia. May 9th I stepped on board the schooner "Emmeline," from Boston, Batchelor's Wharf, and was soon out at sea amid its rolling waves, making for the port of Nova Scotia once more. A fair wind hastened on her progress at the rate of ten knots an hour; and notwithstanding severe sea-sickness, she brought me safe into port the third day evening, for which I felt to thank God and take courage, as did the apostle in his journeyings, when he got in sight of the "Three Taverns" and met his brethren.

Found my son and family in good health and striving for the kingdom, and met a hearty welcome among the friends of Jesus at the Chapel on Lord's day, May 13th. Spoke to a full house in the afternoon. How much I missed our lamented and much esteemed Bro. Israel Rice, and his son Joseph, as I worshiped in their Chapel, where I have met them in former days. But they rest in hope, and will come forth in the morning just like Jesus, all immortal and glorious, with all our dear brethren and friends who have gone down to the shades of death.

For nearly four years in the past I have journeyed and labored among my brethren in our own States, and also in Canada the past fall and winter have done what I could in weakness, and trust in the great reckoning day God will say, Well done. Some engagements I have not been able to fulfill; in this I trust my Brn. will pardon me. To many calls I have been obliged to answer no; most gladly would I comply with your urgent requests, but I must go to N. S. once more, and thus I have come in God's name, feeling that my work was not all done when I left here. I am here to go as God would have me, for upon this soil I received commission from high heaven to go forth and proclaim salvation to the lost, and for five years I have sown in tears, and soon I expect to reap in joy.

I purpose, if the Lord will, to return in August. Dear brethren and sisters, shall I have your prayers while absent from you? Methinks I hear you say, God bless Sr. Mussey, and help her to be faithful to her mission in the service of the Lord, and then a golden chaplet shall be her just reward. God help me to discharge my duty as I onward press my way, and may he bless you all, beloved in the Lord, for you are entwined around my heart. With you I have been and still am willing to suffer for the truth's sake, and with you I expect soon to reap the reward of eternal life.

From your sister in Christ watching for the morning, ABBIE MUSSEY.

Hillsburgh, N. S., May 15th.

From Sr. L. Taylor.

BRO. GRANT:—Although a stranger, may I not be permitted to number one of those who contribute to the columns of the Crisis? My father having been one of its first subscribers, I have had the privilege of reading its contents most of the time since it was first published. I prize it highly; and often, as I peruse its pages, I more earnestly wish that I may be one of the "faithful," who, when Christ comes, shall welcome him to earth again; knowing that then the saints will be freed from all the evils which surround them; their labors will be done, trials ended, and temptations passed.

It is sad, yet cheering, to anticipate the day when all the world shall assemble before the judgment seat, each to receive his reward for the deeds done in the body. Sad, indeed, when we realize that thousands will have it said to them,—"Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels." But, on the other hand, when we contemplate the glorious triumph of the saints, when it shall be said,—"Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world," it cheers us; and as we believe that the promise, "I will come again," is soon to be fulfilled, we are led to inquire, are we ready? "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God," and if we have this witness that we are his children, then we know that when he comes, we shall be saved. With this encouragement, we should never allow ourselves to grow weary, but ever look upon the harvest field before us, and there see that there is no time to lose; each can there find employment in the vineyard.

"Thrust in your sharpened sickles,
And gather in the grain," is constantly sounding in our ears. Shall we not listen to its warnings, and strive to labor more earnestly for the salvation of souls, knowing that if faithful we shall receive an hundred fold in this life, and in the world to come life everlasting. Your sister hoping for the kingdom, L. TAYLOR.

From Bro. B. Waterhouse.

BRO. GRANT:—I would say to you, through the goodness of a beloved sister, L. Wilson, I have been highly favored and wonderfully blest by reading the Crisis. I have been searching for the truth, and I love the truth as revealed in the gospel of Christ. By the grace of God, I mean to try and live in accordance with its teachings. I realize my utter nothingness and insufficiency, and the all-sufficiency, fullness and beauty of Immanuel. To those that believe in Christ he is unspeakably precious.

Do we, my christian friends, discern his loveliness and excellence; and, renouncing every other dependence, do we rest entirely on him, and trust only in his righteousness and merits? Do we love the holy character of God as delineated by the pen of inspiration? Do we rejoice that he reigns, and do we hate all sin because of its contrariety to his holy law? If we possess these characteristic marks of the true disciple of Christ, we may go on our way rejoicing, and take courage. We have a little longer to face the storm. Though we meet with persecution and affliction, let us never complain, but let us lift up our heads and look forward to yon calm unclouded regions, unsullied by vapors, unruffled by storms, where celestial friendship, the loveliest form in heaven, never dies.

How important that we live in ready preparation, knowing that the end of all things is at hand, ever looking forward to the glorious appearing of our Lord and Savior, that when he appears we may appear with him in glory, and join the blood-washed company, to praise God and the Lamb forever.

Mechanic Falls, Me. B. WATERHOUSE.

From Br. H. A. Sinden.

BRO. GRANT:—Although the Bible is spoken of with contempt by many, yet I believe it to be the word of God, which is all the hope I have of rest and eternal life. And I feel sure that the promises contained therein, which were made by God the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ, are about to be realized by his people. Soon they will be escorted by bright and powerful angels to the city of refuge, those magnificent chambers which their Lord has gone to prepare for them; there he will shut the doors about them and cause them to rest securely until the "indignation is overpast"; then they will go forth and "inherit the earth," purified,—the land promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob,—the land of songs and eternal bloom.

There the inhabitants will be all high born, the King's own children, washed in his own pure blood. Take this hope away, and nothing remains for me; therefore may God bless the untiring preachers of his word, that as many as possible may embrace eternal life while it may be found. H. A. SINDEN.

Mina, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

LITTLE WANDERER'S HOME.

Since writing my last article, various sums have been received, which have been acknowledged by letter, with two exceptions, as follows:—E. A. P., of Washington, $1.25, and her three children 25 cts. each; and $1.00 from Sr. Lucy Hall, of North Springfield, State not mentioned. All have our gratitude and prayers. We have now in cash $800.00. More is pledged. Two weeks more may decide whether we shall obtain or lose the house. Pray for us. Yours, etc., in the highways and hedges, F. H. BURBANK.

S. W. Cor. 7th and Spring Garden Sts.

Obituaries.

CROMWELL. Died, at Andersonville prison, Oct. 20th, 1864, Oliver Cromwell, of Bowdoinham, Me., aged thirty-two years.

Rather than be drafted, Oliver, like many others, was persuaded to enlist in the army, hoping to return soon to his beloved family. But, alas! far from his dearest friends, he was called to fall asleep in death, leaving an affectionate wife, one child, and other near relatives to mourn his loss. May God's mercy rest upon the mourning ones, and bring them to that land where separation and death will never be known. R. R. YORK.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool May 19th, Queenstown 20th.

Intelligence from various points indicates continued warlike preparations.

It is officially stated at Berlin that there was no necessity for the Prussian government to send a reply to the Austrian note of May 4th, since Austria therein declared that all discussion of the question of disarmament was exhausted.

The news from Italy continues warlike. The Florence correspondent of the Daily News says that before June the Italians will have 400,000 men under arms, of whom 300,000 will be on the northern frontier. The war it is said, will be commenced by an eruption of Garibaldians into Venetia. An official Italian paper points out that Italy will consider any attack by Austria upon Prussia as directly against herself.

Military preparations are reported from various quarters. From Italy, particularly, the news is exceedingly warlike.

France, England and Russia are concerting measures for an European Congress. There are little hopes of a pacific result.

The Earl of Clarendon, in the House of Lords, admitted that confidential communications were passing, but expressed his conviction that there were no hopes of a peaceful solution.

Another London bank—the European—suspended to-day; liabilities reported heavy.

Funds and securities generally dull and low, closing flat. There are rumors of additional suspensions in commercial circles.

Active preparations continue in Venetia.

Twenty battalions have been formed in Italy, and it is believed that more will be formed in consequence of the large number of enlistments.

It is rumored that a sanguinary conflict has taken place between the Turkish and Moldavian troops.

The latest vague rumors from Paris state that hostilities had almost commenced.

Liverpool May 24th, Londonderry 25th.

A Brussels telegram says letters from Paris state that the French Government is raising to their full completion all the regiments belonging to the army of Paris and the army of Lyons. France will have its army on a war footing in a fortnight and ready to be placed in observation on the German and Italin frontiers.

The effective strength of the Austrian army now under arms is between 600,000 and 700,000 men. In case of need 300,000 more troops can be raised in a very short period.

In one week, says a Florence dispatch, 20,000 men were enrolled in the Garibaldian volunteers. It is believed that the number of battalions will be raised from twenty to forty.

The Florence journals declare it to be inadmissible that a European guarantee should be given for the maintenance of the temporal power of the Pope. They also deny that any such project is on foot.

The emigration from Venetia continues to be very great.

Gen. Garibaldi has made several appointments, and given orders respecting the organization of his force. He is to have a Hungarian and a Polish legion, and four or five batteries of artillery from the regular army. He has issued the following address to the young men of Pavia:

CAPRERA, May 11. Dear friends—Faithful to your glorious traditions, do not fail to respond to the summons now made to you. I have never doubted of your affection for the country and myself. I hope that all the youth of Italy will imitate your example. Italy expects from you good will, concord, and war to the last extremity against foreign oppressors. Be united and our triumph is assured. Heaven grant for the welfare of all that that there be no divisions. Believe me ever with you. G. GARIBALDI."

THE STATE OF EUROPE.—[From Wilmer's and Smith's European Times, May 19.] The first blow has not yet been struck which is to set the European continent in a flame; but the guns are loaded, the match is ready to be applied, the troops are prepared and only wait the word of command. One day we have intelligence that, far as the quarrel has gone, there is yet time to recede and make it up; but the next day's news dissipates this illusion, and declares that the final issue must come, and is just at hand.

Evidently the first Power that will strike is Italy. She must fight; for with her, things have come to such a pass that unless she strikes Austria in Venetia there will be a revolution, and the moment she moves Prussia will begin. The belief in Paris is that the Italians will endeavor to seize the Austrian port of Trieste, and thus cut off the communication between Venetia and Vienna. The Austrians can hardly be unprepared for this; for it is undoubted, that the war fever in Italy is so high that it would burst out even in spite of the King.

Garibaldi is a name to conjure with when Italy is excited, and at the head of the volunteers he is in his right place. Meanwhile the Emperor of the French retains the dignified attitude which we referred to in our last. He gives no inkling of his mind, sustains his old reserve, and wraps himself up in that impenetrable mantle which not even his most confidential ministers can pierce. Prince Metternich is said to have given such offence at Vienna for being unable to read the intentions of Louis Napoleon in his face that he is to be recalled. This is hard on the unhappy Prince, for it is asking him to do the impossible.

How Austria will stand the impending shock we shall soon see. We have arrived at the calm which precedes the thunder storm; and this is proved by the fact of Austria at the present moment having 200,000 troops in Venetia. The telegraphic despatches received last night add little to what was previously known. At Berlin the desire of England, France, and Russia for a conference was known, but the preparation for war continued uninterrupted.

EUROPEAN ADVICES.—It is reported that letters received in Washington from a high authority at Paris state Louis Napoleon is earnestly trying to maintain peace in Europe. He wrote a very important letter to the King of Italy, in which he declared himself in the strongest terms against his (the Italian's) warlike policy. The Embassadors from England and Russia united their efforts to arrange, in some way a settlement of the present difficulties. The French government declared itself ready to act upon the same conciliatory grounds, but took the position that it was impossible to assemble any Conference that would not be a general one, including the representatives from all the great European Powers and the German Diet. —Journal 1st.

DOMESTIC.

Washington, June 1. The Fenian triumphs are the sole sensation of the day in Washington and are commented upon with considerable amusement among all places of public gathering. The Government, it is said, has been daily informed of the projected raid and has kept the British Minister fully posted so far as its own information extended. The order of Gen. Sweeney for the concentration of troops at Buffalo is also said to have been promptly received at the State Department. It is said that nothing can tempt the premier to a departure from the preconceived determination to enforce the strictest neutrality, however brilliant the success of the Brotherhood.

New York, June 1. It is reported that Fort Erie in Canada, opposite Buffalo, has been captured by the Fenians, who are represented to be 3000 strong, and two thousand of whom are said to be marching unopposed into the interior.

Boston Journal June 1st. The Fenian movement was directed against important Canadian points.

Port Sarnia, (Canada West) opposite Port Huron, was also captured this morning by a detachment of Fenian troops.

Windsor, opposite Detroit, (Michigan) is also in possession of the Fenians.

The canal boats and tugs were used by the Fenians in crossing into Canada, last night. It appears that Roberts, the chief of the faction bearing his name, is a directing spirit in the movement now going on, and that he is boasting loudly that the Irish flag has at last been planted on English soil.

Montreal, June 1. The greatest enthusiasm and confidence prevails here. The whole volunteer militia force of Montreal has been ordered to be in readiness to move at an hour's notice. A force of volunteers has been ordered to St. John immediately. The whole regular force of the Province are under orders to move at a moment's warning. The volunteers exhibit the greatest alacrity to proceed to the front.

New York, June 2. All the United States troops in Gen. Meade's department are said to be under arms for use in case of an emergency.

Gen. Sweeney was here yesterday, but probably left in the afternoon for the frontier. It is said 850,000 rounds of ammunition have been sent by the Fenians from New York and 600,000 from Chicago to the frontier within a few weeks. Over 1000 Fenians are also said to have left New York within two days.

Toronto, Canada, June 2. This morning a force of volunteers came up with a body of Fenians encamped near Ridgeway. An attack immediately began and the fighting soon became general. A number have been killed, but the result of the engagement is not yet known.

Cincinnati, June 1. A Columbus (Ohio) dispatch says 45,000 rounds of ammunition have been shipped from that place to New York and 15,000 to Chicago, and 30,000 muskets to Buffalo within a few days, which, it is reported, were intended for the Fenians.

West Point, May 29. General Scott died at five minutes past 11 o'clock this forenoon.

New York, June 1. Intelligence has been received of a frightful tragedy in the Walkill Valley, Orange County, in this State. Two hundred and thirteen persons have been gradually poisoned by the use of flour in which white lead had become carelessly mixed when being ground at the grist mill.

Montreal, June 4. The excitement is at fever heat throughout Canada. Very little business is doing. The volunteer force is all under orders. Placards are posted about the city, calling for volunteers.

The Mayor has issued a proclamation for a public meeting this afternoon, at the City Hall, for the formation of a home guard. Two frigates are coming up the river for the protection of the city. Marines from the fleet at Quebec have been detailed for special service. The Fusileeers from Halifax are on the way. Troops have been moving through the night to Cornwall, opposite Malone, and down to St. Johns.

The Fenians report that there is a large number of French Canadians, who have always indulged in a hostile grudge against England, ready to take up arms with them and assist them in gaining their independence.

AERIAL NAVIGATION.—On Friday afternoon last, an attempt was made in New York to navigate the air, by Dr. Solomon Andrews, the inventor and constructor of the "Flying Ship," accompanied by three other gentlemen. The ascent from a large enclosed yard at the corner of Greene and Houston streets, took place about three o'clock in the afternoon, and as soon as the order to "cut loose" was given, the ship, with its living freight, rose rapidly from the earth. At the very start, the rudder ropes became entangled in some portion of the rigging, which for some time prevented the apparatus from being under proper control, and the balloon drifted with the wind for a considerable distance. At last, however, these difficulties were obviated, and the machine was repeatedly turned in different directions, and, crossing East river, passed out of sight. The rate of speed was from twenty to twenty-five miles per hour, and the greatest alutitude reached was about two thousand feet. The experiment was not wholly a success, from the fact that there were discovered manifest defects in its construction; the car was too short, and the rudder too light, which prevented the machine from being run against the wind, as was originally intended. The voyagers finally landed near the village of Ascoria, L. I., and reached New York late in the evening.

Dr. Andrews and his companions are all satisfied that, by making some trifling alterations in the rigging of the apparatus, they will be able to make headway against any ordinary breeze, and they are all sanguine as to the final success of their plan. As soon as the requisite alterations are completed, another trial will be made.

Dr. Andrews' machine is different in several important particulars from the ordinary balloon. It is composed of two long, lemon-shaped gas receivers, floating horizontally, and surrounded by a strong netting, which supports the car below. The car used in this experimental voyage was eight feet long and two feet wide. The inventor claims that the alteration of weight from the rear to the front of this car, or the reverse, will give the balloon the inclination required to move it against the wind.—Boston Journal.

A PREDICTION OF THE POPE.—At a recent celebration of a miracle in Rome, the Pope said, in the course of a speech, that the present year would be one of triumph and of brilliant victory over the enemies of the temporal power. "I shall," he remarked, "behold the triumph, and, in 1868, I shall render up my soul to God." This singular prophecy is said to have produced a powerful effect on the audience, some of whom were moved to tears.

ITEMS.

☞ A London paper says: "Travelers in Italy, Germany, and on the Rhine are likely to be scarce this summer. Every one is changing his route de voyage, and turning his thoughts toward the Pyrances, or even to the British isles, or wherever he can fly furtherest from the impending conflict."

☞ Ridgeway, the scene of the first Fenian battle, is a small town on Lake Erie, on the line of the Buffalo and Lake Huron Railroad, which is a branch of the Grand Trunk road. It is about twelve or fifteen miles west of Fort Erie.

☞ The last pensioner of the first war between England and the United States, and the last General of the last war between the two countries, died within ten days of each other.

☞ A very patient New Yorker has been counting the different styles of hats that appear on Broadway, and reports the number of varieties at one hundred and seventy-five.

☞ The weight of mail matter received and sent out from the New York post office each twenty-four hours, is ninety tons.

☞ In the depths of the sea the waters are still; the heaviest grief is that borne in silence; the deepest love flows through the eye and touch; the purest joy is unspeakable; the most impressive prayer is silent, and the most solemn preacher at a funeral is the silent one whose lips are cold.

☞ Sinful habits are the channels of sinful thoughts. If we would have the thoughts to cease to flow, we must close up the channels.

☞ Disobey nature's laws, and premature death will be the inevitable result.

Notices.

New Hampshire Quarterly Conference.

The third quarterly session of the New Hampshire State Conference will be held in Woodstock, N.H., commencing June 7th, Thursday, P. M., and hold over the following Lord's day. Brn. Couch, Ross, and others are expected to be present to preach the word of life. Brethren, make this meeting a subject of prayer, that God may give us the victory through Christ, and that great good may be accomplished in his name.

A. W. SIBLEY, Secretary.

Agreement.

The R. I. and E. Ct. Conference will hold its next session at River Point, R. I., commencing Wednesday, July 4th, at 2 o'clock P. M. We have agreed to be there punctually at the time appointed. We have agreed to be present daily until after the Lord's day following. Ministers, delegates, and friends of this Conference, come join in this agreement, that we may make punctual and constant attendance the habit of our precious quarterly gathering. H. F. CARPENTER, Clerk.

Grove Meeting.

The Lord willing, there will be a grove meeting held in the south part of Etna, Me., on land belonging to Bro. S. Turner, commencing June 28th, 2 o'clock P. M., and continue over the following Sunday, and longer as the Lord may direct.

The object of this meeting is the saving of souls, and we earnestly request the prayers of the brethren and sisters that the Lord will bless. We urgently request all who can to attend, especially preachers of the word and laborers in the vineyard. S. HAMMONS.

Wis. Adv. Quar. Conference.

The third quarterly meeting of the Wisconsin Advent Christian Conference, will be held in the town of Henrietta, Richland county, Wis., in the vicinity of Bro. B. Graves', to commence June 29th and hold over the Lord's Day. As this is somewhat a new place, and an interest has been awakened here in the cause of the Master, brethren will please make a little extra effort to be there, and at the first of the meeting. A number of preaching brethren will be there to preach the word of life. Come up, brethren, in the spirit of the mother. Your help is needed at this meeting, that sinners may be brought to God and prepared for the Savior's coming. We have but a short time to work, and, O, how much we shall desire the Master to say, Well done. GEO. W. TURNER, Clerk of Con.

Minnesota Annual Conference.

The fourth annual session of the Minnesota Advent Christian Conference will be held (Providence not preventing) on Saturday, June 30th, at ten o'clock A. M., in the New Boston school-house, in Winona County, and will continue over the following Sunday. Ministers and delegates representing the different churches within the State, are requested to attend. I expect Bro. Sheldon will be present with the Advent Tabernacle.

J. K. ALLEN, Sec'y.

Notice.

There will be a meeting in Gilford, N. H., in the Pond District, commencing Friday, June 8th, and continuing over the Lord's day, to be held in Bro. Jacob Wilkinson's barn. Bro. Hook and Bro. Fletcher are expected to preach the word. Come, brethren, praying, with the harness on, to work with God and for God, that good may be done.

JULIA BUSWELL.

Notice.

The Lord willing, I intend to leave St. Louis for the East Monday, June 18th. Providence permitting, I would like to preach Sundays and week day evenings till Wilbraham campmeeting. If there are any who wish me to preach the word, please address me at Savoy, Mass., till July 6th.

H. K. FLAGG.

Notice.

If the Lord will, we will hold a conference at North Sutton, N. H., commencing Thursday evening, June 7th, at Bro. Jessie Hazen's house, and continuing through the week, and over Sunday, June 10th. J. G. SMITH. J. H. F. VARNEY.

Tent Meeting.

There will be a tent meeting held under the big tent, in Providence, R. I., commencing Thursday, June 7th, to hold over two Sundays. The time of our Lord's coming, together with other portions of truth connected with the great system of man's redemption, will be duly considered in the meeting, as the Lord may direct. Brn. G. W. Brown, D. S. Holt, C. Thompson and the writer are engaged to attend the meeting. S. W. BISHOP.

Notice.

I hereby give notice to all concerned, that the fourth annual grove meeting will be held in Springwater, N. Y., commencing June 29th, 1866, and holding over Sunday, July 1st, on the same spot fitted up by Father Lyman Morris (deceased), on his farm. Let due preparations be made by the friends there, a general notice be given, and may many brethren and sisters attend, both ministers and laymen, and may much good be the result, for which let us pray. In behalf of the brethren,

C. F. SWEET.

Tent Meeting at Elliota, Minn.

The "Advent Tabernacle" will be pitched at Elliota, Fillmore Co., Minnesota, as Bro. Elliott shall arrange, on Friday, June 15th, and continue there some days. Bro. Hough will be present to help us. Hope to see a general gathering of the saints from the surrounding region. Come in the Spirit, and work for God. WM. SHELDON.

Notice.

The annual meeting of the Iowa Christian Conference will be held at Cascade, Dubuque Co., Iowa, to commence on Thursday, June 21st, 1866, and hold over the following Lord's day. All brethren and sisters who love to hear of the soon coming of the Lord, are invited to be there.

JOB GILDERSLEVE, Clerk.

The Dubuque and Sioux City railroad will return the brethren free. There will be teams on the first day of the conference, at Farley, to carry them to the meeting. PETER S. W. DEYO.

Quarterly Conference.

A quarterly session of the Advent Conference will be held in Jefferson, Me., Trask meeting-house, Thursday, June 14th, at 5 o'clock P. M., and continuing over the following Sunday. Come to the conference. JEREMIAH PARTRIDGE, Pres. JOSHUA HEMINWAY, Clerk.

Notice.

Hereafter (D. V.) I shall preach at Danielsonville, Ct., on the second and fourth Sundays of every month; and at Abington, Ct., on the first and third Sundays of every month. Friends interested in these meetings will please cut this notice out and preserve it for future reference.

H. F. CARPENTER.

Wisconsin Campmeeting.

Shall we have one or two this year? If but one, shall it be near Madison, or near Upper Sauk? Who will come with tents if held near Madison, and who if held near Sauk? And who if held at either place. Please communicate your thoughts to me by letter, to Baraboo, Wis., shortly, that we mey act correctly in the matter.

WM. SHELDON.

Tent Meeting at Prescott, Wis.

We expect to pitch the "Advent Tabernacle" at Prescott, Wisconsin, July 12th. Let the friends from the other side of the Mississippi River attend if they can. Eld. Hough is to be with me.

WM. SHELDON.

Notice.

At my Sunday appointment at West Barre, June 17th, at 10½ A. M., the ordinance of baptism will be adminsted. Let all attend who can, and thus give interest to the scene. Will Bro. Carpenter prepare to take me to my appointment at East Shelley, at 4 o'clock P. M., same day?

C. F. SWEET.

Notice.

There will be a tent meeting at Wallingford Farms, commencing June 19th, holding over the Sabbath, and as long as thought advisable. Brethren abroad are invited to attend.

In behalf of the church, R. J. WHITEHEAD.

Photographs.

For seventy-five cents, I will send the photographs of Eld. J. V. Himes, Eld. D. R. Mansfield, and Mrs. M. S. Mansfield. Single copies of either, post paid, thirty cents. This is to meet the continual applications for these pictures.

Address, WM. L. HIMES, Buchanan, Mich.

Dedication.

The new chapel in Worcester is to be dedicated Thursday, June 14th.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

EAST BOSTON.

C. Goodrich..........Sunday, June 10th

Portsmouth, N. H..........Sunday, June 10th
Exeter, N. H..........Sunday, June 17th
MILES GRANT.

Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, 69 Main Street), Sunday, June 10th.
Warehouse Point, Ct., Wednesday evening, June 13th
Will Bro. Bancroft meet me at W. H. P. depot, at the 2.20 P. M. train from Springfield?
Yalesville, Ct..........Thursday evening, June 14th
Cheshire Street, Ct..........Sunday, June 17th
WM. H. FISHER.

South Reading..........evening, June 14th
Lawrence..........evening, June 15th
Concord, N. H..........Sundays, June 17th and 24th
C. GOODRICH.

Haverhill, Mass..........Lord's day, June 10th
Lynn, Mass..........Lord's day, June 17th
L. C. MCKINSTRY.

London Ridge..........Sunday, June 17th
Northwood Narrows..........Sunday, June 24th
W. W. SUTHERLAND.

Northwood Narrows..........Sunday, June 10th
Nashua..........Sunday, June 17th
Danbury..........Sunday, June 24th
Chichester Pine Ground..........Sunday, July 1st
E. FORD.

Maryall, Ct., (as Bro. D. T. Beers may arrange), Sunday, June 17th. SAMUEL CURRY.

Harwinton, Ct., (as Bro. Barber may arrange), Sunday, June 10th. H. ROCKWELL.

Westerly, R. I., 11 o'clock A. M., at the Quarry meeting house, Sunday, June 17th. S. C. HANCOCK.

New Boston, N. H., (at Bro. Frederick Dodge's), Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, June 12th and 13th.
Goffstown, (where Bro. Saulpaugh may appoint), Friday and Saturday evenings, June 15th and 16th, and over the Lord's day. I expect Bro. J. G. Smith will be with me. J. PINKHAM.

Hartford, Ct..........June 10th
Warehouse Point..........June 17th
South Reading..........Sunday, July 1st
Portsmouth, N. H..........Sunday, July 8th
J. S. WHITE.

East Stoneham, Me..........Sunday, June 10th
North Norway, Me..........Sunday, June 17th
And at each place evenings during the weeks following Sunday appointments, as brethren may wish.
L. C. WELLCOME.

New Britain, Ct..........June 17th
R. WILLIAMS.

Alton Corner..........Sunday, June 10th
C. S. EMERSON.

Concord, N. H..........June 10th
Portland, Me..........June 17th and 24th
TIMOTHY COLE.

Warner, N. H., (Tory Hill school-house), Sunday, June 17th. SIMEON HOBY.

Bradford, N. H., (Pond meeting-house), Sundays, June 10th and 17th. JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Canterbury, N. H., (at the old Hall), Saturday evening, June 9th, and over Sunday the 10th.
Will the brethren come out and help?
C. W. SARGENT.
I. H. DADMUN.

Concord, N. H., (Carter school house), Wednesday evening, June 13th. I. H. DADMUN.

Pittsfield, N. H..........Sunday, June 10th
Loudon Ridge..........Sunday, June 17th
GEORGE W. RANDALL.

Durham, Ct..........Sunday, June 10th
O. D. WOODRUFF.

North Barnstead..........Sunday, June 10th
New Durham Ridge..........Sunday, June 17th
S. S. MOONEY.

Harvard, Mass., (at Bro. Withington's), 3 o'clock P. M., Friday, June 15th.
Clinton, Mass..........Sunday, June 17th
L. BOUTELL.

Yarmouth, Me., and baptise..........Sunday, June 10th
Bath, Me..........Sunday, June 24th
R. R. YORK.

Richmond, (Reed meeting-house)..........June 10th
CLARKSON GOUD.

North Pownell, Vt..........Sunday, June 17th
Blackinton, Mass. (if desired), 7½ P. M..........June 18th
North Adams, Mass. (if desired)...7½ P. M., June 19th
Savoy, (as Bro. Blanchard may arrange), 7½ P. M., June 20th and 21st.
Hawley (King Corner school-house) 7½ P. M., June 23d
Plainfield Pond..........Sunday, June 24th
At Bro. Healy's in the evening.
At Bro. David Thayer's, 7½ P. M., June 25th and 26th
I will preach in any other places as doors may open.
H. HADLOCK.

Woodstock, N. H. (conference)..........Sunday, June 10th
A. W. SIBLEY.

Guilford, N. H., (where Sr. Julia Buswell may appoint) Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, June 8th, 9th, and 10th. (Baptism.) JOHN G. HOOK.

Poultney, Vt..........Sunday, June 10th
HIRAM MUNGER.

Bristol, R. I..........Sunday, June 10th
C. C. RAMSAY.

Manchester, N. H. evenings, June 12th, 13th, and 14th.
Portsmouth, N. H..........Sunday, June 17th
Lawrence, Mass., (Appleton Hall, corner of Essex and Lawrence Streets), Sunday, June 24th.
A. DECKER.

Brattleboro..........Sunday, June 10th
Will Bro. G. P. Stebbins be with me at these appointments? B. F. STREETER.

Bolton, Sargent S. H..........June 10th
Magog, Ware S. H..........June 11th
Barnston, Wayville, and baptize..........June 12th
Libby's Mills, (as R. N. Thomson may appoint), June 14th.
Stanstead, (as Eld. Merrill may appoint)..........June 15th
Bolton Lake S. House..........Sunday, June 17th
Week day appointments at 4 P. M. C. P. DOW.

Hill, (Poverty Pond school-house)..........June 10th
Danbury..........June 17th
New Hampton, (at Bro. Pike's)..........June 24th
Meredith Centre, (as brethren may arrange), evening, June 24th.
F. S. RANSOM.
J. KNOWLTON.

Lawrence..........Monday evening, June 18th
Lowell..........Tuesday eve., June 19th
Manchester..........Thursday eve., June 21st
Concord..........Sunday, June 24th
Canaan..........July 1st
I. DAMMAN.

Newfield, Ct..........Sunday, June 10th
Pleasant Valley, Ct..........Sunday, June 17th
New Britain, Ct..........Sunday, June 24th
Yalesville, Ct..........Sunday, July 1st
Cheshire Street, Ct..........Sunday, July 8th
New Preston appointment recalled.
CHAS. E. PIPER.
SAMUEL M. TATRO.

CONCORD, N. H., (ANGELOS HALL.)

Joseph Pinkham..........Sunday, June 10th
A. Simpson..........Sunday, June 17th
Israel Damman..........Sunday, June 24th
P. S. Bro. H. Pratt's appointment is withdrawn on account of an accident to his daughter in Rochester, N. Y.

Walbridge..........Sunday, June 17th
P. S. BUTLER.

Bridgewater, Vt..........June 10th
and over Sunday.
Densmore Hill, Vt..........June 19th
and over Sunday. GEO. A. STREETER.

Danielsonville, Ct..........Sunday, June 10th
H. F. CARPENTER.

Will hold meetings every Sunday, at the house of Bro. Russell, Natick, Mass., till further notice.
J. M. MURLIO.

Square Pond, Ct..........Sunday, June 10th
Baptism, also Lord's Supper, at the close of service in the afternoon.
I. B. POTTER.
P. S. BUTLER.

Salem, Mass..........Sunday, June 10th
L. BOUTELL.

Nevada and Union..........Sunday, June 10th
Bucynes, (Baptist house, near Martin Bacon's), Tuesday evening, 8 o'clock, June 12th.
G. W. STETSON.

Concord, N. H., (Angelos Hall)..........Sunday, June 10th
JOSEPH PINKHAM.

Carlton..........Sunday, 10½ A. M., June 10th
Subject for the occasion, IMMORTALITY.
West Barre..........Sunday, 10½ A. M., June 17th
and at East Shelby at 4 P. M.
Nolesville, 10½ A. M., and 2 P. M..........Sunday, June 24th
Springwater..........June 29th
and over Sunday at the grove meeting, to be held there at that time, on the Morris farm.
C. F. SWEET.

Moultonborough..........June 10th
Sandwich, (Vittum school-house)..........June 17th
B. W. PIPER.

LEE, N. H.

J. W. Briton..........Sunday, June 10th

Dansville..........June 10th
Bristol and Honeoye..........June 17th
F. BURR.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Wm. Walker, 2nd,—We do not know such a statement in any book.
C. O. Delano—Received.
L. C. McKinstry—O. K.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 557. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness, if less than 26 weeks, charge five cents; if more than 26 weeks, six cents. From the product (which will be a fraction over the actual indebtedness) deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each—A E Curtis 551, E Sheldon 575, N Tibbetts 564, S Allen 570, E Osgood 573.

$1.25 each—E Sanderson 573, E M Durkee 574, H S George 561, F B Tyler 581, G Alkire 585, S P Eldridge 580, E K Culbertson 581, J Hayes 581, J Pierce 576, R W Pierce 576, P. Tasker 583, Mrs. Allen 582, E. Burt 582, E Norton 581, G S Cogswell 583, C B Hyde 5.1, G W Adams 582, F Sherman 583, I Ames 583, E. Boardman 581, M Squire 583, J Turner 583.

$2.00 each—L Carsley 590, A Smith 592, O W Mills 587, T Williams 618, B Taylor 568, C M Andrews 580.

$2.50 each—M Smiley 596, S Ingraham ($1.63 on old acct.) 573, A Bradley 606, C B Bray 603, S E Hoyt 516, L G Brown 601, E Jewett (35c on old acct) 601, A R & W. Thompson 608, R. McKee 608, G. Briggs 608, S E Wentworth 608, D. Folsom 608, J. Folsom 608, M. A. Hammond 608, E. Dickenson 607, J D W Lepeus 608, M. A. Hoxie 650, C. B. Pettingill 608, B F Towle 608, T F Ritchie 608, A A Parshley 608, J H Baguley 588, E. Murrow 564, F. Wood 608, R. A. Northy 608, H. H. Farnham 608, J. M. Withington 608, E K Lemont 585, J Guinits 608, G White 608, C. Ford 602, J Gage 591, A. Pierce 599, E. Slocum 607, J. H. Whipple 608, S G Whipple 608, N. D. Daggett 608, F D Thurman 607, S E Teeple 603, S. R. Ward 592, E. M. Skinner 598, A. Thompson 608, S B Mabey 608, H Mane 608, A C Bishop 500, P Parish 602, I Jincks 609, W H Thayer 609, T D Jones 609, E Lester 609, J Bishop 609, F Philbrick 608, Mrs. J. Dixon 593, C Morgan 609, J W Marden 599, R Day 589, J. Flanders 538, R R Jones 539, A. Marshall 609, J Bessee 609, R. K. Morrill 609, W O Hough 587, J Bigwood 582, E Norcross 608.

$3.00 each—J Viner 596, O Wright 572, E Hurlburt 546, B S Colby 608, M E Green 639, W I Bunce 611, W Allen 557, D Devereaux 625, J S Canney 550, E Ramery 592.

50c each—E Challen 531, J. De Maranville 566, J L Ellis 587, J Haskins 587, A W Boomer 587, D C Broughton 587, C Kenney 567, J French 587, L Ostrander 587, A Griswold 587, H Hosford 587, R I Davis 587, S Spaulding 587, P Curtis 542, S Young 486.

Various Sums.—J Humphreys $1.50, 603; C BARTLETT $5.00, 565; C West $5.00, 594; A Walker $1.50, 530; R. M. Felton $1.50, 545; H. C. Hurt 85c, 5.6; G storer 42c, 594; C Mendenhall $7.00, 611; L. A. Jones 63c, 567; C H Davenport 63c, 509; A M Coxshot $1.37, 570; A. Woodard $1.50, 547; C R Francis $1.50, 577; J Hall $3.00, 586; R Glidden $1.20 (what P O?); I H Tomlinson $2.47, 556; Mrs. J. Wells $9.00, 582; R H Nye $3.50, 654; W T Doremus $3.00, 725.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

A. Lewis $4.20, D. Howard $1.00, F. A. Baker 50c, J Humphreys 50c, J Metcalf $1.20, G Alkire $1.00, T G Burpee $5.00, J Pinkham $10.00, E. B. Lawrence 80c, J Guinits 50c, F. M. Butler $1.00, W Nichols $1.15, F Platt 64c, A Brooks 88c, E A Poole $1.00, R W Warner $2.00, H. S. Hough 50c, B. G. Patch 45c, J Nusbaum $2.75, T McClary $2.20, A J Lombard $1.00, T G Bartlett $2.00.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

C. Dennen, A Brooks, E B Lawrence, P Whitcomb, F M Butler, W Nichols, S Bridewell, G Guinits, G Storer, P A Smith, J M M Gernerd, T Libbey, F S Ainsworth, B. G. Patch, E. A. Boole, R W Warner, H. S. Hough, I Farr, T. McClary, J. Nusbaum, J W Purdy, T G Bartlett, A G Lombard, J C King, J Taylor.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

N N Reed, A E Smith, I C Wellcome, L. L. D., S E Teeple, F H Chamberlain, H K Fagg, B. L. H., R. G. Ladd, L L Howard, C Colgrove, E. W., J Elkins, M S Horne, J Blain.

ADDRESS OF PREACHING BRETHREN.

C. E. Piper—41 Grove Street, Boston, Mass.
C. Goodrich—69 Marion Street, East Boston, Mass.
A. W. Sibley—No. 4 Meridian Place, East Boston, Mass.
Israel Damman—For two or three weeks, New Bedford, Mass.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.
L. Boutell—Salem, Mass.
H. F. Carpenter—Danielsonville, Ct.
F. A. Baker—North Searsport, Me.
Joseph W. White—Portsmouth, N. H.
N. Hartshorn—Laconia, N. H.
J. G. Smith—New Durham, N. H.
J. Partridge—Richmond, Me.
C. H. Leverton—Surry, Hancock Co., Me.
O. D. Gibson—Amboy, Ill.
J. R. Preston—Prairie du Sac, Sauk Co., Wis.
R. J. Whitehead—Wallingford, Ct.
C. C. Stevens—Exeter, N. H.
L. C. McKinstry—Lynn, Mass., until July 1st.
John T. Ongley—Lincolnville, Crawford Co., Pa.
S. D. Daniels—Springfield, Mass.
G. W. Turner—West Point, Wis.
C. P. Dow—My P. O. address for United States' correspondents will be hereafter Franklin, Vt.
Wm. McCullock—New Rutland, Ill.
P. W. Hough—Cascade, Iowa.
Mrs. Abigail Mussey—Hillsburgh, Nova Scotia.
G. W. Stetson—Olena, Huron Co., Ohio, until Sept.
Wm. A. Fenn—Pulaski, Oswego Co., N. Y.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
N. A. Hitchcock—Exeter, Green Co., Wis.
N. F. Nason—North Hermon Me.
C. B. Turner—South Butler, Wayne Co., N. Y.
S. C. Hancock—Forestville, Conn.
Samuel Curry—Station E., New York.
S. P. Babcock—Malaga, N. J.
Josiah Durgin—Wadley's Falls, N. H.
H. Pratt—Springfield, Mass., 57 Cedar St.
C. I. Deyo—Richland, Kalamazoo Co., Mich.
Jacob Wilbur—Box 941, Janesville, Rock Co., Wis.
F. H. Burbank, Missionary.—Residence S. W. Cor. 7th and Spring-Garden Streets, Philadelphia, Penn.
Mrs. Anna E. Smith—No. 300 Seventh Avenue, below 33d Street, New York City.
Dr. I. I. Leslie—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.
Martha S. Butler—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT. The Common English Version as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union. Prices, by mail, postpaid—Family and Pulpit Edition (8vo. Pica), Plain Cloth, $2.25; Extra Cloth, $2.75. Medium size (18mo. Brevier), Plain Cloth, 85c.; Extra Cloth, $1.10; Sheep, $1.35; Roan, Colored Edges, $1.60.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the work of Demons: An Examination of its Origin, Morals, Doctrines, and Politics. By Miles Grant. Single copy, 15c.; eight copies for $1.00; $10.00 per hundred.

THE PROPHETIC TIME QUESTION; or, Bible Time Examined. By Wm. Sheldon. 27c.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed. 50c.

VISIONS OF ELLEN G. WHITE, not of God. By B. F. Snook and Wm. H. Brinkerhoff. 10c.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

Sent, postpaid, as follows:

1. I don't believe in Religion..........12 pp., 3c.
2. Did the World make itself?..........16 pp., 4c.
3. Is God Everybody, and Everybody God?..16 pp., 4c.
4. Have we any need of the Bible?..........24 pp., 4c.
5. Who wrote the New Testament?..........16 pp., 4c.
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable?..........16 pp., 4c.
7. Can we believe Christ and his Apostles?..16 pp., 4c.
8. Prophecy..........32 pp., 5c.
9. Moses and the Prophets..........28 pp., 5c.
10. Infidelity among the Stars..........28 pp., 5c.
11. Daylight before Sunrise..........36 pp., 5c.
12. Telescopic Views of Scripture..........32 pp., 5c.
13. Science, or Faith?..........32 pp., 5c.

For the SET, (making 304 pp.)..........50c. postpaid.
Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston Mass.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home..........16 pp
2. Life Insurance..........16 pp
3. Lost! Lost!..........8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet?..........8 pp.
5. About God (for children)..........4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing..........4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ..........4 pp.
8. Now..........4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent postpaid—
One set (64 pp.)..........6 c.
1300 pp..........$1.00
1800 pp., (by express, not prepaid)..........$1.00
Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

IN FIVE VOLUMES (68 pp. each.)

[illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom as it is. [illegible] By H. L. Hastings.

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer; [illegible] By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, by H. L. Hastings [illegible] SPIRITUALISM A SATANIC DELUSION. By Wm. Ramsey, D. D.

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man. [illegible]

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; [illegible]

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE

ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY

No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Works on the Prophecies—The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, etc.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES; or, A Glance at Christendom as it is. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. By D. T. Taylor. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THESSALONICA, the Model Church, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, by H. L. Hastings; and SPIRITUALISM, by Dr. Ramsey. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. With various tracts. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

MATTHEW XXIV. AND XXV. An Exposition, showing Christ's Predictions fulfilled, and his Kingdom near. By I. C. Wellcome. 25c; by mail, 27c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 1, By S. S. Brewer. 7c; by mail, 9c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 2, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 3, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

REASONS FOR MY HOPE; or, Tokens of Speedy Redemption. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD, and Signs of the Times. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THESSALONICA; or, The Model Church. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

REVELATIONS XIII.; a treatise. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

SPIRITUALISM a Satanic Delusion. By Wm. Ramsay, D. D. 20c.

THE SEVEN SEALS. Exposition of Rev. vi. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

LOOKING FORWARD; or, Prospects of the Church. By H. L. Hastings. 10c.

THE DAYS WE LIVE IN; The Lord soon to come. By S. S. Brewer. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CELESTIAL RAILROAD; or, Modern Pilgrim's Progress. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 13c; by mail, 15c.

THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 3c; by mail, 5c.

THE GREAT IMAGE soon to be dashed to pieces, By S. S. Brewer. 4c; by mail, 6c.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the times of Daniel and John. Mounted on Rollers, by express. $5.00; on Cloth, by mail, $4.00.

THE REIGN OF MESSIAH, the King of the Jews on the Throne of his Father David; its Nature, and the Time of its Commencement. By Wm. Sheldon. 8c; by mail, 10c.

Works on Future Punishment, etc.

DEBT AND GRACE; or, The Doctrine of a Future Life. By C. F. Hudson. A very able and learned work. $1.50.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. Cloth, 75c; paper, 45c.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT as taught in the Scriptures. Comprising Pauline Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, Old Paths, etc. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

STATE OF THE DEAD, and Punishment of the Wicked. A Discussion between Miles Grant and W. W. Clayton. 20c; by mail, 22c.

ETERNAL SUFFERING. A Discussion between Miles Grant and Dr. J. Litch. 25c; by mail, 29c.

RETRIBUTION; or, The Doom of the Ungodly. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, The Destruction of the Wicked established, and Endless Misery disproved. By Jacob Blain. 25c; by mail, 29c.

PAULINE THEOLOGY; or, The Christian Doctrine of Future Punishment, as taught in the Epistles of Paul. H. L. H. 10c.

GLAD TIDINGS; or, The End of Woe and Sin by the Destruction of the Wicked. (Three chapters from "Death not Life.") By J. Blain. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE OLD PATHS; or, The Primitive Doctrine of a Future Life. By H. L. H. 10c.

IMMORTAL SOUL THEOLOGY vs. BIBLE. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

WHAT IS MAN? A Bible View of his Creation. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SOUL; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SPIRIT; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS; Thief on the Cross, etc. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE DOCTRINE OF ENDLESS MISERY an occasion of Scepticism. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ETERNAL DEATH in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. 6c; by mail, 8c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. With remarks on Josephus. By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE RIGHTS OF WRONG; or, Is Evil Eternal? By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ENDLESS MISERY not a Bible Doctrine. 4c; by mail, 6c.

THE WICKED NOT IMMORTAL—(with 200 proof-texts.) 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING OF THE WORD HELL. 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING of Forever and Everlasting. 2c; by mail, 4c.

SMOKE OF TORMENT and Unquenchable Fire Explained. 1c; by mail, 3c.

REV. JOHN FOSTER'S LETTER on Future Punishment. 1c; by mail, 3c.

Miscellaneous.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF CHRISTIAN HOLINESS: A Sermon, by S. H. Platt. 15c.

THE DAY AND THE HOUR: a Lecture, by Joseph A. Seiss, D. D. 15c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.36c. Cloth, $1.75; by mail, $2.07.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five colored Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. $2.50; by mail, $2.86.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, the Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE BIBLE FROM HEAVEN; or, a Dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. 25c; by mail, 29c.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM; its Duty and Objects. By I. C. Wellcome. 20c, postpaid; $2.00 per dozen.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK; for Families and Sunday Schools. 15c; by mail, 19c; $1.50 per dozen; postage, 5c. on every three copies.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS FIGHT?—a tract on War. By I. C. Wellcome. 10c.

AMERICA IN PROPHECY; an Exposition of Isaiah XVIII. By O. R. Fassett. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EVERY BODY'S BOOK; the Personality of God; The Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By P. A. Smith. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CHRISTIAN LYRE; a Collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. 80c; by mail, 88c.

HOW TO COOK—without Salt, Butter, Lard, or Condiments. By Mrs. Mary R. Cox, M. D. 20c. postpaid.

COOKERY; or How to prepare food from Grain, Fruits and Vegetables. By F. W. Hurd, M. D. 15c; by mail, 17c.

PREMATURE DECAY of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE OLD AND NEW COVENANT—Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EXPERIENCE AND OBSERVATIONS of a Bruised Reed. By F. H. Chamberlain. By mail, 17c.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-word Translation, etc. etc. Leather, $4.00; by mail, $4.16. Extra gilt, $4.50; by mail, $4.66. Morocco, $5.00; by mail, $5.16.

CHLOE LANKTON, or Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75c; by mail, 87c.

NON-RESISTANCE. By W. C. Thurman. 20c; by mail, 24c.

DIPHTHERIA; its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. 10c; by mail, 12c.

GLAD VOICES; Words by D. T. Taylor, Music by L. Reimer. 3c. single; by mail, 5c. 30 cents a dozen, postpaid.

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. 15c; eight copies for $1.00.

BETHLEHEM: a Rhyme for Children. By H. L. Hastings. 10c. postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

SOCIAL HYMNS, Original and Selected. By H. L. H. Cloth, 30c; $3.00 per dozen. Paper 20c, $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. For Sunday Schools, etc. 5c; per dozen, 50c.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of the "cities of the nations." By Wm. Shepherd. 10c, postpaid; 85c. a dozen.

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. By A. P. Jolliffe. 5c; by mail, 7c.

OUR MISSION WORK; a Report of the Organization of the American Advent Mission Society, its Constitution, Officers, Addresses, etc. 5c.

EXPERIENCE OF THOMAS H. JONES, who was a Slave for forty-three years. 25c.

BLIND BARTIMEUS; or, How to be Saved. 25c. per dozen; $1.50 per hundred. Single 4c. postpaid.

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS; their Origin, Nature, Rank and Titles, their Ministry and Various Offices in the work of Human Redemption, and in the Administration of the Government of God. By Wm. Shepherd. 20c.

For the World's Crisis.

WHO'LL PREACH THE GOSPEL TO THE POOR?

Go feed my sheep, the Lord commands,
They're starving, fainting by the way,
Console their hearts, loose error's bonds,
And teach them how to watch and pray.

"I'll go," says one, "but what dost give?
For I am not as yet quite clear;
I need, if I like others live,
At least three hundred pounds a year.

"Besides, in other spheres I find
That I could earn as much or more,
And that I should run behind,
Perhaps that I should stand for fear."

I call, says Christ, for men of God,
And not for those who serve themselves;
For men who prize and keep my word
Within their hearts, not on their shelves.

I call for those whose hearts, renewed,
Are faithful to the suffering flock,
Who nourish them with spiritual food,
And trust for pay in me their Rock.

Another says, "I'll go, my Lord;
Bear my expense, I ask no more;
If any need, just send me word,
That this, my mite, will be made sure."

Says Christ, must you indeed exact
Some price, some stipulation sure?
I sought no price, no strong compact,—
I preached the gospel to the poor.

Where are the men who'll freely give
As freely as they do receive?
Let them go forth, and as I live
Their wants I surely will relieve.

My flock are hungering, thirsting now,
They're fainting by the highway side;
Where are those men who made a vow
That they would in my word confide?

I've promised that I'll be with you
E'en always, till the world shall end;
In trouble I will help you through,
Like Daniel from the lion's den.

Though oft in want your faith to try,
I will not leave you there to fear;
I'll succor you when danger's nigh,
And fill your heart with heavenly cheer.

Then venture forth, in me confide,
Cast all your care on my strong arm;
Remember, I am by your side,
To watch o'er you and bring you home.

Home! where you'll find full compensation
For all your toils and tribulation,
Where all your wrongs will then be righted,
And all your loss will be requited.

I. K. LOMBARD.

For the World's Crisis.

ST. LOUIS MISSION.

DEAR BRETHREN AND SISTERS:—I know many of you take a deep interest in the Mission work among the Freedmen; and perhaps you are waiting to know something more concerning the triumph of God's truth in this city. After fruitless attempts had been made to obtain a place of worship, where I could preach the whole gospel untrammeled, I had made up my mind at the writing of my last letter to the Crisis, March 1st, to leave for the East; but the earnest solicitations of the Freedmen and others, to whom I had preached during the winter, induced me to remain a little longer. Just at that time the colored preacher of Zion's (Methodist) church, on 12th street, wished me to come and preach for his people. I felt it my duty to do so. This church is owned by the Sanitary Commission, and is connected with and adjoins the asylum for colored orphans, which is also owned by the same Commission. During my stay with them, there were a good number of conversions, and as many as twenty-one went forward for prayers at one time.

Just at this time, also, the church worshiping on 7th street, with whom I had labored so much, were in trouble about the prospect of losing their church. They had bought the church and were unable to meet their payments. They owned, also, a church, or hall, one story high, situated on Green street, between 8th and 9th streets, upon which their was a mortgage of $800, and the interest of one year. The trustees of the church offered to lease me this church for one year, to be used for a church of our faith, and also for schools, day and evening, as I saw fit, upon the condition that I would pay the land rent, $210 a year, and the interest of $800, making $48 more, which would make in all $258 for the year. The church is eighty feet long by thirty feet wide. It would have to be seated by myself, the lumber and nails costing $100 more; for I should have made the seats myself. So you see there would have been an outlay of $358 in all, to have a church for a year. But this is not all. The man who held the mortgage of $800 on the church was about to foreclose, unless a part, at least, of the principal was paid. But whatever money I paid on the mortgage, I was to have security for until paid back. Here was a great thing and (subsequent events have fully proved) would have been a grand and successful one, if carried out. But my poor heart shrank from the responsibility. I have since regretted that I did not meet the responsibility, trusting in God to carry me through. Others regret it, too. But when you come to know all the facts, which you will in due time, and all the trials, disappointments, hardship, and perplexing difficulties I have had to encounter since coming out here, I do not think it will increase a desire in any to become missionaries, except those whose only object is to glorify God.

THE RESULT.

After looking at these things and their responsibilities, and often praying over the matter alone, and with my white brethren and sisters, who made the thing a special subject of prayer, I concluded to make the following proposition to the 7th street church, viz., that if they would vote to come out from the Methodist conference, and stand as a free and independent church; at the same time give up their church on 7th street, which I saw they must lose, and move into the one on Green street they offered to lease me, and take upon their own shoulders the responsibilities of meeting the necessary payments, I would take the Lord for surety, and act as his instrument in seeing the money paid, upon the condition that I should have the free use of the church for one year for schools, and also to preach in, myself, and any others of my brethren and sisters. To this proposition the Board of Trustees voted to assent. Accordingly, by their vote, the church was put into my hands for one year, according to my proposition. They were to pay the land rent, and I was to satisfy the mortgagee somehow, either by borrowing the $800 from another party, or making such payment as would satisfy the mortgage holder. I went to work and raised by begging $100 in one week, and paid it on the mortgage. During which time the 7th street church moved into this new place on Green street, taking the seats, pulpit, lights, etc., from the old to be used in the new one. And the next Sabbath was set for dedication.

The desired Sabbath came, and with it came also the Presiding Elder from Philadelphia, Pa., who is a white man, and claimed a supreme jurisdiction over the church and house. 'Twas now April 1st, and the regular time for him was May 10th, at their quarterly meeting; but some one had sent him word concerning the work of God in this city, among the Methodists and others, and of the impending crisis which seemed to be inevitable at that time, that a whole church, with its pastor, and a majority of its officers, were determined to come out and stand free in the liberty which the gospel gives them. But oh!

"How vain are all things here below;
How false, and yet how fair!
Each pleasure hath its poison, too,
And every sweet a snare."

THE STORM AND TEMPEST.

April 1st, the church and congregation came together, expecting a dedication of our new place of worship. But instead of a dedication, according to the programme, we were doomed to a disappointment, in consequence of the leaders of the church neglecting to inform the Presiding Elder of their intention to sever their connection with the Methodist E. Conference, which they had promised should be done upon the conditions I have named. Besides, the sudden and unexpected presence of the Presiding Elder, at such a time, seemed to throw the church into consternation and fear. The day passed quietly, however, excepting the storm and malice hurled against those who had dared to come into the city and preach among the Methodists, without first showing the Presiding Elder their credentials, and asking his permission to preach. But as I am not accustomed to be ruled by Popes, nor Pope juniors, I could not see the point in that light. That part of the word of God which is so dearly loved by those looking for the speedy coming of Christ again to earth, with its advocates, including the "World's Crisis," and not excepting myself, received each an equal share of abuse.

At the afternoon meeting, after witnessing for a time the malice and feeling toward those believing in the last crowning truths of the gospel age, I arose and quietly left the house. But during the whole day, the congregation sat quietly, and every feeling of indignation, if there was any, was subdued.

In the evening, I decided to go again to the meeting. After listening to the discourse of the Elder, I arose at its close to inform the congregation, that I had raised and paid one hundred dollars on the church, to meet its first payment, and was intending to raise another hundred to meet another payment; and in consideration of the fact that the house had been put into my hands, by a vote of its trustees, I would make an appointment for next Tuesday evening, when, if it was the Lord's will, I would preach to them again.

During my remarks the house was perfectly quiet, excepting a few interruptions from the Presiding Elder, to which I paid no regard. At the close of my remarks, the Elder began his abuse of me; at which two thirds of the church and congregation arose upon their feet, some crying "Shame!" and others saying they would not see me thus abused. The consternation, confusion, and excitement, certainly exceeded by far anything I had ever seen in any religious body before. A rush was made for the door, and many went out. But the sexton soon locked the door, which prevented others from leaving. During the whole confusion, our white brethren and sisters all kept their seats. After repeated attempts by the Presiding Elder to call the house to order, partial quiet was restored, when the meeting was closed.

And then what a greeting I received from the church, who made a rush toward me from every part of the house to take me by the hand. Many out of doors came back into the house, and it was some time before I could reach the front part of the house. Then I met another crowd waiting to greet me while passing out, besides the crowd at the door, in the front yard, side-walk, and street, coming to shake me by the hands, for I had to make use of both my hands in receiving their expressions of love and attachment to truths which they declared I had, as one of the Lord's servants, shown them during the winter. Glory to God! I was made to feel that night that

In the midst of grief and sorrow
Joy comes to strengthen for the morrow.

Very many assured me that, in case I was shut out of the church here, they would follow me to any other place which I might obtain.

The following Tuesday came, and a large company of us gathered to the church; but the door was barred against us. We went to a private colored house, and had our meeting, and God was with us. The Presiding Elder, with some of his white and colored friends, made as much fuss and ado during the week following the Sabbath, and since, over the work of God and the triumph of his truth, as they would if the whole State of Missouri had seceded from the Union. The devil set to work with his agents in raising his banner, upon which was inscribed a multitude of falsehoods, such as—I had left the city, for fear of being arrested by the city authorities; that I had been arrested as an impostor; that the authorities had driven me out of the State. From the fact of my being shut out of any place, where I could refute and defend myself against the multitude of falsehoods put in circulation, to deceive God's elect, if possible, for a few days the Devil had everything about his own way. But, glory to God! the banner of truth has triumphed, and still waves in the city. For with all of the enemy's force of falsehoods and scoffing shells, they have only succeeded in blowing away the forts of human skill, and air castles; the loss of which we did most deeply feel. "But God has provided some better thing for us,"—a little fort we can call our own, inside of which twenty-seven members have already taken refuge, of which I shall more freely speak hereafter.

The three weeks' contest. During the three weeks that followed April 1st, the different African churches, and some of the white, throughout the city, were thrown into confusion and excitement. Those who had never heard of Christ's coming kingdom, preached at hand, heard of it now. The "World's Crisis," comparatively unknown before, was now sought for, among those who had them, to see what awful doctrines were advocated in them. Those who were its advocates were singled out and pointed at as dangerous persons. I was advised by many of my African friends not to be out much after dark, especially in any of the alleys among the colored people. But I remembered the story of "Tall Asah," and kept plodding my way along as usual, trusting in God, who takes care of all his children, even the feeble ones.

We immediately commenced our meetings, two and three evenings each week, holding them in different small houses, occupied by our African brethren and sisters, and situated in the alleys, [illegible] made up of old chairs, trunks, tables, and beds, upon which the people could sit,—our white brethren and sisters also meeting with us; but we had the glory of God in our midst. Our African friends soon began to find out that the thousand and one stories, put in circulation by the enemy, had no foundation. Gradually the truth, that I was in the city unharmed, began to find its way throughout the lanes and alleys of the city. I had made up my mind, however, to leave the city for the present and go East, promising to return in the fall and build a house of worship, if it was the Lord's will. I had visited many of our African brethren and sisters, taking my leave of them, until such time as in the providence of God I might return. But—

"God moves in a mysterious way,
His wonders to perform;
He plants his footsteps in the sea,
And rides upon the storm."

Just at the time I was preparing to leave, I received a letter again from Bro. Grant, that the Mission Board were going to send me aid. Never before did I feel such gratitude to God. It was like a new conversion to my soul. And then to the encouragement I received from Bro. Grant to continue and hold on, assuring me that there were those who never passed a day without remembering me in their prayers; my own brother Abram, at Brattleboro, Vt., (who aided me liberally in coming out here,) and others, have given me the same assurance of remembrance. Although I had not asked aid from the Mission Board, (and the reasons were given you last fall in the Crisis; viz., that I chose to come out free and unbiassed from salary or wages, trusting in God to provide); yet the promised aid was regarded by us as a manifest token that God had heard and answered our prayers, in behalf of his dear children here, and for the triumph of his truth.

The money came—$100, accompanied with a cheering letter from Bro. Geo. T. Adams. Four days following, I received another cheering letter and $10 from Bro. John M. Stetler, of Phila., Pa.; also one from a sister in Byron, Me., with $5 enclosed,—no name given; also one from some Bro. or Sr. in West Troy, N. Y., with $1.00 enclosed,—no name given. I also received a letter from Bro. Himes, while at Boston, assuring me that I had the best wishes of the Board, which felt a deep interest in the work of God at St. Louis. All these things were evident tokens to us that the Lord was with us. O how we thanked the Lord, and felt ashamed that we had not trusted him more.

"Judge not the Lord by feeble sense,
But trust him for his grace;
Behind a frowning providence
He hides a smiling face.
His purposes will ripen fast,
Unfolding every hour:
The bud may have a bitter taste,
But sweet will be the flower."

Never did I love and appreciate these words as now; for every thing that had seemed to be against us before was now suddenly changed.

(Concluded next week.)

For the World's Crisis.

DIALOGUE.

A. Why do you take pains to go away eight or ten miles to meeting, when here are three churches at home where the gospel is preached every week?

B. I go to hear that part of the gospel dispensed which is dispensed with here.

A. What so very important part is that, pray?

B. The only hope of the church.

A. You hav'n't the presumpting to say that isn't preached here? But what is it, pray tell?

B. The second coming of Christ. Is it preached here?

A. Not that I know of. I've heard it mentioned, but by no means as the only hope of the church. Yours is a bold assertion, and demands proof.

B. It is their only hope, inasmuch as there is no salvation for the church without it.

A. But the righteous are saved in this life by faith.

B. Only prospectively. If the object of their faith fails, where is their salvation? Paul says, in the 15th of 1 Corinthians, "If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain. . . If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. But now is Christ risen . . . Christ the first-fruits—afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." So their resurrection depends on his coming.

A. I know their bodies will not rise till the resurrection, but their souls are saved in heaven when they die.

B. They don't go to heaven.

A. Their bodies don't, I know.

B. They (the essential men) don't. Their souls don't.

A. Their spirits do. "The spirit shall return to God who gave it."

B. What is the spirit?

A. Why, the conscious, essential part.

B. We are told by those who know the original language that the word ruach, which is here translated spirit, is in Eccl. 3: 19, as well as in other places, rendered breath. "For that which befalleth . . . men befalleth beasts . . . as the one dieth so dieth the other, yea, they have all one breath." From this it is plain that the spirit which returns to God is only the breath of life, which God breathed into his nostrils at creation.

A. I think you have an insignificant view of it.

B. But the wisest can make no more of it. Besides, if your text proves that the conscious, essential part of the righteous man goes to heaven at death, it proves also that the conscious, essential part of the wicked man goes there too. But the Bible invariably represents both as going into the grave, and nowhere else. "There is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave whither thou (the man) goest." Eccl. 9: 10. "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to the earth; in that very day his thoughts perish."—Ps. 146: 4. Surely, thoughts pertain to the real, essential man.

A. But I read in Rev. 2: 10, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

B. Yes, when will he give it? Let Peter answer. 1 Pet. 5: 4, "And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory."

A. Don't the chief Shepherd come at the event of every Christian's death?

B. No, for his second coming (of course there can be none between the first and second) is in the clouds of heaven to judge the world. There are other passages showing when the crown is to be given. 2 Tim. 4: 8, James 1: 12, Luke 14: 14, 1 John 3: 2, and 2, 1 Pet. 1: 5, 7, 13, etc.

A. But didn't Christ say to the thief, "To-day shalt thou be with me in Paradise"? I know you will tell me to change the comma, so as to make it read, "I say unto thee today, Thou shalt be," etc. But I take the Book as it reads.

B. Excellent! That's more than most people do. But, unless the thief was an exception to the general rule, it is plain that he did not go to heaven that day, from John 3: 13, "No man hath ascended to heaven," etc.

A. But he went to Paradise.

B. What is Paradise?

A. I can't tell exactly, though I suppose it has some connection with heaven.

B. Let the Book define it. Paul speaks in 2 Cor. 12: 2, 4, of being caught up to the third heaven or paradise. Peter tells us what the third heavens are. In 2 Pet. 3: 6, he speaks of the heavens which were of old (first heavens); in the 7th verse, of the heavens which are now (second heavens); and in the 13th verse, of the new heavens (third heavens), or paradise which is yet to come. So neither Christ nor the thief went to paradise on the day of the crucifixion. The thief understood it when he asked, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom."

A. But if we are ready for death we shall be for the judgment; and since we know we must die, isn't that the main consideration? else why is the necessity of a preparation for death being constantly urged on sinners as a motive to repentance, and on saints to perseverance?

B. I can't tell why; certainly not because the Scriptures present any such motive.

A. You forget the direction to king Hezekiah,—"Set thy house in order, for thou shalt die and not live."

B. That command was not given as a motive to repentance, or faithfulness, for he had hitherto "walked before the Lord in truth, and with a perfect heart."—2 Kings 20: 3. It was simply a direction to him to give charge concerning his house (margin). Now, if death was to introduce the good king to the bliss of heaven, why did he weep so sorely?

A. But we read, "Great is your reward in heaven."

B. It is to be brought down to earth. "Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give to every man," etc.—Rev. 22: 12. "The grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ."

A. I see. What are some of the Bible motives to repentance and faith?

B. "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." "Repent, because he hath appointed a day in which he will judge the world." Acts 17: 31. "Turned from idols to serve the living and true God, and to await for his Son from heaven."—1 Thess. 1: 9, 10. "Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God. . . We look for new heavens and a new earth . . . wherefore . . . be diligent."—2 Pet. 3: 11 and onward. "We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed. . . . When this mortal shall have put on immortality, then . . . Death is swallowed up in victory. . . Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory. . . . Therefore be steadfast," etc.—1 Cor. 15: 51 and onward. I can only refer to others. Rom. 2: 7, Col. 3: 23, 24, 1 Thess. 3: 12, 13, 2 Pet. 1: 10, 11, Rev. 22: 14, 1 Thess. 4: 13–18, Matt. 5: 5, in which you see the earth is the saints' inheritance.

A. Not the final inheritance, I'm sure. I have more exalted ideas of the saints' abode. With a spiritual body, I, for one, do not want to live forever on this dirty earth.

B. You would have spared that remark, if you had read in the last two chapters of Rev. the description of the new earth, to which comes down the holy city, of the streets, the gates, the precious stones, of the tabernacle of God with men, of the "no more death . . . nor sorrow," of the glory of God to lighten it, of the tree and the river of life and the throne of God (all which, remember, are to be where there has been a sea and a curse); or the 37th Psalm, or in the 35th of Isaiah, how the desert shall blossom as the rose, how the glory and excellency of God shall be seen, and how the redeemed shall come to Zion with everlasting joy; and in Heb. 2: 14, how the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. If you, or I, or any pardoned rebels deserve any thing better, a just God will give as our deserts.

A. I did speak thoughtlessly. But those latter passages relate to the conversion of the world.

B. The whole world is never to be converted to God.

A. You astonish me. Are not the heathen to be given to Christ?

B. Yes, but what will he do with them?

A. Convert and save them, I suppose.

B. Read the 9th verse of the 2d Psalm and see. There can be no time of universal righteousness before the end of the world. Christ said, "Let the wheat and tares grow together till the harvest." See the 3d chap. of 2 Tim. "In the last days perilous times shall come." Then follows a catalogue of the various ungodly characters that shall prevail. See the 13th verse.

A. Why, almost every body expects a millennium before the end.

B. Their expecting it will never bring it, unless their expectation rests on the promise of some one who has the power and authority to make it good.

A. Why haven't these long-time students of the Bible, the evangelical ministers, found these things out, if they are true? If there's no millennium, the end may be nearer than they think.

B. Don't we know it is near? Christ says, "When ye see all these things (the darkening of the sun and moon and the falling of the stars), ye know that it is nigh." These things are past, and the next event is the shaking of the powers of heaven and coming of Christ. To all christians, living or dead, the only ground of hope since the Master went to heaven is his promise to come again, when he will raise the dead and change the living. If he never does come, the dead will have no future life, and the living no immortality.

A. But they are immortal.

B. How do you know?

A. Why, I've always known it—always been taught to believe it.

B. What reasons for it did your teachers give?

A. I don't know. Don't the Bible say the soul is immortal?

B. Nowhere.

A. Don't it say the soul cannot die?

B. Nowhere.

A. Don't it say something that means the same?

B. Nowhere.

A. I guess, after looking, I can find it somewhere.

B. I'll pay you well if you will find it. I never found it, unless it be in Gen. 3: 4,—"Ye shall not surely die." But the speaker here seems to be not the best of authority, judging from the broad hint in John 8: 44, l. c. But you can find, "God only hath immortality." "The soul that sinneth it shall die." "The wicked shall be as though they had not been."

A. I don't believe in annihilation. Those who teach that the wicked are put out of existence soften down the punishment in a way they have no authority to do.

B. They give it scriptural names, "death," "destruction," "perdition." Think for one minute, or ten minutes, of the duration of eternity. Will the God, whom the gospel calls Love, needlessly (for the suffering could not reform them) commit the greater part of his creatures to endless suffering?

A. But sin is against an infinite God, who cannot look on it with the least allowance.

B. That one very good reason why he is not going to allow it to all eternity, but make a thorough riddance of it and have a holy universe.

A. Well, I'm perplexed. New things always confound me. Isn't it best, after all, to keep in the old paths?

B. I wish I had time to show you how these are the identical old paths; to tell you of those who walked in them to a greater or less distance, of the early Christians, of the Reformers, of certain members of the Westminster Assembly, of the martyrs, of Wesley, Watts and Cowper, and many noble ones of the present day.

A. But what difference does it make whether we believe these things or not? Every one has a right to his own opinion. We should agree to disagree.

B. You will acknowledge that it is not a matter of small import to ascribe to the God of love a character so terribly awful and revengeful that he will keep sinners in eternal misery, when his word nowhere warrants such an ascription; and then, after giving him this character, invite poor sinners to give him their hearts. As to opinion, I have no right to any theological opinion that is not founded on, or is contradicted, in the word of God. "Sanctify them through thy truth." The truth is a unit. Error sanctifies no one. None are saved because of their native honesty, but for their obedience to the truth. And as to agreeing to disagree, Christ prayed that his church might be one, even as he and the Father were one. How was that? Did they agree to disagree? I dare say Paul, though he may have had to submit to the advancement of error, never agreed to it.

A. I cannot argue the point. There is another thing—the doctrine of justification by faith, I consider the substance of the gospel; and that doctrine is preached here faithfully.

B. Justification by faith is indeed indispensable to salvation; but it is a matter of present experience, not an object of hope, as it seems to me. Our subject in this talk has been the hope of the church. So, with all reverence I say it, we may be never so freely justified by faith, and have peace with God, and rest on the promise of his word; but if Christ never returns to fulfill the word, we shall never have any thing but the promise and the earnest of salvation, not salvation itself. The apostle supports this view when he says, "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable."

A. I don't know but it is so. But don't understand me to say that I endorse any of your doctrine.

B. I understand you. But I must go. May we be able to say in that day,—"Lo! this is our God, we have waited for him, and he will save us."—Isa. 25: 9.

S. Wilbraham. LUCY M. CHAFFEE.

For the World's Crisis

THE BIBLE THE BOOK OF BOOKS!

Precious gold, pure gold, wrought gold, beautiful gold, fine gold, gold seven times purified. Friends, are you working at this rich mine of gold inexhaustible?

"The Bible—book of wondrous love,
Borne from God's eternal throne
In mercy's arms to fallen man,
To tell the mission of the Son."

Are you drinking at this pure, living fountain, the water of life, this well of water, whereof if a man drink he shall never thirst—never die?

Speak of this heavenly gift, dwell upon its excellencies, its beauties, its glories, its life-giving power, the hope it gives, the faith, the peace, the joy—the all and in all. Never, while life remains, shall we cease to extol this blessed volume—exalt it to heaven.

"What glory gilds the sacred page,
Majestic, like the sun;
It gives a light to every age,
It gives, but borrows none."

Once induce the people to take the Bible; the old, the young, the high, the low, the rich, the poor, make it the man of their counsel, their guide, their lamp, their light, their exceeding great reward; embrace it, clasp it to their bosoms as their chief delight—the world is saved—"blossoms as the rose."

This is the secret of all secrets, the only hope of a world's salvation. Departing from this blessed book has been the downfall, the ruin, in all ages.

"The Bible—grand and heavenly chart,
On which is traced the narrow road
Which leads the pilgrim traveler
Up to the realms of bliss—to God."

It is the Bible we inculcate; it is the Bible we are laboring to place on the throne of every heart.

It's the Bible for the parents, it's the Bible for the children, it's the Bible for the sinners, it's the Bible for the saints. The Bible is life—"it is spirit, it is life." It's the Bible to convict; it's the Bible to convert; it's the Bible to purify and sanctify. It's the Bible in the church; it's the Bible in the closet, in the family; it's the Bible in the heart, in the life.

It's the Bible, the blessed Bible; now, henceforth, and forever.

All the departures from duty, love, mercy, light, life, and salvation, originate in neglecting this blessed book; all the hewing out of broken cisterns that can hold no water; the hardening of the heart, as in the provocation in the day of temptation in the wilderness, the idolatry, the witchcraft, the superstition, the will-worship, the bowing the knee to stocks and stones. Whenever this sacred volume is laid aside or dusted over, there you see the enemy rushing in like a flood.—See 2 Kings 22: 13.

"Let the Bible be adopted as the only rule of faith—let its principles be acted upon by all men, under all circumstances—then wars will cease, confusions, family feuds be known no more, fanaticism fail, the race of impostors become extinct, and true piety everywhere prevail. Then will the morning stars again sing, and the sons of God again shout for joy over the earth, as they did when she rolled from the hands of her Maker, and man went forth formed in the Divine image."

Our prayers, our efforts, our prime object, our indefatigable, concentrated aim, is to lead the minds of the people to the Bible; to lay aside the chaff for the wheat.

"First fill the bushel with the wheat,
With wisdom—food for souls to eat;
Then chaff, the fiction of the day,
Will find no place, and blow away."

Parents, teach your children the Bible, begin with the Bible, continue with the Bible, end with the Bible. Let the Bible be first, midst, last, always.

The Bible is the grand guide-board to eternity. It tells you which way to travel; it warns you against by-paths and wrong roads, against false guides, pits, traps, slippery places, and every other danger. If you follow its advice, it will conduct you safely along the narrow way, across the dark river of death, and over the shining path into the celestial city.—Author of "Home Thrusts."

For the World's Crisis.

SUTTON, MASS.

This town is nine miles south of the city of Worcester. It joins Millbury, Grafton, Northbridge, Douglas and Oxford. It was formerly the largest town in what is now called the "heart of the Commonwealth"; but the population has not increased here, as in most other places. My ancestors have lived and died here for several generations. But a small part of my life has been spent here.

"No foot of land do I possess,
Nor cottage in this wilderness."

I feel quite as much like a stranger here, as in most other places. There is very little interest manifested here in regard to things "unseen and eternal."

There was a M. E. church established here thirteen years ago; but the house of worship is now deserted by the church, and used as a hall for dances and parties. There is a Congregational church here, but it is a "house divided against itself," and gives but a feeble and uncertain light to the dark world around it. Many of the more enterprising citizens are leaving the place, and seeking business or employment elsewhere. Even the buildings (some of them) are being removed to other places. I have written this brief sketch in answer to many inquiries in relation to this place, and hope it will not be altogether unprofitable. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

Sutton, Mass.

P. S.—I do not know of any Advent people within several miles. Except on rare occasions and at long intervals, I have never had the privilege of associating with the people of my choice, though I embraced that belief twenty-three years ago. F. H. C.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

HOW TO PRESERVE HEALTH.

An eminent medical authority, in view of the probable spread of the cholera, makes the following, among other remarks in the New York papers:

"The final element of the propagation of cholera depends upon the individual.

Disease is fashionable, like everything else. If any of us are able to get a new hat this spring, we get one of the prevalent modes. So if any one of us is going to be sick, he gets the illness that is current in the community.

In certain seasons of the year, if we expose ourselves to the air and take cold, it attacks the lungs; at another, the bowels; at another, gives us rheumatism, etc.

If we over-eat or drink, it always does us some injury; if we are harassed by business or family cares, we are made sick. In what way we manifest the sickness, or in what shape it puts itself, depends upon the season and the epidemic influences of the season. Should the cholera become epidemic, a carouse which generally would be followed by a simple headache or a bilious attack of cholera, will manifest itself by an attack of cholera.

Such attacks of diseases are manifestly within the reach of every individual. Avoiding, then, the causes of general disease, late hours, late suppers, over-drinking,—excitation of all sorts, joy, fear, fatigues, and all exhausting employments of body or mind—in short, by keeping the mens sana in corpore sano—a healthy mind in a healthy body, and the prevalence of cholera need be of little personal importance to the community generally. The 'rummies,' whether on the Five Points or the Fifth avenue, are those who have to fear this or any epidemic. They live in straw houses, and the spark from any disease may be fatal to them."

Another writer shows the great value of proper sanitary regulations in checking the spread of cholera, as follows:

"Certain towns in England were almost shielded from this dreaded enemy by preparing their sanitary defenses in time. Worcester, on the Severn, entirely escaped it. In this country it is recorded that in Philadelphia the most active measures were taken to guard the public health in the epidemic of 1849. 2970 privies were cleaned; 340 houses cleaned by the authorities; 188 ponds drained; 66 rag and bone shops closed, and in all, over 6000 distinct sources of disease removed. The consequence was that the number of deaths in that city was only 747, while in New York they amounted to 5071! In Boston, good health arrangements kept the pestilence in the lowest and dirtiest streets, and reduced the deaths to some 683. In Baltimore very few deaths occurred. The deaths in New York would have amounted to a much greater number but for the earnest efforts of the authorities, even at the last moment, to cleanse the streets and lanes, and remove nuisances."

TOBACCO INJURIOUS TO THE MIND.

Dr. Joel Shew says, "Any narcotic, the use of which is capable of causing hypochondriasis, hysteria, epilepsy, mental imbecility, and insanity, must of necessity, if employed habitually, become detrimental to the intellect and the morals in proportion to the extent of the abuse. Besides it is a recognized principle in nature, that whatever enfeebles the body, must, in the same end, and in the same degree, enfeeble the mind. 'A sound mind in a sound body' is the physiological law. This every tobacco user violates."

Dr. Rush states of the father of Dr. Massillac "that he lost his memory through the excessive use of snuff at only forty years of age." Sir John Pringle's memory was also badly impaired in the same way, as was proved by his recovery on abstaining from it at the suggestion of Dr. Franklin.

Professor Hitchcock says, "intoxicating drinks, opium and tobacco, exert a pernicious influence upon the intellect. They tend directly to debilitate the organs; and we cannot take a more effectual course to cloud the understanding, weaken the memory, unfix the attention, and confuse all the mental operations, than by thus entailing on ourselves the whole hateful train of maladies. These can bow down to the earth an intellect of giant strength, and make it grind in bondage like Samson shorn of his locks and deprived of his vision. The use of tobacco may seem to soothe the feelings, and quicken the operations of the mind; but to what purpose is it that the machine is furiously running and buzzing after the balance-wheel is taken off."

In 1890 a Persian king prohibited the use of tobacco; but many of his devout subjects, like the christians during the dark ages, fled to the mountains to do up their devotions, and escape his persecution.

In 1661, in Berne, Switzerland, in the police regulations, there was made a code of prohibitions, after the form of the ten commandments, in which the one against smoking tobacco stood next to that which said, "Thou shalt not commit adultery."

In 1610 a Turk at Constantinople being found smoking, was led through the streets with his nose transfixed with a pipe, as a punishment. In 1630, smokers were condemned to the punishment of having the nose slit.

A boy who smokes early, and frequently, or in any way uses large quantities of tobacco, is never known to make a man of much energy, and generally lacks muscular and physical, as well as mental power. We would particularly warn boys who want to be anything in the world, to shun tobacco as the most baneful poison. It injures the teeth. It produces an unhealthy state of the throat and lungs, hurts the stomach, and blasts the brain and nerves. It tends to a softening and weakening of the bones, and it greatly injures the brain, the spinal marrow and the whole nervous fluid.

PORK EATING.

After speaking of the trichinæ, or hog-worm, and the dreadful consequences of eating this infected pork, a writer says:—

"Now there is but one safe and sure remedy—abstinence; an ounce of prevention in this case, is worth, I know not how many pounds of cure, for it is not safe to eat swine's flesh, even though it is cooked, for these parasites, like many other animalculæ, will stand a reasonable amount of frying before they will surrender.

Pork eating is a barbarous custom in these enlightened days. Several thousand years ago it was considered wicked, and was prohibited by the wise law-giver, and it is presumed that Moses knew what he was about when he enumerated the unclean beasts; and unclean the hog is, in most cases, in most shocking excess.

Again I would say, prevention is better than cure, for the first is within our reach, the last is not."

But it is said that thorough boiling of pork kills the trichina, and renders the infected pork harmless. But have men such a relish for that animal, which God and all reason pronounces "unclean" that they will eat boiled worms rather than deny themselves of it?

Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God. 1 Cor. 10: 31.—Ex.

DISINFECTION AND DEODORIZATION.—Dr. Herbert Baker, the successful competitor for the Hastings Prize Essay for 1865, was led, by a series of observations and experiments on this subject, to the following conclusions:

1. For a sick room, free ventilation, when it can be secured, together with an even temperature, is all that can be required.
2. For rapid deodorization and disinfection, chlorine is the most effective known.
3. For steady and continuous effect, ozone is the best agent known.
4. In the absence of ozone, iodine, exposed in the solid form to the air, is the best.
5. For the deodorization and disinfection of fluid and semi-fluid substances, undergoing decomposition, iodine is best.
6. For the deodorization and disinfection of solid bodies that cannot be destroyed, a mixture of powdered chloride of zinc, or powdered sulphate of zinc with sawdust is best. After this a mixture of carbolic acid and sawdust ranks next in order, and following on that, wood-ashes.
7. For the deodorization and disinfection of infected articles of clothing, etc., exposure to heat at 212° Fahr., is the only true method.
8. For the deodorization and disinfection of substances that may be destroyed, heat to destruction is the true method.

RELATIONS OF ALCOHOL TO FOOD.—M. Perrin, a French physician, has made a series of experiments on himself to determine the effects of alcohol on the human body in a state of health. With this view, he made use, at stated times, of fermented liquors of different degrees of strength, giving a preference, however, to the lighter wines. The results of his observations were, that alcohol caused a diminution in the amount of carbonic acid given out by the lungs, and at the same time it lessens the oxygenation of the blood in the vessels, and the evolution of animal heat. It imparts no new nutriment to the body, but diminishes the feelings of hunger and call for food, and thus, while it adds nothing to the supply, it diminishes, by suspending, the waste. In this way, the use of alcoholic drinks may be of use in various diseases, but not, he thinks, as a tonic or stimulant, and never when carried to the effect of producing intoxication.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance...............$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address........$5.50
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters intended for publication, write PRIVATE. Over all business matters, write BUSINESS. Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS. All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An illustrated [illegible] paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Payable always in advance.

[illegible]

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 558. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 13.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
I. C. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth, especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

PSALM ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-EIGHT.

I'll praise the Lord with my whole heart,
Before the gods I'll sing;
Towards thy holy temple Lord,
True worship I will bring.

For thou hast magnified thy word
Above thy glorious name;
And all thy loving kindness, Lord,
And truth, will I proclaim.

And in the day I on thee called,
Thou heardest my feeble cry;
Strength I received within my soul
From the great source on high.

The kings of earth shall bring their praise
And honor to thy throne;
When they shall hear thy gracious words,
Thy righteousness they'll own.

Yea, they shall sing in all thy ways,
While they rejoice in thee;
For great thy glory is, oh Lord,
And great thy majesty.

The Lord, he loves the lowly one,
Although so great and high;
But to the proud and lofty heart
He never draweth nigh.

Though trouble may surround my path,
The Lord will me revive;
My enemies thou wilt subdue,
And thy right hand shall save.

The Lord will perfect his own work,
He is a faithful friend;
Forsake me not, oh gracious Lord,
Thy mercies never end.

Farmington, N. H. MARTHA S. HORNE.

For the World's Crisis.

NATURE OF MAN.

BY O. W. STETSON.

(Concluded.)

But it is affirmed by philosophers and would-be-orthodox theologians, that because the Lord God breathed into man's nostrils the breath of life, therefore the first Adam and all his posterity became possessed of a spiritual nature; whereas, the apostle Paul, after having been "endowed with power from on high," even the promised Holy Spirit, and speaking by its divine authority, says, in 1 Cor. 15: 46, plainly, positively and definitely, that such was not the fact in the case. Dear brethren, hear him; be admonished by him, believe him: "Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural (animal); and afterward that (body or man) which is spiritual. The first man is of the earth, earthy; the second man (the spiritual one) is the Lord (Jesus Christ, or Jesus the anointed one) from heaven. As is the earthy, such (of the same kind or seed, in the resurrection) are they also that are earthy" (in the life that now is); and as is the heavenly (in the resurrection), such (of the same kind or seed) are they also that are heavenly (here). And as we have (by natural descent) borne the image of the earthy, we shall also (in the resurrection) bear the image of the heavenly;" i. e., of the spiritual, the Lord Jesus, who shall not only quicken—make alive—our mortal bodies, the first man, by his spirit, not by the spirit of the first Adam, but by his spirit, if so be the spirit of Christ dwell in us by faith, but also change our vile bodies, and fashion them like unto his own glorious body, when he shall come from heaven.—Phil. 3: 21; 1 Jno. 3: 2.

Now we have nowhere said that either the man or his spirit was "annihilated" at death. What I was combating was the unscriptural idea held by many, that the spirit of man was the man, and we wrote and it was plainly printed, as the word of God affirms, that when the dust (man made of the ground, Gen. 2: 7, and 1 Cor. 15: 44–47) returns to the dust (Gen. 3: 19), then the spirit returns to God who gave it (Eccl. 12: 7); to the man made of the dust. Gen. 2: 7. Now that spirit is not the spirit of "the elect," for Christ is their "life-giver" and their "life"; consequently, though they live (Adamically) in the flesh, they are not living the eternal life, the promised one which is to come (1 Tim. 4: 8; 1 Jno. 5: 11), but Christ lives in them. Gal. 2: 20. For they (by transgression of the law, Rom. 7: 9–14) "are crucified," are "dead," sold (to death) under or by sin, and their "life is hid with Christ in God"; and "when Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye (the now dead ones by the law) also appear with him in glory" (Col. 3: 3–4), being made alive, from the dead, "at his coming." 1 Cor. 15: 23. "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so (i. e., in the same way, do we believe that God will bring) them also that sleep in Jesus . . . with him," i. e., bring them to life again, by a resurrection from the dead, in the same way that he (God the Father, who dwelt in Christ) brought Jesus again from the dead, which was by a resurrection.

1 Thess. 4: 14, Heb. 13: 20, and 1 Pet. 1: 3, say it is through this resurrection of our Lord by his God and Father, that we are "begotten" "again unto a lively hope"; the original Greek stands thus: "Blessed the God and father of the Lord of us, Jesus anointed, that according to the great of himself mercy having begotten us to a hope of life through a resurrection of Jesus anointed, out of dead ones." You may thus perceive that it is not the hope that is living, but our hope is, that we shall "live again," and for this hope of life we have not the questionable deductions of a logic whose promise (that man is a duality or trinity) may be wrong, and whose conclusions, therefore, must of necessity be erroneous; but we have the mathematics, the problem solved, and the demonstration is, that Jesus died and rose again, and the corollary is, that those who sleep in Jesus will God also bring with him," —opposing science (so called falsely) to the contrary.

And this bringing us "again out from the dead ones," by a resurrection, is (or will be) the "elect's" birth of the spirit, the completion of that spirit's labor, which had its beginning in us, when "the word of God, the incorruptible seed," "begat" us to a hope of life eternal. "This day (of his resurrection) have I begotten thee," produced thee, brought thee forth, given birth to thee. Acts 13: 33; Ps. 2: 7. See also, Isa. 66: 7–9. "Before she (the earth mentioned ch. 65: 16, 17, travailed, she brought forth; before her pain came, she was delivered of a man CHILD" (Christ). (9: 6. "To us a child is born, a son is given.") 66: 8. "Who hath heard such a thing? who hath seen such things? Shall the earth be made to bring forth in one day? or shall a nation be born at once? for as soon as Zion (called 'the earth' in the line above) travailed, she brought forth her children. Shall I bring to the birth" (Christ, the first that should rise from the dead, Acts 26: 23, 1 Cor. 15: 23, "the first born of every creature" the head of the body, the church, Zion's children, "the first born from the dead," Col. 1: 15, 18;) shall I bring forth "Christ the first fruits" of them that sleep? "bring to the birth, and not cause to bring forth" (afterwards) those that are Christ's at his coming? "Shall I cause to bring forth (Christ the head) and shut the womb? (and not give birth to the body, the church, by resurrecting it also) saith thy God."

Thus the Lord God makes what men call the birth (conversion), the begetting of the Spirit, and gave to us a sample in the begeting of Isaac by the divine energy under the gospel, in the begeting of Jesus, when the same divine energy "overshadowed" the Virgin, with this difference; under the law, a medium of connection, "the letter of the law" was employed; but under the "favor," the agency of the Spirit or life-giving power direct, was enforced without an intervening agent.

Now as in these two samples a full and perfect development was required, prior to their visible production, so now we, under "grace," having had our begeting (at conversion), by the word "thorough faith," must also be continued in the perfecting, "till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God (by which Christ engendered within us is nourished), unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ," so that we may be infants no longer. Eph. 4: 13. And then, after all the members of his body are thus perfected, they, too, shall be "born of the Spirit," and will be no longer flesh men, but spirit men; being entirely composed of spirit substance; for "that which is born of the flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit." Consequently, after the Spirit birth, every one thus produced will be governed by the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus, and, like the Spirit's voice, will be enabled to go and come at the volition of the spirit. But "the carnal mind (flesh, mind, or spirit, Rom. 8: 6. 7) is engendered by and born of the flesh; consequently is mortal, corruptible, and may die; is subject to the power of death through sin; hence "the spirit (human understanding) of man is the lamp of the Lord." Prov. 20: 27. "The lamp of the wicked shall be put out." 24: 20. "Yea, the light of the wicked shall be put out, and the spark of his fire shall not shine . . . his candle (lamp) shall be put out with him." Job 18: 5, 6. "To whom the mist of darkness is reserved forever." 2 Peter 2: 17. 1 Peter 4: 6, instead of teaching that "the dead are conscious, only proves that some time in life they had "the gospel preached to them." See a parallel in Rom. 10: 18. "Have they not heard? Yes, verily, their sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world."

I have, myself, preached the gospel to those "that are dead" "in trespasses and in sins," as also to those who are now "in the graves," some of whom in consequence of my having preached it, and their having obeyed it, and conformed themselves to its requirements, died in full faith and hope of a glorious resurrection from the dead; and I am not ashamed to say that the hope of persuading others also to do the same animates me still to preach.

1 Thess. 5: 10, finds its elucidation in 2 John 25: 14, 19; 1 Cor. 15: 22, 23; Acts 25: 19, exp. by Acts 3: 15; 13: 33; and Rev. 1: 18. For "tabernacle" (2 Pet. 1: 14), see my articles in Crisis of Feb. 9th, 16th, 23d, 1864. For Rev. 6: 9–11, see Crisis, Aug. 29d, 1865. "Lazarus" will be attended to soon, the Lord willing. The remaining objections have been answered in published articles, or will be in due time.

And now, in conclusion, a few words on "unconscious sleep." If Stephen did not fall into such a sleep, I am sure I have not yet learned what constitutes sleep. Sleep! what is it? Let us, examine it a little, and possibly somebody may be wiser. Webster says, "Sleep . . . is a suspension of the functions of the intellectual powers." Of sleep there are three stages; the first of which is termed reverie; the second, slumber, and the third, sleep. During the first, the person becomes entirely absorbed, taking no cognizance of events which are transpiring around him, and who, like the Scotch laborer, leaning upon the handle of his spade, and resting one foot upon its blade, thinks; as he replied when asked what he thought about while standing with head bent forward, in such contemplative mood, "Merely nothing, mister."

Passing into the second, some of the organs of the brain are in repose by suspended action, while others still remain awake, and the subject dreams, and if memory and desire with the motor nerves be yet awake, "sleep-walking" is the result; and if caution be asleep, the individual goes, for want of judgment, where he would not if all the functions were in exercise.

The third is that perfect state of entire suspension of all the voluntary organs of the brain, in which the patient never dreams, but has become completely unconscious to all external as well as internal actions. All the powers of the mind are now temporarily dead, and the man knows nothing, and never would unless aroused from sleep.

Now pass one step farther, and suspend the action of the heart and lungs, and you have DEATH, both of mind and body. But how will the total suspension of the involuntary organs of life wake up the voluntary, inasmuch as the latter are dependent upon the former, and cannot wake without them, though the former may act independent of the latter? Such is sleep, and it is written of Stephen, that when he had said this, "he fell asleep." And Job says, "Until the heavens be no more they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." Now bring all the thunder of orthodox artillery to bear upon Stephen, and wake him up if you can before that morning when Jesus will come to "wake him out of sleep. God says till then he shall not be waked. God says he is asleep. You say it is not an unconscious sleep. God says the dead know not any thing, that Stephen died, and if that is not an unconscious sleep, I confess I do not know what unconsciousness is.

Olena, O.

For the World's Crisis.

FUTURE LIFE.—No. 1.

"If a man die, shall he live again?"—Job 14: 14.

Reason and philosophy aside from Revelation cannot settle this question. Death was the penalty annexed to Adam's transgression. "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die."—Gen. 2: 17. Some have supposed that because Adam did not die within twenty-four hours after he transgressed, therefore natural death could not be here intended. But how long a period of time is with the Lord as one day? One thousand years. 2 Pet. 3: 8. Did Adam die within this period? "All the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years; and he died."—Gen. 5: 5. Was any part of Adam exempt from the sentence of death? "Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree of which I commanded thee saying, Thou shalt not eat of it, cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee, and thou shalt eat the herb of the field. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."—Gen. 3: 17–19.

What do we read here about the "immortal soul" of which we hear so much from the pulpit, but read nothing in the Bible? If any part of Adam was exempt from the sentence, surely this is the place to have spoken of it. Adam was placed under law; he broke that law, was arraigned as a criminal, tried, pleaded guilty, was condemned and sentenced; and in due time the sentence was executed upon him, without any promise that he should ever live again, so far as Divine Revelation has given us any knowledge. Adam suffered the full penalty of his transgression all the days of his life, while in sorrow he ate of the fruit of the ground in the sweat of his face; and the final penalty when he died.

Will he live again? I take it for granted the Scripture means what it says when it plainly declares that he died; therefore unless he shall live again, he can be no more rewarded or punished; for the Scriptures plainly declare that "the dead know not any thing,"—Eccl. 9: 5, and that which knows nothing can suffer nothing. Death was his final punishment, and, unless he shall live again, it is his everlasting punishment—not his everlasting misery; for of this we do not read in the Bible; but Adam's final punishment will continue so long as he remains dead. If he is ever raised to life again, then the punishment of death will end.

Leaving the question of his future life unsettled for the present, I pass on in the history of man to find the first promise in the Bible that man, though he die, shall live again; presuming that God did not sentence the whole man which he formed out of the dust of the ground to return thither, and then take a part of him to heaven, of which he had no promise even though he had fully obeyed the Divine law under which he was placed. Whether he shall live again must depend upon the Divine will; for he alone who created man out of the dust can re-form the same man out of the same dust.

There is no promise in the Bible of any future life to man previous to the calling of Abraham; and even to him the future life is not directly expressed, but is clearly inferred from the nature of the promise. The promise of an everlasting possession in the land of Canaan (Gen. 17: 8), taken in connection with the fact that Abraham received no inheritance in it (Acts 7: 5), necessarily implies a future life to Abraham, else God will fail to fulfill his promise. The better country, that is an heavenly, which the seed of Abraham now desire (Heb. 11: 16); Gal. 3: 29), is not a country in heaven; for no such inheritance was ever promised to Abraham and his seed. But it is a country in the kingdom of heaven, which embraces all kingdoms under the whole heaven. Dan. 7: 27. In this kingdom Abraham and all the prophets will appear (Luke 13: 28), and therefore they will live again, for they all died in the faith. Heb. 11: 13. In due time the workers of iniquity (Luke 13: 27) will also appear, else they could not see Abraham and all the prophets in the kingdom, and be themselves thrust out; and consequently they will live again.

Abraham must himself personally inherit the land promised to him of which he has as yet received no inheritance. When God promised him a seed innumerable as the stars of heaven (Gen. 15: 5), Abraham asked for a sign whereby he might know that he should inherit the land. Verse 8,—"Whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it?" He does not ask in reference to his seed, but to himself; and the boundaries of the land are given with the names of the people then inhabiting it. Verses 18–21. He was told that he should go to his fathers in peace; that he should be buried in a good old age (ver. 15), but no express promise that he should rise again. But the Lord said to Abraham, "I brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees to give thee this land (Canaan) to inherit it."—15: 7. Did his being buried there fulfill this promise? The earth is the common receptacle of all the dead, according to the sentence pronounced upon Adam (Gen. 3: 19); and all who have died have returned to it. Therefore when a man dies he is said to sleep with his fathers. "So David slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David."—1 Kings 2: 10. Abraham's fathers were not buried in Canaan, and therefore the promise that he should go to his fathers in peace simply means that he should enter into the state of the dead with them. When he died it is said, "He was gathered unto his people" (Gen. 25: 8); but none of his people had been buried in the cave of Machpelah; hence his people were the dead when he entered into that state in which they are said to be asleep. "David fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption."—Acts 13: 36. David did not ascend unto his fathers, but was "laid" unto them; "for David is not ascended into the heavens." Acts 2: 34. "He is both dead and buried." Verse 29. A man cannot be both dead and alive at the same time, neither can he be both mortal and immortal at the same time.

Job calls man "mortal" (4: 17); but the Scriptures nowhere call man immortal. Paul says, "This mortal must put on immortality." 1 Cor. 15: 53. This that dies must become deathless by a resurrection from the dead, after which the righteous can die no more. Luke 20: 35, 36. Paul, speaking of his suffering for Christ's sake says, "What advantageth it me, if the dead rise not? Let us eat and drink; for to-morrow we die."—1 Cor. 15: 32. The plain inference from this is, death is the end of man, if the dead rise not. "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable."—Ver. 19. This life, and the future life, must imply an intermediate death of that which is the subject of a future life.

The deep sleep which fell upon Abraham, and the horror of great darkness (Gen. 15: 12), symbolized death which intervened between the promise and the inheritance when he asked for a sign (verse 8); for so God explained it (verse 15). But I think it looks even beyond this to the death of the Jewish nation after the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, being then broken off for their unbelief (Rom. 11: 20), and the receiving of them will be "as life from the dead."—Verse 15. But Abraham had the promise that his seed should return to the land of Canaan in the fourth generation. Gen. 15: 16. Did the Holy Spirit overlook the long and dark period of Jewish history since they rejected Jesus Christ? No possession of the land of Canaan by the seed of Abraham has yet been an everlasting possession; and hence the fulfillment of the promise is in the future. The fourth generation, therefore, must be the fourth age of the world, reckoning from the creation. The first ends with the flood; the second with the Jewish dispensation; the third with the Christian dispensation; and the fourth will begin at the end of the present christian dispensation, when the seed of Abraham will return to the promised land.

When the time drew near for the deliverance of the seed of Abraham from Egyptian bondage, the Lord said to Moses concerning the patriarchs, "And I have also established my covenant with them to give them the land of Canaan, the land of their pilgrimage, wherein they were strangers."—Ex. 6: 4. Here God himself testifies that the promised inheritance was not given to them while they lived; therefore they must live again. But future life does not necessarily imply eternal life; this is the gift of God (Rom. 6: 23) to them "who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory, and honor, and immortality." Rom. 2: 7. Thanks be to God for the inestimable gift. J. C. ROGERS.

Grand Rapids, Mich.

For the World's Crisis.

STRIVE TO ENTER.

"Strive to enter in at the strait gate, for many I say unto you will seek to enter in and shall not be able."

We learn by God's word that because strait is the way, few there are that find it. The multitude go down the broad way to destruction. Many will come up, but not by the door, and will then find out their mistake. O what disappointment awaits them!

Dear reader, are you striving to know and do the will of our kind Father, who has done so much for us? Are you doing all you can for your fellow men? Do you shun all vain and evil speaking and idle talk in their presence? Do you set that example before the world that is worthy to be copied by them? Do you exhort and persuade as you have opportunity? God grant that you and I may be ready at all times for every good word and work, that we may faithfully warn sinners and rouse up sleepers, and exhort, and so much the more as we see the day approaching. There is much to be done, and but a short time left to work; for soon the night cometh. Are we all ready? God grant that we may be, and go in to the marriage supper of the Lamb. May we have on the wedding garment.

We see many, very many, that profess to be pilgrims here, but they are asleep, dead to their eternal interests, while they are fully alive to the world. They hold on to the world with a tight grasp, and will not let go. Not all that say, "Lord, Lord," will enter in, but it is those who do his will that will wear a crown of life in God's everlasting kingdom.

Dear reader, turn square round and leave the world with all its pleasures and allurements. Let us be pilgrims and strangers indeed. Let us love God and his word, and keep his laws. Jesus says, if we love him we shall keep his commandments. Let us be faithful in all things, and not shun to declare the whole counsel of God; take up every cross, do every duty, ever following the good Shepherd, who will lead us into green pastures, and beside still waters, and finally gather us into his blessed kingdom to go no more out forever. N. B. McMURPHY.

Gilmantown, N. H.

For the World's Crisis.

LINES.*

Dark is this earth, what a drearisome home,
Since I've heard of the joys in the bright world to come;
Tears faster flow as I think of the feast,
With its love far too pure among mortals to last.

O! she was my treasure, but now she is laid
In the cold dusty bed that for earth worms was made;
I mourn since mine eyes can behold her no more,
And the dreary earth seemeth more drear than before.

The old house at home has a shadow flung o'er it,
And my heart feels a throe that before never tore it;
Ah! the light of our household extinguished has been,
And in vain do we try to be happy within.

But for the sweet promise of life from the dead,
And the words of good cheer that the Savior hath said,
We never could smile,—thank heaven, we may,—
For death shall deliver his captives one day.

Then the dear ones that sleep shall awake to behold
Jerusalem shining resplendent as gold,
And to dwell 'mid the glory and rapture and song
With Jesus, to whom all the praise shall belong.

O mourner, rejoice! for the time draweth near
When the Lord in his glory and power shall appear;
Be ready, be ready with gladness to meet him,
And to join with our friends that shall rise then to greet him.

MARIA MATHEWS WEAVER.

Westfield, Mass.

* Dedicated to Sr. J. E. L., Westfield, Mass., on the death of her "sister Nellie."

UNANSWERED PRAYER.

It can hardly be questioned that multitudes of prayers, or addresses to God, are not answered. If those which are sometimes offered in even a cold prayer-meeting secured what is asked, such changes would be made in the church and in individuals, that all would be astonished, and many would cry out in their hearts, "Not so, Lord; we were mistaken; this is not what we intended to ask for." One, whose policy has been to put a stern hand of repression upon any religious effort or exercise which does not exactly suit his refined taste, prays, "Visit us with displays of thy power." An answer might cause a brother to shout, another to fall under this "power"; and, all unmindful of his prayer, our brother would say, as has been said often and in many places, "Put him out; we will not have any thing like that." One, from whose person are flying the colors of the world, whose hat is plumed and whose fingers are jeweled, prays, "Let us take thy word for our guide, and be conformed to thy will;" while she forgets that but yesterday her cheek was flushed with indignation because a friend contrasted her glittering attire and the apostle-drawn pictures of the christian woman. One, whose unwillingness to favor revival efforts has discouraged his pastor, prays, "Revive thy work, and may many sinners be converted to thee." Should he see in a week what he has petitioned for, he would be expressing surprise. One asks to be made a means of doing great good, while for the hundredth time a refusal has been made to speak to intimate friends about the salvation of their souls. One weaves into his prayer the lines of poetry,—

"E'en though it be a cross
That raiseth me,"

when nothing would be acceptable but what is pleasing. One wishes to be a "bright and shining light," while in fact, in conversation, he asserts that he cannot do any thing, that others have talents, that they are responsible, while he is excused. Some pray, "Make us like thyself," while their creed is, that God is holy, but that disciples cannot be made holy in this life. Many pray that they "may be used up in the Lord's service," while their hands are grasping wildly for wealth, honor, and pleasure; and but occasional thoughts are given to God. It is not surprising that these petitions are unanswered. The cause and cure suggest themselves.

Many prayers may almost be called thoughtless ones. From a whirl of business, a man rushes into a room adjoining his place of mental or physical exertions, to spend a moment in prayer. He hurries through a few sentences which he has used for many years, hardly stopping for deliberation. His thought is ever flying to the customer waiting at the counter, the farmer impatient for his grist, or the parishioner uneasy in the parlor. His soul has not time to settle from the atmosphere. The mind does not become absorbed in its communion with God as it should. Solemn thought is not sufficiently entertained. Meditation preparatory to prayer is not allowed. Pleading with God can hardly follow. Haste thwarts the design of the exercise. Contrasted with the true nature of prayer, and the experience of the devoted, these are thoughtless. The remedy here is obvious.

Some prayers are not supported by faith. If prayer is the body of the bird, faith is the wings. Without this, there can be no flying to the throne of God. Careful examination will often show that a certain request was made in prayer because those listening would expect it; or the acknowledgement will be made that really the heart did not believe that the object would be obtained, though it was thought that no harm could be done in praying for it. We would not talk thus aimlessly to any earthly friend in a position of power. Our language should be most careful when we address God. Our faith should be increased so as to sustain all that we ask, or our petitions should be accommodated to our ability to believe.

It can be only an affront to God to request that which we do not expect, and God knows that we do not. Our faith would be strengthened in believing for our own souls, by studying the plan of the gospel, by which Christ becomes our substitute and advocate; by grasping the promises of the word, and looking at them in the direction of the cross; by marking their fulness, and that they may be applied to any person and at any time. Our faith for others may rise with an intenser feeling for their salvation, and an understanding of the desire which God has for the prosperity of his people, and the salvation of souls. Let us cry, "Increase our faith." Let us be assured by the promise, "According to your faith be it unto you."

Many prayers are heartless. The soul cannot truly pray unless it feels its need. Moses could pray when the case was so imperative that he demanded success or the erasure of his name from God's book. David could pray, when only the cave was his protection. Elijah could pray, when all the future of the true church was resting upon the result of a single experiment. Peter could pray, when the yielding wave threatened instant death. The mother by the cradle of her dying child has power in prayer, for anxious love is pleading for its jewel. When the soul throws out its arms toward Christ, despairing of help from any other, it finds a welcoming Jesus. We are to expect answers only to "earnest prayer."

We have no right to offer to God many of the prayers that we do. Instead of asking God to answer these, it is our duty to go to work and answer them ourselves. We should not ask for power that we have. We are to employ all of our ability, and only when this fails are we to call upon God to grant additional strength. A wealthy christian should not keep praying to God to show some way by which a little debt on a church, or parsonage, or school, may be removed. He can answer his own prayer. God will not aid him in nursing his own stinginess. Some ministers who pray that their people may be aroused, would do well to throw aside their manuscripts and go from house to house warning and entreating, and thus they might answer their own prayers. Some members might obtain the strength for which they are longing, if they would use what they have in laboring earnestly for the salvation of souls, and in this way they, too, might answer their own prayers. God lifts up those who try to rise. He establishes those who attempt to stand. He strengthens the struggling, and gives victory to those who contend for the truth. The privilege of prayer should be more highly prized. Communion with the All-wise, All-holy, and All-loving is the greatest honor granted to man. We might secure a greater power in it, if we used it oftener and more thoroughly. Vastly more time should be given to this exercise than is usually allowed. Much more confidence may lawfully be employed. We should not expect that God will do for us what we can do for ourselves. If we thus pray "in the Holy Ghost," fewer prayers will be unanswered.—Earnest Christian.

PANTHEISM.

We have the words Theism, Atheism, and Pantheism, and they represent different ideas. The first is from Theos—God. The belief or acknowledgement of the existence of a God, as opposed to Atheism. In modern usage, theism differs from deism; the latter is applied to those who deny a verbal revelation, which theism does not.

Atheism (Gr. Atheos, of a Priv., and Theos, God.) The disbelief of the existence of a God, or supreme intelligent being.

Pantheism, (Gr. pan-all, and theos, God.) "The doctrine that the universe is God, or the system of theology in which it is maintained that the universe is the supreme God." The name Pantheist was given to the followers of Spinoza, a recreant Jew, of great logical powers, and distinguished in his day for his mathematical studies and philosophical speculations. He assumed in morals, his premises, as he did in Geometry, and reasoned from them, as if they were axiomatic and self-evident. He begins with a petitio principii, and reasons with great skill and force of logic from it. If you deny or disprove his premises, his conclusions fall to the ground. I think it may be regarded as an inviolable rule, that the clearer and the more exact the reasonings are upon a basis that is false, the greater is the error. Spinoza assumes as fundamental principles, that there are three elements of being, "Substance, Attributes, and Modes." With him, Substance, not in the abstract, but in the concrete; not any particular substance, but every thing, whether of mind or matter, that exists, or is known, or knowable, whether contingent or absolute, is substance, and this is being. This Substance—not the cause of it, but the thing itself, as a whole and in all its parts, is God. He says,—"I understand by God an absolutely infinite Being, that is to say, a substance constituted by an infinity of Attributes, each of which expresses an eternal and infinite essence." You are not to understand him as saying or believing that this God is a living, personal Being, distinct from Nature, and superior to it, and exercising supreme control over it; but simply, absolute Being, or self-existent Substance.—This is the God of Pantheism—the All-God.

According to this system, there cannot be but one substance. It is not a creation, for that would imply a Creator. It is not an effect, for that would demand a cause. It is not finite, for that would indicate something that once was not, and commenced its being. With him, then, nature is God, and God is nature. That cause and effect are both finite and infinite. One and many. "As ever the same, yet infinitely variable."

By an Attribute, he means a manifestation of substance, as belonging to its essence, and necessary to it. And by a Mode, that which exists in another thing, and is conceived by means of that thing.

The whole doctrine of "development," as found in the "Vestiges," and as advocated by Comte and others, is the off-shoot of this system, and it lies at the foundation of nearly all the modern schools of philosophy in Germany and France, and finds many advocates in England and America. It may be detected in some of the essayists of the Atlantic Monthly, and in much of the popular literature of the day; and certain religionists have introduced the poisonous vaccine in their theological systems.

The sole attributes of this substance are extension and thought; and these are discerned by an immediate "tuition of reason." This substance, or absolute Being, has no will, or if it has, it is merely intelligence or thought. No law, only as seen in the "developements," or arrangements of nature; and no moral properties, cognizable by the human faculties. Such is a concise outline of the modern system of Pantheism.

We thought that it was necessary to know something of this system, as you meet it at every step of your inquiries into the philosophies and theologies of the present day. Atheism is so gross and ferocious, that few are found to advocate it; but Pantheism has a show of argument, and opens a wide field for speculation and excursus. Poetry, works of fiction, art, philosophy and religion—all have used it, and made it speak to the eye, and the ear, and the imagination, in language both beautiful and gorgeous. Nature has been glorified to the exclusion of its Maker. Its laws have been detected and recorded, without any recognition of a Law-giver. Its separate effects have been traced up to their hidden causes, without any resultant belief of a CAUSE of all causes; and God—the self-existent, the Holy One, and the Just, has been displaced from the Universe he made by the unisubstancisme of the German and French philosophers, and the whole modern school of "developers." It applies the mere abstractions of the human mind to account for whatever is real and concrete in the universe; and founds its system on theorems in logic, as if they were the admitted truths of Geometry. The very things on which the system rests need proof, and it is arbitrarily denied. The edifice is built upon the sand. It is the old story of the earth standing on the back of the turtle, without any substantial thing for the turtle to stand on!

In theology, it is making Reason the sole arbiter and the supreme judge of faith. It denies the plenary inspiration of Scripture. It accounts for miracles on natural principles, or reduces them to matters unhistorical, and not to be believed. It makes Carlyle and Emerson, and the poets and inventors, prophets by the side of Moses, and Jesus, and the Apostles. It is the germ of all that is comprehended in Neology and Spiritualism. It is the legitimate fruit of this last and most hateful form of error, and leads all of its fully taught disciples into it. "It is the last effort of Satan to delude and deceive the unstable and the wilful into the abysses of falsehood and unbelief. It is the virus of that deadly Upas which infects the air, and destroys the life of all who forsake God and their own mercies in these "last times." It is rapidly bringing forth, and will finally consummate the Antichrist—the man of sin, destined to perdition. It is the last and greatest of all the bastard systems of metaphysics which have come into collision with verbal revelation. It has made many converts, and is daily increasing their number. It is found in the churches —in the pulpit—in the study—in the chairs of philosophy and of religion, in Europe and in America. Like the frogs of Egypt, it has gone into the palaces of kings, the chambers of deputies, the senate house and the school-room. It has polluted the sanctuary of home, and has even gone into the kneading-troughs of the kitchen. It is in every aspect and phase in which it presents itself, antagonistic to Christianity, and must be met. As one says: It is "that great lie called Pantheism, which has dragged German philosophy into an abyss. It is this doctrine, which will soon gather around it all those who do not know or who reject the truth. The time is come when every one who will not embrace the pure and simple christianity of the gospel will be obliged to acknowledge Spinoza as his chief." It is the Pantheistic philosophy boldly avowed, towards which the majority of those writers who have the talent of commanding public interest are gravitating at the present day. The ultimate struggle will not be between Christianity and Infidelity, as in the past, but between it and Pantheism, or, in other words, Spiritualism.—Christian Standard.

CHARITY.—Let my lips be sealed with charity, that they may open only for the good of my neighbor. Let my eyes be veiled with charity, that they may rest upon good, and that wickedness may be shut from my sight. Let charity close my ears to all calumnies and malicious slanders. Let charity keep my hands busy with profitable work, and my feet turned in the path towards those whom God hath given me power to benefit. May charity keep my heart from secret sin, from evil imaginings, from the tempting whispers of the evil one.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY: AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 558. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 13.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at 167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
I. G. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

PSALM ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-EIGHT.

I'll praise the Lord with my whole heart,
Before the gods I'll sing;
Towards thy holy temple Lord,
True worship I will bring.

For thou hast magnified thy word
Above thy glorious name;
And all thy loving kindness, Lord,
And truth, will I proclaim.

And in the day I on thee called,
Thou heardest my feeble cry;
Strength I received within my soul
From the great source on high.

The kings of earth shall bring their praise
And honor to thy throne;
When they shall hear thy gracious words,
Thy righteousness they'll own.

Yea, they shall sing in all thy ways,
While they rejoice in thee;
For great thy glory is, oh Lord,
And great thy majesty.

The Lord, he loves the lowly one,
Although so great and high;
But to the proud and lofty heart
He never draweth nigh.

Though trouble may surround my path,
The Lord will me revive;
My enemies thou wilt subdue,
And thy right hand shall save.

The Lord will perfect his own work,
He is a faithful friend;
Forsake me not, oh gracious Lord,
Thy mercies never end.

Farmington, N. H. MARTHA S. HORNE.

For the World's Crisis.

NATURE OF MAN.

BY O. W. STETSON.

(Concluded.)

But it is affirmed by philosophers and would-be-orthodox theologians, that because the Lord God breathed into man's nostrils the breath of life, therefore the first Adam and all his posterity became possessed of a spiritual nature; whereas, the apostle Paul, after having been "endowed with power from on high," even the promised Holy Spirit, and speaking by its divine authority, says, in 1 Cor. 15: 46, plainly, positively and definitely, that such was not the fact in the case. Dear brethren, hear him; be admonished by him, believe him: "Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural (animal); and afterward that (body or man) which is spiritual. The first man is of the earth, earthy; the second man (the spiritual one) is the Lord (Jesus Christ, or Jesus the anointed one) from heaven. As is the earthy, such (of the same kind or seed, in the resurrection) are they also that are earthy" (in the life that now is); and as is the heavenly (in the resurrection), such (of the same kind or seed) are they also that are heavenly (here). And as we have (by natural descent) borne the image of the earthy, we shall also (in the resurrection) bear the image of the heavenly;" i. e., of the spiritual, the Lord Jesus, who shall not only quicken—make alive—our mortal bodies, the first man, by his spirit, not by the spirit of the first Adam, but by his spirit, if so be the spirit of Christ dwell in us by faith, but also change our vile bodies, and fashion them like unto his own glorious body, when he shall come from heaven.—Phil. 3: 21; 1 Jno. 3: 2.

Now we have nowhere said that either the man or his spirit was "annihilated" at death. What I was combating was the unscriptural idea held by many, that the spirit of man was the man, and we wrote and it was plainly printed, as the word of God affirms, that when the dust (man made of the ground, Gen. 2: 7, and 1 Cor. 15: 44–47) returns to the dust (Gen. 3: 19), then the spirit returns to God who gave it (Eccl. 12: 7); to the man made of the dust. Gen. 2: 7. Now that spirit is not the spirit of "the elect," for Christ is their "life-giver" and their "life"; consequently, though they live (Adamically) in the flesh, they are not living the eternal life, the promised one which is to come (1 Tim. 4: 8; 1 Jno. 5: 11), but Christ lives in them. Gal. 2: 20. For they (by transgression of the law, Rom. 7: 9–14) "are crucified," are "dead," sold (to death) under or by sin, and their "life is hid with Christ in God"; and "when Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye (the now dead ones by the law) also appear with him in glory" (Col. 3: 3–4), being made alive, from the dead, "at his coming." 1 Cor. 15: 23. "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so (i. e., in the same way, do we believe that God will bring) them also that sleep in Jesus . . . with him," i. e., bring them to life again, by a resurrection from the dead, in the same way that he (God the Father, who dwelt in Christ) brought Jesus again from the dead, which was by a resurrection.

1 Thess. 4: 14, Heb. 13: 20, and 1 Pet. 1: 3, say it is through this resurrection of our Lord by his God and Father, that we are "begotten" "again unto a lively hope"; the original Greek stands thus: "Blessed the God and father of the Lord of us, Jesus anointed, that according to the great of himself mercy having begotten us to a hope of life through a resurrection of Jesus anointed, out of dead ones." You may thus perceive that it is not the hope that is living, but our hope is, that we shall "live again," and for this hope of life we have not the questionable deductions of a logic whose promise (that man is a duality or trinity) may be wrong, and whose conclusions, therefore, must of necessity be erroneous; but we have the mathematics, the problem solved, and the demonstration is, that Jesus died and rose again, and the corollary is, that those who sleep in Jesus will God also bring with him," —opposing science (so called falsely) to the contrary.

And this bringing us "again out from the dead ones," by a resurrection, is (or will be) the "elect's" birth of the spirit, the completion of that spirit's labor, which had its beginning in us, when "the word of God, the incorruptible seed," "begat" us to a hope of life eternal. "This day (of his resurrection) have I begotten thee," produced thee, brought thee forth, given birth to thee. Acts 13: 33; Ps. 2: 7. See also, Isa. 66: 7–9. "Before she (the earth mentioned ch. 65: 16, 17, travailed, she brought forth; before her pain came, she was delivered of a man CHILD" (Christ). (9: 6. "To us a child is born, a son is given.") 66: 8. "Who hath heard such a thing? who hath seen such things? Shall the earth be made to bring forth in one day? or shall a nation be born at once? for as soon as Zion (called 'the earth' in the line above) travailed, she brought forth her children. Shall I bring to the birth" (Christ, the first that should rise from the dead, Acts 26: 23, 1 Cor. 15: 23, "the first born of every creature" the head of the body, the church, Zion's children, "the first born from the dead," Col. 1: 15, 18;) shall I bring forth "Christ the first fruits" of them that sleep? "bring to the birth, and not cause to bring forth" (afterwards) those that are Christ's at his coming? "Shall I cause to bring forth (Christ the head) and shut the womb? (and not give birth to the body, the church, by resurrecting it also) saith thy God."

Thus the Lord God makes what men call the birth (conversion), the begetting of the Spirit, and gave to us a sample in the begeting of Isaac by the divine energy under the gospel, in the begeting of Jesus, when the same divine energy "overshadowed" the Virgin, with this difference; under the law, a medium of connection, "the letter of the law" was employed; but under the "favor," the agency of the Spirit or life-giving power direct, was enforced without an intervening agent.

Now as in these two samples a full and perfect development was required, prior to their visible production, so now we, under "grace," having had our begeting (at conversion), by the word "thorough faith," must also be continued in the perfecting, "till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God (by which Christ engendered within us is nourished), unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ," so that we may be infants no longer. Eph. 4: 13. And then, after all the members of his body are thus perfected, they, too, shall be "born of the Spirit," and will be no longer flesh men, but spirit men; being entirely composed of spirit substance; for "that which is born of the flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit." Consequently, after the Spirit birth, every one thus produced will be governed by the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus, and, like the Spirit's voice, will be enabled to go and come at the volition of the spirit. But "the carnal mind (flesh, mind, or spirit, Rom. 8: 6. 7) is engendered by and born of the flesh; consequently is mortal, corruptible, and may die; is subject to the power of death through sin; hence "the spirit (human understanding) of man is the lamp of the Lord." Prov. 20: 27. "The lamp of the wicked shall be put out." 24: 20. "Yea, the light of the wicked shall be put out, and the spark of his fire shall not shine . . . his candle (lamp) shall be put out with him." Job 18: 5, 6. "To whom the mist of darkness is reserved forever." 2 Peter 2: 17. 1 Peter 4: 6, instead of teaching that "the dead are conscious, only proves that some time in life they had "the gospel preached to them." See a parallel in Rom. 10: 18. "Have they not heard? Yes, verily, their sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world."

I have, myself, preached the gospel to those "that are dead" "in trespasses and in sins," as also to those who are now "in the graves," some of whom in consequence of my having preached it, and their having obeyed it, and conformed themselves to its requirements, died in full faith and hope of a glorious resurrection from the dead; and I am not ashamed to say that the hope of persuading others also to do the same animates me still to preach.

1 Thess. 5: 10, finds its elucidation in 2 John 25: 14, 19; 1 Cor. 15: 22, 23; Acts 25: 19, exp. by Acts 3: 15; 13: 33; and Rev. 1: 18. For "tabernacle" (2 Pet. 1: 14), see my articles in Crisis of Feb. 9th, 16th, 23d, 1864. For Rev. 6: 9–11, see Crisis, Aug. 22d, 1865. "Lazarus" will be attended to soon, the Lord willing. The remaining objections have been answered in published articles, or will be in due time.

And now, in conclusion, a few words on "unconscious sleep." If Stephen did not fall into such a sleep, I am sure I have not yet learned what constitutes sleep. Sleep! what is it? Let us examine it a little, and possibly somebody may be wiser. Webster says, "Sleep . . . is a suspension of the functions of the intellectual powers." Of sleep there are three stages; the first of which is termed reveris; the second, slumber, and the third, sleep. During the first, the person becomes entirely absorbed, taking no cognizance of events which are transpiring around him, and who, like the Scotch laborer, leaning upon the handle of his spade, and resting one foot upon its blade, thinks, as he replied when asked what he thought about while standing with head bent forward, in such contemplative mood, "Maistly nothing, minister."

Passing into the second, some of the organs of the brain are in repose by suspended action, while others still remain awake, and the subject dreams, and if memory and desire with the motor nerves be yet awake, "sleep-walking" is the result; and if caution be asleep, the individual goes, for want of judgment, where he would not if all the functions were in exercise.

The third is that perfect state of entire suspension of all the voluntary organs of the brain, in which the patient never dreams, but has become completely unconscious to all external as well as internal actions. All the powers of the mind are now temporarily dead, and the man knows nothing, and never would unless aroused from sleep.

Now pass one step farther, and suspend the action of the heart and lungs, and you have DEATH, both of mind and body. But how will the total suspension of the involuntary organs of life wake up the voluntary, inasmuch as the latter are dependent upon the former, and cannot wake without them, though the former may act independent of the latter? Such is sleep, and it is written of Stephen, that when he had said this, "he fell asleep." And Job says, "Until the heavens be no more they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." Now bring all the thunder of orthodox artillery to bear upon Stephen, and wake him up if you can before that morning when Jesus will come to "wake him out of sleep. God says till then he shall not be waked. God says he is asleep. You say it is not an unconscious sleep. God says the dead know not any thing, that Stephen died, and if that is not an unconscious sleep, I confess I do not know what unconsciousness is.

Olena, O.

For the World's Crisis.

FUTURE LIFE.—No. 1.

"If a man die, shall he live again?"—Job 14: 14.

Reason and philosophy aside from Revelation cannot settle this question. Death was the penalty annexed to Adam's transgression. "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die."—Gen. 2: 17. Some have supposed that because Adam did not die within twenty-four hours after he transgressed, therefore natural death could not be here intended. But how long a period of time is with the Lord as one day? One thousand years. 2 Pet. 3: 8. Did Adam die within this period? "All the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years; and he died."—Gen. 5: 5. Was any part of Adam exempt from the sentence of death? "Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree of which I commanded thee saying, Thou shalt not eat of it, cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee, and thou shalt eat the herb of the field. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."—Gen. 3: 17–19.

What do we read here about the "immortal soul" of which we hear so much from the pulpit, but read nothing in the Bible? If any part of Adam was exempt from the sentence, surely this is the place to have spoken of it. Adam was placed under law; he broke that law, was arraigned as a criminal, tried, pleaded guilty, was condemned and sentenced; and in due time the sentence was executed upon him, without any promise that he should ever live again, so far as Divine Revelation has given us any knowledge. Adam suffered the full penalty of his transgression all the days of his life, while in sorrow he ate of the fruit of the ground in the sweat of his face; and the final penalty when he died.

Will he live again? I take it for granted the Scripture means what it says when it plainly declares that he died; therefore unless he shall live again, he can be no more rewarded or punished; for the Scriptures plainly declare that "the dead know not any thing,"—Eccl. 9: 5, and that which knows nothing can suffer nothing. Death was his final punishment, and, unless he shall live again, it is his everlasting punishment—not his everlasting misery; for of this we do not read in the Bible; but Adam's final punishment will continue so long as he remains dead. If he is ever raised to life again, then the punishment of death will end.

Leaving the question of his future life unsettled for the present, I pass on in the history of man to find the first promise in the Bible that man, though he die, shall live again; presuming that God did not sentence the whole man which he formed out of the dust of the ground to return thither, and then take a part of him to heaven, of which he had no promise even though he had fully obeyed the Divine law under which he was placed. Whether he shall live again must depend upon the Divine will; for he alone who created man out of the dust can re-form the same man out of the same dust.

There is no promise in the Bible of any future life to man previous to the calling of Abraham; and even to him the future life is not directly expressed, but is clearly inferred from the nature of the promise. The promise of an everlasting possession in the land of Canaan (Gen. 17: 8), taken in connection with the fact that Abraham received no inheritance in it (Acts 7: 5), necessarily implies a future life to Abraham, else God will fail to fulfill his promise. The better country, that is an heavenly, which the seed of Abraham now desire (Heb. 11: 16); Gal. 3: 29), is not a country in heaven; for no such inheritance was ever promised to Abraham and his seed. But it is a country in the kingdom of heaven, which embraces all kingdoms under the whole heaven. Dan. 7: 27. In this kingdom Abraham and all the prophets will appear (Luke 13: 28), and therefore they will live again, for they all died in the faith. Heb. 11: 13. In due time the workers of iniquity (Luke 13: 27) will also appear, else they could not see Abraham and all the prophets in the kingdom, and be themselves thrust out; and consequently they will live again.

Abraham must himself personally inherit the land promised to him of which he has as yet received no inheritance. When God promised him a seed innumerable as the stars of heaven (Gen. 15: 5), Abraham asked for a sign whereby he might know that he should inherit the land. Verse 8,—"Whereby shall I know that I shall inherit it?" He does not ask in reference to his seed, but to himself; and the boundaries of the land are given with the names of the people then inhabiting it. Verses 18–21. He was told that he should go to his fathers in peace; that he should be buried in a good old age (ver. 15), but no express promise that he should rise again. But the Lord said to Abraham, "I brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees to give thee this land (Canaan) to inherit it."—15: 7. Did his being buried there fulfill this promise? The earth is the common receptacle of all the dead, according to the sentence pronounced upon Adam (Gen. 3: 19); and all who have died have returned to it. Therefore when a man dies he is said to sleep with his fathers. "So David slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David."—1 Kings 2: 10. Abraham's fathers were not buried in Canaan, and therefore the promise that he should go to his fathers in peace simply means that he should enter into the state of the dead with them. When he died it is said, "He was gathered unto his people" (Gen. 25: 8); but none of his people had been buried in the cave of Machpelah; hence his people were the dead when he entered into that state in which they are said to be asleep. "David fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption."—Acts 13: 36. David did not ascend unto his fathers, but was "laid" unto them; "for David is not ascended into the heavens." Acts 2: 34. "He is both dead and buried." Verse 29. A man cannot be both dead and alive at the same time, neither can he be both mortal and immortal at the same time.

Job calls man "mortal" (4: 17); but the Scriptures nowhere call man immortal. Paul says, "This mortal must put on immortality." 1 Cor. 15: 53. This that dies must become deathless by a resurrection from the dead, after which the righteous can die no more. Luke 20: 35, 36. Paul, speaking of his suffering for Christ's sake says, "What advantageth it me, if the dead rise not? Let us eat and drink; for to-morrow we die."—1 Cor. 15: 32. The plain inference from this is, death is the end of man, if the dead rise not. "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable."—Ver. 19. This life, and the future life, must imply an intermediate death of that which is the subject of a future life.

The deep sleep which fell upon Abraham, and the horror of great darkness (Gen. 15: 12), symbolized death which intervened between the promise and the inheritance when he asked for a sign (verse 8); for so God explained it (verse 15). But I think it looks even beyond this to the death of the Jewish nation after the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, being then broken off for their unbelief (Rom. 11: 20), and the receiving of them will be "as life from the dead."—Verse 15. But Abraham had the promise that his seed should return to the land of Canaan in the fourth generation. Gen. 15: 16. Did the Holy Spirit overlook the long and dark period of Jewish history since they rejected Jesus Christ? No possession of the land of Canaan by the seed of Abraham has yet been an everlasting possession; and hence the fulfillment of the promise is in the future. The fourth generation, therefore, must be the fourth age of the world, reckoning from the creation. The first ends with the flood; the second with the Jewish dispensation; the third with the Christian dispensation; and the fourth will begin at the end of the present christian dispensation, when the seed of Abraham will return to the promised land.

When the time drew near for the deliverance of the seed of Abraham from Egyptian bondage, the Lord said to Moses concerning the patriarchs, "And I have also established my covenant with them to give them the land of Canaan, the land of their pilgrimage, wherein they were strangers."—Ex. 6: 4. Here God himself testifies that the promised inheritance was not given to them while they lived; therefore they must live again. But future life does not necessarily imply eternal life; this is the gift of God (Rom. 6: 23) to them "who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory, and honor, and immortality." Rom. 2: 7. Thanks be to God for the inestimable gift. J. C. ROGERS.

Grand Rapids, Mich.

For the World's Crisis.

STRIVE TO ENTER.

"Strive to enter in at the strait gate, for many I say unto you will seek to enter in and shall not be able."

We learn by God's word that because strait is the way, few there are that find it. The multitude go down the broad way to destruction. Many will come up, but not by the door, and will then find out their mistake. O what disappointment awaits them!

Dear reader, are you striving to know and do the will of our kind Father, who has done so much for us? Are you doing all you can for your fellow men? Do you shun all vain and evil speaking and idle talk in their presence? Do you set that example before the world that is worthy to be copied by them? Do you exhort and persuade as you have opportunity? God grant that you and I may be ready at all times for every good word and work, that we may faithfully warn sinners and rouse up sleepers, and exhort, and so much the more as we see the day approaching. There is much to be done, and but a short time left to work; for soon the night cometh. Are we all ready? God grant that we may be, and go in to the marriage supper of the Lamb. May we have on the wedding garment.

We see many, very many, that profess to be pilgrims here, but they are asleep, dead to their eternal interests, while they are fully alive to the world. They hold on to the world with a tight grasp, and will not let go. Not all that say, "Lord, Lord," will enter in, but it is those who do his will that will wear a crown of life in God's everlasting kingdom.

Dear reader, turn square round and leave the world with all its pleasures and allurements. Let us be pilgrims and strangers indeed. Let us love God and his word, and keep his laws. Jesus says, if we love him we shall keep his commandments. Let us be faithful in all things, and not shun to declare the whole counsel of God; take up every cross, do every duty, ever following the good Shepherd, who will lead us into green pastures, and beside still waters, and finally gather us into his blessed kingdom to go no more out forever. N. B. McMURPHY.

Gilmantown, N. H.

For the World's Crisis.

LINES.*

Dark is this earth, what a drearisome home,
Since I've heard of the joys in the bright world to come;
Tears faster flow as I think of the loved,
With its love far too pure among mortals to last.

O! she was my treasure, but now she is laid
In the cold dusty bed that for earth worms was made;
I mourn since mine eyes can behold her no more,
And the dreary earth seemeth more drear than before.

The old house at home has a shadow flung o'er it,
And my heart feels a throe that before never tore it;
Ah! the light of our household extinguished has been,
And in vain do we try to be happy within.

But for the sweet promise of life from the dead,
And the words of good cheer that the Savior hath said,
We never could smile,—thank heaven, we may,—
For death shall deliver his captives one day.

Then the dear ones that sleep shall awake to behold
Jerusalem shining resplendent as gold,
And to dwell 'mid the glory and rapture and song
With Jesus, to whom all the praise shall belong.

O mourner, rejoice! for the time draweth near
When the Lord in his glory and power shall appear;
Be ready, be ready with gladness to meet him,
And to join with our friends that shall rise then to greet him.

Westfield, Mass. MARIA MATHEWS WEAVER.

* Dedicated to Sr. J. E. L., Westfield, Mass., on the death of her "sister Nellie."

UNANSWERED PRAYER.

It can hardly be questioned that multitudes of prayers, or addresses to God, are not answered. If those which are sometimes offered in even a cold prayer-meeting secured what is asked, such changes would be made in the church and in individuals, that all would be astonished, and many would cry out in their hearts, "Not so, Lord; we were mistaken; this is not what we intended to ask for." One, whose policy has been to put a stern hand of repression upon any religious effort or exercise which does not exactly suit his refined taste, prays, "Visit us with displays of thy power." An answer might cause a brother to shout, another to fall under this "power"; and, all unmindful of his prayer, our brother would say, as has been said often and in many places, "Put him out; we will not have any thing like that." One, from whose person are flying the colors of the world, whose hat is plumed and whose fingers are jeweled, prays, "Let us take thy word for our guide, and be conformed to thy will;" while she forgets that but yesterday her cheek was flushed with indignation because a friend contrasted her glittering attire and the apostle-drawn pictures of the christian woman. One, whose unwillingness to favor revival efforts has discouraged his pastor, prays, "Revive thy work, and may many sinners be converted to thee." Should he see in a week what he has petitioned for, he would be expressing surprise. One asks to be made a means of doing great good, while for the hundredth time a refusal has been made to speak to intimate friends about the salvation of their souls. One weaves into his prayer the lines of poetry,—

"E'en though it be a cross
That raiseth me,"

when nothing would be acceptable but what is pleasing. One wishes to be a "bright and shining light," while in fact, in conversation, he asserts that he cannot do any thing, that others have talents, that they are responsible, while he is excused. Some pray, "Make us like thyself," while their creed is, that God is holy, but that disciples cannot be made holy in this life. Many pray that they "may be used up in the Lord's service," while their hands are grasping wildly for wealth, honor, and pleasure; and but occasional thoughts are given to God. It is not surprising that these petitions are unanswered. The cause and cure suggest themselves.

Many prayers may almost be called thoughtless ones. From a whirl of business, a man rushes into a room adjoining his place of mental or physical exertions, to spend a moment in prayer. He hurries through a few sentences which he has used for many years, hardly stopping for deliberation. His thought is ever flying to the customer waiting at the counter, the farmer impatient for his grist, or the parishioner uneasy in the parlor. His soul has not time to settle from the atmosphere. The mind does not become absorbed in its communion with God as it should. Solemn thought is not sufficiently entertained. Meditation preparatory to prayer is not allowed. Pleading with God can hardly follow. Haste thwarts the design of the exercise. Contrasted with the true nature of prayer, and the experience of the devoted, these are thoughtless. The remedy here is obvious.

Some prayers are not supported by faith. If prayer is the body of the bird, faith is the wings. Without this, there can be no flying to the throne of God. Careful examination will often show that a certain request was made in prayer because those listening would expect it; or the acknowledgement will be made that really the heart did not believe that the object would be obtained, though it was thought that no harm could be done in praying for it. We would not talk thus carelessly to any earthly friend in a position of power. Our language should be most careful when we address God. Our faith should be increased so as to sustain all that we ask, or our petitions should be accommodated to our ability to believe.

It can be only an affront to God to request that which we do not expect, and God knows that we do not. Our faith would be strengthened in believing for our own souls, by studying the plan of the gospel, by which Christ becomes our substitute and advocate; by grasping the promises of the word, and looking at them in the direction of the cross; by marking their fulness, and that they may be applied to any person and at any time. Our faith for others may rise with an intenser feeling for their salvation, and an understanding of the desire which God has for the prosperity of his people, and the salvation of souls. Let us cry, "Increase our faith." Let us be assured by the promise, "According to your faith be it unto you."

Many prayers are heartless. The soul cannot truly pray unless it feels its need. Moses could pray when the case was so imperative that he demanded success or the erasure of his name from God's book. David could pray, when only the cave was his protection. Elijah could pray, when all the future of the true church was resting upon the result of a single experiment. Peter could pray, when the yielding wave threatened instant death. The mother by the cradle of her dying child has power in prayer, for anxious love is pleading for its jewel. When the soul throws out its arms toward Christ, despairing of help from any other, it finds a welcoming Jesus. We are to expect answers only to "earnest prayer."

We have no right to offer to God many of the prayers that we do. Instead of asking God to answer these, it is our duty to go to work and answer them ourselves. We should not ask for power that we have. We are to employ all of our ability, and only when this fails are we to call upon God to grant additional strength. A wealthy christian should not keep praying to God to show some way by which a little debt on a church, or parsonage, or school, may be removed. He can answer his own prayer. God will not aid him in nursing his own stinginess. Some ministers who pray that their people may be aroused, would do well to throw aside their manuscripts and go from house to house warning and entreating, and thus they might answer their own prayers. Some members might obtain the strength for which they are longing, if they would use what they have in laboring earnestly for the salvation of souls, and in this way they, too, might answer their own prayers. God lifts up those who try to rise. He establishes those who attempt to stand. He strengthens the struggling, and gives victory to those who contend for the truth. The privilege of prayer should be more highly prized. Communion with the All-wise, All-holy, and All-loving is the greatest honor granted to man. We might secure a greater power in it, if we used it oftener and more thoroughly. Vastly more time should be given to this exercise than is usually allowed. Much more confidence may lawfully be employed. We should not expect that God will do for us what we can do for ourselves. If we thus pray "in the Holy Ghost," fewer prayers will be unanswered.—Earnest Christian.

PANTHEISM.

We have the words Theism, Atheism, and Pantheism, and they represent different ideas. The first is from Theos—God. The belief or acknowledgement of the existence of a God, as opposed to Atheism. In modern usage, theism differs from deism; the latter is applied to those who deny a verbal revelation, which theism does not.

Atheism (Gr. Atheos, of a Priv., and Theos, God.) The disbelief of the existence of a God, or supreme intelligent being.

Pantheism, (Gr. pan-all, and theos, God.) "The docrine that the universe is God, or the system of theology in which it is maintained that the universe is the supreme God." The name Pantheist was given to the followers of Spinoza, a recreant Jew, of great logical powers, and distinguished in his day for his mathematical studies and philosophical speculations. He assumed in morals, his premises, as he did in Geometry, and reasoned from them, as if they were axiomatic and self-evident. He begins with a petitio principii, and reasons with great skill and force of logic from it. If you deny or disprove his premises, his conclusions fall to the ground. I think it may be regarded as an inviolable rule, that the clearer and the more exact the reasonings are upon a basis that is false, the greater is the error. Spinoza assumes as fundamental principles, that there are three elements of being, "Substance, Attributes, and Modes." With him, Substance, not in the abstract, but in the concrete; not any particular substance, but every thing, whether of mind or matter, that exists, or is known, or knowable, whether contingent or absolute, is substance, and this is being. This Substance—not the cause of it, but the thing itself, as a whole and in all its parts, is God. He says,—"I understand by God an absolutely infinite Being, that is to say, a substance constituted by an infinity of Attributes, each of which expresses an eternal and infinite essence." You are not to understand him as saying or believing that this God is a living, personal Being, distinct from Nature, and superior to it, and exercising supreme control over it; but simply, absolute Being, or self-existent Substance.—This is the God of Pantheism—the All-God.

According to this system, there cannot be but one substance. It is not a creation, for that would imply a Creator. It is not an effect, for that would demand a cause. It is not finite, for that would indicate something that once was not, and commenced its being. With him, then, nature is God, and God is nature. That cause and effect are both finite and infinite. One and many. "As ever the same, yet infinitely variable."

By an Attribute, he means a manifestation of substance, as belonging to its essence, and necessary to it. And by a Mode, that which exists in another thing, and is conceived by means of that thing.

The whole doctrine of "development," as found in the "Vestiges," and as advocated by Comte and others, is the off-shoot of this system, and it lies at the foundation of nearly all the modern schools of philosophy in Germany and France, and finds many advocates in England and America. It may be detected in some of the essayists of the Atlantic Monthly, and in much of the popular literature of the day; and certain religionists have introduced the poisonous vaccine in their theological systems.

The sole attributes of this substance are extension and thought; and these are discerned by an immediate "tuition of reason." This substance, or absolute Being, has no will, or if it has, it is merely intelligence or thought. No law, only as seen in the "developments," or arrangements of nature; and no moral properties, cognizable by the human faculties. Such is a concise outline of the modern system of Pantheism.

We thought that it was necessary to know something of this system, as you meet it at every step of your inquiries into the philosophies and theologies of the present day. Atheism is so gross and ferocious, that few are found to advocate it; but Pantheism has a show of argument, and opens a wide field for speculation and excursus. Poetry, works of fiction, art, philosophy and religion—all have used it, and made it speak to the eye, and the ear, and the imagination, in language both beautiful and gorgeous. Nature has been glorified to the exclusion of its Maker. Its laws have been detected and recorded, without any recognition of a Law-giver. Its separate effects have been traced up to their hidden causes, without any resultant belief of a CAUSE of all causes; and God—the self-existent, the Holy One, and the Just, has been displaced from the Universe he made by the unisubstancisme of the German and French philosophers, and the whole modern school of "developers." It applies the mere abstractions of the human mind to account for whatever is real and concrete in theuniverse; and founds its system on theorems in logic, as if they were the admitted truths of Geometry. The very things on which the system rests need proof, and it is arbitrarily denied. The edifice is built upon the sand. It is the old story of the earth standing on the back of the turtle, without any substantial thing for the turtle to stand on!

In theology, it is making Reason the sole arbiter and the supreme judge of faith. It denies the plenary inspiration of Scripture. It accounts for miracles on natural principles, or reduces them to matters unhistorical, and not to be believed. It makes Carlyle and Emerson, and the poets and inventors, prophets by the side of Moses, and Jesus, and the Apostles. It is the germ of all that is comprehended in Neology and Spiritualism. It is the legitimate fruit of this last and most hateful form of error, and leads all of its fully taught disciples into it. It is the last effort of Satan to delude and deceive the unstable and the wilful into the abysses of falsehood and unbelief. It is the virus of that deadly Upas which infects the air, and destroys the life of all who forsake God and their own mercies in these "last times." It is rapidly bringing forth, and will finally consummate the Antichrist—the man of sin, destined to perdition. It is the last and greatest of all the bastard systems of metaphysics which have come into collision with verbal revelation. It has made many converts, and is daily increasing their number. It is found in the churches —in the pulpit—in the study—in the chairs of philosophy and of religion, in Europe and in America. Like the frogs of Egypt, it has gone into the palaces of kings, the chambers of deputies, the senate house and the school-room. It has polluted the sanctuary of home, and has even gone into the kneading-troughs of the kitchen. It is in every aspect and phase in which it presents itself, antagonistic to Christianity, and must be met. As one says: It is "that great lie called Pantheism, which has dragged German philosophy into an abyss. It is this doctrine, which will soon gather around it all those who do not know or who reject the truth. The time is come when every one who will not embrace the pure and simple christianity of the gospel will be obliged to acknowledge Spinoza as his chief." It is the Pantheistic philosophy boldly avowed, towards which the majority of those writers who have the talent of commanding public interest are gravitating at the present day. The ultimate struggle will not be between Christianity and Infidelity, as in the past, but between it and Pantheism, or, in other words, Spiritualism.—Christian Standard.

CHARITY.—Let my lips be sealed with charity, that they may open only for the good of my neighbor. Let my eyes be veiled with charity, that they may rest upon good, and that wickedness may be shut from my sight. Let charity close my ears to all unkind and malicious slanders. Let charity keep my hands busy with profitable work, and my feet turned in the path towards those whom God hath given me power to benefit. May charity keep my heart from secret sin, from evil imaginings, from the tempting whispers of the evil one.

For the World's Crisis.

THE HANDWRITING IS UPON THE WALL.

Do the rulers of the nations see this writing? Are they terrified? Are they inquiring into the meaning of those signs which write on the wall of every palace in the universe or world. Thy kingdom and glory is departed? Yes, whether they be Republicans or Monarchies, they must flee and fall before Him who is coming, whose right it is to possess the kingdom.

There are many who, like Daniel of old, are able to interpret the handwriting on the wall; but there is not one of the rulers of this time like Belshazzar, seeking an interpretation of God's messengers. No, and they do not want to know the will of God that they might do it. On the contrary they are seeking to establish their tottering power by the wisdom of man. To use the words of Birks: "There is a searching trial at hand an hour of sorrow to the Gentile kingdoms. The mighty Image must soon be smitten on its feet of iron and clay, and broken to pieces. The last of the four empires must, at length, be destroyed, and given to the burning flame of divine displeasure. The sanctuary of God must be cleansed in these last days, while judgment is executed on those who have profaned it. The determined consummation must come at last on the desolators of the land of Israel. In short, to sum up the whole in the words of this last vision, 'there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation to that same time, and at that time the people of God shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book. How many popular delusions would this one truth, if simply and heartily believed, scatter to the winds! How it would frown into silence the empty and frivolous laugh of self-conceited politicians, who dream of clear skies and smooth waters, when rocks and breakers are around them, and the tempest is gathering over their heads. The boasted triumph of liberal opinions, whither, alas! does it lead? Useful knowledge, popular freedom, the growth of science, the activity of trade,—what are they all, without the national fear of God, but delusion and folly? Surely, if it were felt that such dangers were before us, statesmen would no longer account it untenable folly to tremble in spirit at the Divine threatenings against idolatrous or apostate nations. They would rather humble themselves under the mighty hand of God. However deep their wisdom, or large their experience, they would feel that a wisdom far higher than theirs was needful to guide the course of a nation aright in times which are at hand."

It is certain that the day of judgment is at hand; many show it by the running out of the dates given in the Bible; and by the close of the six thousand years from the Creation. It is also shown that the Millennium shall be ushered in at the end of the thousand years by the personal coming of the King of kings. Again, it is demonstrated to a mathematical certainty, by Geo. S. Faber, Frere, Verner, Purdon, Scott, Phillips, Shimeal, Baxter, etc., that Napoleon III. is the last head of the fourth empire, namely, the Roman empire. Understanding this exposition, we see clearly that Napoleon is the "son of perdition" whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming. And because such is the case, we have wars and rumors of wars; and great earthquakes, and famines, and pestilences in divers places; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth"; for the powers of heaven shall be shaken." We are commanded when we see these things beginning to come to pass, to lift up our heads; for our redemption draws nigh.

The hope of the speedy coming of the Lord is a sanctifying as well as a comforting hope; this hope "stamps everything around us with death and vanity." Blessed are those that love the appearing of Jesus. The apostle in speaking of this says:—"Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." The majority of the professing christians of this day do not show any sympathy for those views. However, we hope to see a better state of things ere long; to see the foolish as well as the wise virgins looking for the return of the Bridegroom.

I have had much encouragement in my late lecturing tours north and east of Toronto. The Presbyterians and Methodists gave me the use of their churches; and in almost every place I had large and attentive congregations.

Yours in the Lord Jesus,

GEORGE REYNOLDS.

Toronto, C. W., Apr. 21st, 1866.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

DR. J. C. JACKSON, Physician-in-Chief at "Our Home," Dansville, N. Y., writes:—

"There is no body of christians, with whom I am familiar, to whom I am more closely related by personal fellowship, than I am with the body to which you belong. So many of them have been in my house, first and last, and have shown such devoted love to their Lord and Master, Jesus Christ, and have proved their love by their works, as to make me feel that you are greatly in advance of the evangelical denominations at large. Whether it be true that our Savior is to come soon or later, should not make any difference with us in our love for him, nor in our devotion to the great cause to which he is devoting his aims and his glorious powers."

BRO. E. BELLOWS, Ct., writes:—"A few devoted brethren in Mantonville have maintained a regular meeting for some years; but owing to the controversy on different points of doctrine frequently introduced, the people in the vicinity have not been interested to attend. Such a course pursued among brethren always tends to drive people away. Many good praying ones often unintentionally injure the cause very much in this way.

My first meetings were held in a private house, with only those few brethren present. The Baptist house was obtained for one evening. The people came out to hear. I gave a discourse on the character and life of our Savior. It took effect. The people saw that I had more than one string to the instrument. Subsequently, our meetings were held in private houses, with an increase of numbers and interest. A number of backsliders and sinners decided to serve the Lord. Last evening was a solemn time. Conviction rested on some who, I hope, will soon take a stand for the Lord. My prayer is that these meetings may increase in numbers and interest, and abound in love towards one another till Jesus comes. My convictions are strong that the end is not far off,—probably within the next two years."

☞ A man who prays much in private, is generally glad to join with his fellow christians in worshiping God in public.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, June 13, 1866.

☞ Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.00 a year; but if delayed six months beyond the time of payment, the price is $2.50 a year. Thus 50 cents a year is saved by paying in advance.

☞ Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank-checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

SCATTER TRACTS.

We would urge upon all our readers the importance of scattering tracts, if they wish to do much good with small means. As we have often said, we think there is no other way of accomplishing so much with a little money as by putting it into tracts to lend and give to our neighbors. And if a little money thus applied will do more towards spreading light and truth, than in any other way; it follows, by the same rule, that large sums will accomplish a proportionate amount of good. While the missionary work is important, we think the tract enterprise should have the first place as an object of benevolence.

We assure our readers that the tracts already sent out are doing a great work; but let us double our efforts in this direction. Our opportunities for doing good will soon be ended. Let it be said of us at last, that we have done what we could. No one will feel sorry because he did too much; but how many will wish they had done more for the Lord, who has done so much for them.

We feel anxious to keep the tracts flying in all directions, that those in darkness may see the light, and find the way to everlasting life. Help us in this great work.

CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT.

We are glad to receive original contributions for the children. As there are many who do not have the Young Pilgrim, it is important that good reading be furnished in the Crisis for the younger members of the family. We wish our readers would interest themselves more in providing us with choice articles for the children. We are anxious to make "our paper" the best we possibly can in every respect. Send us the gems that you may find in other papers, as well as your own rich thoughts.

VISIT TO THE INDIANS.

May 31st, we made our tenth annual visit to the Shinnecock tribe of Indians, in Southampton, on Long Island. Our trip was a pleasant one. We left Boston, on the Shore Line, at 11 o'clock A. M., arrived at New London, Ct., a distance of one hundred seven miles, about 2. 45 P. M., and took the pleasant Steamer "Sunshine," Capt. Bates, at 3 P. M., for Sag Harbor, on Long Island, about thirty miles from New London, where we arrived about 6 P. M. At the Harbor we were met by Bro. Milton Lee, son of Eld. Jas. Lee, the Indian preacher, and conveyed to the Indian settlement, a distance of twelve miles, arriving in season to enjoy their prayer meeting in their neat little chapel. As usual, we met a hearty greeting from the native sons and daughters of the American soil. Theirs is genuine hospitality, without the sickening artificial parade that is often met in what is called "popular society." The latter is much like sitting at a table richly furnished with costly dishes, and many servants to wait on the guests, but the food is not fit to eat. We have a great abhorrence of the unchristian, heartless, artificial, hypocritical affectation, so common at the present day among what are called fashionable people; hence, when we get where we find only the genuine, old-fashioned, patriarchal hospitality, like that of Abraham and Lot, as we see among these native Indians, we have a real feast of home comfort, peace, and satisfaction. It is like the visit of a weary, hungry boy to his mother's kitchen pantry. He is welcome, and he knows it without being told so in great swelling words in a simpering silly manner. We felt as though we had got to a land of rest. Accordingly we took advantage of circumstances, dismissed all care, and spent a good part of the first half day on Bro. David Bunn's settee, fast asleep. We felt it was no sin to rest in such a favored spot. We thought of our boyhood home, when a fond mother took delight in making the visit of her son Miles welcome and happy.

These Indians were much blessed last winter during the meetings held by Srs. A. E. Smith and Boide, missionaries from New York. Several were converted and reclaimed; but most of them are away from the Indian settlement at present. We found the church in a healthy condition, and looking for the coming of the Son of man. They are rooted and grounded, and feel resolved to endure to the end.

In temporal matters, they enjoy the common blessings of life. They have a school, taught by a white lady. They raise corn, wheat, oats, potatoes, beans, etc., and catch clams and fish. The women are good cooks. They live in comfortable framed houses, that are kept in good order. They have horses, cows and poultry. They dress in as good taste as the white people around them, and in behavior, are not a whit behind those who may treat them with neglect.

We have never seen elsewhere a class of children that behaved and obeyed so well as these Indian youth. We think these parents would take the premium on family government. It is not accomplished by scolding and fretting, but by one simple command. The obedience is prompt and cheerful. One could hardly help thinking of Abraham, whom the Lord commends for governing his household so faithfully.

We had a pleasant visit with old sister Walker, who is said to be about ninety-seven years of age. She is blind, though spiritually she sees clearly. Her hope is bright. She is not able to get out to meeting, but we had the pleasure of administering the sacrament of the Lord's Supper to her once more, and probably for the last time before the "marriage of Lamb." She has been trusting in the Lord for many years; and he has given her sweet peace.

Lord's day, June 3d. This was a day of special interest. From time immemorial, this tribe has been in the habit of having a general meeting the first Sunday in June, when they expect all of their tribe, as far as practicable, to be at home to enjoy the reunion. During other seasons of the year, they are much scattered, but the first Lord's day in June is to them as was the feast of tabernacles to the Jews. In entertainment, as to its social character, this gathering is much like the old-fashioned New England thanksgiving. It is the time to kill the fatted calf, and make home as pleasant as possible for all who come to enjoy the banquet. Every thing is put in the best order, as for a marriage ceremony.

Religiously, it is the time when they take the most pains to have some good meetings. It is their feast of Pentecost. For these reasons, a large number of whites come in from the surrounding town to witness the events of the day, and participate, more or less, in the joys of the occasion.

On this occasion the weather was unfavorable, which greatly diminished the number of those who came as spectators; but we had good meetings. We had an interesting love-feast in the morning, and other heart-cheering seasons during the day. We think we have never enjoyed a better meeting among them than the one at the close of the afternoon. We could truly say it was good to be there. We think the church is in the best condition we have ever seen them. They all seem determined to endure to the end, and be ready for the coming of Jesus, for which they are anxiously looking.

In the evening, we met the brethren and sisters once more around the table of the Lord. It was truly a heavenly season, which will long afford a pleasing remembrance to those who participated. There were fifteen of us all, and every one spoke a few words, at the close of the communion, expressing their comfort in Christ, and determination to endure to the end, and have a home in paradise. We left them full of bright hopes, and ardent longings for the speedy coming of Jesus. One requested prayers, and appeared determined to live a new life of faith in Christ. Others seemed almost persuaded to be christians. Pray for them.

After a hearty farewell greeting, and receiving many warm expressions of christian love, we took the parting hand in bright hope of meeting soon, where our union will be eternal, and our joys unbounded.

"REIGN OF TERROR."

Observing men see dark omens, indicating a terrible state of things just at hand. They have tried to look through the darkness that is coming over our earth, but fail to see even a "silver lining" to the clouds that overhang the world. If they would give their hearts fully to the Lord, and go to the Bible, they could hardly help seeing the bright light that now beams from the prophetic scriptures; but they forget, or never learned, that Peter says, "We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn and the day-star arise."

We should expect that those who believe in the Bible, and are professors of religion, would certainly take heed to the prophecies in times like these; but such is not the case, with but few exceptions. When we inquire, Why is it so? we think one reason is because it makes one unpopular among fashionable people. Satan knows how to turn the strong aid of popularity and the power of fashion against the truth, and to his own account. This he has done with great success.

To the reader we would say, let us be bold in the defense of Jesus and his word. It is no time now to act the coward.

The American Baptist for May 22nd, 1866, in an article headed—"The reign of terror," when speaking of the American nation, says: "We are drifting into scenes of confusion, anarchy and bloodshed." This is just what we must expect "in the last days."

WAR IN EUROPE.

There remains but little hope that peace can be maintained much longer in Europe. The war clouds never looked darker in the old world than now. The spirits of demons are doing a terrible work; and, apparently, making their last grand rally, preparatory for the battle of Armageddon. Truly, the nations are becoming "angry," and soon the smoke of the battle field may be seen rising over the dead and wounded. Scenes of terror are at hand. Men may "say peace," "but there is no peace." "Sudden destruction" awaits the "peace-and-safety" criers. It is a time for the note of alarm; but Satan will make an effort to raise the opposite cry of "peace." Let every soldier of Christ gird on "the whole armor of God," if he expects to stand against the terrible charge of the enemy, that is about to be made. It is no time for a compromise with the powers of darkness; but the hour has come for a bold onset, in the name of our great Deliverer. Let us endure "as seeing him who is invisible." Soon our great King will appear in all his glory. What joy will fill the hearts of the faithful ones, when they receive the approbation of the Lord of Lords.

The following shows the state of feeling in the House of Lords in the British Parliament. On the 18th of May, Lord Stratford de Redcliffe made an inquiry which caused the Earl of Clarendon to make the following statement:—

"It is impossible to aggravate the gravity of the crisis, and I think that my noble friend was perfectly justified in asking this question before the House separates. I can reply to his question that both official and confidential communications are in progress at this moment, and I hope that they may result in a meeting together of all the Powers of Europe, both of those who are neutral, and of those who are arming; but I cannot hold out a hope that they will terminate in peace, although I think that a meeting together of all the Powers of Europe may give some hope of an amicable issue. I can only say that no effort on the part of Her Majesty's Government will be wanting to bring about such a result. I believe, also, that this is the wish of the Emperor of the French, but in the present state of these communications to which, as I have said, I cannot give the name of negotiations, I think it is inexpedient to say more."

THE FENIAN WAR.

The late Fenian invasion of Canada appears to be nearly ended. Had they not been stopped by the United States government, it is very evident that they would have caused our neighbors across the line much trouble. Stephens, the "Head Centre" of the Fenians, has been opposed to the attack upon Canada. He wishes them to attack England at home, which he seems determined to do. It is very evident that the Fenian storm is not yet ended. It may be expected to break out again soon, with double force and terribleness. We shall not be at all surprised to see them in one year as hostile to the government of the United States, as they are now to England. There are strong reasons to believe that before long, revolutions will become general throughout the world.

DISCUSSION.

We are to have a discussion at East Canaan, N. H., with Mr. N. Jones, F. W. Baptist minister, commencing Tuesday evening, June 26th, at 7 P. M., to continue four evenings, and longer if thought best.

SUBJECT,—The immortality of man.

UNIVERSALISM.

The tract we are about to issue on Universalism, we think is the best thing on that subject that we have ever seen. It should have a wide circulation. It is full of strong points, sound reason, and good common sense—just the thing for the times. Send in your orders. Price, single copy, 7 cents; $1.00 for twenty-five copies; $3.25 per one hundred copies, postpaid.

LIGHT ADVANCING.

The following is an extract from a letter received from an evangelical minister in Iowa, Pa. We often receive similar ones. We have much reason to rejoice in the fact that the great truths of the Bible, for the belief of which we have been called "infidels," are now being received by many of the most intelligent and devoted members of the various churches. Let us not get weary in well doing. The reaping time is at hand. The preacher writes:—

"BRO. GRANT:—Though I do not know you personally, I can address you as Bro. Yesterday I received the 'World's Crisis' of Feb. 28th, and return my sincere thanks to you. I would say, I like the paper very much. I have read it with interest, for it is just the very thing which I like.

My charge consists of five country, or rather mountain congregations, besides one in W., which is a small village at the foot of S. mountain, and my salary does not exceed $300. Truly the amount of my support is small; but I have a glorious hope of a better reward, grounded on Dan 12: 3. The evidences I have had already of being instrumental in pointing sinners to the Lamb of God, I would not exchange for some of the one thousand dollar salaries.

Learning from the spirit of your paper that you are laboring in the cause of Christ, I can without hesitation call you Brother."

PENALTY FOR SIN.

BRO. GRANT:—As there are several different ideas advanced concerning the penalty of the law of God for sin, by your permission, I would like to inquire through the Crisis if you do not understand the Scriptures to teach that it is just the same now, and is to be when sin goes out of the world, that it was when it first entered the same, nearly six thousand years ago? Yours seeking the truth,

Clinton, Mass. A. S. WHITNEY.

We understand the Scriptures to teach that the penalty for Adam's first sin was death, without any specified time that he was to remain dead; whereas, the penalty for sin now is the "SECOND DEATH," which is eternal; and that this begins after the resurrection of the wicked, and their judgment.

"FUN."

It is well known that but very few churches will allow their houses to be occupied by those who are preaching the speedy personal coming of Christ, while at the same time they will let in almost any thing else. The following speaks for itself:—

"FUN.—Josh Billings, the great American Humorist, at the Presbyterian church, ... Wednesday, 1866. Subject:—Putty and Varnishan."

The above is a notice put up in a town adjoining Nassaw. The address was attended by a crowd.

QUESTION.

If the wicked dead are not raised until a thousand years after the righteous dead are raised, who calls them to their resurrection?

B. N. C.

Their Judge.

Czechowski's Thrilling Narrative.

A small edition of this work has been printed in paper covers, to be disposed of for the benefit of the European Mission. The book will be sent post-paid to every one who contributes $1.00 or more to the aid of the Mission. Bro. Czechowski is in need of help. Let the friends take this means to aid him, and receive an interesting book in return. The book will be sent to those only who order it.

$3000 TRACT FUND.

For the Free Distribution of Tracts.

Previous acknowledgments	$2039.17
P. Bowerman	.25
A. Farrow	.25

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To send the Crisis to the Poor.

Whole number sent free, 680. Am't Expense, $1460.00

Previous acknowledgments	[illegible]
J. J. Austin	.50

THE AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All communications relating to the business of the Society, and all applications for situations as teachers or missionaries, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, WILLIAM B. HERRON, "Crisis" Office, Boston.

All donations of money, or clothing, or other supplies for the Freedmen, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEORGE T. ADAMS, 167 Hanover Street, Boston. In sending supplies, enclose in a letter to the same address a notice and list of the articles sent.

Advent Mission Fund.

For the establishment of Missions among the Freedmen, the building of a Chapel and Mission House in Memphis, etc.

Previous acknowledgments	2441.13
Friend of the Freedmen (for Mission House)	20.00
P. W. Higgins "	5.00
W. G. McNary "	10.00
Geo. S. Harwood "	10.00
Mrs. P. F. Lyman "	5.00
J. Jones "	1.00
E. A. Waterhouse	5.00
Nathan Collins	4.00
B. F. Haskell	1.00
Y. P. [illegible]	1.25

EUROPEAN MISSION.

Previous acknowledgments	$583.10
S. M. Lum	1.00
L. M. Goodyear	1.00
A. M.	1.25
H. M. Stiles	1.00
Sr. Odell	3.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL FUND.

To Supply Destitute Sunday Schools with Books and "Pilgrims."

Previous acknowledgments	$5.50

Donations of S. S. Books and Pilgrims.

The Sunday-school Fund was started a few weeks ago for the aid of poor and needy Sunday-schools. We have received a number of calls for help already, and, with little or no means yet in the Fund for that purpose, we have been enabled to supply four poor and newly established Sunday-schools with libraries of Sunday-school books. If there are any others already established, or that ought to be established, needing help, we shall be glad to hear from them, and will do what we can to supply their wants. Brethren who have the means to help in this good work, will please remember the S. S. Fund.

W. B. H.

For the World's Crisis.

TRACT FUND.

NOT UNDERSTOOD BY SOME.

I find that all who are interested in tract distribution do not distinguish between "State Tract Societies" and the "Christian Publication Society." A few words therefore on the subject may not be amiss.

First. The tract enterprise of the C. P. S. is on this wise: They publish tracts to sell at an advance from cost, to supply all who may wish to buy them.

Second. They publish to give to the poor, and furnish those who interest themselves in circulating them for the good of the cause, so far as the Society has means to do so.

Third. These tracts so given away cost money, and this money must be furnished by free donations, or by subscriptions obtained for the Society by the energetic efforts of those who know the importance of providing means to produce them. This action of giving away, and of collecting the fund to publish, is of universal application, regardless of locality or distance. This is the best the Society can do.

Fourth. On this principle it so happens that some States and localities draw very largely on the Tract Fund at Boston for tracts to distribute free; while other States and localities, which draw much less, furnish much more money to the Society.

This is not because some have less need of the tracts to circulate, and more money to give; but because the interest in this matter is not properly balanced. Instance. Some brethren are deeply interested in getting the truth before the people, whether by preaching, books, tracts, or papers; but have no money to spare to buy and give, no tact to buy and sell; yet as they can have them free, they can circulate large quantities to good advantage. All this is well, as somebody else has the money to pay for them, and in some cases it is as well as they can do.

Others wish to give light, but for some cause wish to give it only by preaching it, and have little or nothing to do with circulating books and tracts. It may be their small pittance received for preaching leads some of them to think it would be less if they preached upon and urged the importance of the tract enterprise, solicited and collected $50 or a $100 a year for it. I should not blame them for reasoning thus; it is natural; but it would be bad reasoning, nevertheless.

Facts show that the ministers who awaken the deepest interest in their fields of labor, and collect the most money for the tract or mission cause, get the best support themselves; for those who are truly awake to do all they can for Christ's cause, will do well for those ministers who do all they can in the vineyard.

Then there are those who are not only anxious to spread the truth by preaching and giving all they can, but who stir up many others to give and buy, and act for the same object; and in this way they are not obliged to draw it out of those who are stingy, but by explaining to the liberal, active, working christians the importance of tracts, and telling them the door is open to contribute, they are stirred up to act in the matter.

STATE TRACT SOCIETIES. The tract societies formed in States are not parts of the general Tract Society in the sense of mere agents for it, but they are each separate bodies, designed to raise what money they can in their own States to purchase tracts of those who publish them, and thus try to equalize the interest in furnishing the means to produce tracts, and also more activity in circulating them.

Each State society has its treasury, and its agents to buy and pay the publishers for tracts, and to distribute them to the ministers and others who circulate, either free, or for money, as may be desired. By this mode no one is prevented the privilege of sending to the C. P. S. for tracts free, nor from donating to it any amount for free distribution. A little activity on the part of all our ministers in this matter would more than double our tract fund each year.

In 1865, one of our preachers in Maine raised over twenty-three dollars, and circulated over fifty-seven dollars' worth of tracts and books. Another raised over ten dollars and circulated over twenty dollars' worth. Others did something. Suppose all did what they could, a great amount of good would be done by these silent but effective messengers of truth. I. C. WELLCOME.

Yarmouth, Me.

Correspondence.

From Sr. A. E. Smith.

BRO. GRANT:—As I am receiving letters very often from the readers of the Crisis with reference to my mission work, and as it is impossible for me to answer them all, I would like to have the Crisis do it for me, with your permission. As it has not been long since my report of last Nov. appeared in the Crisis, I shall not give those things, for they are fresh in their memories, but a financial account, number of visits, etc. Some have wondered why I do not report the whole of our work. That I cannot do oftener than once or twice a year, for want of time. But as I have just made out my report, which will be printed in pamphlet form, I will condense as far as possible for the readers of the Crisis.

The past year we have averaged twenty-two days to the month, twenty visits per day; and when we have not protracted meetings we have visited more than this; which makes five thousand two hundred and eighty for each Bible reader. Four of us amount to twenty-one thousand one hundred and twenty visits in a year. Twenty-four hundred of these have been widows with from two to eleven children, and of these, nine hundred have been soldiers' widows. Some we visit have been entirely helpless from different causes; some blind, some lame, some sick, some one thing and some another; but all poor and needy. The year past we have assisted three hundred and twenty-seven families with food and clothing, and in paying their rents to keep them from being thrown into the street.

To assist in doing this, I have received from my Advent friends as follows:—From Home Missionary, $4.00; Misses Otis, $56.00; Bro. H. Campbell, $7.00; Bro. Smith, of Ohio, $10.00; in small sums, 15.00; Wilbraham Campmeeting, $51.50;—$143.50.

Also from the Union meetings as follows: June 25th, Dodworth Hall, $8.44; Nov. 26th, $15.88; Aug. 27th, Bro. Case, $2.27; Dec. 7th, Thanksgiving Day, $2.04; Sept. 24th, 24th Church, $4.80; Feb. 23d, '66, Bro. Cox, $3.50; Oct. 29th, B. Cannon, $8.72;—Total, $45.85. $37.00 I paid out as it was received, and reported the same to the Union committee; the balance left in my hands, of $8 85, added to the $143.50, making $152.35. This amount we have received and divided among the three hundred and twenty-seven families. So you see how far short it came of reaching all the cases.

We have received no barrels, no boxes of clothing from abroad. Bro. H. Campbell gave us fourteen pairs of shoes. It is true, the wants have been many, and our means very small, and we have had to divide some of it in homeopathic doses; yet we have done the very best we knew how with what we had, and trust it will be said of us in that day, "She hath done what she could." Had we the means, without continually falling back on our resources, much more good might be done. But we feel to thank God that we have had even this to assist us in this great work of going about doing good. And in return for this we have had hundreds of "God bless you's," and seen tears of thankfulness as those who received turned their eyes towards heaven and thanked God he had not forgotten them in their poverty and suffering.

Sister Boide has received through Dr. Sabine and his friends, and paid out by his direction, $180.75, making all we have received in three years, and paid out to the sick and suffering ones, $333.10. The first twenty months that we labored here as missionaries, we did not receive anything for the poor. My salary at that time was only $2.50 per week, and I paid $3.50 for my board, which was working for almost nothing and finding myself; and if I had not had means of my own, I could not have staid in the field three months; but I have persevered thus long, and expect to till Jesus comes; for I believe he is near, and wish to live out my faith to the very letter.

I have received $876.10 in three years, and paid out $790.85 to poor and sick ones, and assisted them in paying their rents and getting up missions. $44.70 of this has been spent for Advent reading matter, in the form of tracts and pamphlets, and still I need more.

Since writing this report, I have received my first barrel of clothing, May 22nd, from Sr. Mary T. Harwood, Providence, R. I.; also $5.00 from Bro. Ladd, Springfield, Mass; also $1.00 from Sr. Mary E. Otis, Worcester. I would say that all who have assisted us have our sincere thanks and prayers, as well as those of God's poor. Pray for us. Your sister in Christ, ANNA E. SMITH.

No. 128 East 27th Street, New York City.

From Bro. J. K. Bellows.

BRO. GRANT:—After a rest of three weeks at home with my dear family, I am out again to sound the alarm of the coming of the Lord. And oh! how much I see in the church, the world, and nature, to convince me of the end at hand. I am looking daily for the Master to rise up and shut the door, and thus end the gospel, and bring in the day of the Lord, when the deliverance of God's people will begin, by the pouring out of the seven last plagues—the antitype of the plagues in Egypt, by which God's people were delivered out of Egyptian bondage. Also the events of the seventh trumpet will be fulfilled, the setting up of God's everlasting kingdom, the anger of the nations, the bringing in of his wrath, the coming of the Lord, the resurrection, and reward of the dead. How long this will take, we have no means of determining at present; for the third wo trumpet is not numbered. See Rev. 11: 15.

While at home, I attended meetings in several places in New York, and found the brethren alive to God, and looking for his Son from heaven,—some in 1866, and some in 1867. One of their number—Bro. Cherry, has fallen asleep since I left. Sr. Smith's meetings are very interesting. She has many bright christians,—one blind girl, whose history is very interesting. I expect Bro. Wilkins will give us her history through the Crisis.

Sister Smith has several mission meetings in New York and vicinity. I attended her meeting in 33d Street. The church desired Sr. S. to be set apart, that she might administer the Sacrament. Her case was brought before the church, and there was not a dissenting voice. Bro. Wilkins and myself set her apart, by the laying on of hands. May God bless her, and all of the dear sighing ones, and bring us to his soon coming kingdom. J. K. BELLOWS.

South Robbinston, Me.

From Bro. N. H. Reed.

BRO. GRANT:—Having been instrumental in getting nearly sixty subscribers within the last few days for our valuable paper—the Crisis, I would say, from conscientious principle, and the love I owe to my heavenly Father, I deem it my indispensable duty to labor in whatever way that will be the most pleasing to him. Having been a subscriber for the Crisis the past ten years, I have had sufficient opportunity to test its merits, and would here express my thankfulness for having the privilege of reading a paper that so fully discusses Bible subjects. My desire being on the side of truth, knowing that one will not have to give an account for another, I trust I am now able to judge between right and wrong on most essential points of Scripture. My interest is to do something to warn men to come to Christ and escape the wrath of God, which will soon sweep o'er this wicked world. To our new readers I would say, seek to be as noble as those of Berea, who "searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so."—Acts 17: 11. If we speak not according to the law and to the testimony (Isa. 8: 20), believe us not. Weigh carefully all that may be said, knowing that "many false prophets are gone out into the world" (1 John 4: 1), and will "if it were possible . . . deceive the very elect."—Matt. 24: 24.

My prayer is that many more may be brought from nature's darkness to the light of God's word, that when our Master returns they may not be found saying, like the evil servant, "My lord delayeth his coming, and shall begin to smite his fellow servant, and to eat and drink with the drunken."—Matt. 24: 48, 49. Your Bro. seeking for immortality,

Windsor, N. S. NELSON H. REED.

BRO. A. S. BURNHAM, Haverhill, writes:—"I think you will be glad to hear some twenty have found Jesus in a revival at the Freewill Baptist meeting. The pastor said it was but half the work to preach and exhort; we must warn the sinner out of meeting."

For the World's Crisis.

BRO. HANSCOMB.

BRO. GRANT:—Having received many letters from the brethren and sisters, wishing to know in relation to the health of Bro. D. M. Hanscomb, I will say through the Crisis, that he has been failing ever since I wrote before. He is very sick now, and you who know the worth of prayer, raise one fervent petition to God that he may again be placed on the walls of Zion. I sigh and long for that blessed land, where the inhabitants will never say, I am sick. Your Bro. in Christ,

HARTLEY GRAY.

Obituaries.

LIBBY. On the twenty-seventh day of March, 1866, Lizzie H., wife of Elder James Albert Libby, and daughter of John and Hannah Megquire, fell asleep in Christ, at West Poland, Maine.

Brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, Lizzie, in early life, accepted Christ as her redeeming Savior, devoting herself to his service, and enjoying the confidence and fellowship of his people.

Seven years ago she was united in marriage to Elder James A. Libby. With devotedness, fidelity, and patient quietness of spirit, she accepted the trials incident to her lot. The sweetness of her disposition, the considerate gentleness of her ways, joined to her native decision of character, endeared her to those who knew her, and enabled her, through the power of divine grace, to fulfill her appointed work in the spirit of Him who did not strive nor cry, and yet who did not fail, nor become discouraged.

Her death was caused by a cancer of the breast, which resisted all endeavors to eradicate it; and the transient hopes awakened by the seeming success of a severe surgical operation were doomed to speedy disappointment; for the re-appearance of the malady compelled the abandonment of every expectation of her recovery. For a time her heart lingered lovingly about the joys and friends of mortal life, and she seemed to shrink back from the pains and anguish of the parting hour. But as the pangs of disease grew more and more intense, the grave seemed like a quiet refuge, and she longed for its repose.

She had known something of separations from her husband, as do all those women who cast in their lots with God's evangelists; but she always sacrificed her feelings to her sense of duty, and said, "Go," whenever the call of God was heard. But the thoughts of the dying separation were more bitter to the soul. Through successive months of anxiety and anguish, her faithful husband ministered by her couch of pain, and the following touching lines, written in that sick room, can best describe the sorrows he endured:—

"As moans the troubled main when winds arise,
And roll her billows inland one by one,
So my sad soul, beneath the darkening skies
And dashing waves of sorrow, weeps alone.

I thought my sea was calm, my favored bark
Seemed to be wafted by propitious gales;
But all at once my heavens grew strangely dark,
And storm's sure portents struck the expanded sails.

I trembled at its coming, and I prayed
My God to guide me on the heaving sea;
I know he will. I do not feel afraid,
Though oft the surging billows break o'er me.

I saw a brother first drink in the waves
Of fell mortality, so dark and chill;
I've left him sleeping in the place of graves,
And high the storm is raging round me still.

Another form whose heart to mine united,
Took all its joy or sorrow as her own,
Is wasting, and the hands and hearts we plighted,
Must soon be severed, and I left alone.

Yet not alone, my Father's arms around me,
When earthly friends go down, are folded still,
His eye is on me, and he chooseth for me
The way that's best, albeit good or ill."

One by one the hand of death loosened the pins, and snapped the cords that stayed her frail tabernacle, and held her yet a pilgrim in a land of tears. Her sufferings were terrible, but there was hope and trust, and grace and patience, and timely aid amid them all. The anchor, cast within the heavenly veil, held fast through the wild fury of the storm. Racked with pains, tossing in sleepless anguish on her couch, pining away for want of nourishment which she could not take, feeling the bands and ties of earthly union sundering one by one, her soul was yet stayed and strengthened by the mighty hand and the everlasting arms; and she bore good testimony that the Lord, who had been her shepherd in the days of health and joy, still comforted her amid the gloom of the dark valley with his gracious presence, and with his rod and staff. And so she passed calmly down into the waters of the silent river, in the unfaltering trust that Christ would journey by her side, and bring her safely onward to

"The border of the shining land."

Her end was peaceful, and at last she slept calmly, for the strife was over, and the time of rest had come.

It was the sad privilege of the writer to stand by her clay-cold form, gaze upon her peaceful countenance, and utter words of hope and consolation in the ears of her husband, parents, and friends. Around her lifeless form we sang of the present sleep and future waking, and of the glory that dwelleth in IMMANUEL'S land. And then devout men,—her brethren beloved in the Lord,— bore her away to her silent resting place, which had been made for her amid the melting snows of spring. There we laid her down, with her head towards the west, as she requested, that when the glory of God should beam along the eastern skies, and the earth should shine with his glory, her waking eyes might catch its first flashing in the Orient, and hail the coming of her conquering Lord. (Ezek. 43: 2; Matt. 25: 27.)

Her husband sorrows, but not without hope,—"that blessed hope, even the glorious appearing of the great God, and our Savior Jesus Christ." The "little while" that spans the period of human sorrow, separation and affliction, is to him, as it was to her, a word of hope and joy. His own words, written amid the dark anticipations of his affliction, declare his consolation and his trust:—

"For after every storm there comes a calm,
And quiet havens border every sea;
So faith transcending every rude alarm,
Speaks quiet rest and peace at last for me.

Rest with the loved ones past this state of sadness,
Sorrow, pain, death and evil gone;
Peace where the hills shall smile in endless gladness,
Tinged with the light of the unchanging morn."

May that God, who comforteth us in all our tribulation, give joy to the stricken-hearted friends, who feel this deep bereavement; and grant that we at last may meet our cherished ones in the kingdom of our God.

O that land I long to see,
Where the weary hearted
Shall with Christ in glory be,
Never to be parted.

H. L. H.

Boston, June 4th, 1866.

BEAN. Died in Barnstead, N. H., Jan. 30th, 1866, Charles C. Bean, aged twenty-two years, seven months and two days.

He calmly fell asleep in Jesus, with a blessed hope of having eternal life at his appearing and kingdom. Words of comfort were administered to mourning friends by Bro. J. Couch, from 1 Thess. 4: 18.

R. W. CASWELL.

BURNHAM. Died in Cheshire, May 14th, 1866, of inflammation of the brain and spine, Minnie L., wife of C. E. Burnham, and daughter of Laurin and Caroline J. Brown, aged twenty-three years, three months and twenty-one days.

"How long shall death the tyrant reign?"

C. C. BROWN.

PRATT. Died at Irving, Kansas, Oct. 26th, 1865, Charrie Pratt, wife of Chester N. Pratt, daughter-in-law of Newell and Esther Ann Pratt, formerly of Norfolk, Conn., aged eighteen years.

LEWIS ANDREWS.

Married.

On Thursday, May 31st, at the home of the bride in Westboro, Mass., by Rev. W. H. Swartz, assisted by Rev. L. H. Sheldon, Mr. L. P. DAY, of Greenfield, and Miss MARIA TROWBRIDGE.

By the same, at the same time and place Mr. HENRY BURNAP and Miss MARCIA PARRELL, all of Westboro.

In Gardiner, June 2d, by Eld. S. K. Partridge, Mr. ALBION PRAY, of Richmond, and Miss VESTA L. BOOKER, of Gardiner.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Queenstown 27th.

Speculations abound as to the results of the coming conference, but no new facts are developed. A writer, who is supposed to have peculiar sources of information, says:

"I believe it to be certain that a secret engagement was given by the Government of Victor Emmanuel, by the hand of Count Visconti Venosta (now envoy at Constantinople, and out of the way of embarassing questions,) to surrender the island of Sardinia to France as the price of Venetia. A bold push was made to obtain this concession five years ago, but was defeated by timely out-speaking in this country and elsewhere, and by the sense of honor stung into activity in the bosom of M. Ricasoli. Geographically, Sardinia is of inestimable value to France, as a great and solid connecting link with Algiers; and as a garrison island second only to Sicily in its importance in the Mediterranean"

A Congress appears to be assured, but war continues to be prepared for.

A Paris telegram of the 25th says identical notes were dispatched yesterday and to-day by the English, French and Russian Cabinets to Berlin Vienna, Frankfort, and Florence, for the assembly of a Congress to deliberate upon the question of German Federal reform, that of Elbe, the Duchies and Austro-Italian difficulty. It is expected that the Congress will assemble on the 5th of June The assent of the three disputing Powers to a Congress is generally regarded as settled, and it is said that Austria will consent to a discussion of the Venetian question on the basis of territorial compensation. According to one statement the Congress cannot be held before the 10th of June.

The London Daily News says the Plenipotentiaries are expected to meet in three weeks, but in less than three weeks all the combatants will be ready for the fray.

The Vienna correspondent of the London Times writes:

"Such a warlike spirit prevails in this empire that its inhabitants would be greatly disappointed should there not be a war in Prussia.

The same correspondent says that Austria now has 800,000 under arms, which is 140,000 men more than she ever has before.

The Italian correspondent of the Times writes: "The position of the Italian government is plain enough. 'We are perfectly willing to go to a Conference,' it says, 'on the basis of the settlement of the Venetian question'—a settlement of course meaning a cession. A moderate tone is assumed, and the possibility of the preservation of peace freely admitted, but the inner conviction is that war is at hand, and the time afforded by tardy negotiations is turned to the best advantage. Troops and war materiel continue to move to the front, and there seems a wish to have it known how large a force Italy is bringing into line. By the end of the month everything will be ready, and many expect war to begin next week. In short, all the symptoms here are as warlike as possible, and one cannot but suppose that this government has very good reasons for believing that Prussia is resolved to fight, and that serious opposition from France is not to be feared."

Earthworks for intrenchments near Vienna have already been commenced.

Reports are current, but not confirmed, that an Italian patrol appeared on the 25th on the frontier of the Caffaro, and took away half the bridge on the Italian side of the river.

Italian volunteers were proceeding day by day in thousands to their depots. Garibaldi is not expected to enter on the scene until the last moment; but it is reported that he left Caprera on the 23d for the coast of the Adriatic. In a letter dated Caprera, May 11th, he says: "It is in every way advantageous for the country that all are ready and united. It is a question of life or death for the nation, and it is for all Italy to solve the problem. I shall accept of all who are willing to oppose foreign oppression. As for instructions, apply to our friends on the Commission, especially to Benedeth Cairoli. A truce to discussions on opinions. We must act."

Upward of 900 miles of the new Atlantic cable have been stowed on the Great Eastern, and about sixty miles of cable were being stowed away every twenty-four hours. The work is proceeding day and night. It is found that the Great Eastern will not be able to take all the necessary cable—2700 miles—on board. The screw steamer Medway has consequently been chartered to take about 500 miles of the old cable from the Great Eastern. Another steamer (the Albany) has also been engaged to assist in the enterprise, and the British Government has again granted the services of the war steamer Terrible to accompany the expedition. Each of the three steamers are to be furnished with grappling apparatus so that the old cable may be grappled at points a mile apart to break the strain and give greater security. The Great Eastern will only partially coal at Sheerness, owing to her great draft of water. It is expected that she will quit the harbor June 26th, and start a day or two after for Beerhaven, Ireland, where she will complete her coaling and proceed to lay the cable.

Liverpool May 31st, Londonderry June 1st.

The Consolidated Bank of England stopped payment on Sunday.

The invitations to a Congress have all been accepted, and will meet in Paris shortly.

Austria and Italy are still arming. The Italian volunteers are mobilizing rapidly. Austria has mobilized 600,000 men. Austrian parks of artillery and siege artillery are ready. The Prussians are concentrating at Glatz and Landshut. Prussia and Italy will postpone hostilities until the Congress has proved a failure.

Orders for a second conscription produced great discontent in Vienna.

Italy engages not to attack during the Conference.

The hopes of a war being avoided is believed in only by a minority.

The Paris Pays says Austria's compensation for the loss of Venetia will be found in the territory in the Adriatic coast, Prussia is to have the Elbe Duchies, and Denmark Northern Schleswig. The Rhine provinces are to be made a State attached to Germany.

The Austrian General Benedek has issued instructions how his troops are to behave in the enemy's country.

Italy is rebuilding her forts to resist the new artillery.

The Austrian army commenced marching toward Venetia on the 24th.

Turkey will not occupy the Danubian Principalities, in consequence of the Russian and French declaration against Turkish intervention.

There is no indication of relaxation in warlike preparations. A Vienna dispatch of the 30th of May says: "Preparations for war continue in all parts of the Empire, but the execution of the late decree for a levy of fresh troops will not be proceeded with at present, the requirement having already been fully met by the recent large enrollment of volunteers.

Many thousands of men are already engaged on the fortifications of Vienna. The army headquarters are about to be transferred to Prague, where Field Marshal Benedek will shortly inspect the troops."

It is reported that a strong Prussian corps of observation is being concentrated on the frontiers of Prussia, near by Silesia and Galacia.

A decree had been issued at Florence for the formation of twenty additional battalions of volunteers, two battalions of bersagliers, and a squadron of guides.

It is stated that communications received in London on the 30th assert that Garibaldi was still at Caprera, and had no immediate intention of leaving.

DOMESTIC.

The Fenians.

ST. ALBANS, VT., June 7, 1866. A record of the progress and success of the Fenian invasion of Canada, comprising the first twenty-four hours' advance of the invaders on British soil, will be read with absorbing interest. The invaders so far have met with no opposition, and hence the flag of Ireland has been successfully planted within the British dominions, and it may perhaps interest those who have the freedom of Ireland at heart, to hear that the first Fenian flag thus planted in Great Britian was planted by a Massachusetts Fenian, and that the emblem was the gift and handiwork of the Fenian sisters of Massachusetts. The briefer accounts which I have telegraphed were substantially correct concerning the Fenian situation, but the one which follows comprises in detail all the movements and attending circumstances, from the moment of leaving American soil almost up to the present time. It was yesterday afternoon, June 6, at about 2 o'clock, that the army of Ireland, which had been rendezvoused for several days on the borders of Vermont and Canada, took up the line of march to invade British territory. They left the town of Highgate in this State, about 6 miles this side of Canada, and proceeded toward the dividing line. The force consisted of 600 men, in command of Col. Contrie of Boston, 200 in command of Col. Connors, and 300 in command of Col. Scanlan, forming a force of about 1100 in all, and all in command of Brig. Gen. John W. Mahan. The greater portion of them were armed with pistols revolvers, carbines and sabres. There were two horses and two pieces of artillery but it was a body of ununiformed and partially equipped infantry. The men were in the best of spirits, and full of enthusiasm, a fact which is rather remarkable when it is considered that their march was in the midst of one of the most severe rain storms experienced here for years, and that many of them were really suffering from hunger. The commissary arrangements had been wonderfully neglected, some of the companies of sixty men only had fourteen or fifteen small loaves of bread, and companies of twenty-four only four loaves, making an average of only about one loaf to four men; but notwithstanding this threatened famine at the beginning of their enterprise, they took words of encouragement from their officers and pushed along. At half past six in the evening they found themselves at a point about one mile this side of the Canadian line, on what is known as the Slab City road. Here they determined to seek shelter from the pelting rain in a couple of barns owned by a Canadian named Judge Hubbard. The Judge endeavored to eject them from his premises, but they remonstrated in an earnest manner and he reluctantly allowed them to remain. The barns were not quarter large enough to afford comfortable accommodations, and the greater portion of the men had to stand up the entire night, and in their fatiguing standing position they were about as closely together as a box of sardines. After securing themselves in the barns a picket company of twenty-five men, under Capt. Hague of Boston, was thrown out a distance of three miles over the Canadian border. During the night some of the Canadian volunteers fired upon the pickets, and there was a belief that a general engagement was near at hand. The firing aroused the main body of the troops, and the pickets were then reinforced by two more companies under Capt. Green and Capt. Connors of Lynn. There was no further disturbance, however, and the only casuality was the shooting the foot of one of the picket guard by the accidental discharge of his revolver. With this exception the night was one of quiet if not one of comfort, and at half-past seven this morning the line was formed again and the route toward Canada continued, Col. Contrie's regiment being in advance. In just an hour the Fenian Brotherhood in arms were on British soil. The crossing of the line was the signal for loud and enthusiastic cheering, and the whole army involuntarily joined in the singing of the Wearing of the Green.

At the conclusion of this favorite Irish ballad, Col. Contrie stepped forward from the ranks and unfurled the green flag of Erin and planted it firmly upon British soil. The flag was a beautiful silk emblem, and was the gift of the Fenian Sisters of Malden. There was of course the most intense cheering and the liveliest enthusiasm, and one would scarcely have believed but the expression of joy came from one of the best fed armies in the world and from one which had no other than hopes of speedy and certain victory. Some speeches were made by the officers, and the men, one and all, swore that the green emblem should never leave their hands until they had all died under its folds. The line of march was continued rapidly four or five miles, when the army reached a point on the Canadian interior known as Pigeon Hill, about four miles this side of Stanbridge. At this time it was necessary for your reporter to leave the advancing column in order to file his dispatches in the telegraph office. It was the intention, after proceeding a short distance further, to halt, and throw up intrenchments, and await reinforcements and supplies The latter arrived in considerable abundance in the afternoon, and they expect large acquisitions to their forces to-morrow, both from the direction of Boston and New York. They have about three thousand rounds of ammunition in their possession, and expect more to-morrow. It is evident that the Canadians are terribly frightened. They have abandoned their houses all along the border, and flocked in thousands to St. Johns and Montreal, taking with them all their stock, produce and everything portable. From the course of the invaders thus far, this dread of them by the Canadian citizens seems to have been entirely causeless. No abuse or destruction of private property has been allowed, and the letter and spirit of General Sweeney's proclamation has been enforced. The two individuals arrested on suspicion of being spies have been released upon a satisfactory explanation, and their horse and buggy restored to them. The real point of attack, as mentioned in a previous dispatch, is probably St. Johns, where the British troops are gathered in considerable numbers. Gen. Spear, whom the United States authorities were seeking to arrest at midnight, got wind of their intentions about five minutes before they entered the Tremont House last night. Some friends immediately got a team and carried him to the front, where he arrived at an early hour in the forenoon, and was received with great enthusiasm. In response to the cheers given him, he made a brief speech, imploring the army of Ireland to stand by the green flag and defend it with their lives so long as it floated over British soil. The men responded with loud and enthusiastic shouts in the affirmative.

New York, June 7. Col. Roberts was arrested to-day, under the direction of Marshal Murray. The warrant was issued by United States Commissioner Betts, and served by the Deputy Marshals at the Fenian headquarters, Roberts having declined the request from Murray to come to his office. He was brought before the Commissioner and declined to give bail for his appearance for trial, and refused to accept bail that was tendered. He also declined to give personal parole to appear, or parole not to violate the neutrality laws. The Commissioner proposed to release him on $20,000 bail. He was remanded to the custody of the Marshal and quartered at the Astor House. It is said he will be sent to Fort Lafayette.

There was a large and enthusiastic Fenian meeting at Cooper Institute to-night. Resolutions were passed denouncing President Johnson and declaring that the Irish population will not support him hereafter.

St. Albans, Vt., June 7. There is considerable excitement in this town this morning among the citizens, and not a little indignation amongst the Fenians, at the arrest of Gen. Sweeney at midnight last night by order of the U. S. authorities. He had retired to his room at the Tremont House, and at about 12 o'clock a commissioned officer and a guard of some half a dozen regulars entered the hotel, ascertained his room, waited upon him, and took him into custody, and he is now confined under guard in one of the shelter tents of the regulars on St. Albans Common. Gen. Sweeney quietly submitted, and it is said that the proceeding was not wholly unexpected by him.

St. Albans, June 8th. The chief matter of interest and importance here this morning has been the arraignment of Gen. Sweeney and Colonel Mahan. After my dispatch last evening both of these prisoners were brought from their place of confinement, in the camp on the common, and placed under guard in the Welden House, the inside and outside of the hotel being under strong military surveillance to prevent any attempt to rescue.

This forenoon at about 11 o'clock, the two prisoners were brought from their rooms into one of the parlors to undergo examination of the charge of aiding and abetting in the violation of the neutrality laws. The whole proceeding was very quiet and extremely private—the members of the press even being denied admission, notwithstanding the hearing was before a civil court in the person of United States Commissioner Hoyt of Burlington.

Both Gen. Sweeney and Col. Mahan waived examination and expressed their desire to give bail for future appearance for examination, and after a brief consultation this request was granted and the bonds of Gen. Sweeney were placed at the sum of twenty thousand dollars and those of Col. Mahan at five thousand. They are still retained in custody until they can furnish satisfactory sureties for their appearance, being in charge of the military, but under the direction of the civil authorities. The Fenian General is very uncommunicative.

St. Albans, June 10. The Fenian war is ended and the inglorious warriors have gone to their respective homes. Before this is visible to the public gaze the individuals, so noble and so brave, who formed the army of Ireland, will all have resumed the peaceful pursuits of civil life. The high hopes of the acquisition of Irish freedom or the infliction of severe chastisement upon that proud dynasty, which with Dionysian tyranny has made the Celtic race for centuries the pity of the world, have ended in delusion, and the scheming and preparations by able men terminated in naught but disappointment to the active and bitter regret to their sympathisers. The invasion, the difficulties encountered, the sufferings of the men, their enthusiasm and their despondency, have all been narrated in detail in the dispatches from this point during the past few days. The invasion was begun on Thursday very quietly, and yesterday it was as quietly brought to a close. The occupation of British territory by the Fenian army lasted just forty-eight hours, when, despondent, exhausted and sad, the handful of twelve or fifteen hundred men abandoned their purpose and were forwarded to their homes at the expense of the Government of the United States.

The men all felt bad, and in many cases anger was mingled with sorrow, and many hard things were said concerning the interference of the General Government in their enforcement of the neutrality laws. The indiscriminate seizure of their arms and ammunition by the United States is what the Fenians say has defeated them in their attempts to make a permanent stand in Canada. General Spear, who commanded this wing of the Fenian army, was overcome with grief, when it became apparent that they must abandon the work which he had hoped would speedily succeed. He wept like a child, and many other officers, and a few of the men, also manifested much despair and emotion when Camp Sweeney was broken, and the march commenced for St. Albans. The cause assigned by the Fenians for their failure is partially or wholly correct.

Gen. Sweeney's Proclamation.

As a part of the history of the Fenian movement we give entire the Proclamation of Gen. Sweeney, "Major General Commanding the armies of Ireland":—

A PROCLAMATION.

To the People of America:

We come among you as the foes of British rule in Ireland. Exiled from that native land of ours by the oppression of British aristocracy and legislation; our people hunted down to the emigrant ships, or worse, to that charnel of government institutions, the poor-house; our countrymen torn from their families and friends and hurled in droves into the prison pens of England and Ireland; our country subjected to a foreign tyranny, which disfranchises the mass of the Irish people and makes poverty the sad rule of their condition, covering our fair land with paupers' graves and wretched hovels, eliciting from the liberal minds of England herself expressions of shame for the government and indignation for the people.

We have taken up the sword to strike down the oppressors' rod, to deliver Ireland from the tyrant, the despoiler, the robber. We have registered our oaths upon the alter of our country in the full view of Heaven, and sent up our vows to the throne of Him who inspired them. Then, looking about us for the enemy, we find him here—here in your midst, where he is most vulnerable and convenient to our strength; and have sworn to stretch forth the armed hand of Ireland and grapple with him. The battle has commenced, and we pledge ourselves to all the sacred memories of struggling liberty, to follow it up at any cost to either of two alternatives — the absolute political independence and liberty of Ireland or the demolition of our armies.

We have no issue with the people of these provinces, and wish to have none but the most friendly relations. Our weapons are for the oppressors of Ireland. Our blows shall be directed only against the power of England; her privileges alone shall we invade, not yours. We do not propose to divest you of a solitary right you now enjoy. We will assail and asperse only the rights that are claimed and enjoyed by the government of Great Britian—the right to make her American possessions the field and base of operations in a war against an enemy. We come to install ourselves in her possessions, and turn them against her in a war for Irish freedom. We are here, neither as murderers nor robbers, for plunder or spoilation. We are here as the Irish army of liberation; the friends of liberty against despotism, of democracy against aristocracy, of the people against their oppressors, of the ballot against the privilege of class, of progress and devlopment against right and wrong; to conduct this contest according to the laws known to be honorable warfare, in a manner worthy of the high object we aim for, and the sublime sentiments that actuated us. In a word, our war is with the armed power of England, and not with the people, not with these Provinces. Against England upon land and sea, until Ireland is free! And all who raise an arm to defend her, to frustrate or defeat us, belong to the common enemy, and as such will be dealt with. As we know how to recognize the services of our friends, so also do we know how to punish the depredations of our foes. Our work for Ireland accomplished, we leave to your own free ballots to determine your natural and political standing and character, and shall rejoice to see, and assist to make, these limitless colonies spring from the foot of a foreign throne as free and independent, as proud as New York, Massachusetts or Illinois. To that yearning for liberty and aspiration after natural independence which swells the breast of every true son of every land, to your own manliness we leave those questions for settlement, confident that the dwarfed development of your vast recources and natural wealth, makes the chilling influence of English supremacy a wretched contrast with the national dignity and stupendous material prosperity of your neighboring people of the United States, under the stimulus of self-government and democratic institutions, constitutes a stronger argument in favor of co-operation with us and of the revolution in your political condition which this comparison suggests, than any discussion which we could offer.

To Irishmen throughout these Provinces we appeal, in the name of seven centuries of British iniquity and Irish misery and suffering; in the name of our murdered sires, our desolate homes, our descrated altars, our millions of famine graves, our insulted name and race—to stretch forth the hand of brotherhood in the holy cause of fatherland, and smite the tyrant where we can, in his work of murdering our nation and exterminating our people. We conjure you, our countrymen, who, from misfortunes inflicted by the very tyranny you are serving, or from any other cause, have been forced to enter the ranks of the enemy, not to be the willing instrument of your country's death or degredation. If Ireland still speaks to you in the truest impulses of your hearts, Irishmen, obey her voice! If you would not be miscreants, recreant to the first principles of your nature, engraven upon the very corner-stone of your being, raise not the hand of the matricide to strike down the banner of Erin! No uniform, and surely not the blood-dyed coat of England, can emancipate you from the natural law that binds your allegiance to Ireland, to liberty, to right, to justice. To the friends of Ireland, of freedom, of humanity, of the people, we offer the olive branch of peace and the honest grasp of friendship. Take it, Irishmen, Frenchmen, Americans—take it all and trust it. To all who marched to the call of the enemy, and rally under his standard to aid or abet his cause, we give the sword in as firm and earnest a gripe as ever did its work upon a foeman. We wish to meet with friends, we are prepared to meet with enemies. We shall endeavor to merit the confidence of the former, and the latter can expect from us but the leniency of a determined though generous foe, and the restraints and relations imposed by civilized warfare.

(Signed) T. W. SWEENEY,
Maj. General commanding the Armies of Ireland.

Notices.

Grove Meeting at Plainfield or Savoy.

If the Lord will, we will hold a grove meeting in Plainfield, or Savoy, Mass., or wherever Bro. E. McCulloch and J. R. Healy may arrange, commencing Wednesday, July 4th, at 10 A. M., and continuing over Sunday, July 8th. We hope to see a general rally of the waiting, working ones. Come in the name and strength of Israel's God, prepared to labor in his cause, and save perishing men.

H. L. HASTINGS,
C. GOODRICH.

Meetings at Southampton.

There will be a series of meetings held among the Indians, at Southampton, Long Island, N. Y., to commence on the 22d instant. Elder A. E. Smith and others will be present, to help on the good works of the Lord. WM. WILKINS.

P. S. The brethren will please meet us at Good Grounds stage office.

Fourth of July Meeting.

Our annual meeting on the Fourth of July next will be held in Kingston, N. H., in a pleasant grove near my house. Come, my brethren and sisters in Christ, and unite with us in giving praise to God for the prospect of speedy redemption. Who of God's ministers will come and break the bread of life to us? For the church.

F. GALE.

Notice.

The Maine Easterly Quarterly Conference will be held at South Newbury, Me., commencing Thursday evening, June 28th, at six o'clock, and continue over the following Lord's day. We hope to see a goodly number of our ministering brethren present. Come, brethren and sisters, in the name and spirit of the Lord. Brethren may call on Bro. John Morrill and Bro. Samuel Rich.

For the brethren. F. A. BAKER.

Notice.

Providence permitting, there will be a tent meeting in the Iowa Mission Tent, at Floyd, Floyd Co., Iowa, to commence June 28th, and continue over Lord's day. Sister Ruth M. Rowell will be there to preach the word. PETER S. W. DEYO.

P. S. Arrangements have been made for Sister R. M. Powell to be at our conference at Cascade, Iowa. P. S. W. D.

Notice.

The church in Lewiston, Me., have made arrangements for meetings. Preachers traveling this way are invited to call. For the brethren.

ALBERT BURGESS.

Agreement.

The R. I. and E. Ct. Conference will hold its next session at River Point, R. I., commencing Wednesday, July 4th, at 2 o'clock P. M. We have agreed to be there punctually at the time appointed. We have agreed to be present daily until after the Lord's day following. Ministers, delegates, and friends of this Conference, come join in this agreement, that we may make punctual and constant attendance the habit of our precious quarterly gathering. H. F. CARPENTER, Clerk.

Grove Meeting.

The Lord willing, there will be a grove meeting held in the south part of Etna, Me., on land belonging to Bro. S. Turner, commencing June 28th, 2 o'clock P. M., and continue over the following Sunday, and longer as the Lord may direct.

The object of this meeting is the saving of souls, and we earnestly request the prayers of the brethren and sisters that the Lord will bless. We urgently request all who can to attend, especially preachers of the word and laborers in the vineyard.

S. HAMMONS.

Wis. Adv. Quar. Conference.

The third quarterly meeting of the Wisconsin Advent Christian Conference, will be held in the town of Henrietta, Richland county, Wis., in the vicinity of Bro. B. Graves', to commence July 6th, and hold over the Lord's Day. As this is somewhat a new place, and an interest has been awakened here in the cause of the Master, brethren will please make a little extra effort to be there, and at the first of the meeting. A number of preaching brethren will be there to preach the word of life. Come up, brethren, in the spirit of the mother. Your help is needed at this meeting, that sinners may be brought to God and prepared for the Savior's coming. We have but a short time to work, and, O, how much we shall desire the Master to say, Well done.

GEO. W. TURNER, Clerk of Con.

Minnesota Annual Conference.

The fourth annual session of the Minnesota Advent Christian Conference will be held (Providence not preventing) on Saturday, June 30th, at ten o'clock A. M., in the New Boston school-house, in Winona County, and will continue over the following Sunday. Ministers and delegates representing the different churches within the State, are requested to attend. I expect Bro. Sheldon will be present with the Advent Tabernacle.

J. K. ALLEN, Sec'y.

Notice.

I hereby give notice to all concerned, that the fourth annual grove meeting will be held in Springwater, N. Y., commencing June 29th, 1866, and holding over Sunday, July 1st, on the same spot fitted up by Father Lyman Morris (deceased), on his farm. Let due preparations be made by the friends there, a general notice be given, and may many brethren and sisters attend, both ministers and laymen, and may much good be the result, for which let us pray. In behalf of the brethren,

C. F. SWEET.

Tent Meeting at Elliota, Minn.

The "Advent Tabernacle" will be pitched at Elliota, Fillmore Co., Minnesota, as Bro. Elliott shall arrange, on Friday, June 15th, and continue there some days. Bro. Hough will be present to help us. Hope to see a general gathering of the saints from the surrounding region. Come in the Spirit, and work for God. WM. SHELDON.

Notice.

The annual meeting of the Iowa Christian Conference will be held at Cascade, Dubuque Co., Iowa, to commence on Thursday, June 21st, 1866, and hold over the following Lord's day. All brethren and sisters who love to hear of the soon coming of the Lord, are invited to be there.

JOB GILDERSLEVE, Clerk.

The Dubuque and Sioux City railroad will return the brethren free. There will be teams on the first day of the conference, at Farley, to carry them to the meeting. PETER S. W. DEYO.

Quarterly Conference.

A quarterly session of the Advent Conference will be held in Jefferson, Me., Trask meeting-house, Thursday, June 14th, at 5 o'clock P. M., and continuing over the following Sunday. Come to the conference. JEREMIAH PARTRIDGE, Pres.
JOSHUA HEMINWAY, Clerk.

Notice.

Hereafter (D. V.) I shall preach at Danielsonville, Ct., on the second and fourth Sundays of every month; and at Abington, Ct., on the first and third Sundays of every month. Friends interested in these meetings will please cut this notice out and preserve it for future reference.

H. F. CARPENTER.

Notice.

The Lord willing, I intend to leave St. Louis for the East Monday, June 18th. Providence permitting, I would like to preach Sundays and week day evenings till Wilbraham campmeeting. If there are any who wish me to preach the word, please address me at Savoy, Mass., till July 6th.

H. K. FLAGG.

Tent Meeting at Prescott, Wis.

We expect to pitch the "Advent Tabernacle" at Prescott, Wisconsin, July 12th. Let the friends from the other side of the Mississippi River attend if they can. Eld. Hough is to be with me.

WM. SHELDON.

Notice.

At my Sunday appointment at West Barre, June 17th, at 10½ A. M., the ordinance of baptism will be administed. Let all attend who can, and thus give interest to the scene. Will Bro. Carpenter prepare to take me to my appointment at East Shelley, at 4 o'clock P. M., same day?

C. F. SWEET.

Notice.

The call for a tent meeting at Wallingford Farms, Ct., is withdrawn until further notice.

For the Brethren, E. J. WHITEHEAD.

Photographs.

For seventy-five cents, I will send the photographs of Eld. J. V. Himes, Eld. D. R. Mansfield, and Mrs. M. S. Mansfield. Single copies of either, post paid, thirty cents. This is to meet the continual applications for these pictures.

Address, WM. L. HIMES, Buchanan, Mich.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNINGS, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON.
Israel Damman..........Sunday, June 17th

EAST BOSTON.
(Chapel, corner of London and Decatur Streets.)
H. L. Hastings..........Sunday, June 17th
C. Goodrich..........Sunday, July 1st

Charlestown, (60 Maine Street)..........Sunday, June 17th
C. C. RAMSAY.

Exeter, N. H..........Sunday, June 17th
Worcester, Mass..........Sunday, June 24th
MILES GRANT.

Pittsfield, N. H..........Sunday, June 24th
Warner, N. H., Waterloo, 5 o'clock P. M., June 29th
Sunapee, (South meeting-house)..........Sunday, July 1st
Hartland, Vt., (Dinsmore Hill)..........July 8th
J. COUCH.

Vernon, Vt..........Sunday, June 24th
A. COON.

Abington, Ct..........Sunday, June 17th
West Woodstock, Ct., 5 o'clock P. M..........June 17th
H. F. CARPENTER.

New Britain, Ct..........Sunday, June 17th
W. S. CAMPBELL.

North Canton..........Sunday, June 24th
Lovely Street..........Sunday, July 1st
Wrightville..........Sunday, July 8th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

Greenwood City (baptism)..........Sunday, June 17th
J. C. WHEELER.

Scitico..........Sunday, June 17th
A. MORSE.

Agawam, Mass..........Sunday, June 17th
I. B. POTTER.

Lawrence, Mass..........Sunday, June 17th
J. H. F. VARNEY.

Medford, Me., near the ferry..........Sunday, June 17th
South Atkinson, Me., (Dora school-house), Sunday, June 24th. THOMAS SMITH.

Southbridge, Mass., Town Hall, Saturday evening and Sunday, June 30th and 31st. Baptism if the Lord will. H. L. HASTINGS.

West Alton, (as brethren may arrange), Tuesday evening, 5 P. M., June 19th.
Alton Corner, (as brethren may arrange), Thursday evening, 5 P. M., June 21st.
New Durham Corner, (as brethren may arrange), Friday evening, 5 P. M., June 22d.
New Durham Ridge..........Lord's day, June 24th
East Barnsted, (as brethren may arrange), Tuesday evening, 5 P. M., June 26th.
South Pittsfield, (as Bro. C. S. Emerson may arrange), Wednesday evening, 5 P. M., June 27th.
Northwood Narrows, Saturday, 5 P. M., June 30th, over the Lord's day, July 1st, and longer if thought best.
B. P. MANNING.

Mannsville, N. Y., (as Bro. Henry Miles may arrange), Sunday, June 24th.
Barnes' Corners..........Thursday evening, June 28th
Bickford school-house..........Friday evening, June 29th
West Martinsburgh..........Sunday, July 1st
Copenhagen..........Sunday, July 8th
Let there be a good turn out in the vicinity of these meetings. C. B. TURNER.

Durham, Ct..........Sunday, June 17th
O. D. WOODRUFF.

Harrisburg, N. Y., (Bickford school-house), Sunday, June 17th, at 10½ A. M. and 7½ P. M.
West Martinsburg..........evenings, June 19th and 20th
C. H. WILLIAMS.

Lovely Street..........Sunday, June 17th
Barkhamsted, South Hollow..........Sunday, June 24th
North Canton..........evening, June 24th
S. WOODRUFF.

West Haven..........Sunday, June 24th
F. H. BURBANK.

Manchester, N. H..........Lord's day, July 1st
C. C. STEVENS.

Oceanport, N. J..........June 17th
W. N. PILE.

East Raymond, Me., (Freewill Baptist meeting-house), Sunday, June 17th. A. O. BURRILL.

Great Falls, N. H., (if conflicting with no other appointment), June 17th. H. S. PINKHAM.
SMITH HAWKINS.

Colebrook, N. H..........Sunday, June 17th
Will tarry in that vicinity two weeks.
JAS. A. LIBBY.

West Poland, Me., (Free Chapel). Sunday, June 24th
JARED WHITMAN.

CONCORD, N. H.
(Corner of Green and Center Streets.)
Timothy Cole..........July 1st and 8th
H. Munger..........July 22d and 29th

Barnstead, N. H., (Clark meeting-house), Sunday, June 24th.
Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, July 1st
Loudon Ridge..........Sunday, July 8th
Northwood Narrows..........Sunday, July 15th
T. G. SMITH.

Cheshire Street, Ct..........Sunday, June 17th
WM. H. FISHER.

Concord, N. H..........Sundays, June 17th and 24th
Clinton, Mass..........evening, June 25th
Lynn, Mass..........evening, June 28th
C. GOODRICH.

Lynn, Mass..........Lord's day, June 17th
L. C. MCKINSTRY.

Loudon Ridge..........Sunday, June 17th
Northwood Narrows..........Sunday, June 24th
W. W. SUTHERLAND.

Nashua..........Sunday, June 17th
Danbury..........Sunday, June 24th
Chichester Pine Ground..........Sunday, July 1st
Z. FORD.

Maryall, Ct., (as Bro. D. T. Beers may arrange), Sunday, June 17th. SAMUEL CURRY.

Westerly, R. I., 11 o'clock A. M., at the Quarry meeting house, Sunday, June 17th. S. C. HANCOCK.

Warehouse Point..........June 17th
South Reading..........Sunday, July 1st
Portsmouth, N. H..........Sunday, July 8th
J. S. WHITE.

North Norway, Me..........Sunday, June 17th
And at each place evenings during the weeks following Sunday appointments, as brethren may wish.
I. C. WELLCOME.

New Britain, Ct..........June 17th
R. WILLIAMS.

Alton Corner..........Sunday, June 10th
C. S. EMERSON.

Portland, Me..........June 17th and 24th
TIMOTHY COLE.

Warner, N. H., (Tory Hill school-house), Sunday, June 17th. SIMEON KORY.

Bradford, N. H., (Pond meeting-house), Sunday, June 17th. JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Loudon Ridge..........Sunday, June 17th
GEORGE W. RANDALL.

New Durham Ridge..........Sunday, June 17th
S. S. MOONEY.

Harvard, Mass., (at Bro. Withington's), 3 o'clock P. M., Friday, June 15th.
Clinton, Mass..........Sunday, June 17th
L. BOUTELL.

Bath, Me..........Sunday, June 24th
R. R. YORK.

North Pownell, Vt..........Sunday, June 17th
Blackinton, Mass. (if desired), 7½ P. M., June 18th
North Adams, Mass. (if desired)..7½ P. M., June 19th
Savoy, (as Bro. Blanchard may arrange), 7½ P. M., June 20th and 21st.
Hawley (King Corner school-house) 7½ P. M., June 22d
Plainfield Pond..........Sunday, June 24th
At Bro. Healy's in the evening.
At Bro. David Thayer's, 7½ P. M., June 25th and 26th
I will preach in any other places as doors may open.
H. HADLOCK.

Portsmouth, N. H..........Sunday, June 17th
Lawrence, Mass., (Appleton Hall, corner of Essex and Lawrence Streets), Sunday, June 24th.
A. DUCKER.

Bolton Lake S. House..........Sunday, June 17th
Week day appointments at 4 P. M. C. P. DOW.

Danbury..........June 17th
New Hampton, (at Bro. Pike's)..........June 24th
Meredith Centre, (as brethren may arrange), evening, June 24th. F. S. HANSON.
J. KNOWLTON.

Lawrence..........Monday evening, June 18th
Lowell..........Tuesday eve., June 19th
Manchester..........Thursday eve., June 21st
Concord..........Sunday, June 24th
Canaan..........July 1st
I. DAMMAN.

Pleasant Valley, Ct..........Sunday, June 17th
New Britain, Ct..........Sunday, June 24th
Yalesville, Ct..........Sunday, July 1st
Cheshire Street, Ct..........Sunday, July 8th
New Preston appointment recalled.
CHAS. H. PITNER.
SAMUEL M. TAYLOR.

CONCORD, N. H., (ANDERSON HALL.)
A. Simpson..........Sunday, June 17th
Israel Damman..........Sunday, June 24th

Walbridge..........Sunday, June 17th
F. S. BUTLER.

Densmore Hill, Vt..........June 19th
and over Sunday. GEO. A. STREETER.

Will hold meetings every Sunday, at the house of Bro. Russell, Natick, Mass., till further notice.
J. M. MUELLER.

Sandwich, (Vittum school-house)..........June 17th
B. W. PIPER.

Bristol and Hemoye..........June 17th
F. BURR.

Business.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 883. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness, if less than 26 weeks, charge five cents; if more than 26 weeks, six cents. From the product which will be a fraction over the annual indebtedness deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.25 each.—A A Brooks 874, E A Chandler 873, D J Farrand 883, G. Huntley 878, C. Chamblin 883, C. E. Smith 883, J Cutler 883, H Robins 883, D G Green 883, J H Dixon 883, H J Sweetland 883, M. Dorley 883, N Peck 873, G Tyler 884, F Allen 883, F S Knowlton 883, S Harding 887, N T Moulton 881.

$2.50 each.—S Hubbard 883, E Scott 912, A Humiston 847, P Heller 883, L A Bishop 910, N M Pierce 883, J W Kimball 883, B. R. Stearns 907, J J Austin 883, A Pease 883, H Hubble 883, S Parker 883, E Gibson 883, B Dowse 883, A Watson 883, A Ware 883, J D Goodrich 883, J Hines 883, W Smith 883, J J Clark 883, C. Oram 883, J. Mader 883, J. Criery 883, J. Stratton 883, M Ramer 816, M Bradford 883, H B Osborn 883, W S Howe 883, E Trott 883, F Wheeldon 887, A Farrow 818, D Bonn 883.

$5.00.—J. R. Greenleaf 855, E Green 933, S. Walker 874, N Mirick 887, E West 874, H G Whitaker 877, C P Houghtaling 883, J Bonn 930.

Various Sums.—C B Keach $1.00, 878; S C Kingsley $1.00, 883; L. M. Goodyear $1.00, 870; R. Aird $1.00, 883; M. Breed 50c, 883; G. W. Pressell $2.75, 889; A. Medberry $1.30, 883; C Cottle $1.75, 883.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

M. L. Colton 50c, S. K. Gibson $1.00, R. Wilson $5.00, G. W. Pressell $2.25, A. Good 45c, R. Atkins $1.40, L Marsh 75c, S K Vickers $1.00, J A Cleaveland $1.50, O. G. Watkins $2.00, C. W. Waterhouse 50c, L Scholl $6.00, D S Green 50c, J H Dixon $1.25, F Platt $8.75, J Thomas 50c, A W Taylor $1.00, L V Pierce $3.00, J. Wheeler $2.75, H. J. Sweetland $1.00, C. H. Shepherd 50c, A. Watson $2.00, J Reynolds 75c, W O McNary $1.10, T B Duncan $8.75, G W Barnes $15.00, S. Benton $4.10, G. S. Haynie $1.45, W. E. Pinkham $1.00, L. R. Fellows $1.00, N. Sagendorph $1.35, J. S. Richards 84c.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

C H Sweet, B Waterhouse, N Colburn, J T Kimball, M J Plummer, F Burr, E Winchester, W Wilkins, D F Newton, W Stone.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—Bro. Addison Wheeler, teacher of a freedmen's school at Uniontown, Washington, D. C., wishes to acknowledge through the Crisis the receipt of two barrels of clothing from three good sisters in Bakerville, Ct.

ADDRESS OF PREACHING BRETHREN.

C. E. Piper—41 Grove Street, Boston, Mass.
C. Goodrich—60 Marion Street, East Boston, Mass.
Bro. A. W. Sibley has removed from East Boston to Lincoln, N. H. All letters should be addressed to the latter place.
Israel Damman—For two or three weeks, New Bedford, Mass.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.
L. Boutell—Salem, Mass.
I. B. Potter—Somerville, Ct.
Wm. H. Fisher—Ashland, Mass.
H. F. Carpenter—Danielsonville, Ct.
F. A. Baker—North Searsport, Me.
Joseph W. White—Portsmouth, N. H.
N. Hartshorn—Laconia, N. H.
J. G. Smith—New Durham, N. H.
J. Partridge—Richmond, Me.
C. H. Leverton—Surry, Hancock Co., Me.
O. D. Gibson—Amboy, Ill.
J. R. Preston—Prairie du Sac, Sauk Co., Wis.
R. J. Whitehead—Wallingford, Ct.
C. C. Stevens—Exeter, N. H.
L. C. McKinstry—Lynn, Mass., until July 1st.
John T. Oagley—Lincolnville, Crawford Co., Pa.
S. D. Daniels—Springfield, Mass.
G. W. Turner—West Point, Wis.
C. P. Dow—My P. O. address for United States' correspondents will be hereafter Franklin, Vt.
Wm. McCulloch—New Rutland, Ill.
P. W. Hough—Cascade, Iowa.
Mrs. Abigail Mussey—Hillsburgh, Nova Scotia.
G. W. Stetson—Olena, Huron Co., Ohio, until Sept.
Wm. A. Fenn—Pulaski, Oswego Co., N. Y.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
N. A. Hitchcock—Exeter, Green Co., Wis.
N. F. Nason—North Hermon, Me.
C. B. Turner—South Butler, Wayne Co., N. Y.
S. C. Hancock—Forestville, Conn.
Samuel Curry—Station E., New York.
S. P. Babcock—Malaga, N. J.
Josiah Durgin—Wadley's Falls, N. H.
H. Pratt—Springfield, Mass., 87 Cedar St.
Jacob Wilbur—Box 941, Janesville, Rock Co., Wis.
F. H. Burbank, Missionary—Residence S. W. Cor. 7th and Spring-Garden Streets, Philadelphia, Penn.
Mrs. Anna E. Smith—No. 300 Seventh Avenue, below 33d Street, New York City.
Dr. I. I. Leslie—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.
Martha S. Butler—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT. The Common English Version as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union. Prices, by mail, post-paid—Family and Pulpit Edition (8vo. Pica), Plain Cloth, $2.25; Extra Cloth, $2.75. Medium size (18mo. Brevier), Plain Cloth, 85c.; Extra Cloth, $1.10; Sheep, $1.25; Roan, Colored Edges, $1.60.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the work of Demons: An Examination of its Origin, Morals, Doctrines, and Politics. By Miles Grant. Single copy, 15c.; eight copies for $1.00; $10.00 per hundred.

THE PROPHETIC TIME QUESTION; or, Bible Time Examined. By Wm. Sheldon. 27c.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed. 50c.

VISIONS OF ELLEN G. WHITE, not of God. By B. F. Snook and Wm. H. Brinkerhoff. 10c.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

Sent, postpaid, as follows:

1.	I don't believe in Religion	12 pp., 3c.
2.	Did the World make itself?	16 pp., 4c.
3.	Is God Everybody, and Everybody God?	16 pp., 4c.
4.	Have we any need of the Bible?	24 pp., 4c.
5.	Who wrote the New Testament?	16 pp., 4c.
6.	Is the Gospel Fact or Fable?	16 pp., 4c.
7.	Can we believe Christ and his Apostles?	16 pp., 4c.
8.	Prophecy	22 pp., 5c.
9.	Moses and the Prophets	28 pp., 5c.
10.	Infidelity among the Stars	28 pp., 5c.
11.	Daylight before Sunrise	36 pp., 5c.
12.	Telescopic Views of Scripture	22 pp., 5c.
13.	Science, or Faith?	22 pp., 5c.

For the Set, (making 304 pp.)..........50c. postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston Mass.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1.	Home	16 pp
2.	Life Insurance	16 pp
3.	Lost! Lost!	8 pp.
4.	Brother, shall we meet?	8 pp.
5.	About God (for children)	4 pp.
6.	Worth Knowing	4 pp.
7.	Peace in Christ	4 pp.
8.	Now	4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent postpaid—

One set (64 pp.)	6 c.
1200 pp.	$1.00
1800 pp., (by express, not prepaid)	$1.00

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

[illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom as it is. [illegible] By H. L. Hastings.

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer; or, a History of the Doctrine of the Reign of Christ on Earth. [illegible] By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity; and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, or The Tokens of Speedy Redemption. By H. L. Hastings [illegible]

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man; its Origin, Progress and End. [illegible] By H. L. Hastings.

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; [illegible]

Notice.

Elder Thomas Smith, Bangor, Me., has on hand for sale H. L. Hastings' "Signs of the Times," with an assortment of his various Tracts; also, the Tracts by Miles Grant, on "The Soul," "The Spirit," and "What is Man?" and other Advent tracts.

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE

ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY

No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Works on the Prophecies—The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, etc.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES; or, A Glance at Christendom as it is. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. By D. T. Taylor. Cloth, $1.50; paper, 60c.

THESSALONICA, the Model Church, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, by H. L. Hastings; and SPIRITUALISM, by Dr. Ramsey. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. With various tracts. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

MATTHEW XXIV. AND XXV. An Exposition, showing Christ's Predictions fulfilled, and his Kingdom near. By L. C. Wellcome. 25c; by mail, 27c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 1, By S. S. Brewer. 7c; by mail, 8c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 2, By S. S. Brewer. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 3, By S. S. Brewer. 12c; by mail, 13c.

REASONS FOR MY HOPE; or, Tokens of Speedy Redemption. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD, and Signs of the Times. By S. S. Brewer. 15c; by mail, 20c.

THESSALONICA; or, The Model Church. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

REVELATIONS XIII.; a treatise. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

SPIRITUALISM a Satanic Delusion. By Wm. Ramsay, D. D. 20c.

THE SEVEN SEALS. Exposition of Rev. vi. By S. S. Brewer. 5c; by mail, 6c.

LOOKING FORWARD; or, Prospects of the Church. By H. L. Hastings. 10c.

THE DAYS WE LIVE IN; The Lord soon to come. By S. S. Brewer. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CELESTIAL RAILROAD; or, Modern Pilgrim's Progress. 5c; by mail, 10c.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 15c; by mail, 16c.

THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. By S. S. Brewer. 5c; by mail, 10c.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE GREAT IMAGE soon to be dashed to pieces, By S. S. Brewer. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 6c; by mail, 7c.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the times of Daniel and John. Mounted on Rollers, by express. $6.00; on Cloth, by mail, $6.00.

THE REIGN OF MESSIAH, the King of the Jews on the Throne of his Father David; Its Nature, and the Time of its Commencement. By Wm. Sheldon. 5c; by mail, 10c.

Works on Future Punishment, etc.

DEBT AND GRACE; or, The Doctrine of a Future Life. By C. F. Hudson. A very able and learned work. $1.50.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. Cloth, 75c; paper, 45c.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT as taught in the Scriptures. Comprising Pauline Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, Old Paths, etc. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

STATE OF THE DEAD, and Punishment of the Wicked. A Discussion between Miles Grant and W. W. Clayton. 20c; by mail, 23c.

ETERNAL SUFFERING A Discussion between Miles Grant and Dr. J. Litch. 15c; by mail, 20c.

RETRIBUTION; or, The Doom of the Ungodly. By H. L. Hastings 20c.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, The Destruction of the Wicked established, and Endless Misery disproved. By Jacob Blain. 25c; by mail, 30c.

PAULINE THEOLOGY; or, The Christian Doctrine of Future Punishment, as taught in the Epistles of Paul. H. L. H. 10c.

GLAD TIDINGS; or, The End of Woe and Sin by the Destruction of the Wicked. (Three chapters from "Death not Life.") By J. Blain. 5c; by mail, 10c.

THE OLD PATHS; or, The Primitive Doctrine of a Future Life. By H. L. H. 10c.

IMMORTAL SOUL THEOLOGY vs. BIBLE. By S. S. Brewer. 6c; by mail, 10c.

WHAT IS MAN? A Bible View of his Creation. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SOUL; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SPIRIT; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS; Thief on the Cross, etc. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE DOCTRINE OF ENDLESS MISERY an occasion of Scepticism. 5c; by mail, 6c.

ETERNAL DEATH in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. 6c; by mail, 8c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. With remarks on Josephus. By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE RIGHTS OF WRONG; or, Is Evil Eternal? By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ENDLESS MISERY not a Bible Doctrine. 4c; by mail, 6c.

THE WICKED NOT IMMORTAL—(with 200 proof-texts.) 3c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING OF THE WORD HELL. 3c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING of Forever and Everlasting. 3c; by mail, 4c.

SMOKE OF TORMENT and Unquenchable Fire Explained. 1c; by mail, 2c.

REV. JOHN FOSTER'S LETTER on Future Punishment. 1c; by mail, 2c.

Miscellaneous.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF CHRISTIAN HOLINESS: A Sermon, by S. H. Platt. 15c.

THE DAY AND THE HOUR: a Lecture, by Joseph A. Seiss, D. D. 15c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.25. Cloth, $1.75; by mail, $2.07.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five colored Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.33. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. $2.50; by mail, $2.85.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, the Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE BIBLE FROM HEAVEN; or, a Dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. 25c; by mail, 29c.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM; its Duty and Objects. By L. C. Wellcome. 20c. postpaid; $2.00 per dozen.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK; for Families and Sunday Schools. 15c; by mail, 18c; $1.50 per dozen; postage, 6c. on every three copies.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS FIGHT?—a tract on War. By L. C. Wellcome. 10c.

AMERICA IN PROPHECY; an Exposition of Isaiah XVIII. By O. R. Fassett. 5c; by mail, 10c.

EVERY BODY'S BOOK; the Personality of God; The Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By P. A. Smith. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CHRISTIAN LYRE; a Collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. 50c; by mail, 56c.

HOW TO COOK—without Salt, Butter, Lard, or Condiments. By Mrs. Mary E. Cox, M. D. 20c. postpaid.

COOKERY; or How to prepare food from Grain, Fruits and Vegetables. By F. W. Hurd, M. D. 15c; by mail, 17c.

PREMATURE DECAY of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE OLD AND NEW COVENANT—Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. 6c; by mail, 10c.

EXPERIENCE AND OBSERVATIONS of a Bruised Reed. By F. H. Chamberlain. By mail, 17c.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-word Translation, etc. etc. Leather, $4.00; by mail, $4.10. Extra gilt, $4.50; by mail, $4.95. Morocco, $5.00; by mail, $5.55.

CHLOE LANKTON, or Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75c; by mail, 87c.

NON-RESISTANCE. By W. C. Thurman. 30c; by mail, 36c.

DIPHTHERIA: its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. 10c; by mail, 12c.

GLAD VOICES; Words by D. T. Taylor, Music by J. Reimer. 3c. single; by mail, 4c. 30 cents a dozen, postpaid.

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. 10c; eight copies for $1.00.

BETHLEHEM: a Rhyme for Children. By E. L. Hastings. 10c. postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

SOCIAL HYMNS. Original and Selected. By E. L. H. [illegible]

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. For Sunday Schools, etc. [illegible]

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; [illegible]

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. By A. P. [illegible] 5c; by mail, 7c.

OUR MISSION WORK; a Report of the [illegible]

EXPERIENCE OF THOMAS H. JONES, who was a Slave for forty-three years. 25c.

BLIND BARTIMEUS; or, How to be Saved. [illegible]

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS; [illegible] By Wm. Sheldon. 20c.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BLOOMING EARTH.

The winter's gone, the flowers appear,
The merry birds do sing;
Their voices raised in songs of praise,
Make nature's temple ring.
Six thousand years old earth has stood
Beautiful work of God;
Still she shows for the work of God,
The beautiful, sublime.

Bloom on, old earth, your fragrance fling
Throughout the land afar;
We ne'er can tell the joy you bring,
How many hearts you cheer;
A soothing charm to hush awhile
The tumult of the mind,
To banish grief by nature's smile,
And leave no sting behind.

Bloom on, sweet flowers, in beauty fair
Upon the graves of those
Who years ago beheld like us,
Whose eyes in death are closed.
And many more are looking now
Upon this lovely May,
The last in time for them to view,—
They too must pass away.

Bloom on, sweet flowers; where all is false,
We find you still the same;
Emblems of innocence and love,
Freedom from sin or stain.
Bloom on, old earth, thy children sigh,
They're weary, full of care,
They groan with thee, and ever cry
For full redemption here.

Bloom on, old earth, and shadow forth
The things which are to come;
When earth redeemed shall bloom again,
The saint's eternal home;
Our paradise restored at last,
Our hearts desire we see,
No more to hope, or even ask,
For heaven is unity.

West Brattleboro, Vt. A. M. STARK.

For the World's Crisis

THE ST. LOUIS MISSION.

(Concluded.)

HOW THE MONEY WAS DISPOSED OF.

I made up my mind to remain for the present. We went for a hall, and found one in the southeast corner of Third Street and Washington Avenue. It was the first we ever found to rent for an African church. We could have it for $15.00 a month, $180.00 a year, each month's rent to be paid in advance. I leased the hall, and paid one month's rent in advance. I bought and paid for lumber for making seats, desks, platform, etc., costing, with the nails, about $35.00 more. In company with Bro. Pollard, from Carlinville, who assisted me a good part of the time, made the seats, desk, and platform, thus saving, perhaps, $35.00. The lamps, chandelier (which was partly given to us), chairs, and other things necessary for a church and school, cost in all $77.61. $30.00 of the balance were used to liquidate my board bill. I would not be so particular in naming all these things, but I want you to understand things just as they are. I did not come out here as a hireling preacher, neither do I intend to be one now. I never have preached for wages, or for hire, and hope I shall never backslide enough to do so. I am exceedingly thankful to think I can have the privilege of working just before the end, for the salvation of poor freedmen, for my food, leaving the raiment out and making the old do. For I tell you there is far more glory in preaching the gospel to those who love it, and are willing to be saved by it, even if we live on bread and water, than to enjoy all the luxuries of life and preach to a gospel-hardened race, who will not hear.

Glory to God! with all the bitter trials, cares, perplexities, sorrows, responsibilities, disappointments and wearisome labor of a missionary life, there are some excellent things to be enjoyed by those who are willing to forsake all for the sake of Christ and the gospel, which can never be realized in preaching it to hardened sinners and hypocrites. First; they will not be troubled with cold, formal meetings. Second; sinners will listen attentively, and when asked to come forward and give their hearts to Christ, they come without urging. Third; when born into the liberty, they come alive, shouting, and praising God, so that every person in the house will know it. Fourth; they commence to work in good earnest, trying to get others converted to God and the truth. Fifth; instead of urging them to duty in prayer meetings, you are often obliged to urge them at a late hour to cease for that night and go home. And then, too, after closing the meeting to go home yourself, the others will often remain and continue the meeting for a long time. Sixth; instead of the preacher's being obliged to talk to fill up time in prayer and conference meetings, he can hardly find a place to squeeze a word in edgewise. Yes, praise the Lord, there are a multitude of other good things not found among a gospel-hardened people.

THE DEDICATION.

Our hall, after being fitted up with seats, desk, platform, lights, etc., was dedicated to God as a house of worship, Sunday, April 29th, according to notice. A sermon was preached from 1 Cor. 1: 12, 13. It was shown that while many others professed to be followers of good men, our object and purpose was to follow Christ and the teachings of his word. And that our purpose should be to accept of no other name but the one first given to the disciples at Antioch. Acts 11: 26.

THE CHURCH.

At the close of the preaching, seventeen came forward by request, and gave their names as Christian believers, resolving to take the pure word of God as their only rule of faith and practice, receiving no other creed, covenant or discipline, but what could be found between the lids of the Bible, believing that the Holy Scriptures are able to make us wise unto salvation through faith, which is in Christ Jesus. That they are profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, without any unnecessary and strictly forbidden additions which man could make. In the evening, two more united with us. The day was a solemn and impressive one, and we humbly trust a profitable one to each of our hearts.

The following Sabbath, seven more united with us, making twenty-six in all. Next Lord's day, more have promised to unite, and many others in due time.

A white brother, Darius Crouch, formerly an ordained preacher and a firm believer in the Advent of Christ in '43 and '44, has united with us, and will preach the word. He is with us in the faith of the gospel. He now resides in this city. Also a young colored preacher, Geo. W. Henderson, with his wife, from the Methodist church on 11th street, has united with us, and preached for us last Sunday evening. I dare not speak of the prospect in the future, however bright it may be, for we have not yet forgotten our disappointment of the past. But I will only say we need your prayers and sympathy, and trust that God in due time will cause your hearts with ours to rejoice in the victory and triumph of his truth in the salvation of very many in this city and vicinity. He will accomplish it in his own way and time; so that we can only say to you now, be hopeful; pray on, and look for better days coming to the little African flock of St. Louis.

O! we do feel very thankful and praise God for the triumph and victory of his truth thus far. And it is with subdued feelings that I venture to write as much. But my soul is full as I look at things as they present themselves to us now. But

"No strength of our own, nor goodness we claim:
Our trust is all thrown on Jesus' name;
In this our strong tower for safety we hide;
The Lord is our power—the Lord will provide."

THE NIGHT SCHOOL.

We commenced a night school for the freedmen, Monday evening last, with six scholars. Tuesday we had seven; Wednesday nine, and last evening twelve. By to-morrow evening we shall probably have fifteen. Many more are coming in next week. We expect a large school. It is being made up of the best and most intelligent of the colored freedmen, who more readily appreciate the blessings of education. The school is in charge of Srs. D. K. Prescott and Francelia F. Curtis, who have always taken a deep interest in the progress of events here. My part is to sweep the hall, take care of the lamps, open and light the house, stand at the door when I can, to show new comers the way; do the running of errands, and whatever other business needs to be done; which to some may appear rather insignificant, who do not appreciate the object of Christ in giving the gospel to the poor; but, praise the Lord, I can cheerfully sing with the poet,—

"I have sweet hopes of glory in my soul."

We have meetings among our colored friends Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings, at private houses. A Bible class at Sr. Waite's (white) on Friday evening. On Wednesday evening, our white brethren and sisters hold prayer meetings at another white brother's house on 19th street, where, also, some colored people attend. Next Lord's day, we intend to commence a Sunday school for African children.

Thus you have a synopsis of what is being done. The school is kept five evenings each week. You see we have not much time to be idle.

FINALLY.

It is my purpose in four or six weeks to come home, if it is the Lord's will. We hope to see things so well settled in that time that I can leave for the East and remain till after campmeeting, and longer if the brethren and sisters East wish for some others to take the field. I will most cheerfully give up the work to any brother who believes that the gospel is the first and great thing to be presented to the freedmen, as the only stepping stone to their salvation, above all, and before all other things; to which other things may be added in due time; such as reading, spelling, writing, or any other branch of an English education. But as I am a firm believer in the soon coming of Jesus Christ to reign on the earth, I do not feel willing to place common schools, nor common school teachers, at the head of the gospel; regarding their work as a necessary prerequisite in order to prepare sinners for the coming judgment, or to prepare their minds for the reception of the gospel. We have but a little time to work, and all our efforts, time and money should be thrown heartily into the work of saving sinners.

May 14. We had a good time in the Lord yesterday. The number of our church and congregation increases. Six more African brethren and sisters were added to our number yesterday, making thirty-two. Judging from appearances, we expect a corresponding increase from Sabbath to Sabbath. Last Friday evening, the number of scholars had increased to fifteen. We have some twelve to fifteen more who are coming in this week, making thirty. We commenced our Sunday school yesterday with seventeen. We were astonished at so good a number the first Sabbath. Our meeting commences at eleven A. M. Sunday school from half past one to three P. M., when our afternoon service commences again. Evening service commences at half past seven, with a short sermon, after which a conference meeting is continued until ten. The length of my letter forbids me to say more than this: we do have most excellent meetings. I wish sometimes that some of our Eastern friends could just step into one of our conference meetings.

Some of our brightest hopes have been blown away by the enemy's shell, and at the time when we thought we were achieving a great victory in the triumph of God's truth, we have suffered the most bitter disappointment. But God works in his own way. We begin to see light out of darkness. Victory is being given us in another direction. Our church, although in the midst of the most business part of the city, is away out one side from the African part of the city, which prevents very many from coming to the church, or school, who otherwise would, if we were located somewhere west of 6th street, and north of Washington Avenue. It was the best we could do. But we are growing and gaining strength every week. Truth is triumphing over error, and every week gives us new converts to the truth, adding strength and numbers to the church. And we do most ardently believe that the progress and development of future events will fully demonstrate the fact that the preaching of the gospel to the freedmen, and urging them to repentance, to "seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness," is the only sure and successful way in which we can reasonably expect the favor and blessing of God to attend our labor. This was my plan before I left the East. And all my feeble efforts since coming here have been strictly in conformity to those gospel principles, notwithstanding all the perplexing and embarrassing difficulties thrown in my way. But I feel to praise God for it all. It has been overruled for good. For by a force of circumstances over which I had no control, I have been prevented from going East, as I intended, months ago, since which time more has been and is being done by the Lord, not through my feeble efforts alone, but through the united efforts of God's dear children here, than our most sanguine hopes ever dared to express. There is not a schism in the little church the Lord has planted here. Not one with whom we feel tried. All appear happy and hopeful of success, only as the Lord shall approve and prosper us. All work, sing, pray and exhort in the way and according to the gift he receives from the Lord.

I thank the brethren and sisters at the East, from whom I receive kind letters of encouragement, and who rejoice in the work, as they term it, the Lord is doing through me. But remember, dear brethren and sisters, it is the work of God and the triumph he gives to his truth. The glory is his. I am but one feeble instrument, together with a little flock in this city, whose unceasing prayers and united efforts, both night and day, have been crowned so far with good success. Pray that God will increase our number with such as shall be saved.

May 15. Our number of scholars to the night school has increased to fifteen.

A NEW HOUSE OF WORSHIP.

We must have a house of our own to worship in, situated in the part of the city where the freedmen can have ready access to it. I have promised it, in the Fall, the Lord willing, and if I did not think that our brethren and sisters East would cheerfully furnish the means, I could not feel like facing the bitter persecutions I receive from some of the white preachers, who alone have raised the storm against the soon coming of Christ. The doors, windows, glass, nails, and some other things, will be given to us here. A man who is a friend to us, will furnish and do the roofing at half price. The lumber we can get at cost, from those who will aid us thus much. The seats we already have, together with the lights, chandelier, desk, chairs, etc., which we got with the view of having them for the church. The other seats I could make myself. All the carpenter work could be done by myself and an excellent colored brother of our church. The walls must be of brick, according to a city law. I cannot say any more about it now. Do you wish for this city and its vicinity to become the great breastwork of the West, providing the Lord should not come before '68? Then, brethren, will you look the matter in the face? Will you meet it? The money can be raised in this city alone. And some of the money would come from those who have formerly owned slaves, too. But the task would be a great one, and should be freely raised by us. Now I do believe the money will come, and come freely.

Remember us in your prayers, and do not forget, while at the throne of grace, to mention the name of your unworthy brother, looking for that "blessed hope."

H. K. FLAGG.

For the World's Crisis.

SPIRITUALISM,—WHAT IS IT? CHRIST, OR ANTICHRIST?

NUMBER ONE.

I propose, in a series of articles, to answer this question. With the external aspect of Spiritualism, the public mind is already familiar. Every body has heard of the spiritual rapping, table-tipping, trance, clairvoyance, etc.; and most every body has witnessed some of these phenomena.

Spiritualism is by no means in a corner. It is openly preached, practised, and believed in by millions; and numbers among its followers judges, priests, lawyers, men of science, statesmen, politicians, princes and crowned heads. It is true, men of science are a little shy of it; and as a scientific question it remains pretty much where it was left by the investigations of the famous Buffalo doctors, and the demonstrations of Professor Hare.

It is generally agreed that Mesmerism is the prime agent used in the manifestations; but to agree to this, and stop there, leaves the question as far from solution as ever; for what is mesmerism? And it is generally agreed among believers in the reality of these phenomena, that they are free from collusion of the mediums; that the intelligences manifested through them are disembodied human spirits. Its converts are believed to number in the United States from two to three millions; and its mediums partially, or fully developed, from eight to ten thousand; thus making an aggregate, if the latter estimate be correct, equal to nearly the entire membership of the Protestant church of this country; and all this a growth of less than twenty years.

Nor are its believers confined to the unthinking and ignorant. It is well known among Spiritualists, that Mr. Lincoln, previous to his election to the Presidency, visited the rooms of Mr. Koonley, a test medium of New York city; and, from certain convincing demonstrations, expressed his belief that departed spirits were really present, and communicated with him; and, though it was not charged, nor perhaps believed, that Spiritualism in any way entered into the conduct of his administration, or of the war, it was alleged that a certain distinguished medium was sometimes closeted at the White House, and that Mr. Lincoln was in the habit of consulting mediums. It has also been asserted, but I know not on what authority, that our Secretary of State is a believer in spirits. It is also well known that the able and accomplished Robert Dale Owen, formerly minister to Naples, and at one time private counsellor to Mr. Lincoln, is the author of a book entitled, "Footfalls on the boundary of another world," in which, though he does not openly commit himself to Spiritualism, he furnishes the best array of fact and argument in support of its claims that I have ever met. And so we have Judge Edmonds, Dr. Dexter, Ex. Governor Tallmadge; and these enlightened men believe that they converse with departed human spirits upon matters pertaining to this world, as business, love, or marriage; and also of the affairs of the other life, in the separate state in which they exist.

But Spiritualism is not altogether an American institution. It is true it was born in New York, but it went with the very next steamer for Paris and London; and both these places have long had a Spiritual exchange. And it is well known the world over, to those who read the newspapers, and are posted in Spiritualistic literature, that Napoleon, the astute Emperor of the French, the man who holds the peace and destiny of Europe upon a single word delivered to the people of a country town,—the profound genius of statecraft and war-craft, to-day the foremost man of all the world,—is a Spiritualist, and confesses himself to be counseled and generaled by the "shade of his great uncle."

Hume, the distinguished medium (now, I think, a theatrical performer), when at Paris, was closeted with Napoleon oftener than his ministers; and when he left, his Imperial master gave him his card to the Emperor Alexander. And why is it strange that Napoleon should consult mediums? Did not Cæsar consult the oracles? and has not Napoleon written the life of Cæsar? and who doubts that this "man of destiny" means to set his Imperial foot upon the Tiber, then upon the Rhine, then upon the Thames, and then to sit upon Cæsar's throne?

There is in Spiritualism a good deal of the artful and indirect. It does not beckon you forward with open eye, and fair front; but takes you into its private sanctuary by side windows and trap doors. For instance, one must go through a lie to get into the truth; he must sin in order to be saved; he must be ignorant to be instructed; he must practise vice to know the nature of virtue; he must die in order to live; and go through hell to get into heaven; and much more of the like; and Napoleon, who is always to be interpreted by contraries, is the last political development of this art and indirection. In him, its all-inspiring soul is power; and if this were possible, that departed human spirits could revisit the earth, who shall say that Napoleon the Great may not be endeavoring, through his nephew, to recover the lost empire of the Cæsars; or that Wellington is not moving to another Waterloo? or that Washington is not in council to save the Union? and the rebel dead—Floyd, Tyler, Rhett, and Brooks, are not moving the occupant of the White House to destroy it?

But however this may be, Napoleon believes himself to be visited and counseled by his great uncle; and certain it is that he believes himself set to recover what his uncle lost at Waterloo; and moreover, certain it is that he has accomplished, diplomatically, what his uncle did with the sword. His word is to-day the law of Europe, and not till he shall will his own time have come, and then he shall die miserably, like a dog. Of course Spiritualism must thrive under the Imperial patronage; and, accordingly, we find it in France in a considerably more advanced stage of organization and philosophic development than here. There is said to be in Paris a Spiritualistic Institute, conducted by learned men and philosophers, who pursue their investigations with as much dignity and profundity as the Doctors of the Sorbonne.

"Let slip the dogs of war,"

And so, too, the amiable and motherly Queen of England believes herself in daily communication with the returning spirit of her beloved Albert Edward. At any rate, such is the fact, if credit is to be given to the London papers. There are other mothers who talk with returning husbands, and there are mothers in Israel who sit with mediums.

Spiritualism is also at Vienna, Rome, Constantinople, and no less at Washington and St. Petersburgh. It has already gone out to the kings of the earth to marshal them to the coming conflict. It is universal. It is pervading all classes. It is getting into all books, into the speeches of politicians, into the arguments of philanthropists, into the ministers' sermons, and once at least, if only to be kicked out, it has been into every social circle.

It is in the churches, and already it has emptied a number of pulpits. The Universalists would offer but feeble resistance, nor could the Unitarians do much better; for the rationalist part of their society (a considerable part) were Spiritualists already, minus a little rapping and tipping.

But the Calvinists have maintained nearly an unbroken front. They will not condescend to lift it into notice; and young ministers at Andover are taught to let it "severely alone." But Spiritualism has its clerical converts. We have heard none of them preach, but we have heard them lecture on the revelations of Pythagoras, the oracles of the sybils, and the visions of Joan; and we have heard them explain how Esculapius and Apollo were gods and saviors, as well as Christ.

That the church ought to have something to do with Spiritualism, and that it is something which it will ere long be compelled to notice and to grapple with as a gigantic evil, is to me perfectly clear; and it may be that Mr. Beecher will turn out but an advanced skirmisher of the Orthodox line.

Nor is Spiritualism a stranger on 'Change; but it is not a miser, nor properly a money-getter. It is not averse to trying its hand at stocks, though it speculates for philanthropic purposes. It has considerable aptness for financial operations, and has developed a number of strictly business mediums. It knows the price of gold, and can anticipate the rise and fall of the precious stuff as readily as any broker in State St. It is plainly as good, if it is not better than the banks and the bankers; and is willing to advise a man into Chancery for the benefit of his creditors; or to take office for the good of the people, as the best of counselors.

It has also a great genius for the discovery of hidden treasures. A couple of pirates are now directing extensive excavations at "Dungeon Rock," Lynn, Mass., through a Mr. Hiram Marble; alleging that there are immense treasures there deposited by themselves, near two hundred years ago, and since buried under this huge rock by an earthquake. Mr. Marble has penetrated this rock near two hundred feet, and still believes, and is still digging. And so Capt. Kidd has directed a number of believers where to dig for the treasures he buried when a pirate. He knows exactly where his treasures are buried, and has given minute directions how and where to dig; but unfortunately the diggers have not yet been able to find the exact spot. These pirates say that looking after the affairs of money is not at all to their liking, but that they are compelled to unearth these treasures and cause them to be devoted to the uses of charity as an atonement for their miserliness and ingratitude.

The gold miners also have their guardian genii and their enchanting spirits. The miners of Colorado, some of them at least, are under the guardianship of De Soto, the discoverer of the Mississippi; and the knowing ones purchase only the shares that De Soto works.

But the real business of Spiritualism is not to help men make money, or get office, but to give the world a new religion—the religion of nature; and to this end the Christian religion must be got out of the way. The Bible must be put on a level with the Koran and the Shasters; the prophets and the apostles must take a seat with clairvoyants and magicians, and the oracle at Athens must be made as honorable as the oracle at Jerusalem.

Spiritualism does not say that men are sick and sinful, but ignorant and ungrown. They do not need a Savior, but an instructor, and with the help they can get from each other, the right principle within them will lead them to all necessary truth. It does not say to men, Repent, for no man can help his nature and constitution; besides, there is no sin against God, for God is a part of every action. It does not say, Cast out the devil, but, Use him up; that is, exhaust him on his own plane.

It can have no doctrine of salvation, because it has got no doctrine of sin. It can not say, I baptize you in the "name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," and bring you into the kingdom of God as kings, priests, and heirs; but, I make you all acquainted with the laws of affinity, and initiate you into the mysteries of nature, and make you magicians, clairvoyants, and astrologers. In short, Spiritualism has no doctrine in common with the church, except the erroneous one of the natural immortality of the soul.

What then can be said of this new religion of Spiritualism,—a system whose adherents number by millions, and whose teachers by tens of thousands,—a system that rejects the Bible, and repudiates the entire ground of revealed religion? What, I say, can be said of all this, but that it is a vast and determined conspiracy against the christian religion? And if it be true that departed spirits can return, what more likely than that the invisible conspirators are none other than the self-same infidels and unbelievers who did the like when they were in the body,—the Porphyrs, the Julians, the Chubbs, the Voltaires, the Newmans, and the Paines? And it is a little curious that, so far as Spiritualists accept the New Testament, they copy the almost identical errors of the ancient heretics, as I shall show hereafter.

It would, indeed, be strange if Franklin could come and talk philosophy, and Paine could not come and talk religion. And this is exactly what Spiritualism is,—a conspiracy against christianity; and it is no less distinctly marked as such in the prophetic writings, than the rise and progress of the Papal church. And regarding it in this light, in what I have to say in answer to the question at the head of this article, I shall consider Spiritualism in its religious and political aspects only. I must however say here, that I do not include all Spiritualists in this general charge of infidelity and conspiracy. There are a few among them who call themselves "Christian Spiritualists," or "Bible Spiritualists." They accept the communion of departed spirits as not incompatible with a belief in the divine inspiration and authority of the Bible. They protest as vehemently against the infidelity and lawlessness of the Spiritualistic philosophy as could be desired; and in this we bid them God speed.

H. S. CHAPMAN.

[The foregoing is from one who has been a Spiritualist some twelve years, and has seen what is behind the curtain of Spiritualism. He has been in its mire, and knows whereof he affirms. He felt called to preach among the Baptists, some thirteen years since, and was led by seducing spirits into Spiritualism; where he has wandered in dark labyrinths till recently. He is now ready to serve the Lord. Pray for him.—ED.

For the World's Crisis.

MUST THE LITERAL CITY OF ROME BE BURNT BEFORE CHRIST CAN COME?

This claim is made by different classes: some insisting that it must be witnessed three and one-half years before the literal coming of Christ, and others supposing it may occur a short time before the advent. I was of the latter opinion for several years, and fancy I thoroughly understood the groundwork of the argument in its favor; but after mature deliberation, and prayerful reflection, I am fully satisfied the literal burning of the literal city of Rome is no where intimated in prophecy. The matter has positively been misunderstood, and the whole theory originated in mistaking symbolic language for literal. Let us examine some features of this theory:

1. One proof in support of this theory is sought in Revelation 17: 16.

"And the ten horns which thou sawest upon the beast, these shall hate the whore, and make her desolate and naked [literally?] and burn her with fire."

If the burning here mentioned is literal, it follows on the same principle, that they were to "eat" her literal "flesh"!!! Could the angel have meant that they should "eat her flesh" in a literal sense, and make this harlot woman "naked" in a literal sense? or is this simply a symbolic representation of the diminishing of her power and greatness?

If by eating the "flesh" of this symbolic woman, and making her "naked," the angel is simply giving a symbolic representation of the consuming judgments to be inflicted on the Papacy, then the other statement, "They shall burn her with fire," which he makes in the same prophecy, and in the same breath, must be understood in the same sense: and in this symbolic sense this prediction has been strikingly verified. Since the close of the bloody supremacy of the Papacy, which so long "reigned over the kings of the earth," the Roman horns have been consuming and diminishing the temporal power of the Papacy, stripping it, eating its symbolic flesh, and burning it with fire in a symbolic sense: or, as the angel said to Daniel concerning the persecuting "horn," which stood for the same power represented by the "woman," "They [the Roman horn] shall take away its dominion, to consume and destroy it to the end." (Dan. 7: 26.)

Furthermore: let not the fact be overlooked, that the statement, "They shall burn her with fire," was made with reference to the symbolic woman, instead of being made with reference to the interpretation, or the thing represented by the symbol; and the angel does not so mix up matters as to apply literal fire to a mere symbol. Had he first explained the symbol, and afterwards applied the fire to the thing represented by the symbol, there would have been more propriety in claiming that the "fire" is literal; but even then, we should have been puzzled to know how to understand the eating of "flesh," and making "naked" in a literal sense.

2. An attempt is, also, made to adduce proof in support of this theory from Rev. 18: 9.

"She saith in her heart, I sit a queen, and am no widow. Therefore her plagues [the plagues contained in the vials] shall come in one day [or commence in one prophetic day,] death, and mourning, and famine; and she shall be utterly burned with fire: for strong is the Lord God that judgeth her."

By reading the connection, the idea that literal fire is here applied to the literal city of Rome will depart from every reflecting mind. The next verse reads:

"And the kings of the earth that have committed fornication with her shall bewail and lament for her when they see the smoke of her burning."

Have the kings of the earth "committed fornication with the literal city of Rome, even in a symbolic sense? The city to be burnt has "committed fornication with the kings of the earth." This is true of the Papacy, having its seat of power at Rome; but is not true of Rome as a literal city which can be burnt with literal fire.

Again we read: "And the merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her; for no man buyeth her merchandise any more, and every ship-master, and all the company in ships, and sailors, and as many as trade by sea, stood afar off, and cried when they saw the smoke of her burning." (v. 11,-17.)

Do the literal "merchants of the earth" get their merchandise from the literal city of Rome? Do the literal "ship-masters" of the "seas" enrich themselves by trading with the literal city of Rome? And could the sailors on the various "seas" see the literal "smoke of the burning" of the literal city of Rome? Then the "burning" predicted is not the city of Rome. The truth is, when the "plagues" began to be poured out upon the Papacy at the end of the 1260 years of Papal supremacy, the spiritual dealers in Papal merchandise, by sea or land, began to lament the fall of this symbolic Babylon, from its former elevation above the nations, to an inferior position. This lamentation has been going on from 1793 till now; and it will continue till the resurrected "apostles and prophets" are called to rejoice over her," when Babylon, now diminished, shall be totally "thrown down, and shall be found no more at all." (v. 20, 21.)

WM. SHELDON.

For the World's Crisis.

HE IS FAITHFUL THAT PROMISED.

"Behold I come quickly."—REV. 3: 2.

"Even so, come, Lord Jesus!" "Why tarry the wheels of thy chariot?" Six thousand years this world has rolled on, getting hoary with age, and wrinkled with sins and sorrows. A waiting church sees the long-drawn shadows of twilight announcing, "The Lord is at hand." Prepare, my soul, to meet him. O! happy days, when thine adorable Redeemer, so long dishonored and despised, shall be publicly enthroned in presence of an assembled universe, crowned Lord of all, glorified in his saints, satisfied in the fruits of his soul's travail, destroying his enemies with the brightness of his coming—the lightning-glance of wrath, causing the hearts of his exulting people to "rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory." Prepare, my soul, to meet him! Let it be a joyous thought to thee, thy "blessed hope," the meeting of thine Elder Brother. Stand oftentimes on the watch-tower to catch the first streak of coming brightness, the first murmur of these chariot wheels. The world is in preparation. It is rocking on its worn-out axle. There are voices on every side proclaiming, "He cometh! he cometh! to judge the earth."

Reader, art thou among the number of those who "love his appearing"? Remember the attitude of his expectant saints—"Blessed are those servants whom the Lord, when he cometh, will find watching."—Selected by L. L. D.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

TRUTH.

Once there was a little boy,
With curly hair and pleasant eye,
A boy who always spoke the truth,
And never, never told a lie.

And when he trotted off to school,
The children all about would cry,
There goes the curly-headed boy,
The boy who never tells a lie.

And everybody loved him so,
Because he always told the truth,
That every day as he grew up,
'T was said, "There goes the honest youth."

And when the people that stood near,
Would turn to ask the reason why,
The answer would be always this—
"Because he never told a lie."

For the World's Crisis.

FRANKIE.

Our three-year old Frankie makes queer speeches sometimes. One day his papa was fixing a bedstead, and it was a long job. After having watched the proceedings for an hour or more, with much interest and various questionings, he suddenly exclaimed, "I should think this bedstead would long to be there!"

One day at the dinner table, after sitting very quietly several moments, he gave the result of his reflections thus: "Mamma!" "Well." "If you put a melon into the water, it will be a water-melon." Truly this was quite an original suggestion. As he had not heard the word water-melon for a long time, it seemed the more surprising that such an idea should enter the little fellow's head.

Sometimes he corrects me when I use the plural noun, if it ought to be singular. Thus, one day he emptied my pens out of my box. When I wanted them to put away, I said, "Frankie, where are mamma's pens?" After telling me he said, "I put one of them in the stove." "Why, Frankie, that was naughty to put mamma's pens in the stove." "I didn't put your pens in the stove, I put a pen in the stove."

At another time, when telling him the story of David's killing Goliah, I said, "David took some stones out of his bag and put them in the sling." "No," he quickly interrupted, "he did not put stones into the sling—he put a stone into it."

Such corrections as these are not unfrequent. Of course we think he is a darling.

M. D. W.

For the World's Crisis.

OBEDIENCE.

"Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right: honor thy father and mother, that thy days may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

This text of Scripture is something for children to think about. An undutiful child is an odious character, yet how few at the present day show the respect and obedience to their parents that is becoming and dutiful. Dear children, did you ever sit and recount those days of toil and anxiety? Did you ever try to measure the love that sustained your infancy and guided your youth? Did you ever think of it? If not, I beseech of you think of it now. It is a sin that will bring its reward. If you should lose your mother, you little dream how the memory of every unkind word, every neglect of her wishes, will haunt you.

I could never tell how I sometimes feel in remembering instances of neglect, and yet, thanks to her care, I had the name of being a good child. She told me, shortly before she died, had it not been for me she would have been in the grave long ago. I would not resign the memory of her approbation for the plaudits of a world, even though I know it was her love that hid the faults and magnified all that was good. I know how many things I might have done to add to her happiness, but which I did not do. But the grave has cut off all opportunity to rectify mistakes, or atone for neglect.

Children, be kind to your mother, and when you address your parents, speak kindly. Never call them "old man," or "old woman." This is rude and undutiful. "Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

LOIS BECRAFT.

TALKS WITH CHARLIE.

"Oh, Charlie, why don't you let Willie ride on your rocking-horse this afternoon? You know he has not got one, and he would enjoy it so much."

"But I want to ride now, mother."

"Another day would do just as well for you, when he is not here. I am sorry my little boy is so selfish."

I turned from him with a sorrowful look. He was silent a few moments, then ran to me, putting his arms around my neck, said with his own sweet, peculiar expression,

"Dear mother, am I very bad? What do you mean by selfishness?"

"That you love to please yourself more than others. You are not willing to give up your toys to your little friends when they want them, yet wish them always to please you. Now when your friends come to make you a visit, you should do all in your power to make them happy. Try to forget yourself, think only how you can entertain them. If you were to visit your cousin Willie, you would like to have him let you play with his new toys, wouldn't you?"

"Yes, mother, he always does let me play with them. The last time I was there he let me use his new wagon, and he used his old wheelbarrow. Oh, we had such fun drawing sand."

"Now, suppose Willie had wanted the new wagon, would you have been as happy with the old wheelbarrow?"

"No, mother, I have played with it so many times, and then I have one just like it."

"Then you would have thought it selfish in Willie to have kept the nice wagon all to himself?"

He looked at me a moment, as if he were receiving a new idea; tears came into his eyes as he said,

"I was a bad boy; oh, mother, won't you forgive me? I see now what you mean by selfishness."

A kiss of forgiveness satisfied him, away he ran to play. Soon after I went into the play-room, and found the children very happy. Willie was riding the rocking-horse at the top of his speed—Charlie was making a whip for him; and, though I watched them during the afternoon, I saw no return of selfishness; and though it cost him many a struggle, yet I trust by the grace of the Holy Spirit, he will be able to overcome this, his greatest fault.—Episcopal Recorder.

A WORD TO BOYS.

Come boys, and listen a few moments to your uncle. You have now arrived at an age when you must begin to think about doing something for yourselves. The first piece of advice I have for you is, to do everything well which you undertake. There is but little danger of your being too particular in this respect. A boy who is careful to draw a straight line on his slate will be very likely to make a straight line through life. There is no position in life in which you will not be called upon to be as exact as possible. Step into a jeweller's shop, and see how careful the workman must be in finishing up the article he holds in his hands. Visit a ship-yard, and the man with the broad ax must learn to hew on the line, or be dismissed. You think of being a clerk. Well, remember that a mistake there is little less than a crime. I never saw a man who was very particular about his affairs that was not successful. How exact is a military officer in the command of a body of men. A clumsy sailor will never rise to the command of a ship.

But there is one great danger that besets many young men at the present day. It is the disposition to avoid all solid improvement and take up with subjects that require no thought, and which serve as mere excitement to the mind. Your older friends tell you that boys are very fast at the present day, but I can remember fast boys long before you were born; but they never made solid and useful men. Very few of them lived to be forty years old. Nobody ever trusted them. They never filled any important office or station. They usually became small men, because they had no capital in their heads with which to work out a living. Out of fifty of that class I do not know of one who ever accomplished much.—Mother's Journal.

A FRANK AND NOBLE BOY.

As I was taking a ride in our pleasant village, in which we have a few plague-spots left, I took in a lad of some seven years. As I had occasion to stop close to a rum-shop, I noticed the boy looked surprised, and I said, "Shall we go in and take a little whiskey, as we may be cold before we get back?" I shall not soon forget the frankness with which he looked me in the face, and said, "My mother don't allow me to drink rum." Then I said, "Won't you go in there and warm you?" And he as honestly said, "I don't think my mother would allow me to go into such a place."

Now I want to say to all the boys, never be ashamed to follow the counsel and good advice of a pious mother, for it will be a shield and a safeguard to you through life.—Zion's Herald.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance.................$2.00 a year.
If not paid within six months....$2.50 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.00.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address..........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.
Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to
MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:
Payable always in advance.

Single copy, 25 cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under five.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, [illegible]
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, [illegible]
To Canada subscribers, at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.
CLUBS.—Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, [illegible]
SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, July, and at no other times. [illegible]
POSTAGE.—[illegible]
ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders and remittances should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

[illegible]

The winter's gone, the flowers appear,
The merry birds do sing;
Their voices raised in songs of praise,
Make nature's temple ring.
Six thousand years old earth has stood
Beneath the wreck of time,
Still she shows for the work of God,
The beautiful, sublime.

Bloom on, old earth, your fragrance fling
Throughout the land afar;
We ne'er can tell the joy you bring,
How many hearts you cheer;
A soothing charm to hush awhile
The tumult of the mind,
To banish grief by nature's smile,
And leave no sting behind.

Bloom on, sweet flowers, in beauty fair
Upon the graves of those
One year ago beheld like us,
Whose eyes in death are closed.
And many more are looking now
Upon this lovely May,
The last in time for them to view,—
They too must pass away.

Bloom on, sweet flowers; where all is false,
We find you still the same;
Emblems of innocence and love,
Freedom from sin, or stain.
Bloom on, old earth, thy children sigh,
They're weary, full of care,
They groan with thee, and ever cry
For full redemption here.

Bloom on, old earth, and shadow forth
The things which are to come;
When earth redeemed shall bloom again,
The saint's eternal home;
Our paradise restored at last,
Our hearts desire we see,
No more to hope, or even ask,
For heaven is unity.

West Brattleboro, Vt. A. M. Stark.

For the World's Crisis

THE ST. LOUIS MISSION.

(Concluded.)

HOW THE MONEY WAS DISPOSED OF.

I made up my mind to remain for the present. We went for a hall, and found one in the southeast corner of Third Street and Washington Avenue. It was the first we ever found to rent for an African church. We could have it for $15.00 a month, $180.00 a year, each month's rent to be paid in advance. I leased the hall, and paid one month's rent in advance. I bought and paid for lumber for making seats, desks, platform, etc., costing, with the nails, about $35.00 more. In company with Bro. Pollard, from Carlinville, who assisted me a good part of the time, made the seats, desk, and platform, thus saving, perhaps, $35.00. The lamps, chandelier (which was partly given to us), chairs, and other things necessary for a church and school, cost in all $77.61. $30.00 of the balance were used to liquidate my board bill. I would not be so particular in naming all these things, but I want you to understand things just as they are. I did not come out here as a hireling preacher, neither do I intend to be one now. I never have preached for wages, or for hire, and hope I shall never backslide enough to do so. I am exceedingly thankful to think I can have the privilege of working just before the end, for the salvation of poor freedmen, for my food, leaving the raiment out and making the old do. For I tell you there is far more glory in preaching the gospel to those who love it, and are willing to be saved by it, even if we live on bread and water, than to enjoy all the luxuries of life and preach to a gospel-hardened race, who will not hear.

Glory to God! with all the bitter trials, cares, perplexities, sorrows, responsibilities, disappointments and wearisome labor of a missionary life, there are some excellent things to be enjoyed by those who are willing to forsake all for the sake of Christ and the gospel, which can never be realized in preaching it to hardened sinners and hypocrites. First; they will not be troubled with cold, formal meetings. Second; sinners will listen attentively, and when asked to come forward and give their hearts to Christ, they come without urging. Third; when born into the liberty, they come alive, shouting, and praising God, so that every person in the house will know it. Fourth; they commence to work in good earnest, trying to get others converted to God and the truth. Fifth; instead of urging them to duty in prayer meetings, you are often obliged to urge them at a late hour to cease for that night and go home. And then, too, after closing the meeting to go home yourself, the others will often remain and continue the meeting for a long time. Sixth; instead of the preacher's being obliged to talk to fill up time in prayer and conference meetings, he can hardly find a place to squeeze a word in edgewise. Yes, praise the Lord, there are a multitude of other good things not found among a gospel-hardened people.

THE DEDICATION.

Our hall, after being fitted up with seats, desk, platform, lights, etc., was dedicated to God as a house of worship, Sunday, April 29th, according to notice. A sermon was preached from 1 Cor. 1: 12, 13. It was shown that while many others professed to be followers of good men, our object and purpose was to follow Christ and the teachings of his word. And that our purpose should be to accept of no other name but the one first given to the disciples at Antioch. Acts 11: 26.

THE CHURCH.

At the close of the preaching, seventeen came forward by request, and gave their names as Christian believers, resolving to take the pure word of God as their only rule of faith and practice, receiving no other creed, covenant or discipline, but what could be found between the lids of the Bible, believing that the Holy Scriptures are able to make us wise unto salvation through faith, which is in Christ Jesus. That they are profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, without any unnecessary and strictly forbidden additions which man could make. In the evening, two more united with us. The day was a solemn and impressive one, and we humbly trust a profitable one to each of our hearts.

The following Sabbath, seven more united with us, making twenty-six in all. Next Lord's day, more have promised to unite, and many others in due time.

A white brother, Darius Crouch, formerly an ordained preacher and a firm believer in the Advent of Christ in '43 and '44, has united with us, and will preach the word. He is with us in the faith of the gospel. He now resides in this city. Also a young colored preacher, Geo. W. Henderson, with his wife, from the Methodist church on 11th street, has united with us, and preached for us last Sunday evening. I dare not speak of the prospect in the future, however bright it may be, for we have not yet forgotten our disappointment of the past. But I will only say we need your prayers and sympathy, and trust that God in due time will cause your hearts with ours to rejoice in the victory and triumph of His truth in the salvation of very many in this city and vicinity. He will accomplish it in his own way and time; so that we can only say to you now, be hopeful; pray on, and look for better days coming to the little African flock of St. Louis.

O! we do feel very thankful and praise God for the triumph and victory of his truth thus far. And it is with subdued feelings that I venture to write so much. But my soul is full as I look at things as they present themselves to us now. But

"No strength of our own, nor goodness we claim:
Our trust is all thrown on Jesus' name;
In this our strong tower for safety we hide;
The Lord is our power—the Lord will provide."

THE NIGHT SCHOOL.

We commenced a night school for the freedmen, Monday evening last, with six scholars. Tuesday we had seven; Wednesday nine, and last evening twelve. By to-morrow evening we shall probably have fifteen. Many more are coming in next week. We expect a large school. It is being made up of the best and most intelligent of the colored freedmen, who more readily appreciate the blessings of education. The school is in charge of Srs. D. K. Prescott and Francelle F. Curtis, who have always taken a deep interest in the progress of events here. My part is to sweep the hall, take care of the lamps, open and light the house, stand at the door when I can, to show new comers the way; do the running of errands, and whatever other business needs to be done; which to some may appear rather insignificant, who do not appreciate the object of Christ in giving the gospel to the poor; but, praise the Lord, I can cheerfully sing with the poet,—

"I have sweet hopes of glory in my soul."

We have meetings among our colored friends Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings, at private houses. A Bible class at Sr. Waite's (white) on Friday evening. On Wednesday evening, our white brethren and sisters hold prayer meetings at another white brother's house on 19th street, where, also, some colored people attend. Next Lord's day, we intend to commence a Sunday school for African children.

Thus you have a synopsis of what is being done. The school is kept five evenings each week. You see we have not much time to be idle.

FINALLY.

It is my purpose in four or six weeks to come home, if it is the Lord's will. We hope to see things so well settled in that time that I can leave for the East and remain till after campmeeting, and longer if the brethren and sisters East wish for some others to take the field. I will most cheerfully give up the work to any brother who believes that the gospel is the first and great thing to be presented to the freedmen, as the only stepping stone to their salvation, above all, and before all other things; to which other things may be added in due time; such as reading, spelling, writing, or any other branch of an English education. But as I am a firm believer in the soon coming of Jesus Christ to reign on the earth, I do not feel willing to place common schools, nor common school teachers, at the head of the gospel; regarding their work as a necessary prerequisite in order to prepare sinners for the coming judgment, or to prepare their minds for the reception of the gospel. We have but a little time to work, and all our efforts, time and money should be thrown heartily into the work of saving sinners.

May 14. We had a good time in the Lord yesterday. The number of our church and congregation increases. Six more African brethren and sisters were added to our number yesterday, making thirty-two. Judging from appearances, we expect a corresponding increase from Sabbath to Sabbath. Last Friday evening, the number of scholars had increased to fifteen. We have some twelve to fifteen more who are coming in this week, making thirty. We commenced our Sunday school yesterday with seventeen. We were astonished at so good a number the first Sabbath. Our meeting commences at eleven A. M. Sunday school from half past one to three P. M., when our afternoon service commences again. Evening service commences at half past seven, with a short sermon, after which a conference meeting is continued until ten. The length of my letter forbids me to say more than this: we do have most excellent meetings. I wish sometimes that some of our Eastern friends could just step into one of our conference meetings.

Some of our brightest hopes have been blown away by the enemy's shell, and at the time when we thought we were achieving a great victory in the triumph of God's truth, we have suffered the most bitter disappointment. But God works in his own way. We begin to see light out of darkness. Victory is being given us in another direction. Our church, although in the midst of the most business part of the city, is away out one side from the African part of the city, which prevents very many from coming to the church, or school, who otherwise would, if we were located somewhere west of 6th street, and north of Washington Avenue. It was the best we could do. But we are growing and gaining strength every week. Truth is triumphing over error, and every week gives us new converts to the truth, adding strength and numbers to the church. And we do most ardently believe that the progress and development of future events will fully demonstrate the fact that the preaching of the gospel to the freedmen, and urging them to repentance, to "seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness," is the only sure and successful way in which we can reasonably expect the favor and blessing of God to attend our labor. This was my plan before I left the East. And all my feeble efforts since coming here have been strictly in conformity to those gospel principles, notwithstanding all the perplexing and embarrassing difficulties thrown in my way. But I feel to praise God for it all. It has been overruled for good. For by a force of circumstances over which I had no control, I have been prevented from going East, as I intended, months ago, since which time more has been and is being done by the Lord, not through my feeble efforts alone, but through the united efforts of God's dear children here, than our most sanguine hopes ever dared to expect. There is not a schism in the little church the Lord has planted here. Not one [illegible]. All appear happy and hopeful of success, only as the Lord shall approve and prosper us. All work, sing, pray and exhort, in the way and according to the gift he receives from the Lord.

I thank the brethren and sisters at the East, from whom I receive kind letters of encouragement, and who rejoice in the work, as they term it, the Lord is doing through me. But remember, dear brethren and sisters, it is the work of God and the triumph he gives to his truth. The glory is his. I am but one feeble instrument, together with a little flock in this city, whose unceasing prayers and united efforts, both night and day, have been crowned so far with good success. Pray that God will increase our number with such as shall be saved.

May 15. Our number of scholars to the night school has increased to fifteen.

A NEW HOUSE OF WORSHIP.

We must have a house of our own to worship in, situated in the part of the city where the freedmen can have ready access to it. I have promised it, in the Fall, the Lord willing, and if I did not think that our brethren and sisters East would cheerfully furnish the means, I could not feel like facing the bitter persecutions I receive from some of the white preachers, who alone have raised the storm against the soon coming of Christ. The doors, windows, glass, nails, and some other things, will be given to us here. A man who is a friend to us, will furnish and do the roofing at half price. The lumber we can get at cost, from those who will aid us thus much. The seats we already have, together with the lights, chandelier, desk, chairs, etc., which we got with the view of having them for the church. The other seats I could make myself. All the carpenter work could be done by myself and an excellent colored brother of our church. The walls must be of brick, according to a city law. I cannot say any more about it now. Do you wish for this city and its vicinity to become the great breastwork of the West, providing the Lord should not come before '68? Then, brethren, will you look the matter in the face? Will you meet it? The money can be raised in this city alone. And some of the money would come from those who have formerly owned slaves, too. But the task would be a great one, and should be freely raised by us. Now I do believe the money will come, and come freely.

Remember us in your prayers, and do not forget, while at the throne of grace, to mention the name of your unworthy brother, looking for that "blessed hope."

H. K. Flagg.

For the World's Crisis.

SPIRITUALISM,—WHAT IS IT? CHRIST, OR ANTICHRIST?

NUMBER ONE.

I propose, in a series of articles, to answer this question. With the external aspect of Spiritualism, the public mind is already familiar. Every body has heard of the spiritual rapping, table-tipping, trance, clairvoyance, etc.; and most every body has witnessed some of these phenomena.

Spiritualism is by no means in a corner. It is openly preached, practised, and believed in by millions; and numbers among its followers judges, priests, lawyers, men of science, statesmen, politicians, princes and crowned heads. It is true, men of science are a little shy of it; and as a scientific question it remains pretty much where it was left by the investigations of the famous Buffalo doctors, and the demonstrations of Professor Hare.

It is generally agreed that Mesmerism is the prime agent used in the manifestations; but to agree to this, and stop there, leaves the question as far from solution as ever; for what is mesmerism? And it is generally agreed among believers in the reality of these phenomena, that they are free from collusion of the mediums; that the intelligences manifested through them are disembodied human spirits. Its converts are believed to number in the United States from two to three millions; and its mediums partially, or fully developed, from eight to ten thousand; thus making an aggregate, if the latter estimate be correct, equal to nearly the entire membership of the Protestant church of this country; and all this a growth of less than twenty years.

Nor are its believers confined to the unthinking and ignorant. It is well known among Spiritualists, that Mr. Lincoln, previous to his election to the Presidency, visited the rooms of Mr. Koonley, a test medium of New York city; and, from certain convincing demonstrations, expressed his belief that departed spirits were really present, and communicated with him; and, though it was not charged, nor perhaps believed, that Spiritualism is any way entered into the conduct of his administration, or of the war, it was alleged that a certain distinguished medium was sometimes closeted at the White House, and that Mr. Lincoln was in the habit of consulting mediums. It has also been asserted, but I know not on what authority, that our Secretary of State is a believer in spirits. It is also well known that the able and accomplished Robert Dale Owen, formerly minister to Naples, and at one time private counsellor to Mr. Lincoln, is the author of a book entitled, "Footfalls on the boundary of another world," in which, though he does not openly commit himself to Spiritualism, he furnishes the best array of fact and argument in support of its claims that I have ever met. And so we have Judge Edmonds, Dr. Dexter, Ex. Governor Tallmadge; and these enlightened men believe that they converse with departed human spirits upon matters pertaining to this world, as business, love, or marriage; and also of the affairs of the other life, in the separate state in which they exist.

But Spiritualism is not altogether an American institution. It is true it was born in New York, but it went with the very next steamer for Paris and London; and both these places have long had a Spiritual exchange. And it is well known the world over, to those who read the newspapers, and are posted in Spiritualistic literature, that Napoleon, the astute Emperor of the French, the man who holds the peace and destiny of Europe upon a single word delivered to the people of a country town,—the profound genius of statecraft and war-craft, to-day the foremost man of all the world,—is a Spiritualist, and confesses himself to be counseled and generaled by the "shade of his great uncle."

Hume, the distinguished medium (now, I think, a theatrical performer), when at Paris, was closeted with Napoleon oftener than his ministers; and when he left, his Imperial master gave him his card to the Emperor Alexander. And why is it strange that Napoleon should consult mediums? Did not Cæsar consult the oracles? and has not Napoleon written the life of Cæsar? and who doubts that this "man of destiny" means to set his Imperial foot upon the Tiber, then upon the Rhine, then upon the Thames, and then to sit upon Cæsar's throne?

There is in Spiritualism a good deal of the artful and indirect. It does not beckon you forward with open eye, and fair front; but takes you into its private sanctuary by side windows and trap doors. For instance, one must go through a lie to get into the truth; he must sin in order to be saved; he must be ignorant to be instructed; he must practise vice to know the nature of virtue; he must die in order to live; and go through hell to get into heaven; and much more of the like; and Napoleon, who is always to be interpreted by contraries, is the last political development of this art and indirection. In him, its all-inspiring soul is power; and if this were possible, that departed human spirits could revisit the earth, who shall say that Napoleon the Great may not be endeavoring, through his nephew, to recover the lost empire of the Cæsars; or that Wellington is not moving to another Waterloo? or that Washington is not in council to save the Union? and the rebel dead—Floyd, Tyler, Rhett, and Brooks, are not moving the occupant of the White House to destroy it?

But however this may be, Napoleon believes himself to be visited and counseled by his great uncle; and certain it is that he believes himself set to recover what his uncle lost at Waterloo; and moreover, certain it is that he has accomplished, diplomatically, what his uncle did with the sword. His word is to-day the law of Europe, and not till he shall will his own time have come, and then he shall die miserably, like a dog. Of course Spiritualism must thrive under the Imperial patronage; and, accordingly, we find it in France in a considerably more advanced stage of organization and philosophic development than here. There is said to be in Paris a Spiritualistic Institute, conducted by learned men and philosophers, who pursue their investigations with as much dignity and profundity as the Doctors of the Sorbonne.

"Let slip the dogs of war,"

And so, too, the amiable and motherly Queen of England believes herself in daily communication with the returning spirit of her beloved Albert Edward. At any rate, such is the fact, if credit is to be given to the London papers. There are other mothers who talk with returning husbands, and there are mothers in Israel who sit with mediums.

Spiritualism is also at Vienna, Rome, Constantinople, and no less at Washington and St. Petersburgh. It has already gone out to the kings of the earth to marshal them to the coming conflict. It is universal. It is pervading all classes. It is getting into all books, into the speeches of politicians, into the arguments of philanthropists, into the ministers' sermons, and once at least, if only to be kicked out, it has been into every social circle.

It is in the churches, and already it has emptied a number of pulpits. The Universalists would offer but feeble resistance, nor could the Unitarians do much better; for the rationalist part of their society (a considerable part) were Spiritualists already, minus a little rapping and tipping.

But the Calvinists have maintained nearly an unbroken front. They will not condescend to lift it into notice; and young ministers at Andover are taught to let it "severely alone." But Spiritualism has its clerical converts. We have heard none of them preach, but we have heard them lecture on the revelations of Pythagoras, the oracles of the sybils, and the visions of Joan; and we have heard them explain how Esculapius and Apollo were gods and saviors, as well as Christ.

That the church ought to have something to do with Spiritualism, and that it is something which it will ere long be compelled to notice and to grapple with as a gigantic evil, is to me perfectly clear; and it may be that Mr. Beecher will turn out but an advanced skirmisher of the Orthodox line.

Nor is Spiritualism a stranger on 'Change; but it is not a miser, nor properly a money-getter. It is not averse to trying its hand at stocks, though it speculates for philanthropic purposes. It has considerable aptness for financial operations, and has developed a number of strictly business mediums. It knows the price of gold, and can anticipate the rise and fall of the precious stuff as readily as any broker in State St. It is plainly as good, if it is not better than the banks and the bankers; and is willing to advise a man into Chancery for the benefit of his creditors; or to take office for the good of the people, as the best of counselors.

It has also a great genius for the discovery of hidden treasures. A couple of pirates are now directing extensive excavations at "Dungeon Rock," Lynn, Mass., through a Mr. Hiram Marble; alleging that there are immense treasures there deposited by themselves, near two hundred years ago, and since buried under this huge rock by an earthquake. Mr. Marble has penetrated this rock near two hundred feet, and still believes, and is still digging. And so Capt. Kidd has directed a number of believers where to dig for the treasures he buried when a pirate. He knows exactly where his treasures are buried, and has given minute directions how and where to dig; but unfortunately the diggers have not yet been able to find the exact spot. These pirates say that looking after the affairs of money is not at all to their liking, but that they are compelled to unearth these treasures and cause them to be devoted to the uses of charity as an atonement for their miserliness and ingratitude.

The gold miners also have their guardian genii and their enchanting spirits. The miners of Colorado, some of them at least, are under the guardianship of De Soto, the discoverer of the Mississippi; and the knowing ones purchase only the shares that De Soto works.

But the real business of Spiritualism is not to help men make money, or get office, but to give the world a new religion—the religion of nature; and to this end the Christian religion must be got out of the way. The Bible must be put on a level with the Koran and the Shasters; the prophets and the apostles must take a seat with clairvoyants and magicians, and the oracle at Athens must be made as honorable as the oracle at Jerusalem.

Spiritualism does not say that men are sick and sinful, but ignorant and ungrown. They do not need a Savior, but an instructor, and with the help they can get from each other, the right principle within them will lead them to all necessary truth. It does not say to men, Repent, for no man can help his nature and constitution; besides, there is no sin against God, for God is a part of every action. It does not say, Cast out the devil, but, Use him up; that is, exhaust him, on his own plane.

It can have no doctrine of salvation, because it has got no doctrine of sin. It can not say, I baptize you in the "name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," and bring you into the kingdom of God as kings, priests, and heirs; but, I make you all acquainted with the laws of affinity, and initiate you into the mysteries of nature, and make you magicians, clairvoyants, and astrologers. In short, Spiritualism has no doctrine in common with the church, except the erroneous one of the natural immortality of the soul.

What then can be said of this new religion of Spiritualism,—a system whose adherents number by millions, and whose teachers by tens of thousands,—a system that rejects the Bible, and repudiates the entire ground of revealed religion? What, I say, can be said of all this, but that it is a vast and determined conspiracy against the christian religion? And if it be true that departed spirits can return, what more likely than that the invisible conspirators are none other than the self-same infidels and unbelievers who did the like when they were in the body,—the Porphyrs, the Julians, the Chubbs, the Voltaires, the Newmans, and the Paines? And it is a little curious that, so far as Spiritualists accept the New Testament, they copy the almost identical errors of the ancient heretics, as I shall show hereafter.

It would, indeed, be strange if Franklin could come and talk philosophy, and Paine could not come and talk religion. And this is exactly what Spiritualism is,—a conspiracy against christianity; and it is no less distinctly marked as such in the prophetic writings, than the rise and progress of the Papal church. And regarding it in this light, in what I have to say in answer to the question at the head of this article, I shall consider Spiritualism in its religious and political aspects only. I must however say here, that I do not include all Spiritualists in this general charge of infidelity and conspiracy. There are a few among them who call themselves "Christian Spiritualists," or "Bible Spiritualists." They accept the communion of departed spirits as not incompatible with a belief in the divine inspiration and authority of the Bible. They protest as vehemently against the infidelity and lawlessness of the Spiritualistic philosophy as could be desired; and in this we bid them God speed.

H. S. Chapman.

[The foregoing is from one who has been a Spiritualist some twelve years, and has seen what is behind the curtain of Spiritualism. He has been in its mire, and knows whereof he affirms. He felt called to preach among the Baptists, some thirteen years since, and was led by seducing spirits into Spiritualism; where he has wandered in dark labyrinths till recently. He is now ready to serve the Lord. Pray for him.—Ed.

For the World's Crisis.

MUST THE LITERAL CITY OF ROME BE BURNT BEFORE CHRIST CAN COME?

This claim is made by different classes: some insisting that it must be witnessed three and one-half years before the literal coming of Christ, and others supposing it may occur a short time before the advent. I was of the latter opinion for several years, and fancy I thoroughly understood the groundwork of the argument in its favor; but after mature deliberation, and prayerful reflection, I am fully satisfied the literal burning of the literal city of Rome is no where intimated in prophecy. The matter has positively been misunderstood, and the whole theory originated in mistaking symbolic language for literal. Let us examine some features of this theory:

1. One proof in support of this theory is sought in Revelation 17: 16.

"And the ten horns which thou sawest upon the beast, these shall hate the whore, and make her desolate and naked [literally?] and burn her with fire."

If the burning here mentioned is literal, it follows on the same principle, that they were to "eat" her literal "flesh" !!! Could the angel have meant that they should "eat her flesh" in a literal sense, and make this harlot woman "naked" in a literal sense? or is this simply a symbolic representation of the diminishing of her power and greatness?

If by eating the "flesh" of this symbolic woman, and making her "naked," the angel is simply giving a symbolic representation of the consuming judgments to be inflicted on the Papacy, then the other statement, "They shall burn her with fire," which he makes in the same prophecy, and in the same breath, must be understood in the same sense: and in this symbolic sense this prediction has been strikingly verified. Since the close of the bloody supremacy of the Papacy, which so long "reigned over the kings of the earth," the Roman horns have been consuming and diminishing the temporal power of the Papacy, stripping it, eating its symbolic flesh, and burning it with fire in a symbolic sense: or, as the angel said to Daniel concerning the persecuting "horn," which stood for the same power represented by the "woman," "They [the Roman horn] shall take away its dominion, to consume and destroy it to the end." (Dan. 7: 26.)

Furthermore: let not the fact be overlooked, that the statement, "They shall burn her with fire," was made with reference to the symbolic woman, instead of being made with reference to the interpretation, or the thing represented by the symbol; and the angel does not so mix up matters as to apply literal fire to a mere symbol. Had he first explained the symbol, and afterwards applied the fire to the thing represented by the symbol, there would have been more propriety in claiming that the "fire" is literal; but even then, we should have been puzzled to know how to understand the eating of "flesh," and making "naked" in a literal sense.

2. An attempt is, also, made to adduce proof in support of this theory from Rev. 18: 9.

"She saith in her heart, I sit a queen, and am no widow. Therefore her plagues [the plagues contained in the vials] shall come in one day [or commence in one prophetic day,] death, and mourning, and famine; and she shall be utterly burned with fire: for strong is the Lord God that judgeth her."

By reading the connection, the idea that literal fire is here applied to the literal city of Rome will depart from every reflecting mind. The next verse reads:

"And the kings of the earth that have committed fornication with her shall bewail and lament for her when they see the smoke of her burning."

Have the kings of the earth "committed fornication with the literal city of Rome, even in a symbolic sense? The city to be burnt has "committed fornication with the kings of the earth." This is true of the Papacy, having its seat of power at Rome; but is not true of Rome as a literal city which can be burnt with literal fire.

Again we read: "And the merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her; for no man buyeth her merchandise any more, and every ship-master, and all the company in ships, and sailors, and as many as trade by sea, stood afar off, and cried when they saw the smoke of her burning." (v. 11,-17.)

Do the literal "merchants of the earth" get their merchandise from the literal city of Rome? Do the literal "ship-masters" of the "seas" enrich themselves by trading with the literal city of Rome? And could the sailors on the various "seas" see the literal "smoke of the burning" of the literal city of Rome? Then the "burning" predicted is not the city of Rome. The truth is, when the "plagues" began to be poured out upon the Papacy at the end of the 1260 years of Papal supremacy, the spiritual dealers in Papal merchandise, by sea or land, began to lament the fall of this symbolic Babylon, from its former elevation above the nations, to an inferior position. This lamentation has been going on from 1793 till now; and it will continue till the resurrected "apostles and prophets" are called to rejoice over her," when Babylon, now diminished, shall be totally "thrown down, and shall be found no more at all." (v. 20, 21.)

Wm. Sheldon.

For the World's Crisis.

HE IS FAITHFUL THAT PROMISED.

"Behold I come quickly."—Rev. 3: 2.

"Even so, come, Lord Jesus!" "Why tarry the wheels of thy chariot?" Six thousand years this world has rolled on, getting hoary with age, and wrinkled with sins and sorrows. A waiting church sees the long-drawn shadows of twilight announcing, "The Lord is at hand." Prepare, my soul, to meet him. O! happy days, when thine adorable Redeemer, so long dishonored and despised, shall be publicly enthroned in presence of an assembled universe, crowned Lord of all, glorified in his saints, satisfied in the fruits of his soul's travail, destroying his enemies with the brightness of his coming—the lightning-glance of wrath, causing the hearts of his exulting people to "rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory." Prepare, my soul, to meet him! Let it be a joyous thought to thee, thy "blessed hope," the meeting of thine Elder Brother. Stand oftentimes on the watch-tower to catch the first streak of coming brightness, the first murmur of these chariot wheels. The world is in preparation. It is rocking on its worn-out axle. There are voices on every side proclaiming, "He cometh! he cometh! to judge the earth."

Reader, art thou among the number of those who "love his appearing"? Remember the attitude of his expectant saints—"Blessed are those servants whom the Lord, when he cometh, will find watching."—Selected by L. L. D.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

TRUTH.

Once there was a little boy,
With curly hair and pleasant eye,
A boy who always spoke the truth,
And never, never told a lie.

And when he trotted off to school,
The children all about would cry,
There goes the curly-headed boy,
The boy who never tells a lie.

And everybody loved him so,
Because he always told the truth,
That every day as he grew up,
'Twas said, "There goes the honest youth."

And when the people that stood near,
Would turn to ask the reason why,
The answer would be always this—
"Because he never told a lie."

For the World's Crisis.

FRANKIE.

Our three-year old Frankie makes queer speeches sometimes. One day his papa was fixing a bedstead, and it was a long job. After having watched the proceedings for an hour or more, with much interest and various questionings, he suddenly exclaimed, "I should think this bedstead would long to be there!"

One day at the dinner table, after sitting very quietly several moments, he gave the result of his reflections thus: "Mamma!" "Well." "If you put a melon into the water, it will be a water-melon." Truly this was quite an original suggestion. As he had not heard the word water-melon for a long time, it seemed the more surprising that such an idea should enter the little fellow's head.

Sometimes he corrects me when I use the plural noun, if it ought to be singular. Thus, one day he emptied my pens out of my box. When I wanted them to put away, I said, "Frankie, where are mamma's pens?" After telling me he said, "I put one of them in the stove." "Why, Frankie, that was naughty to put mamma's pens in the stove." "I didn't put your pens in the stove, I put a pen in the stove."

At another time, when telling him the story of David's killing Goliah, I said, "David took some stones out of his bag and put them in the sling." "No," he quickly interrupted, "he did not put stones into the sling—he put a stone into it."

Such corrections as these are not unfrequent. Of course we think he is a darling.

M. D. W.

For the World's Crisis.

OBEDIENCE.

"Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right: honor thy father and mother, that thy days may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

This text of Scripture is something for children to think about. An undutiful child is an odious character, yet how few at the present day show the respect and obedience to their parents that is becoming and dutiful. Dear children, did you ever sit and recount those days of toil and anxiety? Did you ever try to measure the love that sustained your infancy and guided your youth? Did you ever think of it? If not, I beseech of you think of it now. It is a sin that will bring its reward. If you should lose your mother, you little dream how the memory of every unkind word, every neglect of her wishes, will haunt you.

I could never tell how I sometimes feel in remembering instances of neglect, and yet, thanks to her care, I had the name of being a good child. She told me, shortly before she died, had it not been for me she would have been in the grave long ago. I would not resign the memory of her approbation for the plaudits of a world, even though I know it was her love that hid the faults and magnified all that was good. I know how many things I might have done to add to her happiness, but which I did not do. But the grave has cut off all opportunity to rectify mistakes, or atone for neglect.

Children, be kind to your mother, and when you address your parents, speak kindly. Never call them "old man," or "old woman." This is rude and undutiful. "Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

Lois Becraft.

TALKS WITH CHARLIE.

"Oh, Charlie, why don't you let Willie ride on your rocking-horse this afternoon? You know he has not got one, and he would enjoy it so much."

"But I want to ride now, mother."

"Another day would do just as well for you, when he is not here. I am sorry my little boy is so selfish."

I turned from him with a sorrowful look. He was silent a few moments, then ran to me, putting his arms around my neck, and with his own sweet, peculiar expression,

"Dear mother, am I very bad? What do you mean by selfishness?"

"That you love to please yourself more than others. You are not willing to give up your toys to your little friends when they want them, yet wish them always to please you. Now when your friends come to make you a visit, you should do all in your power to make them happy. Try to forget yourself, think only how you can entertain them. If you were to visit your cousin Willie, you would like to have him let you play with his new toys, wouldn't you?"

"Yes, mother, he always does let me play with them. The last time I was there he let me use his new wagon, and he used his old wheelbarrow. Oh, we had such fun drawing sand."

"Now, suppose Willie had wanted the new wagon, would you have been as happy with the old wheelbarrow?"

"No, mother, I have played with it so many times, and then I have one just like it."

"Then you would have thought it selfish in Willie to have kept the nice wagon all to himself?"

He looked at me a moment, as if he were receiving a new idea; tears came into his eyes as he said,

"I was a bad boy; oh, mother, won't you forgive me? I see now what you mean by selfishness."

A kiss of forgiveness satisfied him, away he ran to play. Soon after I went into the play-room, and found the children very happy. Willie was riding the rocking-horse at the top of his speed—Charlie was making a whip for him; and, though I watched them during the afternoon, I saw no return of selfishness; and though it cost him many a struggle, yet I trust by the grace of the Holy Spirit, he will be able to overcome this, his greatest fault.—Episcopal Recorder.

A WORD TO BOYS.

Come boys, and listen a few moments to your uncle. You have now arrived at an age when you must begin to think about doing something for yourselves. The first piece of advice I have for you is, to do everything well which you undertake. There is but little danger of your being too particular in this respect. A boy who is careful to draw a straight line on his slate will be very likely to make a straight line through life. There is no position in life in which you will not be called upon to be as exact as possible. Step into a jeweller's shop, and see how careful the workman must be in finishing up the article he holds in his hands. Visit a ship-yard, and the man with the broad ax must learn to hew on the line, or be dismissed. You think of being a clerk. Well, remember that a mistake there is little less than a crime. I never saw a man who was very particular about his affairs that was not successful. How exact is a military officer in the command of a body of men. A clumsy sailor will never rise to the command of a ship.

But there is one great danger that besets many young men at the present day. It is the disposition to avoid all solid improvement and take up with subjects that require no thought, and which serve as mere excitement to the mind. Your older friends tell you that boys are very fast at the present day, but I can remember fast boys long before you were born; but they never made solid and useful men. Very few of them lived to be forty years old. Nobody ever trusted them. They never filled any important office or station. They usually became small men, because they had no capital in their heads with which to work out a living. Out of fifty of that class I do not know of one who ever accomplished much.—Mother's Journal.

A FRANK AND NOBLE BOY.

As I was taking a ride in our pleasant village, in which we have a few plague-spots left, I took in a lad of some seven years. As I had occasion to stop close to a rum-shop, I noticed the boy looked surprised, and I said, "Shall we go in and take a little whiskey, as we may be cold before we get back?" I shall not soon forget the frankness with which he looked me in the face, and said, "My mother don't allow me to drink rum." Then I said, "Won't you go in there and warm you?" And he as honestly said, "I don't think my mother would allow me to go into such a place."

Now I want to say to all the boys, never be ashamed to follow the counsel and good advice of a pious mother, for it will be a shield and a safeguard to you through life.—Zion's Herald.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..............$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.50.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address...........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Postage.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

Rules for Correspondents.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write Private.
Over all business matters, write Business.
Over all articles for the paper, write For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.
Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.
Private Letters.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word Private on the outside of the envelope.
All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to
MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Payable always in advance.

[illegible]

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 559. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 20, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 14.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

ISSUED EVERY WEDNESDAY MORNING, AT

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

HYMN.

I praise and adore that illustrious grace,
That sovereign compassion, that love that did plan
In the courts of the high and the heavenly place
A way of salvation from death and from sin.
Thanks to God for the plan to bring man from the fall—
But where were my hope, if the planning were all?

I rejoice that the Son of the Father in heaven
Left the bliss of that world for the sorrow of this,
Endured contradiction, grief, agony even,
Till he prayed, if it might be, the trial might pass.
If the legions of angels had come at his call,
And the cup had passed from him, alas for us all!

So with joy I behold, by the eye of my faith,
Lifted up on the cross the Redeemer of men,
And with heart-broken thankfulness see in his death
The one all-sufficient atonement for sin.
To praise him for this all my powers I will call;
But where were my ransom, if this had been all?

For if Christ be not risen, I read in the word,
Then all his disciples are perished who die;
But the grave could not hold our immaculate Lord,
For he liveth High Priest of his people to-day.
All hail to his name whom the grave could not keep,
Who became the first-fruits of the nations that sleep!

Nor yet for all this am I pardoned of God,
Until on this Christ I myself do believe;
The once-crucified Lamb, the now glorified Lord,
By repentance and faith I myself must receive.
He has bidden me come, for his Spirit has striven,
So I fall at his feet to be freely forgiven.

Still, though he doth plead in the heavenly place,
Though I share in his love and be washed in his blood,
And may have the assurance, the pardon, the peace,
The earnest, the hope, and the witness from God,
Yet the sight, the fruition, the home where I go,
The eternal salvation not yet do I know.

Ah, when shall it be that the victory's won?
And when shall the righteous appear before God?
When this mortal shall put immortality on,
When He that soon cometh shall bring the reward,
The reward that's in heaven, the treasure that's there,
The crowns that are kept for them then shall they wear.

Till then, while I live, may I live to his praise,
Till then, if I die, may I sleep in the Lord;
So, waking or sleeping, be counted as his,
And be called to sit down in the kingdom of God,—
To behold in his glory the Jesus that died,
And in his blest presence forever abide.

LUCY M. CHAFFEE.

South Wilbraham, June, 1866.

AION.

"And shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever."—REV. 20: 10.

This, with one or two scriptures of similar import, have held the minds of some honest seekers after truth to the conclusion that the wicked must endure exquisite pangs of endless suffering.

The mind of the writer was from his youth by these scriptures confirmed, and at times forced to this dreadful conclusion for years after embracing the Sabbath. Nor was there but temporary conviction, from all the brethren had then said or written in the explanation of these passages, until at a certain time while examining the word Aon in Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, to ascertain its duration, I found, to my surprise, as a corresponding word in the Greek, the word aion, the original of the word ever, in the above passage referred to.

This led to an examination of Rev. 20: 10, and chapter 14: 11, in the Greek Testament; the last of which in our version reads: "The smoke of their torment ascendeth up forever and ever." By this examination, it was found that in each case the original word translated "ever" was in the PLURAL number. This opened a field for further investigating thought. And the question arose in the mind, Can the word eternity, or even forever, in the nature of things, admit of a plural? The conclusion was, it can not; for no word expressing infinity can. For this reason, for instance, infinite space covers all space; hence there can be but one infinite space, because there can be no further place for a second infinite space to occupy. On the same principle, the idea of a plural is forever excluded from a word which expresses infinite duration. Because infinite duration comprehends all possible duration. Hence there can be but one. Therefore the nature of things forbids that any word in the plural in any language should ever express the idea of infinity. If the word in the original expresses more than one forever or eternity, ought not the translation into English to express the same?

The Encyclopædia of Religious Knowledge says:—"It might as well be contended that forever cannot properly mean unlimited duration, because another ever may be added to it, as that aion must necessarily mean a limited duration, on account of its admitting a plural form of expression." To this we reply that, though there is another "ever" added in our translation, it is not added in the original, it being a repetition there, but not in a manner to involve the idea of addition. Inspiration did not place the word "and" there, nor can it be supplied without confusing the sense. The inconsistency of applying the plural to a word expressive of infinity has just been shown, we trust satisfactorily; and this the Encyclopædia admits respecting the word eternity; and what not in respect to the word forever, if it expresses infinite duration?

This discrepancy of plural in the original, and singular in the translation, prompted to the further investigation of the word aion in other parts of the New Testament,—an example of which was found in 1 Cor. 10: 11. "Now all these things happened unto them for ensamples; and they are written for our admonition on whom the ends of the world have come." An instance somewhat similar in its structure to the preceding is found in Heb. 9: 26. "Now once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin, by a sacrifice of himself." Here, again, the word aion in both these instances is in the plural, as it is in the examples of the two scriptures quoted; but the word world rendered from it in both instances is singular.

Why these things were so, was for a long time a mystery; but a solution of that mystery was at length found. In all the above instances, had the translation been according to Dr. Webster's view of the sense of that original word, there would have been no need of rendering these plural words in the singular. But before proceeding to an illustration of this point, some inquiries intrude upon the mind.

1. If the Holy Spirit, in the last two scriptures, meant to express in the Greek the idea of a plurality of worlds, should not this idea of plurality have been conveyed to us in the English?

2. Should not two or more objects properly expressed in the Greek, when translated into English, express two or more objects in this language also?

3. If we had the history of two or three men written in the French language, conjointly in one volume, and it should be translated into English, Spanish, German, and various other languages, should it in these languages respectively mean the history of but one man?

Now it is infallibly evident to all that the two last instances could not be translated by any word which expresses endless duration, because the end of aion is most clearly expressed in both instances. To speak of the end of endless duration, would strike every mind as the height of absurdity. Therefore a word must be selected which will not wholly, nor too much confuse the sense; but as the original is in the plural, it would seem to be too vague for definite instruction respecting this world, hence the plural is dropped and the singular substituted.

All this perplexity might have been saved if translators had understood, as Mr. Webster did, that "age" was the word corresponding in sense with the original. Then the plural would not have injured the sense at all, and it would have read as follows:—"Now all these things happened unto them for ensamples; and they are written for our admonition on whom the ends of the AGES have come." It may be asked, What ages? We answer, all the ages of probation. . . .

Heb. 9: 26, some have thought, proved Christ's first coming to be in the end of the world; but by a transposition, we see that "in the end of the world," or ages, sin is to be put away. "Now once hath he appeared by a sacrifice of himself, to put away sin in the end of the world," or ages. But ages in this instance closes at a later point of time than that in 1 Cor. 10: 11. That closes with probation, this with the destruction of the wicked. Sin is then forever put away.

The word "end" being plural, renders it mysterious; and the inquiry may be made, How many ends will the world have? Others might inquire, May not the world have as many ends as the age? Yes; but not as many as the "ages" have; and especially if these are the ages of probation. For there will then be as many ends as there are individuals who die in the Lord in this message; and one more. That is the time in which mercy ceases to be proffered to sinful man.

In these passages we now see what consistency of sense can be made from the original, when viewed in the light of the great Lexicographer, who, in the history of the world, perhaps, never had an equal as a philologist, or a superior as a linguist. Not that he believed as we do,—he believed in the endless sufferings of the wicked; hence his testimony bears greater weight than it otherwise would. With his sense of the word aion in the scripture which heads this article, we may give opponents the privilege of translating the Greek preposition (eis) the worst they can against our belief;—for instance, they may call it for, through, or during, if they please. It will then read, "And shall be tormented day and night for, through, or during the ages of ages." Not that we claim this rendering of the preposition correct; but if the most of our translators now extant are correct in the rendering of this word, then ours is; and this is the worst opponents can make it for us.

If they bring this translation to us, and ask what we understand by the expression, "ages of ages," we reply that the word age means, as long as the creature lives to whom it is applied.

There has been a great perplexity in the minds of many in regard to the true sense of the word aion, because lexicographers have given it a variety of very different definitions; each generally as the following:—duration, finite or infinite; unlimited duration, eternity; a period of duration, past or future; time, age, lifetime; the world, the universe, etc. Now if this Greek word corresponds in sense with our word eternity, or forever, as they are generally defined in our English Dictionaries, then such definitions as duration, finite time, age, lifetime, world, universe, etc., must all be incorrect; there being no terms expressive of limited duration, nor any word expressive of anything, but that of time, made use of in our Dictionaries to define these words; for every definition there gives the idea of endless duration. Therefore we have satisfactory evidence that these words do not correspond in sense.

We admit, however, that in the Bible the word "forever" is used in many instances to express limited duration, as the brethren have sufficiently shown; but the reason is, that it was rendered from original words, which more usually expressed limited duration, and, in many instances the subject matter is such that the sense of the word is fully shown to be but limited.

The inquiry will arise in the minds of many, How can the word age have so many definitions as are given to this Greek word? We answer, all but the last two can be very easily and consistently given to it. For instance, when speaking of a mortal being, it may be with strict propriety that any of those definitions expressing limited duration may be applied, such as duration, finite, a period of duration, past or future, time, age, life-time, etc. But when the age of an immortal being is referred to, then it is strictly proper for any of those definitions which express endless duration to be applied to them.

As it respects the last two, world and universe, it is wholly unnecessary that any such definitions be given, as there are other Greek words which amply supply their place; and if these definitions can be consistently given, they are merely an imperfect or secondary sense of the word defined; as in Matt. 13: 39; 24: 3, where it speaks of the end of aion, translated the end of the world. It strictly means either the end of the age of the world, or the end of the gospel age—all of which amount to nearly the same, although the words rendered from this are very dissimilar in sense.

Now aion either corresponds in sense with our words forever and eternity, or it does not. If it does, why have not the most distinguished lexicographers, such as Johnson, Webster, and Worcester, so informed us? Or rather, why have any of them informed us to the contrary? And why especially is it in many instances so used in the Bible as to forever exclude that sense from it, whereas it may invariably be translated age without discovering the least inconsistency of language?—Review.

For the World's Crisis.

THE TWO CRISES OF OUR WORLD.

There was a time when an oppressive yoke lay upon a people. This people had been, in times now gone, the favored people of God, the chosen among the nations. But under this peculiar patronage, they had chosen their own ways, grown proud and self-sufficient. Their God and ruler, though a God that delighteth in mercy, yet was a God of strict integrity and justice. Therefore he had suffered them to come under the yoke of the proud nation, which then bore sway over all the known world. For there had come upon them that direful prophecy, which the Lord by Moses spake conditionally of them, recorded in Deut. 28: 52. But they knew it not, for this was not the first time they had been brought into a condition of bondage, but out of which God had, in his own designated time, brought them. Moreover, they now had a promise of a Great Deliverer. The time had been so marked out, that even then the nation looked and waited for him. He came at last. But not in princely magnificence, as they expected. Albeit, he was heralded by "the star . . . in the East," that "went before and stood over where the young child was." Angelic bands hovering near sang, "On earth peace, good will toward men." But this availed not, for there lay only a babe in a manger. That child, as he grew in stature, grew also in favor with God and man; but alas, he was the son of a carpenter!

Thus, unrecognized, he grew to manhood. He began his public work, and an audible voice from heaven announced, "This is my beloved son, in whom I am well pleased." The anointing from on high came upon him in bodily form like a dove, and rested upon him, that he might be visibly known among them. Thus he stood a prince anointed, awaiting his kingdom, even as David, the son of Jesse, waited for his kingdom, after God commissioned Samuel to anoint him. The hour of decision came. Would they accept him as their king, and through him, deliverance?

Whether there be contingency with God,—whether, if the Jews had placed Jesus, the rightful heir, upon the throne of his father David, the kingdom would then have become an everlasting kingdom, we will not attempt to decide, for the sad history is familiar to us all. Whatever might have been, had the Jews comprehended "the time of" their "visitation," we, alas, all know too well what was. Nevertheless, when the multitudes cried with loud acclaim, "Blessed is the King of Israel, that cometh in the name of the Lord," they doubtless acted in sincerity and good faith. They proclaimed him king according to the manner of their nation. Jesus accepted this homage as his due, saying, "if these should hold their peace, the stones would . . . cry out." He took possession of the temple, and for a brief time controlled it; driving out the money changers, with the buyers and sellers. But another wave of the fluctuating populace, gathered for the feast, gains the ascendant,—or rather the authority of the nation rises in its might, crushing out the noble outburst of an enthusiastic people; and then comes the arrest, the trial; and when the query comes, shall "I release unto you the king of the Jews?" they that sat in Moses' seat, representing the official dignity of the nation, are ready with the cry, Away with him, away with him. "Crucify him, crucify him." This was from the authorities of the nation, acting judicially, and the crisis was passed; and from that hour was the nation's doom fixed, according to our Savior's words, "Now is the judgment of this world; now shall the prince of this world be cast out."

Another crisis is nearing. Again the world is in expectancy. It is the language of all that some great event is pending. The year in which we are living "has been anticipated as an eventful year for three centuries, by students of prophecy." But the portion of the church that now bears away are looking for a spiritual deliverance alone. It is an admitted maxim that "history repeats itself;" not alone in a political aspect, but also in the religious. In the approaching crisis is again to be repeated the Jew's great error, now made world-wide. Shall the inhabitants of earth again fail to comprehend the manner of their deliverance? It was then disastrous, direful to the Jews; will it be less disastrous now? Who can compute the greater magnitude? For earth's great Potentate will now take to himself his great power and reign; breaking his enemies "with a rod of iron," and dashing "them in pieces like a potter's vessel."—Ps. 2: 9. He will not now come riding upon "a colt, the foal of an ass," as then; nor will they that run before, and they that follow after proclaim, "Hosanna in the highest." For in the clouds of heaven, with a retinue of his own, will he come,—a retinue so vast that all shall be filled with awe, for "every eye shall see him."

"Flames are above him, beneath him, around,
With glad hosannas the heavens resound;
But to the wicked his arrows are sped,
His storm-cloud of vengeance has burst on their head.
Salvation has come! blessed God, we will cry,
Thy praise shout and sing as we pass through the sky."

"When the Son of man cometh shall he find faith upon the earth?" With what words of anathema would Christ now have occasion to address even those who have assumed the holy family name of Christian. Only that God has by prophecy depicted just the state of things we see, how must every child of God sigh and cry for the abominations done in the land. Weep even as Jesus wept, as he looked upon the glorious city of Jerusalem, in which other beholders might only see splendor, and the elements of prosperity. But Jesus, taking in one of his complete views, saw all the disasters that afterward befell it. Far from the heart of the proud Pharisee, or sanctimonious Scribe, was the thought that themselves were forfeiting the conditions of deliverance. Aye, they may have thought, like too many of our own times, that God could not forsake them, for their nation had also a holy mission to perform. (And had performed it in bringing forth the Savior.) God taught them most disastrously, that he no longer needed them to carry on his purposes; and he may now soon teach a presuming church as signally, that he has not left the building up of his kingdom on earth to finite man,—that not through them is the world to be converted. He may teach them rather that the vengeance of the Almighty lingers only that the number longest for may be accomplished.

M. W. HOWARD

Malone, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

BUILD ON A SURE FOUNDATION.

"But he that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man that without a foundation built an house upon the earth; against which the stream did beat vehemently, and immediately it fell; and the ruin of that house was great."—Luke 6: 49.

Build upon a sure foundation, my friend. A house built upon the sand is well enough to live in while the sun shines and all is fair weather; but when the thunders roll and the storm-clouds are gathering in fury over your head, and at last burst upon your dwelling, then is when your sandy foundation fails you, and nothing but a dwelling founded on a rock can stand the terror of the blast. "I have no fear of the future. I shall make no preparations for it. Prosperity and wealth are within my grasp; the country is so beautiful, I shall build here." But, my friend, this is no foundation to build upon; there is great danger building in such a place as this. Do you not notice that this sandy foundation can with almost one wave of yonder rolling river be swept away? "However, I shall build here, unmindful of the sand and danger of the river, for I can not see that there can be danger here; the surrounding country is beautiful, and yonder peaceful river can never overflow and wash my dwelling away. I shall build upon its bank, and never mind these useless fears. I feel that I shall have no trouble here, where it is so peaceful and quiet. Why, how do you think I can go back so far into the country, where there is nothing I feel I can enjoy, where it is rough and rugged, just for a rocky foundation for my dwelling? No, indeed, I am not so foolish as to deprive myself of all the good things of life, for the sake of feeling that I am a little more safe during a storm."

O, foolish man, to risk his life and the lives of all those who are so dear to him, because he thinks the present surroundings are a little more pleasant. If he will but think for a moment, his reason must teach him how unsafe his position; for when the rain descends, and the river overflows, his building can not stand; it will be borne away upon the dark and rolling waters of the now peaceful stream; himself and all those who are under his roof must forever close their eyes to all they have lived for, and with but a groan of despair sink beneath its waves to rise no more. O how much better to know we are safe at all times, though we may have to deprive ourselves of many things we think we could so much enjoy.

Let us strive to deny ourselves of all things wherein danger for the future lurks. Let the worldlings laugh and deride us; it will be but a little longer before they, with all who have not taken the word of God as the man of their counsel, must be silent in darkness; while those who have made it the business of their lives to know and do the will of their heavenly Father, shall be praising God in glory. Though we may be called to pass through many trials; it may be to dwell far from all the pleasant scenes of our childhood in a land of strangers, or we may be called to give up the friendship of those who are most dear to us as our earthly friends; yet for Jesus' sake we can do it. But to know we have God's word for it we are building on a sure foundation, doubly compensates for all. But for this blessed assurance of eternal peace, what would this short life be worth?—a few days of joys and sorrow, and then the sands of time with us are run, and we are with those who have gone to return no more.

Thanks be to God for the precious promises that he will remember our slumbering dust, and though heaven and earth pass away, yet he will not fail in one thing he has promised. Let us be willing to renounce our own former opinion of things, and, sitting at the feet of Jesus, be guided entirely by him, and our hope will be staid upon a foundation which will never fail us, and we shall be safe though the heavens roll together as a scroll, and the elements melt with fervent heat, and the earth shall be burned up.

LOUIZA S. BUSH.

West Fort Ann, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

OUR PREPARATION.

Bro. Grant, and the readers of the Crisis: Most gladly do I hail the light that gives certainty to the nearness of Christ's coming and kingdom. O! my heart is made very joyful at the prospect of what is so soon coming. While rejoicing over a fallen foe that had ever greatly afflicted me (slavery in our nation), I thought what will be the joy when our great Adversary comes down under chains by the power of the Highest. This, with its associate events, is now near to come, and who is ready? Who are searching their hearts, trying themselves, not by other examples, nor their feelings, but by the Word, aided by the candle of the Lord? Who with the golden wedge and Babylonish garment (any need to search for these?) expects to go into the kingdom? Who are selling their birthrights for a morsel of pottage? Better bring out the idols and slay them now, than to be soon slain because of them. Better come out from the foolish virgins now, than to be shut out with them by and by. Are we walking in the light as He is in the light, having fellowship one with another (of God's children), and feeling that the blood of Christ cleanseth us from all sin? Then shall we be ready to do what we may to save souls bought with the precious blood of Christ. Then shall we be enabled to escape all the things that are coming on the world, and stand before the Son of man. There are those who will welcome the coming King with the joyful exclamation, "Lo, this is our God, we have waited for him; this is our God, and he will save us." Now we cannot wait for any thing until fully ready for it; who, then, will be ready to say, "We have waited for him."

O! there is much to be done in the little time remaining, and there is a spirit of deep slumber fallen upon the whole world, which we inhale from the surrounding atmosphere, so that it requires constant exertion to keep awake; thus the performance of duty is made our only safety. Were we to see a boat load of individuals far enough above the rapids of Niagara to yet save themselves, we might do all our duty by warning them of their proximity to the great danger; but if we find them already in the rapids, then should we go to work with every energy and capability of our natures to save them. In such a case do we view all who are to day out of Christ. How essential, then, that we open our eyes to our duty and do it, with zeal according to knowledge, and love for a motive power. The wicked are giving themselves up more and more into the hands of the enemy, are being filled with his spirit most truly; and if those who would be christians do not give themselves up wholly to the Lord, and become filled with his Spirit, they certainly will not learn their duty, and will fail of being saved at last.

And how much time is there now in which to wait before setting about this work? Who now dares live a moment without assurance of acceptance with God? Most certainly this should not be at any time, but now how can it fail to be fatal? May we all speedily seek that light that shall lead us to regions of endless day. Yours longing for Christ's coming,

So. Sodus. C. HILL.

For the World's Crisis.

A SERMON.

A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.—John 13: 34.

Jesus gave this new commandment to his followers, just before he was to suffer on the cross for a guilty world. He said, "Let not your hearts be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me." "If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it." The Father would send the Comforter, the Holy Ghost, in his name, and "he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you."

With these promises, and many more, our Lord comforted his sorrowing disciples. After our Lord's resurrection, his disciples were commanded not to depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father. Here they were baptized with the Holy Ghost, which armed and clothed them with authority for their Master's service, so they could say, "the love of Christ constraineth us" to labor in the vineyard of the Lord. Yes, love is the propelling power that moved God to give his only begotten Son for us. It moved the apostles to count all things but dross that they might win Christ.

I wish to say a few things, showing how Christendom has deviated from this new commandment. In the day of pentecost, they were all of one heart, one mind, and were one in Christ Jesus. Sin and iniquity began to work in the days of the apostles; while some were for Paul, some Apollos, and some for Cephas. The apostle says, "Are ye not carnal, and walk as men?" "To be carnally minded is death." How is it now throughout Christendom? While one says, I am a Methodist, another, I am for Calvin, and another for Luther, so down throughout Christendom,—but few for Christ.

They may be filled with Calvinism, Lutheranism, and all the isms of the day, and yet be destitute of the "love of God." Are they not "carnal, and walk as men?" God does not command us to love the "man," but one another, as he loved us, and thus fulfill the law of Christ. Now the apostolic church "had all things common." No man had ought that he called his own. They did eat their bread with "singleness of heart." Care was taken by the church that the poor did not suffer; if one member suffered, they were to suffer with him; if one rejoiced, the rest were to rejoice also. How is it now? If there is a poor brother or sister, the town makes provision for them, while their pastor is rolling in luxury, drawing a great salary, and his children walking in the fashionable circles of life. Is this loving one another as Christ loved us? Is this keeping the new commandment? Is this laying down our lives for the brethren? Yet there are some happy exceptions, thank God.

When Jesus asked Peter, "Lovest thou me?" "Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee." Peter was to feed Christ's sheep and lambs. I fear some shepherds had rather shear the flock than to feed them. Some followed Christ anciently for the sake of the loaves and fishes.

Is it any wonder, in this present age, that some should divine for money, preach for hire, and care more for the place than for the flock? Is this loving Christ as he loved us? Is this carrying about the dying marks of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ? Is this reckoning these light afflictions, which are "but for a moment;" that shall work out "for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory"?

Again, if the church had followed Christ wholly, as Joshua and Caleb of old, she would never have joined in wedlock with the world. We are to overcome the world, through the blood of the Lamb, and the word of our testimony.

Thou poverty-stricken one, thy way may look gloomy, and seemingly hedged up, Jesus will clear the way before thee; he will provide. Although the people around you may set you at nought, and laugh at your calamity for a season, joy will come by and by, when ye shall be made kings and priests unto God, where ye will not need the light of the sun or moon, for God and the Lamb shall be the light of the city.

A. BAIN.

Lincoln, Vt.

THE BIBLE IN THE FAMILY CIRCLE.

Talk about the Bible, evermore, do you, reader? Is it your delight, your food, your meat, and your drink? Do you make the Bible a subject of conversation on every suitable occasion, at home and abroad? Parents, is the Bible your text book, your all in all? the delight of your souls? Do you embrace every favorable opportunity to speak of the excellency of this heavenly treasure in your families? introduce it as a subject of conversation, while seated around your tables spread with the bounties of heaven? Do you teach your "little ones" to commit to memory some precious portions of the holy Scriptures, and rehearse it, as a subject to dwell upon, while you partake of your daily repast? Beloved, fail not to do this; be sure to talk about God's truth, things heavenly and divine, the Lord Jesus Christ, the soul's welfare, heaven, hell, death, judgment, eternity, the praises thereof—cease not. Our conversation should be in heaven, where our treasure is. Whether we labor, eat, drink, sleep, all should be in reference to God's glory! Our time—our whole time, should be to secure the rest eternal. All things earthly should bow implicitly to this one infinite, momentous, all-absorbing idea. What is time? A shadow, a vapor, a flash, and we are gone, gone. Why not, then, talk about home, things heavenly, divine, glorious, immortal, of love everlasting, justice, mercy, truth, of God's infinite mercy in Christ Jesus?

And yet, is it so? Alas! introduce God's book, quote some precious passage as a subject of conversation at table, in the parlor, sitting-room, in the social circle, or around the fireside—what now? silence reigns! all is hush as the tomb! Unwelcome? yes, the blessed book, more precious than rubies, is an intruder! To introduce the Bible as a subject of meditation or elucidation, is intrusion, marring the peace, exhibiting a lack of courtesy. It is surprising, shocking, indeed, to witness the apparent dislike to angels' food, the bread of eternal life, manifested by many professing godliness. How different the Psalmist; his whole soul was absorbed—on fire!—kindled to a flame! in meditating God's law. No subject was so absorbingly, soul-kindlingly delightful as the Bible. So it was with the primitive disciples; the Bible was their text-book—a constant topic of conversation. The truly upright and holy in heart in all ages, drank deeply at this living, ever-flowing, fountain of salvation, with ecstacy seraphic. Christ and him crucified are the all in all—forever and forever! Little Timothy knew the Holy Scriptures from his childhood, and early became wise unto salvation by their teachings. Doubtless, his mother and grandmother made God's word the sole medium of instruction, the daily and hourly subject of conversation. See Deut. sixth chapter.

Strange, indeed, that a christian, a professed disciple of the Holy One, should object to dwelling on religious subjects, things pertaining to our heavenly calling, the song of angels. The life to come, and soon to come, should absorb our inmost souls continually, rising up, lying down, going out, coming in, at table, in the family and social circle, at home and abroad, everywhere. All the powers of our being should be swallowed up in God. David, the sweet singer of Israel, although engrossed with cares manifold, meditated day and night in God's word; he feasted upon angels' food; it was his meat and his drink, sweeter than honey and the honey-comb, more precious than gold. So it was, when it is as it will be, with all holy beings in heaven and on earth all who fight the good fight of faith—lay hold on eternal life. Every moment is counted lost, unless, in some way, God is in it. They are never weary, never clogged with heavenly things, things everlasting, glory eternal.

"Their souls break out in strong desire,
The perfect bliss to prove;
Their longing hearts are all on fire,
To be dissolved in love."

Friend, is your soul thus on fire? kindled to a holy flame, while meditating and conversing about God, his Son, his word, the home of the weary, the heavy laden, the rest of God's people? Is the subject of religion your chief delight, always, everywhere? or are you mum when this blessed subject is introduced? Some professors of religion are fluent, very glib on worldly things, commonplace things. At table, in the domestic and social circle, their tongues go like mill-clappers, on things trifling, or those of little moment; but when God is introduced, Jesus Christ, the Lamb, holiness to the Lord, salvation or sanctification of souls, all is hush as death, silent as the tomb.

Beloved, is this you? Have you not reason to fear you have no part or lot in this matter? "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." Where the treasure is, there will be the heart also. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

"Let worldly minds the world pursue,
It has no charms for me;
Once I admired its trifles, too,
But grace has set me free.

"Then cease! my wandering soul,
On restless wing to roam;
All this wide world, to either pole,
Has not for thee a home."

—Home Thrusts.

For the World's Crisis.

A WORD TO THE READER.

DEAR READER:—Have you attentively considered the great crowning truth which has been presented to you through the columns of the Crisis week after week, viz., Jesus is soon coming? Are you prepared for the great and terrible events which are about to transpire? Are you a half-hearted professor? If so, your christianity will soon fail you. It is the pure in heart that shall see God; the meek that shall inherit the earth; the willing and obedient that shall eat of the good of the land, and none others. God grant that you may not reap the fearful consequences of this lukewarmness in the service of God, but that you may lay all upon the altar, and become wholly consecrated to his cause.

Are you one that trembles at the thought of God's approaching day of wrath? See! there is Christ, who died for you. Confess your guilt, turn from the error of your ways, throw yourself unreservedly upon his mercy, and trust him alone for salvation. He will in no wise cast you out. Fear not; confess him now before the world, and he will confess you before the Father and the angels. O, make haste, delay not for a moment, lest thou be destroyed with the ungodly, for their destruction is certain and inevitable. Come and be reconciled to God while it is an accepted time and a day of salvation. God is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance.

Sinner, "Prepare to meet thy God." The great and notable day of the Lord is at hand. This generation must witness the coming of our Savior, and that, too, in a few short months. Is the Bride prepared to receive him?

CHAS. H. SWEET.

Natick, R. I.

THRUST OUT.

It was the first cold storm of the winter. I was hurriedly walking past one of the many saloons, theatres, and places of so called pleasure, as a rough door-keeper was pushing a beggar-woman out of the porch into the street and the storm. She made no other resistance than to turn a despairing look upon him as he thrust her along by the shoulder, and to beg that she might stand out of the cold awhile, for she was almost perished. He hurried her on, and the words that caught my ear, as they fell from her skinny lips, and hissed through the wind and snow, were these:—

"Well, maybe you'll want to get into heaven, and God will put you out of that."

They cut me to the heart. Many a time had I turned a deaf ear to the cry for mercy, and if I had never turned a poor creature out of doors when she wanted a shelter from the cold blast of winter, I had done worse perhaps in leaving many a wretch to perish whom I might have sought and saved. And the time will come, as sure as these days and years are passing, when I shall stand at the door of heaven, and, poorer than this starved beggar, I shall ask to be taken in. I wonder if God will turn me out in that day!

Then came to me those sweet words of Jesus, which fell from his lips when he sat on Judea's hill, and the disciples gathered at his feet, "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy." Down through eighteen centuries they have come to me, and they sing at my heart's door to-day with the music of heaven in their silvery tones; and whoever a cup of cold water, or a loaf, or a piece of gold is mercy, if it is mine, it shall be given in the name of Him who said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me."—Selected.

RUDENESS.—If I am treated rudely let me examine into the cause, and if I cannot discover any sort of impropriety in my own conduct, I may disregard the rudeness, and consider him who displays it as no better than a brute; and why should the conduct of a brute disturb me?

Nothing grieves Christ more than to have his love slighted; nothing pleases him more than to have it accepted.

For the World's Crisis.

HIGHWAYS AND HEDGES.

In compliance with the expressed wishes of many of the readers of the Crisis, I will in future try to write oftener about the Dorcas Mission of Philadelphia, if it will add anything to the interest of the paper, and serve to provoke others to love and good works. There are few fields of labor that are more full of real trials than that in which we are engaged. Day after day we are compelled to witness scenes that make our hearts ache. There is no such thing as getting used to these sights. Poverty, crime and filth compose the grand trio that hold undisputed sway in this neighborhood. Few, even in Philadelphia, are aware of the extent of iniquity that exist in the streets, courts, alleys, garrets, shanties, cellars and sheds that we visit. Sodom could not be much worse. Boys and girls of not more than twelve years of age get drunk, fight, curse and swear, steal, lie, and commit other sins. Their parents are of the same cast of character. No wonder that those children whose first breath is drawn in an atmosphere filled with the fumes of liquor, whose ears hear first curses and oaths and obscene songs, whose eyes witness first scenes of crime and degradation, should be just what we find them. Liquor is put to their lips as soon as they can say "papa" or "mamma," and before they are twelve years old they are little sots.

At certain times one may be in one of these low streets, and, not seeing many persons, might think it to be a quiet location. But wait awhile. Soon you will hear the noise of scuffling in some narrow alley, and in a moment more the combatants will be in the street making the air resound with their cries. Immediately you will see scores and hundreds of the most depraved beings that ever could be collected together. They pour out of every nook and corner, from narrow alleys and courts, dark cellars and miserable garrets, tumbling-down houses, and rickety sheds. There they are, black and white, some with scarcely clothing enough to cover their nakedness, others half naked and lost to all sense of shame. Many faces are swollen and marked with the scars and bruises of many a fight, their hair uncombed and tangled, eyes bloodshot, and filthiness of the flesh and spirit abounding. Those who are timid would beat a hasty retreat from such a perdition-bound company. They are really fearful looking, and the greater part of them under the influence of liquor. Soon there is a general row, and stones, brickbats and clubs are used with unlimited freedom, until the assailants have pomelled each other to their mutual satisfaction, when all retire once more to their haunts, after which the police, if they are not drunk, will be seen running to where the fight was, but finding nobody to arrest, leave to repeat the same performance twenty-four hours afterwards.

There have been a number of remarkable conversions this winter from this class of persons. "Aunt Lucy," living in Gillis Alley, was one of the most notorious drunkards in that den of the devil. The very night on which she was converted, she had been engaged in a fight similar to the one just described. After the fight was over she went to a rum-shop and got another drink, and fearing that she might get into another fight, she did not return to her own home, but went into one of her neighbors. We were holding meetings in that vicinity, and on that evening were gathering a congregation together by going to every house and inviting the people to attend the meeting at the corner of St. Mary's alley. Aunt Lucy responded to the call. The text that evening was, "Thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting." The words sank deep into her heart. At once she commenced calling on the name of the Lord, and before midnight was filled with the love of God, and praising him who "is able to save unto the uttermost." The next morning the neighbors were surprised to see that "terrible Lucy" with a smiling countenance in the place of the ugly one that she formerly had. They soon learned the cause, and even sinners said they were glad for Aunt Lucy. Three months have passed away since that time, and Lucy may yet be seen in our meetings with streaming eyes and a voice full of christian sweetness. Though black, she has been made white by the blood of the Lamb.

A few weeks ago a dear little colored girl named Clara Winns, about six years old, fell asleep in Jesus. She had no mother living, but was taken care of (?) by a woman on Cross Alley. After this child was dead, it was nearly eaten up by rats, and the spectacle presented at the time of its burial was revolting in the extreme.

Some have found fault with me because I do not preach "time"; but such persons may rest assured that if there is anybody that would be glad to see Jesus this year, it is he who labors in the highways and hedges, seeking to win souls to Christ. I have no time to stop for debates about fish hooks, baits, poles, lines, etc., for if I do I shall not catch a fish; but I know the Lord will soon come by "the signs of the times," therefore I have good hooks, baits, etc., and endeavor to catch men, and am blest of the Lord in so doing. Those who live in the highways and hedges can discern "the signs of the times," but they are puzzled and left in a fog over chronology, astronomy, and the like. Jesus said, "Behold, I come quickly." We respond with John, "Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus."

We find many worthy poor families in all these localities, and we help them as far as we are prospered with means. The friends in Pleasant Valley, Ct., have sent us a barrel full of Christianity in the shape of copies of the Crisis, Herald of the Bridegroom, hats, hoods, pants, coats, aprons, dresses, boots, shoes, quilts, etc., etc. May the Lord bless them and others whom I have before mentioned in this line. Several months ago some person or persons sent us a barrel full, but no letter came with it, so that I can only guess who sent it. I guess it was a Bro. in Lynn who sent us one once before that. May the Lord bless him.

We have $725.00 in cash toward the purchase of the Home for Little Wanderers. We are expecting $200.00 more to be added by two individuals as the Lord may open the way for them. $3.00 were sent me by some unknown person; $2.00 from R. N. C., Fletcher, Vt.; and other sums which have been acknowledged by letter. This institution will be so secured, that, in case of my decease, it shall continue to be used for the purpose for which it is purchased. Pray for us.

Yours, etc., in the highways and hedges,
F. H. BURNHAM.
Philadelphia, Penn., S. W. Corner 7th and Spring Garden Sts.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, June 20, 1866.

☞ SEND US NATIONAL BILLS.

All bills on State Banks will be uncurrent here after July 1st. Those who are sending money to this office after this date, will therefore please remember to send only National Bills or greenbacks.

In sending postal currency, be careful to see that it is good before sending it. Very much of this fractional currency now in circulation is counterfeit; and every week we are receiving worthless notes of this description, which we are obliged to return to the [illegible].

☞ Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.00 a year; but if delayed six months beyond the time of payment, the price is $2.50 a year. Thus 50 cents a year is saved by paying in advance.

☞ Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank-checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

DISCUSSION.

We are to have a discussion at East Canaan, N. H., with Mr. N. Jones, F. W. Baptist minister, commencing Tuesday evening, June 26th, at 7 P. M., to continue four evenings, and longer if thought best.

SUBJECT,—The immortality of man.

MORE ABOUT TRACTS.

We fear our readers are not sufficiently awake to the importance of scattering tracts, and supplying the means for this very effective and cheap way of doing good. We have given away about all that we have money to purchase. The treasury needs filling up. It will not do to let it be empty now, just at the time when people are becoming more anxious than ever to read.

We received a note yesterday from one who is ready to scatter tracts, but has no means to pay for them. He called on a wicked and destitute family, and inquired if they would like a tract?—"Yes, sir." Do you love the Lord?—"No, sir." Some tracts were left, and in one week they resulted in the conversion of the whole family. The tracts left probably did not cost over ten cents; and yet the value of the result could not be represented by millions of dollars.

Shall the destitute be supplied with these little faithful preachers?

Whatever other benevolent enterprises may share in our liberality, we think the TRACT FUND should have the first place, because by this we can accomplish the most good with the least means.

It will be observed that but little has been given of late. Brn. and Srs., do not let this life-giving stream dry up just at the time when its healing waters are most needed by the thirsty souls.

There are many poor saints who are willing to devote a portion of time to the distribution of tracts; but they cannot pay for them. Shall they have them to scatter? There are others whose business so occupies their attention, that they find little or no time to visit among their neighbors for the purpose of giving them tracts and words of comfort, who can give the means to buy the tracts, and never feel any poorer for the gift; but, on the contrary, will lay up treasure in heaven by so doing. Now is the time to get rich by giving to the Lord. Do not forget that "God loveth a cheerful giver."—2 Cor. 9: 7. May the reader enjoy this love.

THE ADDRESS.—We commend to our readers Bro. Burr's "Address," found in another column; especially what he says on "the unity of the Spirit." He has spoken of the chief source of danger. It is Satan's special work now to cause divisions. This is an hour of great peril to the church. Let us "keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

WAR.

These are emphatically war times. Truly the nations are "angry," as it is declared they would be just before the end of the present dispensation. The war clouds are continually looking more and more threatening. Indeed, they never looked more terrible, or indicated bloodier scenes than now. The prospect indicates a general war of all nations. Great preparations are being made for the human slaughter-house, and the slaughter-men stand ready to begin their bloody deeds. Soon we may expect to read the reports of the battle carnage.

How can men be so blinded by creeds as to be looking for a temporal millennium to begin at this time, before the coming of Jesus? and yet still blinder; for some even say the world is growing better. They might as reasonably say that rum holes and brothels were nurseries of virtue.

A Paris correspondent of the London Telegraph says:—"The people must make up their minds for the worst, for war, short, sharp, and decisive, is inevitable."

A Florence letter published in the Paris Siecle gives the following lively account of the war feeling in Italy:

"Colonels are joining the Italian army as privates. Prince Pio, connected with the House of Savoy, and very wealthy, goes as a simple volunteer under Garibaldi's banner. I know this for certain, as the Prince himself told me. I have seen here a young man, from Bologna, who made the campaign in Sicily; he has come in the name of five hundred youths of the districts of the above named town and of Mantua, to ask for authorization to arm and equip themselves, without costing the state a single soldo. They have purchased horses and are ready to buy their arms. They propose to live at their own expense and to form a large squadron of gratuitous volunteers. The only favor they solicit is to form the outposts and be the first to meet the enemy. Everywhere, in all classes, there is the same spirit, the same enthusiasm. When returning from Fiesole yesterday in an omnibus, I heard the following conversation between two peasants: 'With whom is your son going?' 'With Garibaldi; and yours?' 'With Vittorio (Victor Emmanuel.)' They then shook hands. A heroic spectacle! It is impossible to resist the [illegible] passion. This over-excited nation is in one of those moments when everything is possible, especially the impossible. [illegible] for everything—to conquer, and die."

HOUR OF DANGER.

Careful observers of political matters in this country, are satisfied that the American government is in a critical condition; and becoming increasingly so from month to month. We may expect to know more about perilous times soon. All attempts to reform society by any means excepting by the pure christian religion will be but so many failures; but this is not the way proposed by the various class of "Reformers." All sorts of substitutes are proposed; and each seems to be further removed from the standard set by Jesus, till we come at last to Spiritualism, the most remote of all; and yet it promises the most;—just like the deceiver and seducer.

Now is the time, for all who wish to be saved, to cling closer than ever to the Bible, the blessed BIBLE."

When speaking of the state of things in this government, the Alton (Ill.) Telegraph says:—

"In our opinion this government was never in more peril from the machinations of the enemies of freedom and the Union, than it is to-day. Its enemies are energetic, vigilant, and as malignant as they ever have been, and will leave no means, however foul and diabolical, unemployed to accomplish this infamous purpose. Their hearts are rankling with jealously, anger and revenge against the Northern people. For they are not only incensed at the loss of their slaves, the devastation of their country, and the ignominious and disastrous defeat which befel their army, but they are all more or less directly interested in the Confederate debt, and they will never give up the contest until that debt is either paid or the Federal debt repudiated, or until they secure their independence. To accomplish this, they are willing to compass sea and land, and will succeed unless they are met with as bold, unyielding, and determined front by the North, as they are now manifesting toward us. Every man who loves his country has something to do now if he would preserve it. Therefore let all such come boldly up to the rescue."

INQUIRIES.

Bro. T. Driscoll, Boston, writes:—"Until last summer, I was quite ignorant as to the existence of such a people as the Advent people; but I have no reason to regret that I have become acquainted with them, for I believe that they have been the instruments in the hands of God of leading me to a knowledge of the truth, and enabling me to rejoice in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made me free.

For the last three or four weeks my mind has been somewhat perplexed as to the correct interpretation of a few passages of Scripture, which I shall give, hoping that some one who loves the Lord Jesus, will give me an answer sufficient to convey to my mind their true meaning. The object I have in view of writing thus is to gain instruction, after which I have been anxiously seeking for some time; remembering the words of Solomon, Prov. 4: 13, 'Take fast hold of instruction; let her not go; keep her, for she is thy life.'

Those who advocate the advent doctrine believe that wicked men will not exist forever; but if our first parents had been allowed to have eaten of the tree of life, it would have made them immortal, and capable of existing in endless torment. Now I have no reason to believe that angels are not immortal; and if we believe they are, we must come to the conclusion that the devil is also immortal; if so, how is he going to be destroyed, if nothing that is immortal can be destroyed?

Did the Almighty mean anything in particular, when he commanded his servant John to write these words, Rev. 14: 11,—'And the smoke of their torment ascendeth up forever and ever; and they have no rest day nor night'? I believe God means just what he says, and wills that we should understand what he does mean. I pray that God's Spirit may light up my soul, and give me a clearer view of his holy word. The Bible has been my study for the past four years. No book has ever given me such comfort, and none do I love so well as that holy book.

What did the Psalmist David mean, when he breaks forth in such language as this: 'Oh that I had the wings of a dove; for then would I fly away, and be at rest'? Did he want the wings of a dove to fly to the land of the enemy, or the grave? or did he long to die that his spirit might fly away and be at rest?

What did Solomon mean by saying, the spirit of man goeth upward, but the spirit of the beast goeth downward? He makes some distinction between man and beast.

The apostle says, 1 Peter 1: 3–4, we are begotten 'again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away; reserved'—where? The word says 'in heaven.' The question is, will the inheritance come to us, or will we go to the inheritance? If that inheritance that Peter speaks of is the same that God promised to Abraham and his seed, it is reserved in heaven."

We do not know of any Scripture to show that angels were created immortal, or that those who sinned are now, or ever will be immortal. The "holy angels" are to be immortal, and good men are to be like them in this respect.

The Scriptures plainly declare that Jesus will "destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil."—Heb. 2: 14. If he is immortal, we do not see how he could be destroyed.

For light on Rev. 14: 11, we would refer Bro. Driscoll to an article in another column, headed,—"Aion."

When David wished for "wings of a dove," that he might "fly away, and be at rest," does that prove that he would have wings and fly? We often hear a similar remark; but does it prove any thing, only that such an event can not take place? Does any one suppose that David, or any other man, will have doves' wings, here or hereafter?

David says nothing about dying, in order "that his spirit might fly away and be at rest;" but the Bible does say, "David is not ascended into the heaven." It also says:—"David, after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption." Acts 2: 34, 13: 36. When alive, and looking forward to his death, and subsequent resurrection David said:—"I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness."—Ps. 17: 15.

The passage referred to in Solomon's writings reads as follows:—Who knoweth the spirit of man that goeth upward, and the spirit of the beast that goeth downward to the earth? [illegible] In the 19th verse of the same chapter, he says:—"That which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no pre-eminence above a beast," i.e., in dying, "for all is vanity. All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again." Then follows the passage under consideration, which, in the Septuagint, reads as follows:—"Who hath seen the breath of the sons of men, whether it ascendeth upwards, and the breath of the beasts, whether it descendeth downwards into the earth?" The word rendered "breath" in the 19th verse is the same in the original Hebrew that is rendered "spirit" in the 21st verse; and in both cases the word is translated breath in Thompson's Septuagint, which we believe gives a correct idea of the meaning of these passages.

In relation to the reserved inheritance, we find it is called "the kingdom of heaven." Where is it to be? The prophet Daniel says: "The kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High."—Dan. 7: 27. The Savior says: "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth."—Matt. 5: 5. When will they receive their reserved inheritance? The Savior says:—"When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, . . . Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."—Matt. 25: 31–34.

In the Lord's prayer, we are taught to pray—"Thy kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."—Matt. 6: 10. We understand this planet is to become the kingdom of heaven, and then it will be the saints' inheritance, which is now reserved for them. Instead of saying, "kingdom of heaven," as in other places, Peter simply says "heaven." And when the saints take "the kingdom under the whole heaven," then the children of the "Most High" receive their reserved inheritance.

Still further, it should be remembered that the "New Jerusalem," which is to be the capitol of the coming kingdom, is to come "down from God, out of heaven"; and when that is accomplished, the saying will come to pass, in Rev. 21: 3—"Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God." This is to be on the "NEW EARTH," which the "meek . . . shall inherit." Let us all believe it.

THE APOCALYPSE.

We have received the second number of the Apocalypse, containing a portion of a series of special lectures on the Revelation of Jesus Christ, with revised text," by Dr. J. A. Seiss, Editor of the Prophetic Times, Philadelphia. These lectures, eight of which have now been given, we think are the best and most interesting we have ever seen on the book of the Revelation.

The two numbers contain 222 octavo pp. Price 50 cts a number, postage 8cts. each. Address Post Office Box 2245, Philadelphia, Pa.

The following is an extract from the last number:

Very different was the church of Laodicea. Here was nothing to commend, though having in it a few suffering ones whom Christ loves and chastens. Its name designates it as the Church of mob rule, the democratic church, in which everything is swayed and decided by popular opinion, clamor and voting; and hence a self-righteous and self-sufficient church. It is described as thinking itself the perfection of churches. It said in its heart, 'I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need in nothing;' but never was a body of people so wofully self-deluded. With all this boastfulness, the faithful and true Witness found nothing which He could abide, and pronounces them wretched, and pitiable, and poor, and blind, and naked, and about to be vomited up and cast out.

We thus find all sorts and shades of intermingled or co-existent good and evil in the church of that day. Some were priestridden, and on that account condemned; and some were mobridden, and hence unsatisfactory to Christ. Some had great zeal for pure doctrine and godly discipline, whilst they failed in the important element of love and charity; and others, with much faith and beneficence, yet permitted the manlier things of doctrine, and the ruling out of impurity, to be overlaid by the false pretences and dominations of lewd effeminacy. Some in their sufferings were faultless, but feeble; and others in their prosperity were strong, but dead and corrupt. There was true faith, and false faith, and sometimes no faith. There were schisms, and heresies, and sects, as well as devout works, and noble self-sacrifices, and instances of fidelity unto death. There were children of the kingdom and children of the wicked one, wheat and tares, truths and errors, sins and sanctities, then as now, and as in all intervening ages. The leaven of evil was even then already working in the woman's meal, and the birds of impurity finding lodgment in the branches of the springing tree.

We may also notice, in this connection, the stress which our blessed Lord lays upon the practical features of religion. It is upon these that his commendations and censures turn. What he praises in the Ephesians is their labor, their endurance, their resistance of evil, their patience, their courageous perseverance in well doing; and what he proposed as the remedy for their defects, was that they should return to their first works. Love, ministries, patience, labors, works: these are the things to which he refers with most delight, as the marks of the true election, and the proper badges of approved saintship. It is in vain to boast of a correct creed, of right theories, of sound doctrine, if there be no practical godliness, no good works, no positive virtues and active charities and labors. Orthodoxy is important, but orthodoxy alone will not do. The most orthodox in this list is depictured as the deadest. Mere ecstacies, pleasant frames, joyous feelings, loud professions, or dreams that we are rich in grace, and in the divine favor, will not do; for the most ecstatic and the best pleased with itself, among these churches, was the worst. There must be faith, and a true faith; but also a living, working, bearing, self-denying faith—a faith which shows its life and power by love, by charities, by gracious ministries, by active services and sacrifices for God. Persecutions and sufferings may cut off opportunity for such displays, as winter overlies and holds up the [illegible] powers of nature, [illegible]; but, as spring [illegible] those hidden germs [illegible] to put forth and fill the face of heaven with joyous freshness, beauty and fruit, so must true piety in the soul show itself in the life, in good deeds, in devoted endeavors, in a loving spirit, and in faithful standing to the truth, whatever might be the cost or storms.

There are, indeed, such things as "dead works," [illegible] with piety; works put on from without, and not brought forth from within; fruits tied upon the tree, and not the product of its life; which are not at all characteristics of true religion. There may be prayers, vigils, fasts, temples, altars, priests, rites, ceremonies, worship, and still be no true piety. Heathenism has all these. There may be christian profession, connection with the church, observance of the sacraments, where saving religion has never taken root. None of these things alone characterize a christian. That which distinguishes him, where all other tests fail, is his living, active love to God and man—his charity. If this be lacking, the defect is fatal. All knowledge, all faith, all mastery of tongues, all miraculous powers, cannot atone for such a deficiency. For "pure religion, and undefiled before God and the Father, is this; to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep unspotted from the world."

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

A Bro. in England, who heard us preach in Montreal, writes:—

"BRO. GRANT:—Thinking that a line or two would not be out of place, I have taken the liberty of addressing a few words to you. The Crisis is the best teacher I get, and the only one, on many important Bible truths. After reading them and copying some of the scriptures referred to on some subjects, I post them again to various friends. Some of them, when badly worn through use, I cut up, and send some of the entire articles enclosed in letters to my friends. My brother Joseph is asked questions, the same as myself, 'Where and how can we get these papers and books?' adding, 'they are the best help I can get.'

'Tis true we meet with opposition, and are looked upon as dangerous persons; but with our heavenly Father's assistance, we are enabled to adopt the truth as fast as we see it; not fearing the results, expecting ere long to see the life-giver return, and hear him say, Well done. I bless my heavenly Father that in his providence I was led to Montreal."

THE CIVIL OBLIGATIONS OF CHRISTIANS.—The above is the title of a new pamphlet of 21 pp., by John T. Walsh, of Baltimore, Md. Price 15 cts. $5 for fifty, $10 per hundred.

This is an excellent work for those who think it is right for christians to fight with carnal weapons. It will benefit those who read it, if they observe its healthy counsel.

For sale at this office.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; being a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed.

A valuable work for ministers and Bible students. Price 50 cts. Address orders to this office.

NEW TRACT ON UNIVERSALISM.

UNIVERSALISM EXPOSED FROM THE INNER TEMPLE, AND SHOWN TO BE, IN ITS RESULTS, NO BETTER THAN INFIDELITY. By John T. Walsh. Issued by the Advent Christian Publication Society, 167 Hanover Street, Boston. 24 pages. In papers covers, 7 cents, by mail.

This is a very able and powerful work, and deserves an extensive circulation. The doctrines of endless misery and universal salvation have engaged the earnest and thoughtful attention of the author for many years; and, in this discourse, he enters the lists against Universalism with the air of one who is perfectly familiar with his subject, sure of his strength, and confident of victory. At once, and without parley, he rushes full tilt upon his antagonist, drives his sharp and merciless lance through his very vitals, and drags him unhorsed and disarmed to the ground. With a grasp of iron, he tears off his fair-seeming masks and disguises, lays bare and naked his monstrous deformities and absurdities, and exposes the subtle and delusive system of Universalism as a false Pretender and Counterfeit; and as bearing little resemblance, in features, character, and influence, to the True Christian Faith, and being, in reality, but a painted, padded, and pretentious system of disguised and incipient Infidelity.

The Christian believer cannot read this little work without growing stronger in the truth, nor can he circulate it without doing good. Its argument is clear, pointed, forcible; its style bold, vigorous, caustic; its logic irresistible, and its conclusions unanswerable. It will bear a dozen readings, and he who shall thus incorporate its reasonings into the argument of his own mind, will be the more strongly armed against the assaults and sophistries of Error.

It is an excellent thing to scatter among Universalist friends, and those who are leaning that way. The poison of Universalism is infecting men's minds everywhere, in the church and out of it. This little tract is a powerful and effectual antidote. Have you friends and companions in danger? Give them one of these tracts. Consecrate some of your spare dimes and dollars to its circulation. They, to whom it shall be a means of salvation from a dangerous delusion and death, will bless you; and God, the Author of all truth, will reward you.

W. B. H.

LETTING THE LIGHT SHINE.

The wife of an Episcopal minister in Illinois, in a private letter, says:—

"I have a number of friends in different portions of this western country whom I have persuaded to take the Crisis, among whom is a candidate for the Episcopal ministry. Both he and his family like it much. I have another friend in Ohio, to whom I was permitted to introduce our 'blessed hope' while boarding with her at the same hotel in Augusta, Me., who is circulating the various Advent publications, and doing what she can to prepare a people in her native State to meet the Lord. In her letters to me she expresses almost extatic joy in believing in and preparing for the immediate coming of her 'blessed Lord.'

"When she first became interested, she asked what books she should get. I told her to send to you for some. She did so. To my dismay, when she received them, I found you had sent some tracts on the state of the dead and destruction of the wicked. As she had been brought up in the Congregationalist church, and was at that time a member of the same, I was afraid that these tracts would destroy her interest in the Advent faith; so I told her not to read them just then, but wait till she could bear it. A few days after, I went to her room, and found her rejoicing in the new, and, as she thought, 'blessed truth' she had discovered in the forbidden tracts. 'Why,' said she, 'they are the only safeguard against Spiritualism.' Dear Bro., are not the [illegible] about to let go? and is not the [illegible] time about to end?"

$5000 TRACT FUND.

For the Free Distribution of [illegible]

Previous [illegible]	[illegible]
N. Chase	[illegible]

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To send the Crisis to the Poor.

[illegible] sent free, 580. Am't Expense, $1480.00

Previous acknowledgments	$330.40
J. J. Austin	.50

THE AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All communications relating to the business of the Society, and all applications for situations as teachers or missionaries, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, WILLIAM B. HERROX, "Crisis" Office, Boston.

All donations of money, or clothing, or other supplies [illegible] GEORGE T. ADAMS, 167 Hanover Street, Boston. In sending supplies, enclose in a letter to the same address a notice and list of the articles sent.

Advent Mission Fund.

For the establishment of Missions among the Freedmen, the building of a Chapel and Mission House in Memphis, etc.

Previous acknowledgments	2512.27
J. B. Morgan	3.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL FUND.

To Supply Destitute Sunday Schools with Books and "Pilgrim."

Previous acknowledgments	$3.30
Flora S. Davis	1.00
Mrs. M. A. St. Clair	.50

EUROPEAN MISSION.

Previous acknowledgments	$566.35
Flora S. Davis	1.00
N. Chase	1.00
M. Richardson	1.00

For the World's Crisis.

THE ST. LOUIS MISSION.

BRO. GRANT:—With a heart overflowing with gratitude and praise to God for all his benefits to the children of men, in behalf of the little flock at St. Louis, I write. God has been moving in our midst

"In a mysterious way,
His wonders to perform."

At times the clouds have been dark and almost impenetrable; the powerful elements of light and darkness have met in fearful combat; but He that controlled the tempest long years ago, has rebuked the wind and waves;—they obey, and with him on board we are outriding all opposing influences, and malice, selfishness and envy are plunging back to their native vortex. Honor to his blessed name! At the review we are made to feel the force of Job's words,—"He discovereth deep things out of darkness; he gathereth together, and who can hinder him?"

God's humble few are advancing with firm, steady tread. Our number is fast increasing; almost every week one, two, and three are added. Our Sabbath school is rapidly growing, and for the length of time it has been in session, it has surpassed my most sanguine hopes. I say our number is increasing; for this I rejoice, but more to see such ardent desires and unflinching zeal among us to attain to a higher state of grace, and to enjoy more of the tangible, vital spirit and power of God, which now is displayed in our midst in a wonderful manner.

Last Lord's day, June 3d, for the first time since our organization, we commemorated the death and sufferings of our Lord and Master; and I can only inadequately express the glories of the day. Bro. Flagg in the morning preached a practical discourse from 2 Tim. 3: 12,—"Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution." He spoke like one sent from God, words that become sound doctrine, closing with an inspiring appeal to the church to be of good cheer, for now is our redemption nearer than when we first believed. In the afternoon, from half past one until three, our Sabbath school was in session, when, at its close, Bro. F. preached from Dan. 12, reining the people up to the judgment in a thrilling manner; after which the Lord's Supper was administered. It was a season of mingled sadness and joy, of hopes and fears, as it always is when we contemplate that our sins were laid on Him who knew no sin; that he was led as a lamb to the slaughter, and opened not his mouth;—of joy, that he is now a living Jesus, gone for a season to prepare a place for us; and hope, that he will come again and receive us to himself, and that speedily.

After Supper, such an overwhelming measure of joy and glory as was poured upon us in our upper room, only those present can conceive; and I never saw a greater exhibition of love and christian fellowship; we all felt that truly salvation has come unto all flesh, and he that "doeth the will of my Father, the same is my brother and sister." God is love, and he that loveth God loveth his brother also.

In the evening we listened to Sister Mary, from Matt. 11: 6,—"Blessed is he whosoever shall not be offended in me." The house was full and very attentive. God spoke through frail clay, and she launched out unencumbered into the light and liberty, while the Spirit sent the truth home to the hearts of the people. After the sermon, we had a conference meeting that lasted an hour or more, in which I judge forty exhortations, short but pointed, were given,—nearly all African brethren and sisters. It being then so late, it was deemed expedient to close, but the spirit of the meeting was as warm and ardent as at first, and many more would have been glad to have testified to their love for the truth, and that the blood of Jesus cleanseth from all sin. Next Lord's day, the Lord willing, there will be baptizing; the place of burial is expected to be beneath the surge of the Mississippi; and I pray God that the old man, and all his works of darkness, may be cast off for ever, and the subjects rise to newness of life in deed and truth.

Bro. Flagg, who has been with us now about six months, has been faithful in his mission of love among the African population of our city. His prayers have never ceased to rise like holy incense before the Lord of Sabaoth, for his divine assistance in spreading light and truth among the down-trodden and oppressed. The opposition, the depression within and without, care and anxiety, have caused him to suffer, like Job, many wearisome days and nights; but through all he has exhibited a spirit of meekness and resignation as becometh a follower of Jesus; but his cry with many more has found favor in the ears of Him who turns and overturns, and disposes of all that man proposes. He is now about to leave us for the East, and he leaves here a flock that will shed many burning tears at his departure. Our hearts have burned within us as he has expounded to us the word of life and truth, and extracted pearl after pearl from its rich mine and scattered them among us. But he leaves us to return, if the Lord wills and prospers him, in the fall, with means to build a place of worship here. He has given the colored people this assurance; and we must have a larger place; the society is growing so rapidly, and many are becoming interested in the great truth of the Lord's soon coming, that our place of worship is already too small to accommodate us. In the fear and will of God, we shall press the battle on, and erect an Advent fort here the ensuing fall.

We have an evening school in the hall in which we worship, for the education of those in or out of the church who desire to attend. This supports itself. Brethren and sisters, pray for us, that great good may be done here, and the work of the Lord prosper.

FRANCELIA F. CURTIS, Mission teacher.
St. Louis, Mo. Voice please copy.

For the World's Crisis.

TO THE SAINTS IN MAINE.

I am sounding the alarm of the coming judgment, and giving all that will come an earnest invitation to hide in Christ from the coming storm that is about to fall on the nations of earth. The seventh angel is about to sound, and the anger of nations soon to be seen, and the time of the dead to be judged. Dear brethren, be all ready.

Your Bro. in Christ, ISRAEL DAMMAN.
Boston, June 18th, 1866.

For the World's Crisis.

DO YOU WANT IT?

If you do not care to pay three cents for my catalogue of fifty books now on sale, send me your address, if you want to know about the books, and I will send you the printed list free of cost. Cut this out. I am bound to sell or give away. D. T. TAYLOR.
Rouse's Point, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

REPORT OF PROGRESS

FROM MASSACHUSETTS TO NEW HAMPSHIRE.

We left ourselves in Lynn, when we closed our report in a former paper, where, after the Lord's day, we had the opportunity of visiting some of nature's interesting, picturesque features, and scanning them to our satisfaction.

First, we ascended High Rock, where we had a fine view of the city, not in "bird's eye," but "as it is." We were elevated above the surrounding buildings, so that it was easy to comprehend at a glance the "City of Shoes," and its harbor, far out to sea. High Rock is a matter of interest itself. Its steep, perpendicular side, toward the sea, is so steep and so far down that one approaches it with awe and hesitancy; and as he looks down to the rock below, feels forcibly the strength of the faith of God's saints, who, during the 1260 years of Papal persecution, were hurled from such a place down to a horrid death. We were also reminded while here, looking out on the spires and turrets of the city, of the proud, elevated position faith gives the christian, so that he can by it see the city of the New Jerusalem, with its pearly gates and golden-paved streets, its shining turrets, and all flooded with God's golden-lighted glory, and we felt we could say,—

Let me go where the spires of Jerusalem I see,
To the top of Mount Pisgah, the best spot for me;
When the world's far beneath with its care and its woe,
To the height of the mountain gladly would I go.

Father has given us the privilege of finding frequently, in our travels, circumstances and places that lead us to Bible truth, and impress us with the blessedness of "our hope."

We descended from our elevation to visit another scene; to wit, "The Pirates' Cave," or "Old Dungeon Rock." This, says history, is the place where once a hoard of pirates had their rendezvous, and hoarded their treasures. An earthquake closed up the entrance, and shut in one of the gang with his paramour, so we are told, with his treasures. The great inducement to visit the place was the fact, that for the last fifteen years, one Marble has been digging after the treasures, under the direction of the Spirits (?), and we felt interested to see the man, and examine his work in the rock. The cave is, or was, in a large ledge, some forty feet in height, and a quarter of a mile in circumference, situated in the woods, three miles back of the city. An attendant lighted his lantern, and prepared to show us the work already accomplished, and tell us about its origin, the different directions given Mr. Marble at different times, and the prospect of finding the treasures, which he did with evident confidence in the direction of the Spirits. The excavation was commenced near the side of what has been called the entrance; but after digging a short distance, when the cave was possibly not far off, the directions were given to descend, and take a course inclining away from the great "den." At this point we descended a stairway, and traveled on until we had penetrated the rock, something like one hundred and fifty feet; i. e., following the excavation, which gradually inclines downward and toward the cave; and at the place where the blasting is now going on, it is completely in the opposite direction of the first part of the work; a semi-circle having been made, and the evidences are that if there is a cave there it is a very large one, and they will enter it at the rear. We thought the spirits were not very wise, as they might have brought Mr. Marble to this place with one fourth of the labor, and in a much more direct course.

We returned to the house, where we found Mr. Marble, who characterized himself as the "old fool," evidently hinting at the opinions of others concerning him, and his work. He had expended his property, and what else he could get on his work, until his own health failed, and now depends on his sons and our attendant, who had been sent there by the spirits (?). Mr. Marble had commenced and continued his work for the express purpose of proving the immortality of the soul. He doubted it at first, as well as the Bible; now, although not convinced of the truth of the Bible, he is satisfied of the truth of immortal-soulism; and is completely under the control of the demons. He says that such a work as opening the cave must be slow, to prepare the world for the shock of the final accomplishment of it. The wall of this room was hung about with some oil paintings and crayon sketches of ladies, whom the demons say were either connected with the pirates or were robbed by them. The paintings were made by mediums who saw the spirits, and painted them as they saw them. They were dressed richly, and wore jewels, some of which would be found in the cave with their bones when it should be opened. (Query.—How could the spirits (?) wear the jewels, and they be after all in the cave ?)

A crayon sketch, a very good one, of a lady, with a mournful expression of countenance, we were told was the portrait of a Spanish queen, whom the pirates robbed, and was drawn by the medium in forty-five minutes, with his eyes closed. We held some argument with Mr. Marble, and tried to show him that from the Bible stand-point there could be no such things as human spirits in a separate, conscious existence, and that this was all the work of demons; but he would not believe. The papers he held in his hands, containing his instructions from the spirits, by writing mediums, were better proof to him than the Bible; and we were infidel because we believed that the "dead know not any thing." We asked him what we should pay him for the trouble of showing us about, and he told us he was directed by the spirit of Tom Veal, his director, the pirate whom tradition says was buried in the cave, not to charge, but to let people do as they chose; as the amount received would be a test of Spiritualism. So we told him we should not test the truth of Spiritualism by giving money; we were willing to pay him for his trouble in showing us about, but not one cent to prove that the lying demons told the truth. A friend with us, not understanding the "test" question, or because he felt like paying, gave the man something; but we withheld, and left the place wondering at these last day delusions, and feeling better satisfied than ever that the "seducing spirits" are doing their work, as in this case. It is generally conceded that there is a cave there, and perhaps treasures in it. The city of Lynn once attempted to open the rock, but gave it up afterwards. The celebrated Hutchinsons, who live in the vicinity, tried the scheme, by the spirits direction, but failed to accomplish much; and now Mr. Marble is going to convince the world that Spiritualism is true by finding what is thought likely may be in the cave, just as the spirits have told him; so under their influence he has toiled away, digging into solid granite to prove his doctrine true; but he must fail to make Bible believers believe it.

The deception is specious. It takes what is believed to be facts, by most people, and so interweaves them with spirit manifestations, that if the cave should be opened, and valuables discovered, Spiritualism would have the credit of it all; and so convince the world. Oh for the pure Bible testimony, to keep us from this demoniacal influence, which is so rapidly getting the control of the world.

We left Lynn, Friday, March 23d, for Haverbill, where I tried to preach the following Lord's day. Had some liberty, but not so much as at some other times. Felt that a better union of feeling and concert of action were needed. How hard the devil will work to destroy the believers in the coming of the Lord. I have often felt the more truth the more danger from temptation. O the importance of removing all difficulties between brethren out of the way, so as not after all to loose the kingdom.

Wednesday, March 28th, went to Lowell, to attend the discussion between Bro. Grant and Fish the Spiritualist. I was interested and profited. Sometimes I felt the influence of demons powerfully. But none of them took possession of Mr. Fish, though Bro. Grant was ready to try whose God was the strongest. One in the congregation roared out, when the contest between God and devils seemed the hottest (for it seemed to us that there was a battle there stronger than that between the two men), like a mad man, and yelled out something that seemed to be bad French; but he was silenced by the chairman. It was claimed by his friends, that he knew no French, and he certainly did not know much about it; but if we can believe our ears, he talked some of the same jargon among his friends at the entrance of the church, after the discussion closed. The demons evidently intend to make capital for their cause by specious lying. The discussion told well for the truth, and made a marked impression on the audience. It makes us glad to know that there are some who, clothed in the panoply of truth and filled with the power of God as a protection, and aggressive force, are out in the field contending against these "evil spirits." God help us all to be clothed in the gospel armor, for we shall soon need it more than we do now.

We left Massachusetts for New Hampshire April 7th. But this must furnish matter for a further report. L. C. McKinstry.

A QUESTION ANSWERED.

"Bro. Sheldon:—Will you please explain how in Matt. 13 : 40–43 'the Son of man shall send forth and gather out of his kingdom all things that offend,' etc., if his kingdom is not already established? B. F. B."

Although the kingdom is not yet organized, its component elements are in existence, in an unorganized state, such as the prospective King, the prospective subjects, and the prospective territory; and these different elements—a part being put for the whole, are often separately called the kingdom; as, for instance, "Then shall the kingdom of heaven [one element of it—the church, or prospective subjects] be likened unto ten virgins" (Matt. 25 : 1); and again, "For the kingdom of heaven [one element of it, Christ, the prospective King] is as a man traveling into a far country."—Matt. 25 : 11. Still again: "The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom [one element of it, the territory] all things that offend."—Matt. 13 : 41.

Thus sometimes the subjects, sometimes the King, and sometimes the territory, are separately called the kingdom; but these elements are not organized; for the subjects are now mortal, and must be changed; the King is now in a "far country" and must "return"; the territory is in a dilapidated condition, and must be made "new." The territorial kingdom must be dispossessed of the "workers of iniquity" preparatory to being possessed by the resurrected saints. Not till the seventh angel sounds will the "kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of the Lord and his Christ"; and then comes "the time of the dead that they should be judged" (Rev. 11 : 15–18), and Christ shall "judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom." The Nobleman will then rid the territorial kingdom of all enemies, and give it to the saints in a purified state. Amen.

Wm. Sheldon.—Voice of the West.

Correction.—Sister A. E. Smith's Missionary report should read, "I have received $370.10 in three years," instead of $870.10, "and paid out $790.95 to poor and sick persons."

Obituaries.

A TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Death has again broken in upon our home circle, and robbed us of one very dear,—a husband, a son, and a brother. Thus another tie binding us to earth is severed and broken. C. W. Wheeler, of Waterbury Center, Vt., died April 30th, 1866, of that fatal disease, consumption, aged twenty-two years. He was well qualified for usefulness, and a high position in life, by a good education and a well balanced mind, indicating no ordinary talent.

Phonographic reporting was his favorite profession, which he has followed for nearly two years, at the office of Fowler and Wells, New York. He had been offered a position as reporter in the United States Senate, which ill health compelled him to decline. Also, he had become familiar with the science of Phrenology and its kindred branches, and was about to take the field as a public lecturer.

But death knows neither rank nor position; the enemy has cut him down in youth; he is gone, and we are left to mourn. But the time is coming when the enemy will have done his last work. In the new creation death can never enter, tears, sighs, and groans will be unknown; we shall never more be called to stand around the bedside of dying and loved ones; no, never, thank God. There will be no sorrowing and parting scenes there, such as we have lately witnessed. All will be life, joy and happiness forever.

It was a great consolation to us that our brother came home in season to spend his last days with relatives and dear friends. A wife, an aged mother, brothers and sisters, friends and neighbors, stood around his dying bed, and ministered most faithfully and sympathetically to his dying wants.

The deceased was united in marriage, last January, to an estimable young lady, with equal attainments, engaged with him in the same occupation. She is left widowed and lonely. May she trust in God, who is able to heal all our wounds, and give to us life and peace forever. At the time of his marriage, the family altar was instituted in his little family, and the daily reading of the Bible, and prayer, seemed to be his delight. The visits, counsels, and prayers of christian brethren seemed to be appreciated.

He often spoke of Elder Taylor, as wishing to see him. It was his choice that he should preach the funeral sermon. Accordingly, when life was over, a telegram brought our worthy Bro. Taylor, and a sermon was founded upon Acts 26 : 8,—"Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?" The resurrection was forcibly and scripturally explained to a full house, and objections removed. The effect was good, and the season solemn, as the tears of a large audience indicated. May this occasion teach us the solemn lesson of our mortality, and the importance of having a good hope in Christ, that we may share in the rich blessings of immortality with the faithful of all ages. Timothy Wheeler.

Waterbury Center, Vt.

Pay. Died in Pittstown, N. Y., May 25th, 1866, Sarah Ann, wife of Bro. John Pay, aged fifty-four years.

Sister Pay was converted when young, and embraced the doctrine of the soon coming of Christ, under the labors of Bro. Batchelor, some eight years ago; and I am informed that since embracing the Advent doctrine, her life has corresponded with her profession. Soon the Life-giver will come, and death will be robbed of his power.

Funeral sermon by the writer, from 1 Thess. 4 : 18.

Sleep on, sleep on, thou loved one dear,
Thy sorrows o'er, thy conflicts past;
Soon thou shalt stand on the blest shore,
And triumph over death at last.

Wm. J. Blanchard.

Emery. Died in Kennebunk, June 3d, 1865, Forest, son of Bro. George and Sister Helen Emery, aged eight years, eight months.

Forest was a lovely boy, and Bro. and Sr. Emery feel deeply their loss; but they are comforted with the blessed assurance that they shall see their son again in the resurrection—not far distant—to part with him no more forever. W. H. Mitchell.

Voice of the West please copy.

Roberts. Died in Meredith, April 19th, 1866, Sister Phebe Roberts, wife of John Roberts, aged sixty-six years.

She embraced religion more than fifty years since, and was baptised by Eld. Ebenezer Knowlton, and joined the Meredith Free Will Baptist church. Sister Roberts was one of the excellent of the earth; kind and devoted, as a christian happy and triumphant in her sickness and death.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

(Liverpool June 2d, Queenstown 3d.)

There are rumors of an understanding if not alliance between Austria and Russia to support the treaties of 1815. It is affirmed that Austria positively refused to entertain any project for the cession of Venetia, and had made over Holstein to the German Confederation.

The Times in view of this action by Austria, regards the conference as almost hopeless in ensuring peace, while every day makes it more clear the three armed Powers are not likely to submit their disputes to their neighbors.

Apprehensions are entertained that all the seven Powers may yet not be represented at the conference. Military preparations continued.

Advices from Egypt report the reappearance of cholera among returning pilgrims.

The London Times, in an editorial review of the European situation, says:

"The questions between Austria and Prussia on the one side, and Austria and Italy on the other, involve such essential differences, and have been so envenomed by months of recrimination, that it is almost beyond the power of the parties themselves to compose them. Much less will neutrals, who limit themselves to good advice, be able to prevail upon such embittered antagonists."

The Vienna papers assert that Queen Victoria has addressed a letter to the Empress of the French, asking Her Majesty to use every exertion on behalf of the preservation of peace.

Orders have been issued by Napoleon III. to concentrate 100,000 men at Chalons. The troops are to march thither, to enure them to the fatigues of a possible campaign.

The Vienna papers publish the following curious statement:

During the late financial panic in London, Earl Cowley, by order of his government, solicited the energetic mediation of the Emperor Napoleon in favor of peace, and received from his Majesty the following reply: 'In the years 1859 and 1864 England opposed my proposals in reference to the settlement of the Venetian and Schleswig questions. Now England wants peace. I also desire peace; but as the most favorable opportunities have been frittered away, and as the conflicting interests have been permitted to reach a point at which they must clash, I can no longer assume the responsibility of events.'"

The London Times says daily, almost hourly, the chances of peace pass away. It believes that the first events will occur in the Elbe Duchies, but that the great move of Austria will be to attempt to possess herself of Silesia.

The Daily News says appearances indicate that a declaration of war or a manifesto equivalent to it will proceed from Prussia.

Military preparations are reported from all quarters.

The Agra & Masterman's Bank has suspended; liabilities heavy and wide-spread. The directors do not doubt all will be paid in full, and only an inconsiderable amount of paid up capital is lost. The event caused considerable commercial depression, although not unexpected.

The crisis on the continent continues. War is apparently inevitable.

AUSTRIA.

The Imperial decree suspends the laws for the protection of personal liberty in Venetia and other southern parts of the Empire. The authority to do likewise and establish military courts is given to the General commanding the Army of the North. The Austrian army is now 800,000 strong, of whom 600,000 will comprise the army of operations, viz: 350,000 against Prussia and 250,000 against Italy.

The Prussian army consists of 412 battalions of infantry, 331 squadrons of cavalry and 1066 field pieces, etc., the largest Prussia ever put into the field.

The Italian volunteers number 95,000. Typhus fever is said to have broken out in the Italian army on the frontier. Troops are being forwarded daily and headquarters are swarming with fighting men.

The Italian government is said to be engaging London steamers to carry troops. The Austrian Commander has convoked the estates of Holstein for the 11th of June, by order of the Emperor.

New York, June 16. The steamship City of Paris, from Liverpool 6th, via Queenstown 7th, has arrived.

It is fully confirmed that the proposed conference of the European Powers has been abandoned, owing to the demands of Austria and Prussia, which were regarded by England, France and Russia as tantamount to a refusal. All negotiations have been broken off by the neutral powers and it remains for the armed powers to negotiate among themselves or commence war. Hopes of peace have almost banished.

THREE DAYS LATER.

(Liverpool June 9th, Queenstown 10th.)

Indications that the war will soon break out are increasing. The entry of the Prussians into Holstein is regarded by some as the virtual commencement of the war. The Neue Fremdenblatt asserts that Austria regards such entry as a breach of the Gastein Convention, and the forcible occupation as a casus belli.

Count Bismark had issued an important dispatch to the Prussian representatives abroad. It is very bitter toward Austria, and in one passage says: "All our information agree that a determination to make war by Austria is finally settled in Vienna."

Florence telegrams say that Italy will commence hostilities as soon as war is declared in Germany.

The Paris Constitutionnel says the position of France has not been changed by recent events. She maintains entire independence, and would only take an active part if events or imperative circumstances should render it her duty for the defense of the national honor or interests.

Several regiments of French troops have started to garrison the frontiers of the Alps. Some regiments from Algeria, which for several months have been stationed in the south of France, in particular two regiments of Chasseurs d'Afrique, have been dispatched by rapid marches to the northern frontier. One of these regiments has started from Carcassonne for Maubeuge.

The Arming of Europe.—The London Telegraph describes the warlike movements, which are making Continental Europe one immense camp, as follows:

"The notes of preparation are, in fact, heard sounding from all sides. Bavaria is ready to appear in the field with 150,000; Wurtemburg will furnish a contingent of 30,000; Baden 20,000; Saxony has put 40,000 men on foot; Hesse-Darmstadt, 18,000; Hanover has raised her military force to 36,000. The mobilization of the whole Prussian army places a force of some 620,000 men at Count Bismark's disposal, including the reserves, of course, and the first ban of the Landwehr.

Austria on her part, disposes of some 650,000 men, ready to do the Emperor's bidding. Italy has not less than 400,000 men in arms. We have altogether, then, about two millions of armed men simply waiting for the first signal; and this is exclusive, of course, of the French and Russian hosts, which together number about one and a half million men more. Since the Auxerre speech there can be no doubt but that Belgium and Switzerland also have taken the alarm, and are beginning to provide against possible contingencies. Even from the far North we hear that one of the results of the present complications will be to hasten the reorganization of the military and naval forces of the United Kingdom of Sweden and Norway. From France we have the ominous statement, in addition to the significant Auxerre speech, that the officers and non-commissioned officers who, upon the late reduction of the French army, received appointments in the civil service on condition that they should return to military service if required, have—a certain number of them at least—received notice to prepare to join their corps at a moment's warning. Ten thousand men are on the point of being sent to Rome to reinforce the French army of occupation there, which, in the event of the war breaking out between Austria and Italy, is to take the name of 'Army of Observation'—a name which may mean much under the peculiar circumstances of the case, more especially as there is reason to believe that this intended increase of the French army in Rome has the fullest assent of the Italian government."

DOMESTIC.

New York, June 12. Col. O'Neill states that the Fenian force between the head of Lake Michigan and Maine frontier is 62,000 strong, and that there are 10,000 with arms in their possession in Michigan, ready to cross into Canada upon the signal being given in this direction.

June 13. Mr. Roberts has issued a proclamation to the Irish Republican army, advising the members thereof to return to their homes until a fresh campaign is inaugurated, which will be at no far distant day. He recommends this "in view of the unexpected repressive measures of the United States Executive at Washington to crush the co-operative movement for the liberation of Ireland.

June 14. The Fenian prisoners in the hands of the Canadians will not be tried until the present excitement has subsided. Orders have been issued to recall the troops from the border, except those facing Malone. They will receive a grand ovation on their return.

The Fenian Movement.

St. Albans, June 11.

To the Editor of the Boston Journal:

THE FENIANS AND THE U. S. GOVERNMENT.

The suppression of the Fenians by the United States Government meets with general approval among the people here, so far as I am able to form an estimate of public opinion. St. Albans has no sympathy to waste upon the Canadian government, but the people are law abiding, and while they are content to see in the course of events retributive justice overtake their friends over the boundary, that are not willing that the United States should countenance fillibustering. This brings me to make some startling revelations relative to the preparations and prospects of the Fenians. Gen. Sweeney says that the Brotherhood had over sixty thousand stand of arms purchased, of which Gen. Meade has in his possession over forty thousand. I am informed that Gen. Sweeney himself purchased over thirty thousand stand of the United States, and that they were delivered to him in February or March from the Watervliet Arsenal. I do not vouch for the truth of the statement. I give it as I received it. More than this, it is asserted by the members of the Brotherhood that the United States authorities knew that the arms were paid for from Fenian funds.

It is no breach of neutrality law for the Government to sell arms in time of peace to any person who may desire to purchase; but the question arises whether the Government, or whoever sold the arms, knew that the Fenians intended an invasion of Canada. Sweeney's adherents say that the Government was cognizant of their intentions. Another party says that the invasion of Canada was not at that time a part of the programme, but that Ireland was the avowed fighting ground. The Sweeney Fenians assert that they were assured there would be no interference on the part of the United States. Who assured them they do not say, only that a delegation called upon President Johnson, and that their visit was satisfactory. Whether this is so or not I have no knowledge, but they are exceedingly bitter toward the President and Mr. Seward. Sweeney has from the outset intended to make a strike upon Canada. During the winter and spring his engineer officers visited Canada, examined the country, the bridges on the railroads, the steamboats, the roads leading to Montreal and the means of defense in that city, and maps were prepared and a plan of the campaign decided upon. Montreal was to be the objective point. One column was to move down the east bank of the Richelieu and from St. Albans, and another down the west bank from Malone; or rather to strike the St. Lawrence near Cornwall, cross the river, cut off communication between the two provinces. The crossing at Buffalo was only a feint. But Canada West was to be kept stirred up by that movement and another from Detroit. It was known that Montreal was comparatively defenseless; that there were thousands of Fenians in the city who would join the brotherhood. If successful in firing the city, provisions enough for a large army would be secured at the outset. In a week, after taking Montreal, it was believed that one hundred thousand armed Irishmen would be in Canada; and that the whole of Lower Canada could be overcome in a short time, and that Upper Canada would be conquered without difficulty by the Irish Veterans of the Union and Confederate armies.

New York, June 17. Special Washington dispatches to the morning papers say the Committee on Foreign Relations will not consider the proposed repeal of the neutrality laws until week after next. Gen. Banks is expected to advocate the measure, and Mr. Raymond will speak on the Monroe doctrine and review the history of intervention.

New York, June 16. Since the last report, three deaths from cholera have occurred in this city.

At quarantine there have been three deaths from cholera, leaving forty-five under treatment. The Board of Health are making every effort to prevent the spread of the scourge.

A Washington correspondent says:—"The warlike news from Europe has excited no surprise at the foreign legations here, as the diplomatists have for some time past regarded a general European war as inevitable."

A case of Asiatic cholera at Baltimore has caused some excitement here, and the city is to be thoroughly cleansed.

Notices.

Basket Meeting.

We learn from Bro. B. E. Ladd, of Springfield, Mass., that it is proposed to have a "Basket Meeting" on the Wilbraham camp-ground, July 4th. Those coming from Springfield will leave at 7½ o'clock A. M., and return about 6 P. M.

By "Basket Meeting" is meant that each one, as far as convenient, is expected to take with him a basket of provision for his own comfort, and as many more as he chooses to favor. We are glad to learn that such a meeting is to be held. It will be a nice way to spend the 4th of July. Preaching may be expected at the usual hours.

Tent Meeting in Lynn.

There will be a tent meeting in Lynn, Mass., commencing Thursday, July 5th, and hold over the following Sunday, and longer at discretion. The time of the Second Advent, together with other portions of truth connected with man's redemption, will be duly considered in the meeting, as the Lord may direct. Geo. W. Brown, C. Thompson, and S. W. Bishop, will be present to preach the word.

Grove Meeting.

There will be a grove meeting in Plainfield, Mass., near the house of J. E. Healy, commencing July 4th, and continuing over the following Sabbath. Come, brethren, far and near, with hearts filled with the love of God, and worship him in spirit and in truth. Bring your board and bedding. A shelter will be provided. Brn. H. L. Hastings, C. Goodrich, and others, are expected to preach the word.

J. E. Healy,
Wm. Willcutt, Jr.

Grove Meeting at Plainfield or Savoy.

If the Lord will, we will hold a grove meeting in Plainfield, or Savoy, Mass., or wherever Brn. E. McCulloch and J. E. Healy may arrange, commencing Wednesday, July 4th, at 10 A. M., and continuing over Sunday, July 8th. We hope to see a general rally of the waiting, working ones. Come in the name and strength of Israel's God, prepared to labor in his cause, and save perishing men.

H. L. Hastings,
C. Goodrich.

Fourth of July Meeting.

Our annual meeting on the Fourth of July next will be held in Kingston, N. H., in a pleasant grove near my house. Come, my brethren and sisters in Christ, and unite with us in giving praise to God for the prospect of speedy redemption. Who of God's ministers will come and break the bread of life to us? Eld. Cyrus Cunningham is expected to be with us. Meeting to commence at 10 o'clock A. M. For the church, F. Gale.

Notice.

The Maine Easterly Quarterly Conference will be held at South Newbury, Me., commencing Thursday evening, June 28th, at six o'clock, and continue over the following Lord's day. We hope to see a goodly number of our ministering brethren present. Come, brethren and sisters, in the name and spirit of the Lord. Brethren may call on Bro. John Morrill and Bro. Samuel Rich.

For the brethren, F. A. Baker.

Notice.

Providence permitting, there will be a tent meeting in the Iowa Mission Tent, at Floyd, Floyd Co., Iowa, to commence June 28th, and continue over Lord's day. Sister Ruth M. Rowell will be there to preach the word. Peter S. W. Deyo.

P. S. Arrangements have been made for Sister R. M. Powell to be at our conference at Cascade, Iowa. P. S. W. D.

Union Meeting.

If the Lord will, there will be a union meeting held on the 4th day of July next, at Leonard Wiggin's barn, or a grove near by Wednesday Hill, Lee, N. H. Come one, come all.

For the Brethren, Geo. H. Churchill, Lawrence, Mass.

Grove Meeting.

There will be a grove meeting at Athens, Me., July 4th and 5th, on the farm of Mr. Gancelo Hathorn. All are invited. L. L. Howard, Chas. Stratton.

Agreement.

The R. I. and E. Ct. Conference will hold its next session at River Point, R. I., commencing Wednesday, July 4th, at 2 o'clock P. M. We have agreed to be there punctually at the time appointed. We have agreed to be present daily until after the Lord's day following. Ministers, delegates, and friends of this Conference, come join in this agreement, that we may make punctual and constant attendance the habit of our precious quarterly gathering. H. F. Carpenter, Clerk.

Grove Meeting.

The Lord willing, there will be a grove meeting held in the south part of Etna, Me., on land belonging to Bro. B. Turner, commencing June 29th, 2 o'clock P. M., and continue over the following Sunday, and longer as the Lord may direct.

The object of this meeting is the saving of souls, and we earnestly request the prayers of the brethren and sisters that the Lord will bless. We urgently request all who can to attend, especially preachers of the word and laborers in the vineyard. S. Hammons.

Wis. Adv. Quar. Conference.

The third quarterly meeting of the Wisconsin Advent Christian Conference, will be held in the town of Henrietta, Richland county, Wis., in the vicinity of Bro. B. Graves', to commence July 6th, and hold over the Lord's Day. As this is somewhat a new place, and an interest has been awakened here in the cause of the Master, brethren will please make a little extra effort to be there, and at the first of the meeting. A number of preaching brethren will be there to preach the word of life. Come up, brethren, in the spirit of the mother. Your help is needed at this meeting, that sinners may be brought to God and prepared for the Savior's coming. We have but a short time to work, and, O, how much we shall desire the Master to say, Well done. Geo. W. Turner, Clerk of Con.

Minnesota Annual Conference.

The fourth annual session of the Minnesota Advent Christian Conference will be held (Providence not preventing) on Saturday, June 30th, at ten o'clock A. M., in the New Boston school-house, in Winona County, and will continue over the following Sunday. Ministers and delegates representing the different churches within the State, are requested to attend. I expect Bro. Sheldon will be present with the Advent Tabernacle. J. K. Allen, Sec'y.

Notice.

I hereby give notice to all concerned, that the fourth annual grove meeting will be held in Springwater, N. Y., commencing June 29th, 1866, and holding over Sunday, July 1st, on the same spot fitted up by Father Lyman Morris (deceased), on his farm. Let due preparations be made by the friends there, a general notice be given, and may many brethren and sisters attend, both ministers and laymen, and may much good be the result, for which let us pray. In behalf of the brethren, C. F. Sweet.

Tent Meeting at Prescott, Wis.

We expect to pitch the "Advent Tabernacle" at Prescott, Wisconsin, July 12th. Let the friends from the other side of the Mississippi River attend if they can. Eld. Hough is to be with me. Wm. Sheldon.

Notice.

The Lord willing, I intend to leave St. Louis for the East Monday, June 18th. Providence permitting, I would like to preach Sundays and week day evenings till Wilbraham campmeeting. If there are any who wish me to preach the word, please address me at Savoy, Mass., till July 5th. H. K. Flagg.

Notice.

Eld. William J. Blanchard, of Savoy, Mass., is requested to be in Hoosick, N. Y., June 30th and over the 4th of July. R. L. Harrison.

Notice.

Elder Thomas Smith, Bangor, Me., has on hand for sale H. L. Hastings' "Signs of the Times," with an assortment of his various Tracts; also, the Tracts by Miles Grant, on "The Soul," "The Spirit," and "What is Man?" and other Advent tracts.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as Tuesday Morning, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, between Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly there three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston.
T. M. Latham........Sunday, June 24th

East Boston.
(Chapel, corner of London and Decatur Streets.)
C. Goodrich........Sunday, July 1st
C. C. Ramsey........Sunday, June 24th

Worcester, Mass........Sunday, June 24th
Miles Grant.

Lewiston, Me., (Advent Hall)........Sunday, June 24th
I. C. Wellcome.

Natick, Mass........July 1st
Concord, N. H., (Angelos Hall)........July 8th
South Reading, Mass........July 15th
West Abington........July 22d
C. C. Ramsay.

West Abington........Thursday evening, June 21st and over the following Sunday. J. M. Mullen.
I shall be at leisure after the 8th of July. Brethren wishing me to preach will address Natick, Mass, Box 195. J. M. M.

Natick, Mass., (School-house Hall.)
J. S. White........Sunday, June 24th
C. C. Ramsey........Sunday, July 1st
J. M. Mullen........Sunday, July 8th
This is a new field. Preaching brethren traveling this way will please remember the brethren here. Their numbers are few, and they are poor; but they need help. J. M. Mullen.

Fairhaven, Mass........Sunday, June 24th
Ledyette, R. I........Sunday, July 1st
Riverpoint, Wednesday, July 4th, at the R. I. and Eastern Conn. Quar. Conference. Hope the brethren belonging to the conference will make an effort to be there at the commencement. Joseph W. Thomas.

Guilford, N. H., (at Jacob Wilkinson's barn), Sunday, June 24th. Love-feast at 9 A. M. John G. Hook.

North Greenwich, N. Y........June 29th and over the following Sabbath. Wm. J. Blanchard.

Windham Centre, (at the meeting-house), Sunday, June 24th. A. O. Burrill.

Durham, Ct........Sunday, June 24th
O. D. Woodruff.

East Bowdoinham........Sunday, July 1st
Clarkson Gould.

Springfield (Second Advent Hall, No. 19 Barnes' Block), Lord's day, June 24th. Hiram Munger.

Windsor Locks, (where Bro. Terry may appoint), Sunday, July 1st. R. Williams.

Bath, Me........Sunday, June 24th
Yarmouth, Me........Sunday, July 8th
Swamp school-house........2 o'clock P. M., July 15th
R. R. York.

Canterbury, (at the old Hall), Saturday evening and Sunday, June 23d and 24th.
Concord, (Center school-house), Wednesday evening, June 27th. John H. Dadman.

Sandwich (Vittum school-house)........June 24th
Melvin Village........July 1st
Parsonsfield (where Bro. Moulton may appoint) July 8th
Moultonborough........July 15th
T. W. Piper.

Worcester, Mass........evening, June 27th
Clinton, Mass........evening, June 28th
Ashburnham, Mass........evening, June 29th
Lawrence, Mass. (if not otherwise supplied)........July 1st
A. Ross.

South Norfolk, Ct., Saturday evening, June 30th, and Sunday, July 1st, as Bro. Tibbal's may appoint.
Samuel M. Tatro.
Seth Woodruff.

Alton Corner, N. H........Sunday, June 24th
Haverhill, Mass........Sunday, July 8th
Great Falls, N. H........Sunday, July 15th
Biddeford, Me........Sunday, July 22d
If these conflict with others, write me at Dover, N. H., immediately. J. Pinkham.

Rochester, N. H., (McDuffee's district, where Bro. Smith may appoint), Sunday, June 24th.
Smith Hawkins.
H. S. Pinkham.

Lorraine, N. Y., (Red school-house), Tuesday evening, June 26th.
Boylston, N. Y., (Lily school-house), Wednesday evening, June 27th.
Redfield Square, N. Y., evenings, June 28th and 29th
Glenmore, N. Y........Sunday, July 1st
Verona, N. Y., (Lock school-house), 2 P. M., July 8th
C. H. Williams.

Concord, N. H., (Angelos Hall.)
C. C. Ramsay........Sunday, July 8th
J. H. F. Varney........Sunday, July 15th
J. O. Smith........Sunday, July 22d
J. Pinkham........Sunday, July 29th

Litchfield, Chestnut Hill, Ct., as Sr. Abbey E. Baldwin may arrange, Sunday, July 1st. H. Rockwell.

Pittsfield, N. H........Sunday, June 24th
Warner, N. H., Waterloo, 5 o'clock P. M., June 24th
Sunapee, (South meeting-house)........Sunday, July 1st
Hartland, Vt., (Dinsmore Hill)........July 8th
J. Couch.

Vernon, Vt........Sunday, June 24th
S. Cook.

North Canton........Sunday, June 24th
Lovely Street........Sunday, July 1st
Wrightsville........Sunday, July 8th
Wm. J. Ripley.

South Atkinson, Me., (Dora school-house), Sunday, June 24th. Thomas Smith.

Exeter, N. H., Town Hall, as Bro. Haley may arrange, Saturday evening and Sunday, June 23d and 24th.
Southbridge, Mass., Town Hall, Saturday evening and Sunday, June 30th and 31st. Baptism if the Lord will. H. L. Hastings.

New Durham Ridge........Lord's day, June 24th
East Barnsted, (as brethren may arrange), Tuesday evening, 5 P. M., June 26th.
South Pittsfield, (as Bro. C. S. Emerson may arrange), Wednesday evening, 5 P. M., June 27th.
Northwood Narrows, Saturday, 5 P. M., June 30th, over the Lord's day, July 1st, and longer if thought best.
B. P. Manning.

Mannsville, N. Y., (as Bro. Henry Miles may arrange), Sunday, June 24th.
Barnes' Corners........Thursday evening, June 28th
Bickford school-house........Friday evening, June 29th
West Martinsburgh........Sunday, July 1st
Copenhagen........Sunday, July 8th
Let there be a good turn out in the vicinity of these meetings. C. S. Turner.

West Poland, Me., (Free Chapel)........Sunday, June 24th
Jared Whitman.

Concord, N. H.
(Corner of Green and Center Streets.)
Timothy Cole........July 1st and 8th
H. Munger........July 22d and 29th

Barnstead, N. H., (Clark meeting-house), Sunday, June 24th.
Great Falls, N. H........Sunday, July 1st
London Ridge........Sunday, July 8th
Northwood Narrows........Sunday, July 15th
T. G. Smith.

Concord, N. H........Sunday, June 24th
Clinton, Mass........evening, June 25th
Lynn, Mass........evening, June 26th
C. Goodrich.

Barkhamsted, South Hollow........Sunday, June 24th
North Canton........evening, June 24th
S. Woodruff.

West Haven........Sunday, June 24th
F. H. Burbank.

Manchester, N. H........Lord's day, July 1st
C. C. Stevens.

Northwood Narrows........Sunday, June 24th
W. W. Sutherland.

Danbury........Sunday, June 24th
Chichester Pine Ground........Sunday, July 1st
Z. Ford.

Lynn, Mass........Sunday, July 1st
Portsmouth, N. H........Sunday, July 8th
J. S. White.

Portland, Me........Sunday, June 24th
Timothy Cole.

Plainfield Pond........Sunday, June 24th
At Bro. Healy's in the evening.
At Bro. David Thayer's, 7½ P. M., June 25th and 26th
I will preach in any other places as doors may open.
H. Hadlock.

Lawrence, Mass., (Appleton Hall, corner of Essex and Lawrence Streets), Sunday, June 24th. A. Decker.

New Hampton, (at Bro. Pike's)........June 24th
Meredith Centre, (as brethren may arrange), evening, June 24th.
F. S. Ranson.
J. Knowlton.

Concord........Sunday, June 24th
Canaan........July 1st
I. Damman.

New Britain, Ct........Sunday, June 24th
Talesville, Ct........Sunday, July 1st
Cheshire Street, Ct........Sunday, July 8th
New Preston appointment recalled.
Chas. E. Piper.
Samuel M. Tatro.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

M. O. S.—It is sent.
S. P. Shepherd—Have note.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 560. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness, if less than 26 weeks, charge five cents; if more than 26 weeks, six cents. From the product (which will be a fraction over the actual indebtedness) deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each.—J. White 583, S. J. Parsons 583, W. E. Harris 584, H. H. Tucker 583, A. S. Whiting 577, L. K. Gelson 583, J B Mills 583, I J Perkins 614, L T Walters 583, S Sherman 583, (the $2.00 received and credited.)

$1.25 each.—E. K. Dodge 583, J. Robinson 574, M. Prey 583, C H Nowell 572, D Hayes 573, A C Page 587, W G Leavitt 584, C H Staples 583, S L Batchelder 583, J T Merrill 580, E Bolles 573, M A St. Clair 572, J M Rannells 601, J B Trefethen 572, A. R. Garrett 583, C. McDuffee 583.

$2.00 each.—A. Thacher 588, R. F. Berry 604, S. O. Hooper 598, J Dent 589, L Archer 550, W P Reed 583.

$2.50 each.—S B Gowell 572, P F Lyman 612, W M L Carroll 590, J M Worthing 593, M Dexter 609, C Young 609, J Ladd 592, S C Berry 555, G Dearborn 609, S E Simpson 609, J Buck 610, W T Sprague 583, A Hawkins 580, J N Boxwell 584, O P Redington 611, M Worker 573, J M Mitchell 583, H J Ashenfelter 603, H Sunderland 601, H Sterbens 609, S Gardner 609, W Daggett wheat F. O. J M Putnam 609, J Crane 548, L Adams 603, E Bean 611, F Robbins 667.

$3.00 each.—W. S. Willey 609, A. C. Skillin 547, E Walcot 556, H Stratton 614, A B Cook 553, J Harris 603.

Various Sums.—J. S. Tucker 80c, 606; H. D. Low $2.75, 587; W. A. Stone $4.13, 591; T Fletcher $1.50, 622; K. Harper $1.50, 577; C. R. Edmonds $3.00, 613; F. Mellen $1.10, 604; A. McCurdy $2.77, 585; R. Fuller $2.50 637; J Baker $1.00, 573; C W Fernald 80c, 571; M. S. Mead $1.50, 582; W. W. Miller 50c, 589; M. L. Sloan 63c, 571; J. Ballard 50c, 530; J. M. Andrews $1.56, 605; D S Randall 65c (what P. O.?) M S Pepper $3.00, 642; L Von Eschen $6.50, 573; N Fish 65c, 557.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

F A Denton 30c, N Collins 90c, C C Barker $2.00, J Taylor 55c, S H Smith $1.00, J Chambers $3.00, H F Carpenter $2.00, W Putnam $1.25, A Haskell $1.00, J A Simonds $1.00, E Fuller 50c, C B Hull $1.50, J N Boxwell 50c, I Chapman 50c, C A Tuttle $2.25, R Baker 85c, J Murray $1.10, S E Rollins 75, J Small $1.00, W Watson $1.00, M. L. Sloan $1.37, M. Parsons 50c, M. Tryon $1.00, L Adams 50c, J H F Varney 50c, B Knapper 50, E A Gillett $3.00, M Lichtenthaler $1.53, L B Castle $2.00, H M Bryant $7.39.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

By Mail.—G W Pressel, M L Colton, S K Gibson, C H Shepherd, B Wilson, A Good, B Atkins, L Marsh, S K Vipeto, I C Wellcome, G W Smith, O G Watkins, C W Waterhouse, D. S. Green, J H Dixon, F Platt, J Thomas, L V Hinson, J Wheeler, H J Sweetland, S M Lunt, A Watson, J Reynolds, W G McNary, H Pratt, T B Duncan, B Graves, W E Pinkham, G S Hayale, L E Fellows, N Sagendorph, J S Richards, F A Denton, N Collins, C C Baker, J Taylor, S H Smith, J Chambers, Dr. Odell, W Putnam, A Haskell, J A Simonds, E Fuller, I Chapman, C Tuttle, S E Rollins, J Murray, C S Hull, J N Boxwell, J Small, W Watson, M Tryon, J H F Varney, B Knapper, E A Gillett, J McCummon, L B Castle, M Lichtenthaler.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

N D Babcock, H L Salsbury, J J Austin, F H Chamberlain, J H Muhlig, B Perbess, M Dawley, P B Stevens, L M. Chaffee, C H Williams, W C Stone, C. C. Ramsay, J S Richards, W'll Sprocer, A Brown, J. F. D. O. M., H K Flagg, Geo. A Streeter, O Richer, H S Chapman, L. A. Wheeler, S Curry, A E Clark.

ADDRESS OF PREACHING BRETHREN.

C. E. Piper—41 Grove Street, Boston, Mass.
C. Goodrich—60 Marion Street, East Boston, Mass.
Bro. A. W. Sibley has removed from East Boston to Lincoln, N. H. All letters should be addressed to the latter place.
Israel Damman—For two or three weeks, New Bedford, Mass.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.
L. Boutell—Salem, Mass.
I. B. Potter—Somersville, Ct.
Wm. H. Fisher—Ashland, Mass.
H. F. Carpenter—Danielsonville, Ct.
F. A. Baker—North Searsport, Me.
Joseph W. White—Portsmouth, N. H.
N. Hartshorn—Laconia, N. H.
J. G. Smith—New Durham, N. H.
J. Partridge—Richmond, Me.
C. H. Leverton—Surry, Hancock Co., Me.
O. D. Gibson—Amboy, Ill.
J. R. Preston—Prairie du Sac, Sauk Co., Wis.
R. J. Whitehead—Wallingford, Ct.
C. C. Stevens—Exeter, N. H.
L. C. McKinstry—Lynn, Mass., until July 1st.
John T. Ongley—Lincolnville, Crawford Co., Pa.
S. D. Daniels—Springfield, Mass.
G. W. Turner—West Point, Wis.
C. P. Dow—My P. O. address for United States' correspondents will be hereafter Franklin, Vt.
Wm. McCulloch—New Rutland, Ill.
P. W. Hough—Cascade, Iowa.
Mrs. Abigail Mussey—Hillsburgh, Nova Scotia.
G. W. Stetson—Olena, Huron Co., Ohio, until Sept.
Wm. A. Fenn—Pulaski, Oswego Co., N. Y.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
N. A. Hitchcock—Exeter, Green Co., Wis.
N. P. Nason—North Hermon, Me.
C. B. Turner—South Butler, Wayne Co., N. Y.
S. C. Hancock—Forestville, Conn.
Samuel Curry—Station E., New York.
S. P. Babcock—Malaga, N. J.
Josiah Dargin—Wadley's Falls, N. H.
H. Pratt—Springfield, Mass., 87 Cedar St.
Jacob Wilbur—Box 941, Janesville, Rock Co., Wis.
F. H. Burbank, Missionary.—Residence S. W. Cor. 7th and Spring-Garden Streets, Philadelphia, Penn.
Mrs. Anna E. Smith—No. 360 Seventh Avenue, below 33d Street, New York City.
Dr. I. L. Leslie—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.
Martha S. Butler—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT. The Common English Version as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union. Prices, by mail, postpaid—Family and Pulpit Edition (8vo. Pica), Plain Cloth, $2.25; Extra Cloth, $2.75. Medium size (18mo. Brevier), Plain Cloth, 85c.; Extra Cloth, $1.10; Sheep, $1.35; Roan, Colored Edges, $1.60.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the work of Demons. An Examination of its Origin, Morals, Doctrines, and Politics. By Miles Grant. Single copy, 15c.; eight copies for $1.00; $10.00 per hundred.

THE PROPHETIC TIME QUESTION; or, Bible Time Examined. By Wm. Sheldon. 77c.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed. 50c.

VISIONS OF ELLEN G. WHITE, not of God. By B. F. Snook and Wm. H. Brinkerhoff. 10c.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

Sent, postpaid, as follows:

1. I don't believe in Religion........12 pp., 3c.
2. Did the World make itself?........16 pp., 4c.
3. Is God Everybody, and Everybody God?..16 pp., 4c.
4. Have we any need of the Bible?........24 pp., 4c.
5. Who wrote the New Testament?........16 pp., 4c.
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable?........16 pp., 4c.
7. Can we believe Christ and his Apostles?..16 pp., 4c.
8. Prophecy........32 pp., 5c.
9. Moses and the Prophets........28 pp., 5c.
10. Infidelity among the Stars........28 pp., 5c.
11. Daylight before Sunrise........36 pp., 5c.
12. Telescopic Views of Scripture........32 pp., 5c.
13. Science, or Faith?........32 pp., 5c.

For the Set, (making 304 pp.)........50c. postpaid.

Address all orders to Miles Grant, Boston Mass.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home........16 pp
2. Life Insurance........16 pp
3. Lost! Lost!........8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet?........8 pp.
5. About God (for children)........4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing........4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ........4 pp.
8. New........4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent postpaid—

One set (64 pp.)........6 c.
1200 pp........$1.00
1800 pp., (by express, not prepaid)........$1.00

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

[illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom as it is. [illegible] By H. L. Hastings.

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer [illegible] By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE [illegible]

IV. The Great Controversy between God and Man [illegible]

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; [illegible]

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE
ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY
No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Works on the Prophecies—The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, etc.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES; or, A Glance at Christendom as it is. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. By D. T. Taylor. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THESSALONICA, the Model Church, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, by H. L. Hastings, and SPIRITUALISM, by Dr. Bowman. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. With various tracts. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

MATTHEW XXIV. AND XXV. An Exposition, showing Christ's Predictions fulfilled, and the Kingdom near. By I. C. Wellcome. 25c; by mail, 27c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 1, By S. S. Brewer. 7c; by mail, 9c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 2, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 3, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

REASONS FOR MY HOPE; or, Tokens of Speedy Redemption. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD, and Signs of the Times. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THESSALONICA; or, The Model Church. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

REVELATIONS XIII.; a treatise. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

SPIRITUALISM a Satanic Delusion. By Wm. Ramsey, D. D. 20c.

THE SEVEN SEALS. Exposition of Rev. vi. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

LOOKING FORWARD; or, Prospects of the Church. By H. L. Hastings. 10c.

THE DAYS WE LIVE IN; The Lord soon to come. By S. S. Brewer. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CELESTIAL RAILROAD; or, Modern Pilgrim's Progress. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 13c; by mail, 15c.

THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 3c; by mail, 5c.

THE GREAT IMAGE soon to be dashed to pieces, By S. S. Brewer. 4c; by mail, 6c.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the times of Daniel and John. Mounted on Rollers, by express. $3.00; on Cloth, by mail, $4.00.

THE REIGN OF MESSIAH, the King of the Jews on the Throne of his Father David; its Nature, and the Time of its Commencement. By Wm. Sheldon. 8c; by mail, 10c.

Works on Future Punishment, etc.

DEBT AND GRACE; or, The Doctrine of a Future Life. By C. F. Hudson. A very able and learned work. $1.50.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. Cloth, 75c; paper, 45c.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT as taught in the Scriptures. Comprising Pauline Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, Old Paths, etc. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

STATE OF THE DEAD, and Punishment of the Wicked. A Discussion between Miles Grant and W. W. Clayton. 20c; by mail, 22c.

ETERNAL SUFFERING. A Discussion between Miles Grant and Dr. J. Litch. 25c; by mail, 28c.

RETRIBUTION; or, The Doom of the Ungodly. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, The Destruction of the Wicked established, and Endless Misery disproved. By Jacob Blain. 25c; by mail, 28c.

PAULINE THEOLOGY; or, The Christian Doctrine of Future Punishment, as taught in the Epistles of Paul. H. L. H. 10c.

GLAD TIDINGS; or, The End of Woe and Sin by the Destruction of the Wicked. (Three chapters from "Death not Life.") By J. Blain. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE OLD PATHS; or, The Primitive Doctrine of a Future Life. By H. L. H. 10c.

IMMORTAL SOUL THEOLOGY vs. BIBLE. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

WHAT IS MAN? A Bible View of his Creation. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SOUL; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SPIRIT; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS; Thief on the Cross, etc. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE DOCTRINE OF ENDLESS MISERY an occasion of Scepticism. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ETERNAL DEATH in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. 6c; by mail, 8c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. With remarks on Josephus. By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE RIGHTS OF WRONG; or, Is Evil Eternal? By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ENDLESS MISERY not a Bible Doctrine. 4c; by mail, 6c.

THE WICKED NOT IMMORTAL—(with 200 proof-texts.) 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING OF THE WORD HELL. 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING of Forever and Everlasting. 2c; by mail, 4c.

SMOKE OF TORMENT and Unquenchable Fire Explained. 1c; by mail, 3c.

REV. JOHN FOSTER'S LETTER on Future Punishment. 1c; by mail, 3c.

Miscellaneous.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF CHRISTIAN HOLINESS: A Sermon, by S. H. Platt. 15c.

THE DAY AND THE HOUR: a Lecture, by Joseph A. Seiss, D. D. 15c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.26c. Cloth, $1.75; by mail, $2.07.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five colored Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. $2.50; by mail, $2.86.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, the Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE BIBLE FROM HEAVEN; or, a Dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. 25c; by mail, 29c.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM; its Duty and Objects. By I. C. Wellcome. 20c, postpaid; $2.00 per dozen.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK; for Families and Sunday Schools. 15c; by mail, 19c; $1.50 per dozen; postage, 8c. on every three copies.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS FIGHT?—a tract on War. By I. C. Wellcome. 10c.

AMERICA IN PROPHECY; an Exposition of Isaiah XVIII. By O. R. Fassett. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EVERY BODY'S BOOK; the Personality of God; The Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By P. A. Smith. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CHRISTIAN LYRE; a Collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. 80c; by mail, 88c.

HOW TO COOK—without Salt, Butter, Lard, or Condiments. By Mrs. Mary E. Cox, M.D. 20c. postpaid.

COOKERY; or How to prepare food from Grain, Fruits and Vegetables. By F. W. Hurd, M. D. 15c; by mail, 17c.

PREMATURE DECAY of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE OLD AND NEW COVENANT—Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EXPERIENCE AND OBSERVATIONS of a Bruised Reed. By F. H. Chamberlain. By mail, 17c.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-word Translation, etc. etc. Leather, $4.00; by mail, $4.16. Extra gilt, $4.50; by mail, $4.66. Morocco, $5.00; by mail, $5.16.

CHLOE LANKTON, or Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75c; by mail, 87c.

NON-RESISTANCE. By W. C. Thurman. 20c; by mail, 24c.

DIPHTHERIA; its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. 10c; by mail, 12c.

GLAD VOICES; Words by D. T. Taylor, Music by L. Reimer. 3c. single; by mail, 5c. 36 cents a dozen, postpaid.

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. 15c; eight copies for $1.00.

BETHLEHEM: a Rhyme for Children. By H. L. Hastings. 10c, postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

SOCIAL HYMNS. Original and Selected. By H. L. H. Cloth, 30c; $3.00 per dozen. Paper 20c, $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. For Sunday Schools, etc. 6c; per dozen, 50c.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of the "cities of the nations." By Wm. Shepherd. 10c, postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. By A. P. Jenkins. 5c; by mail, 7c.

OUR MISSION WORK; a Report of the Organization of the American Advent Mission Society, its Constitution, Officers, Addresses, etc. 5c.

EXPERIENCE OF THOMAS H. JONES, who was a Slave for forty-three years. 25c.

BLIND BARTIMEUS; or, How to be Saved. 50c per dozen; $1.50 per hundred. Single 5c, postpaid.

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS; their Origin, Nature, Rank and Titles, their Ministry and Various Offices in the work of Human Redemption, and in the Administration of the Government of God. By Wm. Shepherd. 20c.

Who is he with martial tread
[illegible]
He from Bozrah's smoking plains,
[illegible]
Glorious in his bright array,
Rushing like the king of day;
Lo! it is our Mighty Lord,
Hastening to fulfill his word.

Who is he whose form and face
Beam with more than mortal grace!
On his head, bedecked with gems,
Sit a thousand diadems;
In his hand a glittering sword,
Earth's great champion,—heaven's Lord.
Every voice with rapture sings,
This is Jesus, King of kings!

In the greatness of his strength,
Now He meets his foes at length;
In the wine-vat of his ire,
Blood and carnage, sword and fire;
See, he treads the press alone
Till the dreadful work is done,
Crimsoned all his garments o'er,
Bathed as in a sea of gore.

Now hath come the [illegible] sign,
Filled with vengeance, wrath and rage,
Long delayed, but seen of old,
And by prophet bards foretold,
'Tis the year of recompense
Hastening onward, hastening hence,
When oppression, pride and lust
Shall be trampled into dust.

—Selected.

For the World's Crisis.

ADDRESS.

Synopsis of an address before the annual meeting of the Christian Conference of Western New York and vicinity, delivered June 1st, 1866, by Elder F. Burr. (Written for publication by request of brethren.)

Dearly Beloved Brethren:—In the providence of God we are convened again in annual conference.

PAST CONFERENCE YEAR.—During the past year, something has been done, by the help of the Lord, in spreading the knowledge of the coming Savior. Our quarterly meetings have been blessed seasons, and of much benefit in the sections where they were held. Some new fields have been improved with good results in the conversion of many to Jesus. And the good work is still going on.

PRESENT YEAR.—The present year is that memorable one of 1866, a noted one among prophetic students, as the first in a circle of three years, during which the church have long looked for the occurrence of those great events connected with the last manifestation of Antichrist, and the gathering of the saints at the appearing of Jesus. According to the best light of the present day, the prophetic periods seem to point to '68, as the farthest point for the coming of Jesus, while 1866 has for a long time been regarded as the commencement of the Millennium. Events also betoken the nearness of that "time of trouble" from which the saints are to be delivered. Already, in the first four months of this year, has Europe thrice been threatened with a general war, that has seemed to be averted only that the elements might gather for a more terrible onset. Let our minds be brought to fully realize these facts, and the nearness of our Savior's advent, that we may prosecute with redoubled energy the work of our great mission.

"THE UNITY OF THE SPIRIT."—We meet to-day as a body of co-workers in the "gospel of the kingdom." We have foes without, but what are they? They have never been able to resist our course at any time. Strong in the truth, we fear no opposition. Though few in numbers, we can be victorious over error in every combat. One can "chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight." Yet there is danger, and it lies within us. Do not take offence if I speak of our faults. Internal strife will ruin any cause. We, as Adventists, should have learned long ago the necessity of christian forbearance in doctrinal disagreements, for the purpose of unity. Our only danger lies within our own ranks. The spirit of love for God, love for the truth, and love for each other, all combined in one, is our only safeguard. We should not dodge responsibility, but should consider ourselves enlisted to help by all means in our power. When the building goes up easily, then we may save our strength; but when there is danger of timbers falling, then all should come to the rescue.

THE COMING OF JESUS.—This is the prominent truth around which we should all rally. Suppose we knew he were coming next week; would it not put a stop to strife and debate about side issues? But we should live ready for his coming at any time. We may exchange views, but always in love. This conference is no place for dispute or debate. Our work is to prepare sinners for judgment, that they may be saved. All must bend to this. Our personal feelings and private opinions are of no account. And may the Lord help us to preserve the "unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

The address was delivered extempore, and the above was written from memory as an outline. F. B.

BLENDING OF PAGANISM WITH THE PAPACY.

White. In rejecting the Pagan creed, many of the early christians still clung to its superstitions; and the images of the gods and heroes of antiquity, under new names, were still regarded as objects of adoration in the church.—White's History of the World, p. 209.

Who cannot see in the following account of Paganism the origin of many of the Papal superstitions:—

BIBLE UNION DICT. "The Pagans worshiped universal nature—the soul of the world; angels, demons, and the souls of departed men. They worshiped men, both living and dead, and in them the faculties and endowments of the 'soul.' The prevailing notion of the soul's immortality made them imagine that the spirits of excellent persons immediately ascended up into heaven, and settled there, in some orb or other; or that they hovered in the air; whence, by solemn invocations, and by making some statue or image to resemble them, they might be prevailed upon to come down and inhabit them."—Bible Union Dictionary, Art. Idolatry.

GIBBON. Says Gibbon, "The sublime and simple theology of the primitive christians was gradually corrupted; and the monarchy of heaven, already clouded by metaphysical subtleties, was degraded by the introduction of a popular mythology, which tended to restore the reign of polytheism." Vol. 3, p. 161.

"It must ingenuously be confessed that the ministers of the Catholic church imitated the profane model which they were impatient to destroy. The most respectable bishops had persuaded themselves that the ignorant rustics would more cheerfully renounce the superstitions of Paganism, if they found some resemblance, some compensation, in the bosom of christianity. The religion of Constantine achieved in less than a century, the final conquest of the Roman empire; but the victors themselves were insensibly subdued by the arts of their vanquished rivals."—Ibid. p. 163.

TAYLOR. "During this calamitous period, christianity was sullied by the admixture of various superstitions, borrowed from ancient Paganism."—Taylor's Modern Hist. p. 212.

WASHINGTON. "It was reserved for the following century (the fourth) to fill those temples with images, and to introduce into the sanctuaries of God the predominating spirit of Paganism."—Washington's Ch. Hist. p. 208.

BOWER. Holy Water borrowed from Paganism. Bower says, "Some trace the holy water to the fifth bishop of Rome—Alexander"; and adds, "But if we trace up this water to the fountain head, we shall find that it issues from an unhallowed spring—from the lustral water of the Pagans."—Vol. 1, p. 10.

Celibacy borrowed from Paganism. Bower says, "Several other instances might be alleged to show that celibacy was embraced and practised by the Pagan priests long before the birth of the christian religion. The church of Rome has borrowed, as is notorious, several ceremonious customs and practices of the Pagans, and perhaps the celibacy of the priesthood among the rest. I say perhaps, because it might have been suggested to her by the same spirit of superstition that suggested it to them."—Vol. 1, p. 14.

BOWER. "What Gregory says may be true, namely, that by adopting the rites of the Pagans; that is, by bringing the christian religion as near as possible to Paganism, the Pagans were the more easily induced to embrace it; but it is likewise true that they were the more easily persuaded to renounce it and relapse into idolatry."—Vol. 1, p. 416.

"RAPIN observes that in the fifth century christianity was debased by a vast number of human inventions; the simplicity of its government and discipline was reduced to a system of clerical power, and its worship was polluted with ceremonies borrowed from the heathen."—White's Hist. of the World, p. 168.

RICHES OF THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS.

"And the woman was arrayed in purple and scarlet color, and decked with gold, and precious stones and pearls, having a golden cup," etc.

Some of the Riches of the Church of St. Salvador, (Sargossa, Spain.) "The front of the altar's table is made of solid silver, the frame gilt, and adorned with precious stones. In the treasure of the church they keep sixteen bodies of saints of pure silver; one of which, who had held office in that church, is adorned with rich stones of a great value. Besides these, they keep twelve half silver bodies of other saints, and many relics set with gold and diamonds. Forty-eight silver candlesticks for the altar's table, two large ones, and the third for the blessed candle, three hundred pounds weight each; thirty-six small candlesticks of silver, and six made of solid gold, for the great festivals. Four passenetta of silver, two of solid gold, with the handles of hyssops of the same. Two large crosses, one of silver, the other of gold, ten feet high, to carry before the processions. Ten thousand ounces of silver in plate, part of gilt, to adorn the two corners of the altar on great festivals, and when the archbishop officiates and says the great mass. Thirty-three silver lamps, of which the smallest is an hundred and fifty pounds' weight; and the largest, which is before the great altar, gilt all over, is six hundred and thirty pounds' weight. Abundance of rich ornaments for priests, of inexpressible value. Eighty-four chalices, twenty of pure gold, and sixty-four of silver, gilt on the inside of the cup, and the rich chalice which only the archbishop makes use of in his pontifical dress.

"All these are but trifles in comparison with the great custodia they make use of to carry the great host (consecrated bread) thro' the streets on the festival of Corpus Christi. The whole custodia is five hundred pounds' weight, and this is placed in a gilt vase. . . . Several goldsmiths have endeavored to value this piece, but nobody could set a certain sum upon it. One said that a million of pistoles (three million six hundred thousand dollars) was too little."—Great Red Dragon, p. 120.

He alludes to the church, Lady del Pillar, in the same city, as being nearly as rich in her adornings. Lord Stanhope (General of the English forces) visiting this church, remarked that, "'if all the kings of Europe should gather together all their treasures and precious stones, they could not buy half of the riches of this treasury.' He speaks of one hundred and ninety-five silver lamps in this church. Five of these are about five hundred pounds' weight each, sixty of four hundred pounds, sixty-five of two hundred pounds, and sixty-five of one hundred pounds."—Ibid. p. 122.

The poet Addison made a visit to the Pope's palace at Rome, and in describing the riches which he saw there, remarked:—"Silver can scarcely find admission, and gold looks but poorly among such an incredible number of precious stones."—Selected by I. K. Lombard.

For the World's Crisis.

"BLOW YE THE TRUMPET."

"Blow ye the trumpet in Zion, and sound an alarm in my holy mountain (saith the Lord); let all the inhabitants of the land tremble, for the day of the Lord cometh, for it is nigh at hand."

When danger by invasion or rebellion threatened ancient Zion, the trumpets throughout Jerusalem were blown. The clarion blasts of the trumpets echoed far over the hills of Judea, and were caught up and repeated by Bethany, Bethlehem, Bethshemish, and Antioch, until, in a few hours, the sound spread from Gibeah to Gerar, and from Joppa to Jericho; the sound swelled up from a thousand trumpets, and the whole people was aroused to the defense of Zion.

For the past eighteen hundred years, Satan has been mustering his host. By "cunningly devised fables," and delusive influences, he has gathered a large army, to make his last war upon the people of God. He is now marshaling his host before the gates of Zion, to make his last desperate raid upon the people of the Most High.

"The cry is up, the strife begun,
The struggle of the mighty ones;
And Armageddon's day comes down."

Now is the time for the trumpet to be blown. God says, "I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem." Ye chosen watchmen of God, do ye not behold the enemy mustering his host? Blow ye the trumpet now! Give it no uncertain sound. No! Stand like a wall of adamant, and in thunder tones send its warning blasts over this judgment-hastening world. Blow ye the trumpet, and let the mighty men arouse, and bear its notes over hill and plain, until it is caught up by the multitudes, who have fallen asleep under the cry of "peace and safety," and echoed to the sky. Blow ye the trumpet, O watchmen of Zion, and shout in the ears of a self-secure world the gladsome news—"Our Lord is coming." Then the shout will go up, till confusion seizes the Philistines ranks.

Watchmen of Zion, why will you hold your peace? What care you for the reproaches of a doubting and godless world? Why stand you abashed at the sneers and mockery of those for whom wrath is treasured up? We must faithfully blow the trumpet, perchance some may heed its warning, and seek refuge beneath the banner of Jesus.

Blow the trumpet in our world-conforming, sin-apologizing churches. "Now is the time to awake out of sleep." Time hastens, and the great day of God's wrath will soon roll in upon mankind. Amid the quicksands of these last days, it is sin to keep silent. We must sound the tidings in no feeble tones, when redemption is so near. We must sound it with zealous earnestness, to gather the outcasts into the Ark of Safety.

The conflict will soon be over. O, then, what glorious results await the children of God. In view of these blessed results, we should sound the trumpet in earnest. Time is short. Then "sing, O daughter of Zion! shout, O Israel," for your "redemption draweth nigh." Raise your voice with joyous hearts, and swell the song—

"He's coming, he's coming, awake ye, awake!
Jesus is coming, his kingdom to take."

Rochester, N. Y. WM. H. SPENCER.

For the World's Crisis.

"I HAVE OVERCOME."

From the lips of a risen and heaven-ascended Savior, these soul-strengthening words came. And amid the struggles of mortality, and the discouragements that we often meet, I love to imagine a real Conqueror looking down upon me, saying in soft, "majestic sweetness," "I have overcome the world, and am sat down on my Father's throne." It inspires me with fresh zeal to hear these words.

Ah! weak, tempest-tossed soul, there is One on high that sees your every effort to cross the stormy main. Over on the other shore he spreads many attractions, and like a parent coaxing or inducing with toys and sweetmeats, our heavenly Father tells us of the enduring, beautiful things in store for us when the voyage is over. And when the waves roar fearfully, and the storms come furiously, and the thunders clash loudly, causing the heart to faint in discouragment, Jesus says so cheeringly, "I have overcome." He will help you, weakest of the weak; you, too, may overcome, and sit down with Christ on his throne, even as he overcame, and is sat down with God on his throne.

I remember going through the forest between Canada and Vermont. A sister and I started for a tent meeting, but met many discouragements on the way. It was in the muddiest season of the year, and on a half-made road. Sister was a woman of faith, foolish enough to believe the Holy Ghost makes "impressions" for Christians to follow.

Well, the road grew worse and worse. I sang and she prayed; I laughed and she cried. When half way through, we overtook a couple of Elders, who thought best for us to return. But, convinced that it was the Lord's will for us to proceed, on we went. When near the worst part of the journey, we met a man in a wagon, who looked as if it had been buried in mud. We asked him how the road was, and if he thought we could get through.

Said he, "I have come through."

Ah! said I, if he can come through without God, surely we can with God. On we went, and enjoyed a heavenly season in the Bethel Tent.

So, pilgrim, ever so weary and worn, there is One to give you strength. Lean on his strong arm when the winds blow and your strength fails. He loves to lead his feeblest children, and when they fall he kindly lifts them up.

"The soul that on Jesus doth lean for repose,
I'll never, no, never desert to his foes;
That soul, though all hell should endeavor to take,
I'll never, no, never, no, never forsake."

M. MATHEWS WEAVER.

Westfield, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CENTENARY CONVENTION.

BRO. GRANT:—I took occasion to be at a few of the Centenary meetings, which were largely attended by ministers and lay delegates of that order. There was no lack of talent, which was shown in essays and remarks. They exhibited a knowledge of the wisdom of this world. Some remarks indicated that the old members still kept in sight what had been the secret of their former success. One said, "Let us labor as we never labored before. The ministry,—we can make them just what we have a mind to, by prayer. O! let us pray for them." Another said, "A minister can have a revival, if he will live for it. He must pay the costs, and have a body guard of praying ones all around him, and not discouragements." "The fountain is not dry; if the stream is dry, there must be some obstructions. The power to convert souls is inexhaustible with God." If they had continued to "fight it out on this line," success would have attended vastly more than the course now pursued. Wisdom of languages is sought after, and great efforts to educate the children into Methodism.

One remarked that "when men of wealth shall come forward and give and labor for Methodism, then will come the Millennium. The success of the last hundred years was an indication of the future. We will take the world. We have the promise of Him who can not lie." At this point the endorsing hymn to their theology was sung,—

"A charge to keep I have,
A God to glorify;
A never dying soul to save," etc.

Another remarked that "Methodism had done and could do for her membership what no other can do or has done. She has a scriptural theology, and a saintly experience"; and closed by a warning to sinners, repeating the words of God by the prophet, "The soul that sinneth it shall die."

Another said that "Methodism was like the willow by the water brook,—stick it either end down, it would grow." But its growth was checked, according to their statistical report. Their words were these:—"There has not been the relative increase since 1840 that there had been before." Now what caused this check? The doctrine of the second coming of Christ began to be proclaimed about that time, and "the power to convert souls" left all denominations that fought the soul-reviving message. Some churches are high and dry, and have not enjoyed a refreshing since the ejectment of its "best members." We can give time and place, if any doubt it. Now which way has this denomination been drifting since 1840? Before that time, they were a plain, unadorned people; but now it is necessary to insert in their reports a resolve, recommending a return to Paul's and Peter's direction for dress. This was a fair acknowledgment. I noticed among the many ministers' wives examples of fashion that would compare with the Parisian mode on Broadway or Washington streets. If they love the world, the love of the Father is not in them. I should think at the present rate, that the world would take them. O. christian, shun the breakers.

W. C. STONE.

Work—kitchen work—is a good thing. Less parlor and more kitchen, less piano and more kitchen, less French and more kitchen, less folly, frippery and nonsense, and more kitchen—these are the things to give our girls sense, health, comfort, joyful and happy homes.

For the World's Crisis.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Dear Fellow-Disciples:—It is nearly three months since a piece appeared in the Crisis headed, "Neighborhood Sabbath Schools," calling upon the christian people living in country towns to start Sabbath schools in the school-houses. I was deeply interested in the spirit of the work, and resolved then to do what I could to help sow the seed in the springtime.

Dear friends, are you at work in your districts? Now is the time. Little children can now be gathered in. Now their little feet press the soft sod, and with active life they will come trudging to Sabbath school, if you will only provide one. The sweet summer is passing. Its days are days of promise to you,—to me. O do not delay to give the lambs their bread of life.

Dear brethren in the ministry, as you journey from town to town, I appeal to you. O do awaken the people. Where is hope, but in the knowledge of the holy Scriptures? "How shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard?" Dear fellow christians, sow the "incorruptible seed." Give the cup of "living water." You must not expect to see the tender blade, or the stalk, or the full ear, until the season comes; but sow the bare grain in the brown soil; it will bring forth.

During the past springtime, at intervals as strength permitted, it has been my greatest happiness to walk forth through the rural districts, distributing tracts, and calling upon school teachers to awaken them to the work committed to their trust, even to feed the lambs. How lovely, how lovely, is this passing summer. O that my feet could stand within each district school house throughout the land, to look into the young faces there, and to speak a few words that perchance would abide in their hearts, when the heart that loves them now is silent and still. Would that every day-school teacher in the land could be induced to be a sower of the seed.

Dear brethren and sisters, in bodily weakness I have written these sentences, imperfect as they are. Fain would I go now to your district, but it is impossible. I can only reach your ear, your eye, your mind and heart, through our dear paper, and I write only to bless the dear children, and you through them; and that God our Father may have the praise that will yet help swell the choral anthem of that great multitude, that no man can number.

Dear brother, sister, dwelling in the vales, or amid the granite hills, this message is to each of you. Do what thy hand findeth to do, for the summer is passing, the harvest will soon end. M. J. PLUMMER.

Merrimac, N. H.

For the World's Crisis.

CAMPMEETING.

Another year has rolled away, and campmeeting time is almost here; and who that has ever been does not want to go again? Who that has ever heard good preaching, praying, and singing, does not want to hear it again? Who that has ever spent a week in the woods, and heard the birds sing in the morning and evening, and heard the songs and praises of the children of God, at the first dawn of the morning, until late in the evening, does not want to go and hear them again? Yes, you all say, we must go again. And you that have never been, we would advise you to go, and see, hear, and get acquainted with the preachers, editor, and writers of the Crisis. The paper will be much more interesting to you. You that never heard a woman preach, and think her out of her sphere, we would advice you to go to Wilbraham, and hear for yourselves. We think all prejudice will be removed. And you who had so much land to cultivate last year you could not go, get your Bible, and once more read the will God made to Abraham; give up the land and go to campmeeting. You that spend all your money in costly dress, feathers, and flowers, get your Bible and read in Revelations about the white robes; save your money, and go to campmeeting. You that rather spend that ten dollars for a handsome breastpin and earrings to match, get your Bible and read in Timothy and Peter, see what they say about it. Better save your money and go to campmeeting, and see if you see any such things on the sisters there. And to you that think that there is more hurt done than good, and that you dare not go for fear some few, or some one, will find out something about you, or tell something about you, that you would not like to have them know; we would say, behave yourselves at home always, and in all places; then there will be no trouble, and you can go anywhere. Children that learn to behave at home, will behave well when abroad. The Lord help us to be good children always. N. D. BABCOCK.

East Greenwich, R. I.

For the World's Crisis.

TRIP TO MINNESOTA.

BRO. GRANT:—I would like to take up a little room in our most excellent paper, which I prize highly. I promised Sister Rowell to visit Minn., if she would visit Iowa. Accordingly I arrived at Pleasant Valley Jan. 26th, and commenced a meeting the next night five miles from the city of Winona, where I stayed one week. Three backsliders were reclaimed, and others afterwards, as I learned in the weekly prayer meeting. I was invited to go into the city, but felt very reluctant, for able men had been there before me. The friends came together for counsel, and I could only find about twelve believers in this large city on the Missispie river, with several thousand inhabitants. The little flock pressed me so to try, I promised them one week, and the third day of February commenced in Hoseman's Hall. But there was so much prejudice and fear, they were slow coming out; yet the interest increased. The week's labor resulted in the addition of six to the flock. Bro. Job Brown, generally known as a Methodist minister, and pioneer in Minn., we trust will be of much service in the blessed hope, who talks of arranging his business and spending his time in the field.

The work seemed only begun, and I agreed to stay a week or more. We had a blessed time. Some were converted, and backsliders were reclaimed. We held a daily union prayer meeting at twelve. Also prayer meeting before preaching, and conference and prayer after preaching. There was much feeling manifested. Many arose and desired prayers. A Mr. Nelson arose and said, "It is well known I do not profess religion, but I have known what it was; but I do not know as I shall ever have confidence to try again." I noticed that his words were guarded. "But," said he, "I have friends here (referring to a mother and sister) who I hope will not take me for an example, but make a start." They afterwards started. I saw that there was quite a stir. Many wept. There were those there who had heard him preach. He had been a Disciple minister, but fell into the snare and the pit, by which he had lost all confidence in himself. But, thank God, the truth had pierced and wounded him.

He came again, and said, "I have had no peace; pray for me, that I may have confidence to start." In a few nights he came again and said, "I feel like saying to-night, I will reform and live a christian." And again when the tempter came, he said, "If I do not start now, I shall be lost. I feel this is my last call." He was blest, and united with us.

Sunday evening, Feb. 25th. Fifteen came forward, some to unite, some for baptism. We set a day to attend to the ordinance of baptism, and in the meantime visited the Union church, the largest in the State. I preached twice. One arose for membership. Then I returned to the city. Preached on Wednesday night. Thursday we repaired to the water and immersed five happy converts into Christ, according to his word. Others will follow when I return. Preached that night, and bade them adieu amid many tears.

Although we feared to engage in this place, the Lord was with us in great power. Eighteen were added to the church, and some eight or ten under its watch care. I preached twice at Elliota, March 4th, and arrived home safely after an absence of two months, laboring in this State and Minn. The Lord has blessed me, and I greatly rejoice. I made arrangement for a tent before I left, over sixty feet in diameter. I had obtained enough to pay for it, lacking $50, for which I sent to the Voice of the West, to see if any had something to lend to the Lord. I have nearly enough received to secure it, and the friends may depend on having tent meetings, if they will give me timely notice. It would be my greatest desire to be in the field all the time. Pray for me. PETER S. W. DAYO.

April 10th, 1866.

For the World's Crisis.

LEFT BEHIND.

How solemn the words; but never were they so forcibly impressed upon my mind as on the 9th inst.

Having an apppointment in Bristol, R. I., I had made my arrangements to go; and believing without a doubt that I was right in point of time, I did not start until the last moments were nearly run out. When told that I had but little time, I still felt confident that I could get on board. Grasping my satchel, I ran to the depot, but only to be disappointed. No train was there. I consulted the time table, but I was too late; the train had gone, and I was left behind. I was informed that there was no other train to go, and no other way for me to reach my destination.

Then came these thoughts—left behind. Only two small words, yet how significant. They taught me a lesson, and I trust I shall profit by it. But my difficulty did not arise from having a time too soon, for if I had been in the depot before the time, I could have waited for the train, and being in a waiting position, would imply that I was ready; but my time was too far in the future. I had not consulted the guide as faithfully as I ought. The consequences were, I was left behind. I thought of the gospel train (only one train), its time table (the Bible), its destination, the glorious kingdom of God; and being convinced that it was nearly time to go, I asked myself, am I ready? have I cut loose from the world? am I ticketed through to the kingdom?

Brethren, are you ready? then have your ticket in sight when the conductor comes along. Backslider, are you ready? Search for your roll; find your ticket, so that you may not be "left behind." Sinner, are you ready? Ask Jesus for a free pass over the road, and he will give it to you. But after the train has gone, the rails will be taken up, and all communication with that heavenly land cut off. Then will you fully realize the import of these words, "left behind." What a tale of sorrow and woe is embodied in these two words. How expressive of sad disappointment, and oh, how fully will it be realized by those who are "left behind" when Jesus comes.

Let us, therefore, have our loins girt about, and our lamps burning, and we ourselves like unto men that wait for their Lord, when he shall return from the wedding. Blessed are those servants whom the Lord, when he cometh, shall find watching. Amen, even so, Lord. C. C. RAMSEY.

For the World's Crisis.

A KNOCK.

"Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets."—MATT. 7. 12.

This command was given by our Savior, as the great commandment embracing all. It is a proof of our love to him in keeping it. Jno. 14: 23. Do we not esteem it a privilege to minister to the wants of a friend, whom we dearly love? Would it have been blessed to have relieved the wants of Jesus on earth, when he said—"Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head"?—Luke 9: 58. Jesus knew this, and gave us these blessed words: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."—Matt. 25: 40.

With this preface, I come to the object in view in writing this. It is an appeal in behalf of the mission in Philadelphia. I cordially respond to Bro. Burbank's expression, that the Lord will knock on the hearts of his children, but he may use human means to do it. May he use this feeble effort in his name as an effectual knock upon the hearts, and open the purses of some who have the Lord's money in their possession. May he help us to be faithful stewards.

Probably all are acquainted with the work of the mission, and the especial object for which means are immediately needed, namely a house for the reception of the little wanderers. There seems to be a want of interest in this thing. We in our comfortable homes, surrounded by the necessaries, and many of the comforts and luxuries of life, do not know the misery and degradation of the poor outcasts in the streets and alleys of the great city. I can but think, did we but see ourselves more of the suffering of our fellow beings, some of them our brethren and sisters in Christ, we should be more liberal towards the mission. Innocent children growing up in sin, is the saddest spectacle of all. Do we look at our little ones with a parent's fondness, and pray they may be kept from evil; and can we not feel for the poor children of want? Have we not love enough for Christ to give a helping hand to the little being made to feel some of these little wanderers, and lead them into the fold of the Good Shepherd? O, it is a noble work; must it be hindered for want of means? No, no. Let us consider him who "though he was rich, yet for (our) sakes became poor, that we through his poverty might be rich."

Let us show our love to Jesus in this thing. Let the house be purchased immediately with the thank-offerings of his children. It can be done. Will you lend a helping hand? Come, brethren and sisters, bring your offerings. Let the love of Christ constrain you. "Freely ye have received, freely give." Take a share in this mission-stock; it will pay well. Let the Home be immediately opened, and the work go on. Let your prayers accompany the gift. When Jesus comes, you will not regret it. Brethren and sisters, is this too much for Jesus? If not, act. A. W.

THE RAINBOW.

We have just received the May number of The Rainbow, a valuable monthly, published in London, Eng., edited by Dr. Wm. Leask. The Editor says:—

"Meantime I submit, and am ready to prove —on condition that the literal meaning of Scripture be accepted, wherever that does not lead to absurdity—the following propositions:

1. That the kingdom of Christ, predicted by the prophets of both Testaments, and by the Lord himself, has not yet been set up.

2. That, though 'appointed heir of all things,' he has not yet been invested with his royal rights, but is waiting on his Father's throne until 'the times of the restitution of all things,' when he will ascend his own throne.

3. That the mellennial kingdom is the consequent, and not the antecedent, of Christ's second coming.

4. That this second coming to judge the world in righteousness will be personal, sudden, unexpected by the vast majority of professing christians, and may be at any moment, without further warning.

5. That the resurrection of the dead in Christ, the transformation of the living saints, and the translation of both simultaneously, take place at the coming of the Lord.

6. That the evangelization of the world by the agency of the church is a doctrine unknown to Scripture, and is rendered impossible by the nature of the case.

7. That the church is 'the body of Christ,' an elect community, gathered 'out of the nations,' by the Holy Ghost, during this dispensation of grace, to form 'the first fruits' unto God and the Lamb, and that it will be removed from the earth at the coming of the Lord, and before the inauguration of his world-wide empire.

May I be permitted to implore my christian brethren of every name not to turn impatiently away from this subject. I pray the Lord to give his people seriousness on this most serious theme."

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

DYSENTERY.

Dysentery is literally a "difficulty among the intestines;" it is a discharge of blood from the bowels accompanied with what has been aptly called, "an atrocious pain." You feel as if you would be relieved by an evacuation, but when the attempt is made there is a fruitless straining termed tenesmus, and nothing comes of it unless it be blood. The rectum or last foot of the lower bowel, is the main seat of dysentery, which is commonly called "bloody flux." It should be always considered a dangerous disease. At first the discharges are odorless; but as the parts come more under the influences of the disease, they become disorganized, rotten, and insufferably offensive. Dysentery most abounds in hot, dry weather, and is oftenest caused by bad air, a sudden check of perspiration, or by whatever makes the skin or the body cold. In fact, dysentery may be considered an exaggerated or aggravated diarrhea, the latter is water, the former is blood.

The great distinguishing features of dysentery are bloody passages, with a frequent, fruitless, and painful effort to stool. It is one of those diseases which are apt to go on to a fatal termination, if let alone; a disease which is often made more speedily fatal by being ignorantly tampered with; and whether blood is passed from the bladder or the bowels, a skilful physician should be called in as promptly as possible, as promptly indeed, as if it were an attack of cholera; but, while be is coming there are several things which may be safely done for the comfort of the sufferer, if not for his cure. The patient should not sit up a moment; should keep as quiet as possible; should eat absolutely nothing but boiled rice, or flour porridge, and swallow bits of ice to the complete quenching of the thirst. A little cold flaxseed tea may be swallowed from time to time.

A favorite prescription of some of the old physicians of a past generation, and which is now said to be in vogue in Russia for several forms of diarrhea and dysentery, is the use of raw meat; thus, take fresh beef free from fat, scrape it into a pulp with a knife, season it with salt to make it more palatable, or with sugar for children, to whom begin with one teaspoonful three times a day, gradually increasing the amount as they become fond of it. Adults may use it by spreading it between two slices of stale bread. Its merit consists in its being easily digested, very nutritious, of small bulk, and readily assimilated to the system. It is well known that children having the summer complaint will ravenously eat, or rather chew or grind between their gums, a piece of the rind of bacon or ham, to which is attached half an inch of fat, and begin to improve in a few hours. The whites of forty eggs "whipped," and then sweetened with white sugar, and drank largely through the day, without any other food, is an admirable remedy in these ailments. Or, for dysentery or protracted diarrhea, take half a teacup of vinegar, with as much salt as it will take up, leaving a little excess of salt at the bottom, add boiling water till the cup is two-thirds full, remove the scum, let it cool, and take one table spoonful three times a day till relieved. It has not failed of cure in many hundred trials.—Hall's Journal of Health.

SLEEP.

In a country like ours, where there is so great a reward for industry, and so many inducements to enterprise, it is not surprising that many are very solicitous to grasp the profit there may be in the passing hour.

All this would be laudable, if kept within proper bounds; but often it is not so, and covetousness hurries on the property-seeker to work on more hours, and sleep less, than nature, if she could speak, would allow.

Many work so hard, and sleep so little, that they cannot sit down for an hour to read, without falling asleep; others allow themselves to be disturbed at night by anxious thoughts and cares, until sleepless nights become habitual.

It has been remarked by those having the care of insane persons, that insanity is generally, if not always, preceded by loss of sleep; and it may be safely conjectured that fanatical persons are generally weakened in the same way.

Many parents lose their patience of mind; after long nights of watching with their sick families and many a mother is worn out with watching and weariness, and care, and sinks into the grave before life has reached its meridian.

Nothing so tires nature, as continued privation of sleep. Many suffer from this cause, and are not aware of the injury they sustain in consequence, as it weakens the judgment and the memory, and stupefies the finest perceptive faculties, while some other faculties are irregularity.

How then can this be remedied; how can the anxious man lay his cares aside at night, and sleep quietly, till his needed sleep is gained?

In answer we may say, that no means, however, will avail with some, for they cannot, or will not, set about the matter aright; they will try your recipe in some of its parts, but fail in others. Some have no command over their thoughts, which run at large, unguided, and unrestrained.

With many the following simple remedy will suffice:

Place in your sleeping room a basin of cold water, and a towel. When you wake, try and compose your mind; if this fails to bring sleep, arise, leave your bed with the quilts thrown down to take the air; wet your head with cold water thoroughly; now wet the towel, and wring it moderately; now wind the towel around the head, so as to form a cap, and pin it so that it will be moderately tight. Now lie down again in the easiest position you can, and cover up warmly, and commence mentally repeating some familiar chapter in the Bible. Repeat the same chapter or verse, over and over; and soon, perhaps in a few minutes, you will sleep soundly, especially if you have a good conscience. If not, the best time to rectify these matters, and repent, is after good sweet sleep. If you wake again before you have gained your quota of sleep, get up again, wet your head as before, repeat the same chapter or text of scripture, and the same result will probably follow.

Faithfully follow out this direction, and you will soon sleep at the right time, without any trouble; always avoid taking sleep in the afternoon, and follow, at the same time, Dr. Jackson's rules of diet. I speak from experience.—Review.

BITING FINGER NAILS.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman writes: A circumstance has come to my knowledge in regard to children biting their nails, which I feel in duty bound to make more generally known, if possible. Something over a year ago, there died in our neighborhood a bright little girl of seven years, and no one, not even her physicians, could tell what caused her death; but some time after a case came to their knowledge of a child's dying under similar circumstances, and a post mortem examination was had, when it was found that she had bitten off her finger nails and swallowed them, and they were found sticking in her stomach, which was ulcerated wherever they stuck. In the case in this neighborhood, the parents had known of her biting her nails, but thought nothing of it until the other case was told them. They now suppose that was the cause of her death, and these parents being in school one day and seeing my little girl of seven years looking pale and having the nose bleed in school just as theirs did, they came directly and told me what they had learned. My wife questioned our little girl to know if she bit her nails, and she said she had. We asked her if she had swallowed them; she said she had sometimes, which very much alarmed us, although we hope to save her, but the result is known to Him only by whom the hairs of our head are all numbered."

CURE FOR CHOLERA.—Messrs. Editors—I send to you below the recipe of the Liverpool Dock Committee of 1849, for the cure of cholera. It was shown that one hundred and fifty-seven men of the north works, and ninety-three at the dock yards who had been attacked by diarrhea or cholera, had taken the medicine prescribed, and the whole of them had recovered. Ten men of the north works, and thirteen at the dock yards, similarly attacked, but who had not taken the medicine, had died. In not a single case had the prescription failed.

Recipe.—Three drachms of spirits of camphor; three drachms of laudanum; three drachms of oil of turpentine; thirty drops of oil of peppermint. Mix, and take a teaspoonful in a glass of weak brandy and water for diarrhea, and a tablespoonful in weak brandy and water for cholera.

Lose no time in sending for medical attendance when attacked, and inform the doctor of what has been taken. Medical men assert, and experience shows, that this is an excellent remedy and well worth being kept on hand by every family.—W. W. HUBBELL.—Scientific American.

HOW TO CURE A FELON.—As soon as the parts begin to swell get the tincture of lobelia, and wrap the part affected with a cloth saturated thoroughly with the tincture, and the felon is dead. An old physician says he has known it to cure in scores of cases, and it never fails if applied in season.—Journal of Medicine.

CURE FOR BEE STINGS.—One drop of strong spirits of hartshorn will in an instant remove the pain caused by the sting of a bee, wasp, or hornet. It should be at hand in every family where there are children. The same article may be used for the removal of grease spots.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..........$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months.....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.60
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address.........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, to the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.
Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to
MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
TERMS:
Payable always in advance.
[illegible]

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME.

WHOLE NO. 56[illegible]. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1866. VOL. XXII.—NO. 15.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
[illegible] HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL,
[illegible]

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, [illegible] DAVIS,
E. S. BREWER, [illegible] HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE W. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the [illegible], personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their [illegible] resurrection, and final [illegible] of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

AT THE GRAVE OF LAZARUS.

Brightly the sunshine rested on the land of Palestine,
Save when a white cloud flitting o'er, its shadow, cast between,
And softly over hill and dale the gentle breezes blew,
While swiftly through the leafy bowers the bright-winged songsters flew.
Beside a grave in Bethany a mourning group had come,
Two sisters, and the trusted Friend who loved the buried one;
And others, too, were gathered there to share the mourner's grief,
With kindly words of sympathy to bring them some relief.
How had those gentle sisters in affliction's trying hour,
Yearned for the presence of their Lord with his all-healing power;
And when he came, with sorrowing hearts the[illegible] mournful voice they cried—
"Dear Master, if thou hadst been here my brother had not died."
And Jesus wept—his pitying heart with grief did overflow,
Mourning for one as brother dear and the sad sisters' woe;
And well they knew, as Martha said, whate'er he asked of Heaven,
In the All-Father's tenderness would graciously be given.
Oft had they heard how their dear Lord the widow's son did save,
Ere yet corruption had begun, or laid within the grave;
But their dear one had rested in the narrow-house four days—
Oh! would he then again to life their darling brother raise?
But hark! that heavenly voice commands—"Roll ye away the stone!"
Quickly they hasten to obey the wise and holy One;
And lifting up his eyes to Heaven, "Dear Father," he did say,
"I thank thee, and I know that thou dost always hear me pray;
But for the people that stand by I said it unto thee,
If possibly they may believe that I am sent by thee."
Then with a voice whose wond'rous power thrilled through the listening ear,
"Lazarus, come forth!" the welcome sound the sleeping one doth hear,
And from the gloomy sepulchre he that was dead came forth,
Again to share with those he loved the mingled [illegible] of earth.
But oh! to paint that scene sublime, the sisters' boundless joy,
The shrouded form, the [illegible] would neither forms employ,
But I have thought, when I have seen my loved ones borne away,
And laid within the silent house [illegible] of day,
If that dear voice again would speak, and life to them be given,
What joy, what gratitude would [illegible] to heaven.
But they will live when Jesus comes again on earth to reign,
Yet not as Lazarus of [illegible] to die again;
But when the summons shall go forth bidding the dead arise,
Our dear ones then will live again ever in Paradise.

Farmington, N. H. [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

THE COMING KING.

"Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord."—Luke 19:38.

"For he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."—1 Cor. 15:25, 26. [illegible]

[illegible]

...and keep thee in on every side, and shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee; and they shall not leave in thee one stone upon another; because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation."—Luke 19:41–44. "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate; for I say unto you, Ye shall not see me henceforth (from this time forward) till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."—Matt. 23:38, 39. "And when ye (the disciples) shall see Jerusalem encompassed with armies, then know (understand) that the desolation thereof is nigh. . . . And they (the Jews) shall fall by the edge of the sword, and (they) shall be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem shall be trodden down by the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."—Luke 21:20–24.

"I say, then, hath God cast away his people? . . . God hath not cast away his people which he foreknew. . . . I say, then, have they stumbled that they should fall? . . . By no means; but by their fall the nations have salvation in order to excite them [Israel] to emulation. But if their fall is the wealth of the world, and their failure the wealth of the Gentiles; how much more will their full acceptance be? For if their rejection be the reconciliation of the world [Kosmos], what is their reception, if not life from the dead?"—Rom. 11:1, 2, 11, 12, 15.—Emphatic Diaglott. "Jesus had said, 'The kingdom of God shall be taken from you [Israel], and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof; and whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder.' And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spake of them."—Matt. 21:43.

"No servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye (the disciples, Luke 16:1) cannot serve God and mammon."—Luke 16:13. Jesus had been contrasting "the unrighteous mammon," the riches of this world, with the "true riches," the knowledge, grace, love, peace and joy of God in Christ by the Holy Spirit here, with eternal life and glory in the world to come. See 16:11. Rev.—"Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked. I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see."—Rev. 3:17, 18.

"And the Pharisees also (as well as the disciples), who were covetous, heard all these things; and they derided him. And he said unto them, Ye are they who justify yourselves before men; but God knoweth your hearts; for that which is highly esteemed among men, is abomination in the sight of God. The law and the prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached." Since John's time, this had been promulgated.

Proof. "Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand (or, God's ROYAL MAJESTY has approached, or, is approaching); repent ye, and believe the gospel" (or, reform ye, and believe the good message).—Mark 1:14, 15. "Since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man presseth into it."—Luke 16:16. The Douay translation reads: "and every man uses violence towards it," or resists it. This is analogous to Matt. 11:12. "And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven suffereth [illegible]

[illegible]

...thirty years, utterly, cannot . . . make the promise of none effect; for if the inheritance [the land promised] be of the law, it is no more of promise; but God gave it to Abraham by promise."—Gal. 3:16–18. This was the inheritance, with all its appurtenances, rights, benefits, immunities and privileges thereunto belonging, that these wicked husbandmen seized upon, [illegible] and violence.

But [illegible] on this subject of violence to the kingdom, and then we will return to Luke 16. "Then gathered the chief priests and Pharisees a council, and said, What do we? for this man doeth many miracles. If we let him thus alone, all men will believe on him; and the Romans will come and take away both our place and nation. And one of them, named Caiaphas, being the high priest that same year, said unto them, Ye know nothing at all, nor consider that it is expedient for us that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not."—John 11:47–50.

G. W. STETSON.

Rutland, Vt.

For the World's Crisis.

WHO ARE LIBERAL?

BRO. GRANT:—[illegible] Crisis was an article upon "Benevolence and Liberality of the Advent People." Perhaps enough has been said; but I want to relate to you my experience upon this subject.

I have been identified from the first with the Freedmen's Aid Society. The first year's efforts were confined to the different societies, and of course I had only to act among my own people in soliciting aid. Though we were especially weak, and then in a torn and bruised condition, scattered and peeled, yet I received more encouragement, with less talk and reasoning, even though many of our people were prejudiced against missionary efforts, especially to the heathen, which led them to think this was a branch of the same root, which kept many from giving liberally, as they have since the enterprise is better known, and more fully comprehended.

The second year was laid out into districts, irrespective of sect or denomination. I verily thought I should do better among a class of people that were far more able to contribute; and I commenced full in the faith of a rich reward from my large Fire of duty; but, to my surprise, I walked day after day, talked volumes, reasoned with all the logic I was capable, but found only here and there one that had interest enough to treat my entreaties with common civility; and I venture to say, I heard more lies in the shape of excuses, than I had listened to for months; and after keeping me waiting, sometimes in the cold rain and snow, to come to the point, was turned off with the apology that they always gave; therefore they could not now. While our own people, that were not called upon, by reason of living in small tenements, and poor streets, came to me without asking, and contributed more liberally than those worth their hundreds and thousands outside.

My association, also, with the "Home of the Friendless," in this city, has brought me in another sphere, but the same class of benevolent enterprises, sustained hitherto by charity. I took a new circuit, where I had not been for the Freedmen, right in the heart of the city, thinking surely I should meet, not only with a warm reception, but the cause I was engaged in, would be a favorite object to give liberally. I found none, but thought it a worthy institution, located in our midst; that all knew of its merits; but again I received from more than three-quarters excuses, apologies, from [illegible]

[illegible]

...and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in: naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me. . . . Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Which is coming to the light, and greater. There is every reason to look up, and lift up our heads and rejoice. The cup of iniquity is nearly run to the dregs, and the last [illegible] mercy is now being [illegible]. The messenger of peace is flying on lofty [illegible] in with the offers of mercy. Some in our ranks have been brought to the knowledge of the truth, and some backsliders reclaimed.

[illegible] has been with us two weeks. I trust the work will not stop here. There is still much need of a refreshing from the presence of the Lord; though we are thankful for a few drops, which we hope is but a precursor of a more plentiful shower. Our meetings are instructive and profitable. Some of the church have got a laboring spirit, and a travail of soul. The promise is, when Zion travails, she shall bring forth. I have witnessed some deep prevailing prayer of late, and it has availed much. Quite a number are now seeking salvation, and express their determination to persevere. May the Lord reward us, not according to our deserts, but for his great love, wherewith he has loved us, in giving his Son to die for us. Eternity will be too short to praise and adore his holy name for his goodness to us, weak and sinful as we are. Without help from Him, we shall utterly fail and perish. "But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ."

B. G. LADD.

Springfield, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

SPIRITUALISM.—WHAT IS IT? CHRIST, OR ANTICHRIST?

NUMBER TWO.

The reader will excuse me if, before I proceed to the "development" of Spiritualism, I say a word about myself. He will also recognize in the following story, which otherwise is of no consequence, the key to the mysterious power of Spiritualism over the human mind; the power by which it seeks to govern mankind, and take possession of the world. If it shall seem like a romance, I can assure the reader that I have drawn it mildly and clearly within the facts.

In the winter of 1853, I was teaching a school, and boarded with a widow lady, whose two boys, lads of eight and ten, a sister, and two other boarders, made up the family. One evening, as I was occupied with a problem in arithmetic handed to me by one of my pupils, I heard upon the table, near which I sat, but did not touch, and which no one touched at the time, a peculiar rapping or knocking; or more properly, a snapping, for the sounds seemed more like the separating of the fibres of the wood, than concussive blows of one body upon another.

The sister of my landlady above mentioned, an intelligent and pious young woman, sat near the table, but did not touch it, nor did she appear to notice the raps. It was of course all a strange thing to me. I had read in the papers something of the "mysterious rappings" at Rochester, but I was not aware that they had got into Richmond, and into my boarding house. The next night, this young lady and myself were similarly situated with reference to the table, neither of us touching it; when I heard the rappings again; but louder, and longer continued; and I quietly suggested to the young woman, that she was a Spiritual medium. But she took this in high dudgeon, and, strangely for her, flew into a rage and began outrageously to abuse [illegible]

[illegible]

...pages, from London, England, entitled "The [illegible]" I [illegible] not spirits. I persuaded her to sit again. She did, and the same message was delivered, accompanied this time with a threat, that if we did not submit, that is, if she did not submit to become a public medium, and I did not consent to travel with her and superintend the exhibitions, they would make us trouble. But I gave heed to nothing they said, and for the family's sake was anxious to be rid of them. They however kept up their demonstrations, making the night hideous with their knockings and unearthly noises. Sleep was impossible, and we began to believe that we were really haunted by evil spirits.

But a happy thought struck my landlady. She knew a man in town, who had the reputation of being able to charm away evil spirits, and she sent for him to come and operate his charm upon the rappers. The old man obeyed, not doubting his power to do all the woman desired. He knelt and prayed, devoutly and fervently, for he was not a magician with syrups, elixirs, and magic rules, but a christian, with faith and prayer. But the rappers gave him no heed, and kept up rapping, and otherwise manifesting, in utter obliviousness of his presence.

The old man did not take this proceeding as at all complimentary, and after a few sharp words of rebuke to the spirits, he unceremoniously left, and thus ended our attempt to exorcise the rappers. And as if, to show us that they were aware of our failure, they became more bold, and increased the frequency and violence of their demonstrations. And, moreover, they introduced an entirely new kind of demonstration. That night, about midnight, the medium waked the whole house with a loud scream, saying that two spirits appeared at her bed-side, and told her if she did not consent to the arrangement they had proposed, they should appear to her again; and this she did at the same hour four nights in succession.

Now, the question with me was, Was this a thing likely to be done by the medium? I thought not. It was impossible to conceive of any rational motive for the act. She was unfriendly to the supposed spirits, and held mediumship in utter detestation; and had she coined any manifestations for the occasion, they would most certainly have been exactly contrary to her feelings and desires; on the supposition of course that she was not insane.

By this time, now, something more than a week since the manifestations commenced, the medium was well nigh exhausted, and was reduced to a completely negative, or passive state. In this state she was seized by the invisible rappers, or by some strange power, and completely possessed. She was now not only willing to be a medium, but desired it; and forgetting that I had ever offended her in supposing her a medium, desired me to join her and travel over the country, and give exhibitions. She saw nothing now in Spiritualism disreputable, nothing mean in the medium; and as to the spirits, they were the very pink of gentlemen, and they were, I think, all males.

Here was a complete and sudden transformation. I noted at the time, as well as I was able, and have reflected much since, upon the peculiar intellectual and moral aspects of this sudden change. By nature she was prompt, decisive, and open-faced; under this sudden inspiration she was vacillating, weak, and subtle. She had naturally a large gift of the moral; but now, under the passion of the spirits, the moral does not appear at all. The intellectual is active, and the [illegible] is under intense excitement; and thus were in exercise the passional and sensational, and not the reasonable and the spiritual. I must make a short story here, by saying that it was soon given out by the spirits, in a grave communication, that before departing on our rapping mission, we were to be married.

And here I must be allowed another word, and that is, that the first business of the spirits seems to be in almost every case to regulate our matrimonial affairs. At the second or third sitting, it generally happens that some of the party at the circle are mismated, that a husband has got the wrong wife, or a wife has got the wrong husband; and it is discovered that bachelors and maids are living in violation of the laws of nature; that there is by natural [illegible] a bachelor for every maid, and a maid for every bachelor; that Spiritualists must see to it that marriage should not be in law, but in affinity; thus everywhere it comes matrimonially, and if it has any godly original, it can claim no higher credit than Cupid and Venus. But I shall have occasion by and by to speak of "Free Love," and then I shall look somewhat more at length after the [illegible] their doctrines upon this subject.

The medium was now seized with an uncontrollable sense of love. Cool and [illegible] in her original nature, she was now [illegible] the reverse. Her passion was the very frenzy of love. There was not the [illegible] sweetness that runs in true love, the mild flame that burns when a simple heart is on fire, where [illegible] the quiet kindling of love, [illegible] bashfulness of [illegible] ness of native modesty, but a strange and unwomanly boldness, and vehemency of passion, exactly what we might expect from a clumsy imitator.

[illegible]

...the question for me to settle was, whether all this proceeded of the will of the medium; whether she, by some unknown power, produced the phenomena, or permitted or encouraged them [illegible] through her; in short, whether what happened were by her contrivance or consent; and I set myself to find out two things,—whether she could control the raps; and if not, whether she would be a reliable medium for exhibition. So I told [illegible] if she would send the raps away out of the house for the night, I would send for a minister and be married in the morning. She took me at my word, seeming to have a doubt as to my sincerity, or the integrity of the rappers; and rushing at a late hour she knelt and thanked the spirits for the good fortune that would give her a husband the next day. But alas for her, it is not Fortune, but Nemesis. It was not the spirit of unity, but the angel of discord. It was not truth we trusted in, but error; [illegible] that his enemy; and hence to show their contempt of our happiness and their word, and to convince us [illegible] expected from them as the truth, and to show us that they were not angels of light, but spirits of darkness, they told us a lie, and went on rapping, even before the medium was all [illegible], and, if possible, more furiously than they had done before. And this I had expected, but the medium had not; she believed them with all her heart.

I needed nothing more to convince me that we had not been imposed upon by any collusion or trick of the medium, and that the phenomena I had witnessed must be attributed to invisible beings,—but of whom, I knew nothing, except as I could judge them by their acts. They said they were the spirits of dead men, and had they established a character for truth in what I had known of them, I should have believed their story. But this, too, I shall discuss hereafter.

Meanwhile the medium remained unchanged. She had just the same faith in the spirits, and just the same desire to enter into their service, and was utterly oblivious of the fact that they had told us a falsehood. It seemed as if the purely moral instincts of her nature were in abeyance. Her judgment seemed to have forsaken her, and the controlling power seemed to have its residence merely in the passions. But I could not discover that she was under any purely vicious excitement, nor did I suppose the rappers were intent upon this for the mere purpose of mischief. They wanted proselytes, and had found in the medium an instrument for making them, and through her they were endeavoring to bring me under their influence.

I had hardly thought of it in the light of religion, nor was I able at all to get at its philosophy. I did not then, as now, see how straightforward and direct it seeks to invalidate the evidences of revealed religion; to overthrow the foundations of faith; to rebuild the throne of reason on the ruins of christianity; to set up thereon the idol of deified philosophy, and reinstate in Christendom the worship of nature. Nor had the medium thought of it in the light of religion, though she was a pious member of the Methodist church. There was nothing in the phenomena to excite religious feelings. The faculties called into operation were marvelousness, fancy, and imagination—not meekness, faith, and humility; and though under its inspiration one might become a philosopher, it would be impossible to become a saint.

But the spirits did not give up the matrimonial arrangement, for the success of our apostleship, they said, would depend very much upon that. They expected me to take no notice of the falsehoods they had told, and went on rapping, [illegible] advising, as if we held the most confidential relations. The arrangement, however, was not to be without substantial benefit, or as fashionable marrying people would say, without a "check;" and the plot had sufficiently matured to bring this distinctly into view. So far [illegible] the medium [illegible] that [illegible] it was a matter of [illegible] or insanity; and [illegible] her from the mad-house, her brother, a man of reputed wealth and influence, generously confided the happy secret to his sister, my landlady, that his check would be good to me the day after marriage; and [illegible] able [illegible]. And these things I needed sadly. I was struggling bare-handed and alone to get an education, and had known more than once what it was not to know where the money was coming from to pay the next term bill; and to be lifted at once out of the drudgery of debt, and the [illegible] was [illegible]

But I was not by nature a lover of money, nor a maker of money; and I do not now remember the time that I ever saw a chance to make money, but the currents all run another way. I was always at the debate, but never at the auction; and if boys at school [illegible] I thought money good for nothing [illegible] property. I had [illegible] read Emerson, something of Swedenborg, was living mainly upon the impracticable side of life; and yet I was a student in theology, tugging away at the knotty parts of Calvinism [illegible]

[illegible]

...to tell him what it is. We cannot be our own judges in this matter; nor can we say [illegible] to show us what to do, we shall have plenty of work; for he keeps no idle ones in his vineyard. When people get too lazy to work for the Lord, they can easily say they have nothing [illegible] not [illegible] them to do or not, because they do not wish [illegible] may perhaps be excellent queries in that department [illegible] pel was first preached by fishermen and taxgatherers; and that men receive the divine life into their hearts, and not their heads. It was not enough in the Divine Spirit to know that a minister should be meek, humble, and lowly of heart; gentle, kind, forgiving, merciful, obedient, ready to be despised, and, if need be, to be lifted up as was his Divine Master.

But the reader would like to know what came of all this to the medium, and how I came myself at length into Spiritualism, and how I came out of it; and in my next I will tell him.

[illegible] CHAPMAN.

For the World's Crisis.

INQUISITIVENESS.

There are two sorts of inquisitiveness. One is decidedly wrong; the other invariably right. They are sinful and righteous inquisitiveness. In one case, people are likely to be too inquisitive; in the other, not inquisitive enough. In the first case, the inquisitiveness arises from the excitement of curiosity. If people have their curiosity excited, they are very likely to satisfy it by seeking inquiries, no matter whether they are discerned or not; whether about themselves or others, every thing you know they want to know. This is wrong. It often mortifies the sensitive feelings of those with whom they are associated. There is probably no one who is willing to make all his thoughts and purposes known. He may be honest, upright, and open-hearted (which is impossible if he tells all he knows, and a little more), and still have secrets that he does not wish to communicate to every one. None but those who have a curiosity to satisfy will try to bring him out of his secrets, or what they consider as such, and they are the very persons who will tell it to others, and perhaps not mind adding a few words in order to increase its force; for a story is more likely to gain their [illegible], especially if it is calculated to injure any one.

When you enter a house, and the people begin to inquire about things which do not concern them, be careful. Do not be led away by their inquisitiveness. Do not think you must commit yourself, just because they ask you to. Your answer might help to injure another, while your silence would do no harm to any one. If the inquisitor should insist that you should answer, tell him that you would rather not say any thing about it, and, if possible, change the subject. It requires much watchfulness, wisdom, and grace, to keep from the inquisitiveness of the world, and not get ensnared by it. The result of it depends more upon the replier than the inquirer; for if one should make inquiries, and not receive an answer, the case would remain the same; no harm done, except on the part of the inquirer. But there is great danger of yielding to the designing treachery of the prying, inquisitive tongue. It is wily, crafty, sly, and ensnaring; and care should be taken not to yield to its influence, either by becoming inquisitive yourselves, or by responding to the inquisitor by telling him any thing he wishes to know.

All questions are not wrong, and we would not be understood as saying so. Kind questions, as to your health, and the health of your friends, your prosperity, christian experience, and many others are right; but the evil is in the insiduous prying into affairs, to have something to talk about in a slanderous manner. In this, we would be cautious, and avoid it as we would the serpent; for the inquisitor does a double wrong by sinning himself and leading others to betray trusts, or tell what ought not to be told. If I know any thing against one, it will not do another any good to know it [illegible], but may do much harm; and if I do not respond to the inquisitor, he may ask all the questions he is capable of asking, and he has indulged in a sin the effects of which he only will feel; but the [illegible] he receives an answer, then both parties become guilty, and will be sued to bring [illegible] to the injustice of their [illegible]

[illegible]

...know that [illegible] seek for knowledge [illegible] tiveness is to [illegible]

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY: AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME.

WHOLE NO. 560. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 15.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
17 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
I. C. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. W. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, L. C. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth, especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their final resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

AT THE GRAVE OF LAZARUS.

Brightly the sunshine rested on the land of Palestine,
Save when a white cloud flitting o'er its shadow, cast between.
And softly over hill and dale the gentle breezes blew,
While swiftly through the leafy bowers the bright-winged songsters flew.

Beside a grave in Bethany a mourning group had come,
Two sisters, and the trusted Friend who loved the buried one.
And others, too, were gathered there to share the mourner's grief,
With kindly words of sympathy to bring them some relief.

How had these gentle sisters, in affliction's trying hour,
Yearned for the presence of their Lord with his all-healing power.
And when he came, with sorrowing hearts and mournful voice they cried—
"Dear Master, if thou hadst been here my brother had not died."

And Jesus wept—his pitying heart with grief did overflow,
Mourning for one as brother dear and the sad sisters' woe;
And well they knew, as Martha said, whate'er he asked of Heaven,
In the All-Father's tenderness would graciously be given.

Oft had they heard how their dear Lord the widow's son did save,
Ere yet corruption had begun, or laid within the grave;
But their dear one had rested in the narrow house four days—
Oh! would he then again to life their darling brother raise?

But hark! that heavenly voice commands—"Roll ye away the stone!"
Quickly they hasten to obey the wise and holy One;
And lifting up his eyes to Heaven, "Dear Father," he did say,
"I thank thee; and I know that thou dost always hear me pray.

But for the people that stand by I said it unto thee,
If possibly they may believe that I am sent by thee."
Then with a voice whose wond'rous power thrilled through the listening ear,
"Lazarus, come forth!" the welcome sound the sleeping one doth hear.

And from the gloomy sepulchre he that was dead came forth,
Again to share with those he loved the varying scenes of earth.
But oh! to paint that scene sublime, the sisters' boundless joy,
The shrouded form, the wondering faces, should nobler forms employ.

But I have thought, when I have seen my loved ones borne away,
And laid within the silent house where comes no light of day,
If that dear voice again would speak, and life to them be given,
What joy, what gratitude would rise from earth [illegible] to heaven.

But they will live when Jesus comes again on earth to reign,
Yet not as Lazarus of yore, who lived to die again;
But when the summons shall go forth bidding the dead arise,
Our dear ones then will live again ever in Paradise.

Farmington, N. H. MARTHA D. [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

THE COMING KING.

"Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord."—Luke 19:38.

"For he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."—1 Cor. 15:25, 26. "Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world? Know ye not that we shall judge angels?"—1 Cor. 6:2, 3. "In the regeneration" ("times of restitution," Acts 3:21; of making "all things new," Rev. 21:5, God's promise, 2 Pet. 3:10, Isa. 65:17-25), "when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye (the twelve apostles) also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."—Matt. 19:28. When will he sit there? Ans. "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory, and before him shall be gathered all nations."—Matt. 25:31. But until then, he sits upon his Father's throne, in heaven, which is the throne of the universe. Heb. 1:3; Matt. 22:44. Proof. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame and am set down with my Father in his throne."—Rev. 3:21. "All power is given (unto me) (as "mediator," 1 Tim. 2:5) in heaven and in earth."—Matt. 28:18. [illegible] 19:28 reads, "Ye are they which have continued with me in my temptations; and I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me; that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel."—Luke 22:28-30. "And every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life."—Matt. 19:29. [illegible] "the world to come" (Heb. 2:5) [illegible] we inherit [illegible].

Proof. "And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers; even as I received of my Father."—Rev. 2:26, 27. "And when he was come near, he beheld the city, and wept over it, saying, If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes; for the days shall come upon thee, that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee around, and keep thee in on every side, and shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee; and they shall not leave in thee one stone upon another; because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation."—Luke 19:41-44. "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate; for I say unto you, Ye shall not see me henceforth (from this time forward) till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."—Matt. 23:38, 39. "And when ye (the disciples) shall see Jerusalem encompassed with armies, then know (understand) that the desolation thereof is nigh [illegible]. And they (the Jews) shall fall by the edge of the sword, and (they) shall be led away captive into all nations; and Jerusalem shall be trodden down by Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."—Luke 21:20-24.

"I say, then, hath God cast away his people? . . . God hath not cast away his people whom he foreknew. . . . I say, then, have they stumbled that they should fall? By no means; but by their fall the nations have salvation in order to excite them [Israel] to emulation. But if their fall is the wealth of the world, and their failure the wealth of the Gentiles, how much more will their full acceptance be? . . . For if their rejection be the reconciliation of the world [Kosmos], what is their reception, if not life from the dead?"—Rom. 11:1, 2, 11, 12, 15.—Emphatic Diaglott. [illegible] "Jesus had said, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you [Israel], and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof; and whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder. And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spake of them."—Matt. 21:43.

"No servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye (the disciples, Luke 16:1) cannot serve God and mammon."—Luke 16:13. Jesus had been contrasting "the unrighteous mammon," the riches of this world, with the "true riches," the knowledge, grace, love, peace and joy of God in Christ by the Holy Spirit here, with eternal life and glory in the world to come. Rev 3:17, 18, [illegible]. "Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked. I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see."—Rev. 3:17, 18.

"And the Pharisees also (as well as the disciples), who were covetous, heard all these things; and they derided him. And he said unto them, Ye are they who justify yourselves before men, but God knoweth your hearts; for that which is highly esteemed among men, is abomination in the sight of God. The law and the prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached." Since John's time, this had been promulgated.

Proof. "Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand (or, God's ROYAL MAJESTY has approached, or, is approaching); repent ye, and believe the gospel" (or, reform ye, and believe the good message).—Mark 1:14, 15. "Since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man presseth into it."—Luke 16:16. The Douay translation reads: "and every man uses violence towards it," or resists it. This is analogous to Matt. 11:12, "And from the days of John the Baptist until now, the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." "The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man who sowed good seed in his field." The sower of "the good seed is the Son of man; the field is the world—[kosmos]; the good seed are the children of the kingdom."—Matt. 13:24, 38. Again, there was a certain householder which planted a vineyard . . . and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country." This was done, when God made the first, or old covenant, with Israel by Moses in Sinai. "When the time of fruit drew near, he sent his servants [the prophets] to the husbandmen," and they "beat one, and killed another, and stoned another." Then "he sent other servants more than the first; and they did unto them likewise." [Killed the prophets, Matt. 23:37.] "Last of all he sent unto them his Son, saying, They will reverence my Son. But when the husbandmen—[the chief priests, and Pharisees, see verse 45]—saw the Son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance." The kingdom of heaven has been forcibly assailed, and the violent have seized it. "And they caught him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him. When the Lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen? Now, keeping in mind who they are, do not forget the answer, as its application will be after awhile. They say unto him, he will miserably destroy those wicked men."—Matt. 21:33-41.

"Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken; the God of glory appeared unto our father Abraham, when he was in Mesopotamia, . . . and said unto him, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I shall shew thee. [See Gen. 12:1-7.] . . . When his father was dead, he removed him into this land [Palestine, or the holy land]; but God gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on; yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him."—Acts 7:2-5. "He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ. And this I say, The covenant, which was confirmed before of God in Christ, the law, which was four hundred and thirty years after, cannot . . . make the promise of none effect; for if the inheritance [the land promised] be of the law, it is no more of promise; but God gave it to Abraham by promise."—Gal. 3:16-18. This was the inheritance, with all its appurtenances, rights, benefits, immunities and privileges thereunto belonging, that those wicked husbandmen seized upon, when the kingdom suffered violence, and the violent took it by force.

But let us notice one more prophetic scripture on this subject of violence to the kingdom, and then we will return to Luke 16:16. "Then gathered the chief priests and Pharisees a council, and said, What do we? for this man doeth many miracles. If we let him thus alone, all men will believe on him; and the Romans will come and take away both our place and nation. And one of them named Caiaphas, being the high priest that same year, said unto them, Ye know nothing at all, nor consider that it is expedient for us that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not."—John 11:47-50. G. W. STETSON.

Rutland, Vt.

For the World's Crisis.

WHO ARE LIBERAL?

BRO. GRANT:—In the Crisis there was an article upon "Beneficence and Liberality of the Advent People." Perhaps enough has been said, but I want to relate to you my experience upon this subject.

I have been identified from the first with the Freedmen's Aid Society. The first year's efforts were confined to the different societies, and of course I had only to act among my own people in soliciting aid. Though we were especially weak, and then in a torn and bruised condition, scattered and peeled, yet I received more encouragement, with less talk and reasoning, even though many of our people were prejudiced against missionary efforts, especially to the heathen, which led them to think this was a branch of the same root, which kept many from giving liberally, as they have since the enterprise is better known, and more fully comprehended.

The second year was laid out into districts, irrespective of sect or denomination. I verily thought I should do better among a class of people that were far more able to contribute; and I commenced full in the faith of a rich reward from my large [illegible] of duty; but, to my surprise, I walked day after day, talked volumes, reasoned with all the logic I was capable, but found only here and there one that had interest enough to treat my earnestness with common civility; and I venture to say, I heard more lies in the shape of excuses, than I had listened to for months, and after keeping me waiting, sometimes in the cold rain and snow, to come to the point, was turned off with the apology that they always gave; therefore they could not now. While our own people, that were not called upon, by reason of living in small tenements, and poor streets, came to me without asking, and contributed more liberally than those worth their hundreds and thousands outside.

My association, also, with the "Home of the Friendless," in this city, has brought me in another sphere, but the same class of benevolent enterprises, sustained hitherto by charity. I took a new circuit, where I had not been for the Freedmen, right in the heart of the city, thinking surely I should meet, not only with a warm reception, but the cause I was engaged in, would be a favorite object to give liberally. I found none, but thought it a worthy institution, "located" in our midst; that all knew of its merits; but again I received from more than three-quarters excuses, apologies, from able members of society, with the good wishes for the undertaking, which I considered equivalent to "be ye warmed and filled, notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body." I listened to the reports of the whole board of managers, which covers the whole limits of our city, and I found in every case my experience was theirs. Nevertheless, these enterprises will go forward, for the Lord will put it into the hearts of some that have means to contribute of their substance. It is a God-appointed work, and it must prosper and prevail.

The time has come to go "into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled;" but those that were first bidden will not be permitted to taste of the supper. That the whole world is given to selfishness, cannot be denied. There may be cases among us that partake of this spirit, but as far as my knowledge extends, our people are in advance of all others in point of liberality. There are noble hearts among us, though feeble in means, that know what it is to deny self, and obey the injunctions of the Savior, "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over." The cries of the poor have entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth, and their groaning and weeping is now being hushed, though thousands still remain in ignorance and degradation, for the want of sufficient means to carry forward the enterprise.

I hear from time to time, in dens and corners of pollution, some youthful hearts that desire to be redeemed from the thraldom of sin, but community looks down upon them, and they appear to say, "No man cares for my soul." My heart is often pained, at the recital of the histories of some of the inmates of our home, and in the jail in this city. The day is not far distant, when the hidden things of dishonesty will be brought to light; when many a simple-hearted youth, that is now cast out of society, and every endearing relation and tie severed, through the craft and deception of men that walk our streets, rolling in wealth, and affluence, looking with disdain upon the very objects whose ruin they have secured. What but the standard of truth will avail us any thing in that day? "I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick, and ye visited me; I was in prison, and ye came unto me." "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Faith is growing in this [illegible] and grows. There is every reason to look up, and lift up our heads and rejoice. The cup of iniquity is nearly run to the dregs, and the last great cry for mercy is now being heard. The messenger of peace is flying swiftly [illegible] the [illegible] the hearts of some to close in with the offers of mercy. Some in our ranks have been brought to the knowledge of the truth, and some backsliders reclaimed.

Bro. Hamb has been with us two weeks. I trust the work will not stop here. There is still much need of a refreshing from the presence of the Lord; though we are thankful for a few drops, which we hope is but a precursor of a more plentiful shower. Our meetings are instructive and profitable. Some of the church have got a laboring spirit, and a travail of soul. The promise is, when Zion travails, she shall bring forth. I have witnessed some deep prevailing prayer of late, and it has availed much. Quite a number are now seeking salvation, and express their determination to persevere. May the Lord reward us, not according to our deserts, but for his great love, wherewith he has loved us, in giving his Son to die for us. Eternity will be too short to praise and adore his holy name for his goodness to us, weak and sinful as we are. Without help from him, we shall utterly fail and perish. "But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ." B. G. LADD.

Springfield, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

SPIRITUALISM.—WHAT IS IT? CHRIST, OR ANTICHRIST?

NUMBER TWO.

The reader will excuse me if, before I proceed to the "development" of Spiritualism, I say a word about myself. He will also recognize in the following story, which otherwise is of no consequence, the key to the mysterious power of Spiritualism over the human mind, the power by which it seeks to govern mankind, and take possession of the world. If it shall seem like a romance, I can assure the reader that I have drawn it mildly and clearly within the facts.

In the winter of 1853, I was teaching a school, and boarded with a widow lady, whose two boys, lads of eight and ten, a sister, and two other boarders, made up the family. One evening, as I was occupied with a problem in arithmetic handed to me by one of my pupils, I heard upon the table, near which I sat, but did not touch, and which no one touched at the time, a peculiar rapping or knocking; or more properly, a snapping, for the sounds seemed more like the separating of the fibres of the wood, than concussive blows of one body upon another.

The sister of my landlady above mentioned, an intelligent and pious young woman, sat near the table, but did not touch it, nor did she appear to notice the raps. It was of course all a strange thing to me. I had read in the papers something of the "mysterious rappings" at Rochester, but I was not aware that they had got into Richmond, and into my boarding house. The next night, this young lady and myself were similarly situated with reference to the table, neither of us touching it; when I heard the rappings again, but louder, and longer continued, and I quietly suggested to the young woman, that she was a Spiritual medium. But she took this in high dudgeon, and, strangely for her, flew into a rage and began outrageously to abuse me.

She had known but one medium, and she of a disreputable character; and thinking her a sample of all the rest, she supposed that I had, or ought to have, the same opinion. But I was not wrong in my suggestion; the young woman was a medium, and one of the most powerful I have ever seen. It was not necessary for her to have contact with the object rapped upon, nor to exercise her will or desire. So absolute was the power over her, that she could offer no resistance to its operation; nor did it matter whether those present were skeptical, or believing; positive, or negative; pious, or profligate; the raps and other demonstrations went on regardless of the ordinary requirements of mediumship. Nor would they stop at her bidding. They kept up a continual thumping through the night, and the next morning came drumming at the breakfast table, much to the annoyance and disgust of the medium.

The next day the demonstrations continued, following the medium wherever she went about the house; and in the evening, while we were at tea, the rappers gave the table a blow underneath that nearly lifted it from the floor. Things were now getting somewhat serious. The house had been kept in an uproar for three days and nights, and I suggested to the medium that we had better contrive some way to talk with the rappers, and find out what they wanted; observing that if they wanted any thing we could consistently do, we would do it, and get rid of them. After a good deal of hesitation, she consented, and we sat at the table.

The first communication we received was to the effect that she must consent to become a medium, and devote herself to public exhibitions. She looked upon this as a great offence on the part of the spirits, and quitting the room declared she would never sit again. Now it was evident that this message did not come from the medium; and it was evident to me that it had been unthought of by myself; and I came to the necessary conclusion that it came from some unknown intelligence, but who, or what that unknown intelligence was, I confess, interested me not a little. I persuaded her to sit again. She did, and the same message was delivered, accompanied this time with a threat, that if we did not submit, that is, if she did not submit to become a public medium, and I did not consent to travel with her and superintend the exhibitions, they would continue to trouble us. But I gave heed to nothing they said, and for the family's sake was anxious to be rid of them. They, however, kept up their demonstrations, making the night hideous with their knockings and unearthly noises. Sleep was impossible, and we began to believe that we were really beset by evil spirits.

But a happy thought struck my landlady. She knew a man in town, who had the reputation of being able to charm away evil spirits, and she sent for him to come and operate his charm upon the rappers. The old man obeyed, not doubting his power to do all the woman desired. He knelt and prayed devoutly and fervently, for he was not a magician, with syrups, elixirs, and magic rods; but a christian, with faith and prayer. But the rappers gave him no heed, and kept on rapping, and otherwise manifesting, in utter obliviousness of his presence.

The old man did not take this proceeding as at all complimentary, and after a few sharp words of rebuke to the spirits, he unceremoniously left, and thus ended our attempt to exorcise the rappers. And as if to show us that they were aware of our failure, they became more bold, and increased the frequency and violence of their demonstrations. And, moreover, they introduced an entirely new kind of demonstration. That night, about midnight, the medium waked the whole house with a loud scream, saying that two spirits appeared at her bed-side, and told her if she did not consent to the arrangement they had proposed, they should appear to her again; and this she did at the same hour four nights in succession.

Now the question with me was, Was this a thing likely to be done by the medium? I thought not. It was impossible to conceive of any rational motive for the act. She was unfriendly to the supposed spirits, and held mediumship in utter detestation, and had she coined any manifestations for the occasion, they would not certainly have been exactly contrary to her feelings and desires; on the supposition of course that she was not insane.

By this time, now, something more than a week since the manifestations commenced, the medium was well nigh exhausted, and was reduced to a completely negative, or passive state. In this state she was seized by the invisible rappers, or by some strange power, and completely possessed. She was now not only willing to be a medium, but desired it, and forgetting that I had ever offended her in supposing her a medium, desired me to join her and travel over the country, and give exhibitions. She saw nothing now in Spiritualism disreputable, nothing mean in the mediums, and as to the spirits, they were the very pink of gentlemen, and they were, I think, all males.

Here was a complete and sudden transformation. I noted at the time, as well as I was able, and have reflected much since upon the peculiar intellectual and moral aspects of this sudden change. By nature she was prompt, decisive, and open-faced; under this sudden inspiration she was vacillating, weak, and subtle. She had naturally a large gift of the moral; but now, under the passion of the spirits, the moral does not appear at all. The intellectual is active, and the passional is under intense excitement; and thus were in exercise the passional and sensational, and not the reasonable and the spiritual. I must make a short story here, by saying that it was soon given out by the spirits, as a grave communication, that before departing on our rapping mission, we were to be married.

And here I must be allowed another word, and that is, that the first business of the spirits seems to be in almost every case to regulate our matrimonial affairs. At the second or third sitting, it generally happens that some of the party at the circle are mismated, that a husband has got the wrong wife, or a wife has got the wrong husband; and it is discovered that bachelors and maids are living in violation of the laws of nature; that there is by natural arrangement a bachelor for every maid, and a maid for every bachelor; that Spiritualists must see to it that marriage should not be in law, but in affinity; thus every where it comes matrimonially, and if it has any godly original, it can claim no higher credit than Cupid and Venus. But I shall have occasion by and by to speak of "Free love," and then I shall look somewhat more at length at the spirits and their doctrines upon this subject.

The medium was now seized with an uncontrollable rage of love. Cool and impassive in her original nature, she was now entirely the reverse. Her passion was the very frenzy of love. There was not the gentle sweetness that runs in true love, the mild flame that burns when a simple heart is on fire, there was not the quiet kindling of love, but a conflagration of love. There was not the coy shyness of native modesty, but a strange and unwomanly boldness, and vehemency of passion, exactly what we might expect from a clumsy imitator.

But how should I know that this was not all a nice little trick at love and match-making on the part of the medium? (for she was now turned of thirty, and would be naturally anxious about a husband.) I knew but one way to test it, and that I resolved to try.

The demonstrations had now become so frequent and so violent that they were a source of constant alarm and terror. The mysterious noises at Mrs. C.'s had got into the street, and were likely to become a theme for neighborhood gossip, and likely, of course, to involve the reputation of the family—the [illegible] of a respectable boarding house. And such was the great power of the German Con-[illegible] the question for me to settle was, whether all this proceeded of the will of the medium; whether she, by some unknown power, produced the phenomena, or permitted or encouraged them, or [illegible] produced by spirits through her; in short, whether what happened was by her contrivance or consent. And I set myself to find out two things,—whether she could control the raps; and if not, whether she would be a reliable medium for exhibition. So I told her frankly, if she would send the raps away out of the house for the night, I would send for a minister and be married in the morning. She took me at my word, seeming to have a doubt as to my sincerity, or the integrity of the rappers; and retiring at a late hour she knelt and thanked the spirits for the good fortune that would give her a husband the next day. But alas for her, it is not Fortuna, but Nemesis. It was not the spirit of unity, but the angel of discord. It was not truth we trusted in, but error; it was not God we had consulted with, but his enemy; and hence to show their contempt of our happiness and their word, and to [illegible] expected from them as the truth, and to show us that they were not angels of light, but spirits of darkness, they told us a lie, and went on rapping, even while their medium was at prayer; and, if possible, more furiously than they had done before. And this I had expected, but the medium had not; she believed them with all her heart.

I needed nothing more to convince me that we had not been imposed upon by any collusion or trick of the medium, and that the phenomena I had witnessed must be attributed to invisible beings; but of whom I knew nothing, except as I could judge them by their acts. They said they were the spirits of dead men, and had they established a character for truth in what I had known of them, I should have believed their story. But this, too, I shall discuss hereafter.

Meanwhile the medium remained unchanged. She had just the same faith in the spirits, and just the same desire to enter into their service, and was utterly oblivious of the fact that they had told us a falsehood. It seemed as if the purely moral instincts of her nature were in abeyance. Her judgment seemed to have forsaken her, and the controlling power seemed to have its residence merely in the passions. But I could not discover that she was under any purely vicious excitement, nor did I suppose the rappers were intent upon this for the mere purpose of mischief. They wanted proselytes, and had found in the medium an instrument for making them, and through her they were endeavoring to bring me under their influence.

I had hardly thought of it in the light of religion, nor was I able at all to get at its philosophy. I did not then, as now, see how straightforward and direct it seeks to invalidate the evidences of revealed religion; to overthrow the foundations of faith; to rebuild the throne of reason on the ruins of christianity; to set up thereon the idol of heathen philosophy, and restore in Christendom the worship of nature. Nor had the medium thought of it in the light of religion, though she was a pious member of the Methodist church. There was nothing in the phenomena to excite religious feelings. The faculties called into operation were marvelousness, fancy, and imagination—not meekness, faith, and humility; and though under its inspiration one might become a philosopher, it would be impossible to become a saint.

But the spirits did not give up the matrimonial arrangement, for the success of our apostleship, they said, would depend very much upon that. They expected me to take no notice of the falsehoods they had told, and went on rapping, persuading, planning, and advising, as if we held the most confidential relations. The arrangement, however, was not to be without substantial benefit, or as fashionable marrying people would say, without a "check," and the plot had sufficiently matured to bring this distinctly into view. So far beside herself had the medium become, that with her friends it was a matter of doubt or insanity; and to save her from the madhouse, her brother, a man of reputed wealth and influence, generously confided the happy secret to his sister, my landlady, that his check would be good to me the day after marriage; and besides, it may be well enough to say here, that the medium herself had a comfortable title in a well-to-do homestead. And these things I needed sadly. I was struggling bare-handed and alone to get an education, and had known more than once what it was not to know where the money was coming from to pay the next term bill; and to be lifted at once out of the drudgery of debt, and the fear of strikes and sheriffs, was [illegible] consummation devoutly to be wished.

But I was not by nature a lover of money, nor a maker of money; and I do not now remember the time that I ever saw a chance to make money, but the currents all run another way. I was always at the debate, but never at the auction; and if boys at school sold peanuts and apples, I was of boys a [illegible]. I thought money good for nothing but to spend, and realized had no ability to make property. I had scribbled [illegible], had read Emerson, something of Swedenborg, and was living mainly upon the impracticable side of life; and yet I was a student in theology, tugging away at the knotty parts of Calvinism as best I could. [illegible] all my brethren advised me to this, [illegible] and I had come to believe that the Lord had also; but nothing of this was of my choice. The clergy I had seen were men of not much consideration in the world, generally illiterate and poor, spiritually supported by [illegible] [illegible] and the ministry was [illegible] place in the world. But all this came of [illegible] ignorance and vanity. I forgot that the gospel was first preached by fishermen and tax-gatherers, and that men receive the divine life into their hearts, and not their heads. It was not enough in the Divine Spirit to know that a minister should be meek, humble, and lowly of heart; gentle, kind, forgiving, merciful, obedient, ready to be despised, and, if need be, to be offered up as was his Divine Master.

But the reader would like to know what came of all this, to the medium, and how I came myself at length into Spiritualism, and how I came out of it; and in my next I will tell him. H. S. CHAPMAN.

For the World's Crisis.

INQUISITIVENESS.

There are two sorts of inquisitiveness. One is decidedly wrong; the other invariably right. They are sinful and righteous inquisitiveness. In one case, people are likely to be too inquisitive; in the other, not inquisitive enough. In the first case, the inquisitiveness arises from the excitement of curiosity. If people get their curiosity excited, they are very likely to satisfy it by making inquiries, no matter whether they are concerned or not; whether about themselves or others, every thing you know they want to know. This is wrong. It often mortifies the sensitive feelings of those with whom they are associated. There is probably no one who wishes to make all his thoughts and purposes known. He may be honest, upright, and open-hearted (which is impossible if he tells all he knows, and a little more), and still have secrets that he does not care to communicate to every one. None but those who have a curiosity to satisfy will try to bring him out of his secrecy, or what they consider as such, and they are the very persons who will tell it to others, and perhaps not mind adding a few words in order to increase its force; for a story is more likely to gain their feet, especially if it is calculated to injure any one.

When you enter a house, and the people begin to inquire about things which do not concern them, be careful. Do not be led away by their inquisitiveness. Do not think you must commit yourself, just because they ask you to. Your answer might help to injure another, while your silence would do no harm to any one. If the inquisitor should insist that you should answer, tell him that you would rather not say any thing about it, and, if possible, change the subject. It requires much watchfulness, wisdom, and grace, to keep from the inquisitiveness of the world, and not get ensnared by it. The result of it depends more upon the replies than the inquirer; for if one should make inquiries, and not receive an answer, the case would remain the same; no harm done, except on the part of the inquirer. But there is great danger of yielding to the designing treachery of the prying, inquisitive tongue. It is wily, crafty, sly, and ensnaring; and care should be taken not to yield to its influence, either by becoming inquisitive yourselves, or by responding to the inquisitor by telling him any thing he wishes to know.

All questions are not wrong, and we would not be understood as saying so. Kind questions, as to your health, and the health of your friends, your prosperity, christian experience, and many others are right; but the evil is in the insiduous prying into affairs, to have something to talk about in a slanderous manner. In this, we would be cautious, and avoid it as we would the serpent; for the inquisitor does a double wrong by sinning himself and leading others to betray trusts, or tell what ought not to be told. If I know any thing against one, it will not do another any good to know it as a story, but may do much harm; and if I do not respond to the inquisitor, he may ask all the questions he is capable of asking, and he has indulged in a sin the effects of which he only will feel; but the moment he receives an answer, then both parties become guilty, and will be sure to bring those concerning whom the inquiry is made to [illegible] and thus cause hard feelings between parties, which will perhaps increase to mountains of wrath, and crush all concerned, so covering them with its influence that they will perish forever. God help us to have our lips sealed from such inquisitiveness as this.

Now for the righteous inquisitiveness. We know that inquisitiveness is a disposition to seek for knowledge. Then righteous inquisitiveness is to seek for right knowledge. God has commanded us to be inquisitive, i. e., eager in the pursuit of right wisdom. Strive to gain it by inquiring into the truths of his word, and seeking to know its peculiar character and will concerning us, and by examining our own hearts to see if there be any thing in them that is not in accordance with his will. No one can be righteous unless he is anxious to be right in every thing; for righteousness is a conformation to the standard of right. But what is the standard of right? How are we to know? are we to ask our understanding, and let that be our only guide? No! Our understanding would be a poor guide, unless we had the grace of God to enlighten it. Then how are we to know? By inquiring of God, for he alone knows the way of righteousness. It is more than the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] breadth, height and depth; and we may learn it by being inquisitive. The more inquisitive we are, the more light and knowledge we shall have; for God says, "ask (be inquisitive) and ye shall receive."

Then, if we wish to acquire knowledge, we must "ask" for it; and then ask for wisdom that we may make the right exercise of the knowledge; for of what use is knowledge [illegible] know the commandments, but [illegible]

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME.

WHOLE NO. 560. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 15.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
I. C. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. D. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their final resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

AT THE GRAVE OF LAZARUS.

Brightly the sunshine rested on the land of Palestine,
Save when a white cloud flitting o'er its shadow cast between.
And softly over hill and dale the gentle breezes blew,
While swiftly through the leafy bowers the bright-winged songsters flew.
Beside a grave in Bethany a mourning group had come,
Two sisters, and the trusted Friend who loved the buried one.
And others, too, were gathered there to share the mourner's grief,
With kindly words of sympathy to bring them some relief.
How had these gentle sisters, in affliction's trying hour,
Yearned for the presence of their Lord with his all-healing power.
And when he came, with sorrowing hearts and mournful voice they cried—
"Dear Master, if thou hadst been here my brother had not died."
And Jesus wept—his pitying heart with grief did overflow,
Mourning for one as brother dear and the sad sisters' woe.
And well they knew, as Martha said, whate'er he asked of Heaven,
In the All-Father's tenderness would graciously be given.
Oft had they heard how their dear Lord the widow's son did save,
Ere yet corruption had begun, or laid within the grave;
But their dear one had rested in the narrow house four days—
Oh! would he them again to life their darling brother raise?
But hark! that heavenly voice commands—"Roll ye away the stone!"
Quickly they hasten to obey the wise and holy One;
And lifting up his eyes to Heaven, "Dear Father," he did say,
"I thank thee, and I know that thou dost always hear me pray.
But for the people that stand by I said it unto thee,
If possibly they may believe that I am sent by thee."
Then with a voice whose wond'rous power thrilled through the listening ear,
"Lazarus, come forth!" the welcome sound the sleeping one doth hear,
And from the gloomy sepulchre he that was dead came forth,
Again to share with those he loved the varying scenes of earth.
But oh! to paint that scene sublime, the sisters' boundless joy,
The shrouded form, the wondering faces, should nobler forms employ.
But I have thought, when I have seen my loved ones borne away,
And laid within the silent house where comes no light of day,
If that dear voice again would speak, and life to them be given,
What joy, what gratitude would rise from every pure heart to heaven.
But they will live when Jesus comes again on earth to reign.
Yet not as Lazarus of yore, who lived to die again;
But when the summons shall go forth bidding the dead arise,
Our dear ones then will live again ever in Paradise.

Farmington, N. H. MARTHA D. HOMAN.

For the World's Crisis.

THE COMING KING.

"Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord."—Luke 19:38.

"For he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."—1 Cor. 15: 25, 26. "Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world? Know ye not that we shall judge angels?"—1 Cor. 6: 2, 3. "In the regeneration" ("times of restitution," Acts 3: 21; of making "all things new," Rev. 21: 5, God's promise, 2 Pet. 3: 13, Isa. 65: 17–25), "when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye (the twelve apostles) also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."—Matt. 19: 28. When will he sit there? Ans. "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory, and before him shall be gathered all nations."—Matt. 25: 31. But until then, he sits upon his Father's throne, in heaven, which is the throne of the universe. Heb. 1: 3; Matt. 22: 44. Proof. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame and am set down with my Father in his throne."—Rev. 3: 21. [illegible] in heaven and in earth."—Matt. 28: 18. [illegible] 19: 28 reads, "Ye are they which have continued with me in my temptations; and I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me; that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel."—Luke 22: 28–30. [illegible] father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundred fold, and shall inherit everlasting life."—Matt. 19: 29. [illegible] to come" (Heb. 2: 5) [illegible].

Proof. "And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers; even as I received of my Father."—Rev. 2: 26, 27. "And when he was come near, he beheld the city, and wept over it, saying, If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes; for the days shall come upon thee, that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee around, and keep thee in on every side, and shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee; and they shall not leave in thee one stone upon another; because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation."—Luke 19: 41–44. "Behold, your house is left unto you desolate; for I say unto you, Ye shall not see me henceforth (from this time forward) till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."—Matt. 23: 38, 39. "And when ye (the disciples) shall see Jerusalem encompassed with armies, then know (understand) that the desolation thereof is nigh. ... And they (the Jews) shall fall by the edge of the sword, and (they) shall be led away captive into all nations; and Jerusalem shall be trodden down by Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."—Luke 21: 20–24.

"I say, then, hath God cast away his people? ... God hath not cast away his people which he foreknew. ... I say, then, have they stumbled that they should fall? By no means; but by their fall the nations have salvation in order to excite them (Israel) to emulation. But if their fall is the wealth of the world, and their failure the wealth of the Gentiles, how much more will their full acceptance be? ... For if their rejection be the reconciliation of the world (Kosmos), what is their reception, if not life from the dead?"—Rom. 11: 1, 2, 11, 12, 15.—Emphatic Diaglott. Further, "Jesus had said, 'The kingdom of God shall be taken from you (Israel), and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof; and whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder.' And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spake of them."—Matt. 21: 43.

"No servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye (the disciples, Luke 16: 1) cannot serve God and mammon."—Luke 16: 13. Jesus had been contrasting "the unrighteous mammon," the riches of this world, with the "true riches," the knowledge, grace, love, peace and joy of God in Christ by the Holy Spirit here, with eternal life and glory in the world to come. Rev 16: 11. Proof.—"Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked. I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see."—Rev. 3: 17, 18.

"And the Pharisees also (as well as the disciples), who were covetous, heard all these things; and they derided him. And he said unto them, Ye are they who justify yourselves before men, but God knoweth your hearts; for that which is highly esteemed among men, is abomination in the sight of God. The law and the prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached." Since John's time, this had been promulgated.

PROOF. "Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand (or, God's ROYAL MAJESTY has approached, or, is approaching); repent ye, and believe the gospel" (or, reform ye, and believe the good message).—Mark 1: 14, 15. "Since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man presseth into it."—Luke 16: 16. The Douay translation reads; "and every man uses violence towards it," or resists it. This is analogous to Matt. 11: 12. "And from the days of John the Baptist until now, the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." "The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man who sowed good seed in his field." The sower of "the good seed is the Son of man; the field is the world—(kosmos); the good seed are the children of the kingdom."—Matt. 13: 24, 38. Again, there was a certain householder which planted a vineyard, ... and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country." This was done, when God made the first, or old covenant, with Israel by Moses in Sinai. "When the time of fruit drew near, he sent his servants [the prophets] to the husbandmen," and they "beat one, and killed another, and stoned another." "Then he sent other servants, more than at first; and they did unto them likewise." [Killed the prophets, Matt. 23: 37.] "Last of all he sent unto them his Son, saying, They will reverence my Son. But when the husbandmen—[the chief priests and Pharisees, see verse 45]—saw the Son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance." The kingdom of heaven has been forcibly assailed, and the violent have seized it. "And they caught him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him. When the Lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen?" Now, keeping in mind who they are, do not forget the answer, as its application will be after awhile. "They say unto him, he will miserably destroy those wicked men."—Matt. 21: 33–41.

"Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken; the God of glory appeared unto our father Abraham, when he was in Mesopotamia, ... and said unto him, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I shall shew thee." [See Gen. 12: 1–7.] "When his father was dead, he removed him into this land" [Palestine, or the holy land]; "but God gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on; yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him."—Acts 7: 2–5. "He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of ONE, And to thy seed, which is Christ. And this I say, The covenant, which was confirmed before of God in Christ, the law, which was four hundred and thirty years after, cannot ... make the promise of none effect; for if the inheritance [the land promised] be of the law, it is no more of promise; but God gave it to Abraham by promise."—Gal. 3: 16–18. This was the inheritance, with all its appurtenances, rights, benefits, immunities and privileges thereunto belonging, that those wicked husbandmen seized upon, which the kingdom suffered violence, and the violent took it by force.

But let us notice one more prophetic scripture on this subject of violence to the kingdom, and then we will return to Luke 16: 16. "Then gathered the chief priests and Pharisees a council, and said, What do we? for this man doeth many miracles. If we let him thus alone, all men will believe on him; and the Romans will come and take away both our place and nation. And one of them named Caiaphas, being the high priest that same year, said unto them, Ye know nothing at all, nor consider that it is expedient for us that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not."—John 11: 47–50. G. W. STETSON.

Rutland, Vt.

For the World's Crisis.

WHO ARE LIBERAL?

BRO. GRANT:—In a late Crisis was an article upon "Benevolence and Liberality of the Advent People." Perhaps enough has been said; but I want to relate to you my experience upon this subject.

I have been identified from the first with the Freedmen's Aid Society. The first year's efforts were confined to the different societies, and of course I had only to act among my own people in soliciting aid. Though we were especially weak, and then in a torn and bruised condition, scattered and peeled, yet I received more encouragement, with less talk and reasoning, even though many of our people were prejudiced against missionary efforts, especially to the heathen, which led them to think this was a branch of the same root, which kept many from giving liberally, as they have since the enterprise is better known, and more fully comprehended.

The second year was laid out into districts, irrespective of sect or denomination. I verily thought I should do better among a class of people that were far more able to contribute; and I commenced full in the faith of a rich reward from my large field of duty; but, to my surprise, I walked day after day, talked volumes, reasoned with all the logic I was capable, but found only here and there one that had interest enough to treat my earnestness with common civility; and I venture to say, I heard more lies in the shape of excuses, than I had listened to for months, and after keeping me waiting, sometimes in the cold rain, and snow, to come to the point, was turned off with the apology that they always gave; therefore they could not now. While our own people, that were not called upon, by reason of living in small tenements, and poor streets, came to me without asking, and contributed more liberally than those worth their hundreds and thousands outside.

My association, also, with the "Home of the Friendless," in this city, has brought me in another sphere, but the same class of benevolent enterprises, sustained hitherto by charity. I took a new circuit, where I had not been for the Freedmen, right in the heart of the city, thinking surely I should meet, not only with a warm reception, but the cause I was engaged in, would be a favorite object to give liberally. I found none, but thought it a worthy institution, located in our midst; that all knew of its merits; but again I received from more than three-quarters excuses, apologies, from able members of society, with the good wishes for the undertaking, which I considered equivalent to "be ye warmed and filled, notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body." I listened to the reports of the whole board of managers, which covers the whole limits of our city, and I found in every case my experience was theirs. Nevertheless, these enterprises will go forward, for the Lord will put it into the hearts of some that have means to contribute of their substance. It is a God-appointed work, and it must prosper and prevail.

The time has come to go "into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled;" but those that were first bidden will not be permitted to taste of the supper. That the whole world is given to selfishness, cannot be denied. There may be cases among us that partake of this spirit, but as far as my knowledge extends, our people are in advance of all others in point of liberality. There are noble hearts among us, though feeble in means, that know what it is to deny self, and obey the injunctions of the Savior, "Give and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down and shaken together, and running over." The cries of the poor have entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth, and their groaning and weeping is now being hushed, though thousands still remain in ignorance and degradation, for the want of sufficient means to carry forward the enterprise.

I hear from time to time, in dens and corners of pollution, some youthful hearts that desire to be redeemed from the thraldom of sin; but community looks down upon them, and they appear to say, "No man cares for my soul." My heart is often pained, at the recital of sad histories of some of the inmates of our home, and in the jail in this city. The day is not far distant, when the hidden things of dishonesty will be brought to light; when many a simple-hearted youth, that is now cast out of society, and every endearing relation and tie severed, through the craft and deception of men that walk our streets, rolling in wealth, and affluence, looking with disdain upon the very objects whose ruin they have secured. What but the standard of truth will avail us any thing in that day—"I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick, and ye visited me; I was in prison, and ye came unto me. ... Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Faith is nearing it last sight and groaneth. There is every reason to look up, and lift up our heads and rejoice. The cup of iniquity is nearly full to the dregs, and the last great cry for mercy is now being heard. The messengers of peace are flying swiftly thro' the [illegible] the hearts of some to close in with the offers of mercy. Some in our ranks have been brought to the knowledge of the truth, and some backsliders reclaimed.

Bro. Hook has been with us two weeks. I trust the work will not stop here. There is still much need of a refreshing from the presence of the Lord; though we are thankful for a few drops, which we hope is but a precursor of a more plentiful shower. Our meetings are instructive and profitable. Some of the church have got a laboring spirit, and a travail of soul. The promise is, when Zion travails, she shall bring forth. I have witnessed some deep prevailing prayer of late, and it has availed much. Quite a number are now seeking salvation, and express their determination to persevere. May the Lord reward us, not according to our deserts, but for his great love, wherewith he has loved us, in giving his Son to die for us. Eternity will be too short to praise and adore his holy name for his goodness to us, weak and sinful as we are. Without help from Him, we shall utterly fail and perish. "But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ." B. G. LADD.

Springfield, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

SPIRITUALISM.—WHAT IS IT? CHRIST, OR ANTICHRIST?

NUMBER TWO.

The reader will excuse me if, before I proceed to the "development" of Spiritualism, I say a word about myself. He will also recognize in the following story, which otherwise is of no consequence, the key to the mysterious power of Spiritualism over the human mind, the power by which it seeks to govern mankind, and take possession of the world. If it shall seem like a romance, I can assure the reader that I have drawn it mildly and clearly within the facts.

In the winter of 1853, I was teaching a school, and boarded with a widow lady, whose two boys, lads of eight and ten, a sister, and two other boarders, made up the family. One evening, as I was occupied with a problem in arithmetic handed to me by one of my pupils, I heard upon the table, near which I sat, but did not touch, and which no one touched at the time, a peculiar rapping or knocking; or more properly, a snapping, for the sounds seemed more like the separating of the fibres of the wood, than concussive blows of one body upon another.

The sister of my landlady above mentioned, an intelligent and pious young woman, sat near the table, but did not touch it, nor did she appear to notice the raps. It was of course all a strange thing to me. I had read in the papers something of the "mysterious rappings" at Rochester, but I was not aware that they had got into Richmond, and into my boarding house. The next night, this young lady and myself were similarly situated with reference to the table, neither of us touching it, when I heard the rappings again, but louder, and longer continued, and I quietly suggested to the young woman, that she was a Spiritual medium. But she took this in high dudgeon, and, strangely for her, flew into a rage and began outrageously to abuse me.

She had known but one medium, and she of a disreputable character, and thinking her a sample of all the rest, she supposed that I had, or ought to have, the same opinion. But I was not wrong in my suggestion; the young woman was a medium, and one of the most powerful I have ever seen. It was not necessary for her to have contact with the object rapped upon, nor to exercise her will or desire. So absolute was this power over her, that she could offer no resistance to its operation; nor did it matter whether those present were skeptical, or believing; positive, or negative; pious, or profligate; the raps and other demonstrations went on regardless of the ordinary requirements of mediumship. Nor would they stop at her bidding. They kept up a continual thumping through the night, and the next morning came drumming at the breakfast table, much to the annoyance and disgust of the medium.

The next day the demonstrations continued, following the medium wherever she went about the house; and in the evening, while we were at tea, the rappers gave the table a blow underneath that nearly lifted it from the floor. Things were now getting somewhat serious. The house had been kept in an uproar for three days and nights, and I suggested to the medium that we had better contrive some way to talk with the rappers, and find out what they wanted; observing that if they wanted any thing we could consistently do, we would do it and get rid of them. After a good deal of hesitation, she consented, and we sat at the table.

The first communication we received was to the effect that she must consent to become a medium, and devote herself to public exhibitions. I [illegible] upon this as a great [illegible] on the part of the spirits, and quitting the room declared she would never sit again. Now it was evident that the message did not come from the medium; and it was evident to me that it had not been thought of by myself; and I was therefore [illegible] conclusion that it came from some unknown intelligence; but who, or what that unknown intelligence was [illegible] SAMUEL CURRY. New York.

"THE SECOND DEATH."

[illegible] pages, from London, England, entitled "The [illegible]" I confess it interested me not a little. I persuaded her to sit again. She did, and the same message was delivered, accompanied this time with a threat, that if we did not submit, that is, if she did not submit to become a public medium, and I did not consent to travel with her and superintend the exhibitions, they would continue to trouble us. But I gave heed to nothing they said, and for the family's sake was anxious to be rid of them. They however kept up their demonstrations, making the night hideous with their knockings and unearthly noises. Sleep was impossible, and we began to believe that we were really beset by evil spirits.

But a happy thought struck my landlady. She knew a man in town, who had the reputation of being able to charm away evil spirits, and she sent for him to come and operate his charm upon the rappers. The old man obeyed, not doubting his power to do all the woman desired. He knelt and prayed, devoutly and fervently, for he was not a magician, with sycophantic charms and magical rules, but a christian, with faith and prayer. But the rappers gave him no heed, and kept up rapping, and otherwise manifesting, in utter obliviousness of his presence.

The old man did not take this proceeding as at all complimentary, and after a few sharp words of rebuke to the spirits, he unceremoniously left, and thus ended our attempt to exorcise the rappers. And as if to show us that they were aware of our failure, they became more bold, and increased the frequency and violence of their demonstrations. And, moreover, they introduced an entirely new kind of demonstration. That night, about midnight, the medium waked the whole house with a loud scream, saying that two spirits appeared at her bed-side, and told her if she did not consent to the arrangement they had proposed, they should appear to her again; and this she did at the same hour four nights in succession.

Now the question with me was, Was this a thing likely to be done by the medium? I thought not. It was impossible to conceive of any rational motive for the act. She was unfriendly to the supposed spirits, and held mediumship in utter detestation, and had she coined any manifestations for the occasion, they would not certainly have been exactly contrary to her feelings and desires; on the supposition of course that she was not insane.

By this time, now something more than a week since the manifestations commenced, the medium was well-nigh exhausted, and was reduced to a completely negative, or passive state. In this state she was seized by the invisible rappers, or by some strange power, and completely possessed. She was now not only willing to be a medium, but desired it, and forgetting that I had ever offended her in supposing her a medium, desired me to join her and travel over the country, and give exhibitions. She saw nothing now in Spiritualism disreputable, nothing mean in the mediums, and as to the spirits, they were the very pink of gentlemen, and they were, I think, all males.

Here was a complete and sudden transformation. I noted at the time, as well as I was able, and have reflected much since upon the peculiar intellectual and moral aspects of this sudden change. By nature she was prompt, decisive, and open-faced; under this sudden inspiration she was vacillating, weak, and subtile. She had naturally a large gift of the moral; but now, under the passion of the spirits, the moral does not appear at all. The intellectual is active, and the passional is under intense excitement, and thus were in exercise the passional and emotional, and not the reasonable and the spiritual. I must make a short story here, by saying that it was now given out by the spirits, in a grave communication, that before departing on our rapping mission, we were to be married.

And here I must be allowed another word, and that is, that the first business of the spirits seems to be in almost every case to regulate our matrimonial affairs. At the second or third sitting, it generally happens that some of the party at the circle are mismated, that a husband has got the wrong wife, or a wife has got the wrong husband; and it is discovered that bachelors and maids are living in violation of the laws of nature; that there is by natural arrangement a bachelor for every maid, and a maid for every bachelor; that Spiritualists must see to it, that marriage should not be in law, but in affinity; thus every where it comes matrimonially, and if it has any godly original, it can claim no higher credit than Cupid and Venus. But I shall have occasion by and by to speak of "Free love," and then I shall look somewhat more at length after the spirits and their doctrines upon this subject.

The medium was now seized with an uncontrollable rage of love. Cool and impassive in her original nature, she was now entirely the reverse. Her passion was the very frenzy of love. There was not the gentle sweetness that runs in true love, the mild flame, that burns when a simple heart is on fire; there was not the quiet kindling of love, but a conflagration of flame. There was no chilling shyness of native modesty, but a strange and unwomanly boldness, and vehemency of passion, exactly what we might expect from a clumsy imitator.

But how should I know that this was not all a nice little trick at love and match-making on the part of the medium? (for she was now turned of thirty, and would be naturally anxious about a husband.) I knew but one way to test it, and that I resolved to try.

The demonstrations had now become so frequent and so violent that they were a source of constant alarm and terror. The mysterious noises at Mrs. C.'s had got into the street, and were likely to become a theme for neighborhood gossip, and this, of course, involved the reputation of the family—the fair [illegible] a respectable boarding house. [illegible]

We had agreed to leave a [illegible] the question for me to settle was, whether all this proceeded in the will of the medium; whether she, by some unknown power, produced the phenomena, or permitted or encouraged them, or the spiritual impulse through her; in short, whether what happened was by her contrivance or design; and I set myself to find out two things:—whether she could control the raps; and if not, whether she would be a reliable medium for exhibition. So I told her frankly, if she would send the raps away out of the house for the night, I would send for a minister and be married in the morning. She took me at my word, seeming to have a doubt as to my sincerity, or the integrity of the rappers; and retiring at a late hour she knelt and thanked the spirits for the good fortune that would give her a husband the next day. But alas for her, it is not Fortune, but Nemesis. It was not the spirit of unity, but the angel of discord. It was not truth we trusted in, but error; it was not God we had consulted with; but his enemy; and hence to show their contempt of our happiness and their word, and to [illegible] expected from them as the truth, and to show us that they were not angels of light, but spirits of darkness, they told us a lie, and went on rapping, even while the medium was at prayer, and, if possible, more furiously than they had done before. And this I had expected, but the medium had not; she believed them with all her heart.

I needed nothing more to convince me that we had not been imposed upon by any collusion or trick of the medium, and that the phenomena I had witnessed must be attributed to invisible beings; but of whom I knew nothing, except as I could judge them by their acts. They said they were the spirits of dead men, and had they established a character for truth in what I had known of them, I should have believed their story. But this, too, I shall discuss hereafter.

Meanwhile the medium remained unchanged. She had just the same faith in the spirits, and just the same desire to enter into their service, and was utterly oblivious of the fact that they had told us a falsehood. It seemed as if the purely moral instincts of her nature were in abeyance. Her judgment seemed to have forsaken her, and the controlling power seemed to have its residence merely in the passions. But I could not discover that she was under any purely vicious excitement, nor did I suppose the rappers were intent upon this for the mere purpose of mischief. They wanted proselytes, and had found in the medium an instrument for making them, and through her they were endeavoring to bring me under their influence.

I had hardly thought of it in the light of religion, nor was I able at all to get at its philosophy. I did not then, as now, see how straightforward and direct it seeks to invalidate the evidences of revealed religion; to overthrow the foundations of faith; to rebuild the throne of reason on the ruins of christianity; to set up thereon the idol of heathen philosophy, and restore in Christendom the worship of nature. Nor had the medium thought of it in the light of religion, though she was a pious member of the Methodist church. There was nothing in the phenomena to excite religious feelings. The faculties called into operation were marvelousness, fancy, and imagination—not meekness, faith, and humility; and though under its inspiration one might become a philosopher, it would be impossible to become a saint.

But the spirits did not give up the matrimonial arrangement, for the success of our apostleship, they said, would depend very much upon that. They expected me to take no notice of the falsehoods they had told, and went on rapping, serenading, planning and advising, as if we held the most confidential relations. The arrangement, however, was not to be without substantial benefit, or as fashionable marrying people would say, without a "check;" and the plot had sufficiently matured to bring this distinctly into view. So far beside herself had the medium become, that with her friends it was a matter of doubt or insanity; and to save her from the madhouse, her brother, a man of reputed wealth and influence, generously confided the happy secret to his sister, my landlady, that his check would be good to me the day after marriage; and besides, it may be well enough to say here, that the medium herself had a comfortable title to a well-to-do homestead. And these things I needed sadly. I was struggling bare-handed and alone to get an education, and had known more than once what it was not to know where the money was coming from to pay the next term bill; and to be lifted at once out of the drudgery of debt, and the fear of writs and sheriffs, was indeed [illegible].

But I was not, by nature, a lover of money, nor a maker of money; and I do not now remember the time that I ever saw a chance to make money, but the currents all ran another way. I was always in the current, but never at the "sources," while at school [illegible] business and capital, I spent all beyond what I thought money good for nothing [illegible] spend, and really I had no ability to earn property. I had scribbled some [illegible] read Emerson, something of Swedenborg, and was living mainly upon the impracticable side of life; and yet I was a student in theology, tugging away at the knotty parts of Calvinism as best I could.

[illegible] all my brethren advised me to this business, and I had come to believe that the Lord had also; but nothing of this was of my choice. The clergy I had seen were men of not much consideration in the world, generally illiterate and poorly [illegible] a place in the world. But all this came of [illegible] indifference and vanity. I forgot that the apostles [illegible]

[illegible] may perhaps be excellent queries in that direction [illegible] first [illegible] gatherers, and then receive the divine Spirit into their hearts, and not their heads. It was not enough in the Divine Spirit to know that a minister should be meek, humble, and lowly of heart; gentle, kind, forgiving, merciful, obedient, ready to be despised, and, if need be, to be offered up as was his Divine Master.

But the reader would like to know what came of all this to the medium, and how I came myself at length into Spiritualism and how I came out of it; and in my next I will tell him. M. G. CHAPMAN.

For the World's Crisis.

INQUISITIVENESS.

There are two sorts of inquisitiveness. One is decidedly wrong, the other invariably right. They are sinful and righteous inquisitiveness. In one case, people are likely to be too inquisitive; in the other, not inquisitive enough. In the first case, the inquisitiveness arises from the excitement of curiosity. If people get their curiosity excited, they are very likely to satisfy it by making inquiries, no matter whether they are concerned or not; whether about themselves or others, every thing you know they want to know. This is wrong. It often mortifies the sensitive feelings of those with whom they are associated. There is probably no one who wishes to make all his thoughts and purposes known. He may be honest, upright, and open-hearted (which is impossible if he tells all he knows, and a little more), and still have secrets that he does not care to communicate to every one. None but those who have a curiosity to satisfy will try to bring him out of his secrecy, or what they consider as such, and they are the very persons who will tell it to others, and perhaps not mind adding a few words in order to increase its force; for a story is more likely to gain their [illegible], especially if it is calculated to injure any one.

When you enter a house, and the people begin to inquire about things which do not concern them, be careful. Do not be led away by their inquisitiveness. Do not think you must commit yourself, just because they ask you to. Your answer might help to injure another, while your silence would do no harm to any one. If the inquisitor should insist that you should answer, tell him that you would rather not say any thing about it, and, if possible, change the subject. It requires much watchfulness, wisdom, and grace, to keep from the inquisitiveness of the world, and not get ensnared by it. The result of it depends more upon the replies than the inquirer; for if one should make inquiries, and not receive an answer, the case would remain the same; no harm done, except on the part of the inquirer. But there is great danger of yielding to the designing treachery of the prying, inquisitive tongue. It is wily, crafty, sly, and ensnaring; and care should be taken not to yield to its influence, either by becoming inquisitive yourselves, or by responding to the inquisitor by telling him any thing he wishes to know.

All questions are not wrong, and we would not be understood as saying so. Kind questions, as to your health, and the health of your friends, your prosperity, christian experience, and many others are right; but the evil is in the insidious prying into affairs, to have something to talk about in a slanderous manner. In this, we would be cautious, and avoid it as we would the serpent; for the inquisitor does a double wrong by sinning himself and leading others to betray trusts, or tell what ought not to be told. If I know any thing against one, it will not do another any good to know it as news, but may do much harm; and if I do not respond to the inquisitor, he may ask all the questions he is capable of asking, and he has indulged in a sin the effects of which he only will feel; but the moment he receives an answer, then both parties become guilty, and will be sure to bring [illegible] to the injustice of their judgments, and thus cause hard feelings between parties, which will perhaps increase to mountains of wrath, and [illegible], so severing them with [illegible] that they will perish forever. God help us to keep our lips closed from such inquisitiveness as this.

Now for the righteous inquisitiveness. We know that inquisitiveness is a disposition to seek for knowledge. Then righteous inquisitiveness is to seek for right knowledge. God has commanded us to be inquisitive, i. e., eager in the pursuit of right wisdom. Strive to gain it by inquiring into the truths of his word, and seeking to know his peculiar character and will concerning us, and by examining our own hearts to see if there be any thing in them that is not in accordance with his will. No one can be righteous unless he is anxious to be right in every thing; for righteousness is a conformation to the standard of right. But what is the standard of right? How are we to know? are we to ask our understanding, and let that be our only guide? No! Our understanding would be a poor guide, unless we had the grace of God to enlighten it. Then how are we to know? By inquiring of God, for he alone knows the way of righteousness. It is more than the [illegible] the Great Eternal; his knowledge its length and breadth, heighth and depth; and we may learn it by being inquisitive. The more inquisitive we are, the more light and knowledge we shall have; for God says, "ask (be inquisitive) and ye shall receive."

Then, if we wish to acquire knowledge, we must "ask" for it; and then ask for wisdom that we may make the right exercise of the knowledge; for of what use is knowledge [illegible] know the commandments, but [illegible]

do them. We know that Christ died to save us, but unless we have wisdom enough to follow him, we cannot be saved. So, then, the great question for all the righteous inquisitive ones is, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" for it is evident that the christian has something to do, and the Lord is the one to tell him what it is. We cannot be our own judges in this matter; nor can we say that we have nothing to do. If we ask God to show us what to do, we shall have plenty of work; for he keeps no idle ones in his vineyard. When people get too lazy to work for the Lord, they can easily say they have nothing to do; when the secret is they have not asked God whether he had any thing for them to do or not, because they do not wish to know; so they do not ask, though they may perhaps be excellent querists in that department of inquisitiveness which we have found to be wrong; but God's people love the righteous inquisitiveness. They wish to know the path of duty, for they would be actively employed. They are anxious to know the truth, so as to be employed understandingly, having a zeal according to knowledge. O for this inquisitiveness, that we may be found perfect at last.

MRS. L. C. MCKINSTRY.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CAUSE IN MEMPHIS.

The friends of our Mission work in Memphis will be glad to learn, from the following letter from Bro. Leslie, how wide and effectual a door the Lord has opened for us in that place. With such an encouraging prospect of good being done, will not every child of God pray earnestly and continually for the Lord's special blessing upon the mission, that his converting and saving power may follow the labors of our missionaries there? Help, brethren, with your prayers and dollars.

W. B. H.

"We are here at work, day and night, and hope to have health to go on in our schools through the month of June. I have already admitted one hundred and fifty to our day school, and forty to our night school. Our Sabbath-school contained over a hundred last Sabbath, and will continue (as the other schools also will) to increase. The riot and burning of the old brick church, where Dr. Raley had his school, has thrown the whole northern part of the city upon us. I have admitted to our house to worship the Baptist church (whose house was burned), every Sabbath afternoon. The house is crowded, and scores cannot get in. I thus have a chance to preach our faith to a whole church whenever I am invited, which has been often. All the forenoon is taken up by our Sabbath school, in which Sr. Butler and myself have ample opportunity to preach our views, which we are doing. Sr. B. made a most effective address to the school last Sabbath; and in the evening prayed and took a part, which was an entirely new thing to this people—one man declaring that he had never heard a woman pray before. If I had another woman like Sr. B. here now on the ground, and a Mission House, we could carry every thing before us. We must have another teacher here just as soon as she can be selected and sent. I believe that the school will pay the rent of whatever building we hire. The present one will not cost the Society anything; the rent will be paid by the scholars—that is, I shall get enough to meet the expenses of the school this month and next. I think when I make my report, you and others of the Board will be surprised at our success. I. L. LESLIE.

Memphis, Tenn., May 30th, 1866."

No doubt of it, Bro. Leslie. That mission was consecrated with many prayers and tears and agonies. The mission itself, and the new door opened for it, and its present success, were all made the special subjects of prayer in a dark hour, and God has not turned away our supplications. Blessed be his holy name! Go on, Bro. L. You will have help and be sustained. Who can withhold their aid in such a cause and such a work? Let the friends of the Freedmen wake up, and help in this hour.—Voice of the West.

For the World's Crisis.

NOTICE.

Feeling a duty I owe the cause of the Lord, and desiring to be found on the field of battle when my Lord shall come; and having had formerly seven years' experience in Universalism, thereby knowing some of its workings; and as the A. C. P. Society have just published the tract written by Bro. Walsh, and which is the antidote for such views, I desire to speak where doors may be opened, to give experience and circulate tracts, to counteract that great error. Who will help in the work?

W. C. STONE.

Crisis Office, Boston, Mass.

The Young Pilgrim for July 1st.

An interesting number. Contains, in the table of contents, the following:

"Last Day Signs and Wonders," with an engraving, and a brief allusion to some of the wonderful inventions of the present day, in fulfillment of the prediction of Daniel,—"Many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased." "More wonderful than the Telegraph"—an interesting story. "The Resurrection Flower"—a wonderful flower on the African Desert, which dies and lives again. "Curiosities of the Ocean Bottom"—a very entertaining description of some of the wonders of the sea. "Till the Son of Man be come"—an exposition of Matt. 10: 23. "A single word killed that Tree"—showing how a man may be ruined by a single bill. "The Freedmen" (with an engraving.) "An act of Faith." "The Young Pilgrim's Volunteer Song." "Temperance in Sunday-schools." "The Band of Hope." "Three Steps to Ruin." "I'll never use Tobacco." "The Pilgrim Band." Young Pilgrim Letters from Reuben, Mary, Cassie, and Martha. Bible Questions and Puzzles, etc.

Will You Try?

Will you try to enlarge the circulation of the Young Pilgrim, and so increase its usefulness? Now is the time to make an effort. July commences the half-volume, at which time subscriptions begin. Will you do what you can? Will you get one, three, five new subscribers? Will you raise a club of ten, twenty, thirty, fifty? Will you renew and enlarge the old club? Will you TRY? We shall try to make the little paper, if possible, what some of its friends have already called it, the "best Sunday-school paper published." Shall we have your help and co-operation? For terms see last page. Address Young Pilgrim, Boston, Mass. W. B. H.

Czechowski's Thrilling Narrative.

A small edition of this work has been printed in paper covers, to be disposed of for the benefit of the European Mission. The book will be sent post-paid to every one who contributes $1.00 or more to the aid of the Mission. Bro. Czechowski is in need of help. Let the friends take this means to aid him, and receive an interesting book in return. The book will be sent to those only who order it.

☞ The Western Christian Advocate says, "We know of no instance in a republican government where an eminent public man has openly put on Christ." We know of many [illegible] instances of his being put off.

THE WORLD'S CRISIS AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, June 27, 1866.

☞ SEND US NATIONAL BILLS. All bills on State Banks will be unbankable here after July 1st. Those who are sending money to this office after this date, will therefore please remember to send only National Bills or greenbacks.

In sending postal currency, be careful to see that it is good before sending it. Very much of this fractional currency now in circulation is counterfeit; and every week we are receiving worthless notes of this description, which we are obliged to return to the sender.

DISCUSSION.

We have arranged to have a discussion in Union Hall, Natic, R. I., with Mr. John K. Lewister, Universalist preacher, from Providence, to commence Tuesday evening, July 10th, and continue four evenings.

QUESTION:—"Does the Bible teach that the second coming of Christ, and the end of all the prophetic periods, was at the destruction of Jerusalem?"

WORCESTER.

We spent a pleasant day with the church in Worcester, June 24th. They have built a neat and pleasant chapel, that will seat some four hundred persons. There is much interest awakened in the minds of many members of other churches to hear on the great truths of the Bible. We had a full house all day, and excellent attention. Things look very encouraging for this church. Five were baptized, and others have decided to improve the next opportunity.

PRESENT STATE OF EUROPE.

The present prospects of Europe, and indeed of the whole civilized world, are very gloomy. The spirit of war is the leading one among the nations. While men talk about a "peace conference," they have no expectation that it will prevent an immediate war; and the other nations have but little confidence in Napoleon's sincerity in calling it. He will probably reap most of the advantage, and further his own ambitious purposes at the expense of the other powers of Europe. He is too cunning for them all, and so strong they dare not oppose his plans. He is like the lion among the stronger beasts of the forest. They tremble at his voice, and hide at his presence. They dare not provoke him, but all wish he was on St. Helena, or some other out-of-the-way place. But we think he has an important part to play in earth's closing drama.

A distinguished citizen of London writes: "So mighty a complication now rises on us in Europe that it seems as though we shall presently forget the existence of America."

So this London correspondent expresses the general feeling in Europe.

WHY BAPTIZED?

Will you be kind enough to explain the following texts of Scripture: 1 Cor. 15: 29; also 1 Cor. 5: 5. How can this last verse be reconciled with the mortality of the soul? It seems to read as though the soul might be saved, and the body destroyed. Yours truly,

S. P. ELDREDGE.

The passage in 1 Cor. 15: 29 reads as follows:—"Else what shall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? who are they then baptized for the dead?" This passage has been a difficult one for those to explain who believe in sprinkling as baptism; because there appears to be no connection between sprinkling and the resurrection of the dead.

Some, as the Mormons and others, have understood this scripture to teach the doctrine of baptism by proxy; that is, if one should die without being baptized, some one of his living friends could be baptized for him, and the Lord would accept it in favor of the one who died without baptism. We think this looks too much like Popish indulgences, to receive a moment's countenance from a true follower of Christ.

When we understand the mode and object of baptism, this text seems very plain. We understand the Bible to teach that immersion is the only mode of christian baptism; and that the object is to show our faith in the burial and resurrection of Christ; and the consequent resurrection of all the dead. But supposing Christ is not raised and the dead will not arise; then, why should we be baptized? "If the dead rise not at all," baptism has no signification, as Paul argues. It seems that Paul found some Corinthians who had been baptized and yet were doubting about the resurrection; and in this passage shows them there is no signification to their baptism unless they believe in the resurrection of the dead.

When one is buried in baptism, his future life in this world depends on his being raised up out of the water; so, if he goes into the grave, his future life in the world to come depends on his being raised from the dead. He shows that he believes in the resurrection of the dead, through Christ, by being "buried with him in baptism" into the likeness of his death, that when Jesus comes, he may be raised "in the likeness of his resurrection."

2. The second passage—1 Cor. 5: 5, reads as follows: [illegible]

"To deliver such an one unto Satan for the destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus."

It should be observed that there is not a word here about the soul, and also that the word spirit is not once rendered soul in the whole Bible. Again, let it be noticed that the time of salvation here mentioned, is in the day of the Lord Jesus, which is when he shall appear the second time without sin, unto salvation; hence, the passage can not be made to teach that when the man dies, his spirit goes to its reward. Wakefield renders the phrase, "destruction of the flesh," "punishment of the [illegible]" [illegible] and the Syriac reads, "that he may be [illegible] have life." We think the latter renders throws [illegible] light on the subject. The word Spirit [illegible] in four senses in the Bible: 1, to represent the Holy Spirit of God; 2, to denote the air we breathe; 3, a being, as an angel; 4, a state of mind. We think the latter signification is plainly the one in the text under consideration; hence the propriety of letting a disobedient person be chastised, in order that he might be humbled, and have another spirit in him, that would lead him to live so that he might "be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus."

"THE SECOND DEATH."

We have just received a tract of sixteen pages, from London, England, entitled "The Second Death." The author's name does not appear. It is "addressed to all denominations of professing christians, from Roman Catholics to Quakers, including all intermediate bodies." The writer endeavors to show the "ultimate destruction" "of Satan and all evil ones." The following are his "prefatory remarks":—

"Judaism and Philosophy are the two great springs of Christendom's corruption from the simplicity of Christ. 'Sabbath'-keeping with a sort of half-Jewish exactness, instead of thankfully worshiping on the 'Lord's day,' the day of resurrection, a human priesthood instead of simple christian ministry; and Platonic notions constantly expressed in such unscriptural terms as 'never-dying soul,' 'indestructible, or deathless spirit,' etc., tarnish the bright lustre of the gospel, which declares Christ to be the 'Prince of Life,' the true giver of immortality. 'I give unto my sheep eternal life, and they shall never perish,' or be destroyed. 'As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up, or crucified, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish,' or be destroyed, 'but have everlasting life.' John 3: 16.

There was a time (before Creation, see Col. 1) when Satan was not, and when God (i. e., the Father, Son and Holy Ghost) was 'all in all'; there was no evil, only good is eternal; will there not, then, be a time when evil shall be thoroughly destroyed, and God again be 'all in all?' The writer believes that the infallible word of God answers this question in the affirmative. (1 Cor. 15.) Creation was the bringing (by divine power) of something out of nothing. Destruction is just the reverse of this."

FENIANISM.

Head Centre Stephens denounces Roberts, Gen. Sweeney, and the Fenian Senate as traitors. In a speech at Washington, D. C., June 19th, after he was serenaded, Stephens is reported to have said:—

Fellow Countrymen. I thank you, and most cordially, for the compliment conveyed through me by means of this beautiful serenade to dear old Ireland. It occurs to me that I must now throw aside all considerations of delicacy, and speak in unmistakable terms concerning the double dyed traitors who are ruining the cause we hold nearest our hearts.

I say—and mark the import of my words—that all Irishmen, be they whom they may, who are throwing obstacles in the direct way to our country's liberation, are traitors, and are this hour abhorred, despised, execrated by the men in Ireland, and they dare not, for their live's sake, place a foot on the soil over which the green flag should now, in triumph, be waving. The men who now propose to sell the Irish vote of this country to political demagogues, are traitors, and I here denounce them by name—Roberts, Gen. Sweeney, and the whole set called the Senate. It is time to speak out in plain language, and I will do it now, hereafter and forever, by voice and through the means of the press.

I say they are traitors to the cause of Ireland, and let them be so looked upon by not only Irishmen, but all Americans who sympathize with struggling freemen. Again I thank you, my countrymen, for the compliment you have paid me in listening so patiently, but again I ask you to heed my admonition to be distrustful of the Senate party, the heroes of Campo Bello, Canada, and I may soon have to add, Mexico."

The Republican thus alludes to one of the Roberts' men:

"We understand that the man who is managing the Fenian government in Washington for the radicals was formerly a ranting Know Nothing of Massachusetts, was a disbanded clerk of the Alien Passenger Commission of Boston, and subsequently a secret agent of the Treasury, who, on account of some indiscretions, concluded to resign.

This same Know Nothing leader of the Irish as against the administration of the Government recently induced a regiment of colored men in Philadelphia to go through the sham ceremony of volunteering to go to Canada for the purpose of fighting the only people on the American continent who for the last fifty years have offered an asylum to the black fugitive."

WAR IN EUROPE.

Every arrival from Europe shows that the state of things is becoming more and more warlike, and that the bloody hour is just at hand. Close observers say there has never been an approaching war that looks so disastrous as the one now about to begin. There is a prospect of a general war that will involve all nations. If "holding the four winds of earth," mentioned in Rev. 7: 1, has been accomplished by restraining the great powers of Europe, then we may expect that the winds will commence blowing in terrible fury before twelve months are ended. These things are very earnest indications that the day of the Lord is at hand.

The following from the New York Independent, of May 31st, 1866, will be read with interest:

"Nothing but a special intervention of Providence can avoid a war in Europe. All that man can do has been done to begin what threatens to be the most terrible war of modern times. Kingcraft and priestcraft have done their utmost, and nothing remains but the sword. As in most wars, we can hardly decide who is right or who is wrong. It would require endless delving in diplomatic dust and rubbish to discover the precise manner in which the difference began. The number of letters and notes, and protocols that have been interchanged between the high contracting powers, the protests and counter-protests, the intrigues and misrepresentations—have we not seen them in every war, only to mystify and perplex—mere earning of diplomatic salaries—all going to dust, and leaving endless chaos and trouble behind?

There has been no war so chaotic in its causes as the one impending in Europe. If it is asked, why are Austria and Prussia, still Italy and the German States, standing before each other with drawn swords, we shall have a dozen reasons in answer. Because, says one, Austria and Prussia overmastered Denmark, and robbed King Christian of his two duchies, Schleswig and Holstein. They accomplished the robbery, but now quarrel over the booty. Another will say that Prussia, being in fact the great power of the German Confederation, [illegible] to [illegible] Austria, destroy the [illegible] and become the [illegible] of Germany [illegible] Bismarck, the [illegible] prime minister, who has charge of a weak, obstinate old king (a kind of German George III.) aims to rival the glory of the great Frederick. Frederick gave Prussia Silesia, and made his small kingdom a leading power in Europe. Bismarck desires to add Schleswig and Holstein, including a fine seaport, much wanted in Germany. Therefore Bismarck provokes a quarrel with Austria. Further south we see Italy, to whom Austria's difficulty is an opportunity, preparing to make war for Venetia. Venetia is an Italian province, and its possession is necessary to Italian unity. Ever since Victor Emanuel ascended the throne, he has proclaimed his policy to be the occupation of Venetia, the dismemberment of Austria, the unity of the Italian kingdom. The king represents Italian enthusiasm in his cause. Italy has kept a large army and navy for many years, at exhaustive expense and with an avowed purpose. Garibaldi is now entrusted with a high command, and the king himself has left his palace and gone to the head of his army. Italy being a second-rate power, her action must in some respect depend upon France. If he thinks the integrity of the Austrian empire should be respected, we see no resource but obedience on the part of Victor Emanuel. It is known that he is in alliance with Prussia, offensive and defensive—Prussia promising to attack Austria on the north, if Italy is menaced; Italy engaging to attack Austria on the south, if she does not yield the duchies. It is possible this alliance would be a match for Austria, without France; but the minor German powers have generally, we believe, unanimously taken sides with Austria, and will be able to materially help the Kaiser. Russia is said to have intimated that she will not silently permit Italy and Prussia to assail any of those German potentates with whom the Czar is related by marriage, which amounts to moral sympathy with Austria.

Finally, France speaks! The voice of a ruler who commands an army of 757,727 men—held in his own hand, irresponsible, supreme, with no one to question his power—who could to-day touch a telegraph key, and to-morrow have half a million of men silently moving to the Rhine frontier—might go far toward keeping peace in Europe. If France, Russia, and England had united, they might have settled the quarrel, as indeed they could settle any European quarrel. Unfortunately, however, as Lord Clarendon tells us, England is the only power in Europe which shows a sincere desire for peace. She is alone in her offer of mediation. In France, the party of M. Thiers—in fact, the whole Bourbon, Orleans, and Ultramontane parties—are in favor of Austria. Prussia is a new power, and these Hohenzollerns are among the recent kings. Victor Emanuel is the natural enemy of the Bourbons and the Pope. He drove the first out of Naples, the second he is endeavoring to drive out of Rome. He is allied with the Bonapartes by marriage. Napoleon himself is a royal parvenu, the youngest of royal brothers, scarcely more than cousin or good friend in the eyes of Russia, for instance, and with no sympathy for the ancient kings and kaisers. Then the dream of avenging Waterloo, of reconstructing the map of Europe, rectifying frontiers, and annulling the work of the Holy Alliance, which destroyed the power of the first and greatest of his house, and sent the Bonapartes as wanderers over the earth—how can he resist it? So now, when all the world is gazing upon the silent emperor, and wondering what he will do or say; whether he will proclaim in the empire peace or war; while his own legislature cheers M. Thier's denunciations of Prussian perfidy, he suddenly speaks for war, and pronounces his detestation of the treaties of 1815. That brief speech, spoken in two minutes to a party of country-farmers and officials, at a farmers' fair in a French village, makes war a necessity, and France a party.

It is possible a peace may be made; but we do not see the smallest break in the horizon. All is dark, gloomy, lowering with mighty wrath. Nothing but war, war, war, wherever we look. Assassins creeping in the rear of the greatest minister in Germany; assassins hanging over the Czar himself; conspiracies extending through the different branches of aristocratic society. Nothing but Prussian armies marching to the frontier of Saxony, Austrian armies holding the quadrilateral and the lines of the Mincio; Italian armies advancing toward Venetia, and the lazy Po; Garibaldi, donning his red shirt and drawing his sword in behalf of the enthusiasm and patriotism of united Italy; French armies crouching at the feet of their master, ready to spring at his bidding; Russian armies quietly moving to the frontier to execute the wishes of the Czar. Providence has certainly some sublime purpose in this conflict of the giants. Alas for the brave men who are to die! for the Rachels who are to weep and never more be comforted! But if liberty and truth, and manhood come forth triumphant, it is not for us to repine at the blood to be shed. Freedom's last arbiter is often the best."

For the World's Crisis.

GOD'S ELECT.

"And shall not God avenge his own elect, which cry day and night unto him?"—Luke 18: 7.

From the next verse it is seen that this characteristic of the elect (viz.,—crying day and night,) will be manifested by them immediately preceding the coming of the Son of man, and therefore will be a sure test of our claim to this blessed appellation—"God's elect."

God's people, from the beginning, have been a crying people. Ps. 34: 17,—"The righteous cry, and the Lord heareth, and delivereth them out of all their troubles." How they cried at the Red Sea, when pursued by Pharaoh and his host; and how gloriously the Lord delivered them! How Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego exulted as they cried in the ears of Nebuchadnezzar, "We are not careful to answer thee in this matter; if it be so, our God, whom we serve, is able to deliver us out of thine hand, O king. But if not, be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up." O for just such a defiant cry from the elect of God in this day of peril, in the face of the world, fashion, the Devil, and nonsense, as, Nebuchadnezzar-like, they command us to bow down to them and serve them. Amen.

"Where shall we cry unto God?" I answer, at the family altar, in the closet, in public worship, any where, and every where.

Two incidents, and I conclude. 1. At a prayer meeting, May 25th, at New Preston, Ct., a young sister arose and begged the brethren and sisters to pray for her. She said she was living among strangers, and had nearly lost her enjoyment; and then as she cried, and her cry touched our hearts, how we cried to God in her behalf, and immediately the Lord delivered her.

2. On the following Wednesday evening, five miles from the above place, where I had an appointment to preach, a brother proposed while the people were gathering, to spend the time in prayer; and as he prayed and cried to God, I saw he was surnamed Israel (Isa. 44: 5), and had power with God; and crying for help, the Lord gave me the same power, and enabled me to speak with it to the conclusion. Praise the Lord.

New York. SAMUEL CURRY.

[illegible] FUND.

For the [illegible] Publication of Tracts.

Previous [illegible]	$2039.77
N. Chase	1.00
The Lord's Steward	50.00
E. A. Marsh	1.00
J. Phelps	1.00
W. G. [illegible]	3.00
A [illegible]	10.00
A brother in [illegible]	5.00

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To send the Crisis to the Poor.

Whole amount received, $[illegible]. Amount Expended $[illegible]

Previous acknowledgments	$330.40
J. J. Austin	.50
G. C.	5.00
H. Howe	.75
A brother in N. H.	5.00

THE AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All communications relating to the business of the Society, and all applications for situations as teachers or missionaries, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, WILLIAM B. HERRON, "Crisis" Office, Boston.

All donations of money, or clothing, or other supplies for the Freedmen, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEORGE T. ADAMS, 167 Hanover Street, Boston. In sending supplies, enclose in a letter to the same address a notice and list of the articles sent.

Advent Mission Fund.

For the establishment of Missions among the Freedmen, the building of a Chapel and Mission House in Memphis, etc.

Previous acknowledgments	2316.37
The Lord's Steward (for the Mission House)	25.00
"Pilgrim"	3.00
M. S. Smith	1.00
Mrs. Lucy Ransom	5.00
A sister in Rochester	2.50
Y. P. Fund	.50

EUROPEAN MISSION.

Previous acknowledgments	$363.35
Mrs. M. L. Durand	1.00
Ezra F. Trest	1.00
Mrs. H. M. Butters	1.00
E. Shultz	1.00
The Lord's Steward	15.00
A sister in Rochester	2.50

SUNDAY SCHOOL FUND.

To Supply Destitute Sunday Schools with Books and "Pilgrims."

Previous acknowledgments	$6.50
Flora S. Davis	1.50
Mrs. M. A. St. Clair	.50
The Lord's Steward	10.00

WHO WILL HELP?

Since the Sunday School Fund was started again, a few weeks ago, we have obtained Libraries to the amount of some $15 or $20 for new schools just started, which were too poor to help themselves. There were but a few dollars in the Treasury for this purpose, and there are but a few still, as you will see above; and they are altogether insufficient to meet the wants of the poor who have been and are still calling for help.

In addition to the calls already supplied, we have received the following, which we submit to the consideration of the stewards of the Lord's money, with the question,—"Who will help?" W. B. H.

From a Minister in New Hampshire:

"BRO. HERRON:—Will you procure some Sunday-school books, and send me by Express to ——, N. H.? We want some adapted for the little folks. We are poor, so you must send them as a donation, if you can get them for us."

From a Minister in Wisconsin:

"BRO. HERRON:—I have started a Sunday-school from the necessity that seemed to demand it. Seeing so many children running about, having no one to instruct them, I felt it was doing the will of my heavenly Father. We want some books and little tracts, if you can send them. I called their attention to the Young Pilgrim last Sunday, and took some to let them see them. They liked them, and requested me to write to you for ten or twelve copies."

From a Sister in Maine:

"We met together yesterday, and had a Sabbath-school. We want a Sunday-school library very much; but have no money.—We had three classes; two of girls, and one of boys. I think, if we had a library, we might have a very interesting school. We need small books, full of Bible truth."

Shall these calls of the Lord's poor go unheeded, and their wants unsupplied? Kind and liberal stewards of the Lord's money, will you help? W. B. H.

For the World's Crisis.

LITTLE WANDERERS' HOME.

Up to June 15th, we have received for the purchase of a house for the above object, $925.00. Of sums received that have not been acknowledged by letter and through the Crisis, are—$5.00 from Holden; $3.00 from Searsport; some friend, $2.00; E. Miller, Brattleboro, Vt., $2.00; widow, 50 cts. We thank these dear friends in the name of our Master. Could they see the places we visit, they would have their hearts stirred to their very depths at the sight of poor helpless children, exposed to all the snares of the devil, and to poverty and a thousand ills. Pray for us. Yours for the neglected,

F. H. BURBANK.

Philadelphia, Penn., S. W. Corner 7th and Spring Garden Sts.

For the World's Crisis.

THAT BUGGY.

It is received, and, I can safely say, is full as good, or even better than I expected; for I discover by examination that every thing about it is firm, and I think it will certainly last me until Jesus comes, which is long enough. I am truly grateful to Bro. Sweet, who, in this time of need, has acted out the christian principle, by extending to me the helping hand. It seems others have joined him, by responding so promptly to the "ten-cent call" in the Crisis of Apr. 18th. Yes, dear Brn. and Srs., who are readers of the Crisis, and who have been so mindful of the cause of Christ, by taking ten-cent shares in this noble deed, and helping me to the buggy which I so much needed; you have by so doing made my heart glad, and caused my dear companion to leap for joy. We reciprocate by returning you our heartfelt thanks, and asking God to bless you all for your works of love.

Notwithstanding I have received the buggy as a present from the Lord, by your hands, I would still ask for another favor. Doubtless you are aware of the fact, that it is very natural for man to ask for favors from those who have already shown their willingness to aid him; and perhaps many of you will be surprised at my audacity, thinking that I ought to be satisfied with what you have already done for me; but stop, dear reader, let me explain. I am not asking you to take out your purse and send ten cents or ten dollars for my benefit; but realizing that without the assistance of God my labors will be in vain, I ask you to remember me at the throne of grace; for while I am conveyed in this buggy, which you have presented to me, from place to place, where I shall sound the gospel trumpet, I may expect my efforts to save perishing men will not be in vain, if the hundreds of Crisis readers [illegible] ing will remember [illegible] prayer. [illegible] is the favor [illegible] grant it? you! WILL YOU? Methinks I hear the responsive cry—"We will."

Now a word to the brethren who reside in West Martinsburg and Copenhagen, N. Y. Having failed to fill my appointments in these places, I will say that, if my buggy had come as soon as I expected, I would certainly have been at my post; but shortly after navigation opened there was a detention. (Bro. Sweet) availed himself of the first favorable opportunity to ship the buggy, and it was received May 26th. Be patient, brethren, and by the help of God we will try in the future to fill all appointments promptly.

C. H. WILLIAMS.

P. S.—Since writing the above, I have seen Bro. Sweet, and was surprised when he told me the amount received on the ten-cent call, which amount is stated in his report. I have received the surplus, out of which the debt on my horse ($25.00) has been adjusted. Again I would say, thank you, brethren; may the God of peace be with you. C. H. W.

For the World's Crisis.

MISSION LETTERS FROM SWITZERLAND.

NUMBER SIX.

BRO. GRANT:—I have just returned from the city of Locle, situated among the Jura Mountains, on the frontier of France, Canton de Newchatel, where I spent nine days, and preached to very large and attentive congregations in the large College Hall. There was much interest manifested in the lectures by the intelligent people, and many of that place appeared deeply interested, and some, I humbly trust, received the truth into good and honest hearts. Bro. David Hanhard, father of the Bro. Hanhard whom I mentioned in my last letter, a man of much experience and very active and zealous, who has recently consecrated himself to the spread of the glad tidings of the soon coming of Christ, assisted me much in my labors in Locle and vicinity, he having an extensive acquaintance and being much respected. He makes an excellent colporteur, and carries with him the Prophetical Chart (which we succeeded in publishing after the kind donation of 814 francs from the dear brethren and sisters, through the Crisis, March 7th), also, tracts on the approaching kingdom, of which we have published a few hundred.

I was much interested and encouraged in my labors the past week, by the interesting conversion of an intelligent young man of twenty-six to the faith of Christ's soon coming, and his entire consecration to the work of spreading abroad this heart-cheering news. He formerly studied in Basle for the ministry, but became discouraged in some way in the national church, as well as cold and indifferent. He providentially came to hear me, and the truth took a strong hold upon his mind and heart. He had never heard such doctrine before, and the Bible, he told me, became a new book to him. He had been a great smoker, but "being convinced of temperance," as well as of "righteousness and a judgment to come," he broke his cherished pipe upon a stone in the street, saying, "By the grace of God I will put this idol from me and serve him as a free man." He felt that he could not remain idle, but must do all in his power to communicate the light he had just received to his young brethren and acquaintances.

He goes in company with Bro. D. Hanhard from house to house among the mountains, and while studying the Word communicates also to others the truth he has received into his own heart. Bro. Emille Frey speaks French well, and German also, and I trust by his appearance, and what I heard of him through father Hanhard, that he will be very useful in this European Mission.

A German Baptist minister, who is pastor of a small church near Locle, is also much interested in our mission, and he invited me to visit his church, and convince his brethren of the Advent truth. He said to me:

"This is indeed the pure doctrine of the gospel, and glad tidings to every true christian."

I visited, in company with father Hanhard, the deacons of his church, who received us very kindly, and a general conference is appointed for Sunday, June 10th, at which I am invited to preach to them. Bro. Geymet, who, since his return to Italy, has delivered some lectures with good success in the valley of Rora, is now obliged to labor with his hands for support; but we trust that the Lord will soon open the way for him to labor in his vineyard more effectually. Our beloved Bro. Jones has done what he was able in Leghorn and Pisa. He is firm in the faith, but finds the soil rather unproductive, and the people very bigoted.

All Italy is at present much excited in regard to war, and recruits have been so abundant that the government has at present stopped drafting. Bro. Jones writes me that every thing there is extremely dear at present. We cannot expect to accomplish very much in Italy while the minds of the people are so occupied with war.

Bro. Francois Besson has decided to join us here. He says in a recent letter:

"I desire to join you in Switzerland, and leave myself entirely in the hands of Divine Providence, and God will provide for us. I have, by the grace of God, convinced my dear wife to accompany me, and no more look behind her."

A very dear Brother of Florence, Italy, Count Pierro Guicciardini, a very faithful and active brother, who has suffered much persecution for the truth, has just honored us with a most excellent brotherly letter, and exhorts us to persevere, and publish explanations concerning the coming and kingdom of Christ, and says he will do what he can to spread them in Italy. His station, together with the fine qualities of the noble man, and his high character as a christian, give him much influence, and we trust he will accomplish much good there. Dear Sister Revel, of St. John, Pellice, Italy, is firm, by the grace of God, as ever, and labors as she has opportunity, zealously and indefatigably.

By the blessing of God on our labors, we have now the assistance of seven Evangelists in this great work, who cheerfully labor with me as recruiting officers, not to enlist men for the war of Magedon, or Armageddon, Rev. 16: 16 (name proper, probably from Magedon City, called Makkedah, Josh. 10: 28, etc.) but for salvation when the Monarch of monarchs shall appear. For all these blessings of heaven we are very grateful, and with humility of heart we say, "Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto thy name give glory, for thy mercy and thy truth's sake."—Psa. 115: 1.

I regret that I cannot write you more of interest in regard to my labors, since I wrote you in March; but I have been under the necessity of spending several weeks at home, in order to prepare charts and tracts that were so much needed in the Mission. We have commenced the translation of Dr. Litch's "Prophetical Expositions," which we must publish at once, and afterward shall make selections from the writings of our American brethren, according to the best of our ability.

Pray much for us, dear brethren and sisters, that we may have grace and wisdom from on high for this great work. May God bless you all abundantly. Yours faithfully,

M. B. CZECHOWSKI.

Grandson, Canton de Vaud, Suisse, June 1st, 1866.

For the World's Crisis.

A HOLE IN THE POCKET.

Many years ago, while having the care of a grist-mill, I heard a thundering and rattling in the corn cracker, and in a short time another under the mill-stone, which continued damaging the mill, and scaring bystanders. It became necessary to take up the mill-stones, when the cause was revealed. The blade of a large jack-knife was under the stone, the handle having been broken up in the corn cracker. After two hours trouble and scolding, I had occasion to use my knife, and found it gone. On examining the blade found under the stone, it was identified as being my knife. Then the cause was the next thought,—when I found a hole in my pocket. This loss at that time was great, besides much trouble and damage to the mill; the owner declaring the man that owned the grist should pay the damage; and another cloud of trouble was rising. I had learned it was my knife that had done the damage, and, if he knew it, I would have the damage to pay. All day I was in trouble, besides the loss of my knife; all because there was a hole in my pocket.

From that time to this, I have been careful not to have a hole in my pocket. I have often heard people complain of losing knives, money, etc., because they had a hole in the pocket. A pocket is where we deposite things for safe keeping, and should be of good material, and watched. Some people are in good health, earn good wages, and are always destitute of the necessaries of life. You may depend upon it, there is a hole in the pocket somewhere. Others are always complaining of their hard luck in losing, and never having any money. They cannot contribute to any charitable object. I always think there is a hole in the pocket that they have not discovered.

Said a man the other day, "How do you get along and support your family so cheaply? Mine is no larger, and it costs me double every month." I knew the secret; he had a hole in his pocket. He and his family would keep up appearances in dress, and have luxuries, go to rides, attend places of amusement. His wife, instead of stopping the hole in his pocket, cut two or three more. The poor man did not look well to the holes in his pocket.

What a number of such cases we who travel about see of useless poverty, temporally and spiritually. People who are careless in the things God gives us, will be careless in spiritual blessings. Some are always complaining of their poverty, and leanness, and are well and healthy, and have the means of grace. Twenty minutes' walk will take them to a meeting of their choice, and yet never have anything spiritual to impart. Such have a hole in the pocket. Others have poor health, live miles from meeting, and go every chance, and have something to contribute, or say, that cheers others, and helps themselves. Such ones generally go to meeting in season, while the other delays until meeting is well under way,—the very way to have nothing; and such find fault with those who have. Some lose it by slothfulness, some by trading, others by lending, others by speculation; but more by work and saving. Such will be well off with a little income, if they have no holes in the pocket.

We all learn from one another, and if we are losing ground, examine and see what the trouble is. God pays all his workmen alike, and our outgoes might be more alike, and then we should be more alike and better prepared for the wedding. HIRAM MUNGER

Correspondence.

From Sr. L. W. Bragg.

To the scattered heirs of grace, who are looking for the blessed hope of immortality, to be realized, perhaps, next year, 1867, we can say, grace and peace be multiplied unto you, through the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. My heart leaps forward at the thought, that I am going home so soon, to dwell with Jesus and angels, my kindred so dear, a sinner forever saved by grace. O rapturous is the thought. We are lost in wonder, love and praise. Nothing is so comforting and heart-cheering, to a true pilgrim. It truly looks this dark world out of sight, and sets our hearts on things above, with a cry, "even so, come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly."

Dear pilgrims in the Lord, let us fast, watch and pray, with all prayer, and be wholly sanctified to God, not fast for self, but wholly set apart, soul, body and spirit, without reserve; "knowing the time, that now it is high time to wake out of sleep," and "cast off the works of darkness;" and "put on the armor of light, and make not provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof." If we sow to the flesh, we shall reap corruption. O flee for your life, and cease the gratification of the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life; for all the proud are to be burned at last. Who, then, will stand? It must be those only who are crucified to the world, and the world to them, by the cross of Christ. Will we take it, and with joy bear all the reproach that comes for Jesus and his truth's sake? [illegible]

"The way the cross [illegible]"

Having a hearty fellowship with his suffering, let us not think it strange concerning the fiery trial, which is to try us, as though some strange thing had happened to us; but let us rejoice, inasmuch as we are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that, when his glory shall be revealed, we may be glad also with exceeding joy.

But how very often we are tempted to think our trials are the worst, and the most trying, of any one of the saints; and that others

do them. We know that Christ died to save us, but unless we have wisdom enough to follow him, we cannot be saved. So, then, the great question for all the righteous inquisitive ones is, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" for it is evident that the christian has something to do, and the Lord is the one to tell him what it is. We cannot be our own judges in this matter; nor can we say [illegible] to show us what to do, we shall have plenty of work; for he keeps no idle ones in his vineyard. When people get too lazy to work for the Lord, they can easily say they have nothing to do; [illegible] for them to do or not, because they do not wish to know [illegible] may perhaps be excellent querists in that department of inquisitiveness which we have found to be wrong; but God's people love the righteous inquisitiveness. They wish to know the path of duty, for they would be actively employed. They are anxious to know the truth, so as to be employed understandingly, having a zeal according to knowledge. O for this inquisitiveness, that we may be found perfect at last.

Mrs. L. C. McKinney.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CAUSE IN MEMPHIS.

The friends of our Mission work in Memphis will be glad to learn, from the following letter from Bro. Leslie, how wide and effectual a door the Lord has opened for us in that place. With such an encouraging prospect of good being done, will not every child of God pray earnestly and continually for the Lord's special blessing upon the mission, that his converting and saving power may follow the labors of our missionaries there? Help, brethren, with your prayers and dollars.

W. B. H.

"We are here at work, day and night, and hope to have health to go on in our schools through the month of June. I have already admitted one hundred and fifty to our day school, and forty to our night school. Our Sabbath-school contained over a hundred last Sabbath, and will continue (as the other schools also will) to increase. The riot and burning of the old brick church, where Dr. Rasley had his school, has thrown the whole northern part of the city upon us. I have admitted to our house to worship the Baptist church (whose house was burned), every Sabbath afternoon. The house is crowded, and scores cannot get in. I then have a chance to preach our faith to a whole church whenever I am invited, which has been often. All the forenoon is taken up by our Sabbath school, in which Sr. Butler and myself have ample opportunity to preach our views, which we are doing. Sr. B. made a most effective address to the school last Sabbath; and so the evening prayed and took a part, which was an entirely new thing to this people—one man declaring that he had never heard a woman pray before. If I had another woman like Sr. B. here now on the ground, and a Mission House, we could carry every thing before us. We must have another teacher here just as soon as she can be selected and sent. I believe that the school will pay the rent of whatever building we hire. The present one will not cost the Society anything; the rent will be paid by the scholars—that is, I shall get enough to meet the expenses of the school this month and next. I think when I make my report, you and others of the Board will be surprised at our success. I. I. Leslie.

Memphis, Tenn., May 30th, 1866."

No doubt of it, Bro. Leslie. That mission was consecrated with many prayers and tears and agonies. The mission itself, and the new door opened for it, and its present success, were all made the special subjects of prayer in a dark hour, and God has not turned away our supplications. Blessed be his holy name! Go on, Bro. L. You will have help and be sustained. Who can withhold their aid in such a cause and such a work? Let the friends of the Freedmen wake up, and help in this hour.—Voice of the West.

For the World's Crisis.

NOTICE.

Feeling a duty I owe the cause of the Lord, and desiring to be found on the field of battle when my Lord shall come; and having had formerly seven years' experience in Universalism, thereby knowing some of its workings; and as the A. C. P. Society have just published the tract written by Bro. Walsh, and which is the antidote for such views, I desire to speak where doors may be opened, to give experience and circulate tracts, to counteract that great error. Who will help in the work?

W. C. Stowe.

Crisis Office, Boston, Mass.

The Young Pilgrim for July 1st.

An interesting number. Contains, in the table of contents, the following: [illegible]

Will You Try?

Will you try to enlarge the circulation of the Young Pilgrim, and so increase its usefulness? Now is the time to make an effort. July commences the half volume, at which time [illegible]

THE WORLD'S CRISIS AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, June 27, 1866.

☞ SEND US NATIONAL BILLS.

All bills on State Banks will be uncurrent here after July 1st. Those who are sending money to this office [illegible] only National Bills or greenbacks.

In sending postal currency, be careful to see that it is good before sending it. Very much of this fractional currency now in circulation is counterfeit; and every week we are receiving worthless notes of this description, which we are obliged to return to the sender.

DISCUSSION.

We have arranged to have a discussion in Union Hall, Natic, R. I., with Mr. John K. Lewister, Universalist preacher, from Providence, to commence Tuesday evening, July 10th, and continue four evenings.

Question:—"Does the Bible teach that the second coming of Christ, and the end of all the prophetic periods, was at the destruction of Jerusalem?"

WORCESTER.

We spent a pleasant day with the church in Worcester, June 24th. They have built a neat and pleasant chapel, that will seat some four hundred persons. There is much interest awakened in the minds of many members of other churches to hear on the great truths of the Bible. We had a full house all day, and excellent attention. Things look very encouraging for this church. Five were baptized, and others have decided to improve the next opportunity.

PRESENT STATE OF EUROPE.

The present prospects of Europe, and indeed of the whole civilized world, are very gloomy. The spirit of war is the leading one among the nations. While men talk about a "peace conference," they have no expectation that it will prevent an immediate war; and the other nations have but little confidence in Napoleon's sincerity in calling it. He will probably reap most of the advantage, and further his own ambitious purposes at the expense of the other powers of Europe. He is too cunning for them all, and so strong they dare not oppose his plans. He is like the lion among the stronger beasts of the forest. They tremble at his voice, and hide at his presence. They dare not provoke him, but all wish he was on St. Helena, or some other out-of-the-way place. But we think he has an important part to play in earth's closing drama.

A distinguished citizen of London writes: "So mighty a complication now rises on us in Europe that it seems as though we shall presently forget the existence of America."

So this London correspondent expresses the general feeling in Europe.

WHY BAPTIZED?

Will you be kind enough to explain the following texts of Scripture: 1 Cor. 15: 29; also 1 Cor. 5: 5. How can this last verse be reconciled with the mortality of the soul? It seems to read as though the soul might be saved, and the body destroyed. Yours truly,

S. P. Eldredge.

The passage in 1 Cor. 15: 29 reads as follows:—"Else what shall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? who are they then baptized for the dead?" This passage has been a difficult one for those to explain who believe in sprinkling as baptism; because there appears to be no connection between sprinkling and the resurrection of the dead.

Some, as the Mormons and others, have understood this scripture to teach the doctrine of baptism by proxy; that is, if one should die without being baptized, some one of his living friends could be baptized for him, and the Lord would accept it in favor of the one who died without baptism. We think this looks too much like Popish indulgences, to receive a moment's countenance from a true follower of Christ.

When we understand the mode and object of baptism, this text seems very plain. We understand the Bible to teach that immersion is the only mode of christian baptism; and that the object is to show our faith in the burial and resurrection of Christ; and the consequent resurrection of all the dead. But supposing Christ is not raised and the dead will not arise; then, why should we be baptized? "If the dead rise not at all," baptism has no signification, as Paul argues. It seems that Paul found some Corinthians who had been baptized and yet were doubting about the resurrection; and in this passage shows them there is no signification to their baptism unless they believe in the resurrection of the dead.

When one is buried in baptism, his future life in this world depends on his being raised up out of the water; so, if he goes into the grave, his future life in the world to come depends on his being raised from the dead. He shows that he believes in the resurrection of the dead, through Christ, by being "buried with him in baptism" into the likeness of his death, that when Jesus comes, he may be raised "in the likeness of his resurrection."

2. The second passage—1 Cor. 5: 5, reads [illegible]

[illegible] It should be observed that there is not a word here about the soul, and also that the [illegible] rendered spirit, is not once rendered soul in the whole Bible. [illegible]

[illegible] think the latter rendering shows the right on the subject. The word Spirit is used in four senses in the Bible; 1, to represent the Holy Spirit of God; 2, to denote the air we breathe; 3, a being, as an angel; 4, to a state of mind. We think the latter signification is plainly the case in the text under consideration; hence the propriety [illegible] in order that he might be humbled, and have another spirit in him, that would lead him to live so that he might "be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus."

"THE SECOND DEATH."

We have just received a tract of [illegible] pages, from London, England, entitled "The Second Death." The author's name does not appear. It is "addressed to all denominations of professing christians, from Roman Catholics to Quakers, including all intermediate bodies." The writer endeavors to show the "ultimate destruction" "of Satan and all evil ones." The following are his "prefatory remarks":—

"Judaism and Philosophy are the two great springs of Christendom's corruption from the simplicity of Christ. 'Sabbath'-keeping with a sort of half-Jewish exactness, instead of thankfully worshiping on the 'Lord's day,' the day of resurrection, a human priesthood instead of simple christian ministry; and Platonic notions constantly expressed in such unscriptural terms as 'never-dying soul,' 'indestructible, or deathless spirit,' etc., tarnish the bright lustre of the gospel, which declares Christ to be the 'Prince of Life,' the true giver of immortality. 'I give unto my sheep eternal life, and they shall never perish,' or be destroyed. 'As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up, or crucified, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish,' or be destroyed, 'but have everlasting life.' John 3: 16.

There was a time (before Creation, see Col. 1) when Satan was not, and when God (i. e., the Father, Son and Holy Ghost) was 'all in all'; there was no evil, only good is eternal; will there not, then, be a time when evil shall be thoroughly destroyed, and God again be 'all in all'? The writer believes that the infallible word of God answers this question in the affirmative. (1 Cor. 15.) Creation was the bringing (by divine power) of something out of nothing. Destruction is just the reverse of this."

FENIANISM.

Head Centre Stephens denounces Roberts, Gen. Sweeney, and the Fenian Senate as traitors. In a speech at Washington, D. C., June 19th, after he was serenaded, Stephens is reported to have said:—

Fellow Countrymen. I thank you, and most cordially, for the compliment conveyed through me by means of this beautiful serenade to dear old Ireland. It occurs to me that I must now throw aside all considerations of delicacy, and speak in unmistakable terms concerning the double dyed traitors who are ruining the cause we hold nearest our hearts.

I say—and mark the import of my words—that all Irishmen, be they whom they may, who are throwing obstacles in the direct way to our country's liberation, are traitors, and are this hour abhorred, despised, execrated by the men in Ireland, and they dare not, for their live's sake, place a foot on the soil over which the green flag should now, in triumph, be waving. The men who now propose to sell the Irish vote of this country to political demagogues, are traitors, and I here denounce them by name—Roberts, Gen. Sweeney, and the whole set called the Senate. It is time to speak out in plain language, and I will do it now, hereafter and forever, by voice and through the means of the press.

I say they are traitors to the cause of Ireland, and let them be so looked upon by not only Irishmen, but all Americans who sympathize with struggling freemen. Again I thank you, my countrymen, for the compliment you have paid me in listening so patiently, but again I ask you to heed my admonition to be distrustful of the Senate party, the heroes of Campo Bello, Canada, and I may soon have to add, Mexico."

The Republican thus alludes to one of the Roberts' men:

"We understand that the man who is managing the Fenian government in Washington for the radicals was formerly a ranting Know Nothing of Massachusetts, was a disbanded clerk of the Alien Passenger Commission of Boston, and subsequently a secret agent of the Treasury, who, on account of some indiscretions, concluded to resign.

This same Know Nothing leader of the Irish as against the administration of the Government recently induced a regiment of colored men in Philadelphia to go through the sham ceremony of volunteering to go to Canada for the purpose of fighting the only people on the American continent who for the last fifty years have offered an asylum to the black fugitive."

WAR IN EUROPE.

Every arrival from Europe shows that the state of things is becoming more and more warlike, and that the bloody hour is just at hand. Close observers say there has never been an approaching war that looks so disastrous as the one now about to begin. There is a prospect of a general war that will involve all nations. If "holding the four winds of earth," mentioned in Rev. 7: 1, has been accomplished by restraining the great powers of Europe, then we may expect that the winds will commence blowing in terrible fury before twelve months are ended. These things are very earnest indications that the day of the Lord is at hand.

The following from the New York Independent, of May 31st, 1866, will be read with interest:

"Nothing but a special intervention of Providence can avoid a war in Europe. All that man can do has been done to begin what threatens to be the most terrible war of modern times. Kingcraft and priestcraft have done their utmost, and nothing remains but the sword." As to right or wrong, we could hardly decide who is right or who is wrong. It would require endless delving in diplomatic dust and rubbish to discover the precise manner in which the difference began. The number of letters and notes, and protocols that have been interchanged between the high contracting powers, the protests and counter-protests, [illegible] and perplex—mere earning of diplomatic salaries—all going to dust, and leaving [illegible]

[illegible] liberation, [illegible] destroy the [illegible] German [illegible] prime minister, who has charge of a weak, obstinate old king (a kind of German George III.,) aims to rival the glory of the great Frederick. Frederick gave Prussia Silesia, [illegible] powers in Europe. Bismarck desires to add Schleswig and Holstein, including a fine seaport, much wanted in Germany. Therefore Bismarck provokes a quarrel with Austria. Further south we see Italy, to whom Austria's difficulty is an opportunity, preparing to make war for Venetia. Venetia is an Italian province, and its possession is necessary to Italian unity. Ever since Victor Emanuel ascended the throne, he has proclaimed his policy to be the occupation of Venetia, the dismemberment of Austria, the unity of the Italian kingdom. The king [illegible] sam in his cause. Italy has kept a large army and navy for many years, at exhaustive expense and with an avowed purpose. Garibaldi is now entrusted with a high command, and the king himself has left his palace and gone to the head of his army. Italy being a second-rate power, her action must in some respect depend upon France. If he thinks the integrity of the Austrian empire should be respected, we see no resource but obedience on the part of Victor Emanuel. It is known that he is in alliance with Prussia, offensive and defensive—Prussia promising to attack Austria on the north, if Italy is menaced; Italy engaging to attack Austria on the south, if she does not yield the duchies. It is possible this alliance would be a match for Austria, without France; but the minor German powers have generally, we believe, unanimously taken sides with Austria, and will be able to materially help the Kaiser. Russia is said to have intimated that she will not silently permit Italy and Prussia to exhaust any of those German potentates with whom the Czar is related by marriage, which amounts to moral sympathy with Austria.

Finally, France speaks! The voice of a ruler who commands an army of 757,727 men—held in his own hand, irresponsible, supreme, with no one to question his power—who could to-day touch a telegraph key, and to-morrow have half a million of men silently moving to the Rhine frontier—might go far toward keeping peace in Europe. If France, Russia, and England had united, they might have settled the quarrel, as indeed they could settle any European quarrel. Unfortunately, however, as Lord Clarendon tells us, England is the only power in Europe which shows a sincere desire for peace. She is alone in her offer of mediation. In France, the party of M. Thiers—in fact, the whole Bourbon, Orleans, and Ultramontane parties—are in favor of Austria. Prussia is a new power, and these Hohenzollerns are among the recent kings. Victor Emanuel is the natural enemy of the Bourbons and the Pope. He drove the first out of Naples, the second he is endeavoring to drive out of Rome. He is allied with the Bonapartes by marriage. Napoleon himself is a royal parvenu, the youngest of royal brothers, scarcely more than cousin or good friend in the eyes of Russia, for instance, and with no sympathy for the ancient kings and kaisers. Then the dream of avenging Waterloo, of reconstructing the map of Europe, rectifying frontiers, and annuling the work of the Holy Alliance, which destroyed the power of the first and greatest of his house, and sent the Bonapartes as wanderers over the earth—how can he resist it? So now, when all the world is gazing upon the silent emperor, and wondering what he will do or say; whether he will proclaim in the empire peace or war; while his own legislature cheers M. Thier's denunciations of Prussian perfidy, he suddenly speaks for war, and pronounces his detestation of the treaties of 1815. That brief speech, spoken in two minutes to a party of country-farmers and officials, at a farmers' fair in a French village, makes war a necessity, and France a party.

It is possible a peace may be made; but we do not see the smallest break in the horizon. All is dark, gloomy, lowering with mighty wrath. Nothing but war, war, war, wherever we look. Assassins creeping in the rear of the greatest minister in Germany; assassins hanging over the Czar himself; conspiracies extending through the different branches of aristocratic society. Nothing but Prussian armies marching to the frontier of Saxony; Austrian armies holding the quadrilateral and the lines of the Mincio; Italian armies advancing toward Venetia, and the lazy Po; Garibaldi, donning his red shirt and drawing his sword in behalf of the enthusiasm and patriotism of united Italy; French armies crouching at the feet of their master, ready to spring at his bidding; Russian armies quietly moving to the frontier to execute the wishes of the Czar. Providence has certainly some sublime purpose in this conflict of the giants. Alas for the brave men who are to die! for the Rachels who are to weep and never more be comforted! But if liberty and truth, and manhood come forth triumphant, it is not for us to repine at the blood to be shed. Freedom's last arbiter is often the best."

For the World's Crisis.

GOD'S ELECT.

"And shall not God avenge his own elect, which cry day and night unto him?"—Luke 18: 7.

From the next verse it is seen that this characteristic of the elect (viz.,—crying day and night,) will be manifested by them immediately preceding the coming of the Son of man, and therefore will be a sure test of our claim to this blessed appellation—"God's elect."

God's people, from the beginning, have been a crying people. Ps. 34: 17,—"The righteous cry, and the Lord heareth, and delivereth them out of all their troubles." How they cried at the Red Sea, when pursued by Pharaoh and his host; and how gloriously the Lord delivered them! How Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego exulted as they cried in the ears of Nebuchadnezzar, "We are not careful to answer thee in this matter; if it be so, our God, whom we serve, is able to deliver us out of thine hand, O king. But if not, be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up." O for just such a defiant cry from the elect of God in this day of peril, in the face of the world, fashion, the Devil, and nonsense, as, Nebuchadnezzar-like, they command us to bow down to them and serve them. Amen.

"Where shall we cry unto God?" I answer, at the family altar, in the closet, in public worship, any where, and every where.

Two incidents, and I conclude. 1. At a prayer meeting, May 25th, at New Preston, Ct., a young sister arose and begged the brethren and sisters to pray for her. She said she was living among strangers, and had nearly lost her enjoyment; and then as she cried, and her cry touched our hearts, how we cried to God in her behalf, and immediately the Lord delivered her.

2. On the following Wednesday evening, five miles from the above place, where I had an appointment to preach, a brother [illegible] while the people were gathering to spend the time in prayer, and as he prayed and cried to God [illegible] (Isa. 44: 5), and had power with God [illegible] for help, the Lord gave me the same power, and enabled me to speak with it to the [illegible]. Praise the Lord.

New York. Samuel Corey.

[illegible] FUND.

For the [illegible] circulation of Tracts.

Previous acknowledgments	$2000.77
M. Cha[illegible]	1.00
The Lord's Steward	20.00
E. A. [illegible]	1.00
J. Phelps	1.00
W. G. [illegible]	2.00
[illegible]	10.00
[illegible]	5.00

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To send the Crisis to the Poor.

[illegible]

Previous acknowledgments	$330.40
J. J. Austin	.50
O. C.	4.00
E. Howe	.75
[illegible]	5.00

THE AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All communications relating to the business of the Society, and all applications for donations, as teachers or missionaries, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, William B. Hudson, "Crisis" Office, Boston.

All donations of money, of clothing, or other supplies for the Freedmen, should be sent to the Treasurer, George T. Evans, 167 Hanover Street, Boston. In sending supplies, enclose in a letter to the same address a notice and list of the articles sent.

Advent Mission Fund.

For the establishment of Missions among the Freedmen, the building of a Chapel and Mission House in Memphis, etc.

Previous acknowledgments	2316.27
The Lord's Steward (for the Mission House)	25.00
"Pilgrim"	3.00
M. A. Smith	1.00
Mrs. Lucy Ransom	5.00
A sister in Rochester	2.00
Y. P. Fund	.50

EUROPEAN MISSION.

Previous acknowledgments	$361.36
Mrs. M. L. Durand	1.00
Rev. F. Trust	1.00
Mrs. H. M. Butters	1.00
E. Shults	7.00
The Lord's Steward	15.00
A sister in Rochester	2.50

SUNDAY SCHOOL FUND.

To Supply Destitute Sunday Schools with Books and "Pilgrims."

Previous acknowledgments	$6.50
Flora S. Davis	1.00
Mrs. M. A. St. Clair	.50
The Lord's Steward	10.00

WHO WILL HELP?

Since the Sunday School Fund was started again, a few weeks ago, we have obtained Libraries to the amount of some $15 or $20 for new schools just started, which were too poor to help themselves. There were but a few dollars in the Treasury for this purpose, and there are but a few still, as you will see above; and they are altogether insufficient to meet the wants of the poor who have been and are still calling for help.

In addition to the calls already supplied, we have received the following, which we submit to the consideration of the stewards of the Lord's money, with the question,—"Who will help?" W. B. H.

From a Minister in New Hampshire:

"Bro. Hudson:—Will you procure some Sunday-school books, and send me by Express to ——, N. H.? We want some adapted for the little folks. We are poor, so you must send them as a donation, if you can get them for us."

From a Minister in Wisconsin:

"Bro. Hudson:—I have started a Sunday-school from the necessity that seemed to demand it. Seeing so many children running about, having no one to instruct them, I felt it was doing the will of my heavenly Father. We want some books and little tracts, if you can send them. I called their attention to the Young Pilgrim last Sunday, and took some to let them see them. They liked them, and requested me to write to you for ten or twelve copies."

From a Sister in Maine:

"We met together yesterday, and had a Sabbath-school. We want a Sunday-school library very much; but have no money.—We had three classes; two of girls, and one of boys. I think, if we had a library, we might have a very interesting school. We need small books, full of Bible truth."

Shall these calls of the Lord's poor go unheeded, and their wants unsupplied? Kind and liberal stewards of the Lord's money, will you help? W. B. H.

For the World's Crisis.

LITTLE WANDERERS' HOME.

Up to June 15th, we have received for the purchase of a house for the above object, $925.00. Of sums received that have not been acknowledged by letter and through the Crisis, are—$5.00 from Holden; $3.00 from Searsport; some friend, $2.00, E. Miller, Brattleboro, Vt., $2.00; widow, 50 cts. We thank these dear friends in the name of our Master. Could they see the places we visit, they would have their hearts stirred to their very depths at the sight of poor helpless children, exposed to all the snares of the devil, and to poverty and a thousand ills. Pray for us. Yours for the neglected,

F. H. Burbank.

Philadelphia, Penn., S. W. Corner 7th and Spring Garden Sts.

For the World's Crisis.

THAT BUGGY.

It is received, and, I can safely say, is full as good, or even better than I expected; for I discover by examination that every thing about it is firm, and I think it will certainly last me until Jesus comes, which is long enough. I am truly grateful to Bro. Sweet, who, in this time of need, has acted out the christian principle, by extending to me the helping hand. It seems others have joined him, by responding so promptly to the "ten-cent call" in the Crisis of Apr. 18th. Yes, dear Brn. and Srs., who are readers of the Crisis, and who have been so mindful of the cause of Christ, by taking ten-cent shares in this noble deed, and helping me to the buggy which I so much needed; you have by so doing made my heart glad, and caused my dear companion to leap for joy. We reciprocate by returning you our heartfelt thanks, and asking God to bless you all for your works of love.

Notwithstanding I have received the buggy as a present from the Lord, by your hands, I would still ask for another favor. Doubtless you are aware of the fact, that it is very natural for man to ask for favors from those who have already shown their willingness to aid him; and perhaps many of you will be surprised at my audacity, thinking that I ought to be satisfied with what you have already done for me; but stop, dear reader, let me explain. I am not asking you to take out your purse and send ten cents or ten dollars for my benefit; but realizing that without the assistance of God my labors will be in vain, I ask you to remember me at the throne of grace; for while I am conveyed in this buggy, which you have presented to me, from place to place, where I shall sound the gospel trumpet, I may expect my efforts to save perishing souls will not be in vain, if the hundreds of Crisis readers [illegible] ing will remember [illegible] in the favor [illegible] you? WILL YOU? Methinks I hear the responsive cry—"We will."

Now a word to the brethren who reside in West Monteberg and Copenhagen, N. Y. Having failed to fill my appointments in those places, I will say that, if my buggy had come [illegible] been at my post; but shortly after navigation opened there was a [illegible]. Bro. [illegible] availed himself of the first favorable opportunity to ship the buggy, and it was received May 26th. Be patient, brethren, and by the help of God we will try in the future to fill all appointments promptly.

C. H. Williams.

P. S.—Since writing the above, I have seen Bro. Sweet, and was surprised when he told me the amount received on the ten-cent call, which amount is stated in his report. I have received the surplus, out of which the debt on my horse ($15.00) has been adjusted. Again I would say, thank you, brethren; may the God of peace be with you. C. H. W.

For the World's Crisis.

MISSION LETTERS FROM SWITZERLAND.

NUMBER SIX.

Bro. Grant:—I have just returned from the city of Locle, situated among the Jura Mountains, on the frontier of France, Canton de Neuchatel, where I spent nine days, and preached to very large and attentive congregations in the large College Hall. There was much interest manifested in the lectures by the intelligent people, and many of that place appeared deeply interested, and some, I humbly trust, received the truth into good and honest hearts. Bro. David Hanhard, father of the Bro. Hanhard whom I mentioned in my last letter, a man of much experience and very active and zealous, who has recently consecrated himself to the spread of the glad tidings of the soon coming of Christ, assisted me much in my labors in Locle and vicinity, he having an extensive acquaintance and being much respected. He makes an excellent colporteur, and carries with him the Prophetical Chart (which we succeeded in publishing after the kind donation of 814 francs from the dear brethren and sisters, through the Crisis, March 7th), also, tracts on the approaching kingdom, of which we have published a few hundred.

I was much interested and encouraged in my labors the past week, by the interesting conversion of an intelligent young man of twenty-six to the faith of Christ's soon coming, and his entire consecration to the work of spreading abroad this heart-cheering news. He formerly studied in Basle for the ministry, but became discouraged in some way in the national church, as well as cold and indifferent. He providentially came to hear me, and the truth took a strong hold upon his mind and heart. He had never heard such doctrine before, and the Bible, he told me, became a new book to him. He had been a great smoker, but "being convinced of temperance," as well as of "righteousness and a judgment to come," he broke his cherished pipe upon a stone in the street, saying, "By the grace of God I will put this idol from me and serve him as a free man." He felt that he could not remain idle, but must do all in his power to communicate the light he had just received to his young brethren and acquaintances.

He goes in company with Bro. D. Hanhard from house to house among the mountains, and while studying the Word communicates also to others the truth he has received into his own heart. Bro. Emille Frey speaks French well, and German also, and I trust by his appearance, and what I heard of him through father Hanhard, that he will be very useful in this European Mission.

A German Baptist minister, who is pastor of a small church near Locle, is also much interested in our mission, and he invited me to visit his church, and convince his brethren of the Advent truth. He said to me:

"This is indeed the pure doctrine of the gospel, and glad tidings to every true christian."

I visited, in company with father Hanhard, the deacons of his church, who received us very kindly, and a general conference is appointed for Sunday, June 10th, at which I am invited to preach to them. Bro. Geymet, who, since his return to Italy, has delivered some lectures with good success in the valley of Rora, is now obliged to labor with his hands for support; but we trust that the Lord will soon open the way for him to labor in his vineyard more effectually. Our beloved Bro. Jones has done what he was able in Leghorn and Pisa. He is firm in the faith, but finds the soil rather unproductive, and the people very bigoted.

All Italy is at present much excited in regard to war, and recruits have been so abundant that the government has at present stopped drafting. Bro. Jones writes me that every thing there is extremely dear at present. We cannot expect to accomplish very much in Italy while the minds of the people are so occupied with war.

Bro. Francois Besson has decided to join us here. He says in a recent letter:

"I desire to join you in Switzerland, and leave myself entirely in the hands of Divine Providence, and God will provide for us. I have, by the grace of God, convinced my dear wife to accompany me, and no more look behind her."

A very dear Brother of Florence, Italy, Count Pierro Guicciardini, a very faithful and active brother, who has suffered much persecution for the truth, has just honored us with a most excellent brotherly letter, and exhorts us to persevere, and publish explanations concerning the coming and kingdom of Christ, and says he will do what he can to spread them in Italy. His station, together with the fine qualities of the noble man, and his high character as a christian, give him much influence, and we trust he will accomplish much good there. Dear Sister Revel, of St. John, Pellice, Italy, is firm, by the grace of God, as a rock, and labors as she has opportunity, zealously and indefatigably.

By the blessing of God on our labors, we have now the assistance of seven Evangelists in this great work, who cheerfully labor with me as recruiting officers, not to enlist men for the war of Magedon, or Armageddon, Rev. 16: 16, (name proper, probably from Magedon City, called Makkedah, Josh. 10: 28, etc.) but for salvation when the Monarch of monarchs shall appear. For all these blessings of heaven we are very grateful, and with humility of heart we say, "Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto thy name give glory, for thy mercy and thy truth's sake."—Psa. 115: 1.

I regret that I cannot write you more of interest in regard to my labors, since I wrote you in March; but I have been under the necessity of spending several weeks at home, in order to prepare charts and tracts that were so much needed in the Mission. We have commenced the translation of Dr. Litch's "Prophetical Expositions," which we must publish at once, and afterward shall make selections from the writings of our American brethren, according to the best of our ability.

Pray much for us, dear brethren and sisters, that we may have grace and wisdom from on high for this great work. May God bless you all abundantly. Yours faithfully,

M. B. Czechowski.

Grandson, Canton de Vaud, Suisse, June 1st, 1866.

For the World's Crisis.

A HOLE IN THE POCKET.

Many years ago, while having the care of a grist-mill, I heard a thundering and rattling in the corn cracker, and in a short time another under the mill-stone, which continued damaging the mill, and scaring bystanders. It became necessary to take up the mill-stones, when the cause was revealed. The blade of a large jack-knife was under the stone, the handle having been broken up in the corn cracker. After two hours trouble and scolding, I had occasion to use my knife, and found it gone. On examining the blade found under the stone, it was identified as being my knife. Then the cause was the next thought,—when I found a hole in my pocket. This loss at that time was great, besides much trouble and damage to the mill; the owner declaring the man that owned the grist should pay the damage; and another cloud of trouble was rising. I had learned it was my knife that had done the damage, and, if he knew it, I would have the damage to pay. All day I was in trouble, besides the loss of my knife, all because there was a hole in my pocket.

From that time to this, I have been careful not to have a hole in my pocket. I have often heard people complain of losing knives, money, etc., because they had a hole in the pocket. A pocket is where we deposite things for safe keeping, and should be of good material, and watched. Some people are in good health, earn good wages, and are always destitute of the necessaries of life. You may depend upon it, there is a hole in the pocket somewhere. Others are always complaining of their hard luck in losing, and never having any money. They cannot contribute to any charitable object. I always think there is a hole in the pocket that they have not discovered.

Said a man the other day, "How do you get along and support your family so cheaply? Mine is no larger, and it costs me double every month." I knew the secret; he had a hole in his pocket. He and his family would keep up appearances in dress, and have luxuries, go to rides, attend places of amusement. His wife, instead of stopping the hole in his pocket, cut two or three more. The poor man did not look well to the holes in his pocket.

What a number of such cases we who travel about see of useless poverty, temporally and spiritually. People who are careless in the things God gives us, will be careless in spiritual blessings. Some are always complaining of their poverty, and leanness, and are well and healthy, and have the means of grace. Twenty minutes' walk will take them to a meeting of their choice, and yet never have anything spiritual to impart. Such have a hole in the pocket. Others have poor health, live miles from meeting, and go every chance, and have something to contribute, or say, that cheers others, and helps themselves. Such ones generally go to meeting in season, while the other delays until meeting is well under way,—the very way to have nothing, and such find fault with those who have. Some lose it by slothfulness, some by trading, others by lending, others by speculation; but more by work and saving. Such will be well off with a little income, if they have no holes in the pocket.

We all learn from one another, and if we are losing ground, examine and see what the trouble is. God pays all his workmen alike, and our outgoes might be more alike, and then we should be more alike and better prepared for the wedding. Hiram Munger.

Correspondence.

From Sr. L. W. Brown.

To the scattered heirs of grace, who are looking for the blessed hope of immortality, to be realized, perhaps, next year, 1867, we can say, grace and peace be multiplied unto you, through the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. My heart leaps forward at the thought, that I am going home so soon, to dwell with Jesus and angels, my kindred so dear, a sinner forever saved by grace. O rapturous is the thought. We are lost in wonder, love and praise. Nothing is so comforting and heart-cheering, to a true pilgrim. It truly looks this dark world out of sight, and sets our hearts on things above, with a cry, "even so, come, Lord Jesus," and "come quickly."

Dear pilgrims in the Lord, let us fast, watch and pray, with all prayer, and be wholly sanctified to God, not part for self, but wholly set apart, soul, body and spirit, without reserve; "knowing the time, that now it is high time to wake out of sleep," and "cast off the works of darkness," and "put on the armor of light, and make not provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof." If we sow to the flesh, we must reap corruption. O flee from your life, and cease the gratification of the lusts of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life; for all the proud are to be abased at last. Who, then, will stand? It seems to those only who are crucified to the world, and the world to them, by the cross of Christ. [illegible] and with joy bear all the reproach that attaches for Jesus and his [illegible]

[illegible]

Having a hearty fellowship with his sufferings, let us not think it strange concerning the fiery trial, which is to try us, as though some strange thing had happened to us; but let us rejoice, inasmuch as we are partakers of Christ's sufferings, that when his glory shall be revealed, we may be glad also with exceeding joy."

But how very often we are tempted to think our trials weighty, worse, and the most trying of any one of the saints; and that others

never have any such temptation. Let us stop and call to mind the words of Paul, that "no temptation" has "taken you but such as is common to man," and he "will, with the temptation also make a way to escape, that" we "may be able to bear it." Again we read, "blessed is the man that endureth temptation," not the one that escapes temptation. Jesus says, "be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." He sent us word after his ascension, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me on my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." Can we believe and take him at his word? "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." And the moving principle is love to God, and all mankind. When we see the final destiny of the human race so near, our cry is day and night, Save a few more, and help us to be in the place where we can labor together with the Lord, in trying to persuade all we can. Don't let us sleep. Arouse, and let us look upon the field. Are they not almost white for the harvest? But laborers are truly few. O Lord, burden a few more with the word of life to a fallen, dying race, is my prayer.

In Surry, Me., there are a few sisters who try to keep up meetings from week to week, and feel the blessing of the Lord in so doing. Of late we have had a few more sisters join us, but not one brother to assist us yet. We hope there will soon be pilgrims who will help together by prayer. Do pray for them.

Your sister in the hope of the gospel, expecting to see its consummation next year, 1867, L. W. BRAGG.

Bangor, Me.

From Bro. B. W. Wilkins.

DEAR BRETHREN AND SISTERS:—Let me say to you what can be done by visiting the poor and needy in New York city. Here is one incident out of many. I went to a house in —— street, knocked at the door; "Come in," sounded clear; door opened. How do you do? "Very well," was the reply. Will you have a tract? "Yes, sir," was the reply. Do you love the Lord? "No, sir," or, "No, I don't." I am glad that you are honest. Do you not think you ought to love him? "Yes, I ought to, because he is good to me, and when I do love him, I do not want to love him in the winter, and leave him in the summer, as many do." That is right. Will you love him if he will help you? "Yes, I will love him now, if he will help me." I told her that he would. I then left three tracts; one was called "The Happy Escape." I did not pray with her, but prayed for the family.

I went back into the neighborhood one week afterwards, and the neighbors said to me, "Did you not leave some tracts in that woman's house the other day?" Yes. "The whole family are converted since you left them, and you must go and see them." I went, and as soon as they saw me, the man, who had the child in his lap, sprang to his feet,—"How do you do?" and threw the child from him. I thought it would fall on the floor, but it fell in the cradle; and he, with both arms, clasped me around the neck and kissed me. I said, how is this? old times are coming back again; men kissing men. He said, "Bless God that you ever came to my house and left those tracts. We are all happy." By this time his wife came running from the other room, with both hands up in the air, and said, "I have got him," over twenty times, with a full heart and tears running down her face. "O bless God in the highest, that you ever came here to tell us about the love of God. I have got him. Glory, glory, I know he loves me now. Sins and the devil all are gone. I have got him,"—pointing her fingers to her husband—"and him, too, did you ever see the like? How good the Lord is to me. I will never leave him now, winter nor summer. Happy day to me and all my family, glory to his sweet name forever. Praise him, my brother, that he led you to my door. O bless his name forever, that he sent you here." It was heavenly to witness this scene. To God be all the glory.

It was hard to get away from them. How much good is being done by the tracts distributed by Sisters A. E. Smith, Boyd, and Francis, and myself, will not be known until the day when the Lord shall come to make up his jewels. Praise our God, all people.—Amen. B. W. WILKINS.

New York.

From Sr. A. E. Clark.

DEAR SISTERS:—You who have pleasant homes, surrounded with all the comforts of life, with your little ones around you, who have never had a want uncared for, think of those less favored. Think, for a moment, of the little half-starved, half-clad, homeless children, that are to-day wandering through the streets of Philadelphia, exposed to the most dreadful sins. Do they not need a home where kind friends may care for them? God has raised them up a friend. One that is willing to sacrifice all for the cause of Christ. May God ever bless him in his labors of love. Bro. Burbank now cheerfully offers the greater part of his library for sale, to assist in purchasing a home for these little destitute wanderers. He needs these books. Shall we not all lend a helping hand, that we may save our brother from making this sacrifice, and help what we can towards paying for the little wanderer's home?

Let us help bear one another's burdens. We can all do something. Let it be done cheerfully, and now. There is a glorious reward in denying self, that we may help in the blessed work of our Redeemer. May our mites be forthcoming, that the heart of our brother may be cheered; and may he have our sympathies and our prayers, to encourage him on in every good work.

Your sister in Christ, A. E. CLARK.

From Bro. D. W[illegible].

BRO. GRANT:—As we think our year's subscription is nearly ended, and we like to read our own paper, you will find enclosed five dollars for the Crisis for one year. Without flattering you as the editor, or any of the writers in this blessed paper, I can say that it is the best paper I ever read; and as I live in this ungodly town, without christian friends, and without any preaching that is worth listening to, I can truly say that the [illegible] of truth, [illegible] when I read what can be called plain talk. O what gladness [illegible] this paper [illegible]

[illegible]

Palley [illegible], which has so [illegible] on the mortality of man, was translated by a friend into our Holland language, because most of the members of our church could not read it. It was received with great joy and thankfulness toward God. We were denounced as heretics by the other churches, but this they could not prove with our standard, the Bible. They have put two of their members out of their church, because they believed that when a man dies he goes to the grave, and stays there until the resurrection. They called us "soul-sleepers," and "deniers of the regeneration," because we did not believe as they did, that when a sinner is converted he receives immortality, and goes to heaven when he dies. This they tried to prove, when they failed to prove that man was created with an immortal soul.

I am sure that they would all take the Crisis, if they could read it; for in most parts it agrees with what we believe.

Portland, Oregon. D. VESTERO.

From Bro. B. Spaulding.

BRO. GRANT:—It would be natural for friends to want to know what has become of Bro. Spaulding. Well, I am at home, disabled by prostration of the nervous system from being able to labor as I formerly have done. But, run down as I am, I yet remember my brethren and sisters who have treated me with so much hospitality, and hope to meet them again in that country where the inhabitants will not say, I am sick; where old age and infirmity will not be known; where the weary will be at rest, and all tears wiped away; where God himself shall dwell with men, and we shall see him whom having not seen we love, and rejoice in him with joy unspeakable and full of glory. Where we shall see and enjoy the earth restored to its original state of beauty and glory.

In my depressed state of mind, I am happy to receive letters from my brethren and friends scattered abroad; and I feel grateful to those who have communicated with me in my infirm state. The good Lord bless them, is my prayer. Be diligent, brethren, be faithful, hope to the end; keep your eyes open to the signs of the times, and your hearts in order; your lamps trimmed, your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all, take the shield of faith, the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit. Pray for me, that I may yet live to praise God and honor his name. B. SPAULDING.

Chelmsford, Mass., June 16th, 1866.

From Bro. G. A. Streeter.

BRO. GRANT:—I am here again, and the Lord is still carrying on his work. The interest has not abated since I left last winter. Numbers are being added, such as shall be saved. Over one hundred have professed Christ. Glory to God. Yesterday, the 10th inst., we had a good time speaking. The brethren and sisters are strong in God, expecting redemption soon. My heart says, praise our God. Signs tell us that we shall soon be home, where the weary will be at rest. Praise God for the light. We have but little time to work. Let us be ready, and do all he requires of us.

Thy Bro., looking for and hasting unto the coming of Christ, GEO. A. STREETER.

Bridgewater, Vt., June 11th, 1866.

Obituaries.

MORRILL. Died in Newburyport, Mass., June 7th, 1866, Miss Harriet Morrill, aged fifty-nine.

Sister Morrill was born in Westbrook, Me., but removed to this city about twenty years since. She was converted when about nineteen years old. When Father Miller lectured in Portland, in 1841, she received the Advent faith with all her soul, and she frankly confessed it wherever she went. Her religion, as one remarked at her funeral, was of a positive character. She was a decided christian.

She loved the doctrine of the word of God relating to Christ's kingdom and appearing, and longed with ardent desire to see the consummation of the plan of redemption. She loved God's people with a pure heart, fervently; and many who were acquainted with her, will feel in regard to her that the memory of the just is blessed.

After she appeared to be struck with death, I was sent for, and on entering the chamber, and approaching her bedside, she said to me, "O, I am happy. Praise the Lord." Her countenance was lit up with joy, and she continued to speak of God's ways, and her love to them and his people, and especially spoke as though she would like to see Elder Hastings. She could hardly believe that she was dying, as she was so much easier than she had been during her sickness. The hour spent in that room seemed to be one beyond the common walks of life, quite on the verge of heaven. We feel her loss, but, as she expressed it, her sleep will be but a short nap before she awakes in the likeness of the glorious Redeemer. HENRY LUNT, JR.

Advent Herald please copy.

HOWARD. Died in Hebron, N. Y., of consumption, June 11th, 1864, Hattie M., daughter of Warren and Isabel Howard, aged eighteen years.

Though young in years, yet she had made the Savior her choice, and bore her lingering sickness with fortitude and patience. She sleeps in Jesus.

HOWARD. Died of consumption, in Hebron, N. Y., March 11th, 1866, Annie, daughter of Warren and Isabel Howard, aged thirty years.

Annie was a consistent christian, and though she suffered much and long under the fatal disease which finally destroyed her life, yet she was sustained by her blessed hope in the coming of the Lord, and the resurrection. She rests in peace.

Our brother and sister Howard have spent many long and weary days and nights in watching over and waiting upon their beloved daughters, during their protracted illness. Their affliction has been severe, and their anxieties and tears many; but they sorrow in hope. Thanks be to God for his supporting grace, and hope of life everlasting. O. R. FASSETT.

FORSYTH. Died at Rouses Point, N. Y., June 7th, 1866, Bro. Robert Forsyth, aged eighty-seven years.

Our aged brother was a native of Scotland, but for nearly fifty years has been a respected and beloved resident of this place; an honest man, hence God's noblest work. For some fifteen years he labored with the Baptist church of Champlain, but since 1843 has been one with us, who look for our Lord soon to come. He was an ardent lover of good reading, and the house of God; and his testimony to an unwavering faith and hope in Christ on his dying bed was very gratifying to the writer, who sighed and prayed with him; [illegible]. May his mantle fall upon those who are left. Bro. F. is the seventh Adventist who has died in old Champlain within one short year. "We all do fade as a leaf." D. T. T.

WENDELL. Died at Portsmouth, N. H., June [illegible], Sister Nancy, wife of Bro. John Wendell, aged [illegible].

Sister Wendell suffered, through a lingering and distressing illness, with christian patience and resignation. She gave her heart to Christ some thirty years ago, and united with the Freewill Baptist church; but subsequently embraced the doctrine of the [illegible] coming of Christ [illegible]. Sermon by Bro. [illegible], from Prov. [illegible]. JOS. W. WHITE.

[illegible] Died in Worcester, Mass., June [illegible], 1866, Benjamin H. Child, aged [illegible] years and two months.

Thus one after another of our old and tried friends are departing from us, leaving us to fight the battle of life behind them. Bro. Child was one of the earliest to embrace the doctrine of the pre-Millennial Advent of the Savior in Worcester, and has stood fast in the faith to the time of his death. For the last few months his growing infirmities admonished himself and his friends that his dissolution drew near. But it did not find him unprepared. With resignation to the will of God, and in peace of mind and glorious hope of a part in the resurrection of the just, he fell asleep in Jesus, to await the sound of the archangel's trump.

The writer spoke at his funeral, from the words of Paul, 2 Cor. 4: 17, 18. May the God of peace bless the widow and surviving children. J. LITCH.

SMITH. Died in Holderness, N. H., June 14th, Perline M. Smith, daughter of Bro. Daniel Smith; aged twenty-one years, three months, and twenty days.

Perline, although a believer in the great and glorious truths taught by Adventists, had never confessed it before the world; but during her last sickness she most heartily confessed Christ unto salvation, and quietly fell asleep in Jesus, expecting to sleep until he comes.

The funeral was attended by the writer, who endeavored to answer, by the word of God, the question asked by Job 14: 14—"If a man die shall he live again?" T. W. PIPER.

Married.

In Danville, June 13th, 1866, by Eld. F. Burr, Mr. EDWARD SANBORN, of West Barre, Orleans Co., N. Y., and Miss CHARLOTTE A. MOORE, of Danville.

In Fisherville, N. H., June 18th, by Rev. Mr. Fisk, Dr. H. W. BUXTON, of Worcester, Mass., and Miss LIZZIE H. DUBOIS, of Fisherville, N. H.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

FRANCE.

The government journals of France are severe in their comments upon the conduct of Austria in preventing the assembling of the conference; but this indignation is thought to be assumed merely for the purpose of more forcibly introducing the sentiment that, "come what may, the Emperor Napoleon has clean hands, and did his utmost to preserve the peace of Europe."

The Paris correspondent of the Brussels Independance says:

"France will not immediately assemble an army on the East, or on the Rhine, but she will take measures which, in case of necessity, would enable her to have 100,000 men at the nearest point in three days' time. For this purpose the railway companies have been directed to concentrate the largest quantity possible of the rolling stock at the termini of the lines. This direction which was simply a notification, is now to be made an imperial order."

The Paris correspondent of the London Star writes:

At the last hour it is reported to me that Napoleon III. intends asking the Corps Legislatif for a loan of five hundred millions to ensure the safety of the country."

AUSTRIA.

It is stated that an agreement has been concluded between Austria and Turkey, by which the latter power undertakes to defend the Austrian coast of the Adriatic against any hostile invasion.

It is reported that Russia has really concluded a treaty of alliance with Austria, and that Turkey is satisfied with that arrangement. The Presse, which gives the information, adds that when war breaks out, Russian and Turkish troops will jointly occupy the Principalities and take care that Austria is not molested in the rear. This alliance, it is thought, explains the sudden alienation of the Czar from the policy of the King of Prussia, and the strong feelings entertained by the Emperor of Russia in reference to the throne of Roumania.

A Vienna letter says:

"The dispatch of troops to the north is continuous and uninterrupted. Regiments are forwarded from all quarters for concentration on the Prussian frontier. Some idea may be formed of the immense concentration of troops in that quarter from the fact that the railway directors have received instructions to be prepared to transport 40,000 men to augment the army of the north. Admiral Tegethoff, who has assumed the command of the Austrian fleet, has addressed the officers and men, calling upon them to display their patriotism and courage in the event of a war."

Pope Pius IX., it is said, regards the war as a providential interference for his special benefit. His Holiness considers that in the presence of war it is impossible for France to withdraw her troops from Rome, and that that city will be the best possible place for an army of observation, which France will most certainly dispatch to the Italian frontier.

A Florence letter says:

"I persist in thinking that but days will elapse before Garibaldi sets foot on some part of the continent. The army is now ready, and every one agrees that its moral and material condition is everything that can be desired. The Austrians will, perhaps, recognize ere long that they have been mistaken in their appreciation of the Italians from a military point of view. This is one of the reasons which render war almost indispensable to Italy.

A nation is not really independent until the opinion of its strength is well established among its neighbors. The Austrians have not yet recognized that it is indispensable that they should. The enthusiasm for the war increases every day. It has even seized upon the young legitimists of Naples, who are enrolling themselves in Garibaldi's Guides—a select corps, in which each soldier must be the owner of his horse. These Guides are intended to act as the General's escort. Thus Garibaldi—the popular hero, the man of the revolution—will have for his guard of honor a squadron composed of princes and dukes, for the most part reared in the maxims of divine right."

A letter from Naples says:

"Many friends blame Italy for playing the desperate game in which we are engaged. The fact is, our politicians had so worked that there is no alternative. The king must abdicate if we do not fight. Blame past errors as much as we may, there is no escape from the position we are now in but a struggle for Venetia. From afar that may seem an unwise decision, but in Italy it is the only alternative."

The special correspondent of the Paris Siecle writes from Florence:

"A house in Paris which I could name has received an order to supply 400,000 pairs of shoes, to be delivered before June 10. Fifty thousand volunteer costumes have been ordered, and will be supplied in five days. Garibaldi, who up to this day had kept the profoundest silence as to the date of his arrival at the camp, has sent word to two of his old lieutenants to equip themselves immediately, and be ready to join him at the first signal. I should also tell you that, according to information I have received, the diplomatic truce is, on the whole, rather useful than injurious to Italy. A last effort was necessary to enable her to oppose to Austria a formidable front. That effort the government has been enabled to make, thanks to the attitude, patriotism and sacrifices of the nation. The call for horses has been nobly responded to. The patricians here, above all, distinguished themselves; a number of them may be cited who spontaneously offered three and even four horses. The requisition for Florence called for fifty only, but in the space of twenty-four hours two hundred and fifty were sent to the commission."

SPAIN.

Marshal O'Donnell has expressed an opinion that the year 1866 will not pass without Spain having to defend her territory.

ITALY.

In the Chamber of Deputies the first article of the bill for the suppression of all religious bodies throughout Italy was almost unanimously adopted.

AUSTRIA.

The passport system has been introduced. The Emperor has started for the headquarters of the Army of the North.

HUNGARY.

Much distrust prevails throughout the kingdom.

TURKEY.

Omar Pasha has obtained the command of the army of the Danube.

One hundred deaths from cholera had occurred at Dejeddah.

[illegible]

[illegible] Gen. Gablenz and the Duke of Augustenburg have [illegible].

RUSSIA.

On the 30th of May the Prince [illegible], with an army of 40,000 men and 21 guns, engaged a Russian force and suffered a decisive defeat. He lost 19 of his cannon, and was completely routed. The Russian loss was insignificant.

Garibaldi has arrived at Como, near the Austrian frontier. He was received with enthusiasm.

The total Prussian force is computed at 762,000 men, of whom 330,000 are in the field.

There has been no formal declaration of war as yet, but the Emperor of Austria, in a speech to the Vienna corporation, yesterday, said that, having done everything else, he was compelled to resort to the sword.

The London journals think that Austria will now consider herself justified in striking a blow, and will immediately order Benedek to commence the campaign.

The London Daily News correspondent at Florence says the first hostile movement in Italy will be to throw 80,000 men in one body across the Po, following this up by pouring 300,000 into Venetia.

The cholera had broken out in the neighborhood of Berlin.

The Swiss Federal Council had issued a decree calling out the first reserves of the Swiss army for the defence of the passes of the Alps on the side of Italy.

DOMESTIC.

New York, June 20. Four or five new cases of cholera were reported in the Fourth and Sixth wards last night, but none of them have as yet proved fatal, and they are considered convalescent.

Reports from quarantine state that the cholera is rapidly increasing on the steamer Illinois, and that it will be necessary to remove a portion of the passengers to the Peruvian, to prevent the spread of the disease.

June 21. Three new cases of cholera were reported yesterday in the city. At quarantine two new cases on board the Illinois and two deaths from cholera and one from typhoid fever have occurred since last report.

New Orleans, June 21. A Vera Cruz letter dated 13th states that the yellow fever is raging in that city fearfully.

The last steamer from Europe brought 800 troops for Maximilian.

The liberals have released twenty-eight of the Confederates captured near Cordova.

All work on the Imperial railroad to the City of Mexico has been discontinued, for want of funds and from the aggressions of the Liberals. The Imperialists have lost and abandoned most of their important cities in the interior, and the general impression is that the empire will not last long. Maximilian is in great financial distress.

It is reported that Maximilian has demanded from France an advance of money, otherwise he must lay down his arms and quit Mexico. France refused the demand and ordered Marshal Bazaine, should Maximilian leave, to take a plebiscite and ascertain the wishes of the people.

The Americans on the Cordova settlement are disheartened and preparing to return to the United States.

Tampico is surrounded and closely invested by a strong force of Liberals. The Liberals are very active in the neighborhood of Matamoras.

New York, June 22. The ship Agnes has sailed from Antwerp for New York. Eighty-one cases of cholera occurred on board of her before she sailed; fifty-six proved fatal.

Notices.

Basket Meeting.

The best possible way for the children of God to spend the "Nation's birthday," is in prayer, praise, and christian greetings; and as the Crisis has thrown upon me the responsibility of a "Basket Meeting," at the sacred spot, so hallowed with blessed associations, at Wilbraham, I will give notice, in behalf of the church at Springfield, that there will be a grove meeting on the camp-ground, on Wednesday, July 4th, conducted as follows:—Conference and love feast at 8½ A. M. Preaching at 10 and 2 o'clock. Brethren are invited to come, bringing provision for the day, and let us praise God together, not only for political freedom, which we enjoy above all other lands, but also for that "liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free."

Come, brethren, and let us get a foretaste of the approaching glorious campmeeting, which will far exceed all its predecessors in power and glory, unless we mistake the "signs of the times."

Those coming from Springfield will leave at 7½ o'clock A. M., and return about 6 P. M. RAND. E. LADD.

Basket Meeting.

The Lord willing, there will be a Basket Meeting, July 4th, near the residence of Bro. E. G. Dudley, one mile south of Wallingford Depot, Wallingford, Ct. A cordial invitation is extended to all the lovers of Jesus to come and unite with us on this day. Brn. Piper, Hitchcock, and others may be expected to preach the word.

In behalf of brethren, W. H. FISHER.

Tent Meeting in Lynn.

There will be a tent meeting in Lynn, Mass., commencing Thursday, July 5th, and hold over the following Sunday, and longer at discretion. The time of the Second Advent, together with other portions of truth connected with man's redemption, will be duly considered in the meeting, as the Lord may direct. Geo. W. Brown, C. Thompson, and S. W. Bishop, will be present to preach the word.

Grove Meeting.

There will be a grove meeting in Plainfield, Mass., near the house of J. E. Healy, commencing July 4th, and continuing over the following Sabbath. Come, brethren, far and near, with hearts filled with the love of God, and worship him in spirit and in truth. Bring your board and bedding. A shelter will be provided. Brn. H. L. Hastings, C. Goodrich, and others, are expected to preach the word. J. E. HEALY, WM. WILLCUTT, JR.

Grove Meeting at Plainfield or Savoy.

If the Lord will, we will hold a grove meeting in Plainfield, or Savoy, Mass., or wherever Brn. E. McCulloch and J. E. Healy may arrange, commencing Wednesday, July 4th, at 10 A. M., and continuing over Sunday, July 8th. We hope to see a general rally of the waiting, working ones. Come in the name and strength of Israel's God, prepared to labor in his cause, and save perishing men. H. L. HASTINGS, C. GOODRICH.

Fourth of July Meeting.

Our annual meeting on the Fourth of July next will be held in Kingston, N. H., in a pleasant grove near my house. Come, my brethren and sisters in Christ, and unite with us in giving praise to God for the prospect of speedy redemption. Who of God's ministers will come and break the bread of life to us? Eld. Cyrus Cunningham is expected to be with us. Meeting to commence at 10 o'clock A. M. For the church, F. GALE.

Agreement.

The R. I. and E. Ct. Conference will hold its next session at River Point, R. I., commencing Wednesday, July 4th, at 2 o'clock P. M. We have agreed to be there punctually at the time appointed. We have agreed to be present daily until after the Lord's day following. Ministers, delegates, and friends of this Conference, come join in this agreement, that we may make punctual and constant attendance the habit of our precious quarterly gathering. H. F. CARPENTER, Clerk.

Grove Meeting.

The Lord willing, there will be a grove meeting held in the south part of Exeter, Me., on land belonging to Bro. S. Turner, commencing June 29th, 2 o'clock P. M., and continue over the following Sunday, and longer as the Lord may direct. The object of this meeting is [illegible], and we earnestly request the prayers of the brethren and sisters that the Lord will bless. We urgently request all who can to attend, especially preachers of the word and laborers in the vineyard. S. HARMON.

Meetings.

Brother [illegible] (D. V.) holds meetings at Danielsonville, Ct., on the second and fourth Sundays of every month, and at [illegible], Ct., on the first and third Sundays of every month. [illegible] present [illegible] H. F. CARPENTER.

Notice.

[illegible] I would like to preach [illegible] Wilbraham [illegible] Mass., till July 8th. H. K. FLAGG.

[illegible] Meni [illegible]

Wis. Adv. Conf. Conference.

The third quarterly meeting of the Wisconsin Advent Christian Conference will be held in the town of Henrietta, Richland county, Wis., in the vicinity of Bro. B. [illegible]'s, to commence July 6th, and hold over the Lord's Day. As this is [illegible] a new place, and no interest has been awakened here in the cause of the Master, brethren will please make a little extra effort to be there, and at the first of the meeting. A number of preaching brethren will be there to preach the word of life. Come up, brethren, in the spirit of the Master. Your help is needed at this meeting, that sinners may be brought to God and prepared for the Savior's coming. We have but a short time to work, and, O, how much we shall desire the Master to say, Well done.

GEO. W. TURNER, Clerk of Con.

Minnesota Annual Conference.

The fourth annual session of the Minnesota Advent Christian Conference will be held (Providence not preventing) on Saturday, June 30th, at ten o'clock A. M., in the New Boston school-house, in Winona County, and will continue over the following Sunday. Ministers and delegates representing the different churches within the State, are requested to attend. I expect Bro. Sheldon will be present with the Advent Tabernacle. J. E. ALLEN, Sec'y.

Notice.

I hereby give notice to all concerned, that the fourth annual grove meeting will be held in Springwater, N. Y., commencing June 29th, 1866, and holding over Sunday, July 1st, on the same spot fitted up by Father Lyman Morris (deceased), on his farm. Let due preparations be made by the friends there, a general notice be given, and may many brethren and sisters attend, both ministers and laymen, and may much good be the result, for which let us pray. In behalf of the brethren, C. F. SWEET.

Tent Meeting at Prescott, Wis.

We expect to pitch the "Advent Tabernacle" at Prescott, Wisconsin, July 12th. Let the friends from the other side of the Mississippi River attend if they can. Eld. Hough is to be with me. WM. SHELDON.

Union Meeting.

If the Lord will, there will be a union meeting held on the 4th day of July next, at Leonard Wiggin's barn, or a grove near by Wednesday Hill, Lee, N. H. Come one, come all.

For the Brethren, GEO. H. CHURCHILL, Lawrence, Mass.

Grove Meeting.

There will be a grove meeting at Athens, Me., July 4th and 5th, on the farm of Mr. Gancelo Hathorn. All are invited. L. L. HOWARD, CHAS. STRATTON.

Notice.

Eld. William J. Blanchard, of Savoy, Mass., is requested to be in Hoosick, N. Y., June 30th and over the 4th of July. E. L. HARRISON.

Notice.

There will be a meeting, the Lord willing, July 4th, 1866, to be held in the old meeting-house at Bridgewater Corners, Bridgewater, Vt. Brethren, pray for us. GEO. A. STREETER.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon, otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON.

Israel Damman .... Sunday, July 1st
John G. Hook .... Sunday, July 8th and onward.

EAST BOSTON
(Chapel, corner of London and Decatur Streets.)
C. Goodrich .... Sunday, July 1st

Charlestown, (53 Maine Street) .... Lord's day, July 1st
T. P. GOODWIN.

Exeter, N. H. .... Sunday, July 8th
MILES GRANT.

New Bedford, Mass .... Lord's day, July 1st
L. C. MCKINSTRY.

Lawrence, Mass., (Appleton Hall, corner of Essex and Lawrence Streets), Sunday, July 1st.
C. RICHARDSON.

Worcester, Mass. .... Wednesday evening, July 11th
Charlestown, Mass., (53 Main Street), Sunday, July 15th
S. C. HANCOCK.

Vernon, Vt. .... Sunday, July 1st and most of the week, if desired.
Andover, Vt. .... Sunday, July 8th and as much longer as profitable.
H. HADLOCK.

West Gloucester, R. I., the first and third Sundays in each month, at 10½ A. M., and 1½ P. M.
E. BELLOWS.

Deerfield, N. H., (near John M. Quimby's) Sunday, July 1st. Brethren in adjoining towns are requested to come. Subject,—Time of our Lord's coming.
S. W. BISHOP.

Bridgewater, Vt. .... July 1st and 8th
Plymouth, Vt. .... July 15th
Houghtonville, Vt. .... July 16th
Whitinghamville, Vt. .... July 17th and 18th
West Brattleboro, Vt. .... July 19th and 20th
Northfield, Mass .... July 22d
North Dana, Mass .... July 29th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Thomaston, Ct., (where Bro. Cornell may arrange), Sunday, July 1st.
A. DECKER.

Jackson, Tioga Co., Pa., (two days' meeting), August 17th, and over Sunday.
Canton, Pa. .... August 22d
and over Sunday following.
J. W. TAYLOR.
C. F. SWEET.

Sparta, Wis., (as brethren may arrange) .... July 19th
and over Sunday.
West Salem, Wis. .... July 26th and over Lord's day.
I. R. PRESTON.

Litchfield, Chestnut Hill, Ct., as Br. Abbey E. Baldwin may arrange, Sunday, July 1st.
East Hartland, Ct. .... Thursday evening, July 12th
East Granville, Friday evening, July 13th, at Bro. S. Herrick's, Saturday evening, July 14th, at Bro. S. Ostley's, Lord's day, July 15th, at the school-house in Bro. Ostley's district, Lord's day evening, Blanford, Mass., at Bro. David Bates', or as he may arrange.
Monday evening, July 16th, Westfield, Mass., as Br. Marie M. Weaver may arrange.
H. ROCKWELL.

Guilford, N. H., (in Jacob Wilkinson's barn), July 4th. Love feast at 9 A. M. We hope to meet many of the friends of Jesus.
Lake Village .... July 5th, at 8 P. M.
JOHN G. HOOK.

Walbridge .... Sunday, July 1st
Warehousepoint .... Sunday, July 8th
E. OWEN.

Schodac .... Sunday, July 1st
Warner Gore, 2 P. M., at Bro. Andrews' .... July 1st
Bradford .... Sunday, July 8th
Pine Ground .... Sunday, July 15th
C. W. SARGENT.

Harwinton, Ct. .... Sunday, July 8th
Will Bro. Barber come again to Terryville Station evening of July 7th?
E. WOODRUFF.

Halifax .... Sunday, July 1st
July 8th not engaged.
H. MUNGER.

New Hampton, N. H., (Straight's School-house, or as Bro. [illegible] may arrange), July 8th.
T. B. LANE, JR.

Vernon, Vt. .... Sunday, July 8th
E. DOTEN.

Durham, Ct. .... Sunday, July 1st
D. D. WORCESTER.

Salisbury, N. H., (South Road Methodist Chapel) Sabbath, July 1st.
[illegible], N. H. .... Sunday, July 8th
T. M. PREBLE.

[illegible], N. H. .... Sunday, July 1st
H. F. WALKER.

[illegible]

[illegible] .... July 1st
[illegible] .... July 8th
[illegible]

[illegible] JOSEPH W. THOMAS.

[illegible]

South Norfolk, Ct., Saturday evening, June 30th, and Sunday, July 1st, as Bro. Tibbal's may appoint.
SAMUEL M. TATHAM.
SETH WOODRUFF.

CONCORD, N. H., (Auditors Hall.)

John G. Hook .... Sunday, July 1st
C. C. Ramsey .... Sunday, July 8th
J. H. F. Varney .... Sunday, July 15th
J. D. Smith .... Sunday, July 22d
J. Pinkham .... Sunday, July 29th

Sunapee (South meeting-house) .... Sunday, July 1st
Hartland, Vt., (Dinsmore Hill) .... July 8th
J. COUCH.

Lovell Street .... Sunday, July 1st
Wrightsville .... Sunday, July 8th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

Northwood Narrows, Saturday, 4 P. M., June 30th, over the Lord's day, July 1st, and longer if thought best.
E. P. MARSTEN.

NATICK, MASS., (SCHOOL-HOUSE HALL.)
C. C. Ramsey .... Sunday, July 1st
J. M. Mabie .... Sunday, July 8th
This is a new field. Preaching brethren travelling this way will please remember the brethren here. Their numbers are few, and they are poor, but they need help.
F. M. MORRIS.

East Bowdoinham .... Sunday, July 1st
CLARENDON GREENE.

Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, July 1st
Haverhill, Mass .... Sunday, July 8th
Great Falls, N. H. .... Sunday, July 15th
Biddeford, Me. .... Sunday, July 22d
If these conflict with others, write me at Dover, N. H., immediately.
J. PINKHAM.

Glenmore, N. Y. .... Sunday, July 1st
Vienna, N. Y., (Look school-house), 2 P. M., July 8th
C. M. WILLIAMS.

West Marlborough .... Sunday, July 1st
Copenhagen .... Sunday, July 8th
Let there be a good turn out in the vicinity of these meetings.
C. B. TURNER.

CONCORD, N. H.
(Corner of Green and Center Streets.)
Timothy Cole .... July 1st and 8th
J. Couch .... Sunday, July 15th
H. Munger .... July 22d and 29th

Great Falls, N. H. .... Sunday, July 1st
Northwood Narrows .... Sunday, July 15th
London Ridge .... Sunday, July 22d
J. G. SMITH.

Manchester, N. H. .... Lord's day, July 1st
C. C. STEVENS.

Chichester Pine Ground .... Sunday, July 1st
L. YOUNG.

Lynn, Mass. .... Sunday, July 1st
Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, July 8th
J. S. WHITE.

Canaan .... July 1st
L. DAMMAN.

Tolerville, Ct. .... Sunday, July 1st
Cheshire Street, Ct. .... Sunday, July 8th
New Preston appointment recalled.
CHAS. E. PIPER.
SAMUEL M. TATHAM.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

To F. Burr—We think Bower's History of the Popes is the best work on the subject. It is composed of three octavo volumes. They are scarce now, and we do not know the price.

M. G. S. It was forwarded June 22d.

F. A. Baker—Your correction came too late.

A. S. Collie—You were credited right on book, $2.00, paid to No. 564.

P. W. Mattie—The $2.00 for M. D. Webb was received and credited; paid to No. 557.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 560. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness. If less than 26 weeks, charge five cents; if more than 26 weeks, six cents. From the product (which will be a fraction over the actual indebtedness) deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.25 each—T Hardy 573, E J Hodges 564, J Lewis 584, J B Kingsbury 553, S A Bartlett 577, A Hodsdon 536, C P Johnson 556, J M. Hackett 579, E Blaisdell 553, M Heath 586, B L White 569, M A Arnold 579, J Grout 563, S Bush 560, L Dills 566, C Sweet 515, E M Lyon 604, R D Lyon 604, B W Woolcot 607. L Sterling 578, J Richard 583.

$2.00 each—A C Haley 609, R Jones 590, C E Cook, 50 546, H Bland 608, M Andrews 572, A Bell 587.

$2.50 each—J Haley 602, P H Whitaker 599, E T Church 568, H P Tucker 608, E H Watkins 544, T J Osm 611, L Jones 614, J G Smith 608, J Purrington 608, A C Perkins 612, E C Haynes 603, S Webster 612, S Newton 612, E D Lyon 604, J Ezerereca 593, D Miller 612, H H Mummy 607, J F Martin 613, G W Arnold 612, J C Potter 607

$3.00 each—C Boutwell 396, H Arnold 575, J C Gordon 622, G S Gordon 641, J Hooper 495, J J Johnson 571, N Woodruff 539.

Various Sums.—W. G. Churchill $1.60, 575; J N Moores $3.00, 567; N L Brooks $3.00, 636, M. B. Cy phere 90c, 560; J G. Page $3.00, 583; J Elliott $3.00, 583; S P Matthews $6.00, 613; W P Connell 40c, 560; G Gregory $1.88, 566; I d Bickford 39c, 547.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

D L Allyn 60c, G. S. Haynie (all right) 25c, W. W Graham $1.00, C Boutwell $4.50, W D Higley $1.18, C S Hall 91c, W G Churchill 60c, F. A. Foster $1.21, A B Falrash $1.41, I Bean $1.20, S G Rhoades $1.00, H Beach 55c, H A Arnold $1.45, E Shaits $1.50.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL.—M Richardson, D L Allyn, E Eden, A M Damon, C S Hall, F. A. Foster, S P Shepherd, W G Churchill, A S Butters, E F Treat, N L Brooks, A B Fairash, I Bean, S G Rhoades, H Beach, M A Arnold, H Lawrence.

BY EXPRESS.—L. C. Welleome, W. G. Higley.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

C W Thurman, H Curtiss, B Mathewson, J C Rogers, P Tandy, B Spaulding, A H Walker, L C McKinstry, H Munger, J Bland, J W Taylor, L W Bragg, M K Paine, H Pratt, D Crouch, A D Wilkinson, E B Woodworth, D. G. M.

ADDRESS OF PREACHING BRETHREN.

C. E. Piper—41 Grove Street, Boston, Mass.

C. Goodrich—40 Marion Street, East Boston, Mass.

Bro. A. W. Sibley has removed from East Boston to Lincoln, N. H. All letters should be addressed to the latter place.

H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.
L. Boswell—Salem, Mass.
I. H. Potter—Somerville, Ct.
Wm. H. Fisher—Ashfield, Mass.
H. F. Carpenter—Danielsonville, Ct.
F. A. Baker—North Searsport, Me.
Joseph W. White—Somersworth, N. H.
D H Bansemer—Wayne, Me.
E. Hardman—Loomis, N. H.
J. G. Smith—New Durham, N. H.
J. Partridge—Richmond, Me.
C. H. Lovelton—Surry, Hancock Co., Me.
O. D. Gibson—Amboy, Ill.
I. R. Preston—Prairie du Sac, Sauk Co., Wis.
E. J. W[illegible]—Wallingford, Ct.
C. C. Stevens—Exeter, N. H.
L. C. McKinstry—Lynn, Mass., until July 1st.
John T. Gurley—Lincolnville, Crawford Co., Pa.
S. W. Daniels—Springfield, Mass.
G. W. Turner—West Point, Wis.
C. F. Dow—My P. O. address for United States' correspondents will be hereafter Franklin, Pt.
Wm. McCulloch—New Rutland, Ill.
P. W. Hough—Oneonta(?), Iowa.
Mrs. Abigail Massey—Hillsburgh, Nova Scotia.
G. W. Stetson—Olena, Huron Co., Ohio, until Sept.
Wm. A. Fisher—Oakfield, Genesee Co., N. Y.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
E. A. [illegible], Green Co., Wis.
[illegible]—North Hampton, Me.
C. B. Turner—South Butler, Wayne Co., N. Y.
S. G. Haynie—Pontoosuc(?), Conn.
Samuel Curry—Station E, New York.
S. T. Babcock—[illegible], R. I.
Josiah Douglas—Wadley's Falls, N. H.
H. Pratt—Springfield, Mass., 8 Cedar St.
Jacob Wilson—Box 360, Janesville, Rock Co., Wis.
F. H. Berrick, Missionary—Residence 2 W. Cor. 7th and Spring Garden Streets, Philadelphia, Penn.
Mrs. Alma E. Smith—No. 260 Grand Avenue [illegible] East 12d Street, New York City.
Dr. R. B. [illegible], Memphis, Tenn.
Martha S. Butler—Box 69, Memphis, Tenn.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT.—The Common English Version, as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union. [illegible]

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the [illegible]

THE PROPHETIC TIME QUESTION, [illegible]

THE BIBLE [illegible]

VISIONS OF [illegible] E. F. Smith and Wm. H. Richardson. 20c.

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE

ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY

No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Works on the Prophecies,—The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, etc.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES; or, A Glance at Christendom as it is. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. By D. T. Taylor. Cloth, $1.50; paper, 50c.

THESSALONICA, the Model Church, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, by H. L. Hastings; and SPIRITUALISM, by Dr. Ramsey. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. With various tracts. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

MATTHEW XXIV. AND XXV. An Exposition, showing Christ's Predictions fulfilled, and his Kingdom near. By I. C. Wellcome. 25c; by mail, 27c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 1, By S. S. Brewer. 7c; by mail, 8c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 2, By S. S. Brewer. 11c; by mail, 12c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 3, By S. S. Brewer. 11c; by mail, 12c.

REASONS FOR MY HOPE; or, Tokens of Speedy Redemption. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD, and Signs of the Times. By S. S. Brewer. 15c; by mail, 16c.

THESSALONICA; or, The Model Church. By H. L. Hastings. 10c.

REVELATIONS XIII.; a treatise. By S. S. Brewer. 15c; by mail, 16c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. By H. L. Hastings. 15c.

SPIRITUALISM a Satanic Delusion. By Wm. Ramsay, D. D. 25c.

THE SEVEN SEALS. Exposition of Rev. vi. By S. S. Brewer. 15c; by mail, 16c.

LOOKING FORWARD; or, Prospects of the Church. By H. L. Hastings. 10c.

THE DAY OF THE LORD: The Lord come to settle. By S. S. Brewer. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CELESTIAL RAILROAD; or, Modern Pilgrim's Progress. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 15c; by mail, 16c.

THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE GREAT IMAGE soon to be dashed to pieces. By S. S. Brewer. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the times of Daniel and John. Mounted on Rollers, by express, $3.00; on Cloth, by mail, $4.00.

THE REIGN OF MESSIAH, the King of the Jews, on the Throne of his Father David; its Nature, and the Time of its Commencement. By Wm. Sheldon. 8c; by mail, 10c.

Works on Future Punishment, etc.

DEBT AND GRACE; or, The Doctrine of a Future Life. By C. F. Hudson. A very able and learned work. $1.50.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. Cloth, 75c; paper, 40c.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT as taught in the Scriptures. Comprising Positive Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, Old Paths, etc. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

STATE OF THE DEAD, and Punishment of the Wicked. A Discussion between Miles Grant and W. Clayton. 20c, by mail, 25c.

ETERNAL SUFFERING. A Discussion between Miles Grant and Dr. J. Litch. 20c; by mail, 25c.

RETRIBUTION; or, The Doom of the Ungodly. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, The Destruction of the Wicked established, and Endless Misery disproved. By Jacob Blain. 25c; by mail, 28c.

PAULINE THEOLOGY; or, The Christian Doctrine of Future Punishment, as taught in the Epistles of Paul. [illegible] 10c.

GLAD TIDINGS; or, The End of Woe and Sin by the Destruction of the Wicked. (Three chapters from "Death not Life.") By J. Blain. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE OLD PATHS; or, The Primitive Doctrine of a Future Life. By H. L. H. 10c.

IMMORTAL SOUL THEOLOGY vs. BIBLE. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

WHAT IS MAN? A Bible View of his Creation. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SOUL. What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c, by mail, 7c.

THE SPIRIT; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c, by mail, 7c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. Thief on the Cross, etc. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE DOCTRINE OF ENDLESS MISERY an occasion of Scepticism. 5c, by mail, 6c.

ETERNAL DEATH is the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. 5c; by mail, 6c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. With remarks on Josephus. By C. F. Hudson. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE RIGHTS OF WRONG; or, Is Evil Eternal? By C. F. Hudson. 5c, by mail, 6c.

ENDLESS MISERY not a Bible Doctrine. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE WICKED NOT IMMORTAL—(with 200 proof-texts.) 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING OF THE WORD HELL. 3c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING of Forever and Everlasting. 3c; by mail, 4c.

SMOKE OF TORMENT and Unquenchable Fire Explained. 1c; by mail, 2c.

REV. JOHN FOSTER'S LETTER on Future Punishment. 1c, by mail, 2c.

Miscellaneous.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF CHRISTIAN HOLINESS; A Sermon, by W. H. Platt. 15c.

THE DAY AND THE HOUR: a Lecture, by Joseph A. Seiss, D. D. 14c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.25. Cloth, $1.75, by mail, $2.07.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five colored Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.35. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75, by mail, $2.00.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.60; by mail, $1.70.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Efficacy of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. $1.75, by mail, $2.00.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter. $1.00, by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or the Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE BIBLE FROM HEAVEN, or, a Dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. 25c; by mail, 30c.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM; its Duty and Objects. By I. C. Wellcome. 20c, postpaid; $1.50 per dozen.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK; for Families and Sunday Schools. 15c; by mail, 18c; $1.50 per dozen; postage, 8c. on every three copies.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS FIGHT? or, Thoughts on War. By I. C. Wellcome. 10c.

AMERICA IN PROPHECY; an Exposition of Isaiah XVIII. By O. R. Fassett. 25c; by mail, 30c.

EVERY-BODY'S BOOK; the Philosophy of God; The Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By F. A. Daniels. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CHRISTIAN LYRE; a Collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. 50c; by mail, 60c.

HOW TO COOK—without Salt, Butter, Lard, or Condiments. By Mrs. Mary E. Cox, M. D. 30c, postpaid.

COOKERY; or How to prepare food from Grains, Fruits and Vegetables. By F. W. Hurd, M. D. 25c; by mail, 27c.

PREMATURE DECAY of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE OLD AND NEW COVENANT—description of, the New. By A. W. Sibley. 5c; by mail, 6c.

EXPERIENCE AND OBSERVATIONS of a Medical Man(?). By F. B. Chamberlain. [illegible]

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament, according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlineary Word-for-word Translation, etc. etc. Leather, $4.00, by mail, $4.34. Extra gilt, $5.00; by mail, $5.34. Morocco, $6.00; by mail, $6.34.

CHLOE LANKTON, or Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75c; by mail, 85c.

NONRESISTANCE. By W. C. Thurman. 25c; by mail, [illegible]

DIPHTHERIA; Its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By [illegible]

GLAD TIDINGS: Words by [illegible]

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. [illegible]

BETHLEHEM: [illegible]

SOCIAL HYMNS. Original and Selected. By H. L. H. [illegible]

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. [illegible]

RAHAB THE HARLOT. [illegible]

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. By L. F. Gilbert(?). [illegible]

OUR MISSION WORK. [illegible]

EXPERIENCE OF THOMAS H. SMITH, [illegible]

[illegible]

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS, [illegible] Various Offices in the work of [illegible] and in the Administration of the Government of God. By Wm. Shepherd. 25c.

never have any such temptation. Let us stop and call to mind the words of Paul, that "no temptation" has "taken you but such as is common to man," and he "will, with the temptation also make a way to escape, that" we "may be able to bear it." Again we read, "blessed is the man that endureth temptation," not the one that escapes temptation. Jesus says, "be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." He sent us word after his ascension, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me on my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." Can we believe and take him at his word? "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." And the moving principle is love to God, and all mankind. When we see the final destiny of the human race so near, our cry is day and night, Save a few more, and help us to be in the place where we can labor together with the Lord, in trying to persuade all we can. Don't let us sleep. Arouse, and let us look upon the field. Are they not almost white for the harvest? But laborers are truly few. O Lord, burden a few more with the word of life to a fallen, dying race, is my prayer.

In Surry, Me., there are a few sisters who try to keep up meetings from week to week, and feel the blessing of the Lord in so doing. Of late we have had a few more sisters join us; but not one brother to assist us yet. We hope there will soon be pilgrims who will help together by prayer. Do pray for them.

Your sister in the hope of the gospel, expecting to see its consummation next year, 1867, L. W. BRAGG.

Bangor, Me.

From Bro. B. W. Wilkins.

DEAR BRETHREN AND SISTERS:—Let me say to you what can be done by visiting the poor and needy in New York city. Here is one incident out of many. I went to a house in —— street, knocked at the door; "Come in," sounded clear; door opened. How do you do? "Very well," was the reply. Will you have a tract?" "Yes, sir," was the reply. Do you love the Lord? "No, sir," or, "No, I don't." I am glad that you are honest. Do you not think you ought to love him? "Yes, I ought to, because he is good to me, and when I do love him, I do not want to love him in the winter, and leave him in the summer, as many do." That is right. Will you love him if he will help you? "Yes, I will love him now, if he will help me." I told her that he would. I then left three tracts; one was called "The Happy Escape." I did not pray with her, but prayed for the family.

I went back into the neighborhood one week afterwards, and the neighbors said to me, "Did you not leave some tracts in that woman's house the other day?" Yes. "The whole family are converted since you left them, and you must go and see them." I went, and as soon as they saw me, the man, who had the child in his lap, sprang to his feet,—"How do you do?" and threw the child from him. I thought it would fall on the floor, but it fell in the cradle; and he, with both arms, clasped me around the neck and kissed me. I said, how is this? old times are coming back again; men kissing men. He said, "Bless God that you ever came to my house and left those tracts. We are all happy." By this time his wife came running from the other room, with both hands up in the air, and said, "I have got him," over twenty times, with a full heart and tears running down her face. "O bless God in the highest, that you ever came here to tell us about the love of God. I have got him. Glory, glory, I know he loves me now. Sins and the devil all are gone. I have got him,"—pointing her fingers to her husband—"and him, too; did you ever see the like? How good the Lord is to me. I will never leave him now, winter nor summer. Happy day to me and all my family, glory to his sweet name forever. Praise him, my brother, that he led you to my door. O bless his name forever, that he sent you here." It was heavenly to witness this scene. To God be all the glory.

It was hard to get away from them. How much good is being done by the tracts distributed by Sisters A. E. Smith, Boyd, and Francis, and myself, will not be known until the day when the Lord shall come to make up his jewels. Praise our God, all people.—Amen. B. W. WILKINS.

New York.

From Sr. A. E. Clark.

DEAR SISTERS:—You who have pleasant homes, surrounded with all the comforts of life, with your little ones around you, who have never had a want uncared for, think of those less favored. Think, for a moment, of the little half-starved, half-clad, homeless children, that are to-day wandering through the streets of Philadelphia, exposed to the most dreadful sins. Do they not need a home where kind friends may care for them? God has raised them up a friend. One that is willing to sacrifice all for the cause of Christ. May God ever bless him in his labors of love. Bro. Burbank now cheerfully offers the greater part of his library for sale, to assist in purchasing a home for these little destitute wanderers. He needs these books. Shall we not all lend a helping hand, that we may save our brother from making this sacrifice, and help what we can towards paying for the little wanderer's home?

Let us help bear one another's burden. We can all do something. Let it be done cheerfully, and now. There is a glorious reward in denying self, that we may help in the blessed work of our Redeemer. May our mites be forthcoming, that the heart of our brother may be cheered; and may he have our sympathies and our prayers, to encourage him on in every good work.

Your sister in Christ, A. E. CLARK.

From Bro. D. [illegible]

BRO. GRANT:—[illegible] subscription is nearly ended, and we like to read our own paper, you will find enclosed five dollars for the Crisis for one year. Without flattering you as the editor, or any of the writers in this blessed paper, I can say, that it is the best paper I ever read; and as I live in this ungodly town, without christian friends, and without any preaching that is worth listening to, I can truly say that this messenger of truth, light and life, always gives me joy, when I read what can be called plain, Bible talk. O what gladness did I enjoy, when this paper was put in my hand, by a man that I trust is a christian and loves the truth. [illegible] I rejoiced when I learned that there were more of God's children who did not believe in a never-dying soul, before the coming of the Life-giver. [illegible]

Pelley [illegible] which had [illegible] on the mortality of man, was translated by a friend into our Holland language, because most of the members of our church could not read it. It was received with great joy and thankfulness toward God. We were denounced as heretics by the other churches, but this they could not prove with our standard, the Bible. They have put two of their members out of their church, because they believed that when a man dies he goes to the grave, and stays there until the resurrection. They called us "soul-sleepers," and "deniers of the regeneration," because we did not believe as they did, that when a sinner is converted he receives immortality, and goes to heaven when he dies. This they tried to prove, when they failed to prove that man was created with an immortal soul.

I am sure that they would all take the Crisis, if they could read it; for in most parts it agrees with what we believe.

Portland, Oregon. D. VESTERO.

From Bro. B. Spaulding.

BRO. GRANT:—It would be natural for friends to want to know what has become of Bro. Spaulding. Well, I am at home, disabled by prostration of the nervous system from being able to labor as I formerly have done. But, run down as I am, I yet remember my brethren and sisters who have treated me with so much hospitality, and hope to meet them again in that country where the inhabitants will not say, I am sick; where old age and infirmity will not be known; where the weary will be at rest, and all tears wiped away; where God himself shall dwell with men, and we shall see him whom having not seen we love; and rejoice in him with joy unspeakable and full of glory. Where we shall see and enjoy the earth restored to its original state of beauty and glory.

In my depressed state of mind, I am happy to receive letters from my brethren and friends scattered abroad; and I feel grateful to those who have communicated with me in my infirm state. The good Lord bless them, is my prayer. Be diligent, brethren, be faithful; hope to the end; keep your eyes open to the signs of the times, and your hearts in order; your lamps trimmed, your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all, take the shield of faith, the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit. Pray for me, that I may yet live to praise God and honor his name. B. SPAULDING.

Chelmsford, Mass., June 16th, 1866.

From Bro. G. A. Streeter.

BRO. GRANT:—I am here again, and the Lord is still carrying on his work. The interest has not abated since I left last winter. Numbers are being added, such as shall be saved. Over one hundred have professed Christ. Glory to God. Yesterday, the 10th inst., we had a good time speaking. The brethren and sisters are strong in God, expecting redemption soon. My heart says, praise our God. Signs tell us that we shall soon be home, where the weary will be at rest. Praise God for the light. We have but little time to work. Let us be ready, and do all he requires of us.

Thy Bro., looking for and hasting unto the coming of Christ, GEO. A. STREETER.

Bridgewater, Vt., June 11th, 1866.

Obituaries.

MORRILL. Died in Newburyport, Mass., June 7th, 1866, Miss Harriet Morrill, aged fifty-nine.

Sister Morrill was born in Westbrook, Me., but removed to this city about twenty years since. She was converted when about nineteen years old. When Father Miller lectured in Portland, in 1841, she received the Advent faith with all her soul, and she frankly confessed it wherever she went. Her religion, as one remarked at her funeral, was of a positive character. She was a decided christian.

She loved the doctrine of the word of God relating to Christ's kingdom and appearing, and longed with ardent desire to see the consummation of the plan of redemption. She loved God's people with a pure heart, fervently; and many who were acquainted with her, will feel in regard to her that the memory of the just is blessed.

After she appeared to be struck with death, I was sent for, and on entering the chamber, and approaching her bedside, she said to me, "O, I am happy. Praise the Lord." Her countenance was lit up with joy, and she continued to speak of God's ways, and her love to them and his people, and especially spoke as though she would like to see Elder Hastings. She could hardly believe that she was dying, as she was so much easier than she had been during her sickness. The hour spent in that room seemed to be one beyond the common walks of life, quite on the verge of heaven. We feel her loss, but, as she expressed it, her sleep will be but a short nap before she awakes in the likeness of the glorious Redeemer. HENRY LUNT, JR.

Advent Herald please copy.

HOWARD. Died in Hebron, N. Y., of consumption, June 11th, 1864, Hattie M., daughter of Warren and Isabel Howard, aged eighteen years.

Though young in years, yet she had made the Savior her choice, and bore her lingering sickness with fortitude and patience. She sleeps in Jesus.

HOWARD. Died of consumption, in Hebron, N. Y., March 11th, 1866, Annie, daughter of Warren and Isabel Howard, aged thirty years.

Annie was a consistent christian, and though she suffered much and long under the fatal disease which finally destroyed her life, yet she was sustained by her blessed hope in the coming of the Lord, and the resurrection. She rests in peace.

Our brother and sister Howard have spent many long and weary days and nights in watching over and waiting upon their beloved daughters, during their protracted illness. Their affliction has been severe, and their anxieties and tears many; but they sorrow in hope. Thanks be to God for his supporting grace, and hope of life everlasting. O. R. FASSETT.

FORSYTH. Died at Rouses Point, N. Y., June 7th, 1866, Bro. Robert Forsyth, aged eighty-seven years.

Our aged brother was a native of Scotland, but for nearly fifty years has been a respected and beloved resident of this place; an honest man, hence God's noblest work. For some fifteen years, he remained with the Baptist church, of Champlain, but since 1843 has been one with us, who look for our Lord soon to come. He was an ardent lover of good reading, and the house of God, and his testimony to an unswerving faith and hope in Christ on his dying bed, was very gratifying to the writer, who visited and prayed with him; as also to his kindred, who wept over his dissolution. May his mantle fall upon those who are left. Bro. F. is the seventh Adventist who has died in old Champlain within one short year. "We all do fade as a leaf." D. T. T.

WENDAL. Died at Portsmouth, N. H., June [illegible], Sister Nancy, wife of Bro. John Wendal, aged fifty-two years.

Sister Wendal suffered through a lingering and distressing illness, with christian patience and resignation. She gave her heart to Christ some thirty years since, and united with the Freewill Baptist church; but subsequently embraced the doctrine of the near coming of Christ, and lived and died in its belief. Prayer by Bro. G. Goodrich. Sermon by the writer, from Prov. 14: 32. JOS. W. WHITE.

CHILD. Died in Worcester, Mass., June 2d, 1866, Benjamin N. Child, aged seventy years and two months.

Thus one after another of our old and tried friends are departing from us, leaving us to fight the battle of life behind them. Bro. Child was one of the earliest to embrace the doctrine of the pre-Millenial Advent of the Savior in Worcester, and has stood fast in the faith to the time of his death. For the last few months his growing infirmities admonished himself and his friends that his dissolution drew near. But it did not find him unprepared. With resignation to the will of God, and in peace of mind and glorious hope of a part in the resurrection of the just, he fell asleep in Jesus, to await the sound of the archangel's trump.

The writer spoke at his funeral, from the words of Paul, 2 Cor. 4: 17, 18. May the God of peace bless the widow and surviving children. J. LITCH.

SMITH. Died in Holderness, N. H., June 14th, Perlina M. Smith, daughter of Bro. Daniel Smith, aged twenty-one years, three months, and twenty days.

Perlina, although a believer in the great and glorious truths taught by Adventists, had never confessed it before the world; but during her last sickness she most heartily confessed Christ unto salvation, and quietly fell asleep in Jesus, expecting to sleep until he comes.

The funeral was attended by the writer, who endeavored to answer, by the word of God, the question asked by Job 14: 14,—"If a man die shall he live again?" T. W. PIPER.

Married.

In Danville, June 13th, 1866, by Eld. F. Burr, Mr. EDWARD SANDERSON, of West Barre, Orleans Co., N. Y., and Miss CHARLOTTE A. MOORE, of Danville.

In Fisherville, N. H., June 18th, by Rev. Mr. Fisk, Dr. H. W. BUXTON, of Worcester, Mass., and Miss LIZZIE H. DUBOIS, of Fisherville, N. H.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

FRANCE.

The government journals of France are severe in their comments upon the conduct of Austria in preventing the assembling of the conference; but this indignation is thought to be assumed merely for the purpose of more forcibly introducing the sentiment that, "come what may, the Emperor Napoleon has clean hands, and did his utmost to preserve the peace of Europe."

The Paris correspondent of the Brussels Independance says:

"France will not immediately assemble an army on the East, or on the Rhine, but she will take measures which, in case of necessity, would enable her to have 100,000 men at the nearest point in three days' time. For this purpose the railway companies have been directed to concentrate the largest quantity possible of the rolling stock at the termini of the Seine. This direction which was simply a notification, is now to be made an imperial order."

The Paris correspondent of the London Star writes:

At the last hour it is reported to me that Napoleon III. intends asking the Corps Legislatif for a loan of five hundred millions to ensure the safety of the country."

AUSTRIA.

It is stated that an agreement has been concluded between Austria and Turkey, by which the latter power undertakes to defend the Austrian coast of the Adriatic against any hostile invasion.

It is reported that Russia has really concluded a treaty of alliance with Austria, and that Turkey is satisfied with that arrangement. The Presse, which gives the information, adds that when war breaks out, Russian and Turkish troops will jointly occupy the Principalities and take care that Austria is not molested in that quarter. This alliance, it is thought, explains the sudden alienation of the Czar from the policy of the King of Prussia, and the strong feelings entertained by the Emperor of Russia in reference to the throne of Roumania.

A Vienna letter says:

"The dispatch of troops to the north is continuous and uninterrupted. Regiments are forwarded from all quarters for concentration on the Prussian frontier. Some idea may be formed of the immense concentration of troops in that quarter from the fact that the railway directors have received instructions to be prepared to transport 40,000 men to augment the army of the north. Admiral Tegethoff, who has assumed the command of the Austrian fleet, has addressed the officers and men, calling upon them to display their patriotism and courage in the event of a war.

Pope Pius IX., it is said, regards the war as a providential interference for his special benefit. His Holiness considers that in the presence of war it is impossible for France to withdraw her troops from Rome, and that that city will be the best possible place for an army of observation, which France will most certainly dispatch to the Italian frontier.

A Florence letter says:

"I persist in thinking that but days will elapse before Garibaldi sets foot on some part of the continent. The army is now ready, and every one agrees that its moral and material condition is everything that can be desired. The Austrians will, perhaps, recognize ere long that they have been mistaken in their appreciation of the Italians from a military point of view. This is one of the reasons which render war almost indispensable to Italy.

A nation is not really independent until the opinion of its strength is well established among its neighbors. The Austrians have not yet recognised this; it is indispensable that they should. The enthusiasm for the war increases every days It has even seized upon the young legitimists of Naples, who are enrolling themselves in Garibaldi's Guides—a select corps, in which each soldier must be the owner of his horse. These Guides are intended to act as the General's escort. Thus Garibaldi—the popular hero, the man of the revolution—will have for his guard of honor a squadron composed of princes and dukes, for the most part reared in the maxims of divine right."

A letter from Naples says:

"Many friends blame Italy for playing the desperate game in which we are engaged. The fact is, our politicians had so worked that there is no alternative. The king must abdicate if we do not fight. Blame past errors as much as we may, there is no escape from the position we are now in but a struggle for Venetia. From afar that may seem an unwise decision, but in Italy it is the only alternative."

The special correspondent of the Paris Siecle writes from Florence:

"A house in Paris which I could name has received an order to supply 400,000 pairs of shoes, to be delivered before June 10. Fifty thousand volunteer costumes have been ordered, and will be supplied in five days. Garibaldi, who up to this day had kept the profoundest silence as to the date of his arrival at the camp, has sent word to two of his old lieutenants to equip themselves immediately, and be ready to join him at the first signal. I should also, tell you that, according to information I have received, the diplomatic truce is, on the whole, rather useful than injurious to Italy. A last effort was necessary to enable her to oppose to Austria a formidable front. That effort the government has been enabled to make, thanks to the attitude, patriotism and sacrifices of the nation. The call for horses has been nobly responded to. The patricians have, above all, distinguished themselves; a number of them may be cited who spontaneously offered three and even four horses. The requisition for Florence called for fifty only, but in the space of twenty-four hours two hundred and fifty were sent to the commission."

SPAIN.

Marshal O'Donnell has expressed an opinion that the year 1866 will not pass without Spain having to defend her territory.

ITALY.

In the Chamber of Deputies the first article of the bill for the suppression of all religious bodies throughout Italy was almost unanimously adopted.

AUSTRIA.

The passport system has been introduced.

The Emperor had started for the headquarters of the Army of the North.

HUNGARY.

Martial law [illegible] throughout the kingdom.

TURKEY.

Omar Pasha had assumed the command of the army of the Danube.

One hundred deaths from cholera had occurred at Dejeddah.

TWO DAYS LATER.

The following is a summary of news forwarded by the steamship City of New York:

"The crisis in Germany has reached its culmination. Austria has virtually evacuated Holstein, retiring to Altona. The Prussians occupied the Duchies, dissolved the government, annulled the Holstein Constitution, prevented the assembling of the Estates and entered Altona on the 12th. On that day Austria determined to break off relations and ordered Count Karolyi to [illegible]

[illegible] but war is [illegible]

It is stated that a body of Austrian troops was [illegible] Frankfort-on-the-Main. Gen. Gablenz and the Duke of Augustenburg had proceeded thither.

RUSSIA.

On the 20th of May the Prince Bokhara, with an army of 40,000 men and 21 guns, engaged a Russian force and suffered a decisive defeat. He lost 19 of his cannon, and was completely routed. The Russian loss was insignificant.

Garibaldi has arrived at Como, near the Austrian frontier. He was received with enthusiasm.

The total Prussian force is computed at 783,000 men, of whom 280,000 are in the field.

There has been no formal declaration of war as yet, but the Emperor of Austria, in a speech to the Vienna corporation, yesterday, said that, having done everything else, he was compelled to resort to the sword.

The London journals think that Austria will now consider herself justified in striking a blow, and will immediately order Benedek to commence the campaign.

The London Daily News correspondent at Florence says the first hostile movement in Italy will be to throw 80,000 men in one body across the Po, following this up by pouring 300,000 into Venetia.

The cholera had broken out in the neighborhood of Berlin.

The Swiss Federal Council had issued a decree calling out the first reserves of the Swiss army for the defence of the passes of the Alps on the side of Italy.

DOMESTIC.

New York, June 20. Four or five new cases of cholera were reported in the Fourth and Sixth wards last night, but none of them have as yet proved fatal, and they are considered convalescent.

Reports from quarantine state that the cholera is rapidly increasing on the steamer Illinois, and that it will be necessary to remove a portion of the passengers to the Peruvian, to prevent the spread of the disease.

June 21. Three new cases of cholera were reported yesterday in the city. At quarantine two new cases on board the Illinois and two deaths from cholera and one from typhoid fever have occurred since last report.

New Orleans, June 21. A Vera Cruz letter dated 13th states that the yellow fever is raging in that city fearfully.

The last steamer from Europe brought 800 troops for Maximilian.

The liberals have released twenty-eight of the Confederates captured near Cordova.

All work on the Imperial railroad to the City of Mexico has been discontinued, for want of funds and from the aggressions of the Liberals. The Imperialists have lost and abandoned most of their important cities in the interior, and the general impression is that the empire will not last long. Maximilian is in great financial distress.

It is reported that Maximilian has demanded from France an advance of money, otherwise he must lay down his arms and quit Mexico. France refused the demand and ordered Marshal Bazaine, should Maximilian leave, to take a plebiscite and ascertain the wishes of the people.

The Americans on the Cordova settlement are disheartened and preparing to return to the United States.

Tampico is surrounded and closely invested by a strong force of Liberals. The Liberals are very active in the neighborhood of Matamoras.

New York, June 22. The ship Agnes has sailed from Antwerp for New York. Eighty-one cases of cholera occurred on board of her before she sailed; fifty-six proved fatal.

Notices.

Basket Meeting.

The best possible way for the children of God to spend the "Nation's birthday," is in prayer, praise, and christian greetings; and as the Crisis has thrown upon me the responsibility of a "Basket Meeting," at the sacred spot, so hallowed with blessed associations, at Wilbraham, I will give notice, in behalf of the church at Springfield, that there will be a grove meeting on the camp-ground, on Wednesday, July 4th, conducted as follows:—Conference and love feast at 8½ A. M. Preaching at 10 and 2 o'clock. Brethren are invited to come, bringing provision for the day, and let us praise God together, not only for political freedom, which we enjoy above all other lands, but also for that "liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free."

Come, brethren, and let us get a foretaste of the approaching glorious campmeeting, which will far exceed all its predecessors in power and glory, unless we mistake the "signs of the times."

Those coming from Springfield will leave at 7½ o'clock A. M., and return about 6 P. M. RAND. E. LADD.

Basket Meeting.

The Lord willing, there will be a Basket Meeting, July 4th, near the residence of Bro. E. G. Dudley, one mile south of Wallingford Depot, Wallingford, Ct. A cordial invitation is extended to all the lovers of Jesus to come and unite with us on this day. Bro. Piper, Hitchcock, and others may be expected to preach the word.

In behalf of brethren, W. H. FISHER.

Tent Meeting in Lynn.

There will be a tent meeting in Lynn, Mass., commencing Thursday, July 5th, and held over the following Sunday, and longer at discretion. The time of the Second Advent, together with other portions of truth connected with man's redemption, will be duly considered in the meeting, as the Lord may direct. Geo. W. Brown, C. Thompson, and S. W. Bishop, will be present to preach the word.

Grove Meeting.

There will be a grove meeting in Plainfield, Mass., near the house of J. E. Healy, commencing July 4th, and continuing over the following Sabbath. Come, brethren, far and near, with hearts filled with the love of God, and worship him in spirit and in truth. Bring your board and bedding. A shelter will be provided. Brn. H. L. Hastings, C. Goodrich, and others, are expected to preach the word.

J. E. HEALY, WM. WILLCUTT, JR.

Grove Meeting at Plainfield or Savoy.

If the Lord will, we will hold a grove meeting in Plainfield, or Savoy, Mass., or wherever Brn. E. McCulloch and J. E. Healy may arrange, commencing Wednesday, July 4th, at 10 A. M., and continuing over Sunday, July 8th. We hope to see a general rally of the waiting, working ones. Come in the name and strength of Israel's God, prepared to labor in his cause, and save perishing men.

H. L. HASTINGS, C. GOODRICH.

Fourth of July Meeting.

Our annual meeting on the Fourth of July next will be held in Kingston, N. H., in a pleasant grove near my house. Come, my brethren and sisters in Christ, and unite with us in giving praise to God for the prospect of speedy redemption. Who of God's ministers will come and break the bread of life to us? Eld. Cyrus Cunningham is expected to be with us. Meeting to commence at 10 o'clock A. M. For the church, F. GALE.

Agreement.

The R. I. and E. Ct. Conference will hold its next session at River Point, R. I., commencing Wednesday, July 4th, at 2 o'clock P. M. We have agreed to be there punctually at the time appointed. We have agreed to be present daily until after the Lord's day following. Ministers, delegates, and friends of this Conference, come join in this agreement, that we may make punctual and constant attendance the habit of our precious quarterly gathering. H. F. CARPENTER, Clerk.

Grove Meeting.

The Lord willing, there will be a grove meeting held in the south part of Etna, Me., on land belonging to Bro. S. Turner, commencing June 29th, 2 o'clock P. M., and continue over the following Sunday, and longer as the Lord may direct. The object of this meeting is the saving of souls, and we earnestly request the prayers of the brethren and sisters that the Lord will bless. We urgently request all who can to attend, especially preachers of the word and laborers in the vineyard. S. HAMMOND.

Notice.

Brother [illegible] (D. V.) hold meetings at Danielsonville, Ct., on the second and fourth Sundays of every month, and at Abington, Ct., on the first and third Sundays of every month. Friends interested in these meetings will please cut this notice out and preserve it for future reference. H. F. CARPENTER.

Notice.

Providence permitting, I would like to preach Sundays, and week day evenings, till Wilbraham campmeeting. If there are any who wish me to preach, they will please address me at Savoy, Mass., till July 6th. H. K. FLAGG.

Wis. Adv. Quar. Conference.

The third quarterly meeting of the Wisconsin Advent Christian Conference will be held in the town of Henrietta, Richland county, Wis., in the vicinity of Bro. B. Graves, to commence July 6th, and hold over the Lord's Day. As this is comparatively a new place, and an interest has been awakened here in the cause of the Master, brethren will please make a little extra effort to be there, and at the first of the meeting. A number of preaching brethren will be there to preach the word of life. Come up, brethren, in the spirit of the mother. Your help is needed at this meeting, that sinners may be brought to God and prepared for the Savior's coming. We have but a short time to work, and, O, how much we shall desire the Master to say, Well done. GEO. W. TURNER, Clerk of Con.

Minnesota Annual Conference.

The fourth annual session of the Minnesota Advent Christian Conference will be held (Providence not preventing) on Saturday, June 30th, at ten o'clock A. M., in the New Boston school-house, in Winona County, and will continue over the following Sunday. Ministers and delegates representing the different churches within the State, are requested to attend. I expect Bro. Sheldon will be present with the Advent Tabernacle. J. K. ALLEN, Sec'y.

Notice.

I hereby give notice to all concerned, that the fourth annual grove meeting will be held in Springwater, N. Y., commencing June 29th, 1866, and holding over Sunday, July 1st, on the same spot fitted up by Father Lyman Morris (deceased), on his farm. Let due preparations be made by the friends there, a general notice be given, and may many brethren and sisters attend, both ministers and laymen, and may much good be the result, for which let us pray. In behalf of the brethren, C. F. SWEET.

Tent Meeting at Prescott, Wis.

We expect to pitch the "Advent Tabernacle" at Prescott, Wisconsin, July 12th. Let the friends from the other side of the Mississippi River attend if they can. Eld. Hough is to be with me. WM. SHELDON.

Union Meeting.

If the Lord will, there will be a union meeting held on the 4th day of July next, at Leonard Wiggin's barn, or a grove near by Wednesday Hill, Lee, N. H. Come one, come all.

For the Brethren, GEO. H. CHURCHILL, Lawrence, Mass.

Grove Meeting.

There will be a grove meeting at Athens, Me., July 4th and 5th, on the farm of Mr. Gancelo Hathorn. All are invited. L. L. HOWARD, CHAS. STRATTON.

Notice.

Eld. William J. Blanchard, of Savoy, Mass., is requested to be in Hoosick, N. Y., June 30th and over the 4th of July. R. L. HARRISON.

Notice.

There will be a meeting, the Lord willing, July 4th, 1866, to be held in the old meeting-house at Bridgewater Corners, Bridgewater, Vt. Brethren, pray for us. GEO. A. STREETER.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON.

Israel Damman .... Sunday, July 1st
John G. Hook .... Sunday, July 8th and onward.

EAST BOSTON.
(Chapel, corner of London and Decatur Streets.)

C. Goodrich .... Sunday, July 1st

Charlestown, (69 Maine Street) ... Lord's day, July 1st — T. P. GOODWIN.

Exeter, N. H. .... Sunday, July 8th — MILES GRANT.

New Bedford, Mass .... Lord's day, July 1st — L. C. MCKINSTRY.

Lawrence, Mass., (Appleton Hall, corner of Essex and Lawrence Streets), Sunday, July 1st. — C. RICHARDSON.

Worcester, Mass. .... Wednesday evening, July 11th
Charlestown, Mass., (69 Main Street), Sunday, July 15th — S. C. HANCOCK.

Vernon, Vt. .... Sunday, July 1st and most of the week, if desired.
Andover, Vt. .... Sunday, July 8th and as much longer as profitable. — H. HADLOCK.

West Gloucester, R. I., the first and third Sundays in each month, at 10½ A. M., and 1½ P. M. — E. BELLOWS.

Deerfield, N. H., (near John M. Quimby's) Sunday, July 1st. Brethren in adjoining towns are requested to come. Subject,—Time of our Lord's coming. — S. W. BISHOP.

Bridgewater, Vt .... July 1st and 8th
Plymouth, Vt .... July 15th
Houghtonville, Vt .... July 16th
Whitesville, Vt .... July 17th and 18th
West Brattleboro, Vt .... July 19th and 20th
Northfield, Mass .... July 22d
North Dana, Mass .... July 29th — GEO. A. STREETER.

Thomaston, Ct., (where Bro. Cornell may arrange), Sunday, July 1st. — A. DECKER.

Jackson, Tioga Co., Pa., (two days' meeting), August 17th, and over Sunday.
Canton, Pa. .... August 22d and over Sunday following. — J. W. TAYLOR. C. F. SWEET.

Sparta, Wis., (as brethren may arrange) ...... July 19th and over Sunday.
West Salem, Wis .... July 26th and over Lord's day. — J. R. PRESTON.

Litchfield, Chesnut Hill, Ct., as Sr. Abbey E. Baldwin may arrange, Sunday, July 1st.
East Hartland, Ct. .... Thursday evening, July 12th
East Granville, Friday evening, July 13th, at Bro. S. Herrick's; Saturday evening, July 14th, at Bro. S. Oatley's; Lord's day, July 15th, at the school-house in Bro. Oatley's district; Lord's day evening, Blanford, Mass., at Bro. David Bates', or as he may arrange. Monday evening, July 16th, Westfield, Mass., as Sr. Maria M. Weaver may arrange. — H. ROCKWELL.

Guilford, N. H., (in Jacob Wilkinson's barn), July 4th. Love feast at 9 A. M. We hope to meet many of the friends of Jesus.
Lake Village .... July 8th, at 3 P. M. — JOHN G. HOOK.

Walbridge .... Sunday, July 1st
Warehousepoint .... Sunday, July 8th — E. OWEN.

Schoodac .... Sunday, July 1st
Warner Gore, 2 P. M., at Bro. Andrews' .... July 3d
Bradford .... Sunday, July 8th
Pine Ground .... Sunday, July 15th — C. W. SARGENT.

Harwinton, Ct. .... Sunday, July 8th
Will Bro. Barber come again to Terryville Station evening of July 7th? — S. WOODRUFF.

Holliston .... Sunday, July 1st
July 8th not engaged. — H. MUNGER.

New Hampton, N. H., (Straight's school-house, or as Bro. Pike may arrange), July 8th. — T. E. LAND, JR.

Vernon, Vt .... Sunday, July 8th — [illegible]

Durham, Ct. .... Sunday, July 1st — O. D. WOODRUFF.

Salisbury, N. H., (South Road Methodist Chapel) Sabbath, July 1st.
Manchester, N. H. .... Sabbath, July 8th — [illegible]

Alton Corner, N. H. .... Sunday, July 1st — [illegible]

[illegible]

Lafayette, R. I. .... Sunday, July 1st
Ibeo? [illegible] Wednesday, July [illegible] at the R. I. and Eastern Conn. Quar. Conference. Hope the brethren belonging to the conference will make an effort to be there at the commencement. JOSEPH W. THOMAS.

[illegible]

CONCORD, N. H., (ADVENT HALL.)

John G. Hook .... Sunday, July 1st
C. C. Ramsey .... Sunday, July 8th
J. H. [illegible] .... Sunday, July 15th
J. [illegible] .... Sunday, July 22d
J. Plaisted? .... Sunday, July 29th

Suncook, (South meeting-house) .... Sunday, July 1st
Hartland, Vt., (Diamond Hill) .... July 8th — J. COUCH.

Lovely Street .... Sunday, July 1st
Wrightville .... Sunday, July 8th — WM. J. RIPLEY.

Northwood Narrows, Saturday, 2 P. M., June 30th, over the Lord's day, July 1st, and longer if thought best. — E. F. [illegible]

NATICK, MASS., (SCHOOL-HOUSE HALL.)

C. C. Ramsey .... Sunday, July 1st
J. M. Mobley? .... Sunday, July 8th
This is a new field. Preaching brethren traveling this way will please correspond with the brethren here. Their numbers are few, and they are poor; but they need help. — S. M. MORRISON?

East Bowdoinham .... Sunday, July 1st — CLARENDON GOULD?

Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, July 1st
Haverhill, Mass. .... Sunday, July 8th
Great Falls, N. H. .... Sunday, July 15th
Biddeford, Me. .... Sunday, July 22d
If these conflict with others, write me at Dover, N. H., immediately. — J. PINKHAM.

Glenmore, N. Y. .... Sunday, July 1st
Vireon, N. Y., (Lock school-house), 1 P. M., July 8th — C. H. WILLIAMS.

West Marlborough .... Sunday, July 1st
Copenhagen .... Sunday, July 8th
Let there be a good turn out in the vicinity of these meetings. — C. B. TURNER.

CONCORD, N. H.
(Corner of Green and Center Streets.)

Timothy Cole .... July 1st and 8th
J. Couch .... Sunday, July 15th
H. Munger .... July 22d and 29th

Great Falls, N. H. .... Sunday, July 1st
Northwood Narrows .... Sunday, July 8th
London Ridge .... Sunday, July 22d — J. G. SMITH.

Manchester, N. H. .... Lord's day, July 1st — C. C. STEVENS.

Chichester Pine Ground .... Sunday, July 1st — J. FOSS?

Lynn, Mass. .... Sunday, July 1st
Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, July 8th — J. S. WHITE.

Canaan .... Sunday, July 1st — I. DAMMAN.

Yalesville, Ct. .... Sunday, July 1st
Cheshire Street, Ct. .... Sunday, July 8th
New Preston appointment recalled. — CHAS. E. PIPER. SAMUEL M. TAYLO?

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

To F. Burr—We think Bower's History of the Popes is the best work on the subject. It is composed of three octavo volumes. They are scarce now, and we do not know the price.

M. G. S. It was forwarded June 23d.

F. A. Baker—Your correction came too late.

A. S. Cuthie—You were credited right on book, $2.00, paid to No. 564.

P. W. Matts—The $6 00 for M. D. Webb was received and credited; paid to No. 537.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.
To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 560. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness, if less than 26 weeks, charge five cents; if more than 26 weeks, six cents. From the product (which will be a fraction over the actual indebtedness) deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.25 each—T Hardy 575, E J Hodges 584, J Lewis 584, J B Kingsbury 585, S A Bartlett 577, A Hodsdon 538, C P Johnson 558, J. M. Hackett 579, E Blaisdell 585, M Heath 586, B L White 569, H A Arnold 579, J Grout 583, S Bush 580, L Dills 586, C Sweet 515, E M Lyon 586, E D Lyon 604, B W Westcott 587, L Shurtleff 578, J Rickard 552.

$2.00 each—A C Haley 569, R Jones 589, C E Conklin 548, H Band 598, R Andrews 572, A Bell 587.

$2.50 each—J Haley 593, F H Whitaker 599, R. T. Church 598, H P Tucker 589, S. H. Watkins 544, T J Orn 611, L Jones 614, J O Smith 565, J Purrington 599, A C Perkins 612, R C Haynes 593, B Webster 612, S Newton 612, E D Lyon 604, J Lurnerous 583, D Miller 612, H H Ranney 607, J F Matts 612, O W Crosell 612, J C Petter 607.

$3.00 each—C Boutwell 598, H Arnold 578, J C Gardner 622, O S Gordon 641, J Hooper 608, J J Johnson 577, N Woodruff 539.

Various Sums.—W. G. Churchill $1.40, 575; J. N. Moores $5.00, 557; N L Brooks $3.68, 636; M. B. Cyphers 90c, 560; J. G. Page $3.00, 563; J Elliott $5.00, 585; S P Matthews $5.00, 610; W P Caswell 40c, 558; O Gregory $1.68, 556; I B Bickford 30c, 547.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

D L Allyn 60c, O. S. Haynes (all right) 25c, W. W. Graham $1.00, C Boutwell $4.50, W O Higley $1.10, C S Hall 91c, W G Churchill 60c, F. A. Foster $1.25, A B Fabrick $1.41, I Bean $1.00, S G Rhoades $3.00, H Beach 85c, H A Arnold $4.45, E Shultz $1.50.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL.—M Richardson, D L Allyn, E Eden, A M Damon, C S Hall, F. A. Foster, S P Shepherd, W G Churchill, A S Butters, E F Treat, N L Brooks, A B Fabrick, J Bean, S G Rhoades, H Beach, H A Arnold, H Lawrence.

BY EXPRESS.—L. C. Wellcome, W. O. Higley.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

C W Thurman, M Curtiss, B Mathewson, J C Rogers, P Tandy, B Spaulding, A H Walker, L C McKinstry, H Munger, S [illegible], H W Taylor, L W Bragg, S K Paine, H Pratt, D Crouch, A D Wilkinson, E E Woodworth, D. G. M.

ADDRESS OF PREACHING BRETHREN.

C. E. Piper—41 Grove Street, Boston, Mass.
C. Goodrich—69 Marion Street, East Boston, Mass.
Bro. A. W. Sibley has removed from East Boston to Lincoln, N. H. All letters should be addressed to the latter place.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.
L. Boutell—Salem, Mass.
I. H. Potter—Somersville, Ct.
Wm. H. Fisher—Ashland, Mass.
H. F. Carpenter—Danielsonville, Ct.
F. A. Baker—North Searsport, Me.
Joseph W. White—Portsmouth, N. H.
D M Hanscomb—Wayne, Me.
N. Hartshorn—Laconia, N. H.
J. G. Smith—New Durham, N. H.
J. Partridge—Richmond, Me.
C. H. Leverton—Surry, Hancock Co., Me.
O. D. Gibson—Amboy, Ill.
J. R. Preston—Prairie du Sac, Sauk Co., Wis.
R. J. Whitehead—Wallingford, Ct.
C. C. Stevens—Exeter, N. H.
L. C. McKinstry—Lynn, Mass., until July 1st.
John T. Ongley—Lincolnville, Crawford Co., Pa.
S. D. Daniels—Springfield, Mass.
G. W. Turner—West Point, Wis.
C. P. Dow—My P. O. address for United States' correspondents will be hereafter Franklin, Vt.
Wm. McCulloch—New Rutland, Ill.
P. W. Hough—Cascade, Iowa.
Mrs. Abigail Massey—Hillsburgh, Nova Scotia.
G. W. Stetson—Olena, Huron Co., Ohio, until Sept.
Wm. A. Fuller—Pulaski, Oswego Co., N. Y.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
M. A. Hitchcock—Exeter, Green Co., Wis.
N. F. Mason—North Hermon, Me.
C. B. Turner—South Butler, Wayne Co., N. Y.
S. C. Hancock—Forestville, Conn.
Samuel Curry—Station E, New York.
S. P. Babcock—Mystic, N. Y.
Josiah Durgin—Wesley's Falls, N. H.
H. Pratt—Springfield, Mass., 41 Cedar St.
Jacob Wilson—Elk Hill, Danville, Rock Co., Wis.
F. H. Burbank, Missionary—Residence S. W. Cor. 7th and Spring Garden Streets, Philadelphia, Penn.
Mrs. Anna H. Smith—No. 803, Seventh Avenue, bet. 51st and 52d Streets, New York City.
Dr. R. B. Butler—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.
Martha E. Butler—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT. The Common English Version, as revised and corrected [illegible]

[illegible]

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, [illegible]

[illegible]

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY
No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Works on the Prophecies, The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, etc.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES; or, A Glance at Christendom as it is. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.
THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. By D. T. Taylor. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 60c.
THESSALONICA; the Model Church, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE; by H. L. Hastings. ... SPIRITUALISM, by Dr. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.
THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. With various tracts. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.
MATTHEW, XXIV. AND XXV. An Exposition, showing Christ's Predictions fulfilled, and his Kingdom near. By L. C. Wellcome. [illegible]
THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 1. By S. S. Brewer. [illegible]
THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 2. By S. S. Brewer. [illegible]
THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 3. By S. S. Brewer. [illegible]
REASONS FOR MY HOPE; or, Tokens of Speedy Redemption. By H. L. Hastings. [illegible]
THE KINGDOM OF GOD, and Signs of the Times. By S. S. Brewer. [illegible]
THESSALONICA; or, The Model Church. By H. L. Hastings. [illegible]
REVELATIONS XIII.; a treatise. By S. S. Brewer. [illegible]
THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. By H. L. Hastings. [illegible]
SPIRITUALISM a Satanic Delusion; By Wm. Sheldon. [illegible]
THE SEVEN SEALS. Exposition of Rev. vi. By S. S. Brewer. [illegible]
LOOKING FORWARD; or, Prospects of the Church. By H. L. Hastings. [illegible]
[illegible]
THE CELESTIAL RAILROAD; or, Modern Pilgrim's Progress. [illegible]
THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]
THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. By S. S. Brewer. [illegible]
THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]
THE GREAT IMAGE seen by Daniel in vision. By S. S. Brewer. [illegible]
THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]
THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the visions of Daniel and John. Mounted on Rollers, by express, $3.00; on Cloth, by mail, $2.50.
THE REIGN OF MESSIAH, the King of the Jews, On the Throne of his Father David; its Nature, and the Time of its Commencement. [illegible]

Works on Future Punishment, etc.

DEBT AND GRACE; or, The Doctrine of a Future Life. By C. F. Hudson. [illegible]
CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. [illegible]
FUTURE PUNISHMENT as taught in the Scriptures. [illegible]
STATE OF THE DEAD, and Punishment of the Wicked. A Discussion between Miles Grant and [illegible]
ETERNAL SUFFERING; A Discussion between Miles Grant and Dr. J. Litch. [illegible]
RETRIBUTION; or, The Doom of the Ungodly. By H. L. Hastings. [illegible]
DEATH NOT LIFE; or, The Destruction of the Wicked established, and Endless Misery disproved. By Jacob Blain. [illegible]
PAULINE THEOLOGY; or, The Christian Doctrine of Future Punishment, as taught in the Epistles of Paul. [illegible]
GLAD TIDINGS; or, The End of Woe and Sin by the Destruction of the Wicked. [illegible]
THE OLD PATHS; or, The Primitive Doctrine of a Future Life. [illegible]
IMMORTAL SOUL THEOLOGY vs. BIBLE. By S. S. Brewer. [illegible]
WHAT IS MAN? A Bible View of his Creation. By M. Grant. [illegible]
THE SOUL; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. [illegible]
THE SPIRIT; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. [illegible]
RICH MAN AND LAZARUS; Thief on the Cross, etc. By M. Grant. [illegible]
THE DOCTRINE OF ENDLESS MISERY an evidence of Scepticism. [illegible]
ETERNAL DEATH is the literal sense of Eternal Punishment. [illegible]
RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. With remarks on Josephus. By C. F. Hudson. [illegible]
THE RIGHTS OF WRONG; or, Is Hell Eternal? By C. F. Hudson. [illegible]
ENDLESS MISERY not a Bible Doctrine. [illegible]
THE WICKED NOT IMMORTAL—(with 200 proof-texts). [illegible]
BIBLE MEANING OF THE WORD HELL. [illegible]
BIBLE MEANING of Forever and Everlasting. [illegible]
SMOKE OF TORMENT and Unquenchable Fire Explained. [illegible]
REV. JOHN FOSTER'S LETTER on Future Punishment. [illegible]

Miscellaneous.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF CHRISTIAN HOLINESS; A Sermon. [illegible]
THE DAY AND THE HOUR: a Lecture, by Joseph A. Seiss, D. D. [illegible]
CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. [illegible]
DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures. [illegible]
THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. [illegible]
CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. [illegible]
HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. [illegible]
THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Müller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. [illegible]
LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World. [illegible]
FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH. [illegible]
THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY. [illegible]
THE BIBLE FROM HEAVEN; or, a Dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. [illegible]
CHRISTIAN BAPTISM; Its Duty and Objects. By L. C. Wellcome. [illegible]
THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK. [illegible]
SHOULD CHRISTIANS FIGHT? By L. C. Wellcome. [illegible]
AMERICA IN PROPHECY. [illegible]
EVERYBODY'S BOOK. [illegible]
THE CHRISTIAN LYRE; a Collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. [illegible]
HOW TO COOK. [illegible]
COOKERY. [illegible]
PREMATURE DECAY of American Youth. [illegible]
THE OLD AND NEW COVENANT. [illegible]
EXPERIENCE AND OBSERVATIONS. [illegible]
THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT. [illegible]
CHLOE LANKTON. [illegible]
NON-RESISTANCE. [illegible]
DIPHTHERIA. [illegible]
[illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

[illegible] AHEAD.

[illegible]
[illegible]
Usher in the perfect day.
[illegible] by thy right wing,
Let the heavens [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
Wake the dead from deep profound.

[illegible]
Bid the [illegible]
Be heard to echo loud and long.
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

Weeks, pass on without delay,
[illegible] the last Grand play,—
They are forth [illegible] our way.
[illegible]
Bring us to fair Eden's shore,
Where friends shall cease to part no more.

Weary years, then, quickly flee,
If more years we are to see,
And bring the joys that are to be.

Bristol, Ct. JANE L. AUSTIN.

For the World's Crisis.

THE ST. LOUIS MISSION.

DEAR BRETHREN AND SISTERS:—Yesterday was a blessed day to each of us who met at our first place of worship. Our numbers are increasing in the church; our congregation increases, and the interest is fast increasing also. The soon coming of the Lord, and a preparation so as to meet him in peace, is our great theme. I tried in my feeble way to preach in the morning, from 1 Cor. 16 : 24; in the afternoon, from Dan. 2d and 7th chapters.

In the evening, Sister Mary Prescott (who has in years and months past labored in the gospel to good success), gave us a thrilling discourse, showing us that time was short, and we must be awake to the great subject of living in constant watchfulness and purity for the soon coming judgment. Sister Mary had never before preached in this city, and her efforts in this direction were like the bellows applied to [illegible] already kindled. After preaching, we had a general conference, which kept us together till nearly ten o'clock. We all felt very much cheered and encouraged with the bright opening the good Lord has given us for future good and usefulness among the freedmen. The night of darkness, tempest and storm, which so suddenly settled in upon us amid our disappointments and grief, is beginning to pass away. Praise the Lord.

A bright opening of better days begins to fill our hearts with new joy. We are having evening meetings every night in the week except Monday. Also, evening schools five nights in each week; to which is added a school for writing two and three evenings each week, from nine until ten in the evening. The [illegible] is taught by myself. The evening school, by Sisters Prescott and Curtis. Our Sunday school, also, is fast increasing in numbers and interest, to which is added a singing school for children, from 1.30 to 2 P. M. Then the Sunday school is continued until 3, when the afternoon service begins.

Monday, June 4. Yesterday was a day never to be forgotten by a large congregation of saints and people. In the morning I preached a practical discourse. In the afternoon, I preached on the 1335 days of Dan. 12. After which, we attended to the Lord's Supper, for the first time. Members of other christian churches, Baptist and Methodist, partook with us. I cannot begin to describe the meeting to you. It could plainly be seen during the supper, that the feelings of the congregation could hardly be subdued. At its close, one after another began to rise. Some were shouting, some were crying aloud, some were [illegible], some were walking through the congregation, shaking hands with both saint and sinner, [illegible] some were sitting with their eyes closed as in prayer. Our few white brethren and sisters are not behind in their devotion and praise to God during our meetings. It is a common thing during our conference and prayer meetings, sometimes once, and sometimes two or three times, to see many rise up, both in the church and at private houses, and walk around and shake hands with each other during the singing of their hymns, after which they take their seats as usual again.

In the evening, Sister Prescott gave us another appropriate discourse, after which some [illegible] and gave in their testimony for Jesus, interspersed with lively hymns. It was thought by some that we felt a little as Peter, James and John did while on the mount, where they wanted to build tabernacles and remain there. Our house is already too small, and [illegible] we shall be obliged to do before we can [illegible] of our own, is known only to the Lord.

A NEW CHURCH. We want a new house of worship, here in St. Louis, of our own, where we can preach the truth untrammeled and unencumbered; and, in the vicinity, too, of the African people. And, now we do feel that we cannot be denied. Those who feel it their duty with Christ at the door to teach the freedmen their A B C's, as a stepping-stone [illegible] prerequisite to the [illegible] can do so; but I cannot, nor will, not engage in any enterprise that makes the gospel of the King[illegible] with its last crowning truth, second to any thing else. For God by the mouth of Solomon (Prov. 1 : 7, also 2 : [illegible]) has taught us that the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; and as a prerequisite [illegible] before all things else. And this, agrees with Christ's own words: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

[illegible] upon these gospel principles, and upon these principles I have stood and acted ever since. And upon these principles have my white brethren and sisters of St. Louis always stood from the first. [illegible] the [illegible] grounds and talents, I could not have been blessed with a better company of co-workers in the gospel [illegible] striving for the mastery, none jealous of another [illegible] one great thing, is the results of their united efforts [illegible] the triumphs of God and truth. And I venture to make the statement, which I firmly believe is strictly true, [illegible] St. Louis; and almost exclusively among the freedmen too. I know it is a very easy thing [illegible] show they contained [illegible] that God was our friend [illegible]

There have been times when we were extremely grieved at many things which have passed during the winter and spring; when it would seem that justice to God, to his truth, and to ourselves, as servants of Christ, required that facts without coloring should be given. But we have felt as did Nehemiah (Neh. 6 : 3), that we were engaged in a great work, and we could not leave that and come down to our enemies, to fight with pen or words. So we have tried in the fear of God to continue our work, believing that if he was for us, none could be against us.

One week from next Monday, the Lord willing, I expect to leave for the East, to return in September with means to build a chapel. We have colored masons and carpenters, who are members of the church. An Eastern man who resides here says he will roof it for half price. The desk, platform, lights, and part of the seats, we already have. Full particulars of this enterprise will be given you in due time. Thus we feel, and thus we have promised the freedmen; that with the Lord on our side, a church will be had in the fall.

Sister Mary Prescott will take the oversight and charge of the church after I leave, which gives universal satisfaction to all. She will be assisted in her labors of love among the freedmen, and in the Sunday school, by her sister Francelia Curtis. We have three members of the church who are preachers, beside Sr. Prescott; Bro. Crouch, a white preacher, who was ordained some years ago, and preached as chaplain in the Federal army, and two colored preachers, who are doing their share of work.

More when I come home, the Lord willing. Your brother, looking home to our eternal rest. H. K. FLAGG.

St. Louis, June 4th, 1866.

For the World's Crisis.

EARNEST EXPECTATION.

"For the earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God."—Rom. 8 : 19.

In the course of human experience, a variety of desirable things are expected and hoped for, and these hopes and expectations are the source of a large part of the joys of life. It is common for the young to anticipate with eagerness the time when they shall arrive at mature age, and have the control and management of affairs, without the interference of parent or guardian. And if an estate is awaiting him, and he is to have full possession on coming of age, these feelings are usually deep and strong. Many cases have occurred, where persons had been for years in destitute circumstances, when they were suddenly notified that they were entitled to an estate. An "earnest expectation" at once takes possession of all who are interested or affected by this anticipated change, and the day is longed for that is to bring the object of desire.

But however desirable these things may be, the change so earnestly expected by the apostle is infinitely more desirable. He was not only to have full possession of an incorruptible inheritance, and every conceivable source of happiness added, but his capacity for enjoyment would be enlarged. The estate is not only exceeding great, but it is ETERNAL, and will never be diminished. And is not this glorious change awaiting you, reader? Are you expecting "a crown, a kingdom, and a throne"? Have you an assurance of pardon, and have you that faith which is an "evidence of things not seen"? Have you an "earnest expectation and hope" of these things? Phil. 1 : 20. How plain and clear is the written word in regard to an inheritance, and also in regard to those who shall enjoy it. All who are "in Christ," whether living or sleeping, are joint-heirs with him to this "treasure to be desired," and will be remembered when he appears in glory. Some who have been outcasts, and esteemed as the "offscouring of all things," will then be counted among the "jewels." Then "thou shalt no more be termed forsaken," but "thou shalt also be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God."—Isa. 62 : 3. Then we shall understand how it is that "our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." Then all our most bitter sorrows here will seem like the faint shadow of a dream, that can scarcely be recalled. Soon we shall hear the voice of our Beloved, calling us away from this scene of trial to the full enjoyment of his presence and glory evermore. This is "our earnest expectation and hope."

Sutton, Mass. P. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

For the World's Crisis.

HOW I CAME TO BACKSLIDE.

BRO. GRANT:—I write a few words to encourage those who have lately started on the pilgrim journey. Dear reader, this point is one that must be guarded. It needs continual watching, for, unless we are on our guard, we shall be in this state before we are aware of it. The commandment is, "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him."—Col. 2 : 6. Just as long as I kept this commandment, I received the blessings of God, and every blessing I received strengthened me to perform the next duty, and thus I continued to grow in strength.

But how did I receive Christ Jesus the Lord? It was in this way. I began to read the word of God, and I found by reading that word, that I was in a perishing condition, that the end of the road I was traveling was death. The question came, how, and in what way, could I be saved? I found there was no other name given under heaven, or among men, whereby I could be saved, only in and through Jesus. How must I come to him? Humbly, with a full purpose of heart, as a child comes to a parent, and asks for the things he stands in need of; just so long as I was willing and obedient, I found God's promises for me; [illegible] the willing and obedient [illegible] the good of the land. [illegible] for I could [illegible] the Lord that he would hear and answer my prayers, that I could [illegible] faithful to every [illegible]

[illegible] I was aware of it [illegible] O my prayer is, God have mercy on the [illegible] again. The [illegible] cross, and do the duty that [illegible]

as humble and childlike as ever. I could not come in my own name, for strength, only in the name of Jesus. When I am willing to come in his name, [illegible] them, that I receive the blessing.

You that have lately started, be careful, and not backslide from God. Be faithful a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry; and as you have received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him; and when he comes, he will save you. I have returned to Father's house, where there is bread enough and to spare, and by God's grace, I will be faithful till he comes. I believe it will be but a little longer that we shall have the [illegible] to contend with. Soon we shall be beyond the reach of a tempting enemy; and be where sickness, pain, and death will be known no more. O what blessed promises God has left on record for those who love and serve him.

Brethren and sisters, pray for me, that I may be faithful, and at last meet you in the kingdom. Yours, striving to keep the commandments, that at last I might have a right to "the tree of life," and enter in through the gates into the city. A. H. WALKER.

Mechanic Falls, Me.

NAPOLEON'S THOUGHTS AND PLANS.

We have just received a very curious work from London, entitled "Cæsar. Aut Cæsar aut nullus." The writer gives the prophetical musings of Napoleon III., when in exile. We think Napoleon himself could not have expressed his plans more fully. Certainly, the programme has been carried out most successfully thus far; and we are looking for the remainder to be accomplished. Believing our readers will be interested in reading the work, we give them the following extract:—

"We think it is Sterne who has given in his writings an account of a solitary prisoner in a cell; and we would now endeavor, somewhat after his fashion, to describe a man in like circumstances, but under most extraordinary conditions.

We will suppose a man of strong temperament and most active faculties born to inherit the fruits of previous conquest; born with the highest worldly prospects, but stripped in youth of all his brilliant hopes and cast into imprisonment; still bearing with him the full sentiment of the name which he has inherited, and the conscious feeling that multitudes of his fellow-men lived ever with the sentiments inspired by that name within their breasts.

We will suppose him also to have his views confined within the limits of the world, and debarred from all external life save only in the pages of [illegible] would ask the question—Where could such a one turn for interest, and employment, and amusement, to while away or to improve the otherwise utterly vacant hours? There have been prisoners of blindness who have developed worlds of light; there have been men, like Milton, or Bunyan, who, fixing their hopes on worlds beyond the grave, have found there made a kingdom, and, prisoners themselves, been the means of giving freedom to multitudes.

But where could an ambitious, energetic, unscrupulous man, a young man, find a world of interest to alleviate in imagination the monotony of years? He has been plotting the subversion of thrones, the exaltation of himself to power, the recovery of long lost hopes, and failed to realize these hopes. But can he not bear them with him into his prison? Is there no hope yet? Will time bring no revolutions yet in a land where revolution has its birth-place and its home?

Oh; yes, it will—it must, time must bring changes, must give openings. The people who loved not wisely but too well the fruits of their revolution, will, ever changeful, return to their first love. France! oh, ever changeful France! 'the violet still grows in the depths of thy valleys, though withered thy smile shall revive it again.' And yet, 'Ah! who can tell how hard it is to climb the steep where Fame's proud temple shines afar?' And yet again, to cease to attempt is nothingness, and worse—is dreary monotony.

So, hoping against hope, and aiming to delude, at least the dreary hours, the prisoner turns to meditate on the past, on history, politics, instruments both human and material. Nerving his mind to study what at least may sometime aid his views, and considering that sometime circumstances must bring freedom, he determined at once to while away time, feed fancy, revel in imagination, and lay a broad deep base for future superstructure.

Having ample time for thought, and no possible interruption, he goes deep into the first principles of human worldly things; he meditates on his own wishes, and judges from himself the minds of others. He has sounded heights and depths in past experience, he lays experience by the side of history; he meditates on monarchies, hereditary and derivative, on kings and emperors, and especially upon the Emperor of France,—his own uncle—the first modern emperor elected, as they say, 'by the grace of God and the will of the people.' His life and principles he studies to the very utmost; he masters his principles of thought; he dwells upon his name, his character, his actions, till he seems to himself to imbibe his very spirit; and at length his visions shape themselves in such forms as these:—

Whenever I may escape from prison I must bide a time of revolution. [illegible] It must and will come, and for it I will now prepare.

This may be my seed time, and the lower I have been debased, the more determinately and elaborately will I prepare for future glory, when the time shall come.

My predecessor—my own relative—was great because he co-operated with the spirit of his times as shown amid our nation.

The French love honor and glory; pageantries of peace and war, and under the prosperity of the empire they enjoyed them both, and loved the hand which brought them to their door.

But for my life? Where lies my strength? In my name—Napoleon!

There is a magic in that name, and thousands will rally to it when the time of revolution opens me a door.

But I must be careful—most careful. Humility is young ambition's ladder.

I'll stoop to conquer, and if I may but creep in under guise of serving a republic, when [illegible] shall go hard but I will better even my uncle's example. It is true he had to rise by war, but to me it is open to come in and obtain the kingdom peacefully. Ah! as [illegible] quaint antiquated book say, 'the king's name is a tower of strength.' And I will use it so.

Power in the shape of presidency must be my primary object. Position through the Emperor's name, my name. This will answer to the first, consulship; and once obtained, the whole is easy.

I will push forward [illegible] the adoption of universal [illegible] without liberality [illegible] and of war [illegible] arts and sciences. Paris shall be [illegible] pageantries, and Paris beautified. Exterminate [illegible] shall all breathe peace [illegible] beautifying Paris I will cut [illegible] artillery. I will flatter and promote all priests awhile, for they are power [illegible] eye upon them, and, when they little think it, they shall feel that their superstition [illegible] me not, and shall not long [illegible]

I will cancel the [illegible] of the press [illegible] gradually; deprive [illegible] quiet, firm compression; and at first I will but slightly notice the republicans, for many such exist, and must be cautiously dealt with. When I have power I will deal with them; and to obtain that power, the army shall be one of my chiefest cares.

All that can please, the soldiery shall be done. They love the memory of the old Napoleon! They shall have a St. Helena medal. They love an emperor at their head. I will myself continually review them; and if needs be, and it is politic, they shall be feasted even with champagne. Meantime, Algeria is training ground, and well they shall be trained. That Louis Philippe! for that, he drew me bringing back my uncle's bones. Much he helped me there. I laugh and thank him, thank him, and laugh; and use—what he so carefully obtained—from England!

England!—ah England! England, I hate the name.

And yet I do not—cannot quite. I have had much from England—a home in exile, friends, and hearty welcome. If I escape hence, to England it must be. It is the land of liberty.

But soft, I wander; what have I to do with liberty! I want it for myself but not for others quite. No no, it must not be—at least in France, save only at my will. But all that can consist with my advancement, that they shall have, and I'll provide it thus. And even England! deep in my inmost heart I bear a grudge—for is there not 'a name, a cause, and a defeat?' the last I name not, cannot bear to name. Well, well, I bide my time and there an end.

Now having power as President to rule, and having got all matters in fair train, I must reflect that there will surely be a numerous party of republicans, violent, strong, and determined, who will never submit to call me what I aim at—emperor. And how shall they be met?

They will work quietly at first, but in about three years they will begin to show, and must be met. I fain would put them down quietly, but if they break out, they shall be terrorized and made a fearful example of, and then an opportunity will be given for an increase of power; from temporary presidency, absolute dictatorship shall be claimed, and if this lead not on to emperorship, then past examples profit nothing. The first Napoleon from Consul for ten years passed on to Consul for life, and from first Consul for life, he rushed and crowned himself emperor in four short years. And why should not this be repeated? It will come naturally. I have his example. I have to do with the same people. I hold his principles. I set forth his views. I bear his name. I will—yes, I will attain his power. I will be emperor.

Now having that in France is simply nothing; that is my rightful due inheritance. Having, I must maintain, and holding, glorify. Our dynasty has been disturbed! I will reassume it.

Empire lost—I will regain it.

The world shall feel my power as it did his—my mighty predecessor's. Who shall prevent? Ah! [illegible]—England again. Ah, England, mistress of the seas—patron of liberty—ah, how shall she be met?

I have it—there it is, behold her fleets with them she rules the seas. I must extend—must reconstruct our fleet, silently, quietly, rapidly. Our seaboard must be fortified when certain progress is made in ship-building! our marine must be put in order; quiet measures taken for forming seamen; all must be pushed sincerely together, quietly as possible, escaping up—saying peace, peace, all the time. Secretly I shall forge ahead of old, sleepy, tax-repelling England. While they shall sleep, lulled by my words of peace, everywhere awake and quietly striving, I will prepare beforehand, and ever ready with the pretence that I am but putting France in order after years of revolution, I will raise the fleets and the armies of France till none shall equal them. Science shall improve our weapons; skill of fence shall be added to our arms; the military spirit devoted to myself shall be cherished. Vive l'Empereur, shall be the cry. The old eagles shall again hover over our troops; and when I have built up my house with power and established our country in superior force, then will be time to stand and look around.

But even yet 'tis tiend. I can prepare. Emissaries may be sent, as well as spy out conquests, to entangle revolutionary peoples, as to sow the seeds of revolution where they shall yet bear fruit, which I will reap and turn to my advantage.

And liberty! yes, liberty shall be the cry.

It was so ever since our dynasty arose. Liberty to the peoples, liberty to the oppressed, liberty to the oppressed nationalities. I have it all."

(To be concluded.)

For the World's Crisis.

NO NEUTRAL GROUND.

"He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad."—Matt. 12 : 30.

How often we hear men who know not Jesus, when urged to accept him as the only refuge of perishing humanity, claim that they stand on neutral ground; they will have nothing to do with religion, or against it. How greatly they err. It appears from the plain declaration of Jesus, that there is no neutral ground. He that is not for Jesus is against him. Every thought, every word, and every act of our lives, has an influence either for Jesus or for the devil. Every one has an influence. That influence is like a perpetual eddy; for when it is once set in motion it never stops.

In order to live every moment with the approving smiles of God upon us, we must have our hearts touched with heavenly fire from off the altar; we must give ourselves wholly to him, to be used in his service; we must have our natures purified, as we are exhorted in Romans, "Reckon ye yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God." By giving ourselves a whole sacrifice, we become dead to sin; we are wholly the Lord's, and feel sin no more. Can a dead man feel? No more can a child of God who is dead to sin. By making this whole sacrifice to the Lord, we use our influence for him. If we only use part of our influence for his cause, we are not [illegible] we cannot serve God and mammon. There is no neutral ground, we must be either with him or against him. If we would gather with Jesus, we must do his whole will. We must get off from our imaginary neutral ground, and show ourselves on God's side. [illegible] He that is not wholly [illegible] the Lord's is for the devil. [illegible] God and for [illegible] And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly; and I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. [illegible]

[illegible] we may rest assured that for the moments used for the devil, God will bring us to account. [illegible]

the heart filled with the Holy Spirit, and feeling [illegible] as the influence of a moment may appear, yet it will have a powerful weight at the judgment bar. It is like casting a pebble into the river. At first it makes but a small eddy, but its circles increase until the whole water is disturbed.

How needful, then, dear brethren, that we be careful how we spend our time, which is so precious. How needful that all should give themselves up for the Lord. The world expects holiness from the professed followers of Jesus; and without holiness no man can gather with Christ. If we gather with Jesus, we must be Bible christians, and let our light shine. I never saw in the same light before that life is a dreadful reality; that on every moment of our lives hangs a great responsibility, as high as heaven, and as lasting as eternity. Dear brethren, give yourselves up anew to the Lord; make a whole sacrifice, and henceforth use every moment on the Lord's side; and great will be your reward when our blessed Redeemer shall appear.

Rochester, N. Y. WM. H. STEVENS.

For the World's Crisis.

WESTERN NEW YORK ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

The Christian Conference of Western New York and vicinity, convened according to notice at South Butler, Wayne county, N. Y., May 31st, 1866. Eld. O. R. Fassett, of Sandy Hill, preached the opening discourse on Thursday evening, on "Be not weary in well doing."

Friday morning, the annual address was delivered, which will be found in another column. The constitutional order was then moved aside to appoint a business committee. F. Burr, B. P. Stevens, B. C. Simonds, C. H. Williams, and C. B. Turner were appointed. The meeting was then changed to singing and exhortation, and the time profitably spent until noon.

The next business meeting was held Saturday forenoon, at which the constitution, being found not well adapted to our wants, was much modified, and we present it here as it now exists.

CONSTITUTION.

ART. I. This organization shall be called the Christian Conference of Western New York and vicinity.

ART. II. The object of this Conference shall be to promote Scriptural piety, christian union and co-operation in the spread of light and truth, and especially on the Prophetic Scriptures, which relate to the soon coming kingdom of Christ.

ART. III. This Conference shall be composed of brethren assembled at regularly appointed time and place, who are in sympathy with the objects for which the Conference is organized. Strangers meeting with us are advised to bring recommendations of christian character.

ART. IV. The officers of this Conference shall be a President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, and a Committee of three, who, together, shall constitute a board of managers, who shall be chosen annually, and hold office until a new election.

ART. V. The duty of the Board shall be to look after the general interests of the cause; appoint and arrange camp, tent, and general meetings held under the supervision of the Conference; also, to attend to any business between the sessions of the Conference that may involve the interests of the cause.

ART. VI. The Conference shall meet annually, and also hold three quarterly meetings in the conference year; the time and place to be arranged by the Conference or the Board.

ART. VII. The annual meetings shall be opened by an appropriate address by some member appointed for that purpose; after which the officers shall be elected for the ensuing year, and any business transacted that may properly come before the Conference.

ART. VIII. This Conference shall also constitute a Tract Society, the object of which shall be to distribute tracts, free or otherwise, within the bounds of the Conference. The Board of Managers of the Conference shall also constitute a Board of Managers for the Tract Society.

ART. IX. This Constitution may be altered or amended at any regular meeting, by a vote of two-thirds of the members present.

Officers of the Conference for the ensuing year, were chosen as follows: President, Eld. C. B. Turner; Vice President, Eld. C. W. Lee; Secretary, Eld. F. Burr; Treasurer, Eld. C. P. Sweet; Committee of Three, Eld. B. P. Stevens, Daniel Cogswell, and B. C. Simonds.

The following motion was carried unanimously, viz.:

That from the recommendation of various ministers of Marion, Wayne Co., N. Y., respecting the christian character of Bro. Edward Kingsworth, and from his request that this Conference give assent to his efforts as a public laborer in the cause of Christ, we therefore commend him to the confidence of the church of Christ, as an exhorter or preacher, as his ability in the hands of God may dictate.

At the close of the exercises on Sunday evening, the following brethren were ordained to the ministry: Milton R. Miles and Benoni P. Stevens. Ordaining prayer, Eld. C. B. Turner; Charge to the candidates, Eld. Wm. A. Fenn; Right Hand of Fellowship, Eld. O. R. Fassett.

The Conference adjourned to meet at Darien, Genesee Co., on Friday before the second Sunday in September, 1866.

Our Conference was characterized by much harmony, love and zeal. The prayer meetings were very spiritual, the preaching was energetic and timely, and the result, we trust, will be very beneficial in the vicinity of the meeting. There was a large attendance from abroad, and the Disciple brethren kindly loaned us their large and commodious church for the Lord's day, which was filled to overflowing. F. BURR, Secretary.

TO MAKE ROPE PLIABLE.—Considerable difficulty is sometimes experienced in handling new rope, because of its stiffness. This is especially the case when it is wanted for halter and cattle ties. Every farmer is aware [illegible] for tying cattle are frequently unsafe, for the reason that they are not pliable enough to knot securely. [illegible] and new rope made as limber and soft as rope as after a year's constant use, by simply boiling it for two hours in water. Then hang it in a warm room and let it dry out thoroughly. It retains its stiffness until dry, when it becomes perfectly pliable.

BLOAT IN CATTLE.—When turned into a pasture where fresh grass is abundant, cattle [illegible] fermenting food, [illegible] will cause the creature to bloat, and unless the gas is provided a way of escape, will [illegible]

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

A WORD FROM THE EDITOR.

Dear children, we wish to make your part of the paper still more interesting than ever, so that you will be as anxious to have the Crisis come as are your parents. Now we are going to ask you to help us make it more interesting. You may wonder how. We will tell you. Write us some little letters, and tell us if you are trying to be good, so as to be ready to meet the Savior.

We are anxious also to hear from the members of the TRY COMPANY, who signed that noble pledge, which reads as follows:—WE, THE UNDERSIGNED, HEREBY PLEDGE OURSELVES TO ABSTAIN FROM TEA, COFFEE, TOBACCO, AND ALL INTOXICATING DRINKS AS A BEVERAGE.

We hope none who signed this pledge will ever break it. We took much pleasure in seeing your names signed to that pledge, and now we wish you would write to us, and tell us how you are getting along.

Who will be the next one to join the "Try Company"? Let us have a long string of names at once. Can not every member get a new name to send us before this month is out, so that when the Fourth of July comes, they will be free from all these bad habits? Let us take hold of the good work in earnest. What do you say? Will you do it? We think many voices will say Yes. [illegible]

May the Lord bless you all, and help you to be ready for his coming.

For the Children's Corner.

THE BEGGAR'S REPROOF.

AN OLD MAN'S STORY.

Several years ago, as I was traveling in a stage-coach, it stopped for an instant at an inn door, in a small village, and the calm voice of a man in real distress was heard to say:—

"Gentlemen, I have eaten nothing to-day, and have no money. Will you give me a penny?" He appeared to be a man about sixty, with a tin-drink staff in his hand, yet with an elastic step, and had the steady, undaunted gaze of an honest man. "Gentlemen," he continued, "I am not used to begging; I was quite too proud; but there is one thing that can conquer pride, and that is starvation."

"Trust in God," whispered an old man, as he handed him some money.

"Here is something for beer," cried a sailor tauntingly, as he threw him a few pennies.

The poor beggar stood leaning on his staff, looking steadily in the bloated face of the sailor, and, before he moved to touch his gift, replied,—

"If I had been to ale-houses in my youth, I should not now be walking twenty miles a day on a bit of bread and a drink of water. I should not now converse with a quick ear and a clear eye. I should not show you at sixty-three a step shaken only by sorrow and want. I should not look upon you with a face changed only by age and starvation." He then stooped to pick up his money, gave them all his blessing, and proceeded on his toilsome journey. UNCLE THOMAS.

THE CRUEL BOYS.

Sweet blue eyes, with silken lashes,
Dimpled rosy cheeks and chin,
[illegible]
Through my open door peeped in.
It was Nellie, [illegible]
And to soothe its wild alarms,
Close she hugged a tiny kitten
In her fair and chubby arms.

Then, dear aunty, Charlie and Edward
Tied these rags to kitty's back,
Chased her all around the village,
Then half drowned her in a sack.
O dear! O dear!" sobbed little Nellie,
"Charley says 'twas all in fun,"
And [illegible]
[illegible]

I [illegible] Ned and Charlie,—
[illegible]
For they knew how mean and cruel
Was the conduct that I blamed.
Much I fear that boys so heartless,
Will be cruel, wicked men;
Well I know that hearts so hardened,
Seldom yield to love again.

I've no fears that darling Nellie
Will [illegible] or cruel prove,
[illegible]
Shines the golden rule of love.

Selected by [illegible]

THE SAILOR BOY'S FAITH.

A vessel was overtaken with a terrific hurricane in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean. After every effort to weather the storm, the Captain gave this intelligence:—

"The ship is on her beam ends! She will never right again! Death is certain!"

"Not at all, sir! not at all, sir!" exclaimed a little sailor boy. "God will save us yet!"

"Why do you think so?" said the Captain.

"Because, sir, at this moment they are praying under the Bethel flag, in the city of Glasgow, for all sailors in distress, and we are among the number; and God will hear their prayers; see she if she don't!"

The Captain exclaimed, with tears in his eyes, "God grant that their prayers may be heard in our behalf, my little preacher!"

At that moment a great wave struck the ship and righted her. A few days after, the noble ship rode safely into New York harbor.

WE'LL LAUGH HIM OUT OF IT!

Charlie Earl seeking to become a christian, had [illegible] in prayer meeting.

Yes; last night he declared his purpose to lead a new life, and asked for the prayers of God's people that he might succeed.

"He is the life of our company," said David Bright; "so merry, and light-hearted, we can't afford to lose him. The idea of Charlie becoming religious! Imagine him with a solemn face," and he laughed heartily.

"Charlie is very earnest," said Ella Morrell.

"Oh, yes, he is always earnest over some trifle. [illegible] of his becoming religious [illegible] we'll laugh him out of it."

"I don't think you will."

"Oh, I am sure we shall. When we were in college, Charlie and I roomed together. His [illegible] books [illegible] he would be very miserable, [illegible] at him, and in a little while he would be as cheerful as ever. You will see him with us in a few days, laughing himself at his foolishness."

[illegible] Earl did not mingle with his former [illegible] David Bright [illegible] tried every way their ingenuity could devise to annoy Charlie. They carried their persecutions so far, that David became offended and left them.

The dignity and kindness with which Charlie bore their treatment, and his consistent conduct, won David's admiration and regard. He found Charlie not the gloomy, morose person he had pictured him, but the same genial, warm-hearted friend he used to be; learned in truth new to him, that religion can alter the disposition only for the better.

With a new purpose to live for, to glorify his divine Master, and with a heart filled with love and peace, Charlie Earl went on his way rejoicing. David found that his friend possessed in religion a treasure the world could not give, and he had now no wish to laugh him out of it, but rather to be brought himself under its gentle influence.—American Messenger.

BOYS AND GIRLS, BE PROMPT.

Perhaps there is no habit which ought to be more strictly cultivated in youth, than that of being prompt. It is much easier to do a thing at the precise time in which it ought to be done, than to perform the same thing when we know it is too late. And the child who begins life learning to acquire a fixed habit of promptness, will ever find it easy, and, indeed, almost necessary, to carry it out in all he does.

I knew two little girls, named Lucy and Ellen. They were sisters, differing but three years of age, though in character there was a wide and marked contrast. Lucy, the eldest, was ready to perform any task, or obey any command, the moment she was spoken to. And whatever she knew was required of her, whether reminded of it or not, she was prompt to do. But Ellen's fatal habit of delaying and waiting a little while, spoiled her own happiness and usefulness, besides often subjecting others to much inconvenience and pain. Her motto was, "There's time enough yet."

Ellen lost many enjoyments by this habit of always being behind hand. One day their father told his daughters that he would take them out to ride at four o'clock, if they would be ready precisely at the time. When the carriage arrived, Lucy was dressed and waiting, while Ellen had but just begun to dress. Her father, wishing to teach her a lesson, drove away with Lucy, leaving her weeping at home.

Many a boy and girl have been helped to good situations in life, where they have become respected and useful, through being prompt. Have time for your rule of action then. Never put off till another time what should be done now.—Forrester's Magazine.

HE DID'NT THINK.

So said a little boy, as he stood by the side of a mouse trap, which had an unwilling tenant in it. "What a fool he was to go in there!" said he. "Well," he added, "I suppose he did'nt think."

"No," he did'nt think," and for the very good reason that he was not taught to think. But what shall we say of that boy who is standing in the circus door, waiting for it to be opened? Or that boy with straggling hair, a pert twist to his cap, and a cigar in his mouth? Or that boy who stands at the corner of the streets on the Sabbath, or frequents the company of profane talkers? They will be caught in an evil net. They will fall into a hidden trap; and can they say they didn't think? Yes, perhaps they can; but if they tell the truth, they will add, "Because we wouldn't think." They have eyes, but they see not; ears have they, but they hear not.

THE CHRISTIAN INDIAN.

An English captain, in the year 1759, who was beating up for recruits in the vicinity of Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, met one day a Moravian Indian, and asked him whether he had a mind to be a soldier.

"No," answered he, "I am already engaged."

"Who is your captain?" asked the officer.

"I have a very brave and excellent captain," replied the Indian. "His name is Jesus Christ. Him will I serve as long as I live. My life is at his disposal."

Upon receiving this noble and decisive answer, the British captain suffered the pious red man to remain unmolested.

KING EDWARD VI.—When, at the age of nine years, Edward the Sixth, King of England, was crowned in Westminster, three swords were brought to him, signifying his dominion over the three kingdoms, England, Scotland, and Ireland, when he said, "There is yet one thing wanting."

"What is that?" said one of his attendants.

The youthful monarch replied, "The Bible, the sword of the Spirit. Without that we are nothing—we can do nothing."

A LITTLE GIRL'S FAITH.—A little girl, who was saved from the wreck of a steamboat, on being asked how she was saved, gave this simple answer: "God saved me! I prayed that he would, and he did."

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance . . . . . . $2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months . . . $3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address . . . . $6.00.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address $10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

Books put [illegible] a piece of paper separate from other communications.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish [illegible] orders, subscriptions, communications, and remittances [illegible] MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

[illegible] THE SAME OFFICE.

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS.

[illegible]

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 561. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 16.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

TIME.

Life is before us,
Tempests fly o'er us,
And time bears us onward as ever:
We make now our seal
For woe or for weal,
That follows us even forever.

Time's morning is past,
Eve hurries on fast,
The setting of earth's sun is nearing.
And through the thick sky
Sweet messages fly,
The "sign of the Son" soon appearing.

"Prepare ye the way,"
And "wait for the day,"
Receive, oh my soul, the glad tiding:
And bow 'neath the rod,
When wielded by God,
In bounteous mercy confiding.

Windham, Me. L. F. COLE.

For the World's Crisis.

FUTURE LIFE.—No. 2.

"If a man die, shall he live again?"—Job 14: 14.

I shall now introduce plain, positive testimony from the inspired Scriptures to prove that though a man die, he shall live again. Job says, "There is hope of a tree, if it be cut down, that it will sprout again; . . . but man dieth and wasteth away: yea, man giveth up the ghost, and where is he? As the waters fail from the sea, and the flood decayeth and drieth up; so man lieth down, and riseth not; till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." 14: 7–12.

This language has been thought by some to imply that man never will arise, and that death is an eternal sleep. "Man lieth down, and riseth not." It is true that men die, and do not again appear on the earth. But Job does not say that they never shall appear; but "till the heavens be no more they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." This is plain, positive testimony that men do not go to heaven when they die, but fall asleep, and must so remain till the heavens be no more; that is, the heavens that are now. But the heavens and the earth shall be changed, and their present condition pass away and perish. Ps. 102: 25, 26; Matt. 24: 35.

When this takes place, the time will have expired to which Job limits the sleep of the dead; for he must not be made to contradict himself. In the same connection he adds, "O that thou wouldst hide me in the grave, that thou wouldst keep me secret until thy wrath be past, that thou wouldst appoint me a set time, and remember me." This would indeed be a very singular prayer for a righteous man to make who expected to go immediately to heaven when he died. But he did not wish to witness the execution of wrath upon the ungodly, and therefore prays to be kept secret in the grave till that be past. 2 Thess. 1: 6–10.

Job then introduces the question, "If a man die, shall he live again?" He is now speaking of death, and consequently what follows must refer to man after death. "All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come." If we supply the ellipsis, it will read thus:—All the days of my appointed time, after death, will I wait, to live again, till my change come. This sense of the passage necessarily follows from the question which introduces it; for he adds, "Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee." Job is still speaking of man in death, and he does not expect to answer the Lord till he shall live again. Jno 5: 28, 29. Job's language here must not be made to contradict 19: 25, 26—"For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and after I shall awake, though this body be destroyed, yet out of my flesh shall I see God" (margin). Earth, not heaven, is the locality where Job expected his Redeemer to stand when he should see him "at the latter day."

Thus I have proved from the author of the question that man will live again. The prophet Isaiah speaks still more plainly. Addressing the Lord, he says, "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead."—26: 19, 20. This language of the inspired prophet locates the dead in the dust where all mankind are consigned by the original sentence. Who will locate them anywhere else?

The Lord then through the prophet addresses his people, saying, "Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity: the earth also shall disclose her blood, and no more cover her slain." The indignation of which Isaiah speaks, the wrath spoken of by Job, and the vengeance by Paul (2 Thess. 1: 8), all refer to the same time, viz: the coming of the Lord. This will be a time of trouble to the ungodly, such as never was since there was a nation; and at that time Daniel's people will be delivered, and many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake; Dan. 12: 1, 2; and Daniel himself will arise from his rest, and stand in his lot; ver. 13.

Ezekiel was also commanded to prophesy of the same event. "Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord, Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel."—37: 12. This was spoken concerning the children of Israel, the seed of Abraham, when they were carried away to Babylon, and therefore they must come up out of their graves, so many as had died and been buried in other lands, in order to return to the promised land. Abraham himself will then burst the cave of Machpelah (Gen. 25: 8–10), and obtain the promised inheritance. The Lord also says concerning his people, by the prophet Hosea, "I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death."—13: 14. If they are not in captivity to death, they cannot be redeemed or delivered from it. If they are now in heaven, they need no redeeming.

The resurrection, which the Sadducees denied, is first mentioned in the Bible in Matt. 22: 23; but the Savior showed that when the Lord called himself the God of Abraham, the language implied that Abraham should rise from the dead,—ver. 32. Surely, then, Abraham believed it, though no express mention is made of it; for as I have already shown, the promises implied it. The Savior showed his power to raise the dead while here in the flesh, and promised that all that are in the graves should hear his voice, and come forth. John 5: 28, 29. And Paul says, "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."—1 Cor. 15: 21, 22. Hence Adam will be redeemed from death, or one man at least will fail to be made alive in Christ. This settles the question which could not be settled by the history of Adam. They that are Christ's are to be made alive at his coming. Verse 23. Hence they must remain dead until he comes. Therefore Paul calls all the dead asleep (1 Thess. 4: 13) who shall arise when the Lord descends from heaven (v. 16); and the living saints at that time will be changed to immortality and caught up to meet the Lord in the air. v. 17; 1 Cor. 15: 51.

How very different is the doctrine of the Bible concerning the state of the dead from the traditions of men! Is it right that men having the Bible in their hands should allow themselves to be thus deceived? Is it right for those who profess to teach the way of eternal life, to keep men thus in ignorance respecting the way of salvation? If Christ himself passed through death to redeem men from its power, and this redemption is not effected until he comes the second time without sin unto salvation (Heb. 9: 28), is it right to teach men that death is redemption?—that when a man dies his soul is redeemed from its earthly tenement, and "soars away to the regions of everlasting bliss"? Christ hath not changed the nature of death, nor converted it from an enemy into a friend. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."—1 Cor. 15: 26. Death will remain the same until it is annihilated, when there will be no more death. Rev. 21: 4. If death puts the believer in possession of any promised blessing, why is not the fact revealed some where in the Bible? Or why is it called an enemy if it puts a man in possession of something better than he could enjoy whilst living in the world? And finally, if Abraham did not understand God to mean just what he said, when he promised him an inheritance in the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession (Gen. 17: 8), why was Abraham so anxious to obtain the possession of a burying-place in it? Gen. 23: 20. Read the whole chapter; also 49: 28–33. To be buried in the promised land has ever been an object of earnest desire by the seed of Abraham. Hence Joseph when he died exacted a promise under oath of the children of Israel, that when they returned from Egypt to the land of Canaan, they should carry his bones thither. Gen. 50: 24–26. And Paul in writing to the Hebrews reminds them of this, as an evidence of Joseph's faith. Heb. 11: 22.

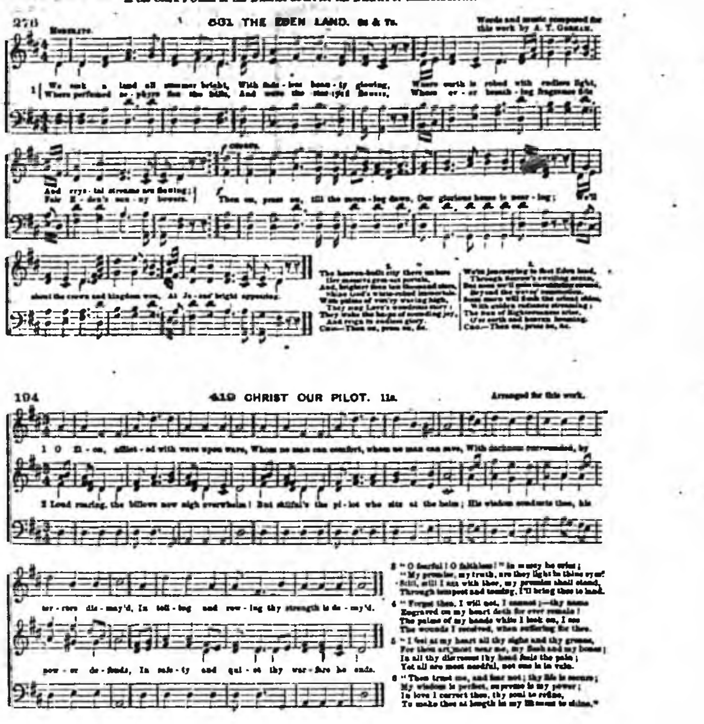
The same inspired penman defines faith to be "the substance of things hoped for."—11: 1. What then was the substance of Joseph's hope? Gen. 50: 24 will explain it. "And Joseph said unto his brethren, I die; and God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land which he sware to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob." Therefore Joseph wished to sleep with his fathers until, in the fulness of time, God should give them the promised possession.

There is no intimation in all the history of the patriarchs that they ever entertained any other hope. God never gave them a promise of an inheritance any where else; and since he did not give them that inheritance while they lived, it follows, as God is true and faithful to perform all that he has promised, that the heirs of the promise must eventually be gathered together in the land which contains the sleeping dust of the patriarchs. Matt. 24: 31. Ezek. 37 makes this so plain that men must close their eyes and stop their ears not to see, hear, and understand. "The wise shall understand."—Dan. 12: 10. May the Lord give wisdom to his servants, that they may rightly instruct his people.

Grand Rapids, Mich. J. C. ROGERS.

☞ The most agreeable of all companions is a simple, frank man, without any high pretensions to an oppressive greatness; one who loves life, and understands the use of it; obliging alike at all hours; above all, of a golden temper, and steadfast as an anchor. For such a one we will gladly exchange the greatest genius, the most brilliant wit, the profoundest thinker.

From the Jubilee Harp, entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1866, by the ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court for the District of Massachusetts.



The above are specimen pages from "THE JUBILEE HARP," the new Hymn and Tune Book, soon to be issued by the Society, and now in the hands of the printer. It will be ready in a few weeks, and, we trust, will be received with general favor by the household of faith, waiting for redemption.

For the World's Crisis.

LUKE XVI. 16.

"THE LAW AND THE PROPHETS WERE . . . . THE KINGDOM OF GOD IS PREACHED."

"Before thy mercy seat, O Lord!
Behold thy servant stand,
To ask the knowledge of thy word,
The guidance of thy hand.

Lord, from thy word remove the seal,
Unfold its hidden store;
And teach us, as we read, to feel
Its value more and more."

"Blind unbelief is sure to err,
And scan God's word in vain;
God is his own interpreter,
And he will make it plain."

"And it is easier for heaven and earth to pass, than one tittle of the law to fail. Whosoever putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery; and whosoever marrieth her that is put away from her husband, committeth adultery."—Luke 16: 17, 18.

But what has this to do with the subjects that precede the 16th and follow the 18th verses, is often asked, but less frequently answered. A certain writer, the Rev. Alvah Hovey, D. D., has truly said, "The parables of Christ never violate the order and course of nature—never introduce foreign elements into any sphere of life." The Morning Star, Dover, N. H., Oct. 4, 1864. In accordance with this rule, I answer that those three verses, above quoted, have much, "every way," to do with the precedent and the subsequent. They form the connecting link between the two, and it is through them that we must look for a natural solution of the succeeding parabolic discourse, and discover its connection with the preceding cause that called it forth, and by doing this, it seems to me, we shall also discover the intended lesson of the parable.

Christ, who was himself the speaker, and emphatically the "great teacher" had now, "in the fullness of the time," come, in accordance with the covenant of promise made to Abraham, and in keeping with the types and shadows of the law, to confirm, ratify, seal, and deliver the "new covenant" in his own blood, which was to supercede, disannul, and set aside the "old covenant," which, under the law, had been of force until John. See v. 16. The first office to be filled was that of teacher. While engaged in that capacity there stood before him two classes; the one representative of the new "living husband"—Christ and the gospel—the head of the church under the "new covenant"; the other, representative of the now "dead school-master," or "dead husband,"—MOSES AND THE LAW—the head under the old covenant.

Under the law, the Aaronic and Levitical high priests and their subordinates, stood for the entire body of Israel, as Christ and the apostles now stand under the gospel for the church. Under these circumstances, while the divine Instructor stood teaching the disciples the fundamental principles that were to attain under the new administration, the adherents of the old "derided him," while they sought to justify themselves by that now effete law, which was, when in force, intended to bring them to the very person whom they now held in derision, and, if understood, inculcated the same sentiments for which they now manifested such supreme contempt. Consequently, as a wise teacher, he informs them first of all, that "the law is no longer in force, and that their teachers, the prophets whom they stoned, was superceded by a new proclamation.

Then, after appealing to their own infallibility of that law in its fulfillment, he cites them to the express terms and specifications of the law in relation to the crime of adultery, of which they now made themselves guilty, in its spiritual application, by still adhering to the law, and claiming to be governed by it after its demise. In proof of this, hear Paul to the Jews at Rome. "Know ye not, brethren (for I speak to them that know the law), how that the law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth? For the woman which hath an husband is bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth; but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband. So then, if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress; but if her husband be dead, she is free from the law, so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man." Paul's application. "Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead."

Now here is the very same proposition that is contained in Luke 16: 18, and in the argument based upon it, the same conclusions that are contained in the parable of the "rich man," without the allegorical accompaniment.

Now, then, let us examine the parable itself; but, prior to its solution, we must examine and determine the signification of several terms therein used. The first of these is death; for it said, "the beggar died," . . . "and the rich man also died." Now if theologians could only find but one death referred to in the Scriptures, and that a natural, or temporal death, then of a necessity all men would be compelled to confine themselves to this use and application of the term in the text, and necessarily conclude that Jesus had reference to the condition of the rich man after the dust had returned to the earth as it was, and the spirit to God who gave it,—to the MAN made of the dust.

But there are many things which militate against such a conclusion, to some of which we shall refer. And first, the account says that the rich man, who also died, was buried. Now whatever died was that which was buried; and whatever was buried was that which in hades lifted up its eyes, being in torments. But in actual, natural death, the spirit, being separated from the body, and having "returned to God," could not have been buried; and the body, if dead, according to evangelical principles (and we intend to be very orthodox in our argument), could not lift up its eyes, or be in torment; for the "dead (persons) know not any thing."

Second, the spirit of the rich man, if a "conscious entity," and immaterial, incorruptible, and immortal, constituting "the man proper," could not die, and consequently could not get into hades; for that was where the dead man was buried, and the place where he was buried was the place where he lifted up his eyes in torment.

Thirdly, no reference is made to the spirit of either Lazarus, or Dives, in the entire discourse, and any argument affirming such to be the case, is simply a bare-faced assumption, begging the entire question. Certainly, Dives does not ask for the spirit of a dead man—a ghost—to be sent to his brethren, but whatever and wherever may have been his condition and place, he does ask that one who was actually, really, truly, and literally dead, should be "raised to life again." He does ask for a resurrection, and this is not a conclusion inferred, but proved by the answer of Abraham in the allegorical representation, "Neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead." Now, to say that this is spoken of the spirit, and at the same time affirm and contend that the spirit is the "essential living man," which can "never die," is equivalent to saying that a live man can be resurrected to life, without having died, which is not only a paradox, but an absurdity.

But fourthly, popular teaching instructs us that "a damned spirit in hell" is "lost to all good, to all sympathy, all pity, all desire of good or mercy to or for others," and that they vie with devils and wicked men, and with one another, in cursing men, cursing devils, cursing each other, and cursing God and his angels, in cursing the Son of God who died for them; that they become the devil's hirelings, emissaries and agents, to seduce other mortals into sin, crime, and all manner of iniquity, that these too may come under the power of his satanic majesty; and when they have accomplished their fell designs, then they rejoice in their triumph and gloat over their victims in their misery.

But what have we here? Why, according to this same, popular view, we have one of these "damned spirits" praying in hell, full of benevolence, compassion, love and sympathy, possessed of the missionary spirit, and desiring the conversion of those yet in the flesh. Oh, consistency! [illegible]

Coopersville, N. Y. [illegible] W. STRATTON.

For the World's Crisis.

BE DILIGENT.

When God created man, it is evident he designed that he should be active, from the fact he brought the materials necessary for man's existence into being, leaving it for man to adapt those materials to his necessities and tastes. This is called Art, and is emphatically the work of man, though the Lord did condescend to perform one piece of art for man, when man's necessities called for it. In Gen. 3: 21, we read, "Unto Adam also and to his wife did the Lord God make coats of skins, and clothed them."

How multitudinous are the ways in which God has manifested his interest in and sympathy for man. This scripture proves that he is not above laboring for man's necessities, whether that employment be the exercise of creative power, or the more menial employment of making coats out of skins. And when he gives such proof of his willingness and activity for man, should man consider it hard or unreasonable if some demands for activity are made of him? Nay, verily. But let poor fallen man consider the subject in the light he may, his Creator does make demands upon him. "What demands?" says one. The best we can do under the circumstances in which we may be placed.

First, he demands of all rational intelligences that they repent, and be baptized. Some say they will perform the first, but delay and cavil about complying with the second, until they justly merit the indignation of the Master; then wonder why they are so destitute of enjoyment. Perhaps they mourn, and cry before the Lord. But will he hear them while they persist in disobeying so plain a command? He did not hear me, and I think "his ways are equal."

The Master says, "Go WORK in my vineyard." And now the solemn question arises, Are we doing anything for God? I do not now ask if we are doing ALL we can; but are we really doing anything for God? Do we deny ourselves of this and that habit because God requires it? Do we take up the cross and perform certain religious duties, because God requires it? Do we bridle our tongue when incensed by an unbridled one because God requires it? Do we perform certain acts of beneficence to God's children because they are his children, and not because they are particularly intellectual, or possess other personal attractions, expecting no recompense until the resurrection of the just? The question is not whether we are able to support a missionary in the field, or whether we have the conveniences even for accommodating him over night; but, would we hasten to the cooling fountain, bearing from thence a cup of cold water, to allay the raging thirst of one because they were the Lord's? If so, the Master's word for it, we shall be rewarded. Matt. 10: 42. Do not pass this as a trivial affair, beneath your notice. The Master gives us tests whereby we may prove our loyalty to him; and thus he brings those tests within the ability of the poorest; therefore never let the poorest say, I can do nothing. A cup of cold water, or a five penny bit, it may be, is all you ought to give: but let not pride, or any other fleshly motive, keep you from doing this much, and the blessing will surely follow.

Please turn to Matt. 25th, and read from the thirty-first to the forty-first verse, and see if kindness to God's children is not the great TEST question in the judgment of the great day. Those that hear it said, "Come, ye blessed," have DONE something. Why, our whole being, physical, as well as mental, concurs with the divine command, "Be diligent," or active. Our physical system, wonderful and complicated as its mechanism appears, is all constructed for activity, and if we would remain agile, we must use the muscles often. A thousand times has it been proved to almost any careful observer, that the disuse of any organ or member of the human body is (in time) the loss of that member or organ. For example, if one were to allow an arm to be so bound up as to admit of no motion, would he not lose the use of that arm? I do not know just how long it would take, neither do I know how long one can remain in the body of Christ without using a muscle for God. I only know the time comes when such an one is considered like the dried and withered branch of a tree, and, like that, is cast forth, not to suffer endless torture, but to "be burned." John 15: 6.

But let us come to the human body, because God himself uses it to represent his church. Yes, the human body, with its various members, is a proper comparison for Christ's church. Then, according to what has just been stated relative to the activity of the human body, if a member of Christ's body suffer himself to be bound by the Devil so he cannot act for God, he will surely wither, droop, and perish. It does not make any material difference what kind of a cord is used to confine you, whether it be spiritual indolence, fear, or pride; the result will be the same—death, DEATH!

But do some who have repented and been baptized yet ask, What can I do? Circumstances are as various as gifts; thus no stereotyped rule is given for every member, only to do good as you have ability or opportunity. We find one man who had faith in God built a house for the worship of God. This was what he could do. Luke 7: 5.

Matthew, a kind of Custom House officer, left his business to become an apostle of Christ; and the first thing we hear of his doing was to make a feast, inviting a great company of friends and associates, that they might enjoy the privilege of eating with his Master, and listen to the gracious words of salvation. We do not read that he altered his course in the least because of the guarded [illegible] upon the common people as they received Christ gladly; but was "diligent" in forwarding the cause of Christ in every way possible.

There was a great revival in the days of John the Baptist, arousing a large class to inquire, "What shall we do?" They had probably been characterized by parsimony, and might actually have oppressed the hireling in his wages. Thus the first thing they are told to do is, to help the destitute. "He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none; and he that hath meat, let him do likewise." Then the tax-gatherers inquired what they should do? and he told them to be honest, not to overreach, etc. And then the soldiers asked him the same question, and he instructed these military men what to do.

It is quite apparent that difference of talent and circumstances elicited different instruction. But one thing is certain, that all who received Christ, or his forerunner, expected to do something; and if we continue to refrain from doing the little things we can do, will the Master say at last, "Well done"? Let us continually bear in mind that "Jesus Christ gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works."

Castleton, Vt. B. MATHEWSON.

"I HAVE PLACED YOU."

There is often much comfortable suggestion in a single phrase, a word of inspired Scripture. Jesus said to his disciples in the hour of deepest grief and anxiety (John 15: 16), "I have chosen you and placed you." Our version renders it, "I have ordained you." But the original is simply, "I have placed you." The place we occupy, then, is his appointment, his choice. We may not like it. It may be a low place, a narrow place. The work it requires may not afford much scope for energy, or excitement to activity, or opportunity for distinction; it may not even be so directly spiritual, or have so proximate a relation as we could wish to the advancement of the kingdom of God. But if Christ by his resistless providence has allotted it to us, we had better be contented with it, and make the best of it.

One of the titles of Christ is "The Captain of Salvation." No captain will permit a soldier to quit his place in the ranks because he thinks it below his merit, because it does not give him a good chance to show his courage, or to win distinction in the war. Whether he is placed in front or rear, in the forlorn hope, or among "the reserves;" whether he is attached to a scouting party, or ordered to cover a retreat, or guard the baggage, his part is bravely, watchfully, skillfully, cheerfully to keep the place and do the duty assigned him. No act of disobedience would be more flagrant than to forsake it without orders for one more conspicuous. Even to murmur, or to "sulk," because of the inactivity or obscurity to which he was consigned, would be regarded as disloyal, and expose him to rebuke, perhaps to degradation.

The Captain of the Lord's host, the Captain of Salvation, does not require a less prompt and absolute obedience than human commanders. The most skillful and penetrating officer may be mistaken in his estimate of the capacity and skill of a subordinate. Christ cannot be mistaken in us. He made us. He gave us whatever of talent or grace we have. He will not waste a particle of either. He knows "the very niche we were designed to fill," and if we humbly and observantly yield to his guiding hand, he will drop us into it.

"Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" was a prayer which began a glorious career of usefulness. His own gracious words may calm our disquieting aspirations,—"He that is least among you all, the same shall be great." The awards of the last day will greatly reverse the present order of things, and disappoint alike the sky-aspiring thoughts of one class, and the lowly self-depreciation of another. There is something remarkable in the solemnity with which our Lord makes this declaration: "Behold! there are last which shall be first, and there are first which shall be last."—Tract Journal.

—Selected by J. S. RICHARDS.

For the World's Crisis.

IGNORANCE.

There are but few who profess christianity, who do not professedly believe in the personal advent of Jesus again to this earth; though their faith, or doctrine of going to heaven when we die, precludes the necessity of such coming. The resurrection of the dead, which is one great object of his coming, is no more plainly declared in the Scriptures of truth, than is the personal second advent of the Son of God to raise them. Hence, says Paul, "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven," etc.; and that this testimony might not be rejected, the angels of heaven are sent to confirm the glorious fact, that "this same Jesus that is taken up from you into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

And yet the most popular preacher in America (H. W. Beecher), in a sermon printed May 31st, 1866, in the Independent, says: "I know not whether the second advent of Christ is at hand or not. I know not what the meaning of it is. That there is to be a literal visit of Christ to the earth again, they may believe who are wedded to physical interpretations of Scripture. I do not so read the word of God." After the Scriptures have declared that God would send Jesus; after Jesus says, "If I go away I will come again"; and since it has been announced by every New Testament writer, and set before the church as an object of hope, is it not strange that we hear such [illegible] from such a source—"I know not what the meaning of the second advent is"? Yours believing.

H. PEASE.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 561. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 16.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:

S. O. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:

H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS, TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth, especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart, the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

TIME.

Life is before us,
Tempests fly o'er us,
And time bears us onward as ever:
We make now our seal
For woe or for weal,
That follows us even forever.

Time's morning is past,
Eve hurries on fast,
The setting of earth's sun is nearing.
And through the thick sky
Sweet messages fly,
The "sign of the Son" soon appearing.

"Prepare ye the way,"
And "wait for the day,"
Receive, oh my soul, the glad tiding
And bow 'neath the rod,
When wielded by God,
In bounteous mercy confiding.

Windham, Me. L. F. COLE.

For the World's Crisis.

FUTURE LIFE.—No. 2.

"If a man die, shall he live again?"—Job 14: 14

I shall now introduce plain, positive testimony from the inspired Scriptures to prove that though a man die, he shall live again. Job says, "There is hope of a tree, if it be cut down, that it will sprout again, . . . but man dieth and wasteth away: yea, man giveth up the ghost, and where is he? As the waters fail from the sea, and the flood decayeth and drieth up; so man lieth down, and riseth not; till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." 14: 7–12.

This language has been thought by some to imply that man never will arise, and that death is an eternal sleep. "Man lieth down, and riseth not." It is true that men die, and do not again appear on the earth. But Job does not say that they never shall appear; but "till the heavens be no more they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." This is plain, positive testimony that men do not go to heaven when they die, but fall asleep, and must so remain till the heavens be no more; that is, the heavens that are now. But the heavens and the earth shall be changed, and their present condition pass away and perish. Ps. 102: 25, 26; Matt. 24: 35.

When this takes place, the time will have expired to which Job limits the sleep of the dead; for he must not be made to contradict himself. In the same connection he adds, "O that thou wouldst hide me in the grave, that thou wouldst keep me secret until thy wrath be past, that thou wouldst appoint me a set time, and remember me." This would indeed be a very singular prayer for a righteous man to make who expected to go immediately to heaven when he died. But he did not wish to witness the execution of wrath upon the ungodly, and therefore prays to be kept secret in the grave till that be past. 2 Thess. 1: 6–10.

Job then introduces the question, "If a man die, shall he live again?" He is now speaking of death, and consequently what follows must refer to man after death. "All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come." If we supply the ellipsis, it will read thus:—All the days of my appointed time, after death, will I wait, to live again, till my change come. This sense of the passage necessarily follows from the question which introduces it; for he adds, "Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee." Job is still speaking of man in death, and he does not expect to answer the Lord till he shall live again. Jno 5: 28, 29. Job's language here must not be made to contradict 19: 25, 26.—"For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and after I shall awake, though this body be destroyed, yet out of my flesh shall I see God" (margin). Earth, not heaven, is the locality where Job expected his Redeemer to stand when he should see him "at the latter day."

Thus I have proved from the author of the question that man will live again. The prophet Isaiah speaks still more plainly. Addressing the Lord, he says, "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead."—26: 19, 20. This language of the inspired prophet locates the dead in the dust where all mankind are consigned by the original sentence. Who will locate them anywhere else?

The Lord then through the prophet addresses his people, saying, "Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity: the earth also shall disclose her blood, and no more cover her slain." The indignation of which Isaiah speaks, the wrath spoken of by Job, and the vengeance, by Paul (2 Thess. 1: 8), all refer to the same time, viz: the coming of the Lord. This will be a time of trouble to the ungodly, such as never was since there was a nation; and at that time Daniel's people will be delivered, and many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake; Dan. 12: 1, 2; and Daniel himself will arise from his rest, and stand in his lot; ver. 13.

Ezekiel was also commanded to prophesy of the same event. "Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord, Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel."—37: 12. This was spoken concerning the children of Israel, the seed of Abraham, when they were carried away to Babylon, and therefore they must come up out of their graves, so many as had died and been buried in other lands, in order to return to the promised land. Abraham himself will then burst the cave of Machpelah (Gen. 25: 8–10), and obtain the promised inheritance. The Lord also says concerning his people, by the prophet Hosea, "I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death."—13: 14. If they are not in captivity to death, they cannot be redeemed or delivered from it. If they are now in heaven, they need no redeeming.

The resurrection, which the Sadducees denied, is first mentioned in the Bible in Matt. 22: 23; but the Savior showed that when the Lord called himself the God of Abraham, the language implied that Abraham should rise from the dead,—ver. 32. Surely, then, Abraham believed it, though no express mention is made of it; for as I have already shown, the promises implied it. The Savior showed his power to raise the dead while here in the flesh, and promised that all that are in the graves should hear his voice, and come forth. John 5: 28, 29. And Paul says, "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."—1 Cor. 15: 21, 22. Hence Adam will be redeemed from death, or one man at least will fail to be made alive in Christ. This settles the question which could not be settled by the history of Adam. They that are Christ's are to be made alive at his coming. Verse 23. Hence they must remain dead until he comes. Therefore Paul calls all the dead asleep (1 Thess. 4: 13) who shall arise when the Lord descends from heaven (v. 16); and the living saints at that time will be changed to immortality and caught up to meet the Lord in the air v. 17; 1 Cor. 15: 51.

How very different is the doctrine of the Bible concerning the state of the dead from the traditions of men! Is it right that men having the Bible in their hands should allow themselves to be thus deceived? Is it right for those who profess to teach the way of eternal life, to keep men thus in ignorance respecting the way of salvation? If Christ himself passed through death to redeem men from its power, and this redemption is not effected until he comes the second time without sin unto salvation (Heb. 9: 28), is it right to teach men that death is redemption?—that when a man dies his soul is redeemed from its earthly tenement, and "soars away to the regions of everlasting bliss"? Christ hath not changed the nature of death, nor converted it from an enemy into a friend. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."—1 Cor. 15: 26. Death will remain the same until it is annihilated, when there will be no more death. Rev. 21: 4. If death puts the believer in possession of any promised blessing, why is not the fact revealed some where in the Bible? Or why is it called an enemy if it puts a man in possession of something better than he could enjoy whilst living in the world? And finally, if Abraham did not understand God to mean just what he said, when he promised him an inheritance in the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession (Gen. 17: 8), why was Abraham so anxious to obtain the possession of a burying-place in it? Gen. 23: 20. Read the whole chapter; also 49: 28–33. To be buried in the promised land has ever been an object of earnest desire by the seed of Abraham. Hence Joseph when he died exacted a promise under oath of the children of Israel, that when they returned from Egypt to the land of Canaan, they should carry his bones thither. Gen. 50: 24–26. And Paul in writing to the Hebrews reminds them of this, as an evidence of Joseph's faith. Heb. 11: 22.

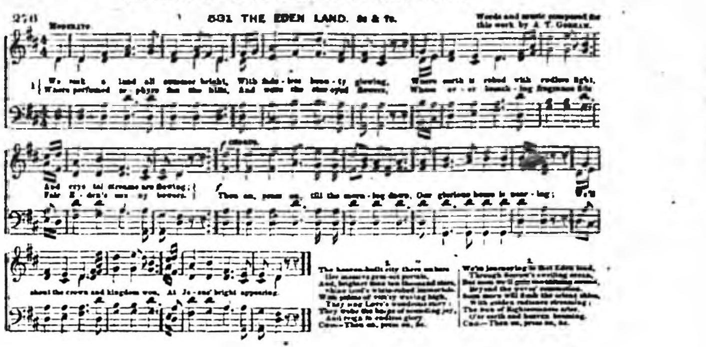
The same inspired penman defines faith to be "the substance of things hoped for."—11: 1. What then was the substance of Joseph's hope? Gen. 50: 24 will explain it. "And Joseph said unto his brethren, I die; and God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land which he sware to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob." Therefore Joseph wished to sleep with his fathers until, in the fulness of time, God should give them the promised possession.

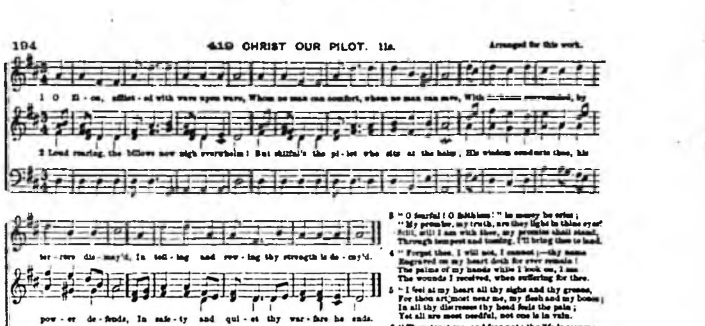
There is no intimation in all the history of the patriarchs that they ever entertained any other hope. God never gave them a promise of an inheritance any where else; and since he did not give them that inheritance while they lived, it follows, as God is true and faithful to perform all that he has promised, that the heirs of the promise must eventually be gathered together in the land which contains the sleeping dust of the patriarchs. Matt. 24: 31. Ezek. 37 makes this so plain that men must close their eyes and stop their ears not to see, hear, and understand. "The wise shall understand."—Dan. 12: 10. May the Lord give wisdom to his servants, that they may rightly instruct his people.

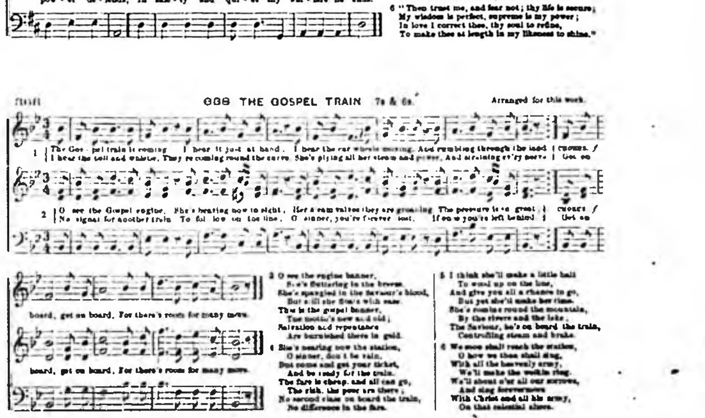
Grand Rapids, Mich. J. C. ROGERS.

☞ The most agreeable of all companions is a simple, frank man, without any high pretensions to an oppressive greatness; one who loves life, and understands the use of it; obliging alike at all hours; above all, of a golden temper, and steadfast as an anchor. For such a one we will gladly exchange the greatest genius, the most brilliant wit, the profoundest thinker.

From the Jubilee Harp, entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1866, by the ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court for the District of Massachusetts.







The above are specimen pages from "THE JUBILEE HARP," the new Hymn and Tune Book, soon to be issued by the Society, and now in the hands of the printer. It will be ready in a few weeks, and, we trust, will be received with general favor by the household of faith, waiting for redemption.

For the World's Crisis.

LUKE XVI. 16.

"THE LAW AND THE PROPHETS WERE . . . . THE KINGDOM OF GOD IS PREACHED."

"Before thy mercy seat, O Lord!
Behold thy servant stand,
To ask the knowledge of thy word,
The guidance of thy hand.

Lord, from thy word remove the seal,
Unfold its hidden store,
And teach us, as we read, to feel
Its value more and more."

"Blind unbelief is sure to err,
And scan God's word in vain;
God is his own interpreter,
And he will make it plain."

"And it is easier for heaven and earth to pass, than one tittle of the law to fail. Whosoever putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery; and whosoever marrieth her that is put away from her husband, committeth adultery."—Luke 16: 17, 18.

But what has this to do with the subjects that precede the 16th and follow the 18th verses, is often asked, but less frequently answered. A certain writer, the Rev. Alvah Hovey, D. D., has truly said, "The parables of Christ never violate the order and course of nature—never introduce foreign elements into any sphere of life." The Morning Star, Dover, N. H., Oct. 4, 1864. In accordance with this rule, I answer that those three verses, above quoted, have much, "every way," to do with the precedent and the subsequent. They form the connecting link between the two, and it is through them that we must look for a natural solution of the succeeding parabolic discourse, and discover its connection with the preceding cause that called it forth, and by doing this, it seems to me, we shall also discover the intended lesson of the parable.

Christ, who was himself the speaker, and emphatically the "great teacher" had now, "in the fullness of the time," come, in accordance with the covenant of promise made to Abraham, and in keeping with the types and shadows of the law, to confirm, ratify, seal, and deliver the "new covenant" in his own blood, which was to supercede, disannul, and set aside the "old covenant," which, under the law, had been of force until John. See v. 16. The first office to be filled was that of teacher. While engaged in that capacity there stood before him two classes; the one representative of the now "living husband"—Christ and the gospel—the head of the church under the "new covenant"; the other, representative of the now "dead school-master," or "dead husband,"—MOSES AND THE LAW—the head under the old covenant.

Under the law, the Aaronic and Levitical high priests and their subordinates, stood for the entire body of Israel, as Christ and the apostles now stand under the gospel for the church. Under these circumstances, while the divine Instructor stood teaching the disciples the fundamental principles that were to attain under the new administration, the adherents of the old "derided him," while they sought to justify themselves by that now effete law, which was, when in force, intended to bring them to the very person whom they now held in derision, and, if understood, inculcated the same sentiments for which they now manifested such supreme contempt. Consequently, as a wise teacher, he informs them first of all, that "the law is no longer in force, and that their teachers, the prophets whom they stoned, was superceded by a new proclamation.

Then, after appealing to their own infallibility of that law in its fulfillment, he cites them to the express terms and specifications of the law in relation to the crime of adultery, of which they now made themselves guilty, in its spiritual application, by still adhering to the law, and claiming to be governed by it after its demise. In proof of this, hear Paul to the Jews at Rome. "Know ye not, brethren (for I speak to them that know the law), how that the law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth? For the woman which hath an husband is bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth; but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband. So then, if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress; but if her husband be dead, she is free from the law, so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man." Paul's application. "Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead."

Now here is the very same proposition that is contained in Luke 16: 18, and in the argument based upon it, the same conclusions that are contained in the parable of the "rich man," without the allegorical accompaniment.

Now, then, let us examine the parable itself; but, prior to its solution, we must examine and determine the signification of several terms therein used. The first of these is death; for it said, "the beggar died," . . . . "and the rich man also died." Now if theologians could only find but one death referred to in the Scriptures, and that a natural, or temporal death, then of a necessity all men would be compelled to confine themselves to this use and application of the term in the text, and necessarily conclude that Jesus had reference to the condition of the rich man after the dust had returned to the earth as it was, and the spirit to God who gave it,—to the MAN made of the dust.

But there are many things which militate against such a conclusion, to some of which we shall refer; and, first, the account says that the rich man, who also died, was buried. Now whatever died was that which was buried; and whatever was buried was that which in hades lifted up its eyes, being in torments. But in actual, natural death, the spirit, being separated from the body, and having "returned to God," could not have been buried; and the body, if dead, according to evangelical principles (and we intend to be very orthodox in our argument), could not lift up its eyes, or be in torment; for the "dead (persons) know not any thing."

Second, the spirit of the rich man, if a "conscious entity," and immaterial, incorruptible, and immortal, constituting "the man proper," could not die, and consequently could not get into hades; for that was where the dead man was buried, and the place where he was buried was the place where he lifted up his eyes in torment.

Thirdly, no reference is made to the spirit of either Lazarus, or Dives, in the entire discourse, and any argument affirming such to be the case, is simply a bare-faced assumption, begging the entire question. Certainly, Dives does not ask for the spirit of a dead man—a ghost—to be sent to his brethren, but whatever and wherever may have been his condition and place, he does ask that one who was actually, really, truly, and literally dead, should be "raised to life again." He does ask for a resurrection, and this is not a conclusion inferred, but proved by the answer of Abraham in the allegorical representation, "Neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead." Now, to say that this is spoken of the spirit, and at the same time affirm and contend that the spirit is the "essential living man," which can "never die," is equivalent to saying that a live man can be resurrected to life, without having died, which is not only a paradox, but an absurdity.

But fourthly, popular teaching instructs us that "a damned spirit in hell" is "lost to all good, to all sympathy, all pity, all desire of good or mercy to or for others," and that they vie with devils and wicked men, and with one another, in cursing men, cursing devils, cursing each other, and cursing God and his angels, in cursing the Son of God who died for them; that they become the devil's hirelings, emissaries and agents, to seduce other mortals into sin, crime, and all manner of iniquity, that these too may come under the power of his satanic majesty; and when they have accomplished their fell designs, then they rejoice in their triumph and gloat over their victims in their misery.

But what have we here? Why, according to this same popular view, we have one of these "damned spirits" praying in hell, full of benevolence, compassion, love and sympathy, possessed of the missionary spirit, and thinking the conversion of those yet in the flesh. Oh, consistency! art thou inconsistency! G. W. STETSON.

Coopersville, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

BE DILIGENT.

When God created man, it is evident he designed that he should be active, from the fact he brought the materials necessary for man's existence into being, leaving it for man to adapt those materials to his necessities and tastes. This is called Art, and is emphatically the work of man, though the Lord did condescend to perform one piece of art for man, when man's necessities called for it. In Gen. 3: 21, we read, "Unto Adam also and to his wife did the Lord God make coats of skins, and clothed them."

How multitudinous are the ways in which God has manifested his interest in and sympathy for man. This scripture proves that he is not above laboring for man's necessities, whether that employment be the exercise of creative power, or the more menial employment of making coats out of skins. And when he gives such proof of his willingness and activity for man, should man consider it hard or unreasonable if some demands for activity are made of him? Nay, verily. But let poor fallen man consider the subject in the light he may, his Creator does make demands upon him. "What demands?" says one. The best we can do under the circumstances in which we may be placed.

First, he demands of all rational intelligences that they repent, and be baptized. Some say they will perform the first, but delay and cavil about complying with the second, until they justly merit the indignation of the Master; then wonder why they are so destitute of enjoyment. Perhaps they mourn, and cry before the Lord. But will he hear them while they persist in disobeying so plain a command? He did not hear me, and I think "his ways are equal."

The Master says, "Go WORK in my vineyard." And now the solemn question arises, Are we doing anything for God? I do not now ask if we are doing ALL we can; but are we really doing anything for God? Do we deny ourselves of this and that habit because God requires it? Do we take up the cross and perform certain religious duties, because God requires it? Do we bridle our tongue when incensed by an unbridled one because God requires it? Do we perform certain acts of beneficence to God's children because they are his children, and not because they are particularly intellectual, or possess other personal attractions, expecting no recompense until the resurrection of the just? The question is not whether we are able to support a missionary in the field, or whether we have the conveniences even for accommodating him over night; but, would we hasten to the cooling fountain, bearing from thence a cup of cold water, to allay the raging thirst of one because they were the Lord's? If so, the Master's word for it, we shall be rewarded. Matt. 10: 42. Do not pass this as a trivial affair, beneath your notice. The Master gives us tests whereby we may prove our loyalty to him; and thus he brings those tests within the ability of the poorest; therefore never let the poorest say, I can do nothing. A cup of cold water, or a five penny bit, it may be, is all you ought to give: but let not pride, or any other fleshly motive, keep you from doing this much, and the blessing will surely follow.

Please turn to Matt. 25th, and read from the thirty-first to the forty-first verse, and see if kindness to God's children is not the great TEST question in the judgment of the great day. Those that hear it said, "Come, ye blessed," have DONE something. Why, our whole being, physical, as well as mental, concurs with the divine command, "Be diligent," or active. Our physical system, wonderful and complicated as its mechanism appears, is all constructed for activity, and if we would remain agile, we must use the muscles often. A thousand times has it been proved to almost any careful observer, that the disuse of any organ or member of the human body is (in time) the loss of that member or organ. For example, if one were to allow an arm to be so bound up as to admit of no motion, would he not lose the use of that arm? I do not know just how long it would take, neither do I know how long one can remain in the body of Christ without using a muscle for God. I only know the time comes when such an one is considered like the dried and withered branch of a tree, and, like that, is cast forth, not to suffer endless torture, but to "be burned." John 15: 6.

But let us come to the human body, because God himself uses it to represent his church. Yes, the human body, with its various members, is a proper comparison for Christ's church. Then, according to what has just been stated relative to the activity of the human body, if a member of Christ's body suffer himself to be bound by the Devil so he cannot act for God, he will surely wither, droop, and perish. It does not make any material difference what kind of a cord is used to confine you, whether it be spiritual indolence, fear, or pride; the result will be the same—death, DEATH!

But do some who have repented and been baptized yet ask, What can I do? Circumstances are as various as gifts; thus no stereotyped rule is given for every member, only to do good as you have ability or opportunity. We find one man who had faith in God built a house for the worship of God. This was what he could do. Luke 7: 5.

Matthew, a kind of Custom House officer, left his business to become an apostle of Christ; and the first thing we hear of his doing was to make a feast, inviting a great company of friends and associates, that they might enjoy the privilege of eating with his Master, and listen to the gracious words of salvation. We do not read that he altered his course in the least because of the guarded fears and bold speeches of Pharisaic professors, who looked contemptuously upon the common people as they received Christ gladly; but was "diligent" in forwarding the cause of Christ in every way possible.

There was a great revival in the days of John the Baptist, arousing a large class to inquire, "What shall we do?" They had probably been characterized by parsimony, and might actually have oppressed the hireling in his wages. Thus the first thing they are told to do is, to help the destitute. "He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none; and he that hath meat, let him do likewise." Then the tax-gatherers inquired what they should do? and he told them to be honest, not to overreach, etc. And then the soldiers asked him the same question, and he instructed these military men what to do.

It is quite apparent that difference of talent and circumstances elicited different instruction. But one thing is certain, that all who received Christ, or his forerunner, expected to do something; and if we continue to refrain from doing the little things we can do, will the Master say at last, "Well done"? Let us continually bear in mind that "Jesus Christ gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works."

Castleton, Vt. B. MATHEWSON.

"I HAVE PLACED YOU."

There is often much comfortable suggestion in a single phrase, a word of inspired Scripture. Jesus said to his disciples in the hour of deepest grief and anxiety (John 15: 16), "I have chosen you and placed you." Our version renders it, "I have ordained you." But the original is simply, "I have placed you." The place we occupy, then, is his appointment, his choice. We may not like it. It may be a low place, a narrow place. The work it requires may not afford much scope for energy, or excitement to activity, or opportunity for distinction; it may not even be so directly spiritual, or have so proximate a relation as we could wish to the advancement of the kingdom of God. But if Christ by his resistless providence has allotted it to us, we had better be contented with it, and make the best of it.

One of the titles of Christ is "The Captain of Salvation." No captain will permit a soldier to quit his place in the ranks because he thinks it below his merit, because it does not give him a good chance to show his courage, or to win distinction in the war. Whether he is placed in front or rear, in the forlorn hope, or among "the reserves;" whether he is attached to a scouting party, or ordered to cover a retreat, or guard the baggage, his part is bravely, watchfully, skillfully, cheerfully to keep the place and do the duty assigned him. No act of disobedience would be more flagrant than to forsake it without orders for one more conspicuous. Even to murmur, or to "sulk," because of the inactivity or obscurity to which he was consigned, would be regarded as disloyal, and expose him to rebuke, perhaps to degradation.

The Captain of the Lord's host, the Captain of Salvation, does not require a less prompt and absolute obedience than human commanders. The most skillful and penetrating officer may be mistaken in his estimate of the capacity and skill of a subordinate. Christ cannot be mistaken in us. He made us. He gave us whatever of talent or grace we have. He will not waste a particle of either. He knows "the very niche we were designed to fill," and if we humbly and observantly yield to his guiding hand, he will drop us into it.

"Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" was a prayer which began a glorious career of usefulness. His own gracious words may calm our disquieting aspirations,—"He that is least among you all, the same shall be great." The awards of the last day will greatly reverse the present order of things, and disappoint alike the sky-aspiring thoughts of one class, and the lowly self-depreciation of another. There is something remarkable in the solemnity with which our Lord makes this declaration: "Behold! there are last which shall be first, and there are first which shall be last."—Tract Journal.

—Selected by J. S. RICHARDS.

For the World's Crisis.

IGNORANCE.

There are but few who profess christianity, who do not professedly believe in the personal advent of Jesus again to this earth; though their faith, or doctrine of going to heaven when we die, precludes the necessity of such coming. The resurrection of the dead, which is one great object of his coming, is no more plainly declared in the Scriptures of truth, than is the personal second advent of the Son of God to raise them. Hence, says Paul, "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven," etc.; and that this testimony might not be rejected, the angels of heaven are sent to confirm the glorious fact, that "this same Jesus that is taken up from you into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

And yet the most popular preacher in America (H. W. Beecher), in a sermon printed May 31st, 1866, in the Independent, says: "I know not whether the second advent of Christ is at hand or not. I know not what the meaning of it is. That there is to be a literal visit of Christ to the earth again, they may believe who are wedded to physical interpretations of Scripture. I do not so read the word of God." After the Scriptures have declared that God would send Jesus; after Jesus says, "If I go away I will come again"; and since it has been announced by every New Testament writer, and set before the church as an object of hope; is it not strange that we hear such declarations from such a source—"I know not what the meaning of the second advent is"? Yours believing,

H. PEASE.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 561. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 16.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

TIME.

Life is before us,
Tempests fly o'er us,
And time bears us onward as ever:
We make now our seal
For woe or for weal,
That follows us even forever.

Time's morning is past,
Eve hurries on fast,
The setting of earth's sun is nearing:
And through the thick sky
Sweet messages fly,
The "sign of the Son" soon appearing.

"Prepare ye the way,"
And "wait for the day,"
Receive, oh my soul, the glad tiding:
And bow 'neath the rod,
When wielded by God,
In bounteous mercy confiding.

Windham, Me. L. F. COLE.

For the World's Crisis.

FUTURE LIFE.—No. 2.

"If a man die, shall he live again?"—Job 14: 14.

I shall now introduce plain, positive testimony from the inspired Scriptures to prove that though a man die, he shall live again. Job says, "There is hope of a tree, if it be cut down, that it will sprout again; . . . but man dieth and wasteth away: yea, man giveth up the ghost, and where is he? As the waters fail from the sea, and the flood decayeth and drieth up; so man lieth down, and riseth not; till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." 14: 7–12.

This language has been thought by some to imply that man never will arise, and that death is an eternal sleep. "Man lieth down, and riseth not." It is true that men die, and do not again appear on the earth. But Job does not say that they never shall appear; but "till the heavens be no more they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." This is plain, positive testimony that men do not go to heaven when they die, but fall asleep, and must so remain till the heavens be no more; that is, the heavens that are now. But the heavens and the earth shall be changed, and their present condition pass away and perish. Ps. 102: 25, 26; Matt. 24: 35.

When this takes place, the time will have expired to which Job limits the sleep of the dead; for he must not be made to contradict himself. In the same connection he adds, "O that thou wouldst hide me in the grave, that thou wouldst keep me secret until thy wrath be past, that thou wouldst appoint me a set time, and remember me." This would indeed be a very singular prayer for a righteous man to make who expected to go immediately to heaven when he died. But he did not wish to witness the execution of wrath upon the ungodly, and therefore prays to be kept secret in the grave till that be past. 2 Thess. 1: 6–10.

Job then introduces the question, "If a man die, shall he live again?" He is now speaking of death, and consequently what follows must refer to man after death. "All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come." If we supply the ellipsis, it will read thus:—All the days of my appointed time, after death, will I wait, to live again, till my change come. This sense of the passage necessarily follows from the question which introduces it; for he adds, "Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee." Job is still speaking of man in death, and he does not expect to answer the Lord till he shall live again. Jno 5: 28, 29. Job's language here must not be made to contradict 19: 25, 26—"For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and after I shall awake, though this body be destroyed, yet out of my flesh shall I see God" (margin). Earth, not heaven, is the locality where Job expected his Redeemer to stand when he should see him "at the latter day."

Thus I have proved from the author of the question that man will live again. The prophet Isaiah speaks still more plainly. Addressing the Lord, he says, "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead."—26: 19, 20. This language of the inspired prophet locates the dead in the dust where all mankind are consigned by the original sentence. Who will locate them anywhere else?

The Lord then through the prophet addresses his people, saying, "Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity: the earth also shall disclose her blood, and no more cover her slain." The indignation of which Isaiah speaks, the wrath spoken of by Job, and the vengeance, by Paul (2 Thess. 1: 8), all refer to the same time, viz: the coming of the Lord. This will be a time of trouble to the ungodly, such as never was since there was a nation; and at that time Daniel's people will be delivered, and many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake; Dan. 12: 1, 2; and Daniel himself will arise from his rest, and stand in his lot; ver. 13.

Ezekiel was also commanded to prophesy of the same event. "Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord, Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel."—37: 12. This was spoken concerning the children of Israel, the seed of Abraham, when they were carried away to Babylon, and therefore they must come up out of their graves, so many as had died and been buried in other lands, in order to return to the promised land. Abraham himself will then burst the cave of Machpelah (Gen. 25: 8–10), and obtain the promised inheritance. The Lord also says concerning his people, by the prophet Hosea, "I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death."—13: 14. If they are not in captivity to death, they cannot be redeemed or delivered from it. If they are now in heaven, they need no redeeming.

The resurrection, which the Sadducees denied, is first mentioned in the Bible in Matt. 22: 23; but the Savior showed that when the Lord called himself the God of Abraham, the language implied that Abraham should rise from the dead,—ver. 32. Surely, then, Abraham believed it, though no express mention is made of it; for as I have already shown, the promises implied it. The Savior showed his power to raise the dead while here in the flesh, and promised that all that are in the graves should hear his voice, and come forth. John 5: 28, 29. And Paul says, "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."—1 Cor. 15: 21, 22. Hence Adam will be redeemed from death, or one man at least will fail to be made alive in Christ. This settles the question which could not be settled by the history of Adam. They that are Christ's are to be made alive at his coming. Verse 23. Hence they must remain dead until he comes. Therefore Paul calls all the dead asleep (1 Thess. 4: 13) who shall arise when the Lord descends from heaven (v. 16); and the living saints at that time will be changed to immortality and caught up to meet the Lord in the air. v. 17; 1 Cor. 15: 51.

How very different is the doctrine of the Bible concerning the state of the dead from the traditions of men! Is it right that men having the Bible in their hands should allow themselves to be thus deceived? Is it right for those who profess to teach the way of eternal life, to keep men thus in ignorance respecting the way of salvation? If Christ himself passed through death to redeem men from its power, and this redemption is not effected until he comes the second time without sin unto salvation (Heb. 9: 28), is it right to teach men that death is redemption?—that when a man dies his soul is redeemed from its earthly tenement, and "soars away to the regions of everlasting bliss"? Christ hath not changed the nature of death, nor converted it from an enemy into a friend. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."—1 Cor. 15: 26. Death will remain the same until it is annihilated, when there will be no more death. Rev. 21: 4. If death puts the believer in possession of any promised blessing, why is not the fact revealed some where in the Bible? Or why is it called an enemy if it puts a man in possession of something better than he could enjoy whilst living in the world? And finally, if Abraham did not understand God to mean just what he said, when he promised him an inheritance in the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession (Gen. 17: 8), why was Abraham so anxious to obtain the possession of a burying-place in it? Gen. 23: 20. Read the whole chapter; also 49: 28–33. To be buried in the promised land has ever been an object of earnest desire by the seed of Abraham. Hence Joseph when he died exacted a promise under oath of the children of Israel, that when they returned from Egypt to the land of Canaan, they should carry his bones thither. Gen. 50: 24–26. And Paul in writing to the Hebrews reminds them of this, as an evidence of Joseph's faith. Heb. 11: 22.

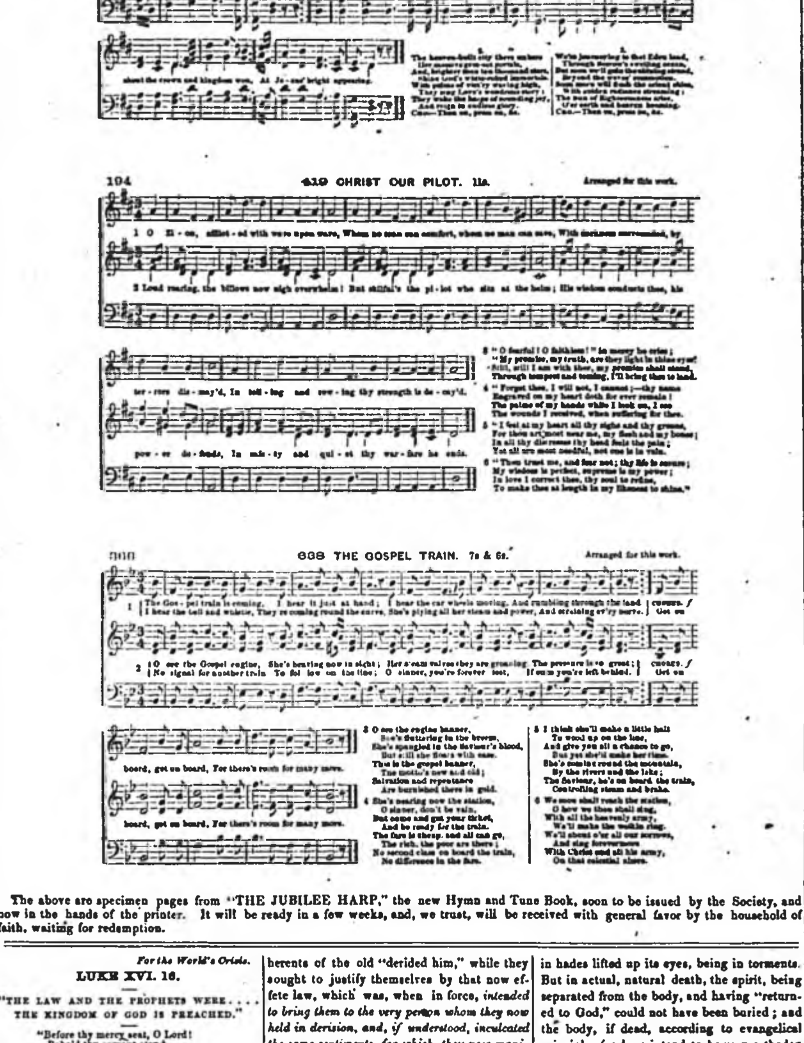
The same inspired penman defines faith to be "the substance of things hoped for."—11: 1. What then was the substance of Joseph's hope? Gen. 50: 24 will explain it. "And Joseph said unto his brethren, I die; and God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land which he sware to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob." Therefore Joseph wished to sleep with his fathers until, in the fulness of time, God should give them the promised possession.

There is no intimation in all the history of the patriarchs that they ever entertained any other hope. God never gave them a promise of an inheritance any where else; and since he did not give them that inheritance while they lived, it follows, as God is true and faithful to perform all that he has promised, that the heirs of the promise must eventually be gathered together in the land which contains the sleeping dust of the patriarchs. Matt. 24: 31. Ezek. 37 makes this so plain that men must close their eyes and stop their ears not to see, hear, and understand. "The wise shall understand."—Dan. 12: 10. May the Lord give wisdom to his servants, that they may rightly instruct his people.

Grand Rapids, Mich. J. C. ROOME.

☞ The most agreeable of all companions is a simple, frank man, without any high pretensions to an oppressive greatness; one who loves life, and understands the use of it; obliging alike at all hours; above all, of a golden temper, and steadfast as an anchor. For such a one we will gladly exchange the greatest genius, the most brilliant wit, the profoundest thinker.

From the Jubilee Harp, entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1866, by the ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court for the District of Massachusetts.



The above are specimen pages from "THE JUBILEE HARP," the new Hymn and Tune Book, soon to be issued by the Society, and now in the hands of the printer. It will be ready in a few weeks, and, we trust, will be received with general favor by the household of faith, waiting for redemption.

For the World's Crisis.

LUKE XVI. 16.

"THE LAW AND THE PROPHETS WERE . . . . THE KINGDOM OF GOD IS PREACHED."

"Before thy mercy seat, O Lord!
Behold thy servant stand,
To ask the knowledge of thy word,
The guidance of thy hand.

Lord, from thy word remove the seal,
Unfold its hidden store;
And teach us, as we read, to feel
Its value more and more."

"Blind unbelief is sure to err,
And scan God's word in vain;
*God is his own interpreter,
And he will make it plain.*"

"And it is easier for heaven and earth to pass, than one tittle of the law to fail. Whosoever putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery: and whosoever marrieth her that is put away from her husband, committeth adultery."—Luke 16: 17, 18.

But what has this to do with the subjects that precede the 16th and follow the 18th verses, is often asked, but less frequently answered. A certain writer, the Rev. Alvah Hovey, D. D., has truly said, "The parables of Christ never violate the order and course of nature—never introduce foreign elements into any sphere of life." The Morning Star, Dover, N. H., Oct. 4, 1864. In accordance with this rule, I answer that those three verses, above quoted, have much, "every way," to do with the precedent and the subsequent. They form the connecting link between the two, and it is through them that we must look for a natural solution of the succeeding parabolic discourse, and discover its connection with the preceding cause that called it forth, and by doing this, it seems to me, we shall also discover the intended lesson of the parable.

Christ, who was himself the speaker, and emphatically the "great teacher" had now, "in the fullness of the time," come, in accordance with the covenant of promise made to Abraham, and in keeping with the types and shadows of the law, to confirm, ratify, seal, and deliver the "new covenant" in his own blood, which was to supersede, disannul and set aside the "old covenant," which, under the law, had been of force until John. See v. 16. The first office to be filled was that of teacher. While engaged in that capacity there stood before him two classes; the one representative of the now "living husband"—Christ and the gospel—the head of the church under the "new covenant"; the other, representative of the now "dead school-master," or "dead husband,"—MOSES AND THE LAW—the head under the old covenant.

Under the law, the Aaronic and Levitical high priests and their subordinates, stood for the entire body of Israel, as Christ and the apostles now stand under the gospel for the church. Under these circumstances, while the divine Instructor stood teaching the disciples the fundamental principles that were to attain under the new administration, the adherents of the old "derided him," while they sought to justify themselves by that now effete law, which was, when in force, intended to bring them to the very person whom they now held in derision, and, if understood, inculcated the same sentiments for which they now manifested such supreme contempt. Consequently, as a wise teacher, he informs them first of all, that "the law is no longer in force, and that their teachers, the prophets whom they stoned, was superceded by a new proclamation.

Then, after appealing to their own infallibility of that law in its fulfillment, he cites them to the express terms and specifications of the law in relation to the crime of adultery, of which they now made themselves guilty, in its spiritual application, by still adhering to the law, and claiming to be governed by it after its demise. In proof of this, hear Paul to the Jews at Rome. "Know ye not, brethren (for I speak to them that know the law), how that the law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth? For the woman which hath an husband is bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth; but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband. So then, if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress; but if her husband be dead, she is free from the law, so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man." Paul's application. "Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead."

Now here is the very same proposition that is contained in Luke 16: 18, and in the argument based upon it, the same conclusions that are contained in the parable of the "rich man," without the allegorical accompaniment.

Now, then, let us examine the parable itself; but, prior to its solution, we must examine and determine the signification of several terms therein used. The first of these is death; for it said, "the beggar died," "and the rich man also died." Now if theologians could only find but one death referred to in the Scriptures, and that a natural, or temporal death, then of a necessity all men would be compelled to confine themselves to this use and application of the term in the text, and necessarily conclude that Jesus had reference to the condition of the rich man after the dust had returned to the earth as it was, and the spirit to God who gave it—to the MAN made of the dust.

But there are many things which militate against such a conclusion, to some of which we shall refer. First, the account says that the rich man who also died, was buried. Now whatever died was that which was buried; and whatever was buried was that which in hades lifted up its eyes, being in torments. But in actual, natural death, the spirit, being separated from the body, and having "returned to God," could not have been buried; and the body, if dead, according to evangelical principles (and we intend to be very orthodox in our argument), could not lift up its eyes, or be in torment; for the "dead (persons) know not any thing."

Second, the spirit of the rich man, if a "conscious entity," and immaterial, incorruptible, and immortal, constituting "the man proper," could not die, and consequently could not get into hades; for that was where the dead man was buried, and the place where he was buried was the place where he lifted up his eyes in torment.

Thirdly, no reference is made to the spirit of either Lazarus, or Dives, in the entire discourse, and any argument affirming such to be the case, is simply a bare-faced assumption, begging the entire question. Certainly, Dives does not ask for the spirit of a dead man—a ghost—to be sent to his brethren, but whatever and wherever may have been his condition and place, he does ask that one who was actually, really, truly, and literally dead, should be "raised to life again." He does ask for a resurrection, and this is not a conclusion inferred, but proved by the answer of Abraham in the allegorical representation, "Neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead." Now, to say that this is spoken of the spirit, and at the same time affirm and contend that the spirit is the "essential living man," which can "never die," is equivalent to saying that a live man can be resurrected to life, without having died, which is not only a paradox, but an absurdity.

But fourthly, popular teaching instructs us that "a damned spirit in hell" is "lost to all good, to all sympathy, all pity, all desire of good or mercy to or for others," and that they vie with devils and wicked men, and with one another, in cursing men, cursing devils, cursing each other, and cursing God and his angels, in cursing the Son of God who died for them; that they become the devil's hirelings, emissaries and agents, to seduce other mortals into sin, crime, and all manner of iniquity, that these too may come under the power of his satanic majesty; and when they have accomplished their fell designs, then they rejoice in their triumph and gloat over their victims in their misery.

But what have we here? Why, according to this same popular view, we have one of these "damned spirits" praying in hell, full of benevolence, compassion, love and sympathy, possessed of the missionary spirit, and desiring the conversion of those yet in the flesh. Oh, consistency! and oh, inconsistency!

G. W. STETSON.

Coopersville, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

BE DILIGENT.

When God created man, it is evident he designed that he should be active, from the fact he brought the materials necessary for man's existence into being, leaving it for man to adapt those materials to his necessities and tastes. This is called Art, and is emphatically the work of man, though the Lord did condescend to perform one piece of art for man, when man's necessities called for it. In Gen. 3: 21, we read, "Unto Adam also and to his wife did the Lord God make coats of skins, and clothed them."

How multitudinous are the ways in which God has manifested his interest in and sympathy for man. This scripture proves that he is not above laboring for man's necessities, whether that employment be the exercise of creative power, or the more menial employment of making coats out of skins. And when he gives such proof of his willingness and activity for man, should man consider it hard or unreasonable if some demands for activity are made of him? Nay, verily. But let poor fallen man consider the subject in the light he may, his Creator does make demands upon him. "What demands?" says one. The best we can do under the circumstances in which we may be placed.

First, he demands of all rational intelligences that they repent, and be baptized. Some say they will perform the first, but delay and cavil about complying with the second, until they justly merit the indignation of the Master; then wonder why they are so destitute of enjoyment. Perhaps they mourn, and cry before the Lord. But will he hear them while they persist in disobeying so plain a command? He did not hear me, and I think "his ways are equal."

The Master says, "Go WORK in my vineyard." And now the solemn question arises, Are we doing anything for God? I do not now ask if we are doing ALL we can; but are we really doing anything for God? Do we deny ourselves of this and that habit because God requires it? Do we take up the cross and perform certain religious duties, because God requires it? Do we bridle our tongue when incensed by an unbridled one because God requires it? Do we perform certain acts of beneficence to God's children because they are his children, and not because they are particularly intellectual, or possess other personal attractions, expecting no recompense until the resurrection of the just? The question is not whether we are able to support a missionary in the field, or whether we have the conveniences even for accommodating him over night; but, would we hasten to the cooling fountain, bearing from thence a cup of cold water, to allay the raging thirst of one because they were the Lord's? If so, the Master's word for it, we shall be rewarded. Matt. 10: 42. Do not pass this as a trivial affair, beneath your notice. The Master gives us tests whereby we may prove our loyalty to him; and thus he brings those tests within the ability of the poorest; therefore never let the poorest say, I can do nothing. A cup of cold water, or a five penny bit, it may be, is all you ought to give: but let not pride, or any other fleshly motive, keep you from doing this much, and the blessing will surely follow.

Please turn to Matt. 25th, and read from the thirty-first to the forty-first verse, and see if kindness to God's children is not the great TEST question in the judgment of the great day. Those that hear it said, "Come, ye blessed," have DONE something. Why, our whole being, physical, as well as mental, concurs with the divine command, "Be diligent," or active. Our physical system, wonderful and complicated as its mechanism appears, is all constructed for activity, and if we would remain agile, we must use the muscles often. A thousand times has it been proved to almost any careful observer, that the disuse of any organ or member of the human body is (in time) the loss of that member or organ. For example, if one were to allow an arm to be so bound up as to admit of no motion, would he not lose the use of that arm? I do not know just how long it would take, neither do I know how long one can remain in the body of Christ without using a muscle for God. I only know the time comes when such an one is considered like the dried and withered branch of a tree, and, like that, is cast forth, not to suffer endless torture, but to "be burned." John 15: 6.

But let us come to the human body, because God himself uses it to represent his church. Yes, the human body, with its various members, is a proper comparison for Christ's church. Then, according to what has just been stated relative to the activity of the human body, if a member of Christ's body suffer himself to be bound by the Devil so he cannot act for God, he will surely wither, droop, and perish. It does not make any material difference what kind of a cord is used to confine you, whether it be spiritual indolence, fear, or pride; the result will be the same—death; DEATH!

But do some who have repented and been baptized yet ask, What can I do? Circumstances are as various as gifts; thus no stereotyped rule is given for every member, only to do good as you have ability or opportunity. We find one man who had faith in God built a house for the worship of God. This was what he could do. Luke 7: 5.

Matthew, a kind of Custom House officer, left his business to become an apostle of Christ; and the first thing we hear of his doing was to make a feast, inviting a great company of friends and associates, that they might enjoy the privilege of eating with his Master, and listen to the gracious words of salvation. We do not read that he altered his course in the least because of the grumbling and faultfinding of scribes and pharisees, who looked contemptuously upon the common people as they received Christ gladly; but was "diligent" in forwarding the cause of Christ in every way possible.

There was a great revival in the days of John the Baptist, arousing a large class to inquire, "What shall we do?" They had probably been characterized by parsimony, and might actually have oppressed the hireling in his wages. Thus the first thing they are told to do is, to help the destitute. "He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none; and he that hath meat, let him do likewise." Then the tax-gatherers inquired what they should do? and he told them to be honest, not to overreach, etc. And then the soldiers asked him the same question, and he instructed these military men what to do.

It is quite apparent that difference of talent and circumstances elicited different instruction. But one thing is certain, that all who received Christ, or his forerunner, expected to do something; and if we continue to refrain from doing the little things we can do, will the Master say at last, "Well done"? Let us continually bear in mind that "Jesus Christ gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works."

Castleton, Vt. B. MATHEWSON.

"I HAVE PLACED YOU."

There is often much comfortable suggestion in a single phrase, a word of inspired Scripture. Jesus said to his disciples in the hour of deepest grief and anxiety (John 15: 16), "I have chosen you and placed you." Our version renders it, "I have ordained you." But the original is simply, "I have placed you." The place we occupy, then, is his appointment, his choice. We may not like it. It may be a low place, a narrow place. The work it requires may not afford much scope for energy, or excitement to activity, or opportunity for distinction; it may not even be so directly spiritual, or have so proximate a relation as we could wish to the advancement of the kingdom of God. But if Christ by his resistless providence has allotted it to us, we had better be contented with it, and make the best of it.

One of the titles of Christ is "The Captain of Salvation." No captain will permit a soldier to quit his place in the ranks because he thinks it below his merit, because it does not give him a good chance to show his courage, or to win distinction in the war. Whether he is placed in front or rear, in the forlorn hope, or among "the reserves;" whether he is attached to a scouting party, or ordered to cover a retreat, or guard the baggage, his part is bravely, watchfully, skillfully, cheerfully to keep the place and do the duty assigned him. No act of disobedience would be more flagrant than to forsake it without orders for one more conspicuous. Even to murmur, or to "sulk," because of the inactivity or obscurity to which he was consigned, would be regarded as disloyal, and expose him to rebuke, perhaps to degradation.

The Captain of the Lord's host, the Captain of Salvation, does not require a less prompt and absolute obedience than human commanders. The most skillful and penetrating officer may be mistaken in his estimate of the capacity and skill of a subordinate. Christ cannot be mistaken in us. He made us. He gave us whatever of talent or grace we have. He will not waste a particle of either. He knows "the very niche we were designed to fill," and if we humbly and observantly yield to his guiding hand, he will drop us into it.

"Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" was a prayer which began a glorious career of usefulness. His own gracious words may calm our disquieting aspirations,—"He that is least among you all, the same shall be great." The awards of the last day will greatly reverse the present order of things, and disappoint alike the sky-aspiring thoughts of one class, and the lowly self-depreciation of another. There is something remarkable in the solemnity with which our Lord makes this declaration: "Behold! there are last which shall be first, and there are first which shall be last."—Tract Journal.

—Selected by J. S. RICHARDS.

For the World's Crisis.

IGNORANCE.

There are but few who profess christianity, who do not professedly believe in the personal advent of Jesus again to this earth; though their faith, or doctrine of going to heaven when we die, precludes the necessity of such coming. The resurrection of the dead, which is one great object of his coming, is no more plainly declared in the Scriptures of truth, than is the personal second advent of the Son of God to raise them. Hence, says Paul, "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven," etc.; and that this testimony might not be rejected, the angels of heaven are sent to confirm the glorious fact, that "this same Jesus that is taken up from you into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

And yet the most popular preacher in America (H. W. Beecher), in a sermon printed May 31st, 1865, in the Independent, says: "I know not whether the second advent of Christ is at hand or not. I know not what the meaning of it is. That there is to be a literal visit of Christ to the earth again, they may believe who are wedded to physical interpretations of Scripture. I do not so read the word of God." After the Scriptures have declared that God would send Jesus; after Jesus says, "If I go away I will come again"; and since it has been announced by every New Testament writer, and set before the church as an object of hope, is it not strange that we hear such declarations from such a source—"I know not what the meaning of the second advent is"? Yours believing,

H. PEASE.

For the World's Crisis.

ALL FOR GOOD.

All things shall work for good to those that love the Lord. The people of God, under their afflictions, are often tempted to an impatience to be freed. But they should wait calmly for the time God has appointed for their deliverance. It is of more importance to us, to have grace properly to bear and improve our afflictions, than to be entirely delivered from them. To be supported under them may so sanctify as to render them the greatest blessing. But if, according to our own desire, we could break away from them, it might prove our ruin.

God sees it needful for his people to be tried, and why should we complain? If we could see the end of these afflictions, and how they were to terminate in our good, we should have no cause for complaint. But that is one of the brightest excellencies of the christian faith, to confide in God in the darkest hour of affliction, with an assurance that in so doing he will conduct our affairs to his own glory and our good.

Had Abraham known God would have released his son, what he did could have been no great trial of his faith. But when seen going forward in obedience to the command, although he could see no way for God to accomplish his promise, yet he did not stagger at the promise, through unbelief, but was strong in faith, giving glory to God.

Had Daniel certainly known God would have stopped the mouths of the lions, or the three children that he would have quenched the violence of the fire, a very small degree of faith and christian fortitude would have been sufficient for their support. But as they were ignorant of the method he would take to glorify himself and save them, they calmly confided in him, though thick clouds and darkness rested on the event. Such is the christian's faith. And he brought them safely out.

We find many like instances in examining the Scriptures, in which the people of God have trusted him in the darkest hour, and have been gloriously delivered.

To be impatient of deliverance before the time God appoints, or wish it in any other way than his wisdom directs, is in effect to wish God may not be glorified. Against this we have need to watch and pray, and in all trials look earnestly to God for supporting grace, and he will take care of the trial, and will work all out for our good and his glory.

Let us arm ourselves with contentment and patience, and quietly wait for our King from heaven, and, keeping an eye single, be looking for and hasting to the coming of our Lord. Let the blissful prospect encourage us to press deeper and deeper into the life of grace, to grow up into Christ our living head, and so be perfectly fitted for the rest which remains for the people of God.

Bangor, Me. CATHERINE DAGGETT.

For the World's Crisis.

"BE NOT CONFORMED TO THE WORLD."

Some are always condemning worldliness. By worldliness they mean love of display and pleasure; and they tell how this sister has a bonnet covered with flowers, and that one wears a gold pin; how this brother went to a concert the other night, and that one drives a fast horse, and rides in a nice carriage, forgetting that the book that condemns this love of pleasure and display also says, "Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamor, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice."

Jesus says, "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." When we do wrong (we all do sometimes), we do not like to have those knowing to it tell others of it. Suppose a person is worldly, or deceitful, or selfish, does it make him any the less so to inform every one else of the fact? Do we lead sinners to see the beauty and purity of christianity, and embrace it, by directly disobeying the commands of Christ?

There are other kinds of worldliness than pride. Trifling conversation is worldly; backbiting, envy, tattling is worldly; but many think if they leave off outward adorning, and cease attending parties of pleasure, they are not conformed to the world, though they scold, fret, worry, and tell of others' faults until christians are heartsick and sinners are disgusted.

Some say, "So when we eat we do as the world do." And you are doing as Jesus did. But Christ never envied any one; he was never discontented, or fault-finding, or impatient, and told people their own faults, instead of telling them of others' faults and requesting them not to mention it.

While we profess to be christians, let us follow Christ's example. S. K. PAINE.

For the World's Crisis.

TO THE TRIED ONES.

Are you passing through trials? Look to Jesus. Face them like a brave soldier. You will be further advanced when you get through if you only keep the meek and quiet spirit. Count it all joy. Have they been speaking evil of you? That is just what they did by the Master. Is it not good enough for us? Did you not agree to follow him through evil report as well as good? Then let us keep humble. God will take care of all these things in due time. Have they cast you off? Have they said you have no religion? What if they have? How stands the case with the Lord? Is all right with you at headquarters? If so, let the winds blow.

I am reminded now of a dying man. As they were conversing with him, and asking him to call on the Lord, he said he and the Lord were on good terms. As for the devil, he didn't care any thing about him. So we might say. If all is right with Jesus, hold up your head. Let the enemy howl. You say you cannot bear it. Look to Christ; cast all your burdens on him; keep at his feet; pray for more grace, and he will bring you through safely.

What can I say to encourage you? Could I take some of your trials I would gladly do it. But you must bear your cross; so must I mine.

In conclusion let me say, bear your trials like good soldiers. Keep meek. Lift up your heads; your redemption draws nigh. Keep the good Spirit. Keep doing; keep bearing the cross; keep loving; keep kind; keep from speaking evil; keep praying; keep honest; keep free from condemnation; keep your thoughts, by the help of Jesus. Keep all these, and all the commandments, and you will have a right to the tree of life. Go on, tried ones; we hope and pray you may overcome, and at last receive the crown.

Concord, N.H. J. T. KIMBALL.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, July 4, 1866.

☞ Good Fractional Currency.

In sending postal currency, be careful to see that it is good before sending it. Very much of this fractional currency now in circulation is counterfeit; and every week we are receiving worthless notes of this description, which we are obliged to return to the sender.

DISCUSSION.

We have arranged to have a discussion in Union Hall, Natic, R. I., with Mr. John K. Lewister, Universalist preacher, from Providence, to commence Tuesday evening, July 10th, and continue four evenings.

QUESTION:—"Does the Bible teach that the second coming of Christ, and the end of all the prophetic periods, was at the destruction of Jerusalem?"

INQUIRIES.

ELDER MILES GRANT:—Sir, I have quite recently had some Advent doctrines brought to my attention, and one of them,—conversion, change of heart, being born again,—I do not understand.

The sudden change, falling off of the burden of sin, the bright light, which in a moment breaks in upon the mind, are stumbling blocks in the path of many who are anxiously inquiring, 'what they shall do to be saved? All this we hear much about in orthodox churches.

Is a person a true christian who gradually becomes convinced that she is not living right, and at last firmly resolves that she will with God's help obey his commands, giving herself up wholly to be an instrument in his hand, and trusting in Christ's atoning blood to wash away her sins?

A few words from you on this subject would be most thankfully received. I hope it is not too great a favor to ask. A letter, or a tract to me, or perhaps a piece in the Crisis would benefit a greater number. ANN E. HALL.

So. Worcester.

It affords us pleasure to answer the inquiries of our sister. We have frequently found persons troubled about the same things. When a person has been very wicked, there is usually a more "sudden change," a more marked experience at the beginning of their christian warfare, because the contrast is so great between their former wicked life and the service of the Lord.

We have known others, who were devoted christians, that could not tell just the time their sins were forgiven. They had always lived what are called "moral lives," had been under religious influence from their earliest days of recollection, had continued to pray from the time their mother had learned them to say,—"Now I lay me down to sleep," and now they are happy in the love of God; but have had no "sudden change" that so overpowered them, that they could neither eat nor sleep. Great conviction is not what makes distinguished christians, but entire consecration to the Lord.

A person may be just as true a christian who "gradually" enters the way, as one who rushes in at once. We think people are usually better pleased with their experience when they yield fully at the first; and that it is the best way; but, we would say to our sister, that whenever she arrives at the point where she "firmly resolves that she will with God's help obey his commands, giving herself up wholly to be an instrument in his hand, and trusting in Christ's atoning blood to wash away her sins," then she will be the Lord's, whether she is one day, or many years in reaching that state of mind; and no one can ever be free in the Lord till they do come to just such a conclusion, and put it into effect. "His servants ye are to whom ye obey."—Rom. 6: 16.

NOVEL READING.

Novel reading is to the mind what tobacco and strong drink are to the physical system—poisonous and ruinous. Yet they all exert a very seducing, or bewitching effect after one comes under their influence, making their votaries believe that they are reaping a real benefit.

For many years we have watched the course of novel readers, and we have never yet become acquainted with one who had not backslidden from the Lord, if they ever enjoyed religion; indeed, we do not think one has a relish for such fictitious trash till after they have taken the backslider's road.

It may be asked, "are there not some novels that have a good moral in them?" That may be; but are we obliged to go to novels to learn morals? This "good moral," as it is termed, is the snare of Satan, by which good people are decoyed into novel reading. It is like the seasoning of the brandy sling, or milk punch, that first tempts the little boy to drink from the drunkard's bowl. After the appetite is formed, it is hard to let them alone. The only safety is in total abstinence from all such things.

The following from Isaac Taylor, on the subject of novel reading, is worthy of candid consideration:—

ZEST! How may it most effectually be dissipated, how irrecoverably lost? Forgive me now this wrong, if conscience driven, as I am, I utter what must I know offend some who read this paper. Genuine zest disappears wherever fiction holds sway. I am intending no onslaught on novel reading. I have no Puritanic horror of novels. I have listened to most of those that were the popular fictions of that by-gone time. I say this only to heads of families: Make your choice—freely admit from the circulating library the three volume novels of the season, and then be content to find that all residue of zest is gone as to history or biography, or science, or anything else that is real and genuine, christianity included. Novel reading is an infatuation which masters souls as surely as dram-drinking does. Many are the melancholy spectacles which one encounters in towns; as for instance a woman, wasted, worn, in tatters, and near to starvation—that is a sad sight. And so it is sad to meet the well-dressed lady of forty or fifty, hastening home with the three greasy-boarded volumes, which are all to be devoured between the noon of to-day and the dawn of to-morrow! The alternative for the individuals or the family is this: Novel reading with its consequent ennui and utter apathy, or the genuine feeling, employment with zest, as to whatever is real in life, in history, in science, in poetry, and in general literature. Fiction of any sort in one scale, and reality in the other, the beam will never stand on the level.—Littel's Living Age.

A SECOND CHILD.

If a man's intelligence does not depend upon his brain, connected with a living, physical organism, why is it that he is an infant in mind when he is such physically? We think one of two things must be true: either the mind in man is the RESULT of an active brain; or else it is dependent upon its action for all its manifestations. If it is the result, then it follows that when the brain is weak, as in the infant, the thoughts will be correspondingly so; and when it is impaired, or deranged, there will be derangement of mind; when deficient, as in the idiot, then the mind is deficient; and when old, worn out, and comparatively inactive, and weak like a child's, the man becomes a second child, as in the following case:—

DR. NOTT'S LAST HOURS.—The last few hours of the venerable Dr. Nott's life were peculiarly impressive. He sank into a second childhood that was peculiarly tender. He lay on his bed blind and apparently unconscious. His wife sat by his bed-side and sang to him day by day the songs of his childhood. He was hushed to repose by them like an infant on its pillow. Watt's cradle hymn,

"Hush, my dear, lie still and slumber," always soothed him. Visions of home floated before him, and the name of his mother was frequently on his lips. The last time he conducted family devotions with his household, he closed his prayer with the well known lines,

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep;
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take."

If the mind is dependent upon the action of the brain for all its manifestations, how could the mind manifest itself without any brain? Who can tell? The Bible is in harmony with philosophy, physiology, reason, facts, and common sense, when it says,—"The dead know not any thing." Eccl. 9: 5. Why not believe it?

CHEATING.

This is emphatically an age of cheating. This arises from the great increase of covetousness, which was to characterize the people of "the last days," as foretold by the apostle. We think but few purchasers are aware of the amount of cheating practised by manufacturers and traders at the present day. The following from the New York correspondent of the Boston Journal, will give the reader but a glimpse of what is going on among business men.

CANDY ADULTERATIONS.

Our new health espionage is bringing to light some queer things. The common candies and confectioneries of commerce are not altogether toothsome nor wholesome, if recent investigations are to be believed.

The adulteration of sugars, candies and spices is a trade largely and regularly carried on in this city. Instead of plaster, which till lately entered so largely into the manufacture of confectionery, in place of sugars, a new article has been discovered, called Terra alba, or white earth. It comes from Ireland, and costs by the barrel about 2½ cents a pound, while loaf sugar costs seventeen cents. The body of candies, the coating of almonds and lozenges are made from this earthy material. It is whiter than plaster and is much used in the adulteration of flour sold in this market. A glue, paint and oil manufacturer of New York has sent round his annular circular, which I have seen, to the principal confectioners, calling attention to a fresh arrival of this white earth. I have seen an ounce of lozenges dissolved in water, in which two-thirds of an ounce was of Terra abla, and not a particle of sugar in the lot.

The common method of flavoring candies, almonds, sugar plums, etc., is with deleterious substances. The pineapple flavor, the banana and the peach are made from fusil oils, which are very poisonous. Bitter almond flavor is made from Prussic acid unadulterated. Pineapple flavor is also obtained from rotten cheese, very rotten, and nitric acid.

Gum arabic for pure gum drops is costly. An article has been invented of the most beautiful appearance, that is used instead of the gum. It is very cheap and very poisonous. In pure candy cochineal is used to color red and saffron for the yellow. But in the common candies poisonous coloring is put, the same that is used to color wines and liquors. One of the most common is called "carlot," into which arsenic largely enters. A few grains of the substance will color a cask of wine. Liquorice drops for the "trade" are made of poor brown sugar, glue and lamp black, flavored with liquorice. And for the Western trade much of this vile stuff is packed in barrels and sent West to be put up in boxes to suit the market, of which from seventy-five to ninety per cent. is Terra alba. This material also enters largely into the common chocolates and spices. Much of the cream of tartar used for bread is made of Terra alba and Tartaric acid. To aid in this work of adulteration the government tax on the impure is two cents a pound. Our Board of Health need to look into this candy business. To such condiments does New York call her guests.

SECOND DEATH.

The following is an extract from an English tract, we received recently, entitled, "The Second Death." We are glad to learn that light on this important subject is spreading in christian churches in all countries. We gave the "prefatory remarks in the work, last week. The following are the first three pages:

"There are so many theories extant on this subject, held by religious men of all denominations, that it will surprise most people when they hear only a brief recapitulation of them.

Some hold, and teach that as God is eternal, that is, without either beginning or end, so the human soul is eternal, having neither beginning or end. There are others who hold that whatever has had a beginning may have an end; and they believe that while the righteous have 'eternal life,' as God's 'gift,' the wicked' after punishment, according to their works, (see Matt. 11: 24,) shall be utterly destroyed, or annihilated, according to Matt. 10: 28. There are others who hold that though the soul of man was created, and therefore had a beginning, yet that it shall exist 'as long as God exists,' that is, to all eternity, both in the case of righteous and wicked. There are others who hold that the soul shall be destroyed, and the body exist as a memento of God's wrath to all eternity. And there are others who think the body shall be destroyed, and the soul exist everlastingly. Some think the fire of hell is literal, and will destroy both body and soul, Matt. 10: 28; and others that the fire is figurative. Some think that all the demons and [illegible] shall be ultimately saved, and that God will be 'all in all;' and others that they will be punished and destroyed, (see Mark 1: 24,) and [illegible] all things [illegible] (1 Cor. 15.) [illegible] shall be all in all.' (1 Cor. 15.) Others that they all shall exist to all eternity in ever burning fire and brimstone. Some, again, think the entire brute creation immortal; others that an election among them (as in Noah's ark) may be preserved; and others that they shall all perish.

And now, 'What is truth?' Let us wait for God's answer; and not ask the question and then go away as Pilate did.

It would be too long, in a mere pamphlet like this, to take up the subject in all its bearings from Genesis to Revelation. But yet we must glance at it thus, if we would hear the 'whole counsel of God.'

God told Adam that, if he ate of the forbidden tree, 'dying he should die.' And when he did eat and expose himself to the penalty of death, God placed cherubim before the tree of life, 'lest he put forth his hand, and take, and eat, and live forever.'... Was not that mercy? Did not God in grace prevent him from immortalising himself and his seed as he, no doubt, would have done? And when Moses said (in Exodus) 'Blot me out of thy book,' because of his great love to Israel, like Paul, in Rom. 9: 3; did either of them mean that they would willingly endure unending misery in ever-burning fire? And when God said by his prophets, 'All souls are mine, ... the soul that sinneth it shall die.'... 'Hear, and your soul shall live, ... did he not make a plain declaration of eternal life to the righteous, and death to the wicked? And when, all through the Psalms, we are told that God will 'destroy' the wicked; is that merely temporal, or eternal? I believe eternal. They shall be destroyed—consumed—forever. See Ps. 37: 20; 112: 10. And when we come to the brighter light of the New Testament (or Covenant) Scriptures, what do we find in the very first pages? See Matt. 3: 12. 'He will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire'; i. e., the fire is not quenched till every thing is consumed. (See 2 Kings 22: 17.) Again, 'Broad is the way that leadeth to destruction.' Chap. 7: 13. 'Fear not them that kill the body, but are not able to kill, or annihilate the soul; but fear Him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell,'—gehenna, or 'the lake of fire.' Chap. 10: 28, and Rev. 20: 13, 14. And then, how many times we are told, in the other gospels, that unbelievers shall 'perish,' or be destroyed, for it is the same word in the original. 'Except ye repent ye shall perish.' But 'whosoever believeth in Him shall NOT PERISH, but have everlasting life.' 'I give unto my sheep eternal life, and they shall never PERISH.' Then look at the Epistles. Peter and Paul alike preach 'destruction,' as did Jesus in Matt. 10: 28. 'Vessels of wrath fitted for 'destruction,' Rom. 9: 22. 'The day of judgment and perdition (literally, destruction) of ungodly men.' 2 Pet. 3: 7. And, lastly, John in the closing book of Scripture (Rev. 20) speaks of the great white throne, after the thousand years are finished,—the wicked dead raised and judged, and cast into the lake of fire! 'This is the second death,' or the destruction of 'soul and body' in gehenna, according to our Lord's words, Matt. 10: 28."

PORK-EATING.

Why did the Lord ever forbid the eating of pork? We can conceive of but just one reason,—because it is unhealthy food. It is often asked for what use were swine made? From what we know of their nature, we should say for scavengers, to eat up filthy things; but we can see no reason why man should turn "scavenger-in-chief" and eat up the hogs.

We clip the following from the Review:—

DELIVER US FROM PORK.

If any think that the light has come forth any too soon on the subject of pork eating, or that any too much is being made of it, we commend to them a careful consideration of the following startling facts, the statement, of which we have just received from Bro. D. E. Shireman of Marion, Iowa.

"I wish to say that the pork disease is in our city. Some have died, and others are in a situation that they cannot recover. The circumstances are these: A family residing in this place had two hams brought to them by some of their relatives, about the first of May. Some time after a number of the family were taken sick. Last Friday, the 2nd of June, one child, eleven years old, died, and Sabbath the 3d, a young man about twenty-three years old died, both suffering dreadfully. At the present the father and one child are alive, but cannot live long. The mother and one child, and a son, a young man, are very poorly. I understand that some others have been afflicted with the same disease. On examination of some of the flesh of the first boy that died, they estimated that there were about two hundred and sixty thousand of the trichina in a cubic inch."

OUR MEETINGS HERE.

Our meetings at Lowell Street Chapel for some weeks past have been more than usually interesting. Bro. Israel Damman has been with us, and labored among us with very good acceptance. He intends soon to visit the great West. The Lord go with him, and open wide doors of usefulness before him.

For the World's Crisis.

NEW YORK STATE TRACT SOCIETY.

At the annual meeting of the Christian Conference, of Western N. Y. and vicinity, a Tract Society was incorporated in the Conference, for the purpose of furnishing tracts for free distribution, or otherwise, within the limits of the conference. Now in behalf of this Society, we would say a word. Much good has already been done by the free circulation of tracts. But the vast amount of good that may yet be done is inestimable. Our ministers are traveling constantly, and visiting new fields of labor, and there is no way in which so much good may be done by so little expense. Other conferences have done nobly in furnishing their ministers with tracts, and we must not be behind in this great and good work. Come, brethren, we are all indebted to the Lord; let us pay our debts. Send in your contributions to Elder C. F. Sweet, Albion, N. Y. Do not be afraid of sending too much, neither be ashamed to send your mites. Let the treasury be filled up. We wish to raise $200, at least, in this conference year. The receipts so far are as follows:

Balance in treas. at conf.	$7.47
Contributions at conf.	18.30
Amount	$25.77

This is besides pledges of different amounts to be paid in the course of the year.

Let this be followed up on the part of those that love the Lord, and let the Lords servants have the tracts to scatter everywhere. Don't wait. We want the means now. Brethren in Western N. Y., awake and help. We have too much treasure laid up on earth. What shall we say when the Lord comes. Aye, what will the Lord say? Will he say, "Well done"? In behalf of the Board of managers,

F. BURR, Secretary,
C. F. SWEET, Treasurer.

[illegible] TRACT FUND.

For the Free Distribution of Tracts.

Previous acknowledgments	$2110.77
[illegible]	.50

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To send the Crisis to the Poor.

Whole number sent free, 560. Ann'l Expense, $1400.00

Previous acknowledgments	$330.46

THE AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All communications relating to the business of the Society, and all applications for situations as teachers or missionaries, should be addressed to the Corresponding Secretary, WILLIAM B. HERRON, "Crisis" Office, Boston.

All donations of money, or clothing, or other supplies for the Freedmen, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEORGE T. ADAMS, 167 Hanover Street, Boston. In sending supplies, enclose in a letter to the same address a notice and list of the articles sent.

Advent Mission Fund.

For the establishment of Missions among the Freedmen, the building of a Chapel and Mission House in Memphis, etc.

Previous acknowledgments	2442.67
Stephen Walker	5.00
I. C. Wellcome	25.00
A. S. Webster	1.00
Two sisters near Haverhill	2.00
W. McClellan	5.80
Y. P. Fund	6.50

EUROPEAN MISSION.

Previous acknowledgments	$584.85
P. W. Higgins	5.00
Anon	1.00
Maria Drury	1.00
T. Worthers	1.00

SUNDAY SCHOOL FUND.

To Supply Destitute Sunday Schools with Books and "Pilgrims."

Previous acknowledgments	$17.50
Maria Drury	1.00
Eliza Allen	.50

For the World's Crisis.

SECOND ADV. AFRICAN MISSION CHURCH.

BRO. GRANT:—As Bro. Flagg is about to visit the East in the interest of this church, the church desires hereby to express to him its warm gratitude and love for his ardent and zealous labors of love and missionary duties among us; and we devoutly pray God to bless his mission abundantly, and in his own good time return him again to us, if consistent with his divine purposes.

By order and in behalf of the church,

ELD. DARIUS CROUCH, Church Clerk.

Bro. Flagg left us Monday morning, four o'clock, to visit his friends and the brethren east, and raise means to build a church, which we must have; and may the Lord give him favor with those who have got more money than they know what to do with. O could the stewards or possessors of God's money be convinced that time is short, how it would loosen their purse strings, and break the magic wand that wraps them in the fatal and delusive love of this world.

Bro. Flagg has labored hard. At one time he was utterly disheartened; but he "cast anchor" on the throne, and triumphed at last. Now fill his pockets, put Benjamin's cup in his sack, the sack on his back, and send him back here, as Jesus returned from the wilderness—in the "power of the Spirit." Yours in the hallowed love of Jesus,

D. CROUCH.

St. Louis, Mo., June 17th, 1866.

For the World's Crisis.

ADVENT CHRISTIAN STATE CONF. OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

THIRD QUARTERLY SESSION.

This session was held at Woodstock, N. H., as was announced in the Crisis, June 7th, 8th, and 10th, 1866. Although in a mountainous part of the State, some came quite a distance to hear the glad tidings of the coming kingdom, and the requisite preparation to enter into the same, and were truly blessed of God. Members of other churches came in and took a part in the social meetings, and seemed to enjoy them with us. There was preaching on practical and prophetical subjects during the meeting, by Brn. Couch, Knowles, and Kimball.

Sunday, at 5 o'clock P. M., after listening to some expository remarks on the ordinance of the Lord's Supper by Bro. Couch, we commemorated the death and sufferings of our Lord; after which two Brn., R. C. Jackman and Arthur Hunt (who on a previous occasion had been selected by the church to serve as deacons), were set apart to that work, by the laying on of hands and prayer, the following Brn. officiating: J. Couch, J. Knowles, D. F. Leavitt, and A. W. Sibley.

A business session of the conference was called by the President, Saturday, 4 o'clock P. M., at which meeting the following members were present: J. Knowles, J. Couch, L. C. Glazier, D. F. Leavitt, J. Kimball, and A. W. Sibley. After prayer by Bro. D. F. Leavitt, the minutes of the last session were read by the Secretary, and, on motion, were adopted.

On motion by Bro. J. Couch, Voted to give Bro. J. Kimball a letter, commending him to the faithful in Christ, as a public laborer in the vineyard of the Lord." It was voted, that we commence our next quarterly session on Thursday previous to the first Sunday in August next. Adjourned without date.

A. H. SIBLEY, Sec'y.

Woodstock, N. H., June 20th, 1866.

For the World's Crisis.

THE MACEDONIAN CRY.

How it comes from all quarters,—"Come over and help us!" And where are many of the once faithful ministers of Christ, who were in the gospel field laboring for dying men?

As we now contemplate leaving this place, to locate in some more favorable situation, I am led to cry,—Where shall we go, that we may accomplish the greatest amount of good?

Sickness in my family, and other things, have deprived me for some time past from laboring in the gospel field as in former years. But now, by the help of the Lord, I feel ready to go to any part of the great field, East or West, and do all I can to publish the glad tidings of the kingdom at hand.

May we be successful in winning souls to Christ, before the great day of his wrath shall come! Brethren, pray for us.

East Ware, N. H. T. M. PREBLE.

BRO. ROBERT EDEN, Washington, D. C., writes:—"I am happy to say we are still holding our meetings. They have been held of late at my house instead of Bro. Fisher's; but my landlord objects to this, as we have three meetings here; one on Sunday, 3 P. M., and two on week evenings. The singing particularly annoys him, notwithstanding he is a strict member of the Congregational church."

Correspondence.

From Sr. S. E. Teeple.

BRO. GRANT:—Feeling somewhat lonely and sad, I thought I would improve a few moments in writing for the Crisis, that the pilgrims may know where I am and what I am about. None but the afflicted know how to sympathize with the afflicted; and those that are privileged with the means of grace do not know how to sympathize with those that are deprived of them. For one, I feel a sympathy for those that have no preaching, only through the Crisis, and other reading matter; and that can hear no praying, only as some one comes in and is asked to pray. O Lord, teach me how to pray, is often the language of this heart of mine, if I must do my praying alone.

Twelve weeks ago, I started to attend the means of grace, and was thrown from a wagon and had my leg broken. This was a heavy blow for a frail frame like mine. Not a murmur or complaint has escaped my lips about the accident; but I fear I have murmured that there were no more to administer comfort to the afflicted in these times of peril and distress; that the preacher and laymen cannot find time to visit the sick. Says Jesus, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me"; and if ever I felt among the least, it has been since my hurt. For the first four weeks my mind wandered o'er the hills and through the vales, hoping some one might come and sing that hymn commencing—

"O land of rest, for thee I sigh."

Every word seemed to be the language of my heart. But where were the preachers, the lay brethren, or even the sisters in the church? Echo answers,—where were they? Not in Conn., but I do hope if any are in Mass., or any where else, and they feel as if they could, they would come this way ere long. Now do not make excuses. If there is but one, is not that one worth saving? Perhaps there are others. Come, Brn., make one more effort to save souls in Roxbury. Come to our house. It has always been a home for the pilgrims. It will do me good. It may do you good.

Never was I any more starved for the want of hearing the word of God than at the present. I cannot walk yet. The future looks rather dark, but I'm thinking if I am good when the Master comes, I can walk then. No more sorrow nor sighing, no more aches nor pains, no parting with friends, no broken limbs. O! how many times I have said, I must be there,—I will be there. But I am fearful many times I shall sink; for the waves come dashing over me again and again; but thank God, I am saved to-day, and hope to be saved eternally, when the storm rages no more, and our trials all are ended.

I enclose my mite for the continuance of the Crisis, and a mite for the Poor Fund, as the poor have always found a place in this heart of mine; and of late I have thought more and more of them, and do not mean to say and do not, but do as the Lord has prospered me. O for a deeper work of grace, is my desire at this time; and to have that charity that suffereth long and is kind, and beareth all things, is what I want and what I mean to have. I close by saying, I am yours in affliction, in tribulation, in trial; and hope to be yours and with you eternally in God's everlasting kingdom. Your sister in Christ,

Roxbury, Ct. SUSAN E. TEEPLE.

From Bro. D. Crouch.

BRO. GRANT:—Though a stranger to your columns, permit me to say a few words about St. Louis. But first suffer a prefatory word by way of introduction. I was zealously and ardently preaching "Christ and him crucified," in 1842, when I heard that "one Miller" was preaching the end of the world would come in 1843. I soon became very much interested, but after the passing of the time, the doctrine became so unpopular, and the pecuniary means of the believers were so small, that many of them had to resort partially to other means for income, myself among them. And as we are commanded to confess our sins one to another, I freely own that I gradually became sleepy—"slumbered and slept," till the war broke out, when I enlisted as chaplain in a regiment formed in this city.

When the war loomed up in such majestic proportions, it roused me from my slumbers. I was suddenly impressed that the doom of the nations was at hand. Though there is a lull in the storm just now, it is my firm conviction still, that the moral, spiritual, and political elements of the nations, are universally maturing their strength, and the "three unclean spirits" of devils (Rev. 16: 13, 14) are gathering them into one state of mind, and ere many more moons wane away, the clash of resounding arms will shock the nations with a struggle more bitter and deadly, if possible, than that which has just passed over us.

I continued in government service until September last, but did not realize that I must put my individual energies to the work of arousing others, until Bro. Himes and Bro. Flagg came along in November. O how reviving and cheering to my soul was their advent in St. Louis. Some new light, clearer and stronger proof, and more of it. Amen, glory to God.

But my principal object in this is to speak of Bro. Flagg's labors among us. Finding all doors closed against him except colored churches (and some of them), he devoted his energies to arousing them to the speedy coming of Jesus Christ, and getting sinners converted to God.

Sometime in December last, Bro. Flagg began a series of revival meetings in the Seventh street colored Methodist church, which resulted in a powerful work of God, which spread to other churches,—some white ones, blessed be God. During this revival, Bro. Flagg decided to go to Memphis, but after a short absence returned, and resumed his labors with this church with increased success. This church owned a small, though sufficient house for all their purposes, yet bought a larger one, and mortgaged this to make a first payment on that. They moved into the new one, and rented out the other for picnics, parties, and other operations of the devil. When pay day came, they could neither make the next payment, or raise the mortgage, and were about to lose both. Bro. Flagg advised them to give up the larger, go back to the other, and he would be personally responsible for the mortgage. They did so, giving him control of the house and meetings, and he raised $100 in a week, and appointed the next Sabbath to dedicate it anew to God.

But (Mr. Pope, Jr.) the Presiding Elder, learning the facts, and not liking such sad havoc of his flock (viz., getting sinners converted to God and added to the church), appointed the Quarterly Conference of the church on the same Sabbath, some four weeks before the regular time; held on over the next Sabbath, promised to see their debt paid, and give them free teachers for a day school, etc., etc.; and advised them above all to have nothing to do with the "wolf in sheep's clothing," as he styled Bro. Flagg, denying the right of any preacher coming to his churches without his permission.

Bro. Flagg bore it all in a christian spirit, mildly but firmly repelling the "soft insinuations," showing his credentials, and that the church had invited him to do as he had. But the threatening and haughty bearing of the Presiding Elder, and another white preacher, intimidated the official board of the church, and Bro. Flagg quietly relinquished all, rented another hall, bought lumber, and with the help of another white brother, made a pulpit, platform and seats, and had preaching in it the next Sabbath. Now we have a church of over forty members, growing in grace, looking for the speedy coming of the Lord, seeking more holiness; God working with them and in them. Amen, glory to God.

A week last Sabbath, we had communion; and the powerful presence of the Holy Spirit all day. Last Sunday, we baptized two, and next Sunday, four more are to put on Christ outwardly in the liquid element, and as many added to the church. There are many other items of interest, but I forbear now.

Bro. Flagg has labored hard and incessantly ever since he came here, for the salvation of souls, and with it their mental and moral elevation here. God has blessed his labors. At one time he had a hard struggle with "spiritual wickedness in high places"—a dark and trying hour—a "Bull" of excommunication from the "High Priest" of all the synagogues, and for a long time no place was to be had for "nigger meetings." Many a gospel messenger would have considered his labors done here, shrank from the field, and "fled to another city." But the Lord has brought Bro. Flagg through, and glory be to his name. I do not know of any one better adapted to labor here at present than Bro. Flagg. Extensive travel, long and varied experience in the ministry (having been ordained over twenty years) with all conditions of men, qualifies me to judge tolerably well at least. Bro. Flagg is no "hireling."

I would say further, that it is the wish of the church and all the friends that he be sustained here for some time to come. I have deemed it duty to Bro. Flagg, and the cause of God, to say this much of him. May the Spirit of Jesus dwell in us richly till the resurrection morn. Your brother in the unity of the Spirit, DARIUS CROUCH.

P. S. One thing more: we want a chapel. We have got the ice broken, and have got a firm foothold for the Advent faith, and great good may yet be done here before the Lord comes; but we want a house of our own, and we must have it. We want a fort from which we can hurl forth the truth. Speak to those who have hoarded up treasure for the last days, that they "divide the inheritance" with us. D. C.

From Bro. E. Winchester.

BRO. GRANT:—Although a stranger, allow me to express a few thoughts on the soon coming of our Lord Jesus Christ to judge the world in righteousness, and purify the earth by fire for an everlasting inheritance for the righteous.

It was through the kindness of El'd. Clafin that I became acquainted with your excellent paper, the "Crisis." It is the very best religious paper I ever got hold of. My heart has been made glad while perusing its columns in my lonely hours of affliction. It seems a long time since I heard an Advent sermon.

In 1842 Bro. T. M. Preble, from Nashua, N. H., delivered a course of lectures in this place. The word spoken was attended with the power of God. Sinners were convicted and converted to God. Wanderers were reclaimed and brought home. There were many rejoicing in soon expecting to see the King in his beauty coming to redeem his people from the power of the grave, and change the living and give them an everlasting inheritance in his kingdom. But the change that has taken place since those days! Some have moved away, while other dear brethren and sisters have fallen asleep in Jesus, to awake in his likeness at the resurrection. Others have departed from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils, and gone into Spiritualism.

I am not only left to mourn over the desolation of Zion, but the loss of dear relatives. Death, the last enemy that is to be destroyed, has entered the family circle, and taken in a few short years three of my dear children. Soon after I was called to part with my dear companion. She departed this life Dec. 24th, 1857, aged sixty-six years. She died in hope of putting on immortality at the resurrection, to die no more.

I was early taught to believe in the immortality of the soul. It was preached from the pulpit by every minister of the different sects, that when the christian died, the moment the breath left the body he was in heaven, away

"Beyond the bounds of time and space."

On the other hand, the sinner's portion was an endless life in endless misery.

The doctrine of the immortality of the soul I never heard questioned till about thirty years ago. When I came to examine for myself, I could find no such doctrine in the Bible. When I was willing to receive the truth into my heart, all was plain, simple, and easy to be understood. I find in the Bible that God only hath immortality, dwelling in the light. 1 Tim. 16. Did the apostle expect to receive his crown at death? What did he say? "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."—2 Tim. 7: 8.

"The end of all things is at hand." Iniquity everywhere abounds, and the love of many waxes cold. God is at work in many parts of the world in converting sinners; still wickedness and crime of every grade is on the rapid increase. The time has come when men will not endure sound doctrine, but after their own hearts' lust heap to themselves teachers having itching ears; and they turn away their ears from the truth, and are turned unto fables (2 Tim. 3: 4), "having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof." "For as the days that were before the flood, they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." Who will know nothing about the coming of the Son of man? The ungodly world. It will not overtake the christian as a thief, for "ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief." "Ye are all children of the light, and of the day; we are not of the night, nor of darkness."

How will the Laodicean church compare with the church at this day? We cannot but see it has an exact resemblance. Is not the church at this time in a lukewarm state, saying, I am rich and increased with goods, and have need of nothing? Rev. 4: 15–18. The political world we see is all in commotion and confusion, jealous of each other. Men's hearts are failing them for fear, looking after the things that are coming on the earth. There is an unusual thirst among all classes to gain the riches of the world. Every way and means is sought out to obtain them. The rich men are heaping up treasure for the last days.—James 5: 3.

There is sufficient proof that can be brought from the Bible to prove we are living in the very last days. May God help us so to live that we may be able to stand in that momentous day when the heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat. Thank God he has a few watchmen left who are bold to proclaim the last solemn message to a perishing world,—that Jesus is soon coming to destroy sin and wickedness from off the earth, and set up a kingdom of righteousness. God's people are rejoicing in hope of soon beholding the King in his beauty, whose kingdom will extend over all the earth. And the saints will take the kingdom, and possess it forever, even forever and ever. It is consoling to know that when the good Shepherd comes he will gather the scattered ones of the flock into the fold, for he knows them that are his.

I am now seventy-four years of age, laboring under a painful disease, expecting soon the summons will call me to my last resting place, till the Son of God awakes the dead. I hope then to put on immortality and sing the triumphant song, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?..Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." Yours in hope,

E. WINCHESTER.

East Westmoreland, N. H.

From J. H. Muhlig.

BRO. GRANT:—I am more than ever convinced we are living in the last days, and need above everything else to be watchful and prayerful, for the time has come when the professed christian church will not endure sound doctrine. Their ears are turned to fables, and it appears to me they have rejected so much light, that the Lord has given them over to believe a lie that they might be damned.

The glorious doctrine of the coming of the Lord is more than ever hated, and the cry, where is the promise of his coming? is heard every where. Men love creeds better than they love Christ. To be a Methodist, or of some other sect, is more desirable with them than to be a christian. The building up of sects has taken the place of preaching the truth, making money has taken the place of winning souls to Christ. The devil's lie is believed, while God's truth is trampled in the dust; and this is done by those who profess to love him. Jesus said it should be so.

I have before me the Master's Sermon on the Mount, Matt. 7: 22. "Many will say unto me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity." How many there are who are preaching in the name of Christ, doing many mighty works (marvelous in the eyes of many,) who are scoffing at the truth, and persecuting God's dear children because they believe and teach the Master is coming to give the crown of life, to take them home from this unfriendly world of sin and sorrow. But God will soon make a speedy riddance of all scoffers, then titles of D. D.'s will be no recommendation for them. They will plead their mighty works in vain; their day of feasting will be at an end. They may turn you out of the synagogue here, but if faithful Jesus will receive you into his kingdom.

I would here say to the Brn. and Srs. in Natick, who are suffering persecution on account of having the truth, be patient Brn., the coming of the Lord draweth nigh. Endure hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ. These light afflictions are but short; the Master is soon coming, and then the eternal weight of glory. Remember, they overcame by the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony. Never lay it down. "He that confesseth me before men, him will I confess before my father and all the holy angels," said Jesus.

I can sympathize with you in the loss of so good a pastor as Bro. Bailey. God gave him light and he let it shine. He has done a work that will stand till Jesus comes.

Let us be more than ever engaged in sounding the alarm,—The Master is coming. Let it be heard ringing out from every quarter; life, eternal life, immortality and glory, only through Jesus and the resurrection.

Natick, Mass. J. M. MUHLIG.

From Sr. P. Eaton.

BRETHREN AND SISTERS:—That which first attracted my attention to and won my confidence in the "Crisis," was the abundant testimony quoted from the word of God. This I knew was safe to investigate; and the greater my opportunities for study have been, the more I have attended to it. In the word of God, the Scriptures are called the lamp, the true light, a lamp to our feet, and a light to our path. O! what a prize in our hands to have a lamp to light up our way through this world, where sin has so darkened life, and where even now in this age of boasted knowledge the God of this world, the golden image, is worshiped;—yes, idols of gold, and silver, and wood, and stone, the work of men's hands. What great majorities of the fashionable churches, not only in large cities, but in small country towns, bow down at the shrine of wealth and its goddess—Fashion.

But like Moses we would choose to suffer affliction and reproach with the people of God, rather than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. How glorious are the foundations of our hope! even the resurrection from the dead by Him who has all power in heaven and on earth; "who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body; according to the power whereby he is able to subdue all things unto himself." And he himself has bidden us have our lamps trimmed and burning. This is what we must attend to if we would be ready in that hour which will come unawares.

Then how shall our lamps be trimmed and burning? First, by knowledge. Our Savior says, "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me." Paul says to Timothy, "From a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation." And again, "We have a more sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place." Now we know ourselves how pleasant is this light in which we walk. Let us trim our own lamps, and help others who are yet in darkness.

While the strong men lift up their voice to proclaim the everlasting gospel; while the editors of the christian press go forth as heralds to every part of the land, and publish good tidings of great joy; while the Bible itself is translated into perhaps every tongue, and scattered through every part of the globe; yea, while the angel is flying in the midst of heaven having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell upon the earth,—what shall we do who rejoice in this light, we who occupy comparatively retired positions? We can do much. We can gather Bible Sabbath Schools. We can some of us write for publication; yes, we may carry a ray into many a dark spot. We can obtain and circulate messenger tracts. "Go work in my vineyard," is the bidding of the Lord of the vineyard.

This gospel of the kingdom must first be preached among all nations for a witness to all people, then shall the end come. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly."

Your sister in the hope of the gospel,

P. EATON.

From Bro. C. C. Stevens.

BRO. GRANT:—It is with the greatest interest I have discovered of late, in perusing the columns of the Crisis, the mighty wonders the Lord is doing in the earth; and under a feeling sense of the high responsibility devolving on me to exert my influence in honor of the cause of God, that his name may be glorified, I think the truth never lay nearer my heart than at the present. I do not regret that I ever commenced the great work of the ministry. My soul is beating high for redemption; the chariot of God's grace is moving; and although I frequently see and feel what other traveling preachers' experience, yet I have much pleasure in striving to preach a free gospel to the sin-enthralled sons of men.

I am often encouraged and made to rejoice, while I see the tears of joy and affection flowing down the faces of those whose animated countenances denote the joy they have in hearing the truth. But I frequently have occasion for weeping in seeing perishing sinners bound to everlasting destruction, unconcerned; and while in many places I see souls perishing for the word of life, and none to dispense it among them, my prayer is that the Lord would send forth more laborers into his vineyard. I often contemplate the situation of perishing mortals with mingled emotions of love and pity; and were it in my power to travel as far as my mind often extends, I would make my way to every destitute place I could find on these shores, and strive to turn them from their vanities to the living God.

Under a firm conviction that necessity is laid upon me by the great Head of the church, and wo is me if I do not preach his gospel, I have spent many years in traveling to inculcate the truth, and to persuade men to act accordingly; believing except they do, that they will not perfectly answer the end for which they were made. I made thee for my glory, and created thee for my praise, said the Lord to one anciently. Except we are real christians, and divested of every thing that may prevent us from keeping the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace with all real christians, we cannot glorify God to the extent of our privilege, nor praise him under the influence of that wisdom that is without partiality, and without hypocrisy.

During the space of time since I commenced preaching, I have traveled thousands of miles, and have both found and formed an acquaintance with many precious brethren of different orders, who have not bowed the knee to Baal. I have ever been solicitous for the friendship and confidence of all real christians, since I made it my great business to be worthy of the same by standing approved in the sight of God.

He that is owned of God should be owned by all christians, and would be, if ignorance, tradition, or prejudice did not influence the mind. We have a few prayers that Jesus has left on record, and one of these was that his disciples might be one, as he and his Father are one. And is it not a thousand pities that christians by their acts should pray a different prayer,—that some may be of Paul, some of Apollos, and some of Cephas? If a christian meet with his fellow creatures to wait on his God, and in any way be restricted from doing that which the Lord requires at his hand, he is forbidden to serve his Maker and denied liberty of conscience.

I am preaching and laboring just as constantly as my feeble health will permit, with blessed results. The Lord is converting souls within the limits of my travels. Never did I feel more like doing all I can for Jesus than now. I believe we are in that little time called "quickly," when our King will come and commence his eternal reign.

Yours in bonds of christian affection,

Manchester, N. H. C. C. STEVENS.

From Bro. T. B. Duncan.

BRO. GRANT:—I wrote to you last fall of the state of church matters in this town and vicinity, and that I expected to have the doors closed against myself and Sabbath School. Those predictions came true; but God always finds an open door for his children. The Methodist church members received us with open arms. They are but few in number, but earnest workers. We organized the Sabbath School on last Sabbath. Have no doubt that our labor will be rewarded. Pray for us. Yours in Christ, T. B. DUNCAN.

New Bedford, O.

BRO. SAMUEL H. WATKINS, Morrow, Warren Co., Ohio, writes:—"If any of the Advent ministers ever pass through Morrow, O., I would be glad to have them stop. As the Little Miami R. R. passes through the town, it would be no great inconvenience to them. I am a member of the Christian church, but I feel a strong desire to hear some of your preachers."

From Sr. N. Cloyd.

BRO. GRANT:—Through the kindness of some unknown friend, we have been blessed with the weekly visits of your most excellent paper, the World's Crisis, for which we are very thankful. I suppose the subscription will expire soon, and we are very sorry to say we can take it no longer at present. My husband labors very hard, and with but one good hand (the other being crippled), to earn a living, but sickness and other misfortunes have weighed heavily upon us within the past year, which has rendered us very poor in this world's goods. We hope soon to be able to take the paper again, for we prize it very much. We stand in need of all the light we can get on the subject of Christ's coming at present; but soon, very soon, all this will be useless, for we shall see him as he is, and be made like him.

May we all have our lamps trimmed and burning, and be ready to meet the Bridegroom when he comes, is the prayer of your unworthy sister, N. CLOYD.

Barry, Pike Co., Ill.

From Sr. M. J. Danes.

BRO. GRANT:—I heartily wish that some Advent Christian minister would come this way and preach the truth as it is in Jesus. It is very much needed. The harvest is great and laborers are few. They would find a home at Capt. Jerome Danes.

Yours in hope, M. J. DANES.

Grapeland P. O., Faribault Co., Minn.

Obituaries.

FORD. Died in Kittery, Me., at the house of her uncle, Bro. Ford, late of Danbury, N. H., of consumption, June 23d, 1866, Ann S. Ford, aged twenty-eight years.

Years ago, she turned from earthly vanities to serve the living God, and to wait for his Son from heaven, and though disowned and homeless for the gospel's sake, yet she cast not away her confidence in the living God, and in his living word. The kindness of her uncle afforded her a refuge from the storms of life, and his house became her home when absent from the factory where she worked, and there she wasted away and fell asleep, in good hope of the resurrection of the dead and the life eternal in the world to come.

A discourse was delivered at her burial in the congregational church in Kittery, by the writer, who was assisted in the services by the pastor of the church. H. L. H.

HIGGINS. Died in Palmer, June 15th, of consumption of the blood and heart disease, Sarah J. Higgins, wife of Dr. A. M. Higgins, aged fifty years.

In early life she became a christian, hence was ready to catch the first glad note as it sounded out to tell that Jesus was coming, and from then (1842) to her death, she was always ready, and even glad, to give the reason of her hope to all who were ready to hear.

In life ever faithful, in faith strong and confiding, in the hope firm and decided, in the church zealous, in duty instant in season and out, in sickness and death undaunted and unwavering, she now sleeps in Jesus, awaiting a better resurrection at the sounding of the last trump.

In the kingdom may we meet. We sorrow, but in hope. A. M. HIGGINS.

PATRIDGE. Died in Whitefield, Me., June 16th, Bro. Wilbert Patridge, aged fifty-seven years.

Bro. P. professed religion when young, united with the Methodists, and remained a member of that people till he embraced the Advent faith some fifteen years since, and died in hope that he soon would hear the voice of the Son of God and live again. He leaves a widow to travel the rest of the journey alone. May God bless her, for her sorrow is heavy. Within three years she has lost an only daughter, two sons, and her husband.

Bro. Patridge left two brothers, Eld. S. K. and Bro. Jeremiah Patridge, and sisters, with many friends, to mourn his loss. A discourse by the writer, June 18th, from "I know he will rise again in the resurrection, at the last day."

N. F. NASON.

McLURE. Died in Palmyra, Me., April 3d, Sarah Jane, daughter of widow Emily A. McLure, aged fifteen years and three months.

The subject of this notice was my only granddaughter. She was an excellent scholar, but neglected the one thing needful till on a sick bed, then sought the Lord. A discourse by I. Dammas, on the christian's hope, April 5th. We laid her away by the side of her father and brother, till Christ shall return. N. F. NASON.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

(Advices of the 16th ult.)

Liverpool, June 16. The action of the American Government toward the Fenians in the United States gives general satisfaction.

The London Times of to-day eulogizes the Washington Government and says: "It would be impossible to exaggerate the good faith, the friendliness, the sincerity and the regard for mutual obligations which have prompted these energetic and decisive measures. The American Government has acted in a manner which even exceeds anything that could reasonably have been expected from the most friendly nation." The article then expresses gratification that such distinguished officers as Generals Grant and Meade should have been sent to the scene, and says; "These energetic acts of genuine friendship will be long and cordially remembered. The Fenians are almost entitled to thanks for having given the Americans an occasion for displaying their friendliness and good feeling."

Baron Ricasoli is forming a new Italian Ministry. La Marmora goes to the front with the King, as a minister without a portfolio.

The Federal Diet having on the 14th, by a vote of nine to six, agreed to the Austrian proposal for the mobilization of the Federal army, Prussia, agreeably to previous notice, carried out her threat to consider it as an act of hostility on the part of those States which supported it, on the following day commenced war by sending troops into Saxony and Hanover.

The Austrians had interrupted all the lines of communication on their side of the Po and Mincio.

London, June 17. The entry of the Prussians into Saxony is fully confirmed, Prussia having previously declared war. The entry of the Austrians was hourly expected.

Prusaia has issued a declaration to the Great Powers justifying her invasion of Saxony on the ground that the decision of the Diet on the 14th broke up the Confederation, and the law of self-preservation compelled Prussia to secure herself against any neighboring States in open or concealed hostility, and that she had previously offered a conditional alliance, which was rejected.

The Crown Princess of Saxony proceeds to Vienna. The Saxony treasury, valuables and provisions for the army have been transported for security to Bohemia.

A Frankfort dispatch says Prince Charles of Bavaria will be appointed commander-in-chief of the Federal army.

Copenhagen, June 15. It is positively stated that Sweden, Norway and Denmark have concluded an offensive and defensive treaty of alliance.

The London Times of the 16th says:

"The war has now begun in earnest. We learn by telegraph that yesterday the Prussians entered Saxony on the one side and Hanover on the other. Hanover has but its own strength on which to rely, and we are not surprised to learn that its troops were retreating to effect a junction with the small Austrian force which has lately retired from Holstein. It is probable that Prussia will not have much difficulty in overrunning the Hanoverian kingdom. It lies far away from the main strength of the Austrian alliance, shut in by the Prussian monarchy, and having for its other neighbors the little States which interest or fear caused to vote on Thursday against the Austrian proposal. Before the Confederation has time to muster its forces, Hanover will probably be overrun and occupied, and its resources placed at the disposal of the conquerors.

It is the first move in this great contest that was made by Prussia yesterday. The crossing of the Saxon frontier brings the largest military levies that have ever taken the field in Germany into necessary and probable immediate collision. As soon as Field Marshal Benedek learns by telegraph that the enemy has begun operations, he must at once put his great army in motion. Leipsic and the northern part of the Saxon kingdom will no doubt be seized at once by the Prussians, but the Austrians, having but a few miles to advance and the railway at their service, will establish themselves at Dresden. Thus do we see that ill-fated region once more the battle-ground of great Powers. Benedek is probably not sorry that the enemy have given him a justification for entering Saxony. He will now be bound to protect the capital of a weak ally, and in performing this duty, he secures the best possible position for operating against the enemy. From Prague to Berlin the road lies through Dresden and across the plains of Prussian Saxony. This road he is now free to take, and no inconvenient neutrality compels him to carry on what may be called a provincial contest in Silesia.

LANDING OF GARIBALDI AT GENOA.

"Almost before people had time to cheer, Garibaldi was on shore. Immediately came a tremendous rush, which nearly had the effect of precipitating the General and all around him into the water; but by dint of hard fighting on the part of the few National Guards who were left, he passed safely into the Custom House. Here a number of gentlemen formed round Garibaldi, linking their arms about one another's bodies so as to make a strong circle, and in this manner slowly and with great difficulty forced a way through the mob, which had collected afresh, and greeted their gallant visitor with frantic shouts and equally frantic attempts to get near him. The procession through the street had in it something of the grotesque; in front walked men with flaring torches, and others carrying nondescript flags; behind these came a confused posse of the National Guard, next to the body guard, close to which marched a fellow with an enormously fat wax candle, who kept dropping hot wax down the neck of one of this devoted band in a way that will cause him to remember the scene vividly enough for the rest of his life. Around seethed a dense mass of the excited populace, screaming and pushing in every direction, if only to get a look at their beloved hero. In the midst of all this uproar marched Garibaldi, as calmly as if he had been taking an an afternoon promenade in the silence of Caprera, his fine face slightly flushed and relaxing now and then into a charming smile as some intruder more vigorous than the rest pressed closer upon him. Garibaldi looks in more robust health, and, so far as I could discern, his lameness has entirely disappeared; indeed, his whole frame seems to be full as fresh and vigorous as before he received his unfortunate wound. So well does he appear, that but for his grizzled hair one might easily mistake him for a young man. He was dressed in his usual simple fashion of a red shirt and a hanging paletot; he also wore a low crowned black hat. When at last he reached the Hotel of the Four Nations, and bowed from the balcony to the people below, their enthusiasm knew no bounds; they shouted 'Eviva Garibaldi!' at the top of their voices, and never ceased their clamor until he took his departure for Milan by the 5 o'clock train. Thence he will proceed to inspect the volunteers stationed at Como, Lecco and Bergamo, etc."

THREE DAYS LATER.—Southampton, June 23d

The Great Eastern leaves Medway with the new cable on the 30th inst., and will commence laying the cable July 8th.

Berlin, June 19. Prussia formally declared war against Austria yesterday.

Neisse, June 19. The Austrians commenced hostilities yesterday evening. An Austrian patrol crossed the Silesian frontier at Guhrau and fired upon a Prussian patrol. Four thousand Austrians are marching towards the frontier.

Berlin, June 19. At the request of the Prussian government the French government has consented to protect Prussian interests in Austria and Bavaria.

A battle is expected near Frankfort.

Florence, June 19. The Italian government formally declared war against Austria yesterday. The Italian ministry has been reorganized under Ricasoli.

DOMESTIC.

New York, 26. A Washington dispatch says prominent Senators state that Secretary Seward has concluded a secret treaty with Napoleon by which the United States is debarred from interfering with the movement of foreign troops, now supporting Maximilian, after the withdrawal of French troops. It is understood that Maximilian will offer himself for the Presidency of the Mexican Republic. Having secured that position he is to take advantage of any small revolution and declare himself Emperor, thereby flanking the Monroe doctrine and securing a firmer Imperial throne than the present.

The same authority says Gen. Sheridan telegraphs Gen. Grant that nine-tenths of the Mexican people are opposed to the longer reign of Maximilian, and when the foreign troops are withdrawn he will have few supporters in Mexico.

Married.

In Stewartstown, N. H., June 7th, by Elder A. Gordon, Mr. OZRO BROWN and Miss PERSIS AMANDA DEUTH, both of Stewartstown.

Notices.

Campmeeting at Tremont, Mass.

There will be a campmeeting at Tremont Grove, commencing Monday, July 23d, and continue over the following Sunday. Ample provision will be made for the accommodation of all who will attend. All are requested to bring with them what bedding they may need. We hope to see a general rally of the pilgrims. Brn. M. Grant, A. Ross, and John G. Hook are expected to attend.

The railroad fare from New Bedford and Fairhaven will be the same as last year. Those coming from Boston and vicinity will apply to Bro. George T. Adams, who will probably make arrangements with the Old Colony Railroad to have the fare reduced. HENRY V. DAVIS, for the Committee.

Tentmeeting in Lawrence.

A tentmeeting will be held in Lawrence, Mass., commencing Thursday, July 12th, and continuing over the following Sunday. We hope to see a general gathering at this meeting, to hear on the time of the coming of our blessed Lord. Bro. W. Williams and the undersigned will be present to preach the word. A. DECKER.

Dedication.

The Lord willing, there will be a meeting at Melvin Village, N. H., to commence Saturday, July 28th, at 10½ A. M., to hold over Sunday, for the purpose of dedicating our new chapel to the Lord. Bro. J. Couch is expected, and others (by this) are invited to come to preach the word. We would say to all come. Not only to dedicate the house, but our hearts anew to the Lord.

T. W. PIPER.

Universalism.

Having formerly had seven years experience in Universalism, thereby knowing some of its workings, I desire to do what little I can in battling against this great error. I shall be glad to speak on that subject wherever doors may be opened, and, at the same time, circulate that unanswerable argument against Universalism,—"Universalism Exposed from the Inner Temple," now issued in tract form by the Adv. Chr. Pub. Society.

Address W. C. STONE, Crisis Office, Boston.

Tent Meeting in Lynn.

There will be a tent meeting in Lynn, Mass., commencing Thursday, July 5th, and held over the following Sunday, and longer at discretion. The time of the Second Advent, together with other portions of truth connected with man's redemption, will be duly considered in the meeting, as the Lord may direct. Geo. W. Brown, C. Thompson and S. W. Bishop, will be present to preach the word.

Grove Meeting at Plainfield or Savoy.

If the Lord will, we will hold a grove meeting in Plainfield, or Savoy, Mass., or wherever Brn. K. McCullock and J. E. Healy may arrange, commencing Wednesday, July 4th, at 10 A. M., and continuing over Sunday, July 8th. We hope to see a general rally of the waiting, working ones. Come in the name and strength of Israel's God, prepared to labor in his cause, and save perishing men.

H. L. HASTINGS,
C. GOODRICH.

Minnesota Annual Conference.

The fourth annual session of the Minnesota Advent Christian Conference will be held (Providence not preventing) on Saturday, June 30th, at ten o'clock A. M., in the New Boston school-house, in Winona County, and will continue over the following Sunday. Ministers and delegates representing the different churches within the State, are requested to attend. I expect Bro. Sheldon will be present with the Advent Tabernacle.

J. K. ALLEN, Sec'y.

Notice.

A discussion will be held at the Christian Chapel, in Barre, Orleans Co., N. Y., one mile and a half south-east of Knowlesville Depot, on the Rochester, Lockport, and Niagara Falls R. R., on Sunday, July 8th, at 10½ o'clock A. M., and each succeeding Sabbath, until the following questions are exhausted:—

1st. Resolved, that the Bible is the word of God, and an infallible guide to faith and practice to the world.

2. Resolved, that the soul of man is not immortal. H. L. SALSBURY affirms.
A. L. R. NASH denies.

Tent Meeting at Prescott, Wis.

We expect to pitch the "Advent Tabernacle" at Prescott, Wisconsin, July 12th. Let the friends from the other side of the Mississippi River attend if they can. Eld. Hough is to be with me.

WM. SHELDON.

Notice.

Hereafter (D. V.) I shall preach at Danielsonville, Ct., on the second and fourth Sundays of every month; and at Abington, Ct., on the first and third Sundays of every month. Friends interested in these meetings will please cut this notice out and preserve it for future reference.

H. F. CARPENTER.

Notice.

The Lord willing, there will be a meeting in the grove near Bro. Steven Barrows, Bridgewater, Vt., July 7th and 8th. Bro. J. Couch is expected to be there. GEO. A. STREETER.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON.
John G. Hook..........Sunday, July 8th and onward.

EAST BOSTON.
(Chapel, corner of London and Decatur Streets.)
C. Goodrich..........Sunday, July 15th

Charlestown, (69 Maine Street)....Lord's day, July 8th
J. N. SHERMAN.

Exeter, N. H..........Sunday, July 8th
MILES GRANT.

CONCORD, N. H.
(Corner of Green and Center Streets.)
Timothy Cole..........Sunday, July 8th
J. Couch..........Sunday, July 15th
H. Munger..........July 22d and 29th
J. S. White..........Sundays, Aug. 5th and 12th

CONCORD, N. H., (ANGELOS HALL.)
C. C. Ramsay..........Sunday, July 8th
J. H. F. Varney..........Sunday, July 15th
J. G. Smith..........Sunday, July 22d
J. Pinkham..........Sunday, July 29th

Portsmouth, N. H..........Sunday, July 8th
J. S. WHITE.

Lynn..........Sunday, July 8th
South Reading..........Monday evening, July 9th
Wells, Me..........Wednesday evening, July 11th
Will some one meet me at the depot on the arrival of the P. M. train?
Kennebunkport, Me.......Thursday evening, July 12th
Portland, Me..........Friday evening, July 13th
Casco, or West Poland, (as brethren may think best), Sunday, July 15th.
Yarmouth, Me..........Monday, July 16th
Biddeford, Me..........Tuesday, July 17th
Dover, N. H..........Wednesday, July 18th
A. ROSS.

Durham, Ct..........Sunday, July 8th
O. D. WOODRUFF.

Nashua..........Sunday, July 8th
CALEB RICHARDSON.

Barkhamstead, South Hollow, Ct....Sunday, July 15th
S. WOODRUFF.

At the Red school-house, Concord, on the Loudon road, Sunday, July 8th, at 5-30 P. M.
At the Carter school-house, Concord, Wednesday evening, July 15th. JOHN H. DADMUN.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, July 15th
A. SIMPSON.

Loudon Ridge, N. H..........Sunday, July 8th
C. S. EMERSON.

Bath, Me..........Sunday, July 8th
CLARKSON GOUD.

Barnstead Center..........Sunday, July 8th
Chichester (Pine Ground)..........Sunday, July 15th
North Barnstead..........Sunday, July 22d
S. S. MOONEY.

Loudon Ridge..........Sunday, July 15th
Pittsfield..........Sunday, July 22d
GEO. W. RANDALL.

I will preach as the way opens, Sundays and week day evenings, till August 20th. My address will be at Boston till that time. H. K. FLAGG.

Square Pond, Conn., (to baptize).....Sunday, July 8th
I. B. POTTER.
P. S. BUTLER.

New Britain, Ct..........July 8th
Square Pond..........July 15th
A. M. HIGGINS.

South Reading, Mass..........July 15th
T. E. LANG.

Madison, Ct..........Sunday, July 8th
B. HITCHCOCK.

New Preston..........Sunday, July 15th
W. N. PILE.

East Canaan, N. H..........Saturday, July 7th and the following Lord's day. ZINA FORD.

Appointments for Northern Ohio during the remaining two-thirds of the quarter, beginning July 3d, and ending Aug. 26th.
G. W. Stetson, P. C., Norwalk, July 29th and Aug. 12th
"..........Mansfield, July 6th and Aug. 3d
"..........Union, A. M., July 8th and Aug 5th
"..........Nevada, P. M., July 8th and Aug. 5th
"..........Berlin, July 15th, and Aug. 25th and 26th
This will be QUARTERLY MEETING.
"..........Fairfield, July 22d and Aug. 19th
I. D. Knapp, R. E., and presiding, Norwalk, July 8th and Aug. 5th.
"..........Berlin, July 29th
I. M. Judson.......Norwalk, July 15th and Aug. 19th
"..........Fairfield, July 8th
"..........East Norwalk, July 29th and Aug. 12th
D. C. Jefferson..........Norwalk, July 22d
"..........Union and Nevada, Aug. 19th
"..........Fairfield, Aug. 5th
Homer A. King..........Union and Nevada, July 22d
"..........Berlin, Aug. 12th and 25th
"..........Mansfield, 7 P. M., July 20th and Aug. 17th
The remaining vacant Sabbaths to Bro. King are reserved to him as supernumerary.

Worcester, Mass........Wednesday evening, July 11th
Charlestown, Mass., (69 Main Street), Sunday, July 15th
S. C. HANCOCK.

Andover, Vt..........Sunday, July 8th and as much longer as profitable.
H. HADLOCK.

West Gloucester, R. I., the first and third Sundays in each month, at 10½ A. M., and 1½ P. M.
E. BELLOWS.

Bridgewater, Vt..........July 8th
Plymouth, Vt..........July 15th
Houghtonville, Vt..........July 16th
Whitakerville, Vt..........July 17th and 18th
West Brattleboro, Vt..........July 19th and 20th
Northfield, Mass..........July 22d
North Dana, Mass..........July 29th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Jackson, Tioga Co., Pa., (two days' meeting), August 17th, and over Sunday.
Canton, Pa..........August 22d and over Sunday following. J. W. TAYLOR.
C. F. SWEET.

Sparta, Wis., (as brethren may arrange)......July 19th and over Sunday.
West Salem, Wis..........July 26th and over Lord's day. J. R. PRESTON.

East Hartland, Ct..........Thursday evening, July 12th
East Granville, Friday evening, July 13th, at Bro. S. Herrick's; Saturday evening, July 14th, at Bro. S. Oatley's; Lord's day, July 15th, at the school-house in Bro. Oatley's district; Lord's day evening, Blanford, Mass., at Bro. David Bates', or as he may arrange.
Monday evening, July 16th, Westfield, Mass., as Sr. Maria M. Weaver may arrange. H. ROCKWELL.

Warehousepoint..........Sunday, July 8th
E. OWEN.

Bradford..........Sunday, July 8th
Pine Ground..........Sunday, July 15th
C. W. SARGENT.

Harwinton, Ct..........Sunday, July 8th
Will Bro. Barber come again to Terryville Station evening of July 7th? S. WOODRUFF.

Manchester, N. H..........Sabbath, July 8th
T. M. PREBLE.

Northwood Narrows..........Sunday, July 15th
London Ridge..........Sunday, July 29th
J. G. SMITH.

Bolton, (Sargeant's school-house)..........July 8th
Magog (Ward's school-house)..........July 9th
Barnston (Weyville) baptism..........July 10th
Libby's Mills, Stanstead, (or R. A. Thompson may appoint)..........July 12th
North West, Stanstead, (near Eld. Merrill's) July 13th
Bolton Lake (school-house)..........Sunday, July 15th
Week-day appointments at 4 P. M. C. P. DOW.

Concord, N. H., (Angelos Hall)..........July 8th
South Reading, Mass..........July 15th
West Abington..........July 22d
C. C. RAMSAY.

New Hampton, N. H., (Straight's school-house, or as Bro. Pike may arrange), July 8th.
T. E. LANG, JR.

Vernon, Vt..........Sunday, July 8th
S. COOK.

NATICK, MASS., (SCHOOL-HOUSE HALL.)
J. M. Muhlig..........Sunday, July 8th

Yarmouth, Me..........Sunday, July 8th
Swamp school-house..........2 o'clock P. M., July 15th
R. R. YORK.

Parsonsfield (where Bro. Moulton may appoint) July 8th
Moultonborough..........July 15th
T. W. PIPER.

Copenhagen..........Sunday, July 8th
Let there be a good turn out in the vicinity of these meetings. C. B. TURNER.

Verona, N. Y., (Lock school-house), 2 P. M., July 8th
C. H. WILLIAMS.

Hartland, Vt., (Dinsmore Hill)..........July 8th
J. COUCH.

Wrightville..........Sunday, July 8th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

Cheshire Street, Ct..........Sunday, July 8th
CHAS. E. PIPER.
SAMUEL M. TATRO.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, July 8th
Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, July 15th
Biddeford, Me..........Sunday, July 22d
If these conflict with others, write me at Dover, N. H., immediately. J. PINKHAM.

Business.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 561. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness, if less than 26 weeks, charge five cents; if more than 26 weeks, six cents. From the product (which will be a fraction over the actual indebtedness) deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each—W. G. Ruggles 544, L McLanathan 537, C. R. Percy (what P. O.?) G. F. Chapman 564, M Foss 580, L Shipman 512, T O Chapman 580, J T Gray 575.

$1.25 each—R. T. Woodward 578, J. Nason 509, H. Howe 595, F. H. Lombard 586, S. Perkins 562, M. E. Carlisle 585, J Douglass 610, I Thompson 572, W Lindsay 582, A Dolloff 585, P Cole 585, D Burnham 583, H Roberts 383, P Young 585, M Boynton 587, H A Cressy 565, H F Wade 579.

$2.00 each—J R Stocking 506, E A Marsh 591, B R Clark 594, C Martindale 600, J Cogswell 554, A B Andrews 601, E Sweat 563, L J Blossom 594, I Tripp 587, D Tripp 583.

$2.50 each—R. C. Russell 605, W. E. Desper 608, L. Sherman (what P. O.?) R Curtis 572, N Lasell 563, E M. Banning 612, A. S. Soper 599, Mrs. J T Mead 609, Mrs. J Burgess 620, A Scoville 603, S. O. Folsom 611, J G Baker 607, J Roberts 611, O P Stowell 596, J Clifford 603, J Gowell 591, H Luce 595, F M Davis 593, G Holliday 593, A Tripp 610, W Christian 596, L H Wiggin 604, H Moses 596, J W Philbrick 563.

$3.00 each—S R Hathorne 663, A Chambers 564, I K Wilcox 621, D Graffam 573.

Various Sums.—W. Kalloway $3.50, 613; J. Staples 50c, 652; L Baker 25c, 565; M M Clark $1.68, 561; H Sawyer $2.25, 597; E W Waters 50c, 564; A K Warren 50c, 560; E. Kelly 50c, 560; R. Macomber $5.00, 586; S Jennings $1.70, (what P. O.?) J H Whittier 35c, 558; Ely Hatch $1.50, 541; J Simmons $5.00, 596.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

J. D. W. Lapeus 50c, S. J. Squiers 50c, T. S. Canfield $1.50, T. B. Duncan $1.75, J. W. Thomas $2.30, J. H. Evans 43c, J. Rogers $1.10, G. W. Green 45c, J. A. Simonds $1.00, N. M. Davis 38c, H Dowding 50c, I. C. Wellcome $25.00, J. H. Luttenton $7.00, E F Aldrich 40c, G H Fisher $2.10, W E Pinkham $2.00, T Scholl $1.25.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL—S J Squier, T S Canfield, J D W Lapens, O R Pease, J H Evans, T B Duncan, J W Thomas, J Rogers, J Schroll, D Hutchinson, J G Baker, J A Simonds, J H Luttenton, G H Fisher, W E Pinkham, M Drury, E F Aldrich.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

J N Berry, N W George, E. A. A., W M Howell, M H Morrison, J G Baker, G W Stetson, D F Newton, C P Dow, M E Severance, A S Whitney, B Perham, J. Motherwell, P W Carey, H J Baldwin, A J Tuttle, J Blain, F A Gray, I W Lawton, A Bain, W H Ball, W Christian, E Owen, G W Green, J H Lutterton, R Macomber, D. C. W.

ADDRESS OF PREACHING BRETHREN.

C. E. Piper—41 Grove Street, Boston, Mass.
C. Goodrich—69 Marion Street, East Boston, Mass.
Bro. A. W. Sibley has removed from East Boston to Lincoln, N. H. All letters should be addressed to the latter place.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.
L. Boutell—Salem, Mass.
A. Simpson—Concord, N. H.
I. B. Potter—Somersville, Ct.
Wm. H. Fisher—Ashland, Mass.
H. F. Carpenter—Danielsonville, Ct.
F. A. Baker—North Searsport, Me.
Joseph W. White—Portsmouth, N. H.
D M Hanscomb—Wayne, Me.
N. Hartshorn—Laconia, N. H.
J. G. Smith—New Durham, N. H.
J. Partridge—Richmond, Me.
C. H. Leverton—Surry, Hancock Co., Me.
O. D. Gibson—Amboy, Ill.
J. R. Preston—Prairie du Sac, Sauk Co., Wis.
R. J. Whitehead—Wallingford, Ct.
C. C. Stevens—Exeter, N. H.
L. C. McKinstry—Lynn, Mass., until July 1st.
John T. Ongley—Lincolnville, Crawford Co., Pa.
S. D. Daniels—Springfield, Mass.
G. W. Turner—West Point, Wis.
C. P. Dow—My P. O. address for United States' correspondents will be hereafter Franklin, Vt.
Wm. McCulloch—New Rutland, Ill.
P. W. Hough—Cascade, Iowa.
Mrs. Abigail Mussey—Hillsburgh, Nova Scotia.
G. W. Stetson—Olena, Huron Co., Ohio, until Sept.
Wm. A. Fenn—Pulaski, Oswego Co., N. Y.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
N. A. Hitchcock—Exeter, Green Co., Wis.
N. F. Nason—North Hermon, Me.
C. B. Turner—South Butler, Wayne Co., N. Y.
S. C. Hancock—Forestville, Conn.
Samuel Curry—Station E., New York.
S. P. Babcock—Malaga, N. J.
Josiah Durgin—Wadley's Falls, N. H.
H. Pratt—Springfield, Mass., 57 Cedar St.
Jacob Wilbur—Box 941, Janesville, Rock Co., Wis.
F. H. Burbank, Missionary.—Residence S. W. Cor. 7th and Spring-Garden Streets, Philadelphia, Penn.
Mrs. Anna E. Smith—No. 112 West 33d Street, house No. 7.
Dr. I. I. Leslie—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.
Martha S. Butler—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT. The Common English Version as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union. Prices, by mail, postpaid—Family and Pulpit Edition (8vo. Pica), Plain Cloth, $2.25; Extra Cloth, $2.75. Medium size (18mo. Brevier), Plain Cloth, 85c.; Extra Cloth, $1.10; Sheep, $1.35; Roan, Colored Edges, $1.60.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the work of Demons: An Examination of its Origin, Morals, Doctrines, and Politics. By Miles Grant. Single copy, 15c.; eight copies for $1.00; $10.00 per hundred.

THE PROPHETIC TIME QUESTION; or, Bible Time Examined. By Wm. Sheldon. 27c.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed. 50c.

VISIONS OF ELLEN G. WHITE, not of God. By B. F. Snook and Wm. H. Brinkerhoff. 10c.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home..........16 pp.
2. Life Insurance..........16 pp
3. Lost! Lost!..........8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet?..........8 pp.
5. About God (for children)..........4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing..........4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ..........4 pp.
8. Now..........4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent postpaid—
One set (64 pp.)..........6 c.
1300 pp..........$1.00
1800 pp., (by express, not prepaid)..........$1.00
Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

Sent, postpaid, as follows:

1. I don't believe in Religion..........12 pp., 3c.
2. Did the World make itself?..........16 pp., 4c.
3. Is God Everybody, and Everybody God?..16 pp., 4c.
4. Have we any need of the Bible?..........24 pp., 4c.
5. Who wrote the New Testament?..........16 pp., 4c.
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable?..........16 pp., 4c.
7. Can we believe Christ and his Apostles?..16 pp., 4c.
8. Prophecy..........32 pp., 5c.
9. Moses and the Prophets..........28 pp., 5c.
10. Infidelity among the Saints..........28 pp., 5c.
11. Daylight before Sunrise..........28 pp., 5c.
12. Telescopic Views of Scripture..........32 pp., 5c.
13. Science, or Faith?..........32 pp., 5c.
For the Set, (making 294 pp.)..........60c. postpaid.
Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE

ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY

No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Works on the Prophecies—The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, etc.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES; or, A Glance at Christendom as it is. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. By D. T. Taylor. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THESSALONICA, the Model Church, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, by H. L. Hastings; and SPIRITUALISM, by Dr. Ramsay. Cloth, $1.50; paper, 50c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. With various tracts. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

MATTHEW XXIV. AND XXV. An Exposition, showing Christ's Predictions fulfilled, and his Kingdom near. By I. C. Wellcome. 25c; by mail, 27c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 1, By S. S. Brewer. 7c; by mail, 9c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 2, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 3, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

REASONS FOR MY HOPE; or, Tokens of Speedy Redemption. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD, and Signs of the Times. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THESSALONICA; or, The Model Church. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

REVELATIONS XIII.; a treatise. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

SPIRITUALISM a Satanic Delusion. By Wm. Ramsay, D. D. 20c.

THE SEVEN SEALS. Exposition of Rev. vi. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

LOOKING FORWARD; or, Prospects of the Church. By H. L. Hastings. 10c.

THE DAYS WE LIVE IN; The Lord soon to come. By S. S. Brewer. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CELESTIAL RAILROAD; or, Modern Pilgrim's Progress. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 13c; by mail, 15c.

THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 3c; by mail, 5c.

THE GREAT IMAGE soon to be dashed to pieces, By S. S. Brewer. 4c; by mail, 6c.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the times of Daniel and John. Mounted on Rollers, by express. $5.00; on Cloth, by mail, $4.00.

THE REIGN OF MESSIAH, the King of the Jews, on the Throne of his Father David; its Nature, and the Time of its Commencement. By Wm. Sheldon. 8c; by mail, 10c.

Works on Future Punishment, etc.

DEBT AND GRACE; or, The Doctrine of a Future Life. By C. F. Hudson. A very able and learned work. $1.50.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. Cloth, 75c; paper, 45c.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT as taught in the Scriptures. Comprising Pauline Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, Old Paths, etc. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

STATE OF THE DEAD, and Punishment of the Wicked. A Discussion between Miles Grant and W. W. Clayton. 20c; by mail, 22c.

ETERNAL SUFFERING. A Discussion between Miles Grant and Dr. J. Litch. 25c; by mail, 29c.

RETRIBUTION; or, The Doom of the Ungodly. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, The Destruction of the Wicked established, and Endless Misery disproved. By Jacob Blain. 25c; by mail, 29c.

PAULINE THEOLOGY; or, The Christian Doctrine of Future Punishment, as taught in the Epistles of Paul. H. L. H. 10c.

GLAD TIDINGS; or, The End of Woe and Sin by the Destruction of the Wicked. (Three chapters from "Death not Life.") By J. Blain. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE OLD PATHS; or, The Primitive Doctrine of a Future Life. By H. L. H. 10c.

IMMORTAL SOUL THEOLOGY vs. BIBLE. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

WHAT IS MAN? A Bible View of his Creation. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SOUL; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SPIRIT; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS; Thief on the Cross, etc. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE DOCTRINE OF ENDLESS MISERY an occasion of Scepticism. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ETERNAL DEATH in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. 6c; by mail, 8c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. With remarks on Josephus. By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE RIGHTS OF WRONG; or, Is Evil Eternal? By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ENDLESS MISERY not a Bible Doctrine. 4c; by mail, 6c.

THE WICKED NOT IMMORTAL—(with 200 proof-texts.) 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING OF THE WORD HELL. 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING of Forever and Everlasting. 2c; by mail, 4c.

SMOKE OF TORMENT and Unquenchable Fire Explained. 1c; by mail, 3c.

REV. JOHN FOSTER'S LETTER on Future Punishment. 1c; by mail, 3c.

Miscellaneous.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF CHRISTIAN HOLINESS: A Sermon, by S. H. Platt. 15c.

THE DAY AND THE HOUR: a Lecture, by Joseph A. Seiss, D. D. 15c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.36c. Cloth, $1.75; by mail, $2.07.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five colored Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Pesheto Version. By James Murdock, D. D. $2.50; by mail, $2.86.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, the Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE BIBLE FROM HEAVEN; or, a Dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. 25c; by mail, 29c.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM; its Duty and Objects. By I. C. Wellcome. 20c, postpaid; $2.00 per dozen.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK; for Families and Sunday Schools. 15c; by mail, 19c; $1.50 per dozen; postage, 8c. on every three copies.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS FIGHT?—a tract on War. By I. C. Wellcome. 10c.

AMERICA IN PROPHECY; an Exposition of Isaiah XVIII. By O. R. Fassett. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EVERY BODY'S BOOK; the Personality of God; The Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By P. A. Smith. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CHRISTIAN LYRE; a Collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. 80c; by mail, 88c.

HOW TO COOK—without Salt, Butter, Lard, or Condiments. By Mrs. Mary E. Cox, M. D. 20c. postpaid.

COOKERY; or How to prepare food from Grain, Fruits and Vegetables. By F. W. Hurd, M. D. 15c; by mail, 17c.

PREMATURE DECAY of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. 5c; by mail, 8c.

THE OLD AND NEW COVENANT—Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EXPERIENCE AND OBSERVATIONS of a Bruised Reed. By F. H. Chamberlain. By mail, 17c.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-word Translation, etc. etc. Leather, $4.00; by mail, $4.16. Extra gilt, $4.50; by mail, $4.66. Morocco, $5.00; by mail, $5.16.

CHLOE LANKTON, or Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75c; by mail, 87c.

NON-RESISTANCE. By W. C. Thurman. 20c; by mail, 24c.

DIPHTHERIA; its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. 10c; by mail, 12c.

GLAD VOICES; Words by D. T. Taylor, Music by L. Reimer. 3c. single; by mail, 5c. 30 cents a dozen, postpaid.

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. 15c; eight copies for $1.00.

BETHLEHEM; a Rhyme for Children. By H. L. Hastings. 10c. postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

SOCIAL HYMNS. Original and Selected. By H. L. H. Cloth, 30c; $3.00 per dozen. Paper 20c, $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. For Sunday Schools, etc. 5c; per dozen, 50c.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of the "cities of the nations." By Wm. Shepherd. 10c., postpaid; 85c. a dozen.

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. By A. P. Jolliffe. 5c; by mail, 7c.

OUR MISSION WORK; a Report of the Organization of the American Advent Mission Society, its Constitution, Officers, Addresses, etc. 2c.

EXPERIENCE OF THOMAS H. JONES, who was a Slave for forty-three years. 25c.

BLIND BARTIMEUS; or, How to be Saved. 25c. per dozen; $1.50 per hundred. Single 4c., postpaid.

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS; their Origin, Nature, Rank and Titles, their Ministry and Various Offices in the work of Human Redemption, and in the Administration of the Government of God.

entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." Who will know nothing about the coming of the Son of man? The ungodly world. It will not overtake the christian as a thief, for "ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief." "Ye are all children of the light, and of the day; we are not of the night, nor of darkness."

How will the Laodicean church compare with the church at this day? We cannot but see it has an exact resemblance. Is not the church at this time in a lukewarm state, saying, I am rich and increased with goods, and have need of nothing? Rev. 4: 15–18. The political world we see is all in commotion and confusion, jealous of each other. Men's hearts are failing them for fear, looking after the things that are coming on the earth. There is an unusual thirst among all classes to gain the riches of the world. Every way and means is sought out to obtain them. The rich men are heaping up treasure for the last days.—James 5: 3.

There is sufficient proof that can be brought from the Bible to prove we are living in the very last days. May God help us so to live that we may be able to stand in that momentous day when the heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat. Thank God be has a few watchmen left who are bold to proclaim the last solemn message to a perishing world,—that Jesus is soon coming to destroy sin and wickedness from off the earth, and set up a kingdom of righteousness. God's people are rejoicing in hope of soon beholding the King in his beauty, whose kingdom will extend over all the earth. And the saints will take the kingdom, and possess it forever, even forever and ever. It is consoling to know that when the good Shepherd comes he will gather the scattered ones of the flock into the fold, for he knows them that are his.

I am now seventy-four years of age, laboring under a painful disease, expecting soon the summons will call me to my last resting place, till the Son of God awakes the dead. I hope then to put on immortality and sing the triumphant song, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?..Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." Yours in hope,

E. WINCHESTER.

East Westmoreland, N. H.

From J. H. Muhlig.

BRO. GRANT:—I am more than ever convinced we are living in the last days, and need above everything else to be watchful and prayerful, for the time has come when the professed christian church will not endure sound doctrine. Their ears are turned to fables, and it appears to me they have rejected so much light, that the Lord has given them over to believe a lie that they might be damned.

The glorious doctrine of the coming of the Lord is more than ever hated, and the cry, where is the promise of his coming? is heard every where. Men love creeds better than they love Christ. To be a Methodist, or of some other sect, is more desirable with them than to be a christian. The building up of sects has taken the place of preaching the truth, making money has taken the place of winning souls to Christ. The devil's lie is believed, while God's truth is trampled in the dust; and this is done by those who profess to love him. Jesus said it should be so.

I have before me the Master's Sermon on the Mount, Matt. 7: 22. "Many will say unto me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity." How many there are who are preaching in the name of Christ, doing many mighty works (marvelous in the eyes of many,) who are scoffing at the truth, and persecuting God's dear children because they believe and teach the Master is coming to give the crown of life, to take them home from this unfriendly world of sin and sorrow. But God will soon make a speedy riddance of all scoffers, then titles of D. D.'s will be no recommendation for them. They will plead their mighty works in vain; their day of feasting will be at an end. They may turn you out of the synagogue here, but if faithful Jesus will receive you into his kingdom.

I would here say to the Brn. and Srs. in Natick, who are suffering persecution on account of having the truth, be patient Brn., the coming of the Lord draweth nigh. Endure hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ. These light afflictions are but short; the Master is soon coming, and then the eternal weight of glory. Remember, they overcame by the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony. Never lay it down. "He that confesseth me before men, him will I confess before my father and all the holy angels," said Jesus.

I can sympathize with you in the loss of so good a pastor as Bro. Bailey. God gave him light and he let it shine. He has done a work that will stand till Jesus comes.

Let us be more than ever engaged in sounding the alarm,—The Master is coming. Let it be heard ringing out from every quarter; life, eternal life, immortality and glory, only through Jesus and the resurrection.

Natick, Mass. J. M. MUHLIG.

From Sr. P. Eaton.

BRETHREN AND SISTERS:—That which first attracted my attention to and won my confidence in the "Crisis," was the abundant testimony quoted from the word of God. This I knew was safe to investigate; and the greater my opportunities for study have been, the more I have attended to it. In the word of God, the Scriptures are called the lamp, the true light, a lamp to our feet, and a light to our path. O! what a prize in our hands to have a lamp to light up our way through this world, where sin has so darkened life, and where even now in this age of boasted knowledge the God of this world, the golden image, is worshiped;—yes, idols of gold, and silver, and wood, and stone, the work of men's hands. What great majorities of the fashionable churches, not only in large cities, but in small country towns, bow down at the shrine of wealth and its goddess—Fashion.

But like Moses we would choose to suffer affliction and reproach with the people of God, rather than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. How glorious are the foundations of our hope! even the resurrection from the dead by Him who has all power in heaven and on earth; "who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body; according to the power whereby he is able to subdue all things unto himself." And he himself has bidden us have our lamps trimmed and burning. This is what we must attend to if we would be ready in that hour which will come unawares.

Then how shall our lamps be trimmed and burning? First, by knowledge. Our Savior says, "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me." Paul says to Timothy, "From a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation." And again, "We have a more sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place." Now we know ourselves how pleasant is this light in which we walk. Let us trim our own lamps, and help others who are yet in darkness.

While the strong men lift up their voice to proclaim the everlasting gospel; while the editors of the christian press go forth as heralds to every part of the land, and publish good tidings of great joy; while the Bible itself is translated into perhaps every tongue, and scattered through every part of the globe; yea, while the angel is flying in the midst of heaven having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell upon the earth,—what shall we do who rejoice in this light, we who occupy comparatively retired positions? We can do much. We can gather Bible Sabbath Schools. We can some of us write for publication; yes, we may carry a ray into many a dark spot. We can obtain and circulate messenger tracts. "Go work in my vineyard," is the bidding of the Lord of the vineyard.

This gospel of the kingdom must first be preached among all nations for a witness to all people, then shall the end come. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly."

Your sister in the hope of the gospel,

P. EATON.

From Bro. C. C. Stevens.

BRO. GRANT:—It is with the greatest interest I have discovered of late, in perusing the columns of the Crisis, the mighty wonders the Lord is doing in the earth; and under a feeling sense of the high responsibility devolving on me to exert my influence in honor of the cause of God, that his name may be glorified, I think the truth never lay nearer my heart than at the present. I do not regret that I ever commenced the great work of the ministry. My soul is beating high for redemption; the chariot of God's grace is moving; and although I frequently see and feel what other traveling preachers' experience, yet I have much pleasure in striving to preach a free gospel to the sin-enthralled sons of men.

I am often encouraged and made to rejoice, while I see the tears of joy and affection flowing down the faces of those whose animated countenances denote the joy they have in hearing the truth. But I frequently have occasion for weeping in seeing perishing sinners bound to everlasting destruction, unconcerned; and while in many places I see souls perishing for the word of life, and none to dispense it among them, my prayer is that the Lord would send forth more laborers into his vineyard. I often contemplate the situation of perishing mortals with mingled emotions of love and pity; and were it in my power to travel as far as my mind often extends, I would make my way to every destitute place I could find on these shores, and strive to turn them from their vanities to the living God.

Under a firm conviction that necessity is laid upon me by the great Head of the church, and wo is me if I do not preach his gospel, I have spent many years in traveling to inculcate the truth, and to persuade men to act accordingly; believing except they do, that they will not perfectly answer the end for which they were made. I made thee for my glory, and created thee for my praise, said the Lord to one anciently. Except we are real christians, and divested of every thing that may prevent us from keeping the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace with all real christians, we cannot glorify God to the extent of our privilege, nor praise him under the influence of that wisdom that is without partiality, and without hypocrisy.

During the space of time since I commenced preaching, I have traveled thousands of miles, and have both found and formed an acquaintance with many precious brethren of different orders, who have not bowed the knee to Baal. I have ever been solicitous for the friendship and confidence of all real christians, since I made it my great business to be worthy of the same by standing approved in the sight of God.

He that is owned of God should be owned by all christians, and would be, if ignorance, tradition, or prejudice did not influence the mind. We have a few prayers that Jesus has left on record, and one of these was that his disciples might be one, as he and his Father are one. And is it not a thousand pities that christians by their acts should pray a different prayer,—that some may be of Paul, some of Apollos, and some of Cephas? If a christian meet with his fellow creatures to wait on his God, and in any way be restricted from doing that which the Lord requires at his hand, he is forbidden to serve his Maker and denied liberty of conscience.

I am preaching and laboring just as constantly as my feeble health will permit, with blessed results. The Lord is converting souls within the limits of my travels. Never did I feel more like doing all I can for Jesus than now. I believe we are in that little time called "quickly," when our King will come and commence his eternal reign.

Yours in bonds of christian affection,

Manchester, N. H. C. C. STEVENS.

From Bro. T. B. Duncan.

BRO. GRANT:—I wrote to you last fall of the state of church matters in this town and vicinity, and that I expected to have the doors closed against myself and Sabbath School. Those predictions came true; but God always finds an open door for his children. The Methodist church members received us with open arms. They are but few in number, but earnest workers. We organized the Sabbath School on last Sabbath. Have no doubt that our labor will be rewarded. Pray for us.

Yours in Christ, T. B. DUNCAN.

New Bedford, O.

BRO. SAMUEL H. WATKINS, Morrow, Warren Co., Ohio, writes:—"If any of the Advent ministers ever pass through Morrow, O., I would be glad to have them stop. As the Little Miami R. R. passes through the town, it would be no great inconvenience to them. I am a member of the Christian church, but I feel a strong desire to hear some of your preachers."

From Sr. N. Cloyd.

BRO. GRANT:—Through the kindness of some unknown friend, we have been blessed with the weekly visits of your most excellent paper, the World's Crisis, for which we are very thankful. I suppose the subscription will expire soon, and we are very sorry to say we can take it no longer at present. My husband labors very hard, and with but one good hand (the other being crippled), to earn a living, but sickness and other misfortunes have weighed heavily upon us within the past year, which has rendered us very poor in this world's goods. We hope soon to be able to take the paper again, for we prize it very much. We stand in need of all the light we can get on the subject of Christ's coming at present; but soon, very soon, all this will be useless, for we shall see him as he is, and be made like him.

May we all have our lamps trimmed and burning, and be ready to meet the Bridegroom when he comes, is the prayer of your unworthy sister, N. CLOYD.

Barry, Pike Co., Ill.

From Sr. M. J. Danes.

BRO. GRANT:—I heartily wish that some Advent Christian minister would come this way and preach the truth as it is in Jesus. It is very much needed. The harvest is great and laborers are few. They would find a home at Capt. Jerome Danes.

Yours in hope, M. J. DANES.

Grapeland P. O., Faribault Co., Minn.

Obituaries.

FORD. Died in Kittery, Me., at the house of her uncle, Bro. Ford, late of Danbury, N. H., of consumption, June 23d, 1866, Ann S. Ford, aged twenty-eight years.

Years ago, she turned from earthly vanities to serve the living God, and to wait for his Son from heaven, and though disowned and homeless for the gospel's sake, yet she cast not away her confidence in the living God, and in his living word. The kindness of her uncle afforded her a refuge from the storms of life, and his house became her home when absent from the factory where she worked, and there she wasted away and fell asleep, in good hope of the resurrection of the dead and the life eternal in the world to come.

A discourse was delivered at her burial in the congregational church in Kittery, by the writer, who was assisted in the services by the pastor of the church. H. L. H.

HIGGINS. Died in Palmer, June 15th, of consumption of the blood and heart disease, Sarah J. Higgins, wife of Dr. A. M. Higgins, aged fifty years.

In early life she became a christian, hence was ready to catch the first glad note as it sounded out to tell that Jesus was coming, and from then (1842) to her death, she was always ready, and even glad, to give the reason of her hope to all who were ready to hear.

In life ever faithful, in faith strong and confiding, in the hope firm and decided, in the church zealous, in duty instant in season and out, in sickness and death undaunted and unwavering, she now sleeps in Jesus, awaiting a better resurrection at the sounding of the last trump.

In the kingdom may we meet. We sorrow, but in hope. A. M. HIGGINS.

PATRIDGE. Died in Whitefield, Me., June 16th, Bro. Wilbert Patridge, aged fifty-seven years.

Bro. P. professed religion when young, united with the Methodists, and remained a member of that people till he embraced the Advent faith some fifteen years since, and died in hope that he soon would hear the voice of the Son of God and live again. He leaves a widow to travel the rest of the journey alone. May God bless her, for her sorrow is heavy. Within three years she has lost an only daughter, two sons, and her husband.

Bro. Patridge left two brothers, Eld. S. K. and Bro. Jeremiah Patridge, and sisters, with many friends, to mourn his loss. A discourse by the writer, June 18th, from "I know he will rise again in the resurrection, at the last day."

N. F. NASON.

MCLURE. Died in Palmyra, Me., April 3d, Sarah Jane, daughter of widow Emily A. McLure, aged fifteen years and three months.

The subject of this notice was my only granddaughter. She was an excellent scholar, but neglected the one thing needful till on a sick bed, then sought the Lord. A discourse by I. Dammon, on the christian's hope, April 5th. We laid her away by the side of her father and brother, till Christ shall return. N. F. NASON.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

(Advices of the 16th ult.)

Liverpool, June 16. The action of the American Government toward the Fenians in the United States gives general satisfaction.

The London Times of to-day eulogizes the Washington Government and says: "It would be impossible to exaggerate the good faith, the friendliness, the sincerity and the regard for mutual obligations which have prompted these energetic and decisive measures. The American Government has acted in a manner which even exceeds anything that could reasonably have been expected from the most friendly nation." The article then expresses gratification that such distinguished officers as Generals Grant and Meade should have been sent to the scene, and says; "These energetic acts of genuine friendship will be long and cordially remembered. The Fenians are almost entitled to thanks for having given the Americans an occasion for displaying their friendliness and good feeling."

Baron Ricasoli is forming a new Italian Ministry. La Marmora goes to the front with the King, as a minister without a portfolio.

The Federal Diet having on the 14th, by a vote of nine to six, agreed to the Austrian proposal for the mobilization of the Federal army, Prussia, agreeably to previous notice, carried out her threat to consider it as an act of hostility on the part of those States which supported it, on the following day commenced war by sending troops into Saxony and Hanover.

The Austrians had interrupted all the lines of communication on their side of the Po and Mincio.

London, June 17. The entry of the Prussians into Saxony is fully confirmed, Prussia having previously declared war. The entry of the Austrians was hourly expected.

Prussia has issued a declaration to the Great Powers justifying her invasion of Saxony on the ground that the decision of the Diet on the 14th broke up the Confederation, and the law of self-preservation compelled Prussia to secure herself against any neighboring States in open or concealed hostility, and that she had previously offered a conditional alliance, which was rejected.

The Crown Princess of Saxony proceeds to Vienna. The Saxony treasury, valuables and provisions for the army have been transported for security to Bohemia.

A Frankfort dispatch says Prince Charles of Bavaria will be appointed commander-in-chief of the Federal army.

Copenhagen, June 15. It is positively stated that Sweden, Norway and Denmark have concluded an offensive and defensive treaty of alliance.

The London Times of the 18th says:

"The war has now begun in earnest. We learn by telegraph that yesterday the Prussians entered Saxony on the one side and Hanover on the other. Hanover has but its own strength on which to rely, and we are not surprised to learn that its troops were retreating to effect a junction with the small Austrian force which has lately retired from Holstein. It is probable that Prussia will not have much difficulty in overrunning the Hanoverian kingdom. It lies far away from the main strength of the Austrian alliance, shut in by the Prussian monarchy, and having for its other neighbors the little States which interest or fear caused to vote on Thursday against the Austrian proposal. Before the Confederation has time to muster its forces, Hanover will probably be overrun and occupied, and its resources placed at the disposal of the conquerors.

It is the first move in this great contest that was made by Prussia yesterday. The crossing of the Saxon frontier brings the largest military levies that have ever taken the field in Germany into necessary and probable immediate collision. As soon as Field Marshal Benedek learns by telegraph that the enemy has begun operations, he must at once put his great army in motion. Leipsic and the northern part of the Saxon kingdom will no doubt be seized at once by the Prussians, but the Austrians, having but a few miles to advance and the railway at their service, will establish themselves at Dresden. Thus do we see that ill-fated region once more the battle-ground of great Powers. Benedek is probably not sorry that the enemy have given him a justification for entering Saxony. He will now be bound to protect the capital of a weak ally, and in performing this duty, he secures the best possible position for operating against the enemy. From Prague to Berlin the road lies through Dresden and across the plains of Prussian Saxony. This road he is now free to take, and no inconvenient neutrality compels him to carry on what may be called a provincial contest in Silesia.

LANDING OF GARIBALDI AT GENOA.

"Almost before people had time to cheer, Garibaldi was on shore. Immediately came a tremendous rush, which nearly had the effect of precipitating the General and all around him into the water; but by dint of hard fighting on the part of the few National Guards who were left, he passed safely into the Custom House. Here a number of gentlemen formed round Garibaldi, linking their arms about one another's bodies so as to make a strong circle, and in this manner slowly and with great difficulty forced a way through the mob, which had collected afresh, and greeted their gallant visitor with frantic shouts and equally frantic attempts to get near him. The procession through the street had in it something of the grotesque; in front walked men with flaring torches, and others carrying nondescript flags; behind these came a confused posse of the National Guard, next to the body guard, close to which marched a fellow with an enormously fat wax candle, who kept dropping hot wax down the neck of one of this devoted band in a way that will cause him to remember the scene vividly enough for the rest of his life. Around seethed a dense mass of the excited populace, screaming and pushing in every direction, if only to get a look at their beloved hero. In the midst of all this uproar marched Garibaldi, as calmly as if he had been taking an an afternoon promenade in the silence of Caprera, his fine face slightly flushed and relaxing now and then into a charming smile as some intruder more vigorous than the rest pressed closer upon him. Garibaldi looks in more robust health, and, so far as I could discern, his lameness has entirely disappeared; indeed, his whole frame seems to be full as fresh and vigorous as before he received his unfortunate wound. So well does he appear, that but for his grizzled hair one might easily mistake him for a young man. He was dressed in his usual simple fashion of a red shirt and a hanging paletot; he also wore a low crowned black hat. When at last he reached the Hotel of the Four Nations, and bowed from the balcony to the people below, their enthusiasm knew no bounds; they shouted 'Eviva Garibaldi!' at the top of their voices, and never ceased their clamor until he took his departure for Milan by the 5 o'clock train. Thence he will proceed to inspect the volunteers stationed at Como, Lecco and Bergamo, etc."

THREE DAYS LATER.—Southampton, June 23d

The Great Eastern leaves Medway with the new cable on the 30th inst., and will commence laying the cable July 8th.

Berlin, June 19. Prussia formally declared war against Austria yesterday.

Neisse, June 19. The Austrians commenced hostilities yesterday evening. An Austrian patrol crossed the Silesian frontier at Guhrau and fired upon a Prussian patrol. Four thousand Austrians are marching towards the frontier.

Berlin, June 19. At the request of the Prussian government the French government has consented to protect Prussian interests in Austria and Bavaria.

A battle is expected near Frankfort.

Florence, June 19. The Italian government formally declared war against Austria yesterday. The Italian ministry has been reorganized under Ricasoli.

DOMESTIC.

New York, 26. A Washington dispatch says prominent Senators state that Secretary Seward has concluded a secret treaty with Napoleon by which the United States is debarred from interfering with the movement of foreign troops, now supporting Maximilian, after the withdrawal of French troops. It is understood that Maximilian will offer himself for the Presidency of the Mexican Republic. Having secured that position he is to take advantage of any small revolution and declare himself Emperor, thereby flanking the Monroe doctrine and securing a firmer Imperial throne than the present.

The same authority says Gen. Sheridan telegraphs Gen. Grant that nine-tenths of the Mexican people are opposed to the longer reign of Maximilian, and when the foreign troops are withdrawn he will have few supporters in Mexico.

Married.

In Stewartstown, N. H., June 7th, by Elder A. Gordon, Mr. OZRO BROWN and Miss PERSIS AMANDA DECTH, both of Stewartstown.

Notices.

Campmeeting at Tremont, Mass.

There will be a campmeeting at Tremont Grove, commencing Monday, July 23d, and continue over the following Sunday. Ample provision will be made for the accommodation of all who will attend. All are requested to bring with them what bedding they may need. We hope to see a general rally of the pilgrims. Brn. M. Grant, A. Ross, and John G. Hook are expected to attend.

The railroad fare from New Bedford and Fairhaven will be the same as last year. Those coming from Boston and vicinity will apply to Bro. George T. Adams, who will probably make arrangements with the Old Colony Railroad to have the fare reduced. HENRY V. DAVIS, for the Committee.

Tentmeeting in Lawrence.

A tentmeeting will be held in Lawrence, Mass., commencing Thursday, July 12th, and continuing over the following Sunday. We hope to see a general gathering at this meeting, to hear on the time of the coming of our blessed Lord. Bro. W. Williams and the undersigned will be present to preach the word. A. DECKER.

Dedication.

The Lord willing, there will be a meeting at Melvin Village, N. H., to commence Saturday, July 28th, at 10½ A. M., to hold over Sunday, for the purpose of dedicating our new chapel to the Lord. Bro. J. Couch is expected, and others (by this) are invited to come to preach the word. We would say to all come. Not only to dedicate the house, but our hearts anew to the Lord.

T. W. PIPER.

Universalism.

Having formerly had seven years experience in Universalism, thereby knowing some of its workings, I desire to do what little I can in battling against this great error. I shall be glad to speak on that subject wherever doors may be opened, and, at the same time, circulate that unanswerable argument against Universalism,—"Universalism Exposed from the Inner Temple," now issued in tract form by the Adv. Chr. Pub. Society.

Address W. C. STONE, Crisis Office, Boston.

Tent Meeting in Lynn.

There will be a tent meeting in Lynn, Mass., commencing Thursday, July 5th, and held over the following Sunday, and longer at discretion. The time of the Second Advent, together with other portions of truth connected with man's redemption, will be duly considered in the meeting, as the Lord may direct. Geo. W. Brown, C. Thompson and S. W. Bishop, will be present to preach the word.

Grove Meeting at Plainfield or Savoy.

If the Lord will, we will hold a grove meeting in Plainfield, or Savoy, Mass., or wherever Brn. E. McCullock and J. E. Healy may arrange, commencing Wednesday, July 4th, at 10 A. M., and continuing over Sunday, July 8th. We hope to see a general rally of the waiting, working ones. Come in the name and strength of Israel's God, prepared to labor in his cause, and save perishing men.

H. L. HASTINGS,
C. GOODRICH.

Minnesota Annual Conference.

The fourth annual session of the Minnesota Advent Christian Conference will be held (Providence not preventing) on Saturday, June 30th, at ten o'clock A. M., in the New Boston school-house, in Winona County, and will continue over the following Sunday. Ministers and delegates representing the different churches within the State, are requested to attend. I expect Bro. Sheldon will be present with the Advent Tabernacle.

J. K. ALLEN, Sec'y.

Notice.

A discussion will be held at the Christian Chapel, in Barre, Orleans Co., N. Y., one mile and a half south-east of Knowlesville Depot, on the Rochester, Lockport, and Niagara Falls R. R., on Sunday, July 8th, at 10½ o'clock A. M., and each succeeding Sabbath, until the following questions are exhausted:—

1st. Resolved, that the Bible is the word of God, and an infallible guide to faith and practice to the world.

2. Resolved, that the soul of man is not immortal.

H. L. SALSBURY affirms.
A. L. R. NASH denies.

Tent Meeting at Prescott, Wis.

We expect to pitch the "Advent Tabernacle" at Prescott, Wisconsin, July 12th. Let the friends from the other side of the Mississippi River attend if they can. Eld. Hough is to be with me.

WM. SHELDON.

Notice.

Hereafter (D. V.) I shall preach at Danielsonville, Ct., on the second and fourth Sundays of every month; and at Abington, Ct., on the first and third Sundays of every month. Friends interested in these meetings will please cut this notice out and preserve it for future reference.

H. F. CARPENTER.

Notice.

The Lord willing, there will be a meeting in the grove near Bro. Steven Barrows, Bridgewater, Vt., July 7th and 8th. Bro. J. Couch is expected to be there. GEO. A. STREETER.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON.
John G. Hook..........Sunday, July 8th and onward.

EAST BOSTON.
(Chapel, corner of London and Decatur Streets.)
C. Goodrich..........Sunday, July 15th

Charlestown, (69 Maine Street)....Lord's day, July 8th
J. N. SHERMAN.

Exeter, N. H..........Sunday, July 8th
MILES GRANT.

CONCORD, N. H.
(Corner of Green and Center Streets.)
Timothy Cole..........Sunday, July 8th
J. Couch..........Sunday, July 15th
H. Munger..........July 22d and 29th
J. S. White..........Sundays, Aug. 5th and 12th

CONCORD, N. H., (ANGELOS HALL.)
C. C. Ramsey..........Sunday, July 8th
J. H. F. Varney..........Sunday, July 15th
J. G. Smith..........Sunday, July 22d
J. Pinkham..........Sunday, July 29th

Portsmouth, N. H..........Sunday, July 8th
J. S. WHITE.

Lynn..........Sunday, July 8th
South Reading..........Monday evening, July 9th
Wells, Me..........Wednesday evening, July 11th
Will some one meet me at the depot on the arrival of the P. M. train?
Kennebunkport, Me..........Thursday evening, July 12th
Portland, Me..........Friday evening, July 13th
Casco, or West Poland, (as brethren may think best), Sunday, July 15th.
Yarmouth, Me..........Monday, July 16th
Biddeford, Me..........Tuesday, July 17th
Dover, N. H..........Wednesday, July 18th
A. ROSS.

Durham, Ct..........Sunday, July 8th
O. D. WOODRUFF.

Nashua..........Sunday, July 8th
CALEB RICHARDSON.

Barkhamstead, South Hollow, Ct....Sunday, July 15th
S. WOODRUFF.

At the Red school-house, Concord, on the Loudon road, Sunday, July 8th, at 5-30 P. M.
At the Carter school-house, Concord, Wednesday evening, July 15th. JOHN H. DADMUN.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, July 15th
A. SIMPSON.

Loudon Ridge, N. H..........Sunday, July 8th
C. S. EMERSON.

Bath, Me..........Sunday, July 8th
CLARKSON GOUD.

Barnstead Center..........Sunday, July 8th
Chichester (Pine Ground)..........Sunday, July 15th
North Barnstead..........Sunday, July 22d
S. S. MOONEY.

Loudon Ridge..........Sunday, July 15th
Pittsfield..........Sunday, July 22d
GEO. W. RANDALL.

I will preach as the way opens, Sundays and week day evenings, till August 20th. My address will be at Boston till that time. H. K. FLAGG.

Square Pond, Conn., (to baptize)......Sunday, July 8th
I. B. POTTER.
P. S. BUTLER.

New Britain, Ct..........July 8th
Square Pond..........July 15th
A. M. HIGGINS.

South Reading, Mass..........July 15th
T. E. LANG.

Madison, Ct..........Sunday, July 8th
B. HITCHCOCK.

New Preston..........Sunday, July 15th
W. N. PILE.

East Canaan, N. H..........Saturday, July 7th and the following Lord's day. ZINA FORD.

Appointments for Northern Ohio during the remaining two-thirds of the quarter, beginning July 2d, and ending Aug. 26th.
G. W. Stetson, P. C., Norwalk, July 29th and Aug. 12th
" ....Mansfield, July 6th and Aug. 2d
" ....Union, A. M., July 8th and Aug. 5th
" ....Nevada, P. M., July 8th and Aug. 5th
" ....Berlin, July 15th, and Aug. 25th and 26th
This will be QUARTERLY MEETING.
" ....Fairfield, July 22d and Aug. 19th
I. D. Knapp, R. E., and presiding, Norwalk, July 8th and Aug. 5th.
" ....Berlin, July 29th
L. M. Judson..........Norwalk, July 15th and Aug. 19th
" ....Fairfield, July 8th
" ....East Norwalk, July 29th and Aug. 12th
D. C. Jefferson..........Norwalk, July 22d
" ....Union and Nevada, Aug. 19th
" ....Fairfield, Aug. 5th
Homer A. King..........Union and Nevada, July 22d
" ....Berlin, Aug. 12th and 25th
" ....Mansfield, 7 P. M., July 20th and Aug. 17th
The remaining vacant Sabbaths to Bro. King are reserved to him as superannuary.

Worcester, Mass..........Wednesday evening, July 11th
Charlestown, Mass., (69 Main Street), Sunday, July 15th
S. C. HANCOCK.

Andover, Vt..........Sunday, July 8th and as much longer as profitable.
H. HADLOCK.

West Gloucester, R. I., the first and third Sundays in each month, at 10½ A. M., and 1½ P. M.
E. BELLOWS.

Bridgewater, Vt..........July 8th
Plymouth, Vt..........July 15th
Houghtonville, Vt..........July 16th
Whitakerville, Vt..........July 17th and 18th
West Brattleboro, Vt..........July 19th and 20th
Northfield, Mass..........July 22d
North Dana, Mass..........July 29th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Jackson, Tioga Co., Pa., (two days' meeting), August 17th, and over Sunday.
Canton, Pa..........August 22d and over Sunday following.
J. W. TAYLOR.
C. F. SWEET.

Sparta, Wis., (as brethren may arrange)......July 19th and over Sunday.
West Salem, Wis..........July 26th and over Lord's day. J. R. PRESTON.

East Hartland, Ct..........Thursday evening, July 12th
East Granville, Friday evening, July 13th, at Bro. S. Herrick's; Saturday evening, July 14th, at Bro. S. Oatley's; Lord's day, July 15th, at the school-house in Bro. Oatley's district; Lord's day evening, Blandford, Mass., at Bro. David Bates', or as he may arrange.
Monday evening, July 16th, Westfield, Mass., as Sr. Maria M. Weaver may arrange. H. ROCKWELL.

Warehousepoint..........Sunday, July 8th
E. OWEN.

Bradford..........Sunday, July 8th
Pine Ground..........Sunday, July 15th
C. W. SARGENT.

Harwinton, Ct..........Sunday, July 8th
Will Bro. Barber come again to Terryville Station evening of July 7th? S. WOODRUFF.

Manchester, N. H..........Sabbath, July 8th
T. M. PREBLE.

Northwood Narrows..........Sunday, July 15th
London Ridge..........Sunday, July 29th
J. G. SMITH.

Bolton, (Sargent's school-house)..........July 8th
Magog (Ward's school-house)..........July 9th
Barnston (Wayside school-house)..........July 10th
Libby's Mills, Stanstead, (or E. A. Thompson may appoint)..........July 12th
North Wear, Stanstead, (near Eld. Merrill's) July 13th
Bolton Lake (school-house)..........Sunday, July 15th
Week-day appointments at 6 P. M. C. P. DOW.

Concord, N. H., (Angelos Hall)..........July 8th
South Reading, Mass..........July 15th
West Abington..........July 22d
C. C. RAMSAY.

New Hampton, N. H., (Straight's school-house, or as Bro. Pike may arrange), July 8th. T. E. LANG, JR.

Vernon, Vt..........Sunday, July 8th
S. COOK.

NATICK, MASS., (SCHOOL-HOUSE HALL.)
J. M. Muhlig..........Sunday, July 8th

Yarmouth, Me..........Sunday, July 8th
Swamp school-house..........5 o'clock P. M., July 15th
E. R. YORK.

Parsonsfield (where Bro. Moulton may appoint) July 8th
Moultonborough..........July 15th
T. W. PIPER.

Cumsbago..........Sunday, July 8th
Let there be a good turn out in the vicinity of these meetings. C. D. TURNER.

Verona, N. Y., (Lock school-house), 2 P. M., July 8th
C. H. WILLIAMS.

Hartland, Vt., (Dimmock Hill)..........July 8th
J. COUCH.

Wrightsville..........Sunday, July 8th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

Cheshire Street, Ct..........Sunday, July 8th
CHAS. E. PIPER.
SAMUEL M. TATRO.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, July 8th
Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, July 15th
Biddeford, Me..........Sunday, July 22d
If these conflict with others, write me at Dover, N. H., immediately. J. PINKHAM.

Business.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 561. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness, if less than 26 weeks, charge five cents; if more than 26 weeks, six cents. From the product (which will be a fraction over the actual indebtedness) deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each—W. G. Ruggles 544, L McLenathan 437, C. R. Perry (what P. O.?) G F. Chapman 564, M Foss 580, L Shipman 612, T O Chapman 580, J T Gray 573.

$1.25 each—R. T. Woodward 578, J. Nason 590, H. Howe 595, W. F. Lombard 586, S. Perkins 562, M. E. Carlisle 582, J Douglass 610, T Thompson 679, W Lindsay 562, A Deloff 585, P Cole 585, D Burnham 562, H Roberts 582, P Young 585, M Boynton 567, H A Creasy 565, H F Wade 679.

$2.00 each—J B Stocking 596, E A Marsh 591, B B Clark 594, C Martindale 600, J Cogswell 554, A B Andrews 601, E Sweet 563, L J Blossom 594, I Tripp 587, D Tripp 563.

$2.50 each—R. C. Russell 606, W. E. Deeper 608, L. Sherman (what P. O.?) R Curtis 572, N Lasell 562, E M. Banning 612, A. S. Soper 590, Mrs. J T Mead 609, Mrs. J Burgess 620, A Scoville 593, S. O. Folsom 611, J G Baker 607, J Roberts 611, O P Sawell 596, J Clifford 603, J Gowell 601, H Luce 596, P M Davis 603, G Holliday 603, A Tripp 610, W Christian 598, L H Wiggin 604, H Moses 596, J W Philbrick 563.

$3.00 each—S B Hatherns 653, A Chambers 564, I K Wilcox 621, D Graffam 572.

Various Sums.—W. Kelloway $2.60, 613; J. Staples 50c, 652; I. Baker 25c, 563; M M Clark $1.33, 561; H Sawyer $2.25, 587; E W Waters 60c, 564; A K Warren 50c, 560; E. Kelly 50c, 560; R. Macomber $3.00, 586; S Jennings $1.70, (what P. O.?) J F Whittier 25c, 558; Ely Hatch $1.50, 581; J Simmons $5.00, 586.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

J. D. W. Laprus 50c, S. J. Squier 50c, T. S. Canfield $1.50, T. B. Duncan $1.75, J. W. Thomas $2.30, J. H. Evans 45c, J. Rogers $1.10, G. W. Green 45c, J. A. Simonds, J H Lutterton [illegible], Wellcome $10.00, J. H. Lutterton $7.00, E F Aldrich 40c, O H Fisher $2.10, W E Pinkham $2.00, T Scholl $1.25.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL—S J Squier, T S Canfield, J D W Laprus, O B Pease, J H Evans, T B Duncan, J W Thomas, J Rogers, J Schroll, D Hutchinson, J O Baker, J A Simonds, J H Lutterton, O H Fisher, W E Pinkham, M Drury, E F Aldrich.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

J N Berry, N W George, E. A. A., W M Howell, M H Morrison, J O Bahrr, O W Stetson, D F Newton, C P Dow, M E Severance, A S Whitney, B Perham, J. Motherwell, P W Covey, H J Baldwin, A J Tuttle, J. Blain, F A Gray, I W Lawton, A Bain, W H Ball, W Christian, B Owen, G W Green, J H Lutterton, E Macomber, D. C. W.

ADDRESS OF PREACHING BRETHREN.

C. E. Piper—41 Grove Street, Boston, Mass.
C. Goodrich—69 Marion Street, East Boston, Mass.
Bro. A. W. Sibley has removed from East Boston to Lincoln, N. H. All letters should be addressed to the latter place.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.
L. Boutell—Salem, Mass.
A. Simpson—Concord, N. H.
L. B. Potter—Somerville, Ct.
Wm. H. Fisher—Ashland, Mass.
H. F. Carpenter—Danielsonville, Ct.
F. A. Baker—North Searsport, Me.
Joseph W. White—Portsmouth, N. H.
D M Hanscomb—Wayne, Me.
N. Harnden—Laconia, N. H.
J. G. Smith—New Durham, N. H.
J. Partridge—Richmond, Me.
C. H. Leverton—Surry, Hancock Co., Me.
O. D. Gibson—Amboy, Ill.
J. R. Preston—Prairie du Sac, Sauk Co., Wis.
R. J. Whitehead—Walkton, Ct.
C. C. Stevens—Exeter, N. H.
L. C. McKinstry—Lynn, Mass., until July 1st.
John T. Oakley—Lonesville, Crawford Co., Pa.
S. D. Daniels—Springfield, Mass.
G. W. Turner—West Point, Wis.
C. P. Dow—My P. O. address for United States' correspondents will be hereafter Franklin, Vt.
Wm. McCulloch—New Zealand, Ill.
P. W. Hough—Cascade, Iowa.
Mrs. Abigail Mooney—Hillsborough, Nova Scotia.
G. W. Stetson—Olena, Huron Co., Ohio, until Sept.
Wm. A. Fenn—Pulaski, Oswego Co., N. Y.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
N. A. Hitchcock—Exeter, Green Co., Wis.
N. F. Nason—North Hermon, Me.
C. B. Turner—South Butler, Wayne Co., N. Y.
S. C. Hancock—Forestville, Conn.
Samuel Curry—Station E, New York.
S. P. Babcock—Malaga, N. J.
Josiah Dargin—Wadley's Falls, N. H.
H. Pratt—Springfield, Mass., 87 Cedar St.
Jacob Wilbur—Box 941, Janesville, Rock Co., Wis.
F. H. Berbank, Missionary—Residence 8 W. Cor. 7th and Spring-Garden Streets, Philadelphia, Penn.
Mrs. Anna E. Smith—No. 112 West 33d Street, house No. 7.
Dr. I. L. Leslie—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.
Martha S. Butler—Box 634, Memphis, Tenn.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT. The Common English Version as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union. Prices, by mail, postpaid—Family and Pulpit Edition (8vo. Pica). Plain Cloth, $2.25; Extra Cloth, $2.75. Medium size (18mo. Brevier), Plain Cloth, 85c.; Extra Cloth, $1.10; Sheep, $1.25; Roan, Colored Edges, $1.60.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the work of Demons: An Examination of its Origin, Morals, Doctrines, and Politics. By Miles Grant. Single copy, 15c.; eight copies for $1.00; $10.00 per hundred.

THE PROPHETIC TIME QUESTION; or, Bible Time Examined. By Wm. Sheldon. 27c.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed. 8c.

VISIONS OF ELLEN G. WHITE, not of God. By B. F. Snook and Wm. H. Brinkerhoff. 10c.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home..........16 pp.
2. Life Insurance..........16 pp.
3. Lost! Lost!..........8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet?..........8 pp.
5. About God (for children)..........4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing..........4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ..........4 pp.
8. New..........4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent postpaid—

One set (64 pp.)..........10 cents
1300 pp..........$1.00
1000 pp., (by express, not prepaid)..........$1.00

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

Sent, postpaid, as follows:

1. I don't believe in Religion..........12 pp., 3c.
2. Did the World make itself?..........12 pp., 3c.
3. Is God Everybody, and Everybody God?..16 pp., 4c.
4. Have we any need of the Bible?..........[illegible]
5. Who wrote the New Testament?..........[illegible]
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable?..........[illegible]
7. [illegible]
8. [illegible]
9. [illegible]
10. [illegible]
11. [illegible]
12. [illegible]

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE

ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY

No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Works on the Prophecies—The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, etc.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES; or, A Glance at Christendom as it is. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. By D. T. Taylor. Cloth, $1.50; paper, 80c.

THESSALONICA, the Model Church, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, by H. L. Hastings; and SPIRITUALISM, by Dr. Ramsey. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. With various tracts. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

MATTHEW XXIV. AND XXV. An Exposition, showing Christ's Predictions fulfilled, and his Kingdom near. By I. C. Wellcome. 25c; by mail, 27c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 1, By S. S. Brewer. 7c; by mail, 8c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 2, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

THE LAST-DAY TOKENS, No. 3, By S. S. Brewer. 21c; by mail, 23c.

REASONS FOR MY HOPE; or, Tokens of Speedy Redemption. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD, and Signs of the Times. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THESSALONICA; or, The Model Church. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

REVELATIONS XIII.; a treatise. By S. S. Brewer. 18c; by mail, 20c.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man. By H. L. Hastings. 25c.

SPIRITUALISM a Satanic Delusion. By Wm. Ramsay, D. D. 20c.

THE SEVEN SEALS. Exposition of Rev. vi. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

LOOKING FORWARD; or, Prospects of the Church. By H. L. Hastings. 10c.

THE DAYS WE LIVE IN; The Lord soon to come. By S. S. Brewer. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CELESTIAL RAILROAD; or, Modern Pilgrim's Progress. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 13c; by mail, 15c.

THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 5c; by mail, 6c.

THE GREAT IMAGE soon to be dashed to pieces, By S. S. Brewer. 4c; by mail, 5c.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the times of Daniel and John. Mounted on Rollers, by express. $5.00; on Cloth, by mail, $4.00.

THE REIGN OF MESSIAH, the King of the Jews, on the Throne of his Father David; its Nature, and the Time of its Commencement. By Wm. Sheldon. 8c; by mail, 10c.

Works on Future Punishment, etc.

DEBT AND GRACE; or, The Doctrine of a Future Life. By C. F. Hudson. A very able and learned work. $1.50.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. Cloth, 75c; paper, 45c.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT as taught in the Scriptures. Comprising Pauline Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, Old Paths, etc. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

STATE OF THE DEAD, and Punishment of the Wicked. A Discussion between Miles Grant and W. W. Clayton. 20c; by mail, 22c.

ETERNAL SUFFERING. A Discussion between Miles Grant and Dr. J. Litch. 25c; by mail, 29c.

RETRIBUTION; or, The Doom of the Ungodly. By H. L. Hastings. 20c.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, The Destruction of the Wicked established, and Endless Misery disproved. By Jacob Blain. 25c; by mail, 29c.

PAULINE THEOLOGY; or, The Christian Doctrine of Future Punishment, as taught in the Epistles of Paul. H. L. H. 10c.

GLAD TIDINGS; or, The End of Woe and Sin by the Destruction of the Wicked. (Three chapters from "Death not Life.") By J. Blain. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE OLD PATHS; or, The Primitive Doctrine of a Future Life. By H. L. H. 10c.

IMMORTAL SOUL THEOLOGY vs. BIBLE. By S. S. Brewer. 8c; by mail, 10c.

WHAT IS MAN? A Bible View of his Creation. By M. Grant. 6c; by mail, 7c.

THE SOUL; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 6c; by mail, 7c.

THE SPIRIT; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 6c; by mail, 7c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS; Thief on the Cross, etc. By M. Grant. 6c; by mail, 7c.

THE DOCTRINE OF ENDLESS MISERY an occasion of Scepticism. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ETERNAL DEATH in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. 6c; by mail, 8c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. With remarks on Josephus. By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE RIGHTS OF WRONG; or, Is Evil Eternal? By C. F. Hudson. 6c; by mail, 8c.

ENDLESS MISERY not a Bible Doctrine. 4c; by mail, 6c.

THE WICKED NOT IMMORTAL—(with 200 proof-texts.) 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING OF THE WORD HELL. 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING of Forever and Everlasting. 2c; by mail, 4c.

SMOKE OF TORMENT and Unquenchable Fire Explained. 1c; by mail, 3c.

REV. JOHN FOSTER'S LETTER on Future Punishment. 1c; by mail, 3c.

Miscellaneous.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF CHRISTIAN HOLINESS: A Sermon, by S. H. Platt. 15c.

THE DAY AND THE HOUR: a Lecture, by Joseph A. Seiss, D. D. 15c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.36c. Cloth, $1.75; by mail, $2.07.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five engraved Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.35. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. $2.50; by mail, $2.86.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, the Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE BIBLE FROM HEAVEN; or, a Dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. 25c; by mail, 29c.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM; its Duty and Objects. By I. C. Wellcome. 20c. postpaid; $2.00 per dozen.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK; for Families and Sunday Schools. 15c; by mail, 18c; $1.50 per dozen; postage, 6c. on every three copies.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS FIGHT?—a tract on War. By I. C. Wellcome. 10c.

AMERICA IN PROPHECY; an Exposition of Isaiah XVIII. By O. R. Fassett. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EVERY BODY'S BOOK; the Personality of God; The Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By P. A. Smith. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE CHRISTIAN LYRE; a Collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. 80c; by mail, 88c.

HOW TO COOK—without Salt, Butter, Lard, or Condiments. By Mrs. Mary E. Cox, M. D. 20c. postpaid.

COOKERY; or How to prepare food from Grain, Fruits and Vegetables. By F. W. Hurd, M. D. 15c; by mail, 17c.

PREMATURE DECAY of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE OLD AND NEW COVENANT—Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. 8c; by mail, 10c.

EXPERIENCE AND OBSERVATIONS of a Bruised Reed. By F. H. Chamberlain. By mail, 17c.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-word Translation, etc., etc. Leather, $4.50; by mail, $4.86. Extra gilt, $4.50; by mail, $4.86. Morocco, $5.00; by mail, $5.36.

CHLOE LANKTON, or Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75c; by mail, 87c.

NON-RESISTANCE. By W. C. Thurman. 20c; by mail, 24c.

DIPHTHERIA; its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. 10c; by mail, 12c.

GLAD VOICES; Words by D. T. Taylor, Music by L. Reimer. 5c. single; by mail, 6c. 30 cents a dozen, postpaid.

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. 15c; eight copies for $1.00.

BETHLEHEM; a Rhyme for Children. By H. L. Hastings. 10c. postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

SOCIAL HYMNS. Original and Selected. By H. L. H. Cloth, 20c; $2.00 per dozen. Paper 20c. $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. For Sunday Schools, etc. 5c; per dozen, 50c.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of the "nations of the saved." By Wm. Sheldon. 10c; postpaid; [illegible]

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. By A. P. Jones. 8c; by mail, [illegible]

OUR MISSION WORK; a Report of the Organization of the American Advent Mission Society, its Constitution, Officers, Addresses, etc. [illegible]

EXPERIENCE OF THOMAS H. JONES, who was a slave for forty-three years. [illegible]

BLIND BARTIMEUS; or, How to be Saved. [illegible] per dozen [illegible]

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS; their Office and Ministry. [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

"AND THEY SUNG A NEW SONG."

By faith we hear the glad "new song"
The dear redeemed shall sing;
Blessing and honor, power belong
To God, to Christ our King!
Louder, yet louder swell the strain,
Their joyful voices pour,—
Worthy the Lamb that once was slain,
The Christ that we adore!

But who are those in spotless white,
That palms of vict'ry bring,
Singing in crowns of glitt'ring light,
Worthy is Christ, our King!
O! once they cried, "dear Lord, how long
Ere thou'lt avenge our blood?"
This martyred host, this holy throng,
Witness for Jesus stood.

Their robes made white in Jesus' blood,
They bear their Father's name,
They dwell as kings and priests to God,
Forever with the Lamb.
Pain and disease, hunger and thirst,
By them no more are known;
They drink from living streams that burst,
Clear from their Father's throne.

On glorious fruits they feast their eye,
Of life's immortal tree
They that partake shall never die,—
From pain and sickness free.
By faith we join the glad "new song"
The ransomed host shall sing.—
Glory and honor, praise belong
To our Redeemer—King!

East Roxbury, Vt. A. B. McEllister.

For the World's Crisis.

THE IMPENDING CRISIS.

Editor of the World's Crisis: Dear Brother: We have spoken of Spiritualism as a formidable evil and peril, as well as an infallible sign of the last times. A king which it may seek and select to deify, can not and must not be "mighty by his own power," in order to meet the necessity of revelation, but receive exaltation and eminence through concurring systems and forces, headed by the arch inspirer of evil, who seeks to stay the hour of utter ruin, by the most desperate possible expedient. But let us for the present waive this most suggestive and important theme, and in a kind of parenthesis take up a subject previously mentioned, that is, the impending financial peril.

From a late paper, I take a few suggestions indicating an apprehension, only whispered as it were, but impossible to stifle in intelligent minds, of commercial and pecuniary disaster. I quote:

"The London Times talks very seriously of the financial situation in England, and thinks it possible that twelve, fifteen, or twenty per cent. may have to be endured in the bank rate of interest. It says, 'It will be well for all persons pledging themselves to future liabilities, to frame their calculations on the possibility that the storm may overtake them at any instant.'"

The Times refers to large credits having been granted to America, as accounting for the cessation for two months of gold arrivals from that country. England's exportations thither have been on an extraordinary scale, while in respect to the grain trade, Russia, Germany and France have almost entirely driven her from competition. In 1863, America sent to Europe nearly eleven hundred million pounds of wheat and flour, while in the year just past only a little over one-ninth of this amount was sent. And of that new source of wealth, petroleum, less than six thousand tons were shipped in 1865, against more than twenty-nine thousand tons in 1863.

In the continental countries, at the same time, there has been a furore for purchasing U. S. bonds, so that all the riches they have derived from the great increase of their grain traffic, have disappeared from Europe, to be represented by these or analogous securities.

In fact, so delicate and dangerous is the financial situation of many countries, so enormous is the burden of their obligations, that a serious curtailment of revenues any where, must threaten the most alarming consequences. And so mutually interdependent are modern civilized nations, so intimate are their business relations, that embarrassment, derangement, and disaster commencing in one place, must inevitably involve other communities, countries and governments, threatening widespread bankruptcy and ruin. Thus a sudden and great depreciation in the value of our bonds, would be embarrassing, if not disastrous, to the German capitalists and people who have so largely invested in them.

For my part, I am so fully convinced of the reality and magnitude of the peril, that that prince, or power, that has firmness to stand the shock, and influence, and sagacity, adequate to the exigency, will find the sole possible solution of the difficulty, and remedy for the general distress, in an appropriation of the immense wealth of church establishments, of which the Catholic is conspicuously preeminent in resources and perquisites. Time will show.

And meanwhile, let us be prepared by the word of God and prayer, for every crisis and trial, and understand the signs of the times. Let none suppose all the calamities hidden in the thickening cloud of judgment, must come before that solemn midnight hour, when like a thunderbolt the Lord of heaven shall sweep into our system and our atmosphere, and making the circuit of the globe, shout the mighty call of, "Rise! ye dead"! and,

"Mount, ye ready saints, on swift wings into glory!"

"The day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night." What if it come before all these chief and near tribulations! What if its coming is necessarily and infallibly precedent to the commotions, revolutions, confederations, judgments which finish up the present dispensation! Nay, who dare affirm that the rapid succession and tremendous accumulation of evils, perils, agitations and agonies, with jars and portents and terrors in nature, with meteors, and showers of fire, with the thunder, and flame, and smoke of shattered planets, with the sulphur scent of strange combustions, and the hissing fury of eruptions, with ashes and artillery storms of volcanic stones, with the noise of cannon and the shouts and tramp of armed men, and the thunder of cavalry hoofs, with ominous sights and sounds in the sky, a sackcloth sable sun, and moon blood red and aghast,—who dare affirm that all this train of tempests and terrors is aught else than the day of judgment, and perdition of ungodly men?

The above, which was written some two, or three months since, in continuation of a previous article in the Crisis, and whose transmission was deferred because unfinished, may perhaps not inappropriately be forwarded, in view of the striking verification of the hint which it embodies, in the current intelligence from England,—opulent, aristocratic, debt-burdened, and guilty England. And ere this sees light, the contagion of [illegible] and mighty [illegible] may have already involved other nations not only in frenzied apprehensions, but appalling disasters.

Dismissing for the time this pregnant theme, whose elucidation will be made obvious and perfect by events, let us refer for a moment to Mr. Shimeall's new book,—The Political Economy of Prophecy." This well known and able author, and expositor of prophecy, gives the emphatic confirmation of his testimony in this interesting volume, to the identity of Louis Napoleon as the seventh revived head of the apocalyptic wild beast. The book is truly argumentative, and if marked somewhat by the positiveness which rather peculiarly characterizes prophetic interpreters, is nevertheless critical, logical, and able.

Believing, as we most heartily do, in the impregnable correctness and fidelity to the mind of the Spirit of the interpretative characterization of the French Emperor as "the wilful king," and inevitably successful aspirant after sovereignty on earth, we are glad of this and all kindred testimony tending to enlighten the children of God on this exceedingly important subject. It is true, there is still great and seemingly invincible incredulity in regard to this or any other Napoleonic headship of the beast. But the logic of events at least will possess inexorable demonstration.

Mr. Shimeall's book does not differ from Baxter's in regard to the grand conclusion to which the course of argument compels the unbiassed and prayerful mind. The reasoning is much the same in each. The new book is more cautious and rigid in its analysis and application of Scripture, excluding some of the prophetic passages in Daniel which Mr. Baxter applies to Napoleon. But it distinctly sustains the view of the league with the Jews, the choice of kings by elective franchise in Europe, the impending terrible tribulation, as well as the prophetic or interpretative scheme of the millenarians. May God bless this new work of our brother to the everlasting welfare of thousands, and the glory of his own great name.

GREAT DIVERSITIES OF INTERPRETATION.

I must confess that it is painful to see the exceedingly numerous and diverse interpretations of prophecy which are constantly occurring in the journey of religious and prophetic reading. True, this is not so bad as the almost universal silence of the more popular and post-millennial religious journalism. But it is rather astonishing to see the multitudinous variations in exposition. The question naturally arises, must this discrepancy be perpetuated? Cannot some system of interpretation be evolved which shall produce unity? Is not the time at hand when obvious developments shall so cogently and irresistibly attest the true import of the word, that differences will be greatly reduced in magnitude and number? Modesty should ever characterize the person who takes on him the high office of prophetic interpretation.

Positiveness with error is adopted to do serious injury, and bring the written divine fore-ordination of august events into ridicule, not merely among the openly profane, but among the learnedly skeptical and the proud votaries of a thousand atheistic systems of philosophy.

Now with great candor and deference let me say, that works like this of Mr. Shimeall, which recognize that colossus, which is to be the last elaboration in Daniel's image, the very sovereignty doomed to be broken by Jesus Christ, rising in our own day, and developing before our own eyes, every step of whose advancement we can carefully watch and accurately trace, must powerfully diminish the tendency to divergency of view among readers and writers on prophecy.

It may be well to mention one peculiarity in Mr. Shimeall's rendering of apocalyptic "zoology," or the beasts rising respectively out of the sea and of the earth. He regards the two as identical in respect to the person denoted, i. e., Napoleon, but discerns and defines the distinction between them as consisting in the difference in their functions. Thus, the beast out of the sea he considers in its seventh, or wounded and healed headship, to be denoted by the Franco-Roman emperorship of Napoleon, and the beast like a lamb, with the voice of a dragon, he thinks is seen in that advanced stage of his development, when he assumes spiritual or ecclesiastical prerogatives, and begins to assert that supremacy which pertains only to God.

This idea is more fully elaborated in the mutation from the seventh to the eighth headship of the ten horned beast, the seventh representing a political and the eighth a spiritual pre-eminence. I did not intend to say even this much on the book, but the greatness of the subject will justify it. Deliberation, acumen, thoroughness—these are qualities which command respect. We believe events will most rapidly and powerfully demonstrate his substantial and practical correctness and fidelity of interpretation. C. Colegrove.

For the World's Crisis.

GOD'S PECULIAR PEOPLE.

John B. Gough is in town to-night, lecturing on "Peculiar People," and no doubt will say many peculiar things, in his peculiar way, which will make people feel peculiarly mirthful. But while all alone here in my quiet room, the lecturer's subject brings to mind a class of human beings who by their profession are God's "peculiar people." I feel solemn and thoughtful.

Classing myself with the pilgrims and strangers (whose peculiarities make them such), I stop to examine and see if we are truly peculiar. Do we indeed differ from the world? Ah! how important it is that we agree with our profession in this respect.

The world cheats, lies, steals, fights, envys, hates, and is full of every evil thing. They love those that love them, and give to those whom they expect to give back to them. Now, if we are God's "peculiar people," we shall not be guilty of these things, but will love our enemies as well as our friends, and "give, hoping to receive nothing again."

And this peculiarity extends into all our ways and doings. It changes the person entirely, inside and out. It cleanses the heart, purifies the affections, and makes us more like their Maker. It regulates women's apparel, and instead of loving the vain, foolish, abominable, shapeless, unbecoming frames, that are made to hang ribbons and flowers and trinkets on, instead of protecting or covering the head, we shall admire and clothe ourselves in "modest apparel," not decking with "gold or costly array." Nor do I believe it is right for mothers to put such foolish things on to their little children; but they should be clothed according to the gospel rule, so long as under the influence of their parents.

O! how much harm is done to the minds of Christ by the unfaithfulness of his followers. Old men just on the verge of the grave, young men and maidens in the strength of their youth, look at the church and world, and by the glaring faults of Christ's professed people are driven from the fold.

The worst of all faults is hypocrisy. O the nobleness of daring to be true. We all have our weaknesses and shortcomings; but there is no mediator for wilful, continued deceit. May God apply this truth to our every heart. "The judgment," I know, will settle everything that men cannot settle; but I do not believe the gospel rule permits brethren to deceive, betray, misjudge, slander and destroy each other without being "reconciled" to each other here. So he that "regardeth iniquity in his heart" will find his prayers hindered. Do not bow before a holy God, my brother or sister, to offer prayer; leave there thy gift before the altar, and confess to that one whom you have talked about, misjudged and deceived. Leave not such work for the judgment, for we are commanded to attend to it here. And when we get the spirit of Jesus we shall indeed be "God's peculiar people, zealous of good works."

Time is short. I want to feed more and more on the bread of life, and drink oftener of the water of life, so that when Jesus comes I shall be a "woman" in spiritual things. How much the church needs "men and women in Christ Jesus," and "nursing fathers and mothers" among the babes in Christ. The weak little lambs bleat on the cold mountains of earth, some of them faint by the way. O for more love to feed Christ's "lambs." The great Shepherd charged his people to take care of the lambs. He left them here among wolves, but, praise his name, he loves them very tenderly yet, and has sent men, and women too, thank God, over the hills, and into the valleys, far and near, to feed the little lambs. They have the same spirit their Master had, and like him love the flock.

Well, in view of coming glory, we can afford to be "peculiar." By and by there will be a peculiar "kingdom under the whole heaven," and God's peculiar people will be there, amid the glory of the immortal land. Let us "search and see if there be any evil way" with us, and seek strength to overcome the world. Lo, when the King comes, he will crown us his forever! Amen.

M. Mathews Weaver.

Westfield, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

INTEGRITY.

It is my intention at the present time to write an article of caution to my Advent brethren—to keep sacred their integrity, in order to withstand those fiery darts that are hurled against us by our adversaries, especially at this trying and stupendous day. Noting the movements around, and even among us, one cannot avoid the conviction that this is a peculiar and trying day to those who advocate the second coming of Christ to judge and cleanse the earth.

We are placed now in the most critical position which it has been ever our lot to occupy; and you will not doubt that very much depends on our integrity in taking advantage of the evolutions in this erratic world. Ease, peace and error in the various denominations seem to rule the day. Ease and peace, to be sure, are not undesirable, I am free to own; but then, look to it that we do not purchase them at too dear a rate. Let us be careful that we do not yield any of the intrinsic principles of immortal truth, in our thirst for a short season of peace; for the pleasures of this world are of short duration.

Here let me observe, we can plainly see among all denominations (as a general thing) that sensual pleasures and amusements reign among them, even to the neglect of their souls' salvation; hence, however we may esteem peace and union, Heaven speaks to us in distinct terms,—Do not sell your birthright for a mess of pottage. Therefore let us make no sacrifice of principle for friendship's offering. Truth is too dear, too costly, and too lovely to be given up for any consideration. Let us make no compromise with any denomination whatever. It will be time enough to relinquish our belief when we are convinced of its error. Howbeit, we pray for union—for every denomination to become of one heart and of one mind. Still I beg to be excused from giving up one iota of divine truth to secure this end; for it is a self-evident truth that "we can not serve two masters." "What concord hath light with darkness?"

I would further say, we feel conscientiously assured that we have that light of revelation—the true word of prophecy, which was revealed from heaven by the Son of God for our admonition and guide. And if we have this light, it behooves us to reveal it to all those who are lying under a cloud of darkness, that they may see the true light of truth that leads to the realms of bliss. I feel happy to say, also, we believe that in our christian faith we have all that is good, and all that is worth preserving. Why, then, should we yield up our faith for a mess of pottage—for a union of friendship which is of so short duration? The moment we give up our faith, the enemy has us.

The gospel we hold to is a sound declaration. It had its beginning in the counsels of Heaven, and it was handed down to us by God's only beloved Son, for the instruction of man. And it also points out a mission for us to perform for the upholding of his kingdom. And as teachers in the school of Christ, we should of course discharge our duties faithfully in speaking the doctrine he hath left in our charge, both by precept and example; not by man-made creeds, but by the instruction and precepts of Him who is the author and finisher of our faith. Hence I would say, Christ's doctrine will outvie and annul the keenest criticism that can be brought against it. Therefore, let us be bold in the cause of Christ's command,—go forth and proclaim his gospel to all those who are under clouds of darkness, despotism and error; that they may be brought to see the true light that shineth brighter and brighter unto the perfect day.

By all means, brethren, let us stand firm in the liberty of the truth, and thus fulfill our mission;—then, when men shall be brought to understand the gospel of Christ in all its bearings, every holy desire will be accomplished and every ardent wish gratified. And the soul knows not how to ask more. This is the height of our mission.

When this is accomplished, we may stand upon a pure foundation, where men can unite, and no where else. Here the christian can bring in his armor to subdue all those enemies that dishonor God and degrade man. And then shall we be prepared for heaven, and nothing short of it. Now, dear reader, my advice to you is to take knowledge of thyself, in and through the teachings of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and see if you are prepared for every duty that is incumbent upon you. And further, to see if you stand on that Rock that can not be removed,—the rock Christ Jesus; for thereon stands the grand criterion of our present peace and future happiness.

In conclusion, my highest prayer and solicitation is, that the rising sun of the gospel of Jesus Christ shall continue its upward and onward course, until it shall arrive to that eternal height for which it was designed.

Fisherville, N. H. J. Elkins.

For the World's Crisis.

THE FREEDMEN'S CALL.

Hail! christian of the favored soil,
Where plenty crowns the laborer's toil,
And freedom's banner waves unfurled,
On you for help we call.
Delivered from the galling chain
That fettered heart and soul and brain,
To no kind ear dared we complain,
Save to the God of all.

We ask not for earth's wealth untold,
Its priceless gems or treasured gold,
Or costly robes of Babel old,
Forbidden by the Lord.
'Tis a more precious boon we crave,
One hitherto denied the slave,—
Oh say, this privilege shall we have
To read God's holy word?

Oft we have heard of Jesus' love,
And how he left the realms above
On this benighted earth to rove,
And do his Father's will;
And how, his work on earth all done,
He went up to his heavenly home,
Where, seated on his Father's throne,
He pleads for sinners still.

Now we would read, that we may know
If these great truths are really so,
If Christ all this did undergo
For black as well as white.
And we would read the gracious words
He spake unto the wondering crowds,
How he the sick and lame restored,
The blind received their sight.

Oh, brother of a fairer race,
Deny us not the means of grace,
Raise us from this benighted place,
The estate of men to fill.
And oh, hath not the Crucified
For your dark-skinned brother died?
Then can it ever be denied
That we are human still?

Our hearts are beating loyally,
All grateful for our liberty,
While praise to Him who made us free,
Ascends from joyful hearts;
Oh, never did the thirsty soul
So long for water fresh and cool,
All sparkling from the clear bright pool,
As we for freedom's rights.

Come, brother, from your Northern home,
And gentle, pitying sister, come,
Oh! help dispel this night of gloom,
That darkens all our way.
Little reward have we to give,
But when the dead in Christ shall live,
A recompense you will receive,—
"Well done," the Lord will say.

Farmington, N. H. Martha S. Horne.

For the World's Crisis.

OUR KEEPSAKE.

"Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you."—John 13: 27.

It is very natural for friends, when about to separate for a great length of time, to give each other something as a token of their love, so that when the eye rests upon that token, the giver is brought to mind; and this we hold dear just in proportion as we value the giver. Now Jesus Christ, the best friend that man ever had, when about to go away, gave each of his friends "Peace." This he wants them to keep until his return. By this they are ever to keep in mind that the giver is the Prince of Peace. The more they love the giver, the more of this keepsake will they have; and it will continue to increase, until it will become like a river, widening and deepening as it progresses, until, as the Psalmist has said, "Great peace have they that love thy law, and nothing shall offend them"; and as Isaiah has it, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee, because he trusteth in thee." And for this object, the great Prince of Peace would have us cast our cares upon him, because he careth for us; and would have us "careful (or anxious) for nothing, but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God; and the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and mind through Jesus Christ." Here is real peace for the poor, for they have the "promise of the life that now is, and that which is to come"; for God has "chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to those that love him."

Here is peace for the despised: "For ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called; but God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are, that no flesh should glory in his presence."

Here is peace for the friendless: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends; ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you." "He that toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye." "I have loved you with an everlasting love." "We are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones." Here is a friend that "sticketh closer than a brother."

There is peace for those that mourn, if they that sleep sleep in Jesus. "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption; it is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power." "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

There is peace for the tempted. "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man; but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way of escape, that ye may be able to bear it." "For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin." "For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted." So let us ever trust in God and his promises, and never lose our Keepsake, for

"Earth has no sorrow that heaven cannot heal."

Laura Ann Wheeler.

Hawley, Mass.

A false friend is like a shadow on a sun dial, which appears in fine weather, but vanishes at the approach of a cloud.

THE APOCALYPSE.

Dr. Seiss, of Philadelphia, who is a firm believer in the immediate coming of Christ, is giving a course of lectures on the Apocalypse. Eight of these lectures have been published. We consider them the best without any exception, that we have ever seen on the subject. These eight lectures are an explanation of the first three chapters. The following is an extract from his seventh lecture. When speaking of the import of the letters to the seven churches, he says:—

1. Viewing Epistles, then, as descriptive of the entire church, I find in them this item of fact: that the professed church, as pronounced upon by Christ himself, is a mixed society, embracing intermingles of good and evil from its beginning to the end. Whether we take the seven churches as significant of seven successive or as seven co-existing phases, they must needs reach to the end, and so depicture the entire church. And as there is not one of these Epistles in which the presence of evil is not recognized, so there can be no period in the earthly history of the church in which it is without bad admixtures. Whether the Ephesian church extends, as in some sense it must, from the apostolic era to the consummation, or whether it relates mainly to the first period alone, and the Laodicean the last, we will still have a vast deal which the Lord the Judge of the church condemns, stretching its dark image from the commencement to the close. There were fallen ones, and some whose first works had been abandoned, and some giving place to the base deeds of the Nicolaitanes, and some false ones claiming to be apostles and were not, even among the warm, patient, fervent, enduring and faithful Ephesians. In Smyrna were faithless blasphemers, and those of Satan's synagogue, as well as faithful, suffering ones, and those whom Christ is to crown in heaven. In Pergamos were those who denied the faith, and followed the treacherous teachings of Balaam, and the doctrines of the detested Nicolaitanes, as well as those who held fast the name of Jesus, and witnessed for him unto death. In Thyatira, we find a debauching and idolatrous Jezebel and her death-worthy children, and multitudes of spiritual adulterers, as well as those whose works, and faith, and charity, and patience are noted with favor, and who had not been drawn into Satan's depths. In Sardis there was incompleteness, deadness, defalcation, need for repentance, and threatened judgment, as well as names of those who had not defiled their garments. In Philadelphia we discover "the synagogue of Satan," falsifiers, those who had settled themselves upon the earth, and such as had not kept Christ's word, as well as such as should be kept from the sifting trial, and advanced to celestial crowns. And in Laodicea there was found disgusting lukewarmness, empty profession, and base self-conceit, with Christ himself excluded.

Never, indeed, has there been a sowing of God on earth, but it has been oversown by Satan; or a growth for Christ, which the plantings of the wicked one did not mingle with and hinder. God sowed good seed in Paradise; but when it came to the harvest, the principal product was tares. At earth's first altar appeared the murderer with the saint—Cain with Abel. God had his sons before the flood; but more numerous were the children of the wicked one. And in all ages and dispensations, the plants of grace have ever found the weeds upspringing by their sides, their roots intertwining, and their stalks and leaves and fruits putting forth together. The church is not an exception, and never will be, as long as the present dispensation lasts. Even in its first and purest periods, as the Scriptural accounts attest, it was intermixed with what pertained not to it. There was a Judas among its apostles; an Annias and a Simon Magus among its first converts; a Demas and a Diotrephes among its first public servants. And as long as it continues in this world, Christ will have his antichrist, and the temple of God its men of sin. He who sets out to find a perfect church, in which there are no unworthy elements and no disfigurations, proposes to himself a hopeless search. Go where he will, worship where he may, in any country, in any age, he will soon find tares among the wheat, sin mixing in with all earthly holiness; self-deceivers, hypocrites and unchristians in every assembly of saints; Satan insinuating himself into every gathering of the sons of God to present themselves before the Lord. No preaching, however pure; no discipline, however strict or prudent; no watchfulness, however searching and faithful, can ever make it different. Paul told the Thessalonians that the day of the Lord should not come until there came a falling away first, and an extraordinary manifestation of sin and guilt in the church itself; and assured them that that embodied apostasy was to live and work on until the Lord himself should come and destroy it by the manifestation of his own personal presence. The Savior himself has taught us, that in the gospel fiield wheat and tares are to be found; that it is forbidden to pluck up the bad, lest the good also be damaged; and that both are to "grow together until the harvest," which is the end of the economy—the winding up of the present order of things—"the end of the world."

For the World's Crisis.

SPIRITUALISM.

Rapping spirits, or withcraft; or, to use Scripture language, seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils, shall appear in the latter times. 1 Tim. 4: 1, 2;—"Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils; speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron," etc. False teachers, false Christs, and false prophets are prophesied of in the Scriptures, and we have had them in the world for many ages; and we have them now. They appear to us in a new garb; they are generally called rapping spirits. It appears not very unlike to European witchcraft, which was universally believed in until the sixteenth century, and is now discoverable in most parts of the earth. That witches and wizards have been found among men, is abundantly plain from Scripture. Let me cite you to a few passages as proof on this point.

The first that we notice is found in Lev 19: 31. "Regard not them that have familiar spirits, neither seek after wizards to be defiled by them; I am the Lord your God." In Deut. 18: 10–12, we have further proof. "There shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch, or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer. For (the prophet says) all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord."

It is said in 2 Chron. 33: 6, that Manasseh "caused his children to pass through the fire in the valley of the son of Hinnom: also he observed times, and used enchantments, and used witchcraft, and dealt with a familiar spirit and with wizards: he wrought much evil in the sight of the Lord, to provoke him to anger." By the Jewish law, such persons were put to death; perhaps if the law were such now, it would be a good thing. Ex. 22: 18. Lev. 20: 27.—"Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live." A man or a woman that hath a familiar spirit, or that is a wizard, shall be surely put to death; they shall stone them with stones; their blood shall be upon them." Witchcraft was looked upon in olden times as a very great crime. It excluded from the kingdom of God. Gal. 5: 20. It is mentioned here with a catalogue of other evils, saying, such shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

It is a great sin to place any confidence in persons who profess these powers; or to honor or aid them, by seeking them to interpret dreams, tell fortunes, discover stolen goods, etc. Those who thus consult them are abhorred of God. Lev. 20: 6.—"And the soul that turneth after such as have familiar spirits, and after wizards, to go a whoring after them, I will even set my face against that soul, and will cut him off from among his people." Nahum 3: 4; Micah 5: 12. Please read and understand, and be made wise unto salvation.

May the Lord help all Advent believers to resist the devil, by submitting themselves truly to God. There is real safety; no where else. Yours in love for the truth,

P. Tandy.

For the World's Crisis.

COME!

"Ho! every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat, yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price."

How many at the present time turn a deaf ear to this gracious invitation. They spend their money for that which is not bread, and their labor for that which satisfieth not. They heed not our Savior's words,—Come unto me. Moments, hours and days, glide swiftly by. Death may soon overtake us. The judgment is not far distant. In such an hour as we think not "the Son of man cometh." We are commanded to lay up our treasure in heaven, "not on earth." We are to trust our all in Jesus' hands. "Come! and let him that heareth say, Come! and let him that is athirst come; and whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."

Sinner, do not reject offered mercy, but listen to the invitation,—Come! Christian friends, let us be steadfast in well doing. May we as humble servants of Jesus turn to the word of God, and carefully read the words of Christ, treasuring them up in our hearts, and by the grace of God we may get wisdom, and learn obedience, that we may behold our Savior in the glory of his coming. Our tarry here will not be long. The night is far spent, the day is at hand, when "the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works." We hope to meet him with joy, having our loins girded about, and our lights burning. We hope to hear him speak our worthless name, saying, "Well done!" E. L. H.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

TREATMENT OF PERSONS APPARENTLY DROWNED.

This is a question of the highest consequence to humanity. Many lives are lost for the want of knowledge on this subject. In the first column of Chambers Information for the people some directions are found. As neither a competent physician nor book treating on this subject are at hand in many instances, it may not therefore be considered out of place to quote from the above named work, as death from drowning is by no means a rare occurrence. Sometimes persons exposed to death from water, designedly or by accident, are discovered before life is completely extinct, who, upon proper application may be saved from death. Many persons may be drowned merely from struggling and throwing up their hands. . . . The deprivation of air is now understood to be the true cause of death. . . . Little water is found to enter the stomach. It is the collapse of the lungs from the want of air which weighs down the body, and causes it to rest below the surface till the formation of gases of putrefaction again lightens and raises it.

The phenomena attending the extinction or cessation of life by submersion in water are of importance as regulating the attempt that may be made to restore the vital spark. It is impossible to say at what distance of time after submersion these attempts will be fruitless. A person has been found irrecoverable after being four minutes in water, and many have been restored after submersion for twenty minutes, and even for half an hour. Much depends upon the treatment applied. Misled by the notion that the body was in all cases gorged with water, people were wont to hold up the drowned by the heels, roll them about, and use other means calculated to destroy all chances of recovery. The true remedies in such cases are few and simple. The first object is the restoration of animal heat. For this purpose the wet clothes are to be removed without delay, and the body, after being well dried, is to be surrounded with warm air, for which purpose every humane society should have a portable warm air bath. The heat should at first be moderate, and gently increased. In the absence of the warm air bath, the body should be laid in a well heated bed, or blankets, and bottles of hot water laid to their feet and arm-pits. A warming-pan or heated bricks should be passed over the body, or gentle friction exercised with other warm substances. Meanwhile, by means of a pipe or bellows, continual though gentle attempts should be made to excite respiration artificially; and if the apparatus be at hand, slight shocks of electricity should be kept up at the same time. If there be any signs of returning life, such as sighing or convulsive twitching, a vein may be opened. The throat may be tickled to excite a propensity to vomit, and a teaspoonful of warm water administered to test the power of swallowing. If it exists, a table spoonful of warm diluted wine or brandy may be given. Even if no vestige of returning animation be discovered, these means of recovery should be persisted in for three or four hours."

THE SMOKER.

Of the three modes of using tobacco, smoking is that which seems to have insinuated itself extensively among the young men of our community. This practice impairs the natural taste and relish for food, lessens the appetite, and weakens the power of the stomach.

Tobacco, employed in this way, being drawn in with the vital breath, conveys its poisonous influence into every part of the lungs. Those organs, by the countless number of cells which form their internal structure, have a surface greatly exceeding that of the whole exterior of the body. The lining membrane of these cells has a wonderful absorbent action, by which they suck in the air destined to vivify the blood. If this air is impregnated with the fumes of tobacco, the great extent of surface in which the absorbent action takes place must necessarily produce an impregnation of the blood with the deleterious properties. The noxious fluid becomes entangled in the minute spongy air-cells, and has time to exert its influence on the blood, not in vivifying, but vitiating it. The blood, having imbibed the narcotic principle, circulates it through the whole system, and produces, in consequence, a febrile action in most persons, and especially in those of a delicate habit. The peculiar effects of the narcotic action must, of course, be developed to a greater or a less extent; hence, eruptions on the skin, weakness of the stomach, heart, and lungs. Where there is a tendency to phthisis in the lungs, the debility of these organs, consequent on the use of tobacco in this way, must favor the deposit of tuberculous matter, and thus sow the seed of consumption.—Anti-Tobacco Journal.

CHOLERA.

Those who have watched the pathway of the cholera with its dreadful ravages in time past, are persuaded that it will visit us in North America this season. In view of this fact, many wise and judicious counsels have been given to save the people from its power. The following advice is timely and important. Its victims will be principally:

1. Those who use intoxicating drinks.
2. Those who are not cleanly in their persons and houses.
3. Those who are irregular in their habits, keeping unseasonable hours, eating irregularly, etc.
4. Those living in filthy, dirty localities.

To prepare for cholera.

1. Be scrupulously clean in person, bathing the whole body daily, and keeping the entire clothing clean.
2. Clean thoroughly and whitewash your rooms, outhouses, and premises generally.
3. See that no swill, garbage, or other refuse matter is thrown out either on your lot, street, or alley. Clean up thoroughly your whole premises, in doors and out, and set an example of cleanliness to your neighbors.
4. If your landlord refuses or neglects to do his duty in putting his houses and lots in proper order, report him to the health officer or your visitor in your district.
5. Abstain from all intoxicating drinks, ale and beer, as well as whiskey.
6. Use simple, wholesome food, thoroughly cooked, avoiding stale vegetables or tainted meats. Do not give way to panic; this will increase your danger. Cholera will in most cases yield to skillful treatment if taken in its first stages. Watch for the first symptom, which is usually a diarrhœa. Do not neglect it for a single hour, however mild it may be. Delays are dangerous. Avoid all nostrums and all "cholera medicines;" (most of them will do more harm than good.) Apply at once to some reliable physician. None of our physicians will refuse their services at such a time to the poorest.—Voice.

READ ALOUD.

Reading aloud is one of those exercises that combine mental and muscular effort, and hence has a double advantage. To read aloud well, a person should not only understand the subject, but should hear his own voice, and feel within him that every syllable was distinctly enunciated, while there is an instinct presiding which modulates the voice to the number and distance of the hearers. Every public speaker ought to be able to tell whether he is distinctly heard by the farthest listener in the room; if he is not able to do so, it is from a want of proper judgment and observation.

Common consumption begins uniformly, with imperfect, insufficient breathing; it is the characteristic of the disease that the breath becomes shorter and shorter through weary months, down to the close of life, and whatever counteracts short breathing, whatever promotes deeper inspirations, is curative to that extent, inevitably and under all circumstances. Let any person make the experiment by reading this page aloud, and in less than three minutes the instinct of a long breath will show itself. Reading aloud helps to develop the lungs just as singing does, when properly performed.

This loud reading when properly done, has great agency in inducing vocal power, on the same principle that muscles are strengthened by exercise, those of the voice making organs being no exception to the general rule. Hence in many cases absolute silence diminishes the vocal power, just as the protracted non-use of the Hindoo devotee paralyzes it forever. The general plan in appropriate cases, is to read aloud in a conversational tone, thrice a day, for a minute at a time, increasing a minute every other day, until half an hour is thus spent at a time, which is to be continued until the desired object is accomplished. Managed thus, there is safety and efficiency as a uniform result.

As a means, then, of health, averting consumption, of being social and entertaining in any company, as a means of showing the quality of the mind, let reading aloud be an accomplishment far more indispensable than that of smattering French, or lisping Italian, or dancing cotillions, gallopades, polkas and quadrilles.—Hall's Journal of Health.

For the World's Crisis.

CURE FOR CANCER.

We have reliable authority for stating that a cloth saturated with "American" or unclarified Kerosene oil, and applied to the cancer, will remove it without pain. It has the effect to kill and shrivel the cancer, until it drops out of its place. A friend told us the other day of having seen seventy-five, some large rose cancers, that were removed in this manner. The wet cloth should be worn constantly until the cancer is removed.

L. C. McKinstry.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVE[illegible] GER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..................$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months......$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.00.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address..........$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Postage.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

Rules for Correspondents.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write Private.

Over all business matters, write Business.

Over all articles for the paper, write For the Crisis.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

Private Letters.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word Private on the outside of the envelope.

All persons writing to this office should give distinctly and plainly the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE.

Semi-monthly.

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Payable always in advance.

[illegible]

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, or July, and at no other times. [illegible]

POSTAGE.—[illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

"AND THEY SUNG A NEW SONG."

By faith we hear the glad "new song"
The dear redeemed shall sing;
Blessing and honor, power belong,
To God, to Christ our King!
Louder, yet louder swell the strain,
Their joyful voices pour,—
Worthy the Lamb that once was slain,
The Christ that we adore!

But who are those in spotless white,
That palms of vict'ry bring,
Singing in crowns of glitt'ring light,
"Worthy is Christ, our King!
O! once they cried, "dear Lord, how long
Ere thou'lt avenge our blood?"
This martyred host, this holy throng,
Witness for Jesus stood.

Their robes made white in Jesus' blood,
They bear their Father's name,
They dwell as kings and priests to God,
Forever with the Lamb.
Pain and disease, hunger and thirst,
By them no more are known;
They drink from living streams that burst,
Clear from their Father's throne.

On glorious fruits they feast their eye,
Of life's immortal tree
They that partake shall never die,—
From pain and sickness free.
By faith we join the glad "new song"
The ransomed host shall sing,—
Glory and honor, praise belong
To our Redeemer—King!

East Roxbury, Vt. A. R. McEllister.

For the World's Crisis.

THE IMPENDING CRISIS.

Editor of the World's Crisis: Dear Brother: We have spoken of Spiritualism as a formidable evil and peril, as well as an infallible sign of the last times. A king which it may seek and select to deify, can not and must not be "mighty by his own power," in order to meet the necessity of revelation, but receive exaltation and eminence through concurring systems and forces, headed by the arch inspirer of evil, who seeks to stay the hour of utter ruin, by the most desperate possible expedient. But let us for the present waive this most suggestive and important theme, and in a kind of parenthesis take up a subject previously mentioned, that is, the impending financial peril.

From a late paper, I take a few suggestions indicating an apprehension, only whispered as it were, but impossible to stifle in intelligent minds, of commercial and pecuniary disaster. I quote:

"The London Times talks very seriously of the financial situation in England, and thinks it possible that twelve, fifteen, or twenty per cent. may have to be endured in the bank rate of interest. It says, 'It will be well for all persons pledging themselves to future liabilities, to frame their calculations on the possibility that the storm may overtake them at any instant.'"

The Times refers to large credits having been granted to America, as accounting for the cessation for two months of gold arrivals from that country. England's exportations thither have been on an extraordinary scale, while in respect to the grain trade, Russia, Germany and France have almost entirely driven her from competition. In 1863, America sent to Europe nearly eleven hundred million pounds of wheat and flour, while in the year just past only a little over one-ninth of this amount was sent. And of that new source of wealth, petroleum, less than six thousand tons were shipped in 1865, against more than twenty-nine thousand tons in 1863.

In the continental countries, at the same time, there has been a furore for purchasing U. S. bonds, so that all the riches they have derived from the great increase of their grain traffic, have disappeared from Europe, to be represented by these or analogous securities.

In fact, so delicate and dangerous is the financial situation of many countries, so enormous is the burden of their obligations, that a serious curtailment of revenues any where, must threaten the most alarming consequences. And so mutually interdependent are modern civilized nations, so intimate are their business relations, that embarrassment, derangement, and disaster commencing in one place, must inevitably involve other communities, countries and governments, threatening widespread bankruptcy and ruin. Thus a sudden and great depreciation in the value of our bonds, would be embarrassing, if not disastrous, to the German capitalists and people who have so largely invested in them.

For my part, I am so fully convinced of the reality and magnitude of the peril, that that prince, or power, that has firmness to stand the shock, and influence, and sagacity, adequate to the exigency, will find the sole possible solution of the difficulty, and remedy for the general distress, in an appropriation of the immense wealth of church establishments, of which the Catholic is conspicuously preeminent in resources and perquisites. Time will show.

And meanwhile, let us be prepared by the word of God and prayer, for every crisis and trial, and understand the signs of the times. Let none suppose all the calamities hidden in the thickening cloud of judgment, must come before that solemn midnight hour, when like a thunderbolt the Lord of heaven shall sweep into our system and our atmosphere, and making the circuit of the globe, shout the mighty call of, "Rise ! ye dead" ! and,

"Mount, ye ready saints, on swift wings into glory!"

"The day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night." What if it come before all these chief and near tribulations! What if its coming is necessarily and infallibly precedent to the commotions, revolutions, confederations, judgments which finish up the present dispensation! Nay, who dare affirm that the rapid succession and tremendous accumulation of evils, perils, agitations and agonies, with jars and portents and terrors in nature, with meteors, and showers of fire, with the thunder, and flame, and smoke of shattered planets, with the sulphur scent of strange combustions, and the hissing fury of eruptions, with ashes and artillery storms of volcanic stones, with the noise of cannon and the shouts and tramp of armed men, and the thunder of cavalry hoofs, with ominous sights and sounds in the sky, a sackcloth sable sun, and moon blood red and aghast,—who dare affirm that all this train of tempests and terrors is aught else than the day of judgment, and perdition of ungodly men?

The above, which was written some two or three months since, in continuation of a previous article in the Crisis, and whose transmission was deferred because unfinished, may perhaps not inappropriately be forwarded, in view of the striking verification of the hint which it embodies, in the current intelligence from England,—opulent, aristocratic, debt-burdened, and guilty England. And ere this sees light, the contagion of commercial crashes and mighty bankruptcies may have already involved other nations not only in frenzied apprehensions, but appalling disasters.

Dismissing for the time this pregnant theme, whose elucidation will be made obvious and perfect by events, let us refer for a moment to Mr. Shimeall's new book,—The Political Economy of Prophecy." This well known and able author, and expositor of prophecy, gives the emphatic confirmation of his testimony in this interesting volume, to the identity of Louis Napoleon as the seventh revived head of the apocalyptic wild beast. The book is truly argumentative, and if marked somewhat by the positiveness which rather peculiarly characterizes prophetic interpreters, is nevertheless critical, logical, and able.

Believing, as we most heartily do, in the impregnable correctness and fidelity to the mind of the Spirit of the interpretative characterization of the French Emperor as "the wilful king," and inevitably successful aspirant after sovereignty on earth, we are glad of this and all kindred testimony tending to enlighten the children of God on this exceedingly important subject. It is true, there is still great and seemingly invincible incredulity in regard to this or any other Napoleonic headship of the beast. But the logic of events at least will possess inexorable demonstration.

Mr. Shimeall's book does not differ from Baxter's in regard to the grand conclusion to which the course of argument compels the unbiassed and prayerful mind. The reasoning is much the same in each. The new book is more cautious and rigid in its analysis and application of Scripture, excluding some of the prophetic passages in Daniel which Mr. Baxter applies to Napoleon. But it distinctly sustains the view of the league with the Jews, the choice of kings by elective franchise in Europe, the impending terrible tribulation, as well as the prophetic or interpretative scheme of the millenarians. May God bless this new work of our brother to the everlasting welfare of thousands, and the glory of his own great name.

GREAT DIVERSITIES OF INTERPRETATION.

I must confess that it is painful to see the exceedingly numerous and diverse interpretations of propbecy which are constantly occurring in the journey of religious and prophetic reading. True, this is not so bad as the almost universal silence of the more popular and post-millennial religious journalism. But it is rather astonishing to see the multitudinous variations in exposition. The question naturally arises, must this discrepancy be perpetuated? Cannot some system of interpretation be evolved which shall produce unity? Is not the time at hand when obvious developments shall so cogently and irresistibly attest the true import of the word, that differences will be greatly reduced in magnitude and number? Modesty should ever characterize the person who takes on him the high office of prophetic interpretation.

Positiveness with error is adopted to do serious injury, and bring the written divine foreordination of august events into ridicule, not merely among the openly profane, but among the learnedly skeptical and the proud votaries of a thousand atheistic systems of philosophy.

Now with great candor and deference let me say, that works like this of Mr. Shimeall, which recognize that colossus, which is to be the last elaboration in Daniel's image, the very sovereignty doomed to be broken by Jesus Christ, rising in our own day, and developing before our own eyes, every step of whose advancement we can carefully watch and accurately trace, must powerfully diminish the tendency to divergency of view among readers and writers on prophecy.

It may be well to mention one peculiarity in Mr. Shimeall's rendering of apocalyptic "zoology," or the beasts rising respectively out of the sea and of the earth. He regards the two as identical in respect to the person denoted, i. e., Napoleon, but discerns and defines the distinction between them as consisting in the difference in their functions. Thus, the beast out of the sea he considers in its seventh, or wounded and healed headship, to be denoted by the Franco-Roman emperorship of Napoleon, and the beast like a lamb, with the voice of a dragon, he thinks is seen in that advanced stage of his development, when he assumes spiritual or ecclesiastical prerogatives, and begins to assert that supremacy which pertains only to God.

This idea is more fully elaborated in the mutation from the seventh to the eighth headship of the ten horned beast, the seventh representing a political and the eighth a spiritual pre-eminence. I did not intend to say even this much on the book, but the greatness of the subject will justify it. Deliberation, acumen, thoroughness—these are qualities which command respect. We believe events will most rapidly and powerfully demonstrate his substantial and practical correctness and fidelity of interpretation. C. Colegrove.

For the World's Crisis.

GOD'S PECULIAR PEOPLE.

John B. Gough is in town to-night, lecturing on "Peculiar People," and no doubt will say many peculiar things, in his peculiar way, which will make people feel peculiarly mirthful. But while all alone here in my quiet room, the lecturer's subject brings to mind a class of human beings who by their profession are God's "peculiar people." I feel solemn and thoughtful.

Classing myself with the pilgrims and strangers (whose peculiarities make them such), I stop to examine and see if we are truly peculiar. Do we indeed differ from the world? Ah! how important it is that we agree with our profession in this respect.

The world cheats, lies, steals, fights, envys, hates, and is full of every evil thing. They love those that love them, and give to those whom they expect to give back to them. Now, if we are God's "peculiar people," we shall not be guilty of these things, but will love our enemies as well as our friends, and "give, hoping to receive nothing again."

And this peculiarity extends into all our ways and doings. It changes the person entirely, inside and out. It cleanses the heart, purifies the affections, and makes men more like their Maker. It regulates women's apparel, and instead of loving the vain, foolish, abominable, shapeless, unbecoming frames, that are made to hang ribbons and flowers and trinkets on, instead of protecting or covering the head, we shall admire and clothe ourselves in "modest apparel," not decking with "gold or costly array." Nor do I believe it is right for mothers to put such foolish things on to their little children; but they should be clothed according to the gospel rule, so long as under the influence of their parents.

O! how much harm is done to the cause of Christ by the unfaithfulness of his followers. Old men just on the verge of the grave, young men and maidens in the strength of their youth, look at the church and world, and by the glaring faults of Christ's professed people are driven from the fold.

The worst of all faults is hypocrisy. O the nobleness of daring to be true. We all have our weaknesses and shortcomings; but there is no mediator for wilful, continued deceit. May God apply this truth to our every heart. "The judgment," I know, will settle everything that men cannot settle; but I do not believe the gospel rule permits brethren to deceive, betray, misjudge, slander and destroy each other without being "reconciled" to each other here. So he that "regardeth iniquity in his heart" will find his prayers hindered. Do not bow before a holy God, my brother or sister, to offer prayer; leave there thy gift before the altar, and confess to that one whom you have talked about, misjudged and deceived. Leave not such work for the judgment, for we are commanded to attend to it here. And when we get the spirit of Jesus we shall indeed be "God's peculiar people, zealous of good works."

Time is short. I want to feed more and more on the bread of life, and drink oftener of the water of life, so that when Jesus comes I shall be a "woman" in spiritual things. How much the church needs "men and women in Christ Jesus," and "nursing fathers and mothers" among the babes in Christ. The weak little lambs bleat on the cold mountains of earth, some of them faint by the way. O for more love to feed Christ's "lambs." The great Shepherd charged his people to take care of the lambs. He left them here among wolves, but, praise his name, he loves them very tenderly yet, and has sent men, and women too, thank God, over the hills, and into the valleys, far and near, to feed the little lambs. They have the same spirit their Master had, and like him love the flock.

Well, in view of coming glory, we can afford to be "peculiar." By and by there will be a peculiar "kingdom under the whole heaven," and God's peculiar people will be there, amid the glory of the immortal land. Let us "search and see if there be any evil way" with us, and seek strength to overcome the world. Lo, when the King comes, he will crown us his forever! Amen.

M. Mathews Weaver.

Westfield, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

INTEGRITY.

It is my intention at the present time to write an article of caution to my Advent brethren—to keep sacred their integrity, in order to withstand those fiery darts that are hurled against us by our adversaries, especially at this trying and stupendous day. Noting the movements around, and even among us, one cannot avoid the conviction that this is a peculiar and trying day to those who advocate the second coming of Christ to judge and cleanse the earth.

We are placed now in the most critical position which it has been ever our lot to occupy; and you will not doubt that very much depends on our integrity in taking advantage of the evolutions in this erratic world. Ease, peace and error in the various denominations seem to rule the day. Ease and peace, to be sure, are not undesirable, I am free to own; but then, look to it that we do not purchase them at too dear a rate. Let us be careful that we do not yield any of the intrinsic principles of immortal truth, in our thirst for a short season of peace; for the pleasures of this world are of short duration.

Here let me observe, we can plainly see among all denominations (as a general thing) that sensual pleasures and amusements reign among them, even to the neglect of their souls' salvation; hence, however we may esteem peace and union, Heaven speaks to us in distinct terms,—Do not sell your birthright for a mess of pottage. Therefore let us make no sacrifice of principle for friendship's offering. Truth is too dear, too costly, and too lovely to be given up for any consideration. Let us make no compromise with any denomination whatever. It will be time enough to relinquish our belief when we are convinced of its error. Howbeit, we pray for union—for every denomination to become of one heart and of one mind. Still I beg to be excused from giving up one iota of divine truth to secure this end; for it is a self-evident truth that "we can not serve two masters." "What concord hath light with darkness?"

I would further say, we feel conscientiously assured that we have that light of revelation—the true word of prophecy, which was revealed from heaven by the Son of God for our admonition and guide. And if we have this light, it behooves us to reveal it to all those who are lying under a cloud of darkness, that they may see the true light of truth that leads to the realms of bliss. I feel happy to say, also, we believe that in our christian faith we have all that is good, and all that is worth preserving. Why, then, should we yield up our faith for a mess of pottage—for a union of friendship which is of so short duration? The moment we give up our faith, the enemy has us.

The gospel we hold to is a sound declaration. It had its beginning in the counsels of Heaven, and it was handed down to us by God's only beloved Son, for the instruction of man. And it also points out a mission for us to perform for the upholding of his kingdom. And as teachers in the school of Christ, we should of course discharge our duties faithfully in speaking the doctrine he hath left in our charge, both by precept and example; not by man-made creeds, but by the instruction and precepts of Him who is the author and finisher of our faith. Hence I would say, Christ's doctrine will outvie and annul the keenest criticism that can be brought against it. Therefore, let us be bold in the cause of Christ's command,—go forth and proclaim his gospel to all those who are under clouds of darkness, despotism and error; that they may be brought to see the true light that shineth brighter and brighter unto the perfect day.

By all means, brethren, let us stand firm in the liberty of the truth, and thus fulfill our mission;—then, when men shall be brought to understand the gospel of Christ in all its bearings, every holy desire will be accomplished and every ardent wish gratified. And the soul knows not how to ask more. This is the height of our mission.

When this is accomplished, we may stand upon a pure foundation, where men can unite, and no where else. Here the christian can bring in his armor to subdue all those enemies that dishonor God and degrade man. And then shall we be prepared for heaven, and nothing short of it. Now, dear reader, my advice to you is to take knowledge of thyself, in and through the teachings of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and see if you are prepared for every duty that is incumbent upon you. And further, to see if you stand on that Rock that can not be removed,—the rock Christ Jesus; for thereon stands the grand criterion of our present peace and future happiness.

In conclusion, my highest prayer and solicitation is, that the rising sun of the gospel of Jesus Christ shall continue its upward and onward course, until it shall arrive to that eternal height for which it was designed.

Fisherville, N. H. J. Elkins.

For the World's Crisis.

THE FREEDMEN'S CALL.

Hail! christian of the favored soil,
Where plenty crowns the laborer's toil,
And freedom's banner waves unfurled,
On you for help we call.
Delivered from the galling chain
That fettered heart and soul and brain,
To no kind ear dared we complain,
Save to the God of all.

We ask not for earth's wealth untold,
Its priceless gems or treasured gold,
Or costly robes of Babel old,
Forbidden by the Lord.
'Tis a more precious boon we crave,
One hitherto denied the slave,—
Oh say, this privilege shall we have
To read God's holy word?

Oft we have heard of Jesus' love,
And how he left the realms above
On this benighted earth to rove,
And do his Father's will;
And how, his work on earth all done,
He went up to his heavenly home,
Where, seated on his Father's throne,
He pleads for sinners still.

Now we would read, that we may know
If these great truths are really so,
If Christ all this did undergo
For black as well as white.
And we would read the gracious words
He spake unto the wondering crowds,
How he the sick and lame restored,
The blind received their sight.

Oh, brother of a fairer race,
Deny us not the means of grace,
Raise us from this benighted place,
The estate of men to fill.
And oh, hath not the Crucified
For your dark-skinned brother died?
Then can it ever be denied
That we are human still?

Our hearts are beating loyally,
All grateful for our liberty,
While praise to Him who made us free,
Ascends from joyful hearts;
Oh, never did the thirsty soul
So long for water fresh and cool,
All sparkling from the clear bright pool,
As we for freedom's rights.

Come, brother, from your Northern home,
And gentle, pitying sister, come,
Oh! help dispel this night of gloom,
That darkens all our way.
Little reward have we to give,
But when the dead in Christ shall live,
A recompense you will receive,—
"Well done," the Lord will say.

Farmington, N. H. Martha S. Horne.

For the World's Crisis.

OUR KEEPSAKE.

"Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you."—John 13: 27.

It is very natural for friends, when about to separate for a great length of time, to give each other something as a token of their love, so that when the eye rests upon that token, the giver is brought to mind; and this we hold dear just in proportion as we value the giver. Now Jesus Christ, the best friend that man ever had, when about to go away, gave each of his friends "Peace." This he wants them to keep until his return. By this they are ever to keep in mind that the giver is the Prince of Peace. The more they love the giver, the more of this keepsake will they have; and it will continue to increase, until it will become like a river, widening and deepening as it progresses, until, as the Psalmist has said, "Great peace have they that love thy law, and nothing shall offend them"; and as Isaiah has it, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee, because he trusteth in thee." And for this object, the great Prince of Peace would have us cast our cares upon him, because he careth for us; and would have us "careful (or anxious) for nothing, but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God; and the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and mind through Jesus Christ." Here is real peace for the poor, for they have the "promise of the life that now is, and that which is to come"; for God has "chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to those that love him."

Here is peace for the despised: "For ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called; but God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are, that no flesh should glory in his presence."

Here is peace for the friendless: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends; ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you." "He that toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye." "I have loved you with an everlasting love." "We are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones." Here is a friend that "sticketh closer than a brother."

There is peace for those that mourn, if they that sleep sleep in Jesus. "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption; it is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power." "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

There is peace for the tempted. "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man; but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way of escape, that ye may be able to bear it." "For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin." "For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted." So let us ever trust in God and his promises, and never lose our Keepsake, for "Earth has no sorrow that heaven cannot heal."

Laura Ann Wheeler.

Hawley, Mass.

☞ A false friend is like a shadow on a sun dial, which appears in fine weather, but vanishes at the approach of a cloud.

THE APOCALYPSE.

Dr. Seiss, of Philadelphia, who is a firm believer in the immediate coming of Christ, is giving a course of lectures on the Apocalypse. Eight of these lectures have been published. We consider them the best without any exception, that we have ever seen on the subject. These eight lectures are an explanation of the first three chapters. The following is an extract from his seventh lecture. When speaking of the import of the letters to the seven churches, he says:—

1. Viewing Epistles, then, as descriptive of the entire church, I find in them this item of fact: that the professed church, as pronounced upon by Christ himself, is a mixed society, embracing interminglings of good and evil from its beginning to the end. Whether we take the seven churches as significant of seven successive or as seven co-existing phases, they must needs reach to the end, and so depicture the entire church. And as there is not one of these Epistles in which the presence of evil is not recognized, so there can be no period in the earthly history of the church in which it is without bad admixtures. Whether the Ephesian church extends, as in some sense it must, from the apostolic era to the consummation, or whether it relates mainly to the first period alone, and the Laodicean the last, we will still have a vast deal which the Lord the Judge of the church condemns, stretching its dark image from the commencement to the close. There were fallen ones, and some whose first works had been abandoned, and some giving place to the base deeds of the Nicolaitanes, and some false ones claiming to be apostles and were not, even among the warm, patient, fervent, enduring and faithful Ephesians. In Smyrna were faithless blasphemers, and those of Satan's synagogue, as well as faithful, suffering ones, and those whom Christ is to crown in heaven. In Pergamos were those who denied the faith, and followed the treacherous teachings of Balaam, and the doctrines of the detested Nicolaitanes, as well as those who held fast the name of Jesus, and witnessed for him unto death. In Thyatira, we find a debauching and idolatrous Jezebel and her death-worthy children, and multitudes of spiritual adulterers, as well as those whose works, and faith, and charity, and patience are noted with favor, and who had not been drawn into Satan's depths. In Sardis there was incompleteness, deadness, defalcation, need for repentance, and threatened judgment, as well as names of those who had not defiled their garments. In Philadelphia we discover "the synagogue of Satan," falsifiers, those who had settled themselves upon the earth, and such as had not kept Christ's word, as well as such as should be kept from the sifting trial, and advanced to celestial crowns. And in Laodicea there was found disgusting lukewarmness, empty profession, and base self-conceit, with Christ himself excluded.

Never, indeed, has there been a sowing of God on earth, but it has been oversown by Satan; or a growth for Christ, which the plantings of the wicked one did not mingle with and hinder, God sowed good seed in Paradise; but when it came to the harvest, the principal product was tares. At earth's first altar appeared the murderer with the saint—Cain with Abel. God had his sons before the flood; but more numerous were the children of the wicked one. And in all ages and dispensations, the plants of grace have ever found the weeds upspringing by their sides, their roots intertwining, and their stalks and leaves and fruits putting forth together. The church is not an exception, and never will be, as long as the present dispensation lasts. Even in its first and purest periods, as the Scriptural accounts attest, it was intermixed with what pertained not to it. There was a Judas among its apostles; an Annias and a Simon Magus among its first converts; a Demas and a Diotrephes among its first public servants. And as long as it continues in this world, Christ will have his antichrist, and the temple of God its men of sin. He who sets out to find a perfect church, in which there are no unworthy elements and no disfigurations, proposes to himself a hopeless search. Go where he will, worship where he may, in any country, in any age, he will soon find tares among the wheat, sin mixing in with all earthly holiness; self-deceivers, hypocrites and unchristians in every assembly of saints; Satan insinuating himself into every gathering of the sons of God to present themselves before the Lord. No preaching, however pure; no discipline, however strict or prudent; no watchfulness, however searching and faithful, can ever make it different. Paul told the Thessalonians that the day of the Lord should not come until there came a falling away first, and an extraordinary manifestation of sin and guilt in the church itself; and assured them that that embodied apostasy was to live and work on until the Lord himself should come and destroy it by the manifestation of his own personal presence. The Savior himself has taught us, that in the gospel field wheat and tares are to be found; that it is forbidden to pluck up the bad, lest the good also be damaged; and that both are to "grow together until the harvest," which is the end of the economy—the winding up of the present order of things—"the end of the world."

For the World's Crisis.

SPIRITUALISM.

Rapping spirits, or withcraft; or, to use Scripture language, seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils, shall appear in the latter times. 1 Tim. 4: 1, 2;—"Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils; speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron," etc. False teachers, false Christs, and false prophets are prophesied of in the Scriptures, and we have had them in the world for many ages; and we have them now. They appear to us in a new garb; they are generally called rapping spirits. It appears not very unlike to European witchcraft, which was universally believed in until the sixteenth century, and is now discoverable in most parts of the earth. That witches and wizards have been found among men, is abundantly plain from Scripture. Let me cite you to a few passages as proof on this point.

The first that we notice is found in Lev 19: 31. "Regard not them that have familiar spirits, neither seek after wizards to be defiled by them; I am the Lord your God." In Deut. 18: 10–12, we have further proof. "There shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch, or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer. For (the prophet says) all that do these things are an abomination unto the Lord."

It is said in 2 Chron. 33: 6, that Manasseh "caused his children to pass through the fire in the valley of the son of Hinnom: also he observed times, and used enchantments, and used witchcraft, and dealt with a familiar spirit and with wizards: he wrought much evil in the sight of the Lord, to provoke him to anger." By the Jewish law, such persons were put to death; perhaps if the law were such now, it would be a good thing. Ex. 22: 18. Lev. 20: 27.—"Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live. A man or a woman that hath a familiar spirit, or that is a wizard, shall be surely put to death; they shall stone them with stones; their blood shall be upon them." Witchcraft was looked upon in olden times as a very great crime. It excluded from the kingdom of God. Gal. 5: 20. It is mentioned here with a catalogue of other evils, saying, such shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

It is a great sin to place any confidence in persons who profess these powers; or to honor or aid them, by seeking them to interpret dreams, tell fortunes, discover stolen goods, etc. Those who thus consult them are abhorred of God. Lev. 20: 6,—"And the soul that turneth after such as have familiar spirits, and after wizards, to go a whoring after them, I will even set my face against that soul, and will cut him off from among his people." Nahum 3: 4; Micah 5: 12. Please read and understand, and be made wise unto salvation.

May the Lord help all Advent believers to resist the devil, by submitting themselves truly to God. There is real safety; no where else. Yours in love for the truth,

P. Tandy.

For the World's Crisis.

COME!

"Ho! every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat, yes, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price."

How many at the present time turn a deaf ear to this gracious invitation. They spend their money for that which is not bread, and their labor for that which satisfieth not. They heed not our Savior's words,—Come unto me. Moments, hours and days, glide swiftly by. Death may soon overtake us. The judgment is not far distant. In such an hour as we think not "the Son of man cometh." We are commanded to lay up our treasure in heaven, "not on earth." We are to trust our all in Jesus' hands. "Come! and let him that heareth say, Come! and let him that is athirst come; and whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."

Sinner, do not reject offered mercy, but listen to the invitation,—Come! Christian friends, let us be steadfast in well doing. May we as humble servants of Jesus turn to the word of God, and carefully read the words of Christ, treasuring them up in our hearts, and by the grace of God we may get wisdom, and learn obedience, that we may behold our Savior in the glory of his coming. Our tarry here will not be long. The night is far spent, the day is at hand, when "the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works." We hope to meet him with joy, having our loins girded about, and our lights burning. We hope to hear him speak our worthless name, saying, "Well done!"

E. L. H.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

TREATMENT OF PERSONS APPARENTLY DROWNED.

This is a question of the highest consequence to humanity. Many lives are lost for the want of knowledge on this subject. In the first column of Chambers Information for the people some directions are found. As neither a competent physician nor book treating on this subject are at hand in many instances, it may not therefore be considered out of place to quote from the above named work, as death from drowning is by no means a rare occurrence. Sometimes persons exposed to death from water, designedly or by accident, are discovered before life is completely extinct, who, upon proper application may be saved from death. Many persons may be drowned merely from struggling and throwing up their hands. . . . The deprivation of air is now understood to be the true cause of death. . . . Little water is found to enter the stomach. It is the collapse of the lungs from the want of air which weighs down the body, and causes it to rest below the surface till the formation of gases of putrefaction again lightens and raises it.

The phenomena attending the extinction or cessation of life by submersion in water are of importance as regulating the attempt that may be made to restore the vital spark. It is impossible to say at what distance of time after submersion these attempts will be fruitless. A person has been found irrecoverable after being four minutes in water, and many have been restored after submersion for twenty minutes, and even for half an hour. Much depends upon the treatment applied. Misled by the notion that the body was in all cases gorged with water, people were wont to hold up the drowned by the heels, roll them about, and use other means calculated to destroy all chances of recovery. The true remedies in such cases are few and simple. The first object is the restoration of animal heat. For this purpose the wet clothes are to be removed without delay, and the body, after being well dried, is to be surrounded with warm air, for which purpose every humane society should have a portable warm air bath. The heat should at first be moderate, and gently increased. In the absence of the warm air bath, the body should be laid in a well heated bed, or blankets, and bottles of hot water laid to their feet and arm-pits. A warming-pan or heated bricks should be passed over the body, or gentle friction exercised with other warm substances. Meanwhile, by means of a pipe or bellows, continual though gentle attempts should be made to excite respiration artificially; and if the apparatus be at hand, slight shocks of electricity should be kept up at the same time. If there be any signs of returning life, such as sighing or convulsive twitching, a vein may be opened. The throat may be tickled to excite a propensity to vomit, and a teaspoonful of warm water administered to test the power of swallowing. If it exists, a table spoonful of warm diluted wine or brandy may be given. Even if no vestige of returning animation be discovered, these means of recovery should be persisted in for three or four hours."

THE SMOKER.

Of the three modes of using tobacco, smoking is that which seems to have insinuated itself extensively among the young men of our community. This practice impairs the natural taste and relish for food, lessens the appetite, and weakens the power of the stomach.

Tobacco, employed in this way, being drawn in with the vital breath, conveys its poisonous influence into every part of the lungs. Those organs, by the countless number of cells which form their internal structure, have a surface greatly exceeding that of the whole exterior of the body. The lining membrane of these cells has a wonderful absorbent action, by which they suck in the air destined to vivify the blood. If this air is impregnated with the fumes of tobacco, the great extent of surface in which the absorbent action takes place must necessarily produce an impregnation of the blood with the deleterious properties. The noxious fluid becomes entangled in the minute spongy air-cells, and has time to exert its influence on the blood, not in vivifying, but vitiating it. The blood, having imbibed the narcotic principle, circulates it through the whole system, and produces, in consequence, a febrile action in most persons, and especially in those of a delicate habit. The peculiar effects of the narcotic action must, of course, be developed to a greater or a less extent; hence, eruptions on the skin, weakness of the stomach, heart, and lungs. Where there is a tendency to phthisis in the lungs, the debility of these organs, consequent on the use of tobacco in this way, must favor the deposit of tuberculous matter, and thus sow the seed of consumption.—Anti-Tobacco Journal.

CHOLERA.

Those who have watched the pathway of the cholera with its dreadful ravages in time past, are persuaded that it will visit us in North America this season. In view of this fact, many wise and judicious counsels have been given to save the people from its power. The following advice is timely and important. Its victims will be principally:

1. Those who use intoxicating drinks.
2. Those who are not cleanly in their persons and houses.
3. Those who are irregular in their habits, keeping unseasonable hours, eating irregularly, etc.
4. Those living in filthy, dirty localities.

To prepare for cholera.

1. Be scrupulously clean in person, bathing the whole body daily, and keeping the entire clothing clean.
2. Clean thoroughly and whitewash your rooms, outhouses, and premises generally.
3. See that no swill, garbage, or other refuse matter is thrown out either on your lot, street, or alley. Clean up thoroughly your whole premises, in doors and out, and set an example of cleanliness to your neighbors.
4. If your landlord refuses or neglects to do his duty in putting his houses and lots in proper order, report him to the health officer or your visitor in your district.
5. Abstain from all intoxicating drinks, ale and beer, as well as whiskey.
6. Use simple, wholesome food, thoroughly cooked, avoiding stale vegetables or tainted meats. Do not give way to panic; this will increase your danger. Cholera will in most cases yield to skillful treatment if taken in its first stages. Watch for the first symptom, which is usually a diarrhœa. Do not neglect it for a single hour, however mild it may be. Delays are dangerous. Avoid all nostrums and all "cholera medicines;" (most of them will do more harm than good.) Apply at once to some reliable physician. None of our physicians will refuse their services at such a time to the poorest.—Voice.

READ ALOUD.

Reading aloud is one of those exercises that combine mental and muscular effort, and hence has a double advantage. To read aloud well, a person should not only understand the subject, but should hear his own voice, and feel within him that every syllable was distinctly enunciated, while there is an instinct presiding which modulates the voice to the number and distance of the hearers. Every public speaker ought to be able to tell whether he is distinctly heard by the farthest listener in the room; if he is not able to do so, it is from a want of proper judgment and observation.

Common consumption begins uniformly with imperfect, insufficient breathing; it is the characteristic of the disease that the breath becomes shorter and shorter through weary months, down to the close of life, and whatever counteracts short breathing, whatever promotes deeper inspirations, is curative to that extent, inevitably and under all circumstances. Let any person make the experiment by reading this page aloud, and in less than three minutes the instinct of a long breath will show itself. Reading aloud helps to develop the lungs just as singing does, when properly performed.

This loud reading when properly done, has great agency in inducing vocal power, on the same principle that muscles are strengthened by exercise, those of the voice making organs being no exception to the general rule. Hence in many cases absolute silence diminishes the vocal power, just as the protracted non-use of the Hindoo devotee paralyzes it forever. The general plan in appropriate cases, is to read aloud in a conversational tone, thrice a day, for a minute at a time, increasing a minute every other day, until half an hour is thus spent at a time, which is to be continued until the desired object is accomplished. Managed thus, there is safety and efficiency as a uniform result.

As a means, then, of health, averting consumption, of being social and entertaining in any company, as a means of showing the quality of the mind, let reading aloud be an accomplishment far more indispensable than that of smattering French, or lisping Italian, or dancing cotillions, gallopades, polkas and quadrilles.—Hall's Journal of Health.

For the World's Crisis.

CURE FOR CANCER.

We have reliable authority for stating that a cloth saturated with "American" or unclarified Kerosene oil, and applied to the cancer, will remove it without pain. It has the effect to kill and shrivel the cancer, until it drops out of its place. A friend told us the other day of having seen seventy-five, some large rose cancers, that were removed in this manner. The wet cloth should be worn constantly until the cancer is removed.

L. C. McKinstry.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVE[illegible]GER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance................$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$1[illegible]
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address..........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Postage.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

Rules for Correspondents.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write Private.

Over all business matters, write Business.

Over all articles for the paper, write For the Crisis.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

Private Letters.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word Private on the outside of the envelope.

All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE.

Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Payable always in advance.

[illegible]

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, or July, and at no other times. [illegible]

POSTAGE.—[illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, [illegible] THE YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 562. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JULY 11, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 17.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at

157 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BANNER OF LOVE.

"Thou hast given a banner to them that fear thee, that it may be displayed because of the truth."—Ps. 60: 4.
"And his banner over me was love."—Song. 2: 4.
"We will rejoice in thy salvation, and in the name of our God we will set up our banners."—Ps. 20: 5.

"O, say can you see by the" eye of your faith,
What the Lord hath revealed to his saints by his Spirit?
Do you take to your heart what the Holy Book saith
Of the blessed "new earth" which "the meek shall inherit,"
Where their Savior will be, and their God they shall see,
And from "sorrow and sighing" forever be free,
Where the banner of love shall eternally wave
O'er the home of the blessed whom Jesus will save?

Do you claim in that city a mansion of rest,
Away from these scenes of turmoil and confusion,
That darken our land from the east to the west?
Does a "better land" cheer you? or seems it illusion,
The thought of a home in the kingdom to come,
Where the saints through the fields of sweet Eden shall roam,
And the banner of love shall eternally wave
O'er the kingdom of Christ who is "mighty to save"?

There the numberless host in immaculate white,
Out of "every kindred and people and nation,"
Of whom "the beloved disciple" did write,
"These are they that have come out of great tribulation,—
Shall stand before Him, with the crown, and the palm
Of victory won through the blood of the Lamb,
Whose victorious banner in triumph shall wave,
Proclaiming his conquest of death and the grave.

In the battle of life, mighty Leader, near Thee
We will quail at no danger, but trust thy direction;
"Thou hast given a banner to them that fear thee,"
So for truth and the right we may claim thy protection.
To thee we look up, and since thou art our hope,
"In the name of our God we'll our banners set up,"
And at last to thy praise we will lift up our voice,
And "in thy salvation" forever "rejoice"!

So. Wilbraham. LUCY M. CHAFFEE.

For the World's Crisis.

1 PETER IV. 17.

"What shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel?"

We trust a few passages of Scripture, taken in connection with each other, may serve to make the matter plain and satisfactory to all, with regard to what sort of a disposition God shall make of the finally impenitent.

Prop. 1st. "The wicked are to be judged." Matt. 12: 36.—"But I say unto you, that every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment." The word here rendered "account," is "logos," which signifies "a saying," "a statement," "an account;" hence all the wicked must give a verbal account for the deeds done in the body. 2 Cor. 5. 10.—"For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." Acts 17: 31.—"Because he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead."

Prop. 2d. "Christ," the man whom he hath ordained, "did not come to judge the world at his first advent." John 12: 47.—"I came not to judge the world, but to save the world." But will at his second. 2 Tim. 4: 1.—"I charge thee, therefore, before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and kingdom." "Therefore, judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come." 1 Cor. 4: 5.

Prop. 3d. "They are not punished before they are judged." 2 Pet. 2: 9.—"The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished." Job 21: 30.—"The wicked is reserved to the day of destruction; they shall be brought forth to the day of wrath." Then, of course, as "the dead know not any thing" (Eccl. 9: 5) the wicked must be raised from the dead in order to be judged and punished; for they are not punished before they are judged, and they are not judged "till the Lord come." Hence we read: "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."—1 Cor. 15: 22. "The hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation."—John 5: 28, 29.

If this is the order of things, the idea that men go to hell at death is an erroneous one, reversing the order of God, and making void his word by their traditions. The idea of "immediate punishment after death" can only be inferred from one passage, and that is a parable. Some men will hug that parable to their bosom tighter than Abraham does Lazarus. Should a parable be brought against "plain principles," and declarations that teach that dead men are dead, and that the wicked are reserved to "the day of judgment to be punished."

If this is the order of things, the doctrine of the "non-resurrection of the wicked" cannot be true; for if the wicked are reserved to "the day of judgment to be punished," and the judgment is not till the Lord comes, of course they must be raised in order to be judged and punished.

Prop. 4th "Their punishment is endless." Matt 25: 46. "These shall go away into everlasting (aionois) punishment, but the righteous into life eternal (aionios)." It will be discovered that "everlasting" in the first clause is from the same word in the original as "eternal" in the last. Therefore the punishment of the wicked must continue as long as the life of the righteous, which is endless.

Prop. 5th. "Their punishment is death."—Rom. 6: 23. "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." Here "death" stands in opposition to "eternal life;" hence literal death must be implied. Rom. 8: 13.—"For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live." But all die the first death, whether they live after the flesh or not; hence the death here brought to view must be the second death: and as all will admit that the "life" spoken of is literal, the death must be literal also.

But it is contended that the soul is the accountable part; hence it is the soul that commits sin, and the soul being "immortal," cannot die. Very true; if the soul is immortal, it cannot die; but if then the soul can die, it most assuredly proves that it is not immortal. Ezek. 18: 4.—"The soul that sinneth IT SHALL DIE." That's what God says about it; who knows best? James 5: 20.—"He that converteth a sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death."

"Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." J. W. TAYLOR.

Chatham Valley, Pa.

For the World's Crisis.

WHO IS ON THE LORD'S SIDE?

There are but two sides, any way; the right side and the wrong; the Lord's side and the devil's side; the side of truth, and the side of error. We are the servants of God, or we are the servants of Satan; for the Savior says we cannot serve two masters; we must love the one and hate the other; we must hold to the one and despise the other; "ye cannot serve God and mammon." The Lord further informs us, that "ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you." Now, what has he commanded us to do? Jesus instructed his disciples to fear him (with a filial fear), and keep his commandments, which is the whole duty of man. Are we doing it? Are we loving God with all the heart, and our neighbor as ourselves? He says, too, "Be ye holy, for I am holy." Without holiness, "no man shall see the Lord." I suppose that means we cannot see the Lord in peace without holiness.

Again, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." I don't suppose that Father requires us to be perfect gods, or perfect angels; but perfect christians. Is it more than our meat and drink to do the will of God? If so, we are on the Lord's side. The good Lord requires us (as his disciples) to come out from the world, and be separate, and touch not the unclean thing. Are we doing as he requires? Let every one answer this question for himself. Christ says, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me."

Now let me humbly ask you, my dear brethren and sisters (including myself), are we as "poor in spirit," as contrite for our sins, as meek of heart, as he requires? Do we "hunger and thirst after righteousness," are we "merciful," are we "pure in heart," are we "peace makers," are we so good that we are "persecuted for righteousness' sake?" "Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake." If these things are true of us, then we are on the Lord's side. Who is on the Lord's side? P. TANDY.

For the World's Crisis.

JESUS.

When I contemplate the character of this dear friend, so noble and lovely, I am ashamed that I bear the image so faintly. He who went about doing good all his life, performing miracles for the benefit of others, would not perform any for his own benefit or necessities, —enduring all things with unsurpassing patience and meekness; no murmur escapes his lips. Angels, astonished, minister to his wants and sufferings, soothing him in the hour of distress. Hear that submissive prayer,—"Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me; nevertheless, not my will but thine be done." See him toiling up the side of Calvary, fainting beneath the cruel load, suffering the most painful of deaths to redeem a guilty world; forsaken in that trying hour by those who professed to be his best and dearest friends. He has passed through every thing that human nature is capable of suffering; endured every temptation that flesh is exposed to; proved himself worthy of the homage of his people.

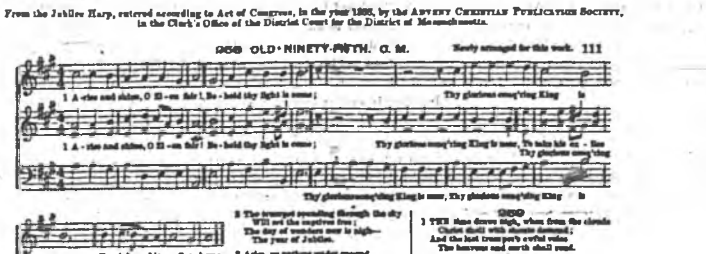
What a gift! a REDEEMER; one who is able to save unto the uttermost. "He that spared not his own son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him freely give us all things?" Dear Savior, grant that I may be a partaker of thy Spirit, and of that love which thinketh no evil, which endureth all things, and hopeth all things.

"Oh! who could bear life's stormy doom,
Did not his wing of love
Come brightly wafting through the gloom,
Our peace-branch from above?"

West Brattleboro, Vt. A. M. STARK.

☞ Let no day pass without a review of God's carriage towards you, and of yours towards him; of mercies and afflictions; of duties, and your frame of heart in them; of your sins, and inclinations to sin. And let God have the glory of what is good.

From the Jubilee Harp, entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1866, by the ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court for the District of Massachusetts.



The above is a specimen page from the "JUBILEE HARP," the new Hymn and Tune Book, soon to be issued by the Society, and now in the hands of the printer. It will be ready in a few weeks, and, we trust, will be received with general favor by the household of faith, waiting for redemption.

THE SABBATH.

A brother asks, "Is it not just as much an act of disobedience in us to observe the first day of the week, as being holy to the Lord, when he commands us to observe the seventh, as it would have been for Naaman, the leper, to have gone to some other river when he was commanded to wash in Jordan? I am not a Seventh-day Adventist, but a member of the M. E. church, and an earnest inquirer after all truth"

We would not knowingly pervert the word of the Lord. Our aim is to understand the Bible, and we never hesitate a moment to receive its teachings, because they come in conflict with any of the notions or practices of the age. We do not feel afraid of the truth. It is that which makes us free.

The question asked by our brother is an important one. It has been suggested to our mind, and we doubt not to the minds of many of our readers. Let us consider it candidly. The fourth commandment reads, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work: but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates; for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it."—Ex. 20: 8–11.

What is the essential thing in this command? It is evidently to keep holy one seventh part of the time. Whoever works six days and then keeps as sacred unto the Lord one day, meets the letter and spirit of this command. He keeps the seventh day holy. The proportion of time between the working days and the day of rest is the main thing. It is not necessary to prove that the change of observance, from the last to the first day of the week, was made by competent authority. God worked six days, and then rested. He rested one day, after working six days. He requires of us to do the same. He that works six days, and then observes as holy unto the Lord the day following, keeps the seventh day. Should he work nine days and observe the tenth as a day of rest, as was attempted by the French Infidels in the bloody days of the revolution, he would abrogate the Sabbath. That God did not intend that the same absolute time should be observed as the Sabbath, is evident: for, as he made the world, it is impossible. Time varies with every variation of longitude. At the very moment while we are worshiping God on Sabbath evening, the christians in China, who design to keep as Sabbath the same day as ourselves, are engaging in secular avocations.

Pitcairn's Island, in the South Seas, was settled by mutineers of the ship Bounty. They took with them some Otaheitan men and women. In about ten years, all the men except one came to an untimely end. He, a native-born Englishman, was left alone upon a distant island with five or six heathen women, and twenty fatherless children from five to fifteen years old. His name was John Adams. He had a theoretical knowledge of the true God, but had led a very wicked life. He saw that, in all probability, these children would grow up idolaters. He was deeply affected with the responsibility of his situation. Two alarming dreams so disturbed him that he could neither eat nor sleep. He found a copy of the Bible that had been saved from the ship. He commenced reading it. He prayed in secret three times a day. He saw his guilt and danger in so clear a light that he almost despaired of pardon. But the Holy Spirit led him to the cross, and he came to Jesus and found pardon and peace. He at once commenced instructing the community in the truths of religion. He taught them to read the Bible, and to fear God. When, years afterward, they were visited by an English ship, they were found to be one of the most moral, pious, happy communities that could be met with on the earth. But they did not keep as Sabbath the same day that the ship's company did, though both intended to keep the same day. John Adams reached the island by sailing from England in one direction, and their visitors in the opposite direction. Had they changed their Sabbath to suit the reckoning of their visitors, another year, if another party had visited them from an opposite direction, they might have changed it again, and so they might keep on changing. Let a person who is strict in the observance of the day which we call Saturday, as the Sabbath, make a voyage around the world in an easterly direction. Let him keep an accurate note of time; when he reaches New York he will find himself keeping the same day for Sabbath that the people there generally observe. What is he to do? Shall he change his day, and for once keep the sixth day instead of the seventh? Was he guilty of the sin of Sabbath breaking while doing the utmost in his power to keep the Sabbath? Was it possible for him to do better than he did? And has God so arranged it that his children cannot keep one of the most important of his ordinances, under circumstances which often do arise, even when they try to the utmost of their ability? The very idea is preposterous; God's words can be kept. We can remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. And our ability to do this does not depend upon the fact whether we travel to the east or west, or whether we stay at home.

So, dear brother, if you carefully observe Sunday as a day holy to the Lord; if you abstain from all secular labor and worldly pleasure on that day, "not doing thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words"; if you worship God in spirit and in truth, and love him with all your heart; there is no doubt but that he will accept you, as he has done thousands of others, give you the victory over the world, triumph over death, and an abundant entrance into his everlasting kingdom. . . . But if you conscientiously think you ought to observe Saturday as a day holy to the Lord; if you observe it with all strictness and fidelity, I do not think the Lord will condemn you. But in a matter of so great importance, uniformity is desirable, if it can be had without a sacrifice of principle. Here the apostle's exhortation applies,—"Let us walk by the same rule." A community brought up to observe both days is, in the second generation, as we have personally witnessed, quite likely to observe neither.

We feel a great respect for those who, out of a great desire to please the Lord, subject themselves to all the inconveniences and the reproach arising from keeping Saturday as Sabbath. But, beloved, we cannot help but think that in that thing you are doing a work of supererogation, and taking upon you a yoke that is not of Christ. "One man esteemeth one day above another (Saturday above Sunday); another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind. He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it. Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace; and things wherewith one may edify another."

[The foregoing may be had in tract form at this office, and at the office of the Earnest Christian, Rochester, N. Y. Price 50 cts. per 100; 3 cts. for single copy.

For the World's Crisis.

WHAT IS RELIGION?

From time immemorial, or ever since the christian era, there have been many very different opinions in regard to religion. Perhaps a definition of religion, as I understand it to be, will not be out of place. True religion is to live unspotted from the world, and love God supremely. Salvation depends upon true repentance and godly sorrow for sin, a hearty renunciation of all that we have, to be appropriated to the glory of God. The object of our life should be to honor God, and prepare to meet him at his second coming, which, from the most palpable evidence, is near at hand.

As there is but one God, why should there be but one religion? The doctrines of the Bible are plain. To have the truth of the Bible revealed to our spiritual understanding, as God intends that it shall be, we must study his word untrammeled by church doctrines, and particularly church prejudices. The way is plain; the truth is clear to a clear mind, open to conviction. Many have primarily a regard to the way of salvation, how it shall be obtained, and also in regard to the final destiny of the human race. He who studies the Bible simply to support preformed ideas and doctrines, however incorrect they may be, no new light will ever dawn on his soul.

His original, imperfect, and perhaps false ideas of the immortality of the soul, may lead him from the plain Bible teaching. What does it say of the souls of men? They who believe shall be saved, and those who do not shall be destroyed "root and branch." Now can an unprejudiced mind, an intelligent reader and thinker, make only one interpretation of that saying? I have no unkind feeling against any denomination called christian; but it does not seem right to take Christ as our pattern and teacher, and at the same time claim he does not mean what he says.

How can one look at Christ as our Mediator, and the Savior of the world; and acknowledge God as our maker, preserver, and benefactor; and in consideration of all this, if there are some who do not accept the offer of salvation, he will throw them into a state of torment, where they will burn and continue to burn as long as eternity exists? How can they believe this, and at the same time feel that God is a just and merciful being?

Orthodoxy says, Go straight along. Turn neither to the right or left; as your fathers believed so must you. He who believes in any other doctrine, or entertains any other views, is a thief and a robber, whose company is obnoxious and unhealthy. When will men seek the truth?

Who can live in this day, and not see the near approach of the end? When, since the sun first dawned upon material life, has the world been in such commotion as at the present? Sin and iniquity go unpunished, the murderer and assassin frequent our public streets, treason and traitors grow bold and defiant, and the world is pouring out its wickedness preparatory to the destruction of all things. The prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself; but wo to him who, having had the light, blinds his eyes and dashes headlong upon the rocks and quicksands of destruction.

I have never been so fully impressed of the fact of the immediate advent of our Savior, as during the last few months. It does seem to me that the burden of our efforts should be to impress this upon the public mind. Life is short and fleeting; soon the harvest will be past, the summer ended, and what a multitude of souls will be unprepared.

I am glad to find the Crisis in so many of the towns in the country. Its seeds are being sown. ALBERT BROWN.

Roxbury.

For the World's Crisis.

ARE WE ALMOST THERE?

Are we almost there, where no waves of sorrow will ever roll o'er us, and where trials will forever cease? Where the weary will forever rest in the peaceful home of the pure and the blest? My heart is sad, my eyes filled with tears, at the things that daily meet my ear and eyes, and in the bitterness of my soul I can but exclaim, Are we almost there? I hope and trust we are nearing the heavenly home, where these griefs will never afflict us again. I long to be there, and enjoy the society of the redeemed on the other shore. In the lone watches of the night I ask, Are we almost there? My longing heart sighs to be free from these earthly trials.

How sad are the things of this world. Are we never to expect any thing any better? Is there no bright morning to chase away the gloomy shades of this long, dark, dreary night? Must there be no deliverance from these heart-rending scenes? Ah, yes! Ere long the morning of Zion's glory will dawn, and chase away the gloom and sadness of earth. Signs tell us we are very near the rest of the saints. Soon it will be heard from the lips of Jehovah, that time shall be no more; and then how sweet will be the rest of the saints who gather there to dwell forever with the Lord; then we shall not have to ask, Are we almost there? for we shall be there,

"In that beautiful world of light."

My longing heart cries, Come, oh my blessed Savior, and end these scenes of blood and strife. The whole world is in commotion. Scenes of cruelty and strife fill the land. Strife and revenge reign in the hearts of worldly people. Come, my Savior, end these things, and bring in thy peaceful reign. Gather all thy dear ones home. Let sighs and cries be hushed in the sweet praises of God.

Dear ones in Christ, cheer up. We are almost there. Blessed thought! happy anticipation! Soon we shall see him in our blest home. Soon we shall enter the pearly gates of the New Jerusalem, and range those blissful fields of beauty and unfading glory. There we can pluck those sweet flowers that never fade, and breathe their rich perfume. There the birds warble forth sweet and melting strains undisturbed. There the lame shall leap as the hart. My soul anxiously longs to be there. There the sweet music falls upon our ears with no discordant notes, and the people are all good and happy, nothing to fear. I long to be there, with the dear ones who will ever be praising the Father and Son. No weary days succeeded by painful nights. How long, dear Savior, ere we shall behold thee coming in glory and majesty, seated upon the throne of eternal love. We hail thy coming with joy and love, and can sing from the depths of our ofttimes fainting heart,

"Come and reign, come and reign!
And, oh! it fills my heart with joy,
To know we are almost home."

HANNAH B. WEAVER.

For the World's Crisis.

CHURCH, OR ANARCHY?

One of the most important questions before us as a people, a vital one, is whether we shall have gospel order, or disorder? simply, Church, or Anarchy? With some, the question has long been settled, and they see the superiority of system over no-system-at-all; but some have not yet come out of the wilderness; they are not yet convinced of the truth; so that the question is by no means fully settled. The object of this article is to discuss it to some extent, and develop the truth, so that our proper position may be seen and acknowledged, and especially felt.

We shall put in a plea for gospel order, or full christian fellowship; show what we mean by it, explain its workings, and defend it against the opposition of those who oppose anything and everything that they think looks like the old churches they left; and are afraid of anything that looks like system, and meet us with the cry either of "Old churches," or "Human inventions," or some other depreciative language. We write simply for the sake of truth, and with a strong conviction of duty.

With us as a people, who only wish to be right, the great concern should be to know the right, appprove it, and adopt it; and with this conviction we pray God for direction, that the professed believers in the doctrine of the immediate proximity of the second coming of Jesus may be prepared to be presented by Christ as a "glorious church, without spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing." So we shall present the subject just as it looks to us, after having first opposed, and then embraced the advocacy and practice of gospel order.

We are opposed to anarchy. We believe it is the prolific occasion of everything evil among the professed people of God. We do not believe that order can exist among persons whom God has not baptized into the Spirit of love and unity, or can be substituted for God's work. It is only an auxiliary to God's work. Anarchy has existed in governments, and among those who profess to be christians. Webster says it means disorder, want of government. It existed in the days when Israel had no king or judge, and "every man did that which was right in his own eyes." No one was responsible to any but himself. Each was his own arbiter, his own judge of right and wrong. The position was something like that of the Spiritualists of the present day, only not nearly as bad. With the last, every man is his own God, and though they talk of government and system, they never can have one to control themselves; it must be to control arbitrarily those who do not submit to their faith; for anarchy can never be government, or order. There are different phases, or degrees, in which it is found to exist, according to the degree of laxness of order or discipline; and any absence of it is attributable to a degree, at least, of order. Our position is, that among christians there should be all order, and no anarchy.

We shall endeavor to show what we mean by church order, and the tendencies to anarchy; and how that evils, which exist where this order does not exist, can be removed when the order is instituted and observed, and only then.

By church order we mean full christian fellowship, and the means of perpetuating it. Webster defines a church to be "a collective body of christians." Collective means several united. Many churches are not based on christian fellowship, but creed fellowship. One cannot obtain without the other with them; that is, they require all to subscribe to the creed, as much as they expect them to be christians; and in a lamentable number of instances, the test is more CREED than CHRISTIAN. Webster's definition recognizes all these organizations as embracing the true idea of a gospel church; we do not, though they have some good things mingled with the bad. This fact has led many honest-meaning christians to discard and oppose altogether anything that is called "a church." It is for such we are writing, and we hope to convince them of the importance of the position we are taking. They are conscientious; but that they err is evident. Does it follow that a thing is all wrong; that it may not, in the main, in the outline, be correct, though there may be evils connected with it? We think not. Nor does it follow that if there is wrong the wrong cannot be removed, or that starting on a correct hypothesis, there may not be a "church" conducive to the development of christian character, and unity of all the members, so that the whole body, "fitly framed together," will grow "into a holy temple in the Lord." It certainly is not proved, because so-called churches have evils connected with them, that there cannot be a pure church; any more than the fact of the existence of sin proves that evil is an eternal, fixed necessity in the universe, and must always exist; or that all music is wrong because some churches have introduced into their Sunday service the operatic style of performing their service; or that all government is and must be wrong because the basis of these Gentile governments is the sword power, and really cemented with human blood, every citizen being a prospective martyr for the government, which claims to be for his benefit, but which is useless to him after he is dead, as it would be to all after all were dead.

Music is right, and the children of God have the liberty to sing heartily the praise of God; and the angels may sing, and the redeemed will sing on the new earth. Government is right, and Jesus will reign, and the "government shall be upon his shoulder," and sin will be destroyed. So the church, based on and comprehending full christian fellowship, is right; and we will defend it and defend it and advocate its organization everywhere, just because, in the honesty of our hearts, we believe it is the christian's only true relation to his brethren, and relieves him from those who are not worthy of fellowship.

That such a step is important, we do not see how any can deny. We will endeavor to make the subject as plain as possible, and hope to show that any prejudice against it is wrong. We say we mean by a church "full christian fellowship," and on that principle must make christian character the basis of organization, the only true test of fellowship. We claim that any other position than this is sectarian bigotry, the offspring of Popery, and makes the astounding assertion that the individual's conscience, and his Bible, are not his guides as well as the Pope's. True christian fellowship is not creed-bound, although it is Bible-bound. A man must be a christian, i. e., Christ-like, and honestly love the truth, so that he will buy it at the expense of his own preconceived opinions, or church creeds; and be willing to acknowledge all who love Jesus, and are honest seekers after truth, whether they believe as he does or not; and be it remembered, that a belief in the unconscious state of the dead, the destruction of the wicked, and even the immediate coming of Jesus to judgment, is no more a test of christian character, or fellowship, than a belief in the horrible doctrine of election and reprobation, or the heathen dogma of "immortal-soul-ism." We want men to be honest seekers after truth; if they are, they will come with us to this standard of fellowship, and they will understand the plain Bible teachings on these points. We cannot reject a man who is honestly trying to serve God, and we will not, if he does not say all our Shibboleth of faith.

Take this basis of fellowship, and there is opportunity for a free investigation of the word, a christian charity with reference to the honest opinions of others who love Jesus, and a cordial reception of what is believed to be truth, and no quarreling because one does not believe exactly, or to a considerable extent, like another; while there may be a mutual investigation of the word to "prove all things, and hold fast that which is good." This will prevent any one making his particular opinions the most prominent thing, or acting as though he could tolerate no one unless his own faith should be adopted. It is our honest conviction that there are as bigoted creedists who deny written creeds, as there are who hold themselves bound to believe the "Assembly's Catechism," or the "thirty-nine" articles; and they who hold opinions so strongly as to test us by them are no better in that respect than churches who arraign a man at their tribunal, and pronounce against him the horrid anathema of excommunication, just because he believes and preaches the "present truth" that Jesus is coming soon to give immortal life to his people, and literally destroy the wicked. We believe all Bible truth is important; that it is essential for the purpose for which it was uttered; but may not all be seen or understood by all christians; for the Bible is such an inexhaustible treasury of truth, that it is a study for eternity. No man living has all the truth yet; but all christians want it, and while they hold dearly what they conceive to be truth, they are not afraid to stand on the position of fellowship for all who can bear the Bible test of christian character, and take that blessed book for the Alpha and Omega of their creed; for a man who is a christian, and is Bible bound, cannot get so far off as to be lost. He will always be coming nearer to the truth; at any event, he will "above all . . . things put on charity."

Holy living is more important than anything else in the world. Make that the standard, and rally around it in Christ's name, and you can there meet all whom Jesus owns; and you will find none who will cry out, "heresy," just because you happen to believe that Jesus is soon coming to renew the earth, and give the saints immortality, and the wicked death eternal.

But there is another point in this discussion, namely, full christian fellowship. We have got the idea of christian character, but it is important to have full christian fellowship to have a gospel church; and how is it to be secured? It is evident that christians ought to fully fellowship each other, and it is as evident that that fellowship should be as fully acknowledged as it is felt, and there can not be a full fellowship unless there is the open acknowledgment, clearly understood by all. "Secret love" is a very poor affair; "open rebuke is better," so the wise Solomon tells us.

We believe that the Bible makes confession with the mouth as essential to salvation as believing with the heart, which is only productive of righteousness, that results in salvation as the confession is made. So we do not believe in loving God secretly. A man can not be a christian and let no one know it; love God and keep it all to himself. It looks either like being ashamed of his love and its object, or being ashamed of himself for cherishing it. Love God and own it, then you will commit yourself to the responsible work of living out the love, and showing how much it means. John says, "This commandment have we from him, that he who loveth God love his brother also"; i. e., in the same manner, feeling and confessing that you love, not in general terms, saying, I love my brother; but designating who you mean by your brother. You designate the individual when you say, "I love GOD. So do, and say definitely whether you love Bro. A., B., or C., or Sister R., S., or T. Anything short of this is disorderly; it is wrong and dishonorable to God as to the believers in Christ, and specially to yourself. L. C. MCKINSTRY.

(To be continued.)

A WORD FOR THE WISE.—Keep doing, always doing; and whatever you do, do it with all your heart, mind, and strength. Wishing, dreaming, intending, murmuring, talking, repining, and sighing, are all idle and profitless employments. The only manly occupation is to keep doing, and it will be found the most beneficial.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."
WHOLE NO. 562. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JULY 11, 1866. VOL. XXIII.—NO. 17.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.
MILES GRANT, EDITOR.
EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, WM. H. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.
PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.
GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.
☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BANNER OF LOVE.

"Thou hast given a banner to them that fear thee, that it may be displayed because of the truth."—Ps. 60: 4.
"And his banner over me was love."—Song. 2: 4.
"We will rejoice in thy salvation, and in the name of our God we will set up our banners."—Ps. 20: 5.

"O, say can you see by the" eye of your faith,
What the Lord hath revealed to his saints by his Spirit?
Do you take to your heart what the Holy Book saith
Of the blessed "new earth" which "the meek shall inherit,"
Where their Savior will be, and their God they shall see,
And from "sorrow and sighing" forever be free,
Where the banner of love shall eternally wave
O'er the home of the blessed whom Jesus will save?

Do you claim in that city a mansion of rest,
Away from these scenes of turmoil and confusion,
That darken our land from the east to the west?
Does a "better land" cheer you? or seems it illusion,
The thought of a home in the kingdom to come,
Where the saints through the fields of sweet Eden shall roam,
And the banner of love shall eternally wave
O'er the kingdom of Christ who is "mighty to save"?

There the numberless host in immaculate white,
Out of "every kindred and people and nation,"
Of whom "the beloved disciple" did write,
"These are they that have come out of great tribulation,—
Shall stand before Him, with the crown, and the palm
Of victory won through the blood of the Lamb,
Whose victorious banner in triumph shall wave,
Proclaiming his conquest of death and the grave.

In the battle of life, mighty Leader, near Thee
We will quail at no danger, but trust thy direction;
"Thou hast given a banner to them that fear thee,"
So for truth and the right we may claim thy protection.
To thee we look up, and since thou art our hope,
"In the name of our God we'll our banners set up,"
And at last to thy praise we will lift up our voice,
And "in thy salvation" forever "rejoice"!

So. Wilbraham. LUCY M. CHAFFEE.

For the World's Crisis.

2 PETER IV. 17.

"What shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel?"

We trust a few passages of Scripture, taken in connection with each other, may serve to make the matter plain and satisfactory to all, with regard to what sort of a disposition God shall make of the finally impenitent.

Prop. 1st. "The wicked are to be judged." Matt. 12: 36.—"But I say unto you, that every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment." The word here rendered "account," is "logos," which signifies "a saying," "a statement," "an account;" hence all the wicked must give a verbal account for the deeds done in the body. 2 Cor. 5. 10.—"For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." Acts 17: 31.—"Because he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead."

Prop. 2d. "Christ," the man whom he hath ordained, "did not come to judge the world at his first advent." John 12: 47.—"I came not to judge the world, but to save the world." But will at his second. 2 Tim. 4: 1.—"I charge thee, therefore, before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and kingdom." "Therefore, judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come." 1 Cor. 4: 5.

Prop. 3d. "They are not punished before they are judged." 2 Pet. 2: 9.—"The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of jugdment to be punished." Job 21: 30.—"The wicked is reserved to the day of destruction; they shall be brought forth to the day of wrath." Then, of course, as "the dead know not any thing" (Eccl. 9: 5) the wicked must be raised from the dead in order to be judged and punished; for they are not punished before they are judged, and they are not judged "till the Lord come." Hence we read: "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."—1 Cor. 15: 22. "The hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation."—John 5: 28, 29.

If this is the order of things, the idea that men go to hell at death is an erroneous one, reversing the order of God, and making void his word by their traditions. The idea of "immediate punishment after death" can only be inferred from one passage, and that is a parable. Some men will hug that parable to their bosom tighter than Abraham does Lazarus. Should a parable be brought against "plain principles," and declarations that teach that dead men are dead, and that the wicked are reserved to "the day of judgement to be punished."

If this is the order of things, the doctrine of the "non-resurrection of the wicked" cannot be true; for if the wicked are reserved to "the day of judgment to be punished," and the judgment is not till the Lord comes, of course they must be raised in order to be judged and punished.

Prop. 4th "Their punishment is endless." Matt 25: 46. "These shall go away into everlasting (aionois) punishment, but the righteous into life eternal (aionios)." It will be discovered that "everlasting" in the first clause is from the same word in the original as "eternal" in the last. Therefore the punishment of the wicked must continue as long as the life of the righteous, which is endless.

Prop. 5th. "Their punishment is death."—Rom. 6: 23. "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." Here "death" stands in opposition to "eternal life;" hence literal death must be implied. Rom. 8: 13.—"For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live." But all die the first death, whether they live after the flesh or not; hence the death here brought to view must be the second death: and as all will admit that the "life" spoken of is literal, the death must be literal also.

But it is contended that the soul is the accountable part; hence it is the soul that commits sin, and the soul being "immortal," cannot die. Very true; if the soul is immortal, it cannot die; but if then the soul can die, it most assuredly proves that it is not immortal. Ezek. 18: 4.—"The soul that sinneth IT SHALL DIE." That's what God says about it; who knows best? James 5: 20.—"He that converteth a sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death."

"Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years." J. W. TAYLOR.

Chatham Valley, Pa.

For the World's Crisis.

WHO IS ON THE LORD'S SIDE?

There are but two sides, any way; the right side and the wrong; the Lord's side and the devil's side; the side of truth, and the side of error. We are the servants of God, or we are the servants of Satan; for the Savior says we cannot serve two masters; we must love the one and hate the other; we must hold to the one and despise the other; "ye cannot serve God and mammon." The Lord further informs us, that "ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you." Now, what has he commanded us to do? Jesus instructed his disciples to fear him (with a filial fear), and keep his commandments, which is the whole duty of man. Are we doing it? Are we loving God with all the heart, and our neighbor as ourselves? He says, too, "Be ye holy, for I am holy." Without holiness, "no man shall see the Lord." I suppose that means we cannot see the Lord in peace without holiness.

Again, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." I don't suppose that Father requires us to be perfect gods, or perfect angels; but perfect christians. Is it more than our meat and drink to do the will of God? If so, we are on the Lord's side. The good Lord requires us (as his disciples) to come out from the world, and be separate, and touch not the unclean thing. Are we doing as he requires? Let every one answer this question for himself. Christ says, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me."

Now let me humbly ask you, my dear brethren and sisters (including myself), are we as "poor in spirit," as contrite for our sins, as meek of heart, as he requires? Do we "hunger and thirst after righteousness," are we "merciful," are we "pure in heart," are we "peace makers," are we so good that we are "persecuted for righteousness' sake?" "Blessare ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake." If these things are true of us, then we are on the Lord's side. Who is on the Lord's side? P. TANDY.

For the World's Crisis.

JESUS.

When I contemplate the character of this dear friend, so noble and lovely, I am ashamed that I bear the image so faintly. He who went about doing good all his life, performing miracles for the benefit of others, would not perform any for his own benefit or necessities,—enduring all things with unsurpassing patience and meekness; no murmur escapes his lips. Angels, astonished, minister to his wants and sufferings, soothing him in the hour of distress. Hear that submissive prayer,—"Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me; nevertheless, not my will but thine be done." See him toiling up the side of Calvary, fainting beneath the cruel load, suffering the most painful of deaths to redeem a guilty world; forsaken in that trying hour by those who professed to be his best and dearest friends. He has passed through every thing that human nature is capable of suffering; endured every temptation that flesh is exposed to; proved himself worthy of the homage of his people.

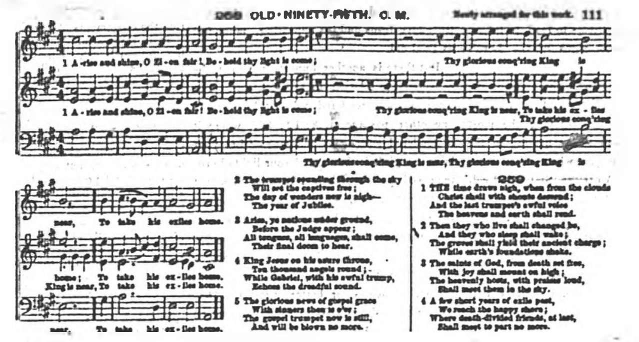
What a gift! a REDEEMER; one who is able to save unto the uttermost. "He that spared not his own son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him freely give us all things?" Dear Savior, grant that I may be a partaker of thy Spirit, and of that love which thinketh no evil, which endureth all things, and hopeth all things.

"Oh! who could bear life's stormy doom,
Did not his wing of love
Come brightly wafting through the gloom,
Our peace-branch from above?"

West Brattleboro, Vt. A. M. STARR.

☞ Let no day pass without a review of God's carriage towards you, and of yours towards him; of mercies and afflictions; of duties, and your frame of heart in them; of your sins, and inclinations to sin. And let God have the glory of what is good.

From the Jubilee Harp, entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1866, by the ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court for the District of Massachusetts.



2 The trumpet sounding through the sky
Will set the captives free;
The day of wonders now is nigh—
The year of Jubilee.

3 Arise, ye nations under ground,
Before the Judge appear;
All tongues, all languages, shall come,
Their final doom to hear.

4 King Jesus on his azure throne,
Ten thousand angels round;
While Gabriel, with his awful trump,
Echoes the dreadful sound.

5 The glorious news of gospel grace
With sinners then is o'er;
The gospel trumpet now is still,
And will be blown no more.

259

1 THE time draws nigh, when from the clouds
Christ shall with shouts descend;
And the last trumpet's awful voice
The heavens and earth shall rend.

2 Then they who live shall changed be,
And they who sleep shall wake;
The graves shall yield their ancient charge;
While earth's foundations shake.

3 The saints of God, from death set free,
With joy shall mount on high;
The heavenly hosts, with praises loud,
Shall meet them in the sky.

4 A few short years of exile past,
We reach the happy shore;
Where death-divided friends, at last,
Shall meet to part no more.

The above is a specimen page from the "JUBILEE HARP," the new Hymn and Tune Book, soon to be issued by the Society, and now in the hands of the printer. It will be ready in a few weeks, and, we trust, will be received with general favor by the household of faith, waiting for redemption.

THE SABBATH.

A brother asks, "Is it not just as much an act of disobedience in us to observe the first day of the week, as being holy to the Lord, when he commands us to observe the seventh, as it would have been for Naaman, the leper, to have gone to some other river when he was commanded to wash in Jordan? I am not a Seventh-day Adventist, but a member of the M. E. church, and an earnest inquirer after all truth."

We would not knowingly pervert the word of the Lord. Our aim is to understand the Bible, and we never hesitate a moment to receive its teachings, because they come in conflict with any of the notions or practices of the age. We do not feel afraid of the truth. It is that which makes us free.

The question asked by our brother is an important one. It has been suggested to our mind, and we doubt not to the minds of many of our readers. Let us consider it candidly. The fourth commandment reads, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work: but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates; for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it."—Ex. 20: 8–11.

What is the essential thing in this command? It is evidently to keep holy one seventh part of the time. Whoever works six days and then keeps as sacred unto the Lord one day, meets the letter and spirit of this command. He keeps the seventh day holy. The proportion of time between the working days and the day of rest is the main thing. It is not necessary to prove that the change of observance, from the last to the first day of the week, was made by competent authority. God worked six days, and then rested. He rested one day, after working six days. He requires of us to do the same. He that works six days, and then observes as holy unto the Lord the day following, keeps the seventh day. Should he work nine days and observe the tenth as a day of rest, as was attempted by the French Infidels in the bloody days of the revolution, he would abrogate the Sabbath. That God did not intend that the same absolute time should be observed as the Sabbath, is evident: for, as he made the world, it is impossible. Time varies with every variation of longitude. At the very moment while we are worshiping God on Sabbath evening, the christians in China, who design to keep as Sabbath the same day as ourselves, are engaging in secular avocations.

Pitcairn's Island, in the South Seas, was settled by mutineers of the ship Bounty. They took with them some Otaheitan men and women. In about ten years, all the men except one came to an untimely end. He, a native-born Englishman, was left alone upon a distant island with five or six heathen women, and twenty fatherless children from five to fifteen years old. His name was John Adams. He had a theoretical knowledge of the true God, but had led a very wicked life. He saw that, in all probability, these children would grow up idolaters. He was deeply affected with the responsibility of his situation. Two alarming dreams so disturbed him that he could neither eat nor sleep. He found a copy of the Bible that had been saved from the ship. He commenced reading it. He prayed in secret three times a day. He saw his guilt and danger in so clear a light that he almost despaired of pardon. But the Holy Spirit led him to the cross, and he came to Jesus and found pardon and peace. He at once commenced instructing the community in the truths of religion. He taught them to read the Bible, and to fear God. When, years afterward, they were visited by an English ship, they were found to be one of the most moral, pious, happy communities that could be met with on the earth. But they did not keep as Sabbath the same day that the ship's company did, though both intended to keep the same day. John Adams reached the island by sailing from England in one direction, and their visitors in the opposite direction. Had they changed their Sabbath to suit the reckoning of their visitors, another year, if another party had visited them from an opposite direction, they might have changed it again, and so they might keep on changing. Let a person who is strict in the observance of the day which we call Saturday, as the Sabbath, make a voyage around the world in an easterly direction. Let him keep an accurate note of time; when he reaches New York he will find himself keeping the same day for Sabbath that the people there generally observe. What is he to do? Shall he change his day, and for once keep the sixth day instead of the seventh? Was he guilty of the sin of Sabbath breaking while doing the utmost in his power to keep the Sabbath? Was it possible for him to do better than he did? And has God so arranged it that his children cannot keep one of the most important of his ordinances, under circumstances which often do arise, even when they try to the utmost of their ability? The very idea is preposterous; God's words can be kept. We can remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. And our ability to do this does not depend upon the fact whether we travel to the east or west, or whether we stay at home.

So, dear brother, if you carefully observe Sunday as a day holy to the Lord; if you abstain from all secular labor and worldly pleasure on that day, "not doing thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words"; if you worship God in spirit and in truth, and love him with all your heart; there is no doubt but that he will accept you, as he has done thousands of others, give you the victory over the world, triumph over death, and an abundant entrance into his everlasting kingdom. . . . But if you conscientiously think you ought to observe Saturday as a day holy to the Lord; if you observe it with all strictness and fidelity, I do not think the Lord will condemn you. But in a matter of so great importance, uniformity is desirable, if it can be had without a sacrifice of principle. Here the apostle's exhortation applies,—"Let us walk by the same rule." A community brought up to observe both days is, in the second generation, as we have personally witnessed, quite likely to observe neither.

We feel a great respect for those who, out of a great desire to please the Lord, subject themselves to all the inconveniences and the reproach arising from keeping Saturday as Sabbath. But, beloved, we cannot help but think that in that thing you are doing a work of supererogation, and taking upon you a yoke that is not of Christ. "One man esteemeth one day above another (Saturday above Sunday); another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind. He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it. Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace; and things wherewith one may edify another."

[The foregoing may be had in tract form at this office, and at the office of the Earnest Christian, Rochester, N. Y. Price 50 cts. per 100; 3 cts. for single copy.

For the World's Crisis.

WHAT IS RELIGION?

From time immemorial, or ever since the christian era, there have been many very different opinions in regard to religion. Perhaps a definition of religion, as I understand it to be, will not be out of place. True religion is to live unspotted from the world, and love God supremely. Salvation depends upon true repentance and godly sorrow for sin, a hearty renunciation of all that we have, to be appropriated to the glory of God. The object of our life should be to honor God, and prepare to meet him at his second coming, which, from the most palpable evidence, is near at hand.

As there is but one God, why should there be but one religion? The doctrines of the Bible are plain. To have the truth of the Bible revealed to our spiritual understanding, as God intends that it shall be, we must study his word untrammeled by church doctrines, and particularly church prejudices. The way is plain; the truth is clear to a clear mind, open to conviction. Many have primarily a regard to the way of salvation, how it shall be obtained, and also in regard to the final destiny of the human race. He who studies the Bible simply to support preformed ideas and doctrines, however incorrect they may be, no new light will ever dawn on his soul.

His original, imperfect, and perhaps false ideas of the immortality of the soul, may lead him from the plain Bible teaching. What does it say of the souls of men? They who believe shall be saved, and those who do not shall be destroyed "root and branch." Now can an unprejudiced mind, an intelligent reader and thinker, make only one interpretation of that saying? I have no unkind feeling against any denomination called christian; but it does not seem right to take Christ as our pattern and teacher, and at the same time claim he does not mean what he says.

How can one look at Christ as our Mediator, and the Savior of the world; see and acknowledge God as our maker, preserver, and benefactor; and in consideration of all this, if there are some who do not accept the offer of salvation, he will throw them into a state of torment, where they will burn and continue to burn as long as eternity exists? How can they believe this, and at the same time feel that God is a just and merciful being?

Orthodoxy says, Go straight along. Turn neither to the right or left; as your fathers believed so must you. He who believes in any other doctrine, or entertains any other views, is a thief and a robber, whose company is obnoxious and unhealthy. When will men seek the truth?

Who can live in this day, and not see the near approach of the end? When, since the sun first dawned upon material life, has the world been in such commotion as at the present? Sin and iniquity go unpunished, the murderer and assassin frequent our public streets, treason and traitors grow bold and defiant, and the world is pouring out its wickedness preparatory to the destruction of all things. The prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself; but wo to him who, having had the light, blinds his eyes and dashes headlong upon the rocks and quicksands of destruction.

I have never been so fully impressed of the fact of the immediate advent of our Savior, as during the last few months. It does seem to me that the burden of our efforts should be to impress this upon the public mind. Life is short and fleeting; soon the harvest will be past, the summer ended, and what a multitude of souls will be unprepared.

I am glad to find the Crisis in so many of the towns in the country. Its seeds are being sown. ALBERT BROWN.

Roxbury.

For the World's Crisis.

ARE WE ALMOST THERE?

Are we almost there, where no waves of sorrow will ever roll o'er us, and where trials will forever cease? Where the weary will forever rest in the peaceful home of the pure and the blest? My heart is sad, my eyes filled with tears, at the things that daily meet my ear and eyes, and in the bitterness of my soul I can but exclaim, Are we almost there? I hope and trust we are nearing the heavenly home, where these griefs will never afflict us again. I long to be there, and enjoy the society of the redeemed on the other shore. In the lone watches of the night I ask, Are we almost there? My longing heart sighs to be free from these earthly trials.

How sad are the things of this world. Are we never to expect any thing any better? Is there no bright morning to chase away the gloomy shades of this long, dark, dreary night? Must there be no deliverance from these heart-rending scenes? Ah, yes! Ere long the morning of Zion's glory will dawn, and chase away the gloom and sadness of earth. Signs tell us we are very near the rest of the saints. Soon it will be heard from the lips of Jehovah, that time shall be no more; and then how sweet will be the rest of the saints who gather there to dwell forever with the Lord; then we shall not have to ask, Are we almost there? for we shall be there,

"In that beautiful world of light."

My longing heart cries, Come, oh my blessed Savior, and end these scenes of blood and strife. The whole world is in commotion. Scenes of cruelty and strife fill the land. Strife and revenge reign in the hearts of worldly people. Come, my Savior, end these things, and bring in thy peaceful reign. Gather all thy dear ones home. Let sighs and cries be hushed in the sweet praises of God.

Dear ones in Christ, cheer up. We are almost there. Blessed thought! happy anticipation! Soon we shall see him in our blest home. Soon we shall enter the pearly gates of the New Jerusalem, and range those blissful fields of beauty and unfading glory. There we can pluck those sweet flowers that never fade, and breathe their rich perfume. There the birds warble forth sweet and melting strains undisturbed. There the lame shall leap as the hart. My soul anxiously longs to be there. There the sweet music falls upon our ears with no discordant notes, and the people are all good and happy, nothing to fear. I long to be there, with the dear ones who will ever be praising the Father and Son. No weary days succeeded by painful nights. How long, dear Savior, ere we shall behold thee coming in glory and majesty, seated upon the throne of eternal love. We hail thy coming with joy and love, and can sing from the depths of our ofttimes fainting heart,

"Come and reign, come and reign!
And, oh! it fills my heart with joy,
To know we are almost home."

ABRAHAM S. WEAVER.

For the World's Crisis.

CHURCH, OR ANARCHY?

One of the most important questions before us as a people, a vital one, is whether we shall have gospel order, or disorder? simply, Church, or Anarchy? With some, the question has long been settled, and they see the superiority of system over no-system-at-all; but some have not yet come out of the wilderness; they are not yet convinced of the truth; so that the question is by no means fully settled. The object of this article is to discuss it to some extent, and develop the truth, so that our proper position may be seen and acknowledged, and especially felt.

We shall put in a plea for gospel order, or full christian fellowship; show what we mean by it, explain its workings, and defend it against the opposition of those who oppose anything and everything that they think looks like the old churches they left; and are afraid of anything that looks like system, and meet us with the cry either of "Old churches," or "Human inventions," or some other depreciative language. We write simply for the sake of truth, and with a strong conviction of duty.

With us as a people, who only wish to be right, the great concern should be to know the right, appprove it, and adopt it; and with this conviction we pray God for direction, that the professed believers in the doctrine of the immediate proximity of the second coming of Jesus may be prepared to be presented by Christ as a "glorious church, without spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing." So we shall present the subject just as it looks to us, after having first opposed, and then embraced the advocacy and practice of gospel order.

We are opposed to anarchy. We believe it is the prolific occasion of everything evil among the professed people of God. We do not believe that order can exist among persons whom God has not baptized into the Spirit of love and unity, or can be substituted for God's work. It is only an auxiliary to God's work. Anarchy has existed in governments, and among those who profess to be christians. Webster says it means disorder, want of government. It existed in the days when Israel had no king or judge, and "every man did that which was right in his own eyes." No one was responsible to any but himself. Each was his own arbiter, his own judge of right and wrong. The position was something like that of the Spiritualists of the present day, only not nearly as bad. With the last, every man is his own God, and though they talk of government and system, they never can have one to control themselves; it must be to control arbitrarily those who do not submit to their faith; for anarchy can never be government, or order. There are different phases, or degrees, in which it is found to exist, according to the degree of laxness of order or discipline; and any absence of it is attributable to a degree, at least, of order. Our position is, that among christians there should be all order, and no anarchy.

We shall endeavor to show what we mean by church order, and the tendencies to anarchy; and how that evils, which exist where this order does not exist, can be removed when the order is instituted and observed, and only then.

By church order we mean full christian fellowship, and the means of perpetuating it. Webster defines a church to be "a collective body of christians." Collective means several united. Many churches are not based on christian fellowship, but creed fellowship. One cannot obtain without the other with them; that is, they require all to subscribe to the creed, as much as they expect them to be christians; and in a lamentable number of instances, the test is more CREED than CHRISTIAN. Webster's definition recognizes all these organizations as embracing the true idea of a gospel church; we do not, though they have some good things mingled with the bad. This fact has led many honest-meaning christians to discard and oppose altogether anything that is called "a church." It is for such we are writing, and we hope to convince them of the importance of the position we are taking. They are conscientious; but that they err is evident. Does it follow that a thing is all wrong; that it may not, in the main, in the outline, be correct, though there may be evils connected with it? We think not. Nor does it follow that if there is wrong the wrong cannot be removed, or that starting on a correct hypothesis, there may not be a "church" conducive to the development of christian character, and unity of all the members, so that the whole body, "fitly framed together," will grow "into a holy temple in the Lord." It certainly is not proved, because so-called churches have evils connected with them, that there cannot be a pure church; any more than the fact of the existence of sin proves that evil is an eternal, fixed necessity in the universe, and must always exist; or that all music is wrong because some churches have introduced into their Sunday service the operatic style of performing their service; or that all government is and must be wrong because the basis of these Gentile governments is the sword power, and really cemented with human blood, every citizen being a prospective martyr for the government, which claims to be for his benefit, but which is useless to him after he is dead, as it would be to all after all were dead.

Music is right, and the children of God have the liberty to sing heartily the praise of God; and the angels may sing, and the redeemed will sing on the new earth. Government is right, and Jesus will reign, and the "government shall be upon his shoulder," and sin will be destroyed. So the church, based on and comprehending full christian fellowship, is right; and we will defend it and advocate its organization everywhere, just because, in the honesty of our hearts, we believe it is the christian's only true relation to his brethren, and relieves him from those who are not worthy of fellowship.

That such a step is important, we do not see how any can deny. We will endeavor to make the subject as plain as possible, and hope to show that any prejudice against it is wrong. We say we mean by a church "full christian fellowship," and on that principle must make christian character the basis of organization, the only true test of fellowship. We claim that any other position than this is sectarian bigotry, the offspring of Popery, and makes the astounding assertion that the individual's conscience, and his Bible, are not his guides as well as the Pope's. True christian fellowship is not creed-bound, although it is Bible-bound. A man must be a christian, i. e., Christ-like, and honestly love the truth, so that he will buy it at the expense of his own preconceived opinions, or church creeds; and be willing to acknowledge all who love Jesus, and are honest seekers after truth, whether they believe as he does or not; and be it remembered, that a belief in the unconscious state of the dead, the destruction of the wicked, and even the immediate coming of Jesus to judgment, is no more a test of christian character, or fellowship, than a belief in the horrible doctrine of election and reprobation, or the heathen dogma of "immortal-soul-ism." We want men to be honest seekers after truth; if they are, they will come with us to this standard of fellowship, and they will understand the plain Bible teachings on these points. We cannot reject a man who is honestly trying to serve God, and we will not, if he does not say all our Shibboleth of faith.

Take this basis of fellowship, and there is opportunity for a free investigation of the word, a christian charity with reference to the honest opinions of others who love Jesus, and a cordial reception of what is believed to be truth, and no quarreling because one does not believe exactly, or to a considerable extent, like another; while there may be a mutual investigation of the word to "prove all things, and hold fast that which is good." This will prevent any one making his particular opinions the most prominent thing, or acting as though he could tolerate no one unless his own faith should be adopted. It is our honest conviction that there are as bigoted creedists who deny written creeds, as there are who hold themselves bound to believe the "Assembly's Catechism," or the "thirty-nine" articles; and they who hold opinions so strongly as to test us by them are no better in that respect than churches who arraign a man at their tribunal, and pronounce against him the horrid anathema of excommunication, just because he believes and preaches the "present truth" that Jesus is coming soon to give immortal life to his people, and literally destroy the wicked. We believe all Bible truth is important; that it is essential for the purpose for which it was uttered; but may not all be seen or understood by all christians; for the Bible is such an inexhaustible treasury of truth, that it is a study for eternity. No man living has all the truth yet; but all christians want it, and while they hold dearly what they conceive to be truth, they are not afraid to stand on the position of fellowship for all who can bear the Bible test of christian character, and take that blessed book for the Alpha and Omega of their creed; for a man who is a christian, and is Bible bound, cannot get so far off as to be lost. He will always be coming nearer to the truth; at any event, he will "above all . . . things put on charity."

Holy living is more important than anything else in the world. Make that the standard, and rally around it in Christ's name, and you can there meet all whom Jesus owns; and you will find none who will cry out, "heresy," just because you happen to believe that Jesus is soon coming to renew the earth, and give the saints immortality, and the wicked death eternal.

But there is another point in this discussion, namely, full christian fellowship. We have got the idea of christian character, but it is important to have full christian fellowship to have a gospel church; and how is it to be secured? It is evident that christians ought to fully fellowship each other, and it is as evident that that fellowship should be as fully acknowledged as it is felt, and there can not be a full fellowship unless there is the open acknowledgment, clearly understood by all. "Secret love" is a very poor affair; "open rebuke is better," so the wise Solomon tells us.

We believe that the Bible makes confession with the mouth as essential to salvation as believing with the heart, which is only productive of righteousness, that results in salvation as the confession is made. So we do not believe in loving God secretly. A man can not be a christian and let no one know it; love God and keep it all to himself. It looks either like being ashamed of his love and its object, or being ashamed of himself for cherishing it. Love God and own it, then you will commit yourself to the responsible work of living out the love, and showing how much it means. John says, "This commandment have we from him, that he who loveth God love his brother also"; i. e., in the same manner, feeling and confessing that you love, not in general terms, saying, I love my brother; but designating who you mean by your brother. You designate the individual when you say, "I love GOD. So do, and say definitely whether you love Bro. A., B., or C., or Sister R., S., or T. Anything short of this is disorderly; it is wrong and dishonorable to God as to the believers in Christ, and specially to yourself. L. C. MCKINSTRY.

(To be continued.)

A WORD FOR THE WISE.—Keep doing, always doing; and whatever you do, do it with all your heart, soul, and strength. Wishing, dreaming, intending, murmuring, talking, repining, and sighing, are all idle and profitless employments. The only manly occupation is, to keep doing, and it will be found the most beneficial.

For the World's Crisis.

DEDICATION.

BRO. GRANT:—Thursday, June 28th, I left Salem to fill some appointments, expected to be filled by Bro. Ladd, who was detained by an accident injuring his foot, so as to be unable to fill them with me. I arrived at Haverhill in time for meeting, and had a comfortable time in speaking words of good cheer to those who came together.

Friday, I made my way to Portsmouth, and found a good home with Bro. Wilson. Called upon some of like precious faith. In the evening I went to their chapel worn and weary. The brethren and people came out well, to hear Bro. Ladd; when I did the best I could to comfort them with the soon coming of our Lord and the resurrection of the dead. Some were comforted, and others I presume would have liked it much better if I had told them the Lord would certainly come next year. I do not know but he may come this year; and I do not know as he will come next year; but by the signs of the times, I know his coming is near; and it is with pleasure I preach it, urging the necessity of watching, "lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping." Watch, because ye know not whether he will come at evening, midnight, cock-crowing, or in the morning. How timely the text, "Be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of man cometh." Now ye dear ones, while I love Jesus and his soon coming, and with home-sickness and heart-sickness hail with joy every omen and indication of our joyful exit to meet the Lord in the air, amid that holy throng of the redeemed, shouting songs of joy and everlasting victory; I dare not give an exposition of doctrine that will conflict with the unalterable word of Him who speaketh as never man spake.

Watching is the imperative duty of the church in that time indicated by a night. Watch, because ye know not when; watch not because ye don't know any thing about it, but because ye know he is near, yea, in the night; but ye do not know in what watch he will come. But if found watching, you are safe, at whatever watch he may come. For says Jesus, "Blessed is that servant whom his Lord, when he cometh, shall find so doing." Doing what? Watching. So if we do not wish to be overtaken like a thief, let all be found watching—every thing in order, all ready, alive in the work of God, not murmuring nor fault-finding; not fretting or quarrelsome, but ready for every good word and work, full of faith, heads uplifted, knowing redemption is nigh.

Saturday I went to Kennebunk, and attended the evening appointment. Found Bro. E. Burnham there to fill the Sunday appointment, and that my allotment was to be at Biddeford to assist in the dedication of their new Advent meeting-house.

Sunday, July 1st. A delightful morning. The smiles of our Lord are cheering. Nature has clothed earth with beauty, and we are rejoicing greatly in the God of our salvation. We soon started in company with Elds. Mitchell and Emery for Biddeford. On arriving, we found the people coming in from other towns to attend the meeting. We were soon attracted to the spot, and entered their new edifice, erected by the sacrifices of a few believers and the liberality of the people of Biddeford, for the worship of God and the preaching of that doctrine so essential to the great plan of redemption; viz., the coming of Jesus and the resurrection of the dead, with all its kindred truths necessary to fulfill the plan, and give reward at the judgment of the great day.

At the hour appointed, the house was well filled, and our services commenced. Bro. Mitchell preached the dedidation sermon from 1 Chron. 29: 5,—"Who then is willing to consecrate his service this day unto the Lord?" It was an interesting discourse, adapted to the occasion, listened to by a large congregation with much attention. It became my lot to preach in the afternoon to a crowded house, when I had freedom in presenting a portion of our faith to the people, who gave evidence of an interest to hear this gospel. After preaching we had a favored time in commemorating the death of our Lord, by coming around the Lord's table, and partaking of the emblems, thus showing forth his death till he come. The people came again in the evening, anxious to hear the word of life, when Bro. B. Emery gave us a stirring discourse, relative to practical religion, making all feel that there was something to be done besides making a profession, to be approved of God here, or to make sure of life hereafter. Thus ended one of the very interesting days of my pilgrimage; and it seems to open a new epoch in the history of the cause of truth proclaimed in Biddeford.

The house is situated favorably in the south part of the city. Its size is thirty-four by fifty, with a little gallery over the entrance, which will seat about fifty. It is one of the neatest specimens of a meeting-house, to accommodate from four to six hundred, I have seen. It is pleasant in its arrangement, and is seated with settees, neatly finished. All is admirably adapted to make one feel comfortable and at home. The seats are free. All are welcomed to come and hear the gospel of the kingdom. I consented to stop and preach Monday and Tuesday evenings. God bless and revive the church in Biddeford, and grant them spiritual prosperity, and additions to their number, such as may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus. L. BOUTELL.

Biddeford, July 2nd, 1866.

For the World's Crisis.

Final Report of the Ten-Cent Call.

No. of letters.	The State that sent them.	The amount.
65	New York	$28.35
85	Massachusetts	17.45
84	Maine	14.95
32	New Hampshire	12.66
15	Connecticut	6.99
3	Indiana	6.10
11	Vermont	5.35
9	Pennsylvania	4.10
6	Ohio	2.75
3	Rhode Island	[illegible]
3	New Jersey	[illegible]
3	Wisconsin	1.50
4	Michigan	1.10
2	Illinois	.80
2	Iowa	.60
1	Me.	.35
1	Maryland	.25
1	Canada East	.25
1	Delevan	.15
1	Minnesota	.10
8	From unknown parts	2.85
		$110.40

The above has been duly adjusted with Bro. Williams, with the exception of 40 cts. that I have received since I saw him. I shall get that to him in due time. Now in again tendering my thanks to the donors for their "GOOD DEED," I would say that it was received by Bro. Williams in the same spirit that it was given. As I showed him the amount, he seemed amazed, as it were, and his eyes filled with tears for gladness of heart, to think that the friends of Jesus were his friends also. C. P. SWEET.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, July 11, 1866.

☞ Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year; but if delayed six months beyond the time of payment, the price is $3.00 a year. Thus 50 cents a year is saved by paying in advance.

☞ Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank-checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Good Fractional Currency.

In sending postal currency, be careful to see that it is good before sending it. Very much of this fractional currency now in circulation is counterfeit; and every week we are receiving worthless notes of this description, which we are obliged to return to the sender.

DISCUSSION AT CANAAN.

Our late discussion at East Canaan, N. H., was one of special interest and profit. It commenced Tuesday evening, June 26th, and continued five evenings. It was held in the Methodist meeting-house, which was full of very attentive listeners. We discussed the following resolution:—

"RESOLVED, That all men have an immortal soul, that lives or exists in a conscious state, throughout eternity."

We were very much pleased with Mr. Jones, a Free-will Baptist minister, who took the affirmative. We admired his honest candor, and esteem him as a christian brother. We mutually enjoyed the discussion, and we think the audience partook largely of the same good feeling. It was the most agreeable debate we have ever had, and we trust the cause of truth has been much benefited by the discussion.

Elder Jones presented on his side about all the scriptures that are thought to favor the resolution; but after much searching could find nothing in the Bible about "an immortal soul." When speaking of the nature of the soul, which he thought was the real man, or accountable being, he remarked that "pain, fever, fire, and bullets can not affect it," as it is "immaterial." We inquired how the "hell fire" could cause such souls any pain? We got no answer.

He thought these souls could not recognise each other by sight. On this point we saw no cause to differ from our opponent; for we have yet to learn that an immaterial being could have any eyes with which to see, or any other bodily organs.

He held that the intermediate state was an "imperfect one"; yet claimed that when good men die, they go to God. We were not able to conceive how the saints could be in an imperfect state after they go into the "presence" of God, where there "is fulness of joy." Ps. 16: 11.

Again, he argued that the real man was an "invisible" being, because he was made in the "likeness" of his Creator. We replied if the fact that man was made in the "likeness" of his Creator proved he was an "invisible" being, it would also prove still more clearly that he was omnipotent and omniscient. But as this proved too much, it proved nothing.

Our opponent held that the souls of men go to paradise at death, but are not rewarded till Jesus comes; and that they remain in a conscious, waiting position, till the second advent of Christ; but we could find no locality for paradise till after the coming of Christ, unless we put it in the earth, as the old heathen did.

He admitted that man is mortal, and that there is no knowledge in the grave; but claimed that a mortal and immortal man could occupy the same space at the same time, because one was material, and the other immaterial; which we thought was the same as to say that the immaterial man was nobody, hence needed no space in which to live. We much prefer to be somebody, go somewhere, and be somebody when we get there.

A deep interest was awakened in the public mind to know what the Bible teaches in relation to the nature of man. All classes talked more about the doctrine of the Bible than they had before in some time, and some sat up very late nights to examine its blessed truths. Some knew they were right, because they believed as other good men who lived and wrote many years ago, and did not wish to be disturbed in their opinions. Some such were quite bitter, but most gave a candid hearing. There are none so hard to reach as those who have no "ears to hear" any thing that is not in harmony with their own opinions; who seem to think it a sin to change their minds and believe different from their fathers.

We found noble souls in Canaan and vicinity, who were ready to embrace the truth without asking whether it would make them more or less popular; men and women who were willing to bear reproach for Christ's sake. We seldom, if ever, find any others rejoicing in the light. We think some of the seed sown during the discussion will spring up and bear fruit to the glory of God.

On the Lord's day following the discussion, we had a crowded house of very attentive hearers, some of whom came many miles to be present. Our conference meeting at the close of the evening sermon was excellent. Some wept, confessed, and resolved to begin anew in the service of the Lord; and others rejoiced in the peace of God. It was good to be there. We think a little faithful labor in the place would result in much good. Several have become satisfied, after listening to the discussion, that man has no "immortal soul" in this life, but that he must seek for immortality "by patient continuance in well-doing," if he wishes to live forever. We trust some will at once commence the work in earnest.

THE FALLING STARS.

DEAR BRO. IN CHRIST:—The question was asked me the other day whether the darkening of the sun in 1780, and the falling of the stars in 1833, were seen all over the world or not? I could not answer it, so I drop a line to ask if you have any history that gives an account of those events?

I have been at work in Portsmouth, N. H., and while there, I gave my heart to God, and found peace. I came home to Fall River to see if I could not do some good. I have been having prayer meetings once or twice a week since I have been home. I have opposition on every hand. May I have your prayers?

From a brother in Christ,

ELISHA E. WOODWORTH.

We have no proof that the darkening of the sun and the falling of the stars were seen in all parts of the world; and the Bible does not say it shall be so. Suppose that those signs had been seen in Asia, Africa, South America, and the islands of the sea; the people would not have known what they were for, as they had no Bibles to read to inform them that they were signs of the Lord's coming.

Where should we expect the signs of the second coming of Christ would be seen?—Where the church was enjoying the most light and liberty, and living nearest to the Lord. Well, that is just where these signs were seen,—in the American States and colonies. The fact that the darkening of the sun was confined to the places where the church was the most humble and devoted, is very strong evidence in favor of the view that this was the darkening referred to by the Savior, which, when seen, would indicate that we had come to the last days of the present dispensation.

WILL INFANTS BE SAVED?

BRO. GRANT:—Permit me to ask a question. You say only those who believe in Christ are, or will be immortal. If so, as infants cannot believe in him, what will be their state hereafter? Will they be destroyed, or do you suppose, as they are not personal transgressors, they will become immortal, in some other way, by virtue of the death of Christ? I ask not in a spirit of criticism, but I want information, as I am deeply interested in this subject. I have lost three children under four years of age, and of course it would be almost an impossibility for me to abandon the hope that I should not meet them hereafter in glory. As I have not seen anything on this subject from any one holding your theory of future life, would you please explain the passage from your stand-point, viz., "Suffer the little children," etc., "for of such is the kingdom of God." S. G. RHOADS.

It affords us pleasure to answer the foregoing question, and say most heartily that we believe the little children will be saved "by virtue of the death of Christ." When he says, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God," why should we doubt his word? As we understand the plan of salvation, we are all in the hands of the Lord till we take ourselves out by actual transgression; then we must "be converted, and become as little children" again, or we "shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven."—Matt. 18: 3. The little children are innocent, which is the qualification for the kingdom. When we are pure as they, then we shall be ready to go with them. Let us keep "unspotted from the world."

DESIRE TO DEPART.

BRO. GRANT:—Will you please give an explanation of Phil. 1: 20–24? I think I understand it in my own mind, but I cannot meet my opposers with an explanation that seems to be clear to them. You are aware it is considered a strong proof that saints go to heaven at death. Will you please give me light on it? Your sister in Christ,

L. E. SAULPAUGH.

The passage reads as follows:—"According to my earnest expectation and my hope, that in nothing I shall be ashamed, but that with all boldness, as always, so now also Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life, or by death. For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain. But if I live in the flesh, this is the fruit of my labor; yet what I shall choose I wot not. For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better; nevertheless to abide in the flesh is more needful for you."

Paul should be in harmony with himself. In 1 Cor. 15: 17–18, he says, "If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. Again he says,—"If after the manner of men, I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth me, if the dead rise not? Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die."—Ver. 32. What force could there be to this language of Paul to the Corinthians, if he expected to go to Christ at death, before the resurrection? All could see it would be a plain contradiction. But does this inspired writer thus contradict himself? Certainly not. This in Corinthians is very plain. We see no chance to misunderstand him; for he most positively affirms that he has no hope of a future life if there is no resurrection of the dead. Then what does he mean in Phil. 1: 20–24?

When speaking of his bonds and afflictions, he says, "Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death." Observe, he is to magnify Christ in his body,—(not a word about his soul,) "for to me to live is Christ, and [for me] to die is gain." The me that lives, is the one that is "to die." It is the one that magnifies Christ. If the me who lives means the soul, as some claim, then it would prove that the soul was the one to die.

It is sometimes asked, How could it be gain to Paul to die and sleep in death till the resurrection? We think he means gain to Christ, because he says, "Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life, or by death;" hence, whether he lives or dies, it would be gain to Christ.

But we can see how it would also be gain to Paul. He had been whipped and beaten with rods repeatedly; stoned till he was supposed to be dead; besides suffering various other perils and hardships; and says, "If I live in the flesh, this is the fruit of my labor." Like Job in his afflictions, he might well say, "O that thou would'st hide me in the grave." From the time he fell asleep in Jesus, till the resurrection of the dead, he would not be conscious that one moment had passed. It would be the same to him, as it would have been had he gone to glory the moment he died.

When thinking about living here, and suffering afflictions, or sleeping in death; he says, "I am in a strait betwixt two," that is, between living and dying; "what I shall choose, I wot [know] not."

Then a third consideration is presented, as follows:—"Having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better." Far better than what? Either living or dying; that is, he would like to "depart," or be translated, like Enoch and Elijah. This same feeling has been common to all devoted christians from Paul's day to the present. All who truly love Jesus and his appearing, must feel as Paul did.

But there is another important view to be considered in relation to this passage. The word analuo, rendered "depart," occurs in one other passage (Luke 12: 36,) where it is rendered return, as follows:—"Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding; that, when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately. Hence some render Phil. 1: 23—having a "desire for the returning and being with Christ," which is far better (Emphatic Diaglott); he wished Christ to return, so that he could be with him, which would be far better" than to live here and be whipped, or die and sleep in Jesus till the resurrection. Prof. Hudson remarks on this word rendered "depart,"—"In twenty-two manuscripts of the Septuagint, including the Oxford, it is used in Josh. 22: 8, for the Hebrew word which always signifies "to return."—Debt and Grace, p. 257.

TREMONT CAMPMEETING.

FARE REDUCED.

Tickets from Boston to the Tremont Campmeeting good July 23d to 31st. May be had of GEO. T. ADAMS, 167 Hanover Street. Fare to go and return, $1.90.

THE SEVEN CHURCHES.

We have seen nothing on the subject of the seven churches, mentioned in the first three chapters of Revelation, equal to what Dr. Seiss has given in the second number of his "Apocalypse." We think every Bible student should read it. We have never before seen an exposition that seemed satisfactory; but his puts new life into that important scripture. We are well satisfied that but few are aware of the importance of the book of Revelation. It is also evident that most of the expositions given by the various writers on that portion of the Bible have only served to throw the truth into obscurity instead of making it plainer.

The following is an extract from the work. When speaking of the Reformation he says:

> And so, if we would know how the Reformation stands in the Savior's estimation, we also find it here. As to the great spiritual leaders in it, his comforting declaration is, that their garments were undefiled; that their names are held in honor; and that they shall walk with him in white: 'for they are worthy.' As to the character of the doctrines on which it was based, his command is to remember them, observe them, and watch, as the means of being ready for him when he comes. And as to the final outcome of the blessed movement, his plain and unmistakable word, on the other side, is, that it was not complete; that its works have not been found perfect in the sight of God; that the new phase of the church which resulted from it had not the vitality which it professed; and that the things which it had taken in hand to conserve, it did too much neglect and leave to droop and wither. Its agents were pure and noble, its principles were right and true; but its fruits were incomplete, its results were marred, and its achievements fell short of the mark at which it aimed. The Savior almost names the great souled men who led in that glorious work, and seems almost to sign with his own hand the Protest of Spire and the Confession of Augsburg, and to reiterate from heaven the great foundation doctrines:
>
> An open Bible man's only law of faith;
> Trust in a crucified Savior man's only justification.
> The glorified Jesus the only Lord and Master of the Church.
>
> But the working out of these principles in what followed, he as clearly pronounces defective; and the embodying of them in the life developed upon them, he adjudges to be a thing of "name" more than reality.
>
> Two centuries passed and the Protestant churches assumed another phase. The times of the Pietists, and the Puritans, and the Methodists came on, and there was a new stir in dead Christendom. Those who had escaped from the dominion of Jezebel began to remember how they had received, and heard, and to observe, and repent, and wake up to a sense of the common brotherhood of man, and especially of believers. Christians began to see and feel that the gospel is more than orthodoxy, and that living aggressiveness is one of its fundamental features. The era of revivals, and missions, and united efforts for the general conversion of mankind ensued, such as had not been since the primitive ages. Many indeed continued to live on in ease, settled comfortably upon the earth, and but slightly influenced by the new spirit. Great multitudes of false professors, boastful of their claims, and sneering and censorious toward the men of true faith, yet swarmed throughout Christendom. But, upon the whole, there was great revival of life and fraternity among christians. All this we find depictured in the Sixth Epistle, and verified in the history of the last hundred years. And Christ's estimate of this state of things is also given. The true men of love he declares he loves. As their hearts have been to extend the victories of the cross, he promises them an open door of success which none should be able to shut, notwithstanding the efforts made to silence and hinder them. Because they kept his word in patient waiting on him and for him, he promises that they shall be kept out of the sifting trials which he threatens to send upon those dwelling at ease. And as for the rest, they are the "synagogue of Satan," whom he engages to humble at the very feet of his faithful ones.
>
> There is yet one other phase. Shall I say that it is yet future, or that we have already entered it? Here are still some whom Christ loves,—mostly suffering ones, under the rebukes and chastenings of their gracious Lord. But the body of Christendom is quite apostate, with Christ outside, and knocking for admission into his own professed church. Paul prophesied of the church that is the last period, men would be mere "lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God, having the form of Godliness but denying the power thereof." (2 Tim. 3: 1–5.) This is a fearful picture, almost as dark as that which he gave of the heathen world before christianity touched it. (See Rom. 1: 27–32.) But it answers precisely to the Savior's portraiture of the characteristics of the church in its last phase.
>
> It is Laodicean,—conformed in everything to the popular judgment and will—the extreme opposite of Nicolaitane. Instead of a church of domineering clerical, it is the church of the domineering mob, in which nothing may be safely preached except what the people are pleased to hear,—in which the teachings of the pulpit are fashioned to the tastes of the pew, and the feelings of the individual override the enactments of legitimate authority.
>
> It is lukewarm,—nothing decided,—partly hot and partly cold,—divided between Christ and the world,—not willing to give up pretension and claim to the heavenly, and yet clinging close to the earthy,—having too much conscience to cast off the name of Christ, and too much love for the world to take a firm and honest stand entirely on his side. There is much religiousness, but very little religion; much sentiment, but very little of life to correspond, much profession, but very little faith; a joining of the ball-room to the communion-table, of the opera with the worship of God, and of the feasting and riot of the world with pretended charity and christian benevolence.
>
> And it is self-satisfied, boastful, and empty. Having come down to the world's tastes, and gained the world's praise and patronage, the Laodiceans think they are rich, and increased with goods, and have need in nothing. Such splendid churches, and influential and intelligent congregations, and learned, agreeable preachers! Such admirable worship and music! Such excellently manned and endowed institutions! So many missionaries in the field! So much given for magnificent charities! Such an array in all the attributes of greatness and power! What more can be wanted?
>
> And will it answer to say that all this is not largely and characteristically the state of things at this very hour? Can any man scrutinize narrowly the professed church of our day, and say that we have not reached the Laodicean age? Is this not the voice of this Christendom of ours which says: 'I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need in nothing?' And is it not equally the fact that this self same Christendom of ours is 'the wretched, and the pitiable, and poor, and blind, and naked?' Did the "Mene, mene, tekel, upharsin, of Belshazzar's palace better fit the ancient heathen than this modern christian Babylon? Men talk of it as destined to glorious triumph. They proclaim it commissioned of God to convert the world. They point to its onward march as about to take speedy possession of the race for Christ and heaven. But 'the amen' hath spoken. 'The faithful and true Witness' hath given his word: 'I am about to spue it out of my mouth.'
>
> Friends and brethren, I have not made these pictures; I have found them; and the sevenfold admonition of Almighty God with reference to them is: 'He that hath an ear, let him hear.'"

OUR NEW TRACTS.

"UNIVERSALISM EXPOSED."—This little bombshell in the camp of Universalism is going off rapidly in all directions. Five hundred copies have been sent off in the last three days. At this rate, the edition will soon be exhausted. Send on your orders at once to the Crisis office. Price, in paper covers, 50c. per dozen; single copy, by mail, post-paid, 7c. W. B. H.

"WHY ARE YOU AN UNBELIEVER?"—A good little tract to hand to unbelieving friends who make the doctrine of Endless Torment an excuse for rejecting the Bible. Price, 10 cents per dozen; single copy, by mail, post-paid, 3 cents. W. B. H.

THE KING OF GLORY soon to be revealed from Heaven, to destroy all Earthly Kingdoms, and set up the Kingdom of God on Earth. 46pp. By Wm. Sheldon.

This is No. 6 of a series of "Advent Tracts" issued by the Western Advent Christian Association. It takes up and explains, in the author's clear and forcible manner, the great symbolic visions of Daniel, showing the rise and fall of the Four Universal Monarchies, and the near approach of the Fifth; and concludes with the conviction that "Christ must come to organize his kingdom before the close of 1868." Students of prophecy will read it with interest and profit, whatever their peculiar views on definite time. Price, by mail, 10c.; ten copies, 50 cents. For sale at the Crisis office. W. B. H.

The Revised New Testament.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL EDITION.

We have received an assortment of these miniature Testaments (Revised Version) for children and Sunday-schools. Prices—plain cloth, 25c.; roan, 50c.; gilt, 75c.

For the World's Crisis.

CAMPMEETING AT NEW PRESTON, CONN.

